Great interest was excited by the announcement of a pianoforte Recital by M. de Pachmann, on the 8th ult., and the larger of the Victoria Rooms was filled by a most enthusiastic audience. The great Russian pianist selected his programme from the works of Beethoven, Raff, Henselt, Schumann, Barnett, Liszt, and Chopin. His exquisite touch was evidently fully recognised and appreciated, and his execution was, as usual, a marvel. Though such a pianist must play everything well, yet there is no doubt that M. de Pachmann excels chiefly in music of the romantic school, more especially Chopin's; therefore we were grateful to him for keeping the best till the last, and playing us out with the music of his own favourite and most studied composer. M. de Pachmann gave a Recital on the following day at the Assembly Rooms, Bath.

The Bristol Musical Association gave a miscellaneous Concert on the 10th ult., when Colston Hall was crowded as usual. The chief work given was Weber's "Jubilee" Cantata, which was very fairly rendered. The band was led by Mr. Gardner, and Mr. Gordon conducted. The choir was the same as usual, and Mr. Riseley presided at the organ. The solo vocalists were Miss E. Falkner, Miss E. Lloyd, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. Lawford Huxtable, and the instrumentalists Miss Maud Bennett (piano), Mr. Gardner (violin), and Mr. J. Bossi (cornet).

Mr. George Riseley gave Organ Recitals at Colston Hall on the 1st and the 17th ult., and a Recital of sacred music was announced for Good Friday.

Mr. Augustus Aylward gave an Organ Recital in the Congregational Church, Salisbury, in connection with the Literary Association, on March 24, which was very well attended, and seemed much appreciated. The programme included Handel's "Occasional" Overture, Batiste's Offertoire in D minor, and Beethoven's "Hallelujah" Chorus, among other works. Mrs. Wells was the vocalist.

The second of the Free Concerts for the working classes, given by Mr. Alfred Foley, took place in Salisbury, on the 3rd ult., before a packed audience, numbers having to be turned away from the doors through want of space. There were several vocalists and an orchestra of thirty-five performers, under the direction of Mr. Foley, and many works of popular interest were presented, and were evidently much enjoyed. It is hoped that these excellent entertainments may soon be placed on a secure and permanent footing.

The second Concert of the Bath Choral Union took place at the Assembly Rooms, Bath, on the 6th ult., when an interesting programme was performed. Mendelssohn's "Christus," in which the choruses and chorals were given with great precision and spirit by the choir, and the same composer's Motett "Hear my prayer" formed the two chief items, and Gounod's "Ave verum" also received a satisfactory rendering. Miss Charlotte Davies, a pupil of Madame Schumann's, charmed her audience by her delicate and expressive rendering of Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata; and Herr von Praag exhibited his well-known artistic skill in Handel's Sonata in A, for violin and piano. The vocalists were Miss Margaret Cockburn and Miss Adelaide Clarke, who both acquitted themselves very creditably. The Concert closed with Mendelssohn's 13th Psalm.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

In Yorkshire, the musical season is rapidly drawing to a close. Some of the numerous events of last month yet remain to be noticed.

In pursuance of his scheme, Mr. Edgar Haddock continued his musical evenings at the Philosophical Hall, Leeds, until the conclusion of the series on March 26. At the Concert on March 19, Mr. Haddock was assisted by Miss Amina Goodwin, who met with a favourable reception, and, with Mr. Haddock, gave a sympathetic rendering of the Kreutzer Sonata. Miss Goodwin's solos were selected from Chopin and Moszkowski, her performances evidencing the possession of much refinement and delicacy, and of highly cultivated technical powers. Mr. Haddock rendered items by Spohr, Prume, and Ernst. At the tenth Recital, on March 26, the pianist was Fräulein Marie Krause, a young artist who bids fair to take foremost rank in her profession. The date was the anniversary of the death of Beethoven, and received some significance from the fact that the first part of the Concert was entirely devoted to his music. The last of his Sonatas, for piano and violin, in G major, occupied the first place on the programme, and was approached by the executants with a becoming sense of its importance. Beethoven's Pastoral Sonata (Op. 28) was the subject of a highly finished and well-studied effort on the part of the pianist, and her solos comprised also an item by Pergolesi, one of Schubert's "Moments Musicaux," and Chopin's Waltz in A flat. Mr. Haddock gave as a solo performance a Concertstück by De Beriot. One of Mozart's Sonatas, for piano and violin, also had a place on the programme. This Concert was the last of twenty given by Mr. Haddock during the season, and, as may be imagined, a vast deal of musical ground has been covered by the course. Mr. Haddock himself has played no less than forty-six violin solos, in every instance from memory. Beethoven's ten Sonatas, for piano and violin, have been given in chronological order, and a variety of music, entirely new to Yorkshire audiences, has been produced, with, it may be assumed, valuable educational results.

The second of Herr Christensen's Subscription Concerts was given in the Philosophical Hall, on March 23. Herr Christensen was assisted by Herr Giessing, a violoncellist of considerable ability, and Miss Fanny Sellers (vocalist). Herr Christensen's facility was well tested in compositions by Grieg and Gade, and he secured the hearty approval of the audience. His playing has latterly gained much in finish and intellectual quality. Herr Giessing played one of Piatti's beautiful compositions for the cello, and won much applause. Miss Sellers proved an acceptable vocalist. At the third Concert, which was given on the 13th ult., Herr Christensen was again assisted by Herr Giessing, and by Miss Emily Shinner, violinist, and Mr. Charles Blagbro', vocalist. Miss Shinner created something like a furore by her rendering of Spohr's Dramatic Concerto, the piano accompaniment to which was played by Herr Christensen. Herr Giessing gave a Fantasia by Servais, and the pianist selected Liszt's "Consolation," and a Valse by Leschetizky. The executants combined in the rendering of three Impromptus by Herr Christensen, to whose ability the audience gave emphatic recognition at the close of the performance. Herr Christensen deserves to be congratulated on the success of his venture, and the hope may be expressed in all sincerity, that he will see fit to resume his Concerts in due time.

The Leeds Philharmonic Society gave one of the most successful Concerts which the season has brought forth in Yorkshire, on March 24, in the Leeds Coliseum. As was the case twelve months ago, the Society presented one of Dvorák's works as the principal item of its programme. A year ago the "Stabat Mater" was performed, and on this occasion the Birmingham Festival production of 1885, "The Spectre's Bride," was given. The interest which the Bohemian composer has excited in the musical world was demonstrated by the crowded state of the Coliseum. The performance was complete, and satisfactory in every aspect. The only drawback was the absence of Mr. Edward Lloyd, who was prevented by indisposition from taking the part assigned to him, but his place was ably filled by Mr. Harper Kearton, who sang the tenor music with excellent effect. The soprano part was undertaken by Miss Thudichum, who acquitted herself successfully of a difficult task. The part of the Narrator found an able exponent in Mr. Barrington Foote, whose well-balanced voice and style told with much effect. The work had undergone careful preparation under the direction of Mr. Alfred Broughton, the Conductor, and the result was unexceptionable. The chorus was well balanced and the tone full and sonorous, the short broken phrases which form so considerable a feature of the score being taken up with precision, and delivered with expression and facility. The efficiency of the chorus was supplemented by an admirable orchestral accompaniment. The band, led by Herr Schiever, proved itself thoroughly efficient. The second half of the Concert was devoted to Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," which was given with freedom and finish throughout. The principals were Miss Thudichum—who was joined by Miss Annie Woods in the duet "I waited for the Lord"—and Mr. Kearton, all of whom sang with much acceptance. Both works performed on this occasion were also given, under Mr. Broughton's direction, at Dewsbury, on March 23. The chorus consisted partly of the Dewsbury Choral Society and partly of the Leeds Philharmonic Society. The principals were Miss Thudichum, Mr. Seymour Jackson, and Mr. Riley. Mr. J. W. Bowling led the orchestra, which included many members of Mr. Charles Halle's band. In the duet "I waited for the Lord," Miss Thudichum was joined by Mrs. J. W. Hirst.

At a Concert given in St. George's Hall, Bradford, on March 26, the Bradford Festival Choral Society gave Dr. J. C. Bridge's Oratorio "Daniel," in the production of which at the Chester Musical Festival last July, a contingent of the Society took part. The work was well received by an audience which entirely filled the hall. Its massive choruses, fine descriptive episodes, and cleverly contrived and flowing instrumentation bear the impress of much constructive power and contrapuntal ability. The unaccompanied choral especially merited the distinction which was conferred upon it by the demand for a repetition. For the solo numbers terms of praise so general could scarcely be applied. With the performance Dr. Bridge, who conducted the work, would probably have every cause for satisfaction. The choruses were rendered most impressively, the Finale to the first part, and the magnificent chorus "For all the gods" being given with vigour, precision, and fullness of tone. The band scarcely rose to the level of the occasion, and certainly did not make the most of its opportunities. The solos were rendered by members of the Society, namely, Miss Cockcroft, Mrs. Ashcroft-Clarke, Mr. Mellor, and Mr. Grice, who acquitted themselves skillfully. At the close of the performance Dr. Bridge received a well-deserved tribute from the audience. In the second part of the programme the band gave a very fine rendering of Auber's Overture "Marco Spada." Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor, the pianoforte part of which was rendered by Mr. Fred Dawson, of Leeds, proved one of the most enjoyable features of the evening.

The Keighley Musical Union gave a highly satisfactory performance of the "Creation" at its second Concert in the Mechanics' Institute on March 23rd. The chorus numbered about 200 voices, and the accompaniments were rendered by a band of forty performers. The principals were Miss V. Beaumont, Mr. C. Blagbro, and Mr. George Owen. Mr. W. H. Summerscales conducted with marked ability.

The Bradford Musical Union gave its annual invitation Concert in the Technical College on March 29th. Admirable performances were given by the members of the Union under the direction of Mr. B. Watson, and songs were rendered by Miss Clara Marshall, Mrs. Ashcroft-Clarke, Mr. Mellor, Mr. Waddington, Mr. T. H. Scott, and Mr. Calverley. Mr. E. Misdale played Beethoven's Sonata in C minor, No. 8.

Mr. George Owen, a bass singer of exceptional promise, gave a Concert in the Bradford Technical College on the 13th ult., the proceeds of which, together with public subscriptions, were intended to assist him during a residence in London for the purpose of obtaining musical training. The Concert was well attended. Mr. Owen was assisted by Miss Cockcroft, Mrs. Ashcroft-Clarke, Mr. J. Mellor, Mr. T. Knowles, the members of the Bradford Musical Union, the Arion Quartet, and Mr. Misdale. The accompanist was Mr. H. Coates.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

On the 2nd ult. an Evening Concert was given, in the Queen Street Hall, by Herr Otto Schweizer, assisted by Miss Amy Sheridan as vocalist, and Mr. Franklin Peterson as accompanist. On this, Miss Amy Sheridan's second appearance in Edinburgh, she showed her brilliant powers to even better advantage than when introduced by Mr. August Manns at one of the Choral Union Concerts this winter. The songs by Schubert, Jensen, Eckert (Swiss Echo song), and the charmingly rendered Scotch songs (one of which was in response to an encore) created quite a furore. The instrumental contributions by the Concert-giver were Beethoven's Sonata in F major (Op. 54), Rheinberger's Fugue and "La Chasse" (from Op. 5), compositions of his own—Barcarole (Op. 22), Berceuse, and Valsette—in answer to a recall, an Etude of Chopin (Op. 10, No. 3), with Mr. Franklin Peterson, Schumann's "Ball Scenes" as duets; and, at the close of the Concert, Tausig's arrangement of Wagner's Vorspiel to "Die Meistersinger."

On the following afternoon, M. Vladimir de Pachmann gave his second Recital in the Music Hall. The programme was a very interesting one, comprising, as it did, Weber's Sonata in E minor (Op. 70), superbly played; Raff's Prelude and Fugue, and "La Fileuse," which had to be repeated in answer to an enthusiastic encore; compositions by Schumann, Chopin, Henselt, Barnett, and Liszt's "Rhapsodie Hongroise" (No. 13).

An interesting organ performance, the first of two historical Recitals to illustrate the development of the art of organ-writing from the earliest times to the present day, was given in Palmerston Place Church by Mr. Franklin Peterson, on the evening of the 6th ult. Compositions of Girolamo Frescobaldi (1580-1644), "Ricercare" (an unpublished fragment), Bach's "Passacaglia," and a Chromatic Fantasia by L. Thiele were the principal and most interesting numbers. The playing of the "Passacaglia" especially deserves favourable comment. Miss Clark, as vocalist, sang Stradella's "Se i miei sospiri" and Bach's "My heart ever faithful."

The second of the two annual Concerts by Mr. Kirkhope's Choir, in aid of a local charity, was given in the Masonic Hall, on the 16th ult. Hiller's Cantata "The Song of Victory" was the chief item in the programme, which also included selections from A. C. Mackenzie's "Rose of Sharon" and numerous part-songs. Mrs. Ellis sustained the solo soprano parts, and, as usual, the accompanists, a small string band, led by Mr. Daly, gave able assistance. Mr. Della Torre, a young pianist of good promise, contributed solos by Raff and Liszt. Mr. Kirkhope conducted.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND. (FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A STATEMENT of the income and expenditure for the past season of the Choral Union Concerts, was laid before the guarantors on the 2nd ult. The income amounted to £10,042, and the expenditure to £9,851, leaving on hand, with the former balance, a total surplus of £1,860. This balance, with the consent of the guarantors, has been retained on hand. The financial result of the past season is justly considered very satisfactory, taking into account the depressed state of trade. There was, further, no reason to complain that the artistic standard of the Concerts had not been maintained, for if economy has been exercised, as very probably it has had to be to help the result, it was not at the expense of the character of the music, or the efficiency of its production. The annual election of office bearers of the Choral Union took place a few evenings afterwards, when Mr. Andrew Myles, who has held the Presidentship for the past seven years, was again elected to that responsible post. The practices will continue till the month of June, when there will be the usual recess. The choruses in Rossini's "Stabat Mater" and Schubert's "Song of Miriam" have been put into rehearsal.

The Pollokshields Musical Association gave its second Concert for the season, on March 30, in the Dixon Hall. Gade's "Erl-King's Daughter" occupied the first part, and was fairly well rendered, with piano accompaniment. In the second part several part-songs were sung with marked finish and taste. Mr. W. T. Hoeck conducted. On the same evening the Musical Association connected with Trinity Congregational Church produced Dr. P. Armes's Church Oratorio, "St. John the Evangelist," Mr. James Greig conducting and Mr. T. Berry accompanying on the organ. The performance altogether was in keeping with the long and excellent reputation of the Society.

The choir of St. Vincent Street United Presbyterian Church gave a performance of Spohr's Oratorio "The Last Judgment," in the Church, on the 2nd ult. There was a full band and a large chorus, and the Oratorio was produced in an altogether satisfactory manner. The soloists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Roxburgh, Messrs. Seligmann and Gillespie. The Society has been in existence for seventeen years, under the energetic bâton of Mr. Hugh McNabb, who conducted on the present occasion, and many works of considerable importance have been brought forward during that time.

M. Vladimir de Pachmann gave a Pianoforte Recital on the 5th ult., in St. Andrew's Hall, his second here this season; and Mr. J. A. Robertson, a local pianist of ability, gave a Concert of chamber music on the same evening, and in the same suite of buildings, both Concerts being fairly well attended.

On the 6th ult., the Partick Musical Association performed Barnett's "Ancient Mariner," in the Burgh Hall, which was filled by a large and appreciative audience. The solo vocalists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Roxburgh, Mr. Seligmann, and Mr. Sweeney. Mr. Bannerman presided at the pianoforte and Mr. Hopper at the organ. The work was admirably rendered. Mr. McNabb was the Conductor.

A Concert was given by the Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society, of which Mr. W. T. Hoeck is Conductor, on the 12th ult., in the Waterloo Rooms, in aid of the funds of the Western Infirmary. The amateurs played very well indeed, but there was unfortunately but a small attendance.

A Concert of sacred music was given by the Choir of St. Paul's Parish Church on the 13th ult., Mr. Robert Adams conducting, and Miss Adams accompanying on the organ.

Mr. William Moodie's Choir came forward in the Waterloo Rooms, on the following evening, with an attractive programme of harmonised part-songs, chiefly Scotch, the arrangements being all by local musicians, including Mr. Moodie, who submitted some new harmonisations and compositions of his own of his usual high merit.

A fairly effective performance of F. H. Cowen's Cantata "The Rose Maiden" was given by the Crosshill Musical Association, on the 13th ult., in the Dixon Hall of that Burgh. The choral singing was very fair but slightly lacking in expression. Mr. Alexander Patterson conducted.

The Hillhead Musical Association gave a Concert in the Queen's Rooms on the 15th ult. Hofmann's Cantata "Melusina" occupied nearly all the evening, and was rendered with great care and neatness under the bâton of Mr. W. T. Hoeck. The Society, which has had fluctuating fortunes, has issued a list of pieces produced since its formation fourteen years ago, the importance of these showing that it has filled a useful place in our musical world.

The annual Concert of the Glasgow Southern Boys' Choir, took place on the 22nd ult. The programme comprised Behrend's Cantata "The Ghost," the humours of which were heartily enjoyed, while the singing generally throughout the evening was fairly successful, remembering the defective acoustics of the hall. Mr. Hugh McNabb conducted.

Two performances of Dr. Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus," with other shorter sacred selections, were given on the 22nd and 23rd ult., by the united choirs of St. Matthew's and Pollokshields' Free Churches. The axiom that union is strength, holds especially good of a combination of two or more of our church choirs for Concert purposes.

On the 23rd ult., a Concert of chamber music was given in St. Andrew's Berkeley Hall, by Mr. W. H. Cole and party. Mr. Cole has done much to foster a taste for chamber music in Glasgow.

The Musical Association of Uddingston, near Glasgow, gave a Concert on the 9th ult., in which the principal item was "Spring" from Haydn's "Seasons." Mr. George Taggart conducted. The performance, though meritorious, was altogether hardly up to the high standard hitherto maintained by the Society.

A performance of F. Parker's "Silvia" was given on the 6th ult. by the Musical Association of the East U. P. Church, Johnstone, Renfrewshire, Mr. J. S. Allan conducting.

The Paisley Choral Union gave a Concert on the 9th ult., Cowen's Cantata "Sleeping Beauty" being the principal number in the programme. Ample justice was done to this melodious work by band, chorus, and principals, the latter being Mdle. de Lido, Mr. H. Jones, and Countess Sadowska. Mr. James Barr conducted and Mr. W. H. Cole led the orchestra. There was a very large attendance on the occasion.

Dr. Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus" was performed in Fintona United Presbyterian Church, Greenock, on the 12th ult., Mr. Methven conducting. The choir, which sang very well, was considerably augmented for the occasion.

Schubert's "Song of Miriam," together with a selection of shorter pieces of sacred music, was presented on the 13th ult., by the Mid-Kirk Choir, Greenock. Mr. G. Moffat was the Conductor. The Concert generally was a highly successful one.

A Concert was given by the Rutherglen Choral Society, in the Town Hall, on the 23rd ult., when E. C. Such's Cantata, "Narcissus and Echo," was performed, together with a selection of part-songs, &c. The Society, which is under the honorary conductorship of Mr. William Macintyre, made a most excellent appearance.

OBITUARY.

MARIE HEILBRON, the celebrated operatic singer, died on March 31, at Nice, after a painful and protracted illness. Born in 1849 at Lyons, where her parents, who were of Dutch origin, resided, her career has thus been prematurely closed at the age of thirty-seven. While yet in her teens, Mdle. Heilbron made her début at the Paris

Opéra Comique, at which theatre she, in association with M. Capoul and Mlle. Gérard, took a leading part in the first performance of M. Massenet's early opera "La Grand Tante." She subsequently became a great favourite at several other Parisian theatres, among her most successful impersonations having been that of Zerlina in "Don Giovanni" and of the title-rôle in "La Traviata," while an engagement entered into with the directors of the Grand Opéra proved to be of but short duration. By repeated extensive professional tours throughout Europe and the United States—in the course of which she also initiated herself into the favour of English audiences—Marie Heilbron acquired a cosmopolitan fame, due as much to her handsome stage presence and refined acting, as to her powers of vocalisation. The deceased lady was married in 1881 to the Vicomte de Lapanouze, and leaves, it is said, a considerable fortune to her only child.

We regret to have to announce the death of the excellent pianist and talented composer known to the musical world by the name of Théodore Ritter, but whose real name was Bennet. The deceased artist was born in 1841, at Nantes, and had thus only attained his forty-fifth year. He was one of the most gifted pupils of Liszt, under whose auspices, and partly in whose company, he, as a young man, undertook several most successful concert tours throughout Europe, whereby his fame as a brilliant and sympathetic pianoforte player became firmly established. Ritter subsequently turned his mind chiefly to composition, and amongst his numerous works those written for his special instrument are, perhaps, the most remarkable. His two operas, "Marianne," produced in 1861 at the Paris Opéra Comique, and "La Dea Risorta," brought out at the Theatre Alfieri, of Florence, in 1865, apparently met with little favour, being soon withdrawn from the répertoire of these establishments. His death—which occurred suddenly on the 5th ult.—leaves a conspicuous void amongst the music-lovers of the French capital, with whom he was a general favourite.

Josiah Pittman, whose death occurred suddenly on the 23rd ult., was for many years associated with Italian Opera in this country, both at Her Majesty's Theatre and Covent Garden. He held the post of Organist and Choir-master at Lincoln's Inn Chapel from 1852 to 1864, but latterly his operatic engagements, especially at Covent Garden, had chiefly occupied him. He studied the organ under Goodman and S. S. Wesley, and later the piano under Moscheles; and in 1836-7 he went through a course of theory at Frankfurt with Schnyder von Wartensee. For several years he delivered the annual course of lectures on music at the London Institution. Mr. Pittman was born September 3, 1816.

At the final rehearsal of the first season of the Novello Choir, on the evening of Monday, the 5th ult., the members took the opportunity to present their Conductor, Mr. Mackenzie, with an address, accompanied by an ideal representation in painted glass of his "Rose of Sharon." The occasion was rendered doubly interesting by the presence of Dr. Franz Liszt, who came in order to hear some of the choruses from his "St. Elizabeth," and afterwards played to the great delight of the members of the choir.

THE improved "Hand Guide" for the pianoforte, manufactured and patented by Messrs. Marsden and Wright, of Leeds, a specimen of which has been forwarded to us, consists of a horizontal bar of polished hardwood, the upper surface of which is oval in form, so as to fill the hollow of the player's wrist. The purpose of this invention is to enable students to acquire a correct position of the hand, especially in the performance of technical exercises, to promote independence of fingers, and to prevent undue fatigue in practising for a length of time. The appliance can be readily put on and taken off the instrument, and can be raised or lowered with the utmost ease. Considering that Logier's "Chiroplast" has so fallen into disuse, it seems tacitly admitted that mechanical methods of acquiring a good position at the key-board are of little service; but we can conscientiously say that to those who believe in their efficacy, Messrs. Marsden and Wright's invention will prove an invaluable boon.

THE opening of the Summer season of 1886, at the Crystal Palace, on the first of the present month, will be celebrated by a performance on the largest scale, of Gounod's Oratorio "The Redemption," a work, says the prospectus, "which in a few short years has ranged itself among the most popular masterpieces of the highest musical art." Produced with a completeness and grandeur attainable only in an establishment possessing a musical organisation capable of carrying out such gigantic demonstrations as the Handel Festivals, there can be little doubt that the presentation of Gounod's now popular Trilogy, will prove of the highest interest both to the musician and the general public. The soloists engaged are Madame Albani, Miss Annie Marriott, Madame Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. F. King, and Mr. Santley; the chorus will number about 3,000 selected voices, consisting of the well-trained and experienced London contingent of the Handel Festival Choir, reinforced from the best Choral Societies of the metropolis and surrounding districts; and the band will comprise several hundreds of the best instrumentalists, Mr. August Manns being the Conductor. A feature of the season will be Mr. Manns's Benefit Concert which has been fixed for the 8th inst., and on June 19 a Concert will be given, at which Madame Christine Nilsson, Madame Trebelli, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Signor Foli, amongst other artists, will appear. In addition to some highly attractive dramatic performances, arrangements have been made with Mr. Carl Rosa for a series of representations of Opera in English, and a number of Comic Operas will also be given. During the season monster choral Concerts will, as usual, take place; daily performances by the Crystal Palace Orchestral Band will be given, under the conductorship of Mr. August Manns; the Company's Military Band will play every day in various parts of the Palace and grounds; and Mr. A. J. Eyre, the Company's Organist, or other well known organists, will give daily Recitals on either the Handel Festival organ or the Concert-room organ. So excellent a programme cannot fail to appeal most powerfully to the many who are attracted to this favourite place of summer resort.

At the weekly Concert held at the City Temple, Holborn, under the direction of Mr. E. Minshall, on Tuesday evening, the 15th ult., there was a crowded attendance. During the first part there was a very interesting competition for two prizes by seven lady vocalists, whose place on the programme were decided by lot. Miss Clara Dowle secured a double recall for her rendering of "Waiting" (Millard), ably accompanied on the pianoforte by Miss Adela Duckham, the only other competitor who received a similar honour being Miss Helen Killik (pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby) for her singing of "The river of years" (Marzials). Miss Muriel Wood gave, with good effect, "Tell me my heart," and was much applauded and recalled. When the tickets were collected, Mr. Minshall announced Miss Clara Dowle to be the winner of the first prize, and Miss Muriel Wood of the second. Places were allotted in the second part of the programme to whoever might be the prizetakers, Miss Clara Dowle singing "Poor wandering one" ("Pirates of Penzance"), and Miss Muriel Wood "Heaven and earth" (Pinsuti). Miss Adeline Dinelli's violin solos were given in her usual finished manner and were much appreciated.

THE cycle of seven Historical Pianoforte Recitals to be given at St. James's Hall, by Herr Rubinstein, on the afternoons of the 18th, 21st, 24th, and 27th inst., and the 1st, 4th, and 8th June, will be amongst the most interesting events of the season. At the first Recital specimens will be performed of the works of composers from William Bird to Mozart; the second will be devoted to Beethoven's Sonatas; the third to Schubert, Weber, and Mendelssohn; the fourth to Schumann; the fifth to Clementi, John Field, Hummel, Moscheles, Henselt, Thalberg, and Liszt; the sixth to Chopin; and the seventh to Chopin (continued), Glinka, Mily Alexejewitch Balakireff, Cesar Cui, Rimsky Korsakoff, Anatole Liadoff, Peter Tchaikowsky, Anton and Nicolaus Rubinstein. Although we miss the name of Sterndale Bennett, amongst others, from this list, and meet with many at present unknown in England, so rich and comprehensive a programme cannot but be welcomed by all lovers of sterling pianoforte music.

THE programme for the Triennial Festival, to take place at Gloucester in September next, is now definitely arranged. The opening service will be held on Tuesday morning, September 7, when the Dean of Gloucester has consented to preach the sermon in aid of the Clergy Widows and Orphans' Charity. The service will be followed by a performance of "Elijah." A Concert will be held on the Tuesday evening, the programme for which includes Mr. C. H. Lloyd's new Cantata, "Andromeda"; and Miss Fanny Davies will play a Pianoforte Concerto. The programme for Wednesday morning will consist of Dvorák's now popular "Stabat Mater," Hiller's "Song of Victory," and two ancient Cathedral Anthems. In the evening Mr. Rockstro's new sacred Cantata, "The Good Shepherd," and the "Hymn of Praise," will be given. M. Gounod's latest work, "Mors et Vita," has been selected for Thursday morning; and the programme for the evening includes Mr. Cowen's Cantata, "Sleeping Beauty," composed for the Birmingham Festival, 1885, and a new orchestral work by Dr. Hubert Parry. "The Messiah" will be performed on the Friday morning, and there will be a special closing service in the Cathedral in the evening, for which Mr. C. L. Williams, the Conductor, is, on the invitation of the Stewards, composing an Orchestral Service. On most of the days tickets as low as 1s. will be issued, and for the Wednesday evening the former prices of all the seats have been reduced. The principal vocalists engaged are Madame Albani, Miss Anna Williams, Madame Patey, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Winch, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Watkin Mills; and Mr. Carrodus will lead the band. The Stewards deserve every credit for such judicious and liberal arrangements; and we hope and believe that their efforts will secure a decisive success, both artistically and financially.

THE third Concert of the present season was given by the St. Peter's Choral Society in St. Peter's Hall, Wickham Road, on Tuesday, the 13th ult., when Dr. Stainer's "St. Mary Magdalen" and Barnby's "Rebekah" formed the programme. Dr. Stainer directed the performance of his own work, and the choir, numbering about 100, sang the choral numbers with much effect, especially "Come ye sin defiled and weary," "For none of us liveth," and the chorus for ladies' voices, "He is not here." Dr. C. J. Frost, conductor of the Society, directed the performance of "Rebekah," in which the members of the choir acquitted themselves with quite as much credit as in the previous work. The solo music was ably rendered by Madame Wilson-Osman, Miss Alice Heale, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. Thomas Kempton. Miss Alice Heale, who took the important part of the contralto in the "Magdalen," especially pleased with her sympathetic rendering of the music allotted to her. At the conclusion of the performance of Dr. Stainer's Cantata the composer was enthusiastically recalled.

MR. WINDEYER CLARK gave an Organ Recital, on Tuesday, March 30, at Westbourne Grove Chapel, Bayswater. The programme included Bach's Prelude and Fugue on his own name, and Handel's Concerto in F (No. 4), for organ and orchestra. Madame Wilson-Osman sang with her accustomed grace "Angels ever bright and fair," "Saviour of sinners," and "Rejoice greatly." Miss Cheadle (pianoforte), and Mdlle. Gabrielle Vaillant (violin), were much applauded for their fine interpretation of Beethoven's Sonata in G (Op. 30, No. 3). The effective performance of Gounod's Trio "La Colombe," for violin, pianoforte, and organ, was greatly appreciated. In the absence of Mr. Norfolk Megone, the very efficient orchestra was ably conducted by Mdlle. Vaillant. Mr. Clark gave an admirable rendering of a Religious March, by Sir G. A. Macfarren, and of the "Scherzo Symphonique," by Lemmens.

A MEMOIR of Ole Bull, the famous Norwegian violinist, will shortly be published by Mr. T. Fisher Unwin. It has been prepared by Sara C. Bull, and, besides a full biography, will contain Ole Bull's "Violin Notes" and Dr. A. B. Crosby's "Anatomy of the Violinist." The book will be furnished with several portraits, and contain interesting reminiscences of Franz Liszt, Chopin, Wagner, Paganini, Fanny Ellsler, Malibran, Adolina Patti, Whittier, Longfellow, and other celebrities.

HERR HERMANN FRANKE, in the prospectus of the Richter Concerts for the season commencing on Monday, the 3rd inst., announces that, as he is unable to realise his desire of forming a scheme for the performance of German Opera, he intends to give the entire second act of "Tristan und Isolde," and the entire third act of "Siegfried," as specimens of Wagner's later works. For the performance of these compositions engagements have been made with Fräulein Theresa Maiten (Isolde and Brünnhilde), Fräulein Helene Hieser (Brangäne), Herr Heinrich Gudehus (Tristan and Siegfried), and Mr. George Henschel (Marke and Kurwenal). Both these excerpts will be given twice. The novelties are the Symphony (No. 4), by Brahms, and that by our own countryman, Eugène D'Albert, and the choruses and incidental music to "The Eumenides" of Æschylus, by C. Villiers Stanford (for the first time in London), the choruses to be sung in Greek by members of the Cambridge Musical Society. Beethoven's Mass in D and the Ninth Symphony, Wagner's final Chorus from "Die Meistersinger," and excellent selections, not only from those of both the composers named, but from those of Cherubini, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Berlioz, and Liszt, make up a programme of extraordinary attraction. There will be an orchestra of 100 performers, under the leadership of Herr Ernst Schiever; the Richter Choir, directed by Herr Frantzen; and Herr Richter, as usual, will conduct. The season will consist of nine evening concerts.

THE Tufnell Park Choral Society gave its last Concert of the season in St. George's Church Room, on Friday evening, the 16th ult., when the following works were performed:—"The Passion" (Haydn), "Spring's Message" (Niels Gade), and "The Bride of Dunkerron" (Smart). It would not be easy to name a more appropriate work than that by Haydn, presenting, as it does, themes admirably adapted for choral practice, as well as a subject appropriate to the solemn season of Lent. Evidently the choristers had availed themselves of the advantages afforded by the weekly rehearsals, under their accomplished and indefatigable Conductor, for each detail of the exquisite movements was clearly defined, while the ensembles were satisfactorily sustained. The soli passages were taken by Miss Bayley, Miss J. M. Kell, Miss Stephenson, Miss Philips, Mr. Kent Sutton, and Mr. Puzey. Gade's music gave them an opportunity of showing the lightness and elasticity of their vocalisation, and Smart's dramatic composition supplied strains wherewith to exhibit their force and energy. The solos in the last-named work were well rendered by Miss Margaret Hoare, Mr. Charles Chilly, and Mr. Bridson, and Miss Eleanor Rees gave an admirable rendering of Gounod's "The Worker." The accompaniments were performed by Mr. King Hall and Mr. Frank Lewis Thomas, and Mr. W. Henry Thomas conducted.

MR. TODHUNTER'S play, entitled "Helena in Troas," will be performed for the benefit of the British School of Archæology, at Athens, on the afternoons of the 17th, 19th, 21st, 24th, 25th, and 27th inst., at Hengler's Circus, Argyl Street, which will be altered to represent the Greek arrangement of Proscenium, Orchestra, and Thymele. The music has been specially composed by Mr. B. Luard Selby, and the principal characters will be sustained by Miss Lucy Roche, Miss Alma Murray, Mrs. H. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Hermann Vezin, and Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, the leader of the chorus being Miss Helen Kinnaird. The subject of the dramatic action of the play is taken from the cycle of stories respecting the Siege of Troy, and it will be placed on the stage under the superintendence of Mr. E. W. Godwin, F.S.A.

A CONCERT in aid of the Wycliffe Sunday Schools, Philpot Street, under the direction of the Choirmaster, Mr. George Merritt, G.T.S.C., was given on Friday, March 26. The vocalists were Miss Annie Hood, Miss Kate Hemming, R.A.M., and Mr. P. McAuslane, all of whom were very successful in their solos. The accompaniments were ably rendered by Miss Bonallack (pianoforte), and Mr. and Mrs. Coke (harmonium). The programme also included a pianoforte solo and duets for pianoforte and harmonium, well played by Miss Bonallack and Mr. Coke, the performance concluding with a humorous Catch, capably rendered by Messrs. Merritt, McAuslane, and Doig.

THE 26th Consecutive Monthly Concert of the St. George's Glee Union was given on the 2nd ult., at the Pimlico Rooms, Warwick Street. This Concert, falling in Lent, was one of sacred music throughout, and the bold and effective rendering of the anthems and choruses by the choir under Mr. Joseph Monday's direction, showed that great pains had been taken in rehearsal to make this Concert rank in excellence with the usual secular Concerts so successfully given by this Society. The first part of the programme comprised solos by Madame Lita Jarratt, Madame Osborne-Williams, Mr. Reginald Groome, and Mr. Thurley Beale, and the anthems "Praise the Lord, O my soul" (Goss); "Cry aloud and shout" (Croft); "Why rage fiercely the heathen" (Mendelssohn); and "The Lord is a man of war" (Handel); arranged for tenors and basses. Dr. Stainer's sacred Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus" occupied the second part of the programme, and with Madame Lita Jarratt, Mr. Reginald Groome, and Mr. Thurley Beale as soloists, a most efficient rendering of this work was achieved. Miss Lini Hagemeyer presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. F. R. Kinkead at the harmonium.

THE Hampstead Conservatoire of Music gave the first of a projected series of Students' Concerts on the 3rd ult., at Prince's Hall, under the direction of the principal, Mr. George F. Gaussent. Some ten pupils presented themselves on this occasion, who, in vocal and instrumental solos, rendered a good account of the tuition afforded by the above institution, Mrs. Templeton, in a brilliant rendering of Mendelssohn's "Variations Sérieuses," and Mr. R. E. Miles, in his delivery of some songs, were more especially deserving of the applause freely bestowed by the audience during the Concert. Nor should we omit to mention the very able performance on the part of Miss Waite and a choir of ladies, of Heinrich Hofmann's "Song of the Norns," conducted by the principal. A distinct feature of the programme was a recitation contributed by Mr. Charles Fry (one of the professors of the Conservatoire), who, though evidently suffering somewhat from a relaxed throat, gave Macaulay's "Virginia" with admirable taste and perfect elocution, producing a most legitimate effect upon his numerous auditors.

THE second Concert of the Woodside Park Musical Society took place at Woodside Hall, North Finchley, on Thursday, March 25, when Cowen's Cantata "Sleeping Beauty" was performed with great success. The solos were well rendered by Miss Emily Buxton, R.A.M., Madame Florence Winn, Mr. Percy Palmer (who ably filled the place of Mr. Henry Piercy, absent through indisposition), and Mr. Alfred Reynolds. The accompaniments were well played by Mrs. G. Williams at the pianoforte and a professional string quintet led by Mr. E. Halfpenny. The second part of the Concert, which was miscellaneous, consisted of well known madrigals and part-songs, &c. A violoncello solo by Mr. E. Woolhouse received a well deserved encore, and each of the soloists contributed songs with much success. Mr. Alfred J. Dye, A.Mus., conducted.

THE close of the Easter term at the Royal Academy of Music was celebrated on the 15th ult., as usual, by the performance of selections by the operatic class, from new and standard operas. The programme included the first act of a new opéra de salon entitled "The Two Poets," written by W. H. Scott and composed by J. Edward German (student). The work was most favourably received, and the composer was again and again recalled to bow his acknowledgments to an appreciative audience. Mr. Musgrove Tufnail and Mrs. Osman-Wilson took the principal characters, and each were thoroughly successful in the parts assigned to them. The room was crowded. The full performance of the complete work (which is in two acts) is fixed for July 24.

AT the third Concert of the season given by the Strolling Players' Amateur Orchestral Society, on the 10th ult., at St. James's Hall, a highly attractive programme was provided, including Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" Overture, Beethoven's second Symphony, a selection from Bizet's "L'Arlesienne," and the Galop Chromatique by Liszt; the vocal numbers being chiefly by French composers—viz., Gounod, Massenet, and Ambroise Thomas. There was a very good attendance.

ON Thursday evening, the 8th ult., the Finsbury Choral Association, under the direction of its Conductor, Mr. C. J. Dale, performed Mendelssohn's Oratorio "St. Paul" at the Holloway Hall. The soloists were Miss Edith Marriott, Miss Eleanor Rees, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Bridson. The orchestra was led by Mr. Carrodus, and Mr. Marchmont presided at the organ. The chorus numbered about 200 voices. Miss Eleanor Rees was highly successful in "But the Lord is mindful"; Mr. Kearton, in "Be thou faithful unto death," with cello obbligato, being warmly received. Mr. Bridson was in fine voice throughout. The choruses were well sung, the spirited rendering of "Rise and shine" and "O, great is the depth," being especially worthy of mention.

THE third Concert of the sixth season of the Clapham Choral Society, which is now amalgamated with the Surrey Conservatoire of Music, took place at Brixton Hall on the 13th ult. The first item in the programme was Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," the solo of which was beautifully rendered by Master Henry Humm. This was followed by Cowen's Cantata "Sleeping Beauty," which was highly appreciated by a large audience. The choruses were sung with spirit and refinement, and the solos excellently rendered by Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Emily Dones, Mr. Charles Chilley, and Mr. W. Webster. Mr. Clement Colman conducted. We understand that the Society will henceforth be known as the Surrey Conservatoire of Music Choral Society.

THE members of St. Mary's Choral Society, Hornsey, gave the last Concert of the third season in the Boys' Schoolroom, on Tuesday, the 13th ult., when the "Creation" was exceedingly well rendered under the direction of Mr. G. W. Spencer, Honorary Conductor. There was a large audience, and the efforts of the Society met with enthusiastic approval. The soloists were Madame Ellen Lamb, Mr. Tattersall, and Mr. Sackville Evans. Mr. Walter Hughes accompanied in a very able manner. During the evening the members of the Society presented Mr. Spencer with a handsome silver-mounted ivory bâton as a slight token of their esteem.

THE usual Concert was given on Good Friday at the West Kensington Park Wesleyan Church. The principal item was Mendelssohn's "Forty-second Psalm," in which Miss Emily Taylor gave a tasteful rendering of the soprano solo part. In the miscellaneous part, choruses from the "Messiah," the double quartet from "Elijah," "For He shall give His angels charge," and the trio "Ti prego," by Curschmann, were given. Miss Ilma Waldene, R.A.M., Mrs. West, Miss Oliver, Mr. Beale, and Mr. W. J. Tomes contributed solos. Miss Annie Crisp presided at the piano, and Messrs. A. J. Willoughby and C. G. Beale at the organ. The choir-master, Mr. J. Barratt West, conducted.

A CONCERT was given by Miss E. Hastings Warren, on Tuesday evening, March 30, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell. The bénéficiaire was assisted by Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Louise Robins, Madame A. H. Watkins, Miss Lucy Sheppard, Madame Lansdell Sims, Miss Annie Morley, Mr. Arthur Weston, Mr. W. P. Richards, Mr. F. H. Horscroft, and Mr. Frank May, vocalists. Solos for the pianoforte and cello were ably performed by Miss Warren and Mr. Gilbert Tinson. A trio, in which they were joined by Mr. W. Fuller (violin), was a feature in the programme. Miss Warren accompanied throughout in her usual effective style.

ON Thursday, the 15th ult., the choir of Trinity Congregational Church, Poplar, gave a performance of Farmer's Oratorio "Christ and His Soldiers." The soloists were Mrs. Harrison, Miss Ellen M. Cooper, Mr. Joseph Gostick, and Mr. John Buley. Mr. E. Reynolds Conder presided at the organ, and Mr. Ernest Blandford (Organist and Choir-master of the Church) conducted. There was a large audience.

ON Saturday, the 10th ult., the terminal Students' Orchestral Concert of Trinity College, London, took place at Prince's Hall, Piccadilly, under the conductorship of Mr. George Mount. The programme was unusually long, and included Mozart's Symphony in E flat, Mendelssohn's Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra in G minor, and Beethoven's "Prometheus" Overture.

At the Wellington Hall, Islington, on Thursday evening, the 8th ult., Mons. J. Greebe gave a Violin Recital before a large and enthusiastic audience. The programme contained but one item of a classical nature, a Sonata by Rust; in this and in difficult works by Wieniawski, De Beriot, Léonard, Ernst, and others, the violinist gave ample evidence of the possession of great executive ability. Miss Annie Greebe performed one of De Beriot's Concertos in a manner which showed that the teaching of her father had not been neglected. Mons. Greebe could certainly be heard more often; his performance of the "Carnaval de Venise" was a veritable triumph of technical skill.

THE Jury Commission, acting on the recommendation of the juries appointed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, President of the Exhibition at South Kensington, has awarded a Gold Medal to Messrs. F. Besson & Co., for the general goodness and quality of tone of the instruments manufactured by them. We are also informed that these makers have received an order to supply the band of the 4th Battalion City of London Fusiliers with brass and reed instruments, the clarinets being made of Messrs. Besson's new patent material "Reliable," which is guaranteed neither to warp or split whatever climate they may be exposed to.

A BIOGRAPHICAL Dictionary of Musicians, with a Bibliography of English writings on music, compiled and edited by James D. Brown, assistant librarian, Mitchell library, Glasgow, is announced to be published during the present month. The "Bibliography" will form an appendix to the Dictionary, and will display, under appropriate headings, the English literature of any subject connected with the art. Another feature of the work will be a list of the musical periodicals which have been published in the past, or are now in existence, with the dates between which they flourished. In every respect this promises to be a valuable book of reference.

ON the 6th ult., the Southgate Choral Society, conducted by Mr. W. Horsey, gave a performance of selections from "The Messiah," glees, and part-songs, in the Holly Park Lecture Hall, to a large and appreciative audience. The choruses and part-songs were given with much precision and steadiness, evincing very careful training. The solos were sustained by Miss Emily Buxton, R.A.M.; Miss Tombleson, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. Mr. Wheeler, Organist of St. Luke's, Old Street, presided at the organ, and Miss Rowley, accompanist to the Society, at the pianoforte.

A CONCERT was given by Miss Edith Cooke on Thursday evening, the 8th ult., at Brixton Hall, the programme including several of the bénéficiaire's compositions. Madame Patey introduced a new song by Miss Cooke, entitled "The Child's Dream," and also sang F. N. Löhrr's "Needles and Pins," both being encored. Solos for violin were well played by Miss Cécile Elieson, and vocal music was efficiently rendered by Miss F. Venning, Mr. James Budd, Mr. M. Conrath, and Mr. C. Hayden Coffin. Messrs. O'Conner and C. Reddie presided at the pianoforte.

THE second Concert of the Streatham Amateur Orchestral Society took place in the Lecture Hall of the Congregational Church, Streatham Hill, on the 6th ult. The principal feature in the programme was Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, which was very creditably rendered, as were also the Overture "Merry Wives of Windsor" (Nicolaï), and the March "Prophète" (Meyerbeer). Miss Upton Jones played as piano solo Mendelssohn's "Serenade and Allegro gioioso," and Miss Lizzie Jones contributed songs. Mr. Henry Morley was the Conductor and also gave a violin solo, De Beriot's Concerto.

WE hear that a project is on foot to present a testimonial to Mr. Julian Adams, as a fitting termination to his connection with the Devonshire Park Concerts, at Eastbourne, which he has directed for seven years, with the utmost credit to himself and benefit to the art of which he is an earnest disciple. Mr. Adams has many friends in London who would gladly lend their aid in furtherance of the object in view; and we have much pleasure, therefore, in giving increased publicity to the fact of so well deserved a mark of recognition being contemplated.

A CONCERT was given on Monday, March 29, at Clapham Hall, by the Clapham Pilgrims Football Club, at which the following artists appeared:—Madame Fannie Arnold, Miss Maude Hayter, Miss Winnie Parker, Messrs. Alfred Pawsey, Francis Lloyd, H. W. Pawsey, E. Matheson, S. Smith, and J. Donnell Balfe, vocalists. Flute solos were effectively given by Mr. Raine Flaskett and Miss Parker, and Mr. W. A. Douthwaite, Organist of All Saints', Clapham Park, accompanied. The Concert was under the direction of Mr. H. W. Pawsey.

MISS ANNIE MATHEWS gave her Annual Concert at Brixton Hall, on Thursday evening, the 15th ult., assisted by Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Meta Russell, Miss Spencer Jones, Miss Grace Woodward, Miss Alice Boquet, Mr. Orlando Harley, Mr. Henry Yates, Mr. James Budd, Mr. Franklin Clive, and Miss Dunbar Perkins (violin). The Concert-giver, who met with a hearty reception, gave an excellent rendering of Mendelssohn's "Infelice," and H. Smart's "Birds of Passage," the latter being encored. Mr. Turle Lee accompanied.

A CONCERT was given on Monday evening, the 12th ult., at St. Andrew's Church, Battersea. The soloists were Mrs. Carter, Miss Agnes Hardy, Miss Selina Foster, Madame Courtenay, Mr. Hamp, Mr. Welsford, and Mr. F. E. Choveaux, Organist and Choirmaster. The programme consisted of solos from Handel's "Messiah," and Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and "Hear my prayer," which were sung with great expression. Miss Minnie Pyne and Mr. F. E. Choveaux acted as pianists and accompanists. There was a large audience.

AN excellent performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given by the New Court Choral Society, Tollington Park, on Friday, the 9th ult. The solos were most ably rendered by Miss Annie Mathews, Miss Frances Hipwell, Mr. Edwin Bryant, and Mr. Frank May, the last-named gentleman being highly successful in the music assigned to the Prophet. The singing of the choir, under the direction of Mr. Arthur J. Greenish, Mus. Bac., Cantab., was worthy of all praise.

MR. C. G. BELL gave his fifth annual Concert on Tuesday, March 30, at the Athenæum, Shepherd's Bush, when an excellent programme, consisting of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" and a miscellaneous selection, was ably rendered. The soloists were Miss Alice Fairman, Madame Gwynne, and Mrs. C. G. Bell; Messrs. C. T. Grimsdick and Sydney Beckley; piano, Madame Jessie Morison; accompanists, Miss Millen and Mr. Sidney Hill. Mr. Bell conducted with care and judgment.

A SERVICE OF SONG, comprising the Passion music from Handel's "Messiah," was given at St. James's Church, Knatchbull Road, Camberwell, on the Wednesday evening preceding Easter. The choruses were interpreted in a highly commendable manner, the singing of the boys, to whom the work was new, reflecting credit upon the Organist and Choirmaster, Mr. R. Felix Blackbee. The solos were satisfactorily rendered by Mr. Greir and Mr. J. S. Holliday.

THE last Entertainment of the nineteenth season was given on Tuesday evening, the 13th ult., at the Brompton Hospital, by Mr. John Elwin, an old and valued friend of the Institution. The vocalists were Mrs. Coles, Miss Maud Pawle, Mr. George Pottinger, Mr. Nash, Mr. J. Elwin, Mr. Lacy Stocken, and Mr. D. Fleet; pianoforte and violin solos were contributed by Miss Pawle and Mr. Pawle respectively, and Mrs. Elwin accompanied.

At a meeting to inaugurate the South-Eastern Section of the National Society of Professional Musicians, at the Charing Cross Hotel, Mr. E. Prout in the chair, the following gentlemen were elected to the council: Messrs. Prout, Cowen, Cummings, Alfred Gilbert, C. E. Stephens, H. C. Banister, E. H. Thorne, Alfred King, McNaught, Warwick Jordan, Humphrey Stark, Dr. C. J. Frost, Dr. Longhurst, and Dr. Arnold.

At Wandsworth Town Hall, on March 30, Bradbury's Cantata "Esther, the beautiful Queen" was successfully performed, under the able direction of Mr. Cresswell. A miscellaneous programme followed, the vocalists being Madame Edwards, R.A.M., and Mr. Dewi Greville.

ON the afternoon of Ascension day, an interesting service will take place in Westminster Abbey, when the second and third parts of Gounod's "Mors et Vita," and Dr. Bridge's setting of "Rock of Ages" will be sung. Madame Albani has kindly consented to sing the solos in Gounod's work and also "I know that my Redeemer" (Messiah). The proceeds of the collection will be devoted to the funds of the Westminster Hospital.

A CONCERT was given on Tuesday, the 20th ult., in the Welsh Wesleyan Chapel, City Road. The soloists were Madame Edith Wynne, Miss Eleanor Rees, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Ap Herbert. Mr. John Thomas (harp), Mr. H. C. Tonking (violin and organ), and Mr. W. Henry Thomas (pianoforte). The last named gentleman also acted as accompanist.

A VERY successful Concert was given by Miss Yeatman, R.A.M., at Cricklewood, on the 9th ult., at which she was assisted by Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. J. H. Müller-hausen, Mr. Albert Rayment, and Mr. H. V. Broughton Black as vocalists. Miss Winifred Robinson played two violin solos, and Mr. A. A. Yeatman was solo pianist and accompanist.

A CONCERT was given in the Lammas Hall, Battersea, on Monday, the 5th ult., when the following vocalists took part:—Madame Minnie Gwynne, Miss King, Miss Selina Foster, Miss Minnie Pyne, Mr. Charles Lockwood, Mr. F. E. Choveaux, Mr. J. Pyne, and Mr. Charles Lidbury. The violinist was Mr. Beach, and pianoforte solos were given by Miss Minnie Pyne and Mr. F. E. Choveaux.

At the annual Soirée of the New Court Mutual Improvement Society, Tollington Park, held on Thursday, March 25, a Concert was given, under the direction of Mr. T. W. Kingston. The following vocalists assisted:—Messrs. Haydn Grover, Arthur Weston, T. W. Kingston, and Stanley Smith. Mr. Joseph Douce, R.A.M., presided at the pianoforte.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN gave his sixth Annual Concert at the Cavendish Rooms, on Wednesday, March 24, when a varied selection of popular music was well rendered. Mr. Dunn was assisted by Miss Fusselle, Miss Fenner, Miss Susetta Fenn, and Mr. Neville Doone, vocalists; flute solos were contributed by Mr. H. A. Chapman, and pianoforte solos by Miss Florence Waud.

ON Monday, March 29, a Concert was given at the Queen's Park Hall, under distinguished patronage. The artists were Miss Grosvenor Gooch, Miss Minnie Laurie, Mr. Henry Prenton, Mr. François Choveaux, Mr. F. Goodwin, and Mr. H. A. Godfrey. Locke's music to "Macbeth" was performed by the West London Temperance Choral Society. Mr. Gilbert Hine conducted.

A PERFORMANCE of Farmer's Oratorio, "Christ and His Soldiers," was given at Brixton Church on Wednesday in Holy Week. The choir numbered about fifty voices. The solo parts were taken by Miss A. Patten, Miss Medland, Mr. E. Smith, and Mr. R. Poole. Mr. F. G. Shinn, A.C.O., presided at the organ, and Mr. Geo. Shinn, Mus.B., conducted.

MADAME BRUCE gave a very successful Concert on the 1st ult., in aid of the funds of Berkley Road Chapel, Chalk Farm. The artists were Mesdames Bruce, Vernon, Alice and Agnes Douglass, Messrs. Frank May, R.A.M., Wedlake, Allen, and Gebhardt. Mr. Theo. Ward, R.A.M., conducted.

THE Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of "The Messiah" in St. John's Church, Waterloo Road, on the 21st ult. The soloists were Mrs. Harrison, Miss Minna Vivian, Mr. Reginald Groome, and Mr. Albert Orme. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ.

THE memorial tablet to Sir John Goss in St. Paul's Cathedral will be uncovered on the 10th inst., the anniversary of his death. The music for the service on the occasion will be wholly selected from Sir John Goss's compositions.

THE Civil Service Vocal Union's final Smoking Concert of the season, was given at Cannon Street Hotel on the 15th ult. Mr. J. H. Maunder conducted, as usual.

SPOHR'S Oratorio "The Last Judgment," was given at Clapham Congregational Church on the 2nd ult. The solo singers were Masters Henry Humm and Edwin Lewis, Mr. T. W. Hanson, and Mr. H. Coates. The chorus numbered fifty voices. Mr. J. P. Attwater, A.C.O., presided at the organ, and Mr. Clement Colman conducted.

SPOHR'S "Calvary" was performed with full orchestral accompaniments at St. Luke's, Chelsea, after the evening services on the 2nd, 4th, and 6th Sundays in Lent, under the direction of Mr. Everard Hulton, Mus.B., Oxon. The principal solos were most ably rendered by Mr. Lawrence Fryer and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail.

THE third volume of the "Boston Musical Year-Book," announced to be published during the present month, will retain all the chief features of former seasons, and the scope of the work be extended, a condensed record of the musical events of the whole country being given, and those of important cities classified.

ON Saturday, the 3rd ult., Mr. Arnold Kennedy gave a lecture on the characteristics of Beethoven's life and music, at the College for Men and Women, Queen Square, Bloomsbury. Mr. Kennedy illustrated the lecture by playing movements, and parts of movements, from the pianoforte Sonatas and from the Symphonies.

THE Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of the "Creation" in Holy Trinity Church, Islington, on the 7th ult. The soloists were Miss Clara Hoschke, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. Albert Orme. Mr. E. G. Crogier accompanied on the organ.

MR. ALFRED MOUL, the London agent for Herr Hase-mann, lessee of the Wallner Theatre, Berlin, has arranged with Mr. D'Oyly Carte for Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's opera "The Mikado" to be produced in English at the above-named theatre early in June.

AN Invitation Concert was given by Mr. Stretton Swann's pupils at Bermondsey on March 30. The programme, which was selected from the works of Weber, Smart, Wekerlin, &c., was very creditably rendered.

IN consequence of the success of their Quartet Competition, the Council of the Musical Artists' Society contemplate offering another opportunity to composers of Chamber Music.

DR. J. F. BRIDGE has composed an Overture on Tennyson's "Morte d'Arthur," which will be produced in Birmingham, on the 6th inst., at Mr. Stockley's Orchestral Concert.

IT is announced that Signor Lago will give a season of Italian Opera at Covent Garden, commencing on the 25th inst.

MR. W. G. WOOD, Professor of the Royal Academy of Music, has been appointed Organist and Music Master of Highgate Grammar School.

REVIEWS.

Jean Jacques Rousseau als Musiker. Von Alber Jansen. [Berlin: Georg Reimer.]

"QUAND on entreprend un livre, on se propose d'instruire le public de quelque chose qu'il ne savait pas." Such is the excellent motto appended to this volume, in the place of the customary preface. It embodies, in the terse language of the great "citizen of Geneva," an obvious maxim indeed, but one not unfrequently disregarded in the present book-manufacturing age. Herr Jansen, as may be inferred, lays himself open to no such charge. The "public" even the specifically musical section thereof, it may be safely asserted, knows little, and probably cares less, about the precise views disseminated in his numerous writings upon our art by the author of "Emile" and of the "Contrat Social." In this mental attitude, however, we deprive ourselves not only of a source of intellectual pleasure, but also of an important element in the full appreciation of the historical development of the modern music-drama. To have directed the attention of students to this fact, and to have contributed thereby to a revival of an acquaintance with the Geneva philosopher "as a musician," is an achievement which will meet with its reward in the gratitude of the reader, and which constitutes one of the principal merits of Herr Jansen's interesting and painstaking work. While tracing in mere outline the general career of Jean Jacques, with the details of which everyone is more or less acquainted, the author is here concerned mainly with the musical aspects of that career, and of the epoch which generated and developed them. Although Herr Jansen is inclined somewhat to over-estimate the importance of his hero as a COMPOSER, he nevertheless furnishes us with abundant, and in some cases entirely fresh evidence of that scanty and irregular, almost haphazard, musical training which, partly through circumstances, partly on account of his restless temperament, Rousseau had alone been able to acquire during his youthful wanderings, and the defects of which, from the technical side, have debarred his subsequent compositions from rising above the level of the dilettante. It is as exaggerated, therefore, to point, as our author does, to the collection of songs known as "Les consolations des misères de ma vie" as having been the important forerunner of Schubert's winged lyrics, as it is, on the other hand, beyond question that the style which characterises the "consolations" is the same that pervades the simple airs of "Le devin du village," and that this spontaneous production of the dilettante Rousseau has marked a new departure in the development of the specifically French lyrical drama. Again, the same lack of a solid original grounding is apparent in the strictly theoretical articles of the famous "Dictionnaire de Musique," the lasting merit of which, as having been the first of its kind, and the corresponding difficulties attending its compilation, no one will assuredly call in question. Yet here also Herr Jansen is apt to become over zealous in defending its author against the certainly somewhat invidious strictures of his great opponent and contemporary, Rameau. Enough of paramount superiority there remains in Rousseau's influence upon the art-consciousness of his age, to justify even his biographer in leaving unstirred the ashes of a controversy deprived long since of all its significance. The department of our art, wherein the great philosopher was not only facile princeps in his time, but greatly in advance of his age, is that of the æsthetics of music, more especially as applied to the musical drama. It is surprising to what extent the reforms wrought in this direction by Gluck, and in our own day by Richard Wagner, may be found foreshadowed in some of the literary productions of Rousseau. And here we likewise arrive at the most valuable portion of Herr Jansen's volume. His summaries of the more important essays in question, to wit of the "Lettre à M. Grimm," "Lettre sur la musique Française," "Observations sur l'Alceste," and others, are masterly digests of the opinions advanced therein, and backed up as they are by a lively and faithful picture of the different periods in the art-history of last century France, we are able to understand the storm of angry controversy which their appearance aroused, and even to appreciate in a measure the risk of personal security which their author is said to have incurred in their publication. That due prominence has also been accorded here to the quarrels between the adherents of Lulli and of Rameau, and to the subsequent still fiercer feuds of the Buffonists and Anti-Buffonists, it is scarcely necessary to add. And from out this turmoil of conflicting art principles and strivings, in it but scarcely of it, emerges more and more distinctly before the eyes of the reader the personality of the great seer in matters musical as well as in many others concerning human progress—slandered and reviled by his enemies, forsaken, one by one, by his friends, yet an object of the vulgar curiosity and of the secret admiration of all. Such is briefly the portrait drawn by Herr Jansen of Jean Jacques Rousseau as a musician. Although the author's diction is not always very happy, he succeeds in communicating to the reader not a little of the keen sympathy he himself feels with the noble qualities, both of heart and intellect, possessed by his hero; while as a contribution to art history his work cannot safely be ignored by any future historian of the important epoch whereof it treats.

Organum. A series of pieces for the Organ, selected and arranged by Dr. W. Spark. [Forsyth Brothers.]

SOME time since it was announced that a comprehensive series of compositions for the organ, similar to Mr. Charles Hallé's admirable Pianoforte School, would be issued under the editorship of Dr. Spark. The present is the first instalment of the work, which is divided into three series, denominated respectively Classical, Sacred, &c.; Original Compositions, English and Foreign; and Miscellaneous and Popular. The six numbers before us of the first section consist of arrangements from Oratorios, Masses, and instrumental works. In the second section are comprised a number of original pieces, several by composers who are unknown to fame. So far, the distinction is well preserved, but not so in the contents of the third section. Why, for example, should Handel's "Zadok, the Priest," be considered "Miscellaneous" or "Popular," while his Pastoral Symphony is classed as "Classical, Sacred, &c." Among the miscellaneous pieces we find Mendelssohn's "But the Lord is mindful," and among the classical the chorus "O be gracious," from the same oratorio. In fact, the first and third series might change places with perfect propriety. It would have been far wiser to have divided the pieces into elementary, difficult, &c., as in Mr. Hallé's work. This, however, does not affect the intrinsic value of each original composition or arrangement. The latter are, for the most part, excellent and unassuming, executive difficulties being avoided; while Dr. Spark does not proceed on the assumption that all organs have four manuals and every possible variety of stops. As an exception, we must protest against the unnecessary curtailment and distortion of the Symphony in the Coronation Anthem. The new pieces are, for the most part, poor and uninteresting, the most commendable being a Festival March, in D, by Townsend Driffild, and an Offertory, in E flat, by D. H. Engel.

Tutors for the Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double-Bass (three strings), Double Bass (four strings), Flute, Clarinet, Oboe, Cornet, and Bassoon. Selected, arranged, and composed by Otto Langey. [Rivière and Hawkes.]

THESE Instruction-books, although fairly suited for young students, suffer to a certain extent from the fact of the letter-press portion of them not having been supervised by an English editor, the preface, even, being evidently written by a foreigner, and some words in the course of the books being misspelt. Musically, however, they are entitled to commendation, and have a right to take their place amongst the many existing Tutors. The Exercises are generally well considered, and good directions are given for bowing on the string instruments, and for producing a full tone upon those played with the breath. Each book contains an explanation of the rudiments of music which, on the whole, is tolerably clear. We must take exception, however, to the words "Single Common" and "Single Triple." We do not agree, too, with the assertion that an Appoggiatura takes, as a rule, half the value of the following note; nor that "when crossed by a small line, its value is but one-fourth of the note which follows it." In the latter case, it is not an Appoggiatura at all, but an "Acciaccatura," and takes scarcely any appreciable value from the following note.

Te Deum in E; Benedictus, Kyrie, &c., in E; Te Deum in D. By Edward Hodges, Mus. Doc. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THESE services were composed forty years ago, but are now published for the first time by the composer's daughter. That the talent of Dr. Hodges did not meet with due recognition in his lifetime may be explained by the fact that the great revival of activity in church music had not then set in. He was undoubtedly a musician of great ability, the Te Deum in E giving the most abundant evidence of this. In place of the chromatic harmonies in which composers are so fond of indulging at present, we find clever contrapuntal writing, the service abounding in passages of imitation and concluding with a well developed fugue. The style is that of 18th century church music as exemplified in the best works of Croft, Greene, Battishill and others. These services, especially that in E, are well worthy the attention of cathedral choirs.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. For men's voices.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, arranged to Gregorian Tones.

Pater Noster. By Battison Haynes.
 [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE increasing demand for service music, arranged for men's voices only, is being met in a satisfactory manner; but among recent publications we do not remember anything so meritorious as Mr. Haynes's setting of the Evening Canticles. Melodious throughout, without any sacrifice of dignity; modern in feeling, but strictly sober and church-like, the service is calculated to please musicians, and to edify all who listen to it. The accompaniment offers ample scope to the skilful organist for varied and legitimate effects. In the Gregorian Service the composer's talent is, of course, less freely displayed, though he describes it as a "festal setting," and doubtless has held in view the requirements of those churches where Gregorians are de rigueur. Some of the verses are to be sung in four-part harmony, others in unison, and in some the canto is assigned to the "melodists and congregation," the rest of the voices and the organ supplying the counterpoint. The setting is clever, and will certainly please those for whom it is intended. The Pater Noster is intended for use in the Communion, and consists of simple inflections for voices in unison with an equally unpretending accompaniment. In the latter is an ugly pair of consecutive fifths in the fifth bar from the close—probably an inadvertence.

The Morning and Evening Service, together with the Communion Office in G. By J. F. Bridge, Mus. Doc.
 [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS is an important addition to the rapidly-extending list of meritorious settings of the Liturgy, suitable for Cathedral use, and not too elaborate for ordinary well-trained choirs. It is very complete, including a version of the Jubilate, as well as the Benedictus, an Introit, three Offertory sentences, the Benedictus qui venit, and the Agnus Dei. It need hardly be said that the technical quality of the music is irreproachable, but this would be of little use had not Dr. Bridge written with the spirit as well as the understanding. This he has done, and his Service may be commended for its devotional feeling and sincere, though dignified and chastened expression. In the matter of accent, the composer is always correct in places where many good composers go wrong. The word "Sabaoth," and the sentence "Being of one substance," may be taken as instances of this.

Te Deum and Jubilate in E. By Joseph Mosenthal.
 [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE composer of this service is an organist in New York, and as the work of an American musician it possesses a claim to notice apart from its intrinsic merits, which are considerable. Mr. Mosenthal's Te Deum is in E, 3-4 time, and is constructed mainly on a single motive of a dignified character, this being repeated again and again with endless modifications, so that monotony is avoided though unity is preserved. The Jubilate is based on another figure, but the original phrase returns in the Gloria. In general the writing is broad and diatonic, and the service presents no difficulty whatever to an ordinary choir.

Musical Readings. Words from "Paradise Lost."
A Child's Dream. Words by the late Rev. E. Caswall.
A Lesson from a Cloud. Words by the late Rev. E. Caswall.

Love's Garden. Words by the late F. T. Dowding.
 Composed by Olga.
 [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE three songs under the title of "Musical Readings" are too dreamy to demand criticism as artistic works, yet all show that the composer has a sympathetic feeling with Milton's words; indeed, they give the impression of having been produced by meditating, in a desultory manner, upon the pianoforte, and lazily humming some notes to the poetry. Viewed in this light, although feeble, they are not devoid of a certain merit. The other vocal pieces on our list, though scarcely open to the same objection, lack that intensity of expression without which songs appeal not to the cultivated musical listener. "A Child's Dream" is the best of the three, and might prove effective if sung by an accomplished vocalist. "Olga," despite the defects of style which we have considered it our duty to point out, may still give us works of more importance; and we shall then be glad to review them under the real, instead of the assumed, name of the composer.

Six Two-part Songs for Ladies' or Boys' Voices. Composed by Myles B. Foster. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WE can award unqualified praise to this group of two-part songs, not only for their charmingly fresh and melodious character, but for their artistic treatment and true sympathy with the words. No. 1, "To sea," will unquestionably become a favourite, especially with boys; No. 2, "If Hope were but a Fairy," has an attractive theme, carefully harmonised; No. 3, "The Willow and its Lesson," has an appropriately placed melody, the voices proceeding almost throughout in loving company; No. 4, "The Promised Land," in E minor and major, has some good contrapuntal effects, and appropriate changes of key; No. 5, "Song should breathe of scents and flowers," is an excellent setting of Barry Cornwall's well-known words; and No. 6 is a "March," the varied feeling of the poetry being happily expressed in the music. We sincerely trust that these songs may become as extensively known as they deserve to be.

Lead, kindly Light. Song. Words by Cardinal Newman.
London. Song. Words by Francis Bennoch.
 Composed by Alfred Allen. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE song "Lead, kindly Light," beginning with a short symphony on a tonic pedal, and written on three staves, shows much ambition on the part of the composer, many of the harmonies indeed being unduly complicated, and noted so that it would puzzle even an accomplished student in harmony to figure them. Some phrases, however, are extremely vocal and happily expressive of the text. "London" may please patriotic vocalists, but artists will object to the consecutive fifths which occur between the last chord on page 2 and the first on page 3. The melody is bold, but, like most songs of this class, somewhat commonplace.

A Farewell. Song. Words by Lord Tennyson.
Edith. Serenade for the Pianoforte.
 Composed by Edward R. G. W. Andrews.
 [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THAT Mr. Andrews has decided musical feeling is proved both by the song and pianoforte piece before us; but we infinitely prefer his instrumental to his vocal writing. The words of the song ("Flow down, cold rivulet") have been so often set that it is difficult for a composer to forget the attempts of former writers to do justice to Tennyson's beautiful verses, and if Mr. Andrews' efforts to be original are somewhat apparent, he must be freely forgiven. The subject of the Serenade commands attention for its tunefulness; and its treatment is graceful and effective. We shall be glad again to meet with this composer (whose name is new to us) in some work of more importance.

Marche Moderne. For the organ. By Edwin H. Lemare. [Weekes and Co.]

COMPOSERS are so fond of bestowing fantastic and unmeaning titles on their efforts that Mr. Lemare should be commended for the simple and suitable appellation he has given his piece. Admirers of showy organ music cannot fail to be pleased with this march, for it is exceedingly bright, tuneful, and grandiose, if not grand. It is, moreover, not without a certain spice of the dignity which should, at all times, characterise music intended for the king of instruments.

Minuet in D. For the Organ. By D. R. Munro.
 [E. Donajowski.]

THE composer of this simple and unassuming trifle has some feeling for melody and a fair amount of musicianly skill. But he apparently labours under the delusion that a chromatically descending passage should always be written with flats, for he persistently writes A flat where G sharp should be; and he cannot escape a charge of carelessness, for the middle section of his piece, which is obviously in the key of G, has two sharps throughout.

Voices of the Sea. Suite for the Pianoforte. Composed by Gerard F. Cobb. In two books.

[Music Publishing and General Agency Company.]

We have already given favourable notice upon some very charming songs by this composer; and can conscientiously award equal praise to the poetical little pianoforte pieces before us. They are all avowedly written in dance rhythms, and each number is prefaced by a verse descriptive of the character of the music. Not only on their intrinsic merits, but as excellent exercises for variety of touch, the Suite may be strongly recommended to all whose sympathies are with expressive, rather than "brilliant," music. Nos. 3 and 6 are, in our opinion, the best of the set, although they are all evidently the work of a thoughtful and intellectual artist.

Good day, sir. Song. Words by Charles Rowe.

White Heather. Song. Words by L. L.

Composed by Louis Diehl. [J. and J. Hopkinson.]

THERE is refined humour in the words of the first of these songs, the spirit of which is happily caught by the composer; but the common-place Waltz which occurs at the end of each verse—in accordance with an absurd prevailing custom—is most wearisome. "Wild Heather" is a good and unpretentious composition, which should certainly find favour with vocalists. We particularly admire the change from minor to major on the words "Take it, she said," the effect of which is aided by the delicate arpeggio accompaniment.

FOREIGN NOTES.

On the 29th of March last, fifty years had elapsed since the production at the Magdeburg Stadt-Theater, of Richard Wagner's first opera "Die Novize von Palermo," an event which the subsequent fame of the then Magdeburg Capellmeister has rendered memorable. The work itself belongs to the "unrecognised" lyrical productions of the poet-composer, having been written before he had formed any style, or conceived any definite ideal, of his own. An interesting account of the above first performance will be found in THE MUSICAL TIMES for March, 1883.

Heinrich Schütz's "Passions-Musik" was performed for the first time in Berlin, on Good Friday last, by the Schnöpl'sche Gesangsverein. A further step has thus been taken in the revival of the works of the "Father of German Music," the forerunner of Sebastian Bach, and one of the most interesting among the composers of the seventeenth century. The history of music affords no more striking example of the organic development of a peculiar art-form, than that presented in the several settings of the "Passion" by Schütz, as compared with those of the later master, which have become so familiar of late years to amateurs in this country. If Bach's genius was by far the greater of the two, it is well also to remember how much he owes in his sublimest works to the inspiring and directing influence of Heinrich Schütz.

A highly successful first performance of Hector Berlioz's opera "Benvenuto Cellini," took place last month at the theatre at Carlsruhe, under the direction of its zealous Capellmeister, Herr Felix Mottl. We extract the following interesting paragraph ament the work and its performance at the above theatre from the pen of Richard Pohl. Writing in the Musikalisches Wochenblatt of the 8th ult., that eminent critic remarks: "Felix Mottl has systematically educated his public for the appreciation of Berlioz by Concert performances. He wisely commenced with 'Faust,' the most popular of his works. He then produced instrumental portions of 'Roméo et Juliette,' followed by the 'Symphonie Fantastique,' and, as a crowning effort, the grand Requiem; a truly noble artistic achievement! With the 'Carnival' Overture the Carlsruhe public had been for some time familiar, and thus the way had been fully prepared for Berlioz's first and greatest operatic work. The history of the 'Cellini' representations is a curious one. First produced in Paris, in 1838, it was a failure. Again brought out in London, in 1852, it failed to attract, while in the same year it was well received by the public at Weimar. Revived at the latter place, under Liszt, in 1856, 'Cellini' was not again heard of until 1878, when Hans von Bülow produced it at Hanover, an example which was followed by the Leipzig Stadt-Theater two years later, Herr Anton Schott singing the title-part. To these must now be added the recent performances of the opera at Mannheim and Carlsruhe. Munich and Prague are to follow next, and Paris also seems at length to be again stirring in the matter, where M. Carvalho, of the Opéra Comique, is said to be preparing the work for next season. This, then, has been the entire past career during nearly fifty years of a work abounding with genius and originality, truly grand in many of its scenes, and distinctly interesting throughout."

A biography is about to be published in German of J. G. Kastner, the Alsatian composer and musical savant, the intimate friend of Berlioz. The work, which has Herr H. Ludwig for its author, will form an interesting contribution to the musical history of the early part of the present century.

The newly founded Liszt Verein of Leipzig gave a grand orchestral Concert on the 8th ult., at the Stadt-Theater, including a performance of the "Faust" Symphony by that master, for which no less than seven rehearsals had been held by the Conductor, Herr Nikisch. Richard Pohl, the well-known critic, and one of the champions of Liszt's music, has just been elected honorary member of the Society, concerning which a German contemporary writes: "There can be no question at all that the Liszt Verein has already become a real power in the musical world of Leipzig with which those (and there are not a few) who are hostile to this modern phase of our art will have to reckon. It is but just to add, however, that some of the most pronounced antagonists of the composer have paid their tribute of admiration to the 'Faust' Symphony, after the masterly interpretation of the work under the direction of Herr Nikisch."

By a curious coincidence two German composers have lately been employed, unknown to each other, upon the composition of operas founded upon identical subjects—viz., that of Merlin, the prophet and enchanter of British legendary fame. Both operas have, moreover, been accepted for performance during next season, when Herr Goldmark's "Merlin" will be brought out at Vienna and Leipzig, and Herr Th. Rüfer's opera, with the same title, will be submitted to the audience of the Berlin Opera House. The coincidence, as we have said, is a curious, though by no means an unprecedented one, the most notable example being, perhaps, the simultaneous occupation of Spohr and Weber with the subject of "Freischütz," which, however, the former wisely abandoned as soon as he became aware of the intentions of his rival in the field of operatic romanticism. The success of two operas of "Der Freischütz" would scarcely be conceivable, but a "Merlin" suggests dramatic situations and psychological problems akin to "Faust," and readily admits of various musical treatment. Thus the production of the two new operas in question will be looked forward to with some interest.

A new five-act historical drama, entitled "Die von Hutten," was produced on the 10th ult. at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater, and exceedingly well received by a distinguished and critical audience. The author, who has adopted the nom de plume of Carl Marius, is a grandson of the composer Carl Maria von Weber.

About one half of the sum required (£1,000) for the projected Weber statue to be erected in the composer's native town, Eutin, has so far been subscribed for. Hopes are still entertained by the committee that sufficient funds will eventually be forthcoming, not only for the above purpose, but likewise for the acquisition by the nation of the small house where the composer of "Freischütz" first saw the light. To be sanguine is one of the cardinal virtues of festival committees, and hopefulness displayed under circumstances so little promising constitutes in itself an element of ultimate success, though it may now appear somewhat doubtful whether the Weber statue will be far enough advanced to be unveiled at the centenary of the composer's birth in December next.

At a recent sale of autographs held at Berlin, the following from the pens of celebrated musicians were amongst the most noteworthy. The prices realised on this occasion (which we give in English currency), although of course regulated in a great measure by the intrinsic importance attaching to the respective manuscripts, may also serve as a kind of barometer of the ever-changing popular estimation of genius. Thus the sum of £15 was paid for three songs by Schubert, while two minuets (as yet unpublished) from the hand of Mozart, scored for a small orchestra, fetched £12 10s. A setting for male chorus of Goethe's weird verses "Im Nebelgeriesel" (the gipsy song in "Götz von Berlichingen") from the pen of Mendelssohn, dedicated to the violinist, Edward Rietz, and likewise unpublished, was knocked down for £7 10s. Wagner figured in the catalogue with a sketch of the first scene of "Rienzi," dated Riga, August 7, 1838, and with a letter written to Capellmeister Reissiger, of Dresden, dated July 3, 1848, and another to Bülow, without date, which realised £5 5s., £3 13s., and £2 1s. respectively. The complete manuscript of Weber's overture entitled "The Ruler of the Spirits," dated November 8, 1811, was sold for £15, and a letter by the same composer directed to a friend in Vienna for £4 2s.

Herr Nicolaus Oesterlein, the wealthy Viennese Wagner-enthusiast, has just published a second pamphlet in favour of the establishment in one of the central towns of Germany of a "Richard Wagner Museum," an institution the appropriateness of which no one will call in question. Considering, moreover, that Herr Oesterlein has offered his own collection, comprising no less than upwards of 8,000 Wagneriana, as a substantial contribution towards the realisation of his scheme, his efforts in so interesting a cause should certainly ere long be crowned with success.

The dates of the forthcoming festival performances at Bayreuth have been fixed as follows: "Parsifal" will be given on July 25, 26, and 30, August 2, 6, 9, 13, 16, and 20, and "Tristan and Isolde" on July 27 and 29, August 1, 5, 8, 12, and 15. The price of admission for each performance will be the same as on former occasions—viz., twenty marks.

Johann Strauss's new operetta "The Gipsy Baron" has already reached its fiftieth performance at the Friedrich-Wilhelmstadt Theater of Berlin.

At the Darmstadt Hof-Theater an opera entitled "Antonius und Cleopatra," by the Count Sayn-Wittgenstein-Berleburg, was brought out with great success on the 17th ult. This distinguished amateur has already become favourably known to the German musical public by an orchestral work illustrative of scenes from the "Fritihof-Saga," produced by the Darmstadt orchestra in 1874.

A Symphony in C minor, by Herr Xaver Scharwenka, the pianist and composer, well-known to English concert-goers, met with a highly favourable reception at a recent Concert of the Berlin Concerthaus. Herr Scharwenka has been for some years the director of a flourishing musical academy in the German capital.

Dr. Langhans, the well-known German musical author, has returned to Berlin, after a short visit paid to this country in connection with the recent festivities in honour of Franz Liszt. The doctor is now engaged upon the completion of his important work, "The History of Music during the seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth centuries," dedicated to Liszt, a review of which will shortly appear in our columns.

Herr Wilhelm Tappert, the well-known Berlin musician, and former editor of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik Zeitung, has started upon a journey of musical research, with especial regard to the study of lute tablature, a subject upon which he has been engaged for some years past, and for the elucidation of which much remains yet to be done. Herr Tappert, who in the course of his investigations will visit this country, is, we understand, undertaking the journey at the expense of the German Government—a remarkable, because unfortunately rare, instance of state aid being afforded for the encouragement of our art in its purely historical and antiquarian aspects.

A Requiem by Felix Draeske, recently performed for the first time at Dresden, is spoken of in competent quarters as one of the most remarkable productions of that gifted composer.

A new opera, "Das Sonntagskind," by Herr A. Dietrich, has just achieved a great success at the Bremer Stadt-Theater.

An interesting revival, in concert-form, of Marschner's opera "Adolf von Nassau" was given, on the 13th ult., by the Opera Verein of Berlin. The work was last produced on the Berlin stage in 1859.

The Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, of the 2nd ult., reproduces a highly characteristic and hitherto unpublished letter directed by Beethoven to King Carl Johann, of Sweden. The letter is dated March, 1823, and is written in the French language.

A Stradivarius violin, formerly in the possession of a London collector, has just passed into the hands of the violin virtuoso, Herr Hugo Heermann, of Frankfurt, for the sum of £1,000. The instrument in question is said to be an exact pendant to the famous Stradivarius owned by Señor Sarasate.

At a Court Concert given on the 2nd ult. at Meiningen, under the direction and with the co-operation of Johannes Brahms, the following was the interesting programme—viz.: Concert-Overture in C minor (Richard Strauss), Prelude and Liebestod from "Tristan and Isolde" (Wagner), songs (Weber and Brahms), Variations on a theme by Haydn, and Symphony, No. 4, in E minor (Brahms).

Madame Pauline Lucca, who has just recovered from a serious illness, is again delighting Viennese audiences in her favourite rôle of Carmen in Bizet's opera.

Herr Ignaz Brüll, the composer of the opera "Das goldene Kreuz," has written the music to a ballet entitled "Champagner Märchen," to be shortly produced at the Vienna Hof-Theater.

The French normal diapason has now been definitely introduced in the orchestras of the Berlin Philharmonic Society and of the Vienna Hof-Theater.

The great attraction of the "Concert Spirituel" at the Châtelet Theatre, on Good Friday, was Gounod's last work, Fantaisie on the Russian National Hymn, for pedal pianoforte and orchestra, which, written in the broad style of Bach, proved a decided success. Madame Palicot, who played the pianoforte part, was very much applauded.

Marie Wieck, the sister of Madame Schumann, who enjoys the greatest popularity with Scandinavian audiences as a pianist, is again engaged upon a brilliant Concert tour in the principal towns of Sweden and Norway.

At the Berlin opera, Victorien Joncières' "Le Chevalier Jean" (the successful performance of which, at the Cologne Stadt-Theater, we some time since recorded), was performed for the first time on that stage on the 17th ult., and met with a very sympathetic reception.

Under the title of "Le Songe d'une Nuit d'Été, Fête d'après Shakespeare," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was produced at the Paris Odéon, on the 14th ult., for the first time in France. M. Paul Meurice, the adapter of the French version, has compressed the original play into three acts, and has made sad havoc with Shakespeare's beautiful creation. The whole of Mendelssohn's music was executed by an excellent orchestra and chorus, under the direction of M. Colonne.

Liszt's oratorio "St Elizabeth" is to be produced at the Paris Trocadero during the first week of the present month, under the direction of Signor Vianesi.

The Maestro Verdi paid a visit to the French capital last month, with the object probably of coming to an arrangement with the directors of the Grand Opéra respecting the performance of his new opera "Iago," or as it appears now to be called "Othello." No definite understanding seems however to have been, as yet, arrived at.

Herr Anton Rubinstein, continental journals inform us, has been created by the Emperor of Russia a General Music Director, a title which raises the eminent pianist-composer to the rank of a Russian "Oberhofmarschall," and entitles him to the wearing of a, no doubt, most gorgeous uniform.

Anton Rubinstein delighted all musical Paris last month with his famous series of Historical Pianoforte Recitals. During his stay at the French capital, the genial artist conducted a performance of his ballad "La Nymphé," for female chorus and contralto solo, at the vocal academy of Madame Marchesi, where he was also prevailed upon to play several pianoforte pieces by Chopin, and of his own composition.

Victor Massé's posthumous opera, "Une Nuit de Cléopâtre," was produced on the 15th ult. for the first time at Geneva, where it met with a favourable reception. At the same town a new Symphony, entitled "David Livingstone," was performed at one of the Concerts Classiques and greatly applauded. The composer is M. Kling.

Liszt's Mass, known as the "Graner Fest-Messe," was the principal item in the programme of the Liszt Festival recently organised in the music-loving Belgian town of Liège, under the direction of M. Hutov.

An opera, "Gwendoline," by M. Emmanuel Chabrier, was successfully brought out on the 10th ult., at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, of Brussels. In the meantime, however, the director of that establishment, M. Verdhurt, has been obliged to declare his insolvency, and the performances are being carried on by a temporary management, pending fresh arrangements to be made in order to save the leading Belgian stage from a serious collapse.

According to Le Ménestrel there have been 650 new operatic works by native composers produced at Italian theatres during the last eighteen years, giving an average of thirty-six annually.

The Italian opera of St. Petersburg appears to be in a bad way, its director, M. Karkoff, having deemed it prudent to disappear, while the company continue for the present to give representations of opera on their own account.

Arrigo Boito, whose one opera "Mefistofele" has rendered him famous, and who for the space of some ten years has produced no fresh operatic work, is said to have completed a lyrical drama entitled "Nerone," which will ere long be brought out at one of the leading theatres of Italy.

A new operetta by the Maestro Vincenzo Galassi was recently produced and much applauded at Naples. It is entitled "Il Testamento dello zio Saviero."

One of the finest theatres in Italy, the Teatro Apollo of Rome, which but a few years ago was completely renovated, is about to be demolished to make room for the carrying out of an extensive scheme for the regulation of the river Tiber.

"Les Pêcheurs des perles," an early opera from the pen of Bizet, was recently brought out with much success at the Scala, of Milan.

A Polish National Theatre is to be built in Cracow, for which purpose the sum of 60,000 florins has been contributed by an anonymous art-lover in that town.

The journal L'Arte, of Catania, some time since offered to award two prize medals to successful competitors in the composition of a vocal quartet. Among the thirty-eight applicants none were found worthy of the distinction, and the medals, a gold and a silver one, remain as yet in the keeping of the generous editor of L'Arte.

A new periodical, devoted to the cultivation of the harmonium, is being published in France, under the title of L'Harmonium au Salon. It is edited by a musical professor, M. Clément Loret, of Saint-Louis d'Antin.

We have received the current numbers of the Leipziger Musik und Kunst Zeitung, a fortnightly journal, formerly entitled Parisfal. It appears to be an ably conducted paper, dedicated to general art interests, and is published by Edwin Schloemp, of Leipzig.

The death is announced, at Paris, of Louis le Bel, formerly a professor of singing at the Conservatoire, and Director of the Chorus at the Opéra Comique, aged seventy-three.

At Vienna died, on March 24, Max Wolf, at the early age of forty-six, the composer of numerous successful operettas.

Madame Marie Heilbron, the well-known prima donna, died, on March 31, at Nice, having only reached her thirty-seventh year. She was born at Lyons, her parents being of Dutch nationality.

be heard in the streets and new to my ears, though obviously not of modern origin? The old tune of the "frozen-out" to the words "We've got no work to do-o-o!" is familiar to every one and is a well-known melody of traceable lineage, but this winter the rogues and vagabonds who defraud the charitable by posturing as "the unemployed" have adopted a song of superior character, which runs thus:—

There are two verses, of which the first is as follows:—

What will become of England if things goes on this way.
When crowds of honest working men are starving day by day!
They cannot get employment, for bread their children cry,
And hundreds they have died for want and now lies in their graves.

The last line should of course be "and in their graves now lie." These touching lines, added to the really pathetic ring of the tune, produce more practical results than did ever Orpheus with his lute. Did but a small portion of the silver and copper harvest fall to the hands of the "honest working man" we might exult in the power of divine music, but as this is unhappily not the case we may confine ourselves to curiously enquiring into the history of this tune. The words, of course, are of to-day, but the melody cannot be. The drop of a third from the tonic in the fourth bar would seem to point to an Irish origin, but at least it never came from the music-hall. Any information would oblige

Yours truly,

F. CORDER.

CHARLES DIBDIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The baptismal record quoted by Mr. Joshua D. Horwood, in your April issue, rather tends to make the question as to the date of Dibdin's birth still more complicated. The generally received date is March 15, 1745; but obviously this is wrong, if the Charles Dibdin baptised on March 4 in that year was the future composer. The name Dibdin, or Dibden, is indigenous to Southampton and neighbourhood (there is a village, Dibden, near Hythe), and to me it seems not impossible that the entry in question refers to another person. This is supported by the description of the father as "clerk of this parish," whereas Dibdin himself says his father was "a silversmith, and a man of considerable credit." A substantial silversmith is not usually found acting as parish clerk.

The inscription on Dibdin's tombstone only proves that his widow thought his age to be 69. As her information presumably proceeded from her husband, who was himself astray as to the early dates of his life, her opinion cannot be taken as conclusive.

I should like to correct the last statement in my former letter. Licences were refused both to the Circus and the Helicon. In the former case, the difficulty, originating in the intrigues of Grimaldi and Hughes, was at last surmounted; in the latter, a gale blew down the building, and the license was no longer required.—Yours faithfully,

EDWARD RIMBAULT DIBDIN.

Orme's View, Liscard, Cheshire, April 15, 1886.

MADRIGALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I had hoped that Mr. Baptie's interesting letter in your February number would have elicited a response from some professor of authority in the musical world, or perhaps from the Conductor of some well-known Choral Society, who could have told us the real reason why Madrigals are now neither published nor performed.

It seems to me unfair to suggest that it is in consequence of want of enterprise in the music trade, for on looking through Messrs. Novello's catalogue alone, I find about

CORRESPONDENCE.

NAME OF OLD TUNE WANTED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In the universal decay and disappearance of Folk-music and Folk-lore before the devastating progress of the Board School, so small a matter as the present may not be devoid of interest to the musician. Can any of your readers then throw light upon the genesis of a song now to thirty-seven madrigals of the English and foreign schools in the "Glee Hive," twenty-five in THE MUSICAL TIMES, twenty-three in Leslie's Collection, and several in the "Part-Song Book"; besides these, twenty-seven in the "Triumphs of Oriana," nineteen in Webbe's Collection, and seventy-nine in "Oliphaunt's," are published in parts. All of these are low enough in price, and, although a number of duplicates may be found among them, would form a repertory large enough to keep a Madrigal Society at work for several seasons, at the end of which time the question of publishing more might be raised.

This is a subject on which I write with great interest, as for some years past I have had a small party of amateurs meeting at my own house to sing works of this description, and my experience is, not that the material available is insufficient, but that for some unaccountable reason the taste of the day has been diverted to the more modern Part-song, and that not a tithe even of the Madrigals, which may be bought for a few pence, are at all known to the present generation of choral singers.

As an orchestral player, I have constantly been present at Concerts of small choral Societies, where, after a Cantata, the second part has been miscellaneous; but hardly ever is a Madrigal introduced: always Part-songs, good, no doubt, but surely not in a higher style of art than the works of the Madrigalian Era.

Of course there are slight practical difficulties, such as the extended compass of some of the parts, but they are as nothing compared with the awkwardness, say, of Palestrina's "Missa Papæ Marcelli," which has been made practicable, at all events, by the late Conductor of the Bach Choir; but the Concert of the Bristol Madrigal Society at the Albert Hall last season must have convinced the thousands present that nothing in the way of unaccompanied vocal music can be more sonorous and satisfactory to an audience than a Madrigal when well performed.

I fear the plan suggested in your last number by Mr. Heywood will hardly create a demand for music of this character; and really with the melancholy example of the Musical Antiquarian Society before us, and the suspended animation of the Purcell Society in our own time, we can have but little hope of successful publication by subscription.

What is needful is, I think, that our Conductors should introduce to their choirs those works which can already be obtained; and from my own experience I can almost promise that a demand will arise, from both singers and listeners, for further efforts in the same direction.

Yours faithfully,

J. W. MATTHEW.

92, Finchley Road, N.W.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

. Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will be obliged by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

The Notices of Concerts at Portsmouth should have been sent in time for our last number. We shall be glad if our Correspondent will occasionally furnish us with condensed accounts of musical performances in his immediate neighbourhood, for our "Brief Summary."

E. A. S. ORR.—We are unable to recommend anything for the purpose you name.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABINGDON.—The Junior Guild of St. George gave a Children's Concert in the Council Chamber on Saturday, the 10th ult. A crowded audience testified to the general interest felt in the performance of the young students, in whose work Mr. Ruskin has so kindly expressed his sympathy and interest. The Concert brought to a successful close the first series of practices by the musical pupils of the Guild, which commenced in January last, under the direction of Mrs. Slade Baker. The programme included part-songs by Kinross, vocal solos by Arne and Dvůřák, piano solos by Beethoven, Haydn, Heller, and Liszt, violin solos by Wiener, Hauser, and Rossini, and two trios for piano, violin and cello, by Beethoven and Mozart. The Concert was very enjoyable and reflected much credit on all who took part in it.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—A very successful performance of Proust's Hereward was given by the Philharmonic Society on March 29. The solo vocalists were Miss Leslie, Miss Halsey, Mr. Hall, Mr. Seymour Jackson, and Mr. Musgrove Tunfai. Mr. Irvine Dearnaley, Organist of the Parish Church and Musical Director of the Manchester Gentlemen's Glee Club, conducted.

BANGOR, COUNTY DOWN.—The Bangor Musical Society gave the last Concert of the season on Thursday, the 16th ult., in the Ward Schoolroom. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Morgan Byrne, Mrs. Thos. H. Crowe, Mrs. Purdon, Miss Burne, and Messrs. Benson, Dalgair, and Macfarlane. Miss Maguire played Weber's "Polacca Brillante" in a B flat in good style. A Beethoven Trio, for piano, violin and violoncello, played by Messrs. Thos. H. Crowe, W. Benson, and R. E. Ward, was well received. The part-songs were admirably sung by the members of the Society, and their Conductor, Mr. Thos. H. Crowe, is to be congratulated on the success of his efforts. The new organ, built for the Parish Church by Messrs. Anneson, of Granmont, was opened on Easter Sunday at the Morning Service. The Service was fully choral, consisting of Smarts' Te Deum in F, Garrett's Jubilate in F, and Stainer's anthem "They have taken away my Lord." The Evening Service was also choral, and at the conclusion, the Organist of the Church, Mr. Thos. H. Crowe, who had presided at the instrument at both services, gave selections from Bach, Handel, and Smart. The good singing and pure tone of the instrument reflects great credit on the builder.

BELFAST.—The twelfth season of the Philharmonic Society was brought to a close on the 2nd ult. by the annual Members' Concert. The third part of Schumann's Faust commenced the programme. The solos were well rendered by members of the Society, and the choruses, as a rule, went well. The second part of the Concert, which was miscellaneous, included a duet, "Weep you no more," by Professor Grosvenor, excellently given by Mr. and Mrs. Hall, and a Trio, by the composer, and two movements of Goldsmann's Concerto, for violoncello and orchestra. Mr. Edgar Haines led the band, Herr Werner accompanied, and Herr Beyschlag conducted.—The members of the Queen's College Musical Society terminated their fifth season on the 9th ult., with a Concert in the Examination Hall of the College. The principal items in the excellent programme provided were Haydn's Motet, "Distracted with care and anguish," well sung by the members of the Society; Rubinstein's "Die Nixe," for female voices and solo, finely rendered by Miss Milligan and the ladies of the Society; the solo, with chorus, from Orpheus, "Oh in pity be moved by my grief," the solo part most effectively given by Mrs. R. J. Porter; and two violoncello pieces, so exquisitely played by Herr Ruderdorf as to excite the utmost enthusiasm. Amongst the vocal solos must be mentioned Mrs. Porter's "Only once more" (Moir), Mr. Louis Mantell's "I arise from dreams of thee" (Salaman), and Mr. T. B. Boyd's "The Erl-King" (Schubert). Herr Beyschlag conducted with his usual care and judgment. Mr. Carl Leckie playing the accompaniments with much effect. The evening's entertainment was given by the St. Cecilia Society, rendered, very creditably, selections from The Messiah, the solos being taken by Mrs. Freeman Dudley, Miss C. Milligan, and Messrs. Picton and Imrie; Mr. R. Kent Atkinson, conducted. The Hillsboro' and Lurgan Societies have also given Concerts in those towns, Mr. W. Hartz conducting on each occasion.

BLACKBURN.—The members of the Vocal Society brought their eleventh season to a successful conclusion, on March 31, with a fine performance of Cowen's Sleeping Beauty. The solos were sustained by Miss Bear, Miss Carmichael, Mr. Seymour Jackson, and Mr. O. Thompson. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous. The band, selected from Mr. Hall's orchestra, was most effective. The Concert was conducted by Mr. W. H. Robinson with his usual earnestness, and was thoroughly appreciated by a crowded audience.—The second Concert of the eleventh season of the St. Cecilia Society was given at the Victoria Hall on Thursday, the 8th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. J. H. Hooks, of Bradford. The work selected for the first part was the dramatic legend Cinderella, by Hofmann, the principal parts in which were ably sustained by Miss Thudicum (Cinderella), Mrs. Clarke of Bradford (the Fairy Queen), and Mr. John Higginson (the King). The band comprised many of the most eminent members of Mr. Hall's orchestra. The second part of the Concert rendered, very creditably, selections from The Messiah, the solos being taken by Mrs. Freeman Dudley, Miss C. Milligan, and Messrs. Picton and Imrie; Mr. R. Kent Atkinson, conducted. The Hillsboro' and Lurgan Societies have also given Concerts in those towns, Mr. W. Hartz conducting on each occasion.

BOLTON.—On Saturday, March 27, the Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Yule's Macbeth in the Temperance Hall. The solo vocalists were Madame F. Hyde, Miss A. Walker, Mr. H. Taylor, and Mr. Scholes.—The Choral Society held an "open" meeting in the Town Hall on the 14th ult., when Villiers Stanford's "God is our hope and strength," Handel's Acis and Galatea, and Dr. Bridge's part-song in memory of Joseph Maas were presented to a large audience. A Fantasia by Liszt, well played by one of the members, was highly appreciated. Mr. E. W. Appleyard conducted.

BRISTOL.—The annual Recital of Sacred Music by the United Presbyterian Church Choir, under the conductorship of Mr. R. W. Pearce, took place in the Church on March 25, in presence of a large number of members and friends of the congregation. The programme consisted of miscellaneous selections, and the choir, numbering about thirty-five voices, evidenced a very commendable degree of CHURCH.—The principal choruses were "And the glory" (Handel), "Ye shall dwell in the land" (Stainer), "Praise His awful name" (Spohr), and "O Father, whose Almighty power" (Handel). Several solo vocalists contributed with much effect to the programme, and were cordially received. Two piano and harmonium duets—Overture (Mendelssohn) and March (Elia)—were performed during the evening by Mr. Pentland and Mr. W. P. Gale, in both of which these gentlemen evinced thorough mastery of their respective instruments. Before concluding with the "Hallelujah" chorus (Handel), Mr. James Thain proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Pentland and the choir, which was seconded by Councillor Robert Anderson, and cordially responded to.

BROUGHTY FERRY, N.B.—On Thursday evening, the 1st ult., the Church Union gave a very satisfactory rendering of H. C. Myers' Sleeping Beauty. The vocalists were Miss Eleanor Farnol, Miss Josephine Cravino, Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Mr. J. Bridson, all of whom were highly successful. The choruses were sung with spirit and precision, and evinced careful training on the part of the Conductor, Mr. Neale, who is to be congratulated on the success of his efforts. The second part of the programme, which was miscellaneous, included a sketch for orchestra, "The Procession of the King," by Mr. J. More Smieton, which obtained a most favourable reception.

CARSLHOLM.—Farmer's Oratorio Christ and His Soldiers was admirably rendered at Mr. J. H. W. Ocleas' Concert, given at the Public Hall, on Thursday evening, the 15th ult. The solos were well sung by Masters Sadler and Middleton, Mr. Cripps, and Mr. Foster. There was an excellent orchestra, conducted by Mr. Ocleas. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous.

CHELLENHAM.—The Musical Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Von Holst, gave its final Concert of the thirtieth season, in the Assembly Rooms, on Monday evening, the 5th ult. The programme included the first part of Mendelssohn's Oratorio Elia and selections from Weber's Oberon. The chief singers were Mrs. Frank Danbury, Mrs. Ferguson, Miss Cookworthy, Miss Mary Morgan, Mr. D'Arcy Ferris, and Mr. Montague Worlock, all of whom were most successful. There was an excellent band and chorus.

CHESTER.—Dr. J. F. Bridge's Oratorio, Mount Moriah, was sung in the Cathedral, at a Special Nave Service, on Tuesday in Holy Week.

CHISWICK.—On March 30 a Concert was given in Chiswick Hall by the pupils of Mr. R. W. Lewis. The chief features in the programme were Mozart's Sonata in F (given by Mr. L. Potons), an Allegro Brillante, an Impromptu (by A. H. West), and Beethoven's Sonata in G, all of which were well played. Amongst the vocal items must be mentioned two new songs, "Not alone" and "When the storm is over," by Mr. Lewis, which were very cordially received.

CREWE.—The members of the Philharmonic Society gave their second and last Concert of the season in the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening, March 31, before an appreciative audience. The work performed was Handel's Samson, the principal vocalists being Miss Kate Fusselle, Miss Louise Bowman, Mr. Holberry Hayday, and Mr. A. S. Kinnale (the latter gentleman in place of Mr. Robert Grace, who, in consequence of a sudden family bereavement, was unable to fulfil his engagement). The orchestra, which had been considerably reinforced by members of the bands of Messrs. Charles Hallé and De Jong, was under the able leadership of Mr. Henry Nuttall, and proved very efficient. The choral numbers of the Oratorio were, with slight exceptions, well rendered, and much praise is due to the conductor, Mr. G. Young, for the care and attention bestowed in rehearsal, and also for the manner in which he directed the Concert. Mr. Henry Richardson, a member of the Society's orchestra, played the trumpet obligato to "Let the bright Seraphim" in a masterly manner.

DALEKEITH, N.B.—Haydn's Creation was performed by the Philharmonic Society, on the 8th ult., the soloists being Miss Winnie Beaumont, Mr. D. Macdonald, and Mr. A. McColl. Miss Beaumont's solos were given with considerable taste and executive skill, and the piano and duets were admirably rendered. Mr. Charles Guild conducted. The choir numbered upwards of 20 voices.

DARLINGTON.—The members of the Orchestral Society gave their sixth annual Concert on the 2nd ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Fred. Tovey. The programme was an excellent one, the principal item being the C minor Symphony of Beethoven. The Concert was in every respect the most successful yet given by this flourishing Society. Mr. Fredericks, of Lichfield Cathedral, was the vocal soloist, his songs being rendered with great taste and judgment. Two violin solos were admirably given by Mr. J. H. Beers, of Newcastle. The band (consisting of fifty performers) was highly efficient.

DINGWALL, N.B.—Tipton's Service of Song, entitled "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was most successfully given in the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday evening, March 31, by an efficient choir under the conductorship of Mr. Naughty; the reader was Mr. McMillan, Inverness. Miss Ross contributed a pianoforte solo, and Mrs. Binning accompanied throughout on the harmonium.

EDLING.—The last of the series of Popular Concerts was given at the Lyric Hall on Saturday, March 27, when the secretary, Mr. Harold Savery, took a well-deserved benefit. The honours of the evening were shared by Mrs. Dyke, who sang "The Worker" and "Only for one" admirably; Mr. Harold Savery, whose songs "Les Rameaux" and "The Devout Lover," were excellently rendered; Mr. Herbert Thorndike, who contributed "The Toreador's Song" and "Across the blue hills, Marie"; and Mr. Alfred Izard, whose piano-forte solos had to be a brilliant execution. Valuable assistance was also given by Miss Chappell (violin), Miss Annie Chappell, Miss Winifred Dyke, Mr. Ralph Dawes, Mr. William Pinney (harmonium), and Herr Victor Gollmick. On Wednesday, the 14th ult., a Lecture on the "Life of Mozart," with musical illustrations, was given by Mrs. Charles Clark at Haven Green Church, in aid of the Choral Illustrations. It included several of the most valuable compositions, from the earliest period to the great "Jupiter" Symphony, and were all most creditably given. The orchestra was under the able direction of Mr. S. Dean Grimson, assisted by Messrs. A. Pittman, Lawrence, J. E. Hambleton, W. L. Beddome, &c.; Miss Evelyn Goring, A.R.A.M., Miss Ellen Haas, and Mr. Skinner contributed vocal selections from Mozart's operas, and the choir sang effectively in the Kyrie from the Twelfth Mass, &c. Mr. George Tomling presided at the organ, and Mr. W. H. Treffy was the Conductor.

EASTBOURNE.—The members of the Musical Society gave an excellent performance of Sir Michael Costa's Oratorio, Naaman, at the Pavilion, Devonshire Park, on Monday, the 29th ult. The solo artists were Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Eliza Thomas, Mr. Fredericks, and Mr. Bevan. The orchestra was led by Mr. E. J. Sangster, and Dr. Sangster conducted.

EDINBURGH.—We understand that Mr. W. Harrison, conductor of the local Choral Union, has been commissioned to compose some new music for the next meeting of the Diocesan Choral Association, which takes place in St. Mary's Cathedral on June 26. The meeting is one of considerable importance, the clergy being drawn from all the Episcopal churches of Edinburgh, and composed for the most part of trained and thoroughly efficient singers.

FALKIRK, N.B.—The Falkirk Local Chorus gave a miscellaneous Concert on the 9th ult., when a selection of part-songs was capitally rendered, under the conductorship of Mr. F. Bridgman. Miss Winnie Beaumont, Miss J. Pearson, and Mr. J. Fleming contributed songs, all being well received.

FOLKESTONE.—At a special Lenten Service held at Church House on the 20th ult., a selection from Haydn's Passion was sung by the Choir and Choral Union in connection with the Church. The soloists were Masters Fidge and Norman, and Messrs. Rous and Baker. Mr. Rose also sang the tenor air "For there is mercy" from Bunnett's "Out of the Deep," and Master Norman, Handel's "He was despised." The service was under the direction of Mr. W. E. Fairclough, the Organist and Choirmaster, who also played C. H. Lloyd's Organ Sonata in D minor during the service.

GALASHIELS, N.B.—The annual Concert given by the Choral Union took place on the 7th ult., when Judas Macabæus was performed. The service was given by some of the young members of the Union, assisted by Miss Winnie Beaumont, Mrs. Mackenzie, and Mr. G. Welch. The florid soprano solos were sung with great effect, and the band rendered efficient aid in the accompaniments. Mr. W. Morris, Organist of St. Peter's Church, accompanied, and Mr. Oxley, Organist of St. Paul's Church, conducted. Spohr's God, Thou art Great, was given at a special musical Service in St. Paul's Church on the evening of Good Friday, the 3rd ult. The soprano solos were taken by Miss Vine Beaumont, who also sang two sacred airs with excellent effect. Mr. Johnstone gave a bass solo, and Mr. Oxley, S.Mus., T.C.L., contributed three organ solos.

GRAHAMSTOWN, CAPE COLONY.—At a meeting of the Select Vestry, held on the 11th ult., at the Chapter House, St. George's Cathedral, the Lord Bishop in the Chair, Mr. H. Winny was confirmed in his appointment as Organist and Choirmaster of St. George's Cathedral.

HARROGATE.—The members of the Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Haydn's Creation on the 6th ult., in the Spa Concert Room. The principal vocalists were Miss Bessie Holt, Mr. Seymour Jackson, and Mr. Dan Billington, all of whom were highly successful. The choruses were well rendered, and the band lent most efficient aid. Mr. John Shaw conducted. There was a large audience.

HEYWOOD.—The members of the Glee Club gave a Concert on Tuesday evening, March 30, in the large Hall of the Reform Club. The glees were well rendered, and vocal solos were contributed by Miss Ashworth, Miss Dews, Messrs. W. Rowe, W. H. Kershaw, H. Greenhaigh, W. Gorton, and J. H. Greenwood. The Concert was under the direction of Mr. Kershaw.

LEEDS.—The first Saturday Concert, under the management of the Coliseum Company, was held on the 10th ult. The solo artists were Miss Bessie Holt, R.A.M.; Miss Sara Cragg, Miss Singleton, Mr. J. Atha, Mr. J. Browning, and Mr. Wadsworth. Glees were contributed by members of the Leeds Sacred Harmonic Society. Miss Holt was highly successful in all her songs.

LEWISHAM.—The St. John's Choral Society, numbering about 120 members, gave its third and last Concert of the season in the Church Room, on Friday, the 16th ult. The programme included Stainer's Cantata The Daughter of Jairus, Spohr's God, Thou art Great, and in the miscellaneous selection Schubert's Psalm for ladies' voices, "The Lord is my Shepherd," and Mendelssohn's "Judge me, O God." The almost perfect rendering of these works reflects the highest credit upon all concerned. The solo parts were taken by the following members of the Society: Mrs. Abbott, Miss Simson, Miss L. Pyne, Miss Schmidt, Mr. F. H. Fulkes, Mr. E. Harris, Mr. Tindall, Mr. Manwaring, and Mr. Kerfoot. In the instrumental parts, Mr. J. H. Pyne, Mr. Thabber, Mr. "Mose in Egito," and Mr. Bridge sang Handel's "Honour and Arms." Mr. Herbert J. Smith was the accompanist, and Mr. F. A. Bridge conducted.

LEYTON.—A Concert was given in the Town Hall on Monday evening, March 29, under the direction of Mr. Courtenay Woods, R.A.M., Organist of the Parish Church, in aid of the choir. The artists were Miss Kate Fusselle, Miss Annie Dweley, Mr. William Nicholl, and Mr. Frank Mack, vocalists; and Messrs. J. Courtenay Woods, Mr. Courtenay Woods, solo pianists and accompanists. The Concert was well attended and much appreciated. The singing of Miss Fusselle, Miss Dweley, and Mr. William Nicholl was of a high order, and Mr. Frank Mack deserves special mention for his singing of Mendelssohn's "I'm a roamer," and Hiller's "Cozy maid." Miss Scott Gardner proved herself an efficient pianist by her rendering of Schubert's Impromptu in B flat.

MALTA.—Boito's chef-d'œuvre, Mefistofele, was performed at the Theatre Royal on Thursday, March 25, before a crowded house. The parts were ably rendered by Mlle. Bevilacqua, who sustained the characters of Marguerite and Elena; Signora Guidetti, Marta and Pantalio; Signor Bello, Faust; Signor Dondi, Mefistopheles; and Signor Scopini, Wagner and Nereo. The orchestra was under the direction of Signor Ronzani, and Signor Proposito was director of the chorus. The opera was well rendered, and highly appreciated.

MANCHESTER.—Mr. John Towers gave an excellent Concert in the Association Hall on Saturday evening, the 3rd ult., which was thoroughly appreciated by a large audience. The programme consisted of English and Scottish songs, duets, part-songs, &c., all of which were well rendered by the members of Mr. Towers' Select Choir and Mdlle. Christine's Balmoral Scotch Party, the latter of whom appeared in full Highland costume.

MARGATE.—The annual Concert of the Cliftonville Choral Society was given in the Cliftonville Hall on Tuesday evening, March 23. The programme consisted of Dr. Bridge's Rock of Ages, C. H. Lloyd's Hero and Leander, and a collection of songs. The vocalists were Madame Worrell, Mr. Fred. Bevan, and Mr. W. Gripps. Mr. V. Fladgate played a pianoforte solo with much ability, and Mr. W. J. Page contributed a violin solo. Mr. C. Gann led the band, and Mr. W. J. Pearson conducted. The works were exceedingly well rendered, and the Concert most successful.

MARYPORT.—On Friday evening, March 26, the members of the Amateur Orchestral Society (assisted by several friends), gave a Complimentary Concert as a tribute to the memory of their old and respected member, the late Mr. John Brown. The Concert was exceptionally well patronised, and a capital programme was ably rendered. The vocalists were Mr. Swinburn and Mr. J. Thompson. "The trumpet shall sound" was sung by Mr. Thompson, and the obligato finely played by Mr. H. Thompson.

MELBOURNE.—The 105th Concert of the Metropolitan Liedertafel was given, on February 22, to gentlemen only, at the Athenaeum Hall. The Conductor, Mr. Julius Herz, resumed his baton for the first time since his recovery from Handel's palsy, and was very warmly welcomed. Contrary to the usual custom, there were no soloists, the programme being confined to the part-singing of the Society, and to selections by a small but thoroughly satisfactory orchestra of twenty-five performers, led by Mr. Henry Curtis. Of the six orchestral numbers, the most popular was Beethoven's "Turkish March" from the Ruin of Athens, Schumann's "Träumerei," with which it was bracketed, served to exhibit the sympathy of the vocal instruments, while Chopin's "Marche Funèbre" afforded the Conductor the best opportunity for the display of the pains he had taken to thoroughly drill all his exccutants into subordination. Hitherto the Society has confined itself rather closely to the modern German and French writers. On this occasion it produced four familiar numbers from the old "Orpheus" school, the popularity of which is attested by the fact that "The Soldier's Love," with its tramping hum of chorus obligato to the tenor solo "Dearest maid now fare thee well," was the first. In this Mr. Smith, of Williamstown, whose high-chest register is a standing source of strength to the Society, surprised and delighted the audience by a rendition throughout in the falsetto. The humorous glee, "Dr. St. Paul," met with a boisterous reception, and the part-songs "Oft when ye" and the "Sabbath Call" were sung with rare sympathy. Eisenhoer's canon of 2 in 1, "He who trusts in ladies fair," was the most skilful piece of contrapuntal work of the programme; but the Society seemed to have reserved itself for a final effort to do honour to their old friend and confère, the late Mr. Ellassar, by their excellent and spirited rendering of his favourite vocal waltz, "Thus ever." This number closed the best smoking Concert that the Liedertafel has yet given.

MONTREAL.—Mrs. Page Thrower's two Concerts at the Queen's Hall—the first on Friday evening, March 19, and the second on Saturday morning, March 20—were in every respect thoroughly successful. At the evening Concert, Rheinberger's Sonata in E flat, for pianoforte and violin (Madame Helen Hopekirk and Herr Gustav Dannreuther), the Theme, with variations, by Beethoven, Op. 18, No. 3 (the Buffalo Philharmonic Club), Fried. Hermann's Capriccio for three violins (Messrs. Gustav Dannreuther, Thies and Otto Schill), and Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor (Madame Helen Hopekirk, Messrs. Gustav Dannreuther and Heydler), received an admirable rendering, and were much applauded, the vocalist, Herr Max Heinrich, by his excellent singing, also sharing the honours of the evening. The pianoforte playing of Madame Helen Hopekirk, who has already won European reputation, elicited great enthusiasm, her marvellous powers being equally displayed in expounding the depth and subtleties of Beethoven, the romantic mysticism of Schumann, and the brilliancy of Mendelssohn. The talents of all these artists were again displayed at the Concert on the following morning, when Madame Hopekirk played a number of works in varied styles, her fine rendering of Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata creating a profound sensation, with a highly appreciative audience. The music-loving people of Montreal are certainly much indebted to Mrs. Thrower for these two Concerts, the success of which it is hoped will induce her to repeat them at no distant date.

MONTROSE.—On Tuesday evening, the 13th ult., the Harmonic Union gave its last Concert for the season in the Assembly Hall, which was crowded by the honorary members and their friends. The programme, which was miscellaneous, was well rendered, the singing of the Union being especially good, and the accompaniment of the piano being famed. Solos were excellently sung by the members, and highly appreciated. Miss Taylor presided at the pianoforte. At the close Bailie Scott proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. C. B. Taylor, the conductor.

MUSSELBURGH.—The Choral Society gave its second Concert in the Town Hall on the evening of Tuesday, the 20th ult. The principal items in the programme were The Sun Worshippers, by A. Goring Thomas, and Hero and Leander, by C. H. Lloyd. The solos in the first work were taken by Miss Adela Duckham, and Mr. C. E. Gledhill, who did every justice to the parts assigned to them. In Hero and Leander the soloists, Mr. Charles R. Laing and Mr. Ralph Moore, gave an excellent interpretation of the music of their respective characters. The choruses in both works were rendered with great care and expression by the choir, who also sang the Chorus of Shepherds "Forth to the meadows" (from Schubert's Rosamunde) in excellent style. The whole performance was of a high order, and the Conductor, Mr. George Maxwell, Organist of Inveresk Parish Church. The programme also comprised two violin solos by Mr. van der Bergh, songs by the soloists, and the trio "Queen of the Night" by members of the choir. The pianoforte accompaniments to the choruses were played in a finished manner by one of the young lady members.

NOTTINGHAM.—Mr. William Press gave his grand Concert in the Albert Hall, on the 3rd ult., before a good audience. The principal vocalists were Miss Spencer Arden, R.A.M., Madame Clara Gardiner, Miss Fannie Lynn, R.A.M., Mr. A. Castings, Mr. Longmore, Mr. C. Gerring, and Mr. Bingley Shaw; solo pianoforte, Mdlle. Marie Fromm; Conductors, Mr. J. Cullen, R.A.M., Mr. Cockcroft, Mr. F. Marshall Ward, &c.; solo violin, Mr. Alf. R. Watson. There was an excellent band under the conductorship of Mr. T. L. Selby, and a select part-song choir conducted by Mr. J. Adcock.

OLDHAM.—Mr. Lawton's last Recital for the season was given on Tuesday evening, March 30. The programme consisted of high-class music, which was excellently rendered. The vocalist was Madame Du Pré, and Mr. F. Brown contributed violin solos with great success. Mr. John Lawton accompanied.—The St. Cecilia Musical Society gave a performance of Handel's Oratorio Samson in the Baptist School-room, Union Street West, on Wednesday evening, the 17th ult. The choruses were well rendered, especial mention being due to "Great Dagon" and "Let their celestial creatures." The solos were taken by Mrs. Wood, Miss M. McNeil, Miss Chadderton, Miss M. A. Dronfield, and Messrs. Chadderton, J. H. Davenport, Mills, Kilner, Moysie, and Malcolm, all members of the Society. The accompaniments were played on the pianoforte (Mr. W. Lawton) and harmonium (Miss F. Hartley). Mr. James F. Slater, F.C.O., conducted with care and decision.

PORTMADOC.—On the 16th ult., Haydn's Creation was performed by the Choral Society, before a large audience. The principal vocalists were Miss Julia Jones, who made her first appearance in Portmadoc with much success, Eos Morlais, and Mr. John Henry, R.A.M. There was an efficient orchestra, led by Mr. F. Duncanson, and Mr. John Roberts conducted. These annual Oratorio Concerts are most appreciated in the town and neighbourhood.

RAVENSTHORPE.—The members of the Choral Society gave the second Concert of the season in the Co-operative Hall, on Saturday evening, the 17th ult. The first part of the programme, Mendelssohn's Van Brue's Cantata, St. Cecilia's Day, and the second part were miscellaneous. The solo vocalists were Miss Cockcroft, Mr. Henry Newcome, and Mr. J. Turner. Mr. Tom Lee conducted, and Mr. S. B. Thornton accompanied.

SELKIRK, N.B.—A selection from St. Paul was given by the Choral Union on the 22nd ult. Miss Minnie Beaumont, who was the only professional vocalist engaged, sang the soprano part admirably, and Mrs. Anderson and Messrs. Oliver and Foster rendered their parts well. Mr. W. Morris, Organist of St. Peter's, Galashiels, conducted, and Mr. Colledge, Organist of Selkirk, acted as accompanist.

SHEFFIELD.—The annual Musical Festival, in aid of the Chapel Trust Fund, was given on the 19th ult., in the Hanover Chapel, before a large audience. The programme included Rossini's Stabat Mater, Weber's Mass in G, and Hummel's Aima Virgo. The solo vocalists were Miss Kate Drew, Miss A. L. Morton, Mr. T. C. Royle, and Mr. S. Johnson. Mr. J. W. Phillips presided at the organ, Signor Ginesi at the pianoforte, and Mr. Morton, Organist of the chapel, conducted.

SHERBROOKE (P.Q.), CANADA.—The Organ Recitals at St. Peter's Church, on Sunday evenings, by Mr. William Reed have been much appreciated, a large portion of the congregation usually remaining after Evensong. Selections from the works of Bach, Mendelssohn, Handel, Guizot, Buxtehude, and Lemmens are regularly given, varied by smaller works and arrangements by other composers.

SPRINKYMOOR.—On the 6th ult., a Concert was given on behalf of the Floral Society, by the members of Mr. G. Johnson's Glee party, assisted by Mrs. Burdon, Miss McGuinness, and Mr. John H. Moffitt. The Concert was very successful, the singers acquitting themselves in the most satisfactory manner.

STAFFORD.—The members of the choir of St. Mary's Church gave a performance of Farmer's Oratorio, Christ and His Soldiers, in the Borough Hall, on Thursday evening, March 25. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Thompson and Mr. Reginald F. Wright. Dr. Taylor conducted. The work was admirably rendered.

STRATFORD.—On Thursday, March 25, a Concert was given by Miss E. J. Gollidge, the artists being Miss Clara Dowle, Mr. R. Leng, Miss Woodmansee, Mr. Brewerton, Mr. Farrar, and Mr. Whiteman, vocalists; Miss Adela Duckham (Guildhall School of Music), solo violin; Miss Wayman, Miss Gollidge, Miss Adela Duckham, and Mr. Joseph Scora, pianoforte. Miss Adela Duckham's violin solos were admirably played and encored.

THURSO.—On Friday, the 16th ult., the Musical Association performed Bradbury's Cantata Ezra in the Town Hall, before a large and appreciative audience. The Queen and the King were sung with great taste and ability. The part of the King was taken by Mr. Leslie, who displayed a powerful voice. Miss Sutherland, as Zeresh, was loudly applauded. The choir sang with precision and taste. Mr. S. Townshend conducted, the accompaniments being played by Mrs. Sutherland (harmonium) and Miss Murray (piano).

TOOTING.—The members of the Tooting and Merton Harmonic Society, gave their second Concert, on Tuesday, March 23, in the Vestry Hall. The first part of the programme was devoted to Mendelssohn's Lauda Sion, and the second was miscellaneous. The rendering of the choruses testified to the care with which the voices had been trained by Mr. James H. Weager, the Conductor of the Society. The solo vocalists were Miss Laura Brown, Miss Hayter, Mr. J. A. Weager, and Mr. W. Paris. Mrs. J. H. Weager presided at the pianoforte and Miss Ginn at the harmonium.

TORQUAY.—Mr. T. Craddock, Mus. Bac., Oxon., at the request of the rector and churchwardens of St. Mary Magdalen, has been giving a series of Organ Recitals during Lent, the programmes being selected from the works of Bach, Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Haydn, Rheinberger, Bennett, Silas, &c. On the 14th ult., the Misses K. and G. Hicks gave their valuable assistance and sang with much effect the following compositions: "O lovely peace" (Handel), "These are they" (Gaul), "There is a green hill" (Gounod), and "Quis est homo" (Rossini). Mr. Craddock is to be congratulated on the success of these Recitals.

TENNERIDGE WELLS.—The members of the Vocal Association gave an excellent performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah in the Great Hall, on Monday evening, the 12th ult. There was a good orchestra, consisting of a portion of the string band of the Royal Engineers. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Eleanor Rees, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. Henschel; Mrs. Skillen, Miss Laubach; Miss Everest, Mr. Skinner, Mr. Hosmer, and Mr. Oliver giving efficient aid in the concerted music. Mr. Clarke, Organist at Kusthall, presided at the harmonium, and Mr. N. E. Irons, Organist of Trinity Church, conducted.

WARRINGTON.—A new Cantata, Ecce Homo, composed by Mr. W. Johnson, was given with much success on the evening of the 22nd ult., in Holy Trinity Church. The soloists were Miss Riley, Master Sudlow, Mr. H. J. Westbrook, and Mr. Rose. The choir was augmented for the occasion. The composer presided at the organ.

WESTERHAM.—The Public Hall was filled to overflowing on Thursday evening, the 15th ult., on the occasion of a Concert by the Church Choir, under the able conductorship of Mr. Ernest H. Smith, A.C.O., the Organist. The excellent training of the choirboys was conspicuous in the "Hallelujah" chorus and the chorus from Judas Macabæus. A quartet, "Andantino," by Herman Eberens, was excellently rendered by Miss Thompson (violin), the Rev. H. J. White (cello), Miss R. M. Warde (pianoforte), and Mr. E. H. Smith (harmonium). The solo vocalists were Mrs. Adlerson, Mrs. Alex. Rooke, Mr. Cooper, Mr. S. C. Grover, and Mr. E. C. Sutton.

YORK.—Bach's Passion (according to St. Matthew) was sung in six weekly portions during Lent, at the Minster, to very large congregations. This was the third annual performance, and it is gratifying to notice so growing an appreciation of the sublime music of Bach.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Richard Cooper, to St. John the Baptist's, The Brook, Liverpool.—Mr. R. Holden, Organist and Choirmaster to Holy Trinity Church, Blackburn.—Mr. Edward Tregoning, Deputy Organist and Choirmaster to Gulval Parish Church, near Penzance.—Mr. C. Swindelhurst, Organist and Choirmaster to Christ Church, Blackburn.—Mr. William Faulkes, to St. Margaret's, Afield, Liverpool.—Mr. B. Jackson, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Andrew's Parish Church, Hingham, Norfolk.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. W. R. Barr (Tenor), to Christ Church, Streatham, S.W.—Mr. Frederick Williams, Choirmaster to All Souls', Langham Place.—Mr. Alfred Lord (Bass), to Hereford Cathedral.

DEATH.

On the 7th ult., at the Philiberts, Maidenhead, ROBERT STUART CALLCOTT, aged 34.

Nearly Ready.

NEW EDITION, WITH MANY ADDITIONS,

WORDS OF ANTHEMS

EDITED BY

THE REV. W. RAYSON, M.A.,
JOHN STAINER, M.A., D.Mus.,
AND

THE REV. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Cloth, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GOSWOLD, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s. Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s. Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION

of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.

II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.

III. In 32mo. Words only. 1d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION

of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

MENDELSSOHN.—Ten Transcriptions from "Elijah," for Violin and Pianoforte, by BERTHOLD TOURS. (No. 3, Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Albums for Violin and Pianoforte.) 2s. 6d.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. Vol. XIV. Cloth, 7s.

KETT, GEORGE.—(in F). The Office for the Holy Communion. 4d.

MILLER, C. E.—(in B flat). A Short Setting of the Office of Holy Communion. 6d.

PRESTON, WILLIAM.—The Easter Anthems. A New Setting (Chant form). 1d.

STRUTT, RICHARD.—The Responses of the Book of Common Prayer, with Harmonies, for Ferial and Festival use. Matins and Evensong. 2d.

WHITLEY, ARTHUR R.—(in E flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 3d.

DUDENEY, T. J.—"Twine the Easter garland." The Easter Hymn. 1d.

HAWKINS, REV. H. A. K.—"I was a wandering sheep." Hymn. 2d.

MACFARLANE, WALTER.—"Onward, Christian soldiers." Processional Hymn. 3d.

POWELL, REV. JAMES BADEN.—"O Jesu! Victim blest." (No. 301, Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

REYNOLDS, ARTHUR.—"The Story of the Cross." Words by the late Rev. E. MONRO. 2d.

SAWYER, F. J., Mus. Doc., Oxon.—"Ponder my words." Anthem for Male Voices. (No. 300, Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 2d.

WILKIN, GEORGE, JUN.—"O Paradise! O Paradise!" Hymn. 2d.

KING, ALFRED, Mus. B.—"Music, when soft voices die." Madrigal. S.S.A.T.B.B. (No. 534, Novello's Part-song Book.) 4d.

MUNDELLA, EMMA.—"Ye spotted snakes." Two-part Song. Words by SHAKESPEARE. 3d.

—"Flowers." Canon for Two Voices. Words by PERCIE. 2d.

—"Song of the Mermaids and Mermen." Two-part Song. Words by Sir WALTER SCOTT. 6d.

OLGA.—"Summer's Departure." Song. The Words by the late Rev. E. CASWALL. 1s. 6d.

HOPE, MILDRED BERESFORD.—"The Rose, Shamrock, and Thistle." A Patriotic Song. 2d.

FROES, WILFRID.—"The Primrose Waltz." 2s.

CARNALL, A.—Melody in B flat. (Original Compositions for the Organ. No. 52.) 1s.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS IN THE TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. McNAUGHT.

- | | | | |
|----------|--|-------------------|-----|
| No. 431. | O Lord, my God | S. S. WESLEY | 1d. |
| 432. | Stars of the summer night ... | J. L. HATTON | 1d. |
| 433. | Now pray we for our country ... | ELIZA FLOWER | 1d. |
| 434. | I will lift up mine eyes. Dr. J. CLARKE-WHITEFIELD | | 1d. |
| 435. | Where art thou, beam of light? ... | SIR H. R. BISHOP | 1d. |
| 436. | Now lie on low | G. A. MACFARREN | 1d. |
| 437. | O, my love's like a red, red rose. Dr. G. M. GARRETT | | 1d. |
| 438. | The Angels breathe | DR. J. NAYLOR | 1d. |
| 439. | May Carol | DR. G. M. GARRETT | 1d. |
| 440. | O praise the Lord | EARL OF WILTON | 1d. |
| 441. | Remember now Thy Creator ... | DR. STEGALL | 1d. |
| 442. | Her eyes the glow-worm lend thee. SIR JOHN GOSS | | 1d. |
| 443. | Lo! where the rosy bosom'd hours ... | S. REAY | 1d. |
| 444. | The Troubadour. Five-part Song. H. LESLIE | | 1d. |
| 445. | Jack Frost. Arranged for S.A.T.B. J. L. HATTON | | 1d. |
| 446. | Night, lovely night | F. BERGER | 1d. |
| 447. | See the chariot at hand | W. HORSLEY | 1d. |
| 448. | The Voice of Spring | J. G. VEAQO | 1d. |
| 449. | Stars of the summer night ... | HENRY SMART | 1d. |
| 450. | The Indian Maid | J. L. HATTON | 1d. |
| 451. | Benedicite, omnia opera | W. T. BEST | 1d. |
| 452. | The Miller | G. A. MACFARREN | 1d. |
| 453. | England | J. L. HATTON | 1d. |
| 454. | The Parting Kiss | CIRO FINSUTI | 1d. |
| 455. | My true love hath my heart ... | HENRY SMART | 1d. |
| 456. | What star in its glory uprieth ... | MENDELSSOHN | 1d. |

Now Ready.

SEND OUT THY LIGHT. Anthem for Whitsuntide (suitable for Parish Choirs), by J. T. FIELD. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The following are prospective arrangements for the season :—
 Monday, May 3... Annual College Dinner, at 6.30, at the Holborn Restaurant.
 Tuesday, " 4... Special Lecture by Dr. E. J. Hopkins.
 " " 25... Mr. Thomas Casson will read a paper on "Organ Stop Nomenclature."
 " June 22... Lecture.
 " July 13... Examination.
 Wednesday, July 14... "
 Thursday, " 15... "
 Friday, " 16... Diploma distribution at 11.
 Tuesday, " 27... Annual General Meeting.
 The Meetings will be held at the Neumeyer Hall, Hart Street, W.C.
 E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
 95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

MISS MADELEINE WHARTON (Soprano).
 Ballad, &c., Concerts, 27, Central Road, Withington, Manchester.

MADAME L'ESTRANGE (Mezzo-Soprano).
 Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 18, Eastbourne Terrace, W.

MR. BYRON DEWHURST (Solo Bass Vocalist).
 For terms, address to Messrs. Forsyth Brothers, Manchester.

MISS CLARA PERRY.
 MISS JOSEPHINE YORKE.
 MR. BEN DAVIES.
 MR. HENRY POPE.

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., apply to Mr. Joseph D. McLaren, 377, Strand, W.

MR. H. HERVON IDLE (Violinist).
 133, Lavender Sweep, Clapham Common, S.W.

CHAPEL ROYAL, St. James's Palace.—
 WANTED immediately, a BOY for the Choir, with a good Voice. Apply to the Rev. the Sub-Dean, St. James's Palace, S.W.

PRIORY CHURCH, MALVERN.—CHOIR
 SCHOLARSHIP VACANT. Value, £20 per annum. Good voice, and some knowledge of music indispensable. Apply to Mr. W. Haynes, Organist and Choirmaster.

ST. PETER'S, Eaton Square.—CHOIR SCHOOL
 (For Sons of Gentlemen).—TWO VACANCIES immediately. Terms, £21 first year, £15 after. Fixed school hours. Candidates 9—11 years. Good voices. Some musical knowledge. Apply, Rev. A. R. Wilson, 50, Gillingham Street, S.W.

CHOIR BOYS.—Good salaries; also Free Education and Private Music Lessons if required. Full choral services. Choirmaster, All Saints', Kensington Park, W.

TENOR WANTED.—City Church. Light duty.
 Surplined choir; £12 per annum. A. C. L., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, Cheapside, E.C.

BASS VOICE WANTED, for Church Choir, near Royal Oak Station. Two Services Sundays, Good Friday, and Christmas Day. Weekly practice. Salary, £10 per annum. Testimonials to Organist, 20, Bishop's Road, W.

ASSISTANT ORGANIST WANTED, at a Church near Victoria Station, in return for practice on at three-manual organ. Must be a good player. E. Y., Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires RE-ENGAGEMENT. Used to choir of 40. Daily services preferred. H. H., Mr. Martin, 18, Albert Buildings, Bath.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, holding good certificate from Royal Academy (Berlin), desires APPOINTMENT where there is a good opening for Teaching. Apply, 163, Upper Fore Street, Edmonton, N.

A GENTLEMAN desires post of ORGANIST
 (or Deputy) in a Nonconformist Church in Kent or Surrey. Address, T., Hewson and Sons, Borough Green, Wrotham, Kent.

TO CLERGYMEN.—A Gentleman, many years a principal Singer in a Cathedral Choir, and with much experience in Training Choirs, offers his services in either capacity to a Choir in London, or immediate suburbs. Address, Cantor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER desires RE-ENGAGEMENT (Out-door). South Coast preferred. Had town and provincial experience. Testimonials. X.Y.Z., Azile Villa, Devonshire Place, Exeter.

WANTED, SITUATION as TUNER, by a
 Young Man (21). Indoor preferred. Six years factory and outdoor experience. F, 8, Lordship Villa, Stoke Newington, N.

WANTED, SITUATION by a First-class TUNER and REPAIRER of Pianos, Harmoniums, and American Organs. Factory experience; seven years in previous situation. Married; steady. M. E., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE ART OF SINGING

BY MR. BACH.

THE PRINCIPLES OF SINGING.

A Practical Guide for Vocalists and Teachers, with numerous Vocal Exercises, by ALBERT B. BACH, Author of "On Musical Education and Vocal Culture." Crown 8vo, 6s.

SATURDAY REVIEW.

"The work merits the highest praise that can be given, and we can heartily recommend it as a safe and practical guide to the attainment of the art of singing."

MORNING POST.

"A work whose value is unquestionable. It would be quite possible to write at length in praise of the work, especially of the excellent musical examples, and to commend its excellence in detail; but the principles are set forward so clearly and agreeably, that it is not necessary to do more than heartily recommend all who are interested in the subject to buy the book and master its contents for themselves."

ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE.

"To the student of music the book should be invaluable."

SCOTSMAN.

"The production of one who is at the same time an experienced teacher and an enthusiastic and accomplished artist. It deserves the attention of every student of singing."

LIVERPOOL COURIER.

"A reliable guide alike to teachers and vocalists, even the most experienced of whom may derive valuable hints and helps from the volume."

WILLIAM BLACKWOOD and Sons, Edinburgh and London.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (Broadwood) desires one or two days a week. In or near London preferred. Address, G. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CERTIFICATED TUNER from Brinsmead and Sons'. Fifteen years' experience. Would be glad of one or two days a week Pianoforte Tuning. Tuner, Rose Villa, Birdhurst Road, Wandsworth.

SITUATION REQUIRED.—MUSIC and PIANO-
 FORTE SALESMAN. Ten years' experience in large houses. Good Pianist. Thorough knowledge of Catalogues. M. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC TRADE.—Young Man (28) wants SITU-
 ATION as ASSISTANT or MANAGER. Good knowledge of the trade. First rate pianist and sight reader. Could undertake slight repairs. Bookkeeper. F. T., 3, Cross Street, Leamington.

TRAVELLER WANTED, for Country, to sell Sheet
 Music. One who knows the trade. Apply, Marriott and Co., 295, Oxford Street, W.

A MONK, Organ Builder, Organ Works and Showrooms, 550, Holloway Road, London, N. Organs built to any specification and dimensions. Organs guaranteed to be constructed on the most improved principles and of the best materials and workmanship. Organs in Stock, or built for hire, or on easy terms. Tuners sent to all parts of the kingdom. Estimates and Price Lists free.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL AMERICAN
 ORGAN. 21 stops and swell; pedals, 30 notes; 15 sets of reeds, octave, manual, and pedal couplers; foot and side blowers. In carved and panelled walnut case, with ornamental gilt pipe top, and stool. Guaranteed in perfect order. Cost £275. For SALE, a bargain. Can be seen and tried at Mr. Stagg's, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

FINE VIOLA, with Bow and Case, by GUADAG-NINI, for SALE. Price £25. Apply to John Morant, Esq., Brokenhurst Park, Hants.

A VERY fine COPPERPLATE, 13 inches by 9 inches, of HERR FRANZ LISZT, when young, engraved by E. Heidehoff, in perfect condition, for SALE. Apply to Mr. B. Müller, Twickenham.

NOW READY.—The new March, VOX POPULI, sent post free, 2s. net. F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster Row, and S. LEVY and Co., 13, Queen Street, Holborn.

Just published.

FAIR DAFFODILS. Part-song, by J. T. FIELD.
 Price 2d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARTICLED PUPIL REQUIRED. Exceptional opportunity for a Youth. Very low terms. Apply, Mus. Bac. F., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

LONDON SCHOOL OF COMPOSITION, 26, Harvist Road, Tollington Road, N. Instruction in all branches. Preparation for Examinations. Address, Secretary.

LITERARY SUBJECTS. Mus. Bac. Degree. Correspondence and Private LESSONS by successful candidate. Oxoniensis, 27, Clyde Road, Croydon.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual new Tubular Pneumatic Organ, 13 stops, blown by Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR. FOUR E. B. Blennerhasset's Organ Studio, 14, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Manufacturer of THE PERFECT HYDRAULIC ENGINE for supplying wind to Organs of any size to the smallest Harmoniums. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective. Particulars and estimates as above free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c.; blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on fine three-manual Organ, S.E. district. £2 2s. per course (twelve weeks). Blowing 4d. an hour. Brownlow Baker, 53, Junction Road, N., and 48, Trinity Square, S.E.

TO MUSICAL COMPOSERS.—An experienced Verse Writer offers to write appropriate WORDS for SONGS on any suitable subject. Specimens forwarded, if requested. Address, Words, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

MUSIC legibly TRANPOSED at 6d. per page. Manuscripts copied. Professional, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. PECK, 35, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Academy House, 295, Oxford Street, W. MUSIC PUBLISHERS and General MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Composers' VOLUMES Revised, Engraved, and Published in the best style and at lowest charges, and afterwards offered for sale. Estimates free. Approved MSS. purchased. Private Rooms, with use of Pianos for Professors' teaching use, or for practice. Lessons given by highly qualified Professors on Pianoforte, Violin, Flute, Banjo, Guitar, and all instruments; Singing, Harmony, &c. PIANOFORTES by all Makers for Sale (cash or three years system). VIOLINS (old and new). Strings, &c. Value not to be excelled. For terms, lists, &c., apply, 295, Oxford Street, W.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 25, Warwick St., Regent St., London, undertakes Revising and Publishing all Musical Works, in the best manner, on lowest terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogue on application. Parcels of Music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS. London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MUSIC ENGRAVING.—Authors' works Engraved and Printed in the best style on the shortest notice. Estimates and terms post-free. Akerman and Attwood, 7, Upper John Street, Golden Square, W.

WANTED TO HIRE, 60 Copies of Sullivan's ON SHORE AND SEA. Terms and particulars to E. Dunkerton, Cathedral, Lincoln.

WANTED, a good PIANOFORTE TUNER, one who can repair Harmoniums and American Organs preferred. Address, with references, enclosing photo, and stating salary expected. Cramer, Wood and Co., Dublin.

TUNER WANTED, in Midlands. First-class Piano, Harmonium, &c. Permanent and liberal Engagement for steady, suitable man. State experience, age, &c. M. W., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER WANTED, for country. Permanent engagement. Forward testimonials and photo. Address, Piano, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO MANAGERS.—The Proprietor of a large MUSIC and PIANOFORTE BUSINESS is desirous of arranging, with a view to future Partnership, for the services of a first-class Man as responsible MANAGER. It will be necessary that he shall already have filled a similar position. A good Salary will be offered, and an interest granted in the Business at once. Apply to H. and S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT WANTED, Lady or Gentleman, in West of England. Thoroughly efficient in Sheet Music Department. Enclose stamped envelope with C.D.V. State age and salary. Address, Messrs. Jackson, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO PARENTS and GUARDIANS.—WANTED, a smart gentlemanly YOUTH, about 16, in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE at the West End. He must play Violin (or Flute) and Piano well. He will be taught Pianoforte Tuning, and the general routine of the Musical Instrument Trade. Board and small salary to commence with. Premium required. R. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PARTIAL EMPLOYMENT WANTED, by an experienced and skilful Repairer of Pianofortes and Harmoniums. Town or country. D., 60, Wornington Road, North Kensington, W.

FIRST-CLASS Outdoor TUNER (26) desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in Town or Suburbs. Can do ordinary Repairs. Nearly two years' good reference from present employer. Apply, C. T. S., 65, King Street, Regent Street, W.

EMPLOYMENT WANTED, as PIANO REPAIRER, REGULATOR, and HARMONIUM MAKER. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

DEALER'S SON (16) requires experience in REPAIRS, REGULATING, &c., of PIANOS, &c. State terms. Dealer, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

GENTLEMAN (24), Organist, Pianist, and fair Violinist, would be pleased to hear of a SITUATION as SALESMAN or MANAGER in a PIANOFORTE and MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Four years in present situation. Address, Non plus ultra, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SITUATION REQUIRED, in MUSIC SALOON, by experienced Lady Assistant. Apply to Pianiste, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as ASSISTANT. Town and Country experience. Good references. Thorough knowledge of Catalogues. E. A., 100, Upper Kent Street, Leicester.

WANTED, to place a Young Lady in a MUSIC SHOP, to learn the Business. Good Reader and Pianist. Would give time. Address, X. Y. Z., 1, High St., Lymington, Hants.

AN Old-established PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, in the West Central District, to be SOLD. Capital required, about £1,000. Present proprietor giving up business in consequence of ill health. Apply to Routh and Co., 14, Southampton Street, Bloomsbury.

SHOP to LET. No 5, The Parade, Croydon. Suitable for Music and Instruments. Splendid position. Apply, 94, Cheapside.

ORGAN MUSIC for SALE. Cheap. List sent. A. Thistlewood, 5, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

NEW ORGAN, PIANO, and VIOLIN MUSIC, at one-fourth marked price. Organist leaving for America. Address, Clio Musicus, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CURE OF DEAFNESS.

NOISES in the EARS.—Rev. E. J. SILVERTON invites members of the musical profession who may be suffering Deafness or other Aural Troubles to send for his work on the subject, 300th Thousand, post-free for 6d., with letter of advice if case be stated. Free consultations daily, from 11 to 4; Saturday, 11 to 1. Address, Rev. E. J. Silvertown, Imperial Buildings, Ludgate Circus, E.C.

"Invaluable aids to the voice."—Rev. Idrisyn Jones.
VOICE, VOICE.—Instant clearness, full volume of tone and power by using JAMES'S "SINGER'S FRIEND" LOZENGES. Valuable hints on voice with each box. Stamps, 7d. and 1s. 2d., of W. James, Chemist, Highgate Road, London, N.W., and through Chemists everywhere.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions. Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

Musical Property.—May Sale.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON beg to announce that their next MONTHLY SALE of MUSICAL PROPERTY will take place at their House, 47, Leicester Square, W.C., on TUESDAY, May 25. Property for insertion, or particulars of same, should reach us by the 15th.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.—IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and CO. (established 100 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every Instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guineas, 17 guineas, 20 guineas, &c.; Organs, 5 guineas, 11 guineas, 15 guineas, &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE. Eleven Stops; Couplers. Front, 8ft.; side, 5ft.; height, 11ft. Good Tone; powerful. Builder, Holdich, London. Immediate application (as the Church Restoration work begins on the 8th inst.) to Rev. — Bowen, Liangattock Rectory, Crickhowell.

ORGAN for SALE, built on the Tubular Pneumatic principle, with A. Hunter and Son's Patent Tubular Pneumatic Coupling Chamber. Compass, CC to C, sixty-one notes. Great Organ, eight stops; Swell Organ, eight stops; Pedal Organ, three stops; eight Couplers; Composition Pedals, &c. To be seen at A. Hunter and Son's Organ Factory, 65A, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

NEW ORGAN for SALE.—6 Stops (CC to F), open diapason, metal; gamba, metal; dulciana, metal; lieblich gedacht, wood and metal; principal, metal; piccolo, wood, all in general swell except open diapason; octave and half of pedals. Price £90. Also, a Second-hand Organ with 7 stops (CC to F). Price £20. Apply to Messrs. Nicholson and Co., Organ Builders, Worcester.

ORGAN for SALE, in South Ossett Church, near Wakefield, Yorks. Eleven stops in Great Organ, six in Swell Organ, one sixteen-feet open Pedal Stop, and two Couplers. Built by Foster and Andrews, of Hull. To be sold cheap to make room for a larger instrument. Apply to Rev. J. H. Ward, Vicar.

CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE.—A first-class instrument, with 2 manuals, 8 stops and couplers, independent bourdon pedals. Handsome mahogany case. Price 80 guineas. Apply, T. R. Willis, 29, Minorities, E.C.

CC ORGAN for HIRE, on very low terms; or SALE, very cheap. Quite an orchestral instrument. 3 manuals, pedals, 31 stops, 4 compositions. A bargain. Apply, G. J., 23, Brunswick Street, Poplar, E.

ORGAN PEDALS (Concave and Radiated) and Organ for Attaching to Pianoforte, complete. Price £6. Organ Stool, 10s. extra. M. F., 17, Trinity Square, Brixton, S.W.

ORGANISTS and Others.—OAK PEDALS, by GERN, on principles recommended by College of Organists, with attachment to Piano; also stool. Price £8. Inspection invited. Apply, Mr. G. Tombs, 46, Prince's Road, Notting Hill, between 5.30 and 7 p.m.

PEDALIER for SALE. £10. Upright Model. Organist, 10, Queen's Road, Notting Hill, London, W.

PEDAL PIANOFORTE for SALE.—Full compass, radiated and concave pedal board, organ action by HUNTER. Stool included. Price, £18. A.B.C., 34, Larkhall Rise, S.W.

METAL PIPE MAKING PLANT WANTED, at once. Apply, Organ Builder, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

THE CLARABELLA AMERICAN ORGANS, U.S.A.—NEW STYLES, containing Patents and effective combinations.

The lowest priced organs in the market. Ask dealers for Catalogues, or send to the Wholesale Manager for Europe, CLARABELLA ORGAN COMPANY, CHELTENHAM, ENG.

CENTRAL ORGAN WORKS, Manchester, S.W.—W. E. RICHARDSON, Builder to her Majesty, —ORGANS for Church, Practice, or School, from £35. Several New and Second-hand Organs on Sale.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists post free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

JAMES CONACHER and SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,

BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minorities, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minorities, London.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. Moore's, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholtefeld, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

VIOLIN AND BOW

MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,

GEORGE WITHERS & CO.

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF

MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, PARIS, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,

ARTISTIC HOUSE,

PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MAKSIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c. Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

Catalogues and testimonials post-free on application.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Finest Italian, three firsts, post-free as sample, for thirteen stamps.—Alphonse Cary, Newbury.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent post free for 13 stamps. PRENZEL'S PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS have been awarded a GOLD MEDAL at the INVENTIONS EXHIBITION, 1885, and the SOLE GOLD MEDAL, SOCIETY OF ARTS, 1885, for VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, and BOW MAKING.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS (the Experts to the Historic Music Loan Collection, Inventions Exhibition, 1885) give opinions as to the make and value of Violins for a moderate fee. Old Violins, Violas, and Violoncellos bought or sold on commission. Particulars on application. 72, Wardour Street, London. Established 1745.

VIOLIN by DUKE, 1763. Price £35. R. Lamb, The College, Tullamore, Ireland.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 13. COMPOSITIONS BY WOLLENHAUPT.

" 14. COMPOSITIONS BY WOLLENHAUPT.

" 15. COMPOSITIONS BY WOLLENHAUPT.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

OR IN ONE VOLUME, CLOTH, GILT, FOUR SHILLINGS.

Lists of Contents, Gratis and Post-free.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Regent Hall, London, ASSOCIATION

FOR THE

ENCOURAGEMENT OF ARTISTIC EXCELLENCE
BY PROVING AND ATTESTING
THOROUGHNESS OF WORKMANSHIP
IN THE DESIGN AND MANUFACTURE OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

THIS Institution has been established primarily in the interests of the Musical Public, and of Musical Students especially, who are not able to judge for themselves of the quality and suitability of the instruments purchased by them, and to whom the independent verdict of the competent examiners engaged by this Association cannot fail to be of value.

The pecuniary loss to the purchaser of a faulty instrument is considerable, but still more deplorable are the results, from an artistic standpoint, when it is considered how much the effect of performance and the technical progress of the musical student depend upon the character of the instrument employed. Many a pupil has been hindered, disheartened, and his chances of proficiency ruined, by the mere fact of his being condemned to practise upon an instrument, which, however presentable in appearance, has been lacking in almost every essential requirement.

It is true that the names of several firms are justly regarded as strong guarantees of the excellence of the instruments manufactured by them, but apart from these there are many thousands of instruments sold in this country every year which do not possess the moral guarantee of an historic name, while the best firms have been known to complain that their names are sometimes pirated or colourably imitated and affixed to inferior instruments in a manner calculated to deceive the public.

A great majority of Musical Instrument Makers, however, are comparatively unknown to the public at large; and in this, as in most other manufactures, there are good, bad, and indifferent makers. All skilled and conscientious workers, whether known or unknown, cannot but unite in approving and supporting the policy of an Institution whose object is to discriminate between good work and bad, and to obtain for the good work that recognition which is its due independently of the assistance of a well-known name; and, on the other hand, those houses fortunate enough to possess the confidence of the public will have no reason to fear the approval of examiners justly renowned in the musical profession.

Although there are few purchasers who would object to a slightly increased sum for an instrument thus specially tested and certified, the cost of examination will not be such as to make any material difference in the price of a really good instrument.

Purchasers, therefore, who make it an indispensable condition of their purchase that the instrument shall be certified by a Regent Hall Certificate and marked with the Hall Stamp, both bearing corresponding registering numbers, are advised that they need have no difficulty in obtaining what they want, and in the event of any such difficulty are strongly advised to abstain from buying or hiring until they have communicated with the Secretary of the Hall, who will be glad to afford them every possible assistance.

It is a vital condition of the reputation and utility of an Institution of this kind that it shall be entirely unconnected, directly or indirectly, with any manufacturing or trading interest. To this end (notwithstanding that the personal and professional reputation of the staff is such as to lift them far above any suspicion of partiality) there is a stringent prohibitive clause to this effect in the Deed of Constitution, the slightest infringement of which involves immediate severance from the Hall.

The Instruments principally provided for by the examinational system of the hall are Grand and Cottage Pianofortes, Organs, and other important Keyboard Instruments. Other instruments may be examined by special arrangement. The points on which the judgment of the Examiners will mainly rest are: 1. Soundness of workmanship; 2. Quality of tone; 3. (In the case of Keyboard Instruments) touch. Due credit will also be given for—4. Artistic design; 5. Original improvements.

The List of Examiners and regulations for the conduct of Examinations may be had, together with particulars of honours to be obtained for special excellence, of the Hon. Secretary of Regent Hall, at the Temporary Office, 44, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, London.

REGENT HALL, LONDON.

PIANOFORTE TUNERS' CERTIFICATES.

Examinations will be periodically held in London, at times to be previously announced in the Musical Press, with a view to testing and certifying the qualifications of professional Pianoforte Tuners.

The Examination will comprise—

1. Practical tests in Tuning.
2. Questions on Temperament.
3. Questions on Pianoforte Construction.

The Examinations are open to Candidates of either sex. Every successful Candidate will receive a Regent Hall Certificate (R.H.C.) being a Certificate of Qualification to Practice. The Examination Fee, Two Guineas, will be inclusive of Certificate granted to successful Candidates.

Candidates' names and fees to be sent to the undersigned,
CHARLES PETERS,
44, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, W. Hon. Sec.

See AINSWORTH'S
NEW PATENT
FOR Organ Practice
AT HOME.

FIRST PATENTEE
AND THE
LARGEST MANUFACTURER
OF Pedal Attachments
IN THE WORLD.

The true "Perfection" of Ainsworth's Pedal Attachments has achieved for them an unparalleled success. They are now used by the most cultured Organists and Musicians all over the world; and the hundreds of Testimonials that have poured in from professional gentlemen of the highest rank prove conclusively their GREAT SUPERIORITY.

AINSWORTH'S NEW PATENT.

You will GAIN much valuable information by a perusal of showing his New Patent Independent, Modifying, Adjustable, Combination Lever Action, which is EASILY attached to ANY Pianoforte, and you are kindly requested to apply for it.

AINSWORTH'S NEW LIST,

tone.

The Tone of Pedals can be instantly modified by the performer from p to ff, and vice versa (when the pedal exactly the same), by the mere movement of a Stop or by two Modifying Foot Pedals arranged with the Organ Pedals. Soft staccato and legato passages are rendered with the utmost accuracy, an important feature only attainable by Ainsworth's New Patent.

PRICES FROM 4 TO 16 GUINEAS.

Trade and Professional Terms liberal.

Kindly write for "New List."

POSTAL ADDRESS—

JOHN AINSWORTH, F.R.S.,

MENDELSSOHN HOUSE,

BRINSCALL, CHORLEY, ENGLAND.

Authorised Telegraphic Address,
"Brinscall, Chorley."

PERFECTLY UNIQUE SEE NEW LIST.

BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES

ARE SIMPLY INVALUABLE TO SPEAKERS AND SINGERS.

MRS. SCOTT SIDONS writes:—

"I think very highly of your Lozenges after a thorough test."

MISS JESSIE JONES, R.A.M., writes:—

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the excellent effect produced by your Lozenges upon the throat and voice."

MRS. MUNDELLA writes:—

"Please send another 2s. 9d. tin of your Lozenges, which I have already found so useful."

MR. FARLEY SINKINS, Exeter Cathedral,

writes:—

"They restore the voice when suffering from a cold far better than any Lozenges I know, and I have tried a large assortment."

MR. HENRY CROSS, R.A.M., writes:—

"In your Lozenges I find a valuable remedy and friend. I can safely say that they are the best aid for the voice I have ever tried."

MR. SWIFT, Peterborough Cathedral, writes:—

"I think them excellent for the voice and throat. . . . They will command a great sale."

F. NEWCOME, Esq., M.D., writes:—

"It affords me much pleasure to bear medical testimony to the efficacy of your Lozenges in cases of relaxed throat, chronic bronchitis, &c. . . . Invaluable to speakers and singers. . . . They contain no narcotic."

For coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, huskiness, tickling sensation, relaxed sore and dry throat, bronchial irritation, croup, &c., they have no equal.

Sold only in tins 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Free by post for 14 or 33 stamps. Wholesale, W. Sutton and Co., Bow Churchyard, London, and all Patent Medicine Houses.

PREPARED ONLY BY

J. A. BASKER, F.C.S.,

PHARMACEUTICAL CHEMIST & ANALYST, BRIDGWATER, ENGLAND.

ANTHEMS for ASCENSIONTIDE.

Awake up, my glory ...	M. Wise	3d.
Christ became obedient unto death ...	Dr. J. F. Bridge	14d.
God is gone up ...	Croft	4d.
Grant, we beseech Thee ...	H. L. Smart	14d.
If He then be risen ...	J. Barby	3d.
King all glorious ...	J. Barnby	6d.
Leave us not, neither forsake us ...	J. Stainer	14d.
Lift up your heads ...	I. L. Hopkins	14d.
O clap your hands ...	J. Stainer	14d.
O clap your hands ...	T. T. Trimmell	3d.
O God, the King of glory ...	H. L. Smart	14d.
O how amiable ...	J. Barby	3d.
O Lord our Governor ...	H. Gadsby	3d.
O Lord our Governor ...	Marcello	14d.
O risen Lord ...	J. Barby	14d.
Rejoice in the Lord ...	J. Baptiste Galkin	14d.
Rejoice in the Lord ...	Sir George Elvey	14d.
The earth is the Lord's ...	T. T. Trimmell	14d.
The Lord is King ...	H. Gadsby	6d.

WHITSUNTIDE.

As pants the hart ...	Spohr	14d.
Come, Holy Ghost ...	T. Attwood	14d.
Come, Holy Ghost ...	J. L. Hatton	3d.
Come, Holy Ghost ...	Sir George Elvey	4d.
God came from Teman ...	C. Steggall	4d.
God is a Spirit ...	W. S. Bennett	6d.
Grieve not the Holy Spirit ...	J. Stainer	14d.
My Spirit, come, O come (Ad Spiritum Sanctum) ...	G. C. Martin	14d.
I was in the Spirit ...	Dr. Blow	14d.
If ye love Me ...	C. S. Heap	14d.
If ye love Me ...	W. H. Monk	14d.
If ye love Me ...	Tallis	14d.
If ye love Me ...	Sir R. P. Stewart	14d.
It shall come to pass ...	G. Garrett	3d.
Let not your heart be troubled ...	H. G. Trembath	3d.
O Holy Ghost, into our minds ...	G. A. Macfarren	14d.
Oh! for a closer walk with God ...	Myles B. Foster	14d.

TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man ...	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory ...	Dr. Boyce	14d.
Grant, O Lord ...	Mozart	14d.
Holy, holy, holy ...	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents ...	Sir F. Osuley	14d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings ...	Spohr	14d.
I am Alpha and Omega ...	J. Stainer	14d.
I beheld, and lo! ...	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great ...	Sir F. Osuley	14d.
In humble faith ...	G. Garrett	14d.
In Jewry is God known ...	J. Clarke-Whitfield	14d.
In sweet consent ...	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord ...	J. Stainer	3d.
I will magnify ...	J. Shaw	3d.
I will sing of Thy power ...	A. Sullivan	3d.
I will sing unto the Lord ...	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee ...	J. V. Roberts	3d.
O Father blest ...	J. Barby	3d.
O taste and see ...	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see ...	A. Sullivan	3d.
O taste and see ...	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless ...	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd ...	G. A. Macfarren	14d.
The Lord is my Shepherd ...	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion ...	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God ...	Sir H. Oakley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD

CANTATA FOR WHITSUNTIDE

COMPOSED BY

J. S. BACH.

The English adaptation by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE.

I WILL NOT LEAVE YOU COMFORTLESS

By WILLIAM JOHNSON.

Full, easy, and effective. Price Threepence.

The Orchestra, March 27, 1886, says:—"An intelligent and musically setting of the well-known verse from the Gospel of St. John, which we can unhesitatingly recommend; it is as suitable for highly-trained chorists as it is for those containing singers of ordinary capabilities."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS for ASCENSION and WHITSUNTIDE.

"Lift up your heads," 2nd Ed. "Sing we merrily," 4th Ed. "If ye love me," 4th Ed. "O send out Thy light."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free from the Composer, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

THE FIRST SIX MONTHS AT THE ORGAN

By J. T. STONE.

"THE FIRST SIX MONTHS AT THE ORGAN," a complete Course of Instructions for the Instrument, expressly written, composed, and arranged to form an Introduction to the Art of Organ-Playing, by J. T. STONE. Price 7s. 6d.

Contents:—General Description of an Organ—Different kinds of Pipes and Stops—The Pitch of the Stops—The Names of the Stops—The Art of Registering—Combination of Stops—Couplers and Combination Pedals—Manner of Playing the Organ—Preparatory Exercises—Exercises for the Practice of Changing the Fingers on the same Key without Repeating the Sound—Six Preludes—Twelve Chorales in Four Parts—Andante in G (Beethoven)—Andante in F (Mendelssohn)—Agnus Dei, Seventh Mass (Mozart)—Selig sind die todteten "Die letzten dinge" (Spohr)—Andante con Moto in F (Mendelssohn)—Larghetto in F (Mozart)—Fugue in E flat (J. T. Stone)—On the Use of the Pedals—Pedal Exercises—Pedal Scales—Miscellaneous Pedal Exercises—Exercise for Promoting the Independent Use of the Left Hand and Foot—Scale Exercises for the Pedals in Combination with the Hands—Different Ways of Playing Hymn Tunes and Chorales—Allegro Moderato in C (Adolph Hesse)—Andante in A (Haydn)—Sanctus Dominus, Twelfth Mass (Mozart)—The Great Jehovah "Joshua" (Handel)—Fugue in F (J. T. Stone).

"The First Six Months at the Organ" is engraved in the first style, on large plates, oblong folio size, and printed on a thick super-fine paper which has been made expressly for the purpose. The present work has been written and composed at the request of the Publishers, and is intended to precede the author's celebrated work, "The Classical Organist."

London: S. J. BREWER and Co., 38, Poultry, Cheapside; and 23, Bishopsgate Street Within.

THE CLASSICAL ORGANIST

By J. T. STONE.

"THE CLASSICAL ORGANIST," a Selection of Celebrated Compositions from the Works of Handel, Mozart, Beethoven, &c., arranged from the Orchestral Scores for the Organ, with Pedal Obligation, by J. T. STONE. In four vols., oblong folio (each containing 193 pages), £1 1s. each, or in seventy-two numbers, 1s. 6d. each net.

This work is engraved in the first style on large plates (oblong folio size), and printed on a thick super-fine paper, which has been made expressly for the purpose. The publishers confidently state that they have spared no expense in rendering the present work for the organ truly worthy of the "king of instruments."

Messrs. S. J. Brewer and Co. have much pleasure in stating that selections from "The Classical Organist" were in constant use, and repeatedly performed by various eminent organists at the Organ Recitals given by them at the International Inventions Exhibition, South Kensington, during the year 1885.

A Specimen Copy and Thematic List of Contents of Vols. 1, 2, 3, and 4 will be forwarded gratis and post-free on application to the publishers.

London: S. J. BREWER and Co., 38, Poultry, Cheapside; and 23, Bishopsgate Street Within.

Now ready.

THE LONDON CHANT BOOK

EDITED BY

HARVEY LÖHR and HOWARD B. HUMPHREY.

Containing nearly 600 Chants, single and double, set to the Psalms for the Month, Special days, and Canticles.

In paper covers and cloth back, price 4s. net.

Bound in whole cloth, price 5s. net.

Kyries, Ancient and Modern,

EDITED BY

WILLIS F. A. LAMBERT, M.A.

(Clerk in Orders and Director of the Choir of St. James's, Piccadilly).

Prices: Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s.

The above may be ordered through any Music-seller.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

TWELVE SONGS

WITH ENGLISH AND GERMAN WORDS

COMPOSED BY

SIR W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT.

Op. 23. No. 1. Musing on the Roaring Ocean.	Op. 35. No. 7. Indian Love.
2. May Dew.	8. Winter's Gone.
3. Forgive-me-not.	9. Dawn, Gentle Flower.
4. To Chloe (in Sickness).	10. Castle Gordon.
5. The Past.	11. As Lonesome through the Woods.
6. Gentle Zephyr.	12. Sing, Maiden, Sing.

PRICE ONE SHILLING;

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

Also separately, folio, price 1s. 6d. each net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

No.					s. d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1 0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0 6
3.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0 4
4.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper cover	0 3
5.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth	4 0
6.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5 0
7.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth	3 0
8.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4 0
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	1 6
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2 0
11.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2 6
12.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3 0
13.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type. Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10 6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.
A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.
Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.
TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No. 9.	The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.	s. d.
1.	Limp cloth	4 0
2.	Cloth boards	5 0
3.	Small edition	3 0
4.	Tonic Sol-fa	3 0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems,

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use ... 1 3
(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN;
And all Booksellers and Musiciansellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYER. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and
G. DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ.
8vo. London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS
for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices.
Second Series. Female and Male Voices.
These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes
as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 200
Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian
Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C ... 9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A ... 6d.
Cantate and Deus miseretur in G ... 8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100) ... 1d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Fifth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover;
3s., cloth lettered.

ANGELICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart.,
&c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Keating-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH,
pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants,
Single and Double, together with Responses to the Commandments.
Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Bene-dictio," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK.

Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by
E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

OUSELEY and MONK'S PSALTER and CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York, 24mo, without Chants, 9d.;
with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1jd. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and PARKER AND CO.

Nineteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57
RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s.,
limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation,
Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS,
and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. JOULE.
Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-
CANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-
CANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION.
Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat,
by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By
JAMES FITZGERALD, Organist, Kidderminster. Price 1s.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW ANTHEM.

O PRAISE GOD IN HIS HOLINESS, by
ALFRED R. GAUL. As sung by the London Church Choirs in St. Paul's Cathedral.

"A remarkably fine example of choral writing."—Daily News.

"A perfect specimen of chorus writing."—Church Times.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

OFFERTORY SENTENCES, complete, 4d.
Arranged in simple form for Parish Choirs, by C. CLAPHAM.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TEN KYRIES, with other Chants, 2d. Te Deum, with five Quadruple Chants, 2d. Arranged to meet the great want of simple melody for Parish Choirs or Congregational Singing, by C. CLAPHAM.
London: PITMAN, Paternoster Row.

Just published.

PARADISE! O PARADISE! Hymn. Set to Music by GEORGE WILKIN, Jun. Price Twopence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED PRICES OF HOUSELEY AND MONK'S POINTED PSALTER.

					s.	d.
4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score	4	0
12mo Edition. Vocal parts	Each	1 6
32mo Edition. Words only	0	9
Ditto.	Ditto,	with Proper Psalms	1	0

This pointing of the Psalter is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

CHURCH MUSIC

BY
DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE "	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in F. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
Te Deum, in E. Octavo	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate, in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in A	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	9d.
If we believe. Easter Anthem	4d.
O, how amiable. Soprano Solo and Chorus	4d.
Out of the deep. 13th Psalm	1s.

PART-SONGS.

The Rhine Maiden. Four Voices	3d.
Spring "	3d.
Beware "	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

Anthem or Whitsuntide—"If ye love me"	3d.
Te Deum in E. Chant Form	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E. Chant Form	3d.
Harvest or Festival Hymn Tune	1d.
Anthem—"I will magnify Thee." Four Voices	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net.
STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

VESPER MUSIC, No. 5, now ready. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by W. HAYNES, Organist, Priory Church, Malvern. These Settings have been sung at several Choral Festivals. No. 1, 2d.; Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 3d. each.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY, by G. H. SWIFT (Organist, Parish Church, Hungerford, Berks), EVENING SERVICE in E. Price 4d.

SING PRAISES UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. Price 3d.
SHOW US THY MERCY. Anthem. Price 6d.
O SING UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. 3rd edition. Price 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Chorale Book for England;

A complete Hymn-Book for Public and Private Worship, in accordance with the Services and Festivals of the Church of England. The Hymns from the "Lyra Germanica" and other sources, translated by CATHERINE WINKWORTH; the Tunes from the sacred music of the Lutheran, Latin, and other Churches, for four voices, with Historical Notes, &c., &c. Compiled and edited by WILLIAM STERNDALE BENNETT and OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT. Cloth, 7s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Eighth Edition, revised issue. Price 7s.

PARR'S PSALMODY: 402 Tunes, 301 Chants, with Responses; and above 400 Memoirs of Composers, giving historical and bibliographical information nowhere else to be found.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

TE DEUM AND JUBILATE DEO

SET TO MUSIC IN E MAJOR

BY

JOSEPH MOSENTHAL,
Organist and Choirmaster of Calvary Church, New York.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price Fourpence.

THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

Including Kyrie, Gloria Tibi, Gratias, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, Gloria in Excelsis, and Antiphon

Set to Music in the Key of F by

GEORGE KETT.

Merbecke's Credo (Barby's Setting in the Key of F) is to be used with this Service.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PLAIN SETTING

OF THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

INCLUDING

BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI, FOR GENERAL USE

By E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. Doc.

Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Sovereign of Fifty Years.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE HYMN.—W. C.
writes: "Excellent; an inspiration." MUSICIAN writes: "If popular as it deserves, you ought to be knighted." Mus. Doc. writes: "Words and music very nice." Four Stamps. Beautifully printed. Address, Dr. Fowle, Ryde, Isle of Wight.

VOCAL SCORE. TWENTY-THIRD THOUSAND.

THE HOLY CITY

A SACRED CANTATA

BY

ALFRED R. GAUL.

"To show the great popularity of Mr. Gaul's Cantata, 'The Holy City,' it may be mentioned that the rendering at Salliey Mission Hall, on Friday last, was the forthiest in Birmingham and its immediate environs since its production."—Birmingham Daily Mail.

"The work is an honour to English Art, and has elevated its composer into a place of distinction amongst native musicians."—Queen.

"A good sound musical work is this 'Holy City.' I have no hesitation in saying that it creditably represents English art, and does honour not only to the skill but to the judgment and taste of Mr. Gaul."—Daily Telegraph.

"The reception was favourable in the extreme, and the Cantata must henceforth be classed among the successes which the Birmingham Musical Festivals have brought to light."—Standard.

"The 'Holy City' is evidently the work of a thoughtful as well as a clever composer, and should make its mark among thoroughly English productions of a sacred character."—Musical Times.

"A most interesting, tuneful, and scholarly work."—Manchester Courier.

"This fine work will considerably enhance Mr. Gaul's reputation as a musician."—Liverpool Daily Courier.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s. 6d.; ditto, paper boards, 3s.; ditto, scarlet cloth, 4s.; Voice parts, for the use of Choral Societies, each 1s. A Selection of Soprano and Contralto Movements for School Use, 2s. 3d. Band Parts on Loan. Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 1s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VOCAL SCORE. NINTH THOUSAND.

RUTH

A SACRED CANTATA

Words by EDWARD OXFORD

Music by ALFRED R. GAUL.

"Ruth" is a work of sterling power; its musical form is that of perfect tunefulness combined with simplicity and strength. There is nothing involved about it, nor the least straining after unattainable effects. The composer has cradled his theme in a thoroughly sympathetic manner, and has produced a work which is worthy of the subject. . . . One of the sweetest numbers in the Cantata is Ruth's solo, 'Entreat me not to leave thee,' which is instinct with pathetic expression. . . . Boaz's solo, 'Go not from hence, my daughter,' is another effective number. . . . A Choral, 'Nightfall,' is an exquisitely beautiful conception; and the intermezzo, 'Daybreak,' and the jubilant Wedding Chorus which follows, are full of spirit and vivacity, rushing forward with a joyous bound that carries the audience completely away. An enthusiastic encore was given to the intermezzo and chorus."—Bradford Observer.

"That the idyllic story of Ruth is one admirably adapted for artistic illustration is unquestionable, and poets, painters, and musicians have over and over again made it a subject for the exercise of their talents, and we have no hesitation in saying that in its poetical and musical treatment by Mr. Oxford and our townsman, it has been invested with increased interest. . . . Pieces such as Mr. Gaul's Opus 34 are much wanted, and we believe that when the 'Ruth' Cantata is heard in our Town Hall it will be at once accepted as a valuable addition to our stock of music suitable for performance by fairly advanced and advancing societies."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

"Bright, tuneful, fresh, and musically—this work will be a great favourite, and will add to Mr. Gaul's reputation. The second part will be liked better than the first. It opens in the harvest-field, and here the real idyll begins, and with it the charm and grace and freshness of Mr. Gaul's inspiration. The maidens' chorus, bright as the morning it greets, and the men's robust and vigorous reply, well introduced the fresh and melodious joy-breathing music of Ruth, the chastened yet hopeful address of Naomi, and the hearty generous welcome of Boaz.

The work closes with a short but spirited chorus, 'Rejoice, for blessings round us fall,' which will bear comparison with anything Mr. Gaul has written. An effective fugal passage carefully worked out, but not overdone, is inserted between strains of joyful acclamation of considerable freshness and vigour."—Birmingham Weekly Dart.

"Ruth" has been set to music by several composers; none, however, has become so worthily popular as the Cantata under notice. Although somewhat simple in parts, it contains some charming music, and is highly characteristic of the story it so vividly illustrates."—South Wales Express.

"Full of flowing melody."—Salisbury Times.

PERFORMED IN THE TOWN HALL, BIRMINGHAM, ON SEVEN OCCASIONS.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s. The Chorus (only) in Vocal Score, for Musical Societies, paper cover, 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 6d. Band Parts on loan.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO

WELL. Fourth Edition. Price 1s.

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. Price 1s. 4th Ed.

LITTLE DIFFICULTIES IN PLAYING EXPLAINED. 1s.

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A CHOIR. Price 1s.

HOW TO TUNE YOUR OWN PIANO. Price 1s.

THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

Specially adapted for Musical Students.—2nd Edition, royal 8vo, 28s.

ON THE SENSATIONS OF TONE AS A PHYSIOLOGICAL BASIS FOR THE THEORY OF MUSIC.

By HERMANN L. F. HELMHOLTZ, M.D.

Foreign Member of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, Professor of Physics in the University of Berlin.

Second English Edition, translated, thoroughly revised, and corrected, rendered conformable to the Fourth (and last) German Edition of 1877; with numerous additional Notes and a new additional Appendix, bringing down information to 1885, and specially adapted to the use of Musical Students. By ALEXANDER J. ELLIS, B.A., F.R.S., F.S.A., &c., formerly Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge; with 68 Figures engraved on Wood, and 42 Passages in Musical Notes.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN and Co.

MUSIC FOR THE NEW CODE.—"THE SINGING-CLASS MANUAL," by the late WILLIAM JACKSON (Masham), is admirably suited for use in the Public Elementary Schools. Price (with Appendix containing eight pieces of music in different keys) 2s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., and all Music-sellers and Booksellers.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN:

Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

COMPOSITIONS BY ROBERT MACHARDY.

WOODLAND WITCH (Operetta). 3s.

"Is melodious, vocal, and musician-like in its treatment throughout."—Musical Times.

FAIRY MOTHER (Cantata for Ladies' Voices). 2s.

Just published.—SANTA FELICE (Pianoforte Sonata). 5s. "Exquisite work."—Evening Telegraph.

PROGRESSIVE PIANOFORTE PLAYING. 5s. net.

"This work is beautifully got up, and ought to command a widely extended sale."—Exhibitors Illustrated Review.

PROGRESSIVE SIGHT-SINGING. 1s.

"Exceedingly clever and valuable work."—Graphic. "Its explanations are clear as a sunbeam."—Oldham Chronicle.

A SONG OF THE TWILIGHT. 4s. Dedicated to Madame Nilsson.

"Exceedingly dramatic and original."—Dundee Advertiser.

UNDER THE BONNET. Song. 4s.

KARLUS' WALTZES. Pianoforte, 4s. Orchestral parts, 1s. 6d.

"Elegant and irresistible. It is a most pleasing dance."—Oldham Chronicle.

LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY (Limited), 54, Great Marlborough Street, London.

COMPOSITIONS FOR THE PIANOFORTE

By HORTON CORBETT.

POITON. Minuet and Trio. 4s. (Augener and Co.)

"Gracefully written, and very excellent in its effects."—Musical Record.

HAIDEI. Serenata. 3s. (E. Ashdown.)

A very graceful and unpretentious piece of pianoforte music, pleasing alike for its form and its treatment."—Musical Record. Post-free of the Composer, 8, Dorville Road, Lee, Kent.

THE CHURCH ORGANIST

A COLLECTION OF PIECES FOR USE DURING DIVINE SERVICE

By CHARLES COLLIN.

Book I. 2s. 6d.

March.		Offertoire.
Communion.		Postlude.
Elevation.		Offertoire.

Book II. 3s.

Offertoire for the Feast of Pentecost.		Communion.
Hymn.		Ditto.
Elevation.		March.
		Postlude.

Book III. 2s. 6d.

Elevation.		Communion.
Postludium.		Elevation.
Offertoire.		March.

Book IV. 2s. 6d.

Offertoire.		Grand Chœur.
Elevation.

Book V. 2s. 6d.

Communion or Offertoire.		Offertoire for Easter-day.
Prelude on the Hymn of St. Joseph.		Offertoire or Communion.

Book VI. 2s. 6d.

Allegretto.		Allegro-Fanfare.
Elevation.

Book VII. 2s. 6d.

March.		Andantino.
Communion.		Grand Chœur.
Andante.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices.

Price 3s. String parts, 12s. Wind parts, 15s.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlvii.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

MRS. SPEAKER;
OR, LADY LEGISLATORS.

A NEW DRAMATIC CANTATA.

Libretto by JAMES WORKMAN; Music composed by A. W. BORST.
Price 3s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR-PART SONGS by S. S. STRATTON.—
"Monarch Winter," words by W. S. PASSMORE, 3d.; "Summer is but fleeting," words by E. OXFORD, 3d.; "Merrily every bosom boundeth," words by THOMAS MOORE, 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee.
By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.

net.

WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) s. d.
The Words written by F. E. Weatherly 2 0

(Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)

KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly 2 0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner. 2 0

ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) 2 0
(Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIN.)

THE ZINGARA 2 0
(Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)

THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford 2 0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq. 2 0

NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq. 2 0

THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford 2 0
(Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)

PIANOFORTE, &c.

ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2d Edition 2 0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook 2 0
MY LADY BARBARA'S GAVOTTE 2 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

THE THREE STARS. 2d Edition 0 2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 7th Edition 0 2

GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 19th Edition 0 2

THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition 0 2

TO THE WOODS. 10th Edition 0 2

HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition 0 2

THE HOUR OF REST. 6th Edition 0 2

DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 8th Edition 0 2

DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 6th Edition 0 2

WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) 0 3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.,
and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

NEW MUSIC, by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.—LITTLE
JACK HORNER. Humorous Glee for S.A.T.B. Sung with the greatest success in London and the provinces. Price 4d. THE ROBIN, Two-Part Song, s.c. Price 2d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALL NATURE NOW IS SMILING. Part-song,
by BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 14d.
"Will please the lovers of social harmony of a refined and musician-like character."—The Orb.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HOW TO PLAY THE FIDDLE.—A really valuable help to learners. By H. W. and G. GRESSWELL. One shilling. Everywhere. FIELD and TIER, The Leadenhall Press, E.C.

MUSIC PUPIL'S REGISTER OF PRACTICE and PROGRESS. By J. CLIFFT WADE. Designed for the use of Teachers, and containing spaces for one Term's marks in every branch of Musical Tuition. Price 6d. each, or 4s. 6d. per doz. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

Parts I. and II.	each	1 0
Complete, paper cover ...	1 6
Ditto, paper boards ...	2 0
Ditto, scarlet cloth ...	3 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S

NEW PART-SONGS FOR S.A.T.B. 8vo.

25. Who is Sylvia?	2nd thousand	3d.
26. O Anglia! land of the brave ...	1st	3d.
27. Where are you roaming, O mistress mine? ...	2nd	3d.

POPULAR PART-SONGS BY WILLIAM J. YOUNG.

I love the merry springtime ...	24th thousand	2d.
Gaily thro' the greenwood ...	48th	2d.
Fairy Revels ...	12th	3d.
Forest Echoes ...	9th	3d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow ...	8th	3d.
England's glory ...	7th	3d.
The coming of spring and Sunny rays ...	3rd	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.
Manchester: HIME and ADDISON; or, COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

By W. W. PEARSON.

The Iron Horse 4d.	Welcome, Young Spring! ... 2d.
The Ironfounders (16th thou. 3d.)	Sweet to Live (22nd thou.) 2d.
The Stormy Petrel 3d.	The Anglers 2d.
The Coral Grove 3d.	The Dream of Home ... 2d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu ... 3d.	Summer and Winter ... 2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal) ... 3d.	Departed Joys 2d.
The Ocean 3d.	There's Beauty in the Deep 14d.
The River 3d.	Soldier, Rest! 1d.
Over the Mountain Side ... 3d.	Woods in Winter 1d.
Soul of Living Music 3d.	Autumn 1d.
The Jäger Chorus 3d.	Sombre Shadows of the Night 1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

Three Children Sliding. (Just published) ...	3d.
Three Doughie Men. (16th thousand) ...	3d.
A Ryghte Merris Geste	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS GLEES, PART-SONGS, &c., by

A. J. CALDICOTT:—
Humpty Dumpty 6d.	Sobbing Quartet 3d.
The House that Jack Built ... 6d.	The Haymakers 4d.
Jack and Jill 6d.	Yule 4d.
Little Jack Horner 6d.	Out on the Waters ... 4d.

Now ready, A FISHY CASE

Children's Operetta, in two acts, with illustrations, price 5s. 6d.
METZLER and Co., Great Marlborough Street, W.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs.
For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS BY H. T. TILTMAN.

HOMEWARD BOUND. 2s. net. Sung by Miss
Hilda Wilson.
DAPHNE. Sung by Mr. Frank Walker. 2s. net.
Both the above published by
Messrs. WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Just published.

A FAREWELL.—Song. The Words written by
Lord TENNYSON; a music composed by EDWARD R. G. W.
ANDREWS. Price 2s. net.

EDITH.—Serenade for the Pianoforte. Composed
by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 1s. 6d. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBUM of Thirteen Classical Pieces for the Violin, with Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium	...	each	2
MEHR, F.—Le Petit Concert. Six pieces for Pianoforte Duet, with Violin. Op. 542. Prices varying from 3s. to	...	4	0
BERNARD, E.—Idylle and Waltz. For Pianoforte. Op. 28...	...	5	0
—Fantasia. For two Pianofortes. Op. 31	...	18	0
BESEKLY, C.—La Capricciosa Mazurka. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 13	...	5	0
PIRD, A.—A Carnival Scene. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 5	...	7	0
BRAHMS, J.—"The Vain Suit." Song for a high, medium, or low voice. With Pianoforte. Op. 84, No. 4	...	4	0
—Four songs, with English and German words. Op. 96. For a high or low voice	...	8	0
—Six songs, with English and German words. Op. 97. For a high or low voice	...	8	0
DREYSCHOCK, F.—Serenade for Pianoforte Duet. Op. 10...	...	2	0
—Waltz from Op. 10. For Pianoforte	...	2	0
ELEWYCK, V. X.—"Ecce Panis." Motet for four voices	...	2	0
FISCHER, C. A.—"Easter." Concerto for the Organ. Op. 25	...	2	0
GOLDEN, A.—Andante Cantabile. For Violin and Harmonium. Op. 15	...	2	0
—Polonaise. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 17	...	4	0
—Tarantelle. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 20	...	4	0
GAUBY, J.—Two Pieces for Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 29	...	4	0
—Melody for Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 30	...	2	0
GOLDEN, A.—"Awake." Song, with Pianoforte and Cello accompaniment	...	4	0
GOUND, CH.—Russian National Hymn. Arranged for Pedal Pianoforte and Orchestra. Full Score and Parts	...	25	0
—The same, for Pedal Piano and Piano, by the Author	...	4	0
—Two Pianofortes	...	4	0
—Pianoforte and Harmonium, by Guilmant	...	3	0
—Pianoforte Solo, by Pigné	...	2	6
GRÉTRY.—New Edition of Complete Works. Série V. "Les M. prices par Ressemblances." Comic Opera. Full Score, net	...	20	0
GRIEG, E.—Sonata. Op. 13. Arranged for Cello and Pianoforte. Organ	...	11	0
GUILLMANT, A.—March-Fantasia. For Orchestra, Harp, and Organ	...	8	0
HANDEL.—Vivandais from Concerto-Grosso for two Pianofortes. By I. Knorr	...	3	0
HAUSMILCH, M.—Twelve Easy Dances. Op. 109:— Full Score...	...	net	2
—For the Pianoforte (without octaves)	...	2	0
HERMAN, R. L.—Six Songs and Ballads. Op. 7. For a high voice, with English and German words	...	each	2
—Six Songs and Ballads. Op. 8. For medium voice, with English and German words. Prices from 2s. to	...	4	0
—Six Songs and Ballads. Op. 9. For a low voice, with English and German words	...	each	2
—Suite for Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 10	...	22	0
—"At Midnight." Duet for Soprano and Baritone, with English and German words	...	4	0
—"Evening in the Mountains" and "The Festival of Love." Two Glees. Op. 14:— No. 1	...	4	0
—2	...	6	0
—"The Bridge of Sighs." for Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Vocal Score, with Pianoforte	...	19	0
HILDACH, E.—"Mother, Oh, sing me to rest." Op. 1. Song, with English and German words, high and low voice	...	2	0
HOPFER, E.—Quartet, in E flat. For Pianoforte, Violin, Viola, and Cello	...	18	0
—Marches. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 11	...	8	0
HÜLLMANN, K. F.—Prelude. For Violin and Pianoforte	...	2	0
KLIBERT, K.—Overture, "Romeo and Juliet." Op. 5:— Full Score	...	15	0
—Orchestral Parts	...	23	0
—Pianoforte Duet	...	7	0
LAURENT, R. S.—Three Easy Dances. For Pianoforte	...	4	0
LISZT, F.—Tarantelle by C. Cui. Arranged for Pianoforte, net	...	8	0
MAGNUS, F.—Four Preludes. For Violin and Pianoforte. Viols and Viola. Op. 39	...	6	0
MENDELSSOHN.—Minuet, from Op. 110. For Two Pianofortes. By J. Knorr	...	3	0
—"Spring Song." Arranged for Small Orchestra. Score and Parts	...	net	6
MORLE.—"A Russian Love." Song for Contralto	...	2	0
MOZART.—Symphony, No. 41, in C major. For Two Pianofortes (eight hands). By C. Burchard	...	18	0
NÁPRAVNÍK, E.—Valse. For the Orchestra:— Full Score	...	10	0
—Orchestral Parts	...	20	0
—Pianoforte Duet	...	7	0
NÉRUDE.—"Slav's Lullaby." Op. 11. For Violin	...	7	0
—Cello, or Flute and Pianoforte	...	each	0
OGAREW, M.—Romance and Caprice. Op. 51. For Violin and Pianoforte:— No. 1	...	4	0
—2	...	4	0
RAMANN, L.—"Granz Liss als Psalmensinger und die früheren Meister" ... net	...	2	6
REINECKE, C.—"Tanz der Libellen und Käfer." Ballet. Arranged for the Orchestra. Score and Parts	...	net	8
RHEINBERGER, J. S.—Ninth Sonata. For the Organ. Arranged as Pianoforte Duet. Op. 142	...	9	0
RIES, J.—Thirty Studies. For the Violin. Op. 28	...	8	0
ROSENHAIN, J.—Sonata. Op. 74. For Pianoforte	...	7	0
SAINT-SAËNS, C.—"Wedding Cake." Caprice Waltz. For Pianoforte and Strings. Op. 76. Score	...	net	5
—The same. For Two Pianofortes (four hands)	...	4	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY
DR. STAINER.

In issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

NOW READY.

1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - E. PAUER.
2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. CUMMINGS.
3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
4. THE HARMONIUM (2s.) - KING HALL.
5. SINGING (4s.; Paper boards, 5s.) A. RANDEGGER.
6. SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer) (2s.) - A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S.
7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - E. PAUER.
8. HARMONY (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - DR. BRIDGE.
10. FUGUE (2s.) - JAMES HIGGS.
11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - DR. STONE.
12. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT (2s.) DR. BRIDGE.
13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (1s.) - REV. J. TROUTBECK.
14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - REV. T. HELMOLD.
15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. PROUT.
16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - E. PAUER.
17. THE VIOLIN (2s.) - BERTHOLD TOURS.
18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - JOHN CURWEN.
19. LANCASHIRE SOL-FA (1s.) JAMES GREENWOOD.
20. COMPOSITION (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
21. MUSICAL TERMS (1s.) STAINER & BARRETT.
22. THE VIOLONCELLO (2s.) JULES DE SWERT.
23. TWO-PART EXERCISES (396) (1s.) JAMES GREENWOOD.
24. DOUBLE SCALES (1s.) FRANKLIN TAYLOR.
25. MUSICAL EXPRESSION (3s.) MATHIS LUSKY.
26. SOLFEGGI (4s.; paper boards, 5s.; or in 3 parts, 1s. 6d. each) FLORENCE A. MARSHALL.
27. ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT (2s.) DR. BRIDGE.
28. THE CORNET (2s.) - H. BRETT.

(To be continued.)

ANY OF THE ABOVE MAY BE HAD, STRONGLY BOUND IN
BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

CANTATAS FOR FEMALE VOICES.

FRANZ ABT.		s. d.
The Fays' Frolic	2 6
The Water Fairies	2 6
The Silver Cloud	2 6
The Wishing Stone	2 6
Minster Bells	2 6
The Golden City	2 6
Springtime	2 6
Summer	2 6
WILFRED BENDALL.
The Lady of Shalott	2 6
CHARLOTTE SAINTON-DOLBY.
Florimel	2 6
MYLES B. FOSTER.
The Bonnie Fishwives	2 6
H. HOFMANN.
Song of the Norns	1 0
JOHN KINROSS.
Songs in a Vineyard	2 6
HENRY LAHBE.
The Sleeping Beauty	2 6
Tonic Sol-fa edition	0 6
G. A. MACFARREN.
Songs in a Corn-Field (new edition)	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.
A Midsummer Night's Dream	1 0
PERGOLESI.
Stabat Mater	1 0
E. PROUT.
Queen Aimée	2 6
HENRY SMART.
King René's Daughter	2 6
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS OF THE FOREST

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

Poetry by EDWARD OXFORD
MUSIC BY

JOHN KINROSS.

OP. 10.

Price 1s.; or, singly:—

- | | | | |
|------------------------|-----|------------------------|-----|
| 1. Early Morning ... | 3d. | 4. Flow'rets fair ... | 3d. |
| 2. Hunter's Song ... | 3d. | 5. The Waterfall ... | 3d. |
| 3. Merry Songsters ... | 3d. | 6. Shades of Night ... | 3d. |
- London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

FOR LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price One Shilling; or, singly, twopence each.

- | | |
|-------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| No. 1. To Sea! | No. 5. Song should breathe of |
| 2. If hope were but a fairy. | scents and flowers. |
| 3. The willow and its lesson. | 6. March. |
| 4. The Promised Land. | |
- London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART ANTHEMS

FOR

LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

- | | |
|---|----------------------|
| No. 1. The Night is far spent ... | Advent. |
| 2. There were Shepherds ... | Christmas. |
| 3. Is it nothing to you? | Good Friday or Lent. |
| 4. Why seek ye the living among the dead? | Easter. |
| 5. If ye then be risen with Christ ... | Ascensiontide. |
| 6. Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard ... | Whitsuntide. |

Price One Shilling; or, Threepence each.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX SONGS

FOR SOPRANO OR TENOR

COMPOSED BY

HERMANN GOETZ.

OP. 12.

The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Two Books, 2s. each net.

- | | |
|-------------------|----------------------|
| BOOK I. | BOOK II. |
| The Secret. | Gertrude's Song. |
| The Gentle Touch. | The Forsaken Maiden. |
| The Passage Bird. | Soothing. |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

. 520.—Vol. 27.
stere for transmission abroad.

JUNE 1, 1886.

Price 4d.; Post-free, 5d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5s.

AGENCY CLUB, 23, Albemarle St., London, W.
President, HENRY IRVING, Esq.
Vice-Presidents.

Wilson Barrett, Esq.	Edward Lloyd, Esq.
W. T. Best, Esq.	M. Maybrick, Esq., Chairman of
Lionel Brough, Esq.	Committees.
T. P. Chappell, Esq.	D. Pidgeon, Esq., F.G.S., Assoc.
Sir Philip Cunliffe-Owen, K.C.M.G.	Inst. C.E.
C.B., C.I.E.	Briton Rivière, Esq., R.A.
Lieut.-Col. Robert Edis, F.S.A.	Antoine Rubinstein, Esq.
David Ferrier, Esq., M.D., F.R.S.	Clement Scott, Esq.
R. Corney Grain, Esq.	William Shakespeare, Esq.
E. J. Gregory, Esq., A.R.A.	Professor Sir Robert Stewart,
George Grossmith, Esq.	Mus. Doc.
Sir George Grove, D.C.L.	Charles Stewart, Esq.
Joseph Hatton, Esq.	John L. Toole, Esq.
Clements R. Markham, Esq., C.B.,	Philip H. Waterlow, Esq.
F.R.S., F.R.G.S.	Sir Richard E. Webster, Q.C., M.P.

Secretary, CARL A. THIMM, Esq., F.R.G.S.

This club is non-political and proprietary, and was founded for the purpose of affording the usual high-class club accommodation and advantages to gentlemen, without restriction as to profession or business, but such only are eligible to be admitted as are of well-known standing in their several pursuits. Smoking Concerts are made an attractive feature of the Club, which forms a rendezvous for gentlemen connected with art, science, literature, music, and the drama.

Subscriptions—Members living in London	... £6 6 0
Members living in the country	3 3 0
Foreign members	1 2 0

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The following are prospective arrangements for the season:—
Tuesday, June 22 ... Dr. F. J. Sawyer will complete his Lecture on "The Organ and the Classics."

Wednesday, July 13 ... Examination.
Thursday, " 14 ... "
Thursday, " 15 ... " "
Friday, " 16 ... Diploma distribution at 11.
Tuesday, " 27 ... Annual General Meeting.
The Meetings will be held at the Neumeier Hall, Hart Street, W.C.
E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

CHORAL COMPETITION, Crystal Palace, Saturday, June 5, at noon. Adjudicators: Joseph Barnby, Esq., Dr. J. F. Bridge, and Ebenezer Prout, Esq. Eight Choirs will compete. GREAT CHORAL CONCERT, at 4 o'clock, with full Orchestra. Gounod's "Hymn of the Apostles" ("Redemption"), Mendelssohn's 13th Psalm, &c. Soloist, Miss Hilda Wilson. Organist, Mr. A. J. Eyre. Conductor, Mr. L. C. Venables. Programme and particulars of W. H. Bonner, Boleyn Road, Upton, E.

UNIVERSITY OF TRINITY COLLEGE, Toronto. The next EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC will be held in London and Toronto on June 24, 25, and 26. For particulars apply, Rev. E. K. Kendall, M.A., Registrar for England, Southsea.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS." (Reg.)—
Conductor, JOSEPH CANTOR.
Unprecedented success in Manchester.
Unprecedented success in Leeds.
Unprecedented success in Liverpool.
Unprecedented success in Preston.
Unprecedented success in Bolton.

THE "GEMS OF THE OPERAS" CONCERT COMPANY comprises a highly trained Choir of Ladies and Gentlemen, assisted by a select Orchestra:—

Principal Soprano	... Madame LAURA SMART.
Solo Flute	... Mr. V. L. NEEDHAM.
(Of Messrs. Chas. Hallé's and Edw. de Jongh's orchestras.)

Mr. Cantor is now negotiating for dates during the ensuing season. All particulars, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

To Secretaries of Institutions, Concert-givers, &c.

MADAME DE LISLE begs to inform the above that her high-class CONCERT and OPERETTA COMPANY will be at liberty to accept Engagements for next Autumn and Winter. For press opinions, vacant dates, terms, and full particulars, address, Madame de Lisle, 5, North Street, Swindon.

MIDLAND COUNTIES CONCERT AGENCY.—
H. T. BYWATER and CO., Chapel Ash, Wolverhampton.
Artists (Vocal and Instrumental) are requested to send in names and terms for Concerts during the coming season to the above address.

WREXHAM MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

PRIZE OF £5 5s.

IS OFFERED FOR

BEST SETTING OF MUSIC TO WORDS

ENTITLED

HANDS ALL ROUND

(TENNYSON).

Full particulars from the Secretary,

Mr. W. A. BAYLEY, 51, Hope Street, Wrexham.

J. B. CRAMER & CO.,

CONCERT AGENTS,
LIVERPOOL.

MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN begs to announce that he can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements from June next. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, W., or 34, Elgin Road, Maida Vale, W.

OXFORD (New College).—CHORISTERS WANTED.—Trial of BOYS' VOICES, on Friday, July 9. For particulars apply to the Precentor, New College, Oxford.

CHOIRBOYS.—WANTED, Two good LEADING BOYS, for Church in Highbury. Apply to Choirmaster, 16, Leconfield Road, Highbury New Park, N.

WANTED, for the Choir of All Hallows', Barking Church, Great Tower Street, E.C., four good LEADING BOYS. Remuneration, £5 to £8 per annum, according to ability. Apply to the Precentor, at the Church, on Wednesday evenings, at 8 o'clock.

SOLO BOY WANTED immediately, for St. Matthias' Church, Earl's Court. Sunday duty, morning and evening. Rehearsals, Wednesday and Friday evenings. Salary, £20 per annum. Apply to J. Mallitt Jones, Esq., 2, Kempsford Gardens, Earl's Court, S.W.

ALTO WANTED. Good Reader. S.W. District. Salary, £20. Apply, by letter, to Rector, 140, Sloane Street.

ALTOS and BOY TREBLES WANTED, for Holy Trinity Church, Gray's Inn Road. For particulars and Salary, apply to F. Tyler, F.C.O., Eglington Terrace, Woolwich, or at the Schools next the Church, on Wednesday and Friday Evenings, at 8 o'clock.

ALTO (£10 a year).—WANTED, for St. John's, Great Marlborough Street. Apply, Vicar, 53, Guildford Street, W.C.

WANTED, for a Church close to Sydenham Hill, Station (L.C. and D.R.), an ALTO. Sunday Services, 11 and 7, and Practice, Friday, at 8. Must be a thorough good Reader. Salary, £20. Apply, by letter, to Mr. Herbert Green, Wallington, Surrey.

AN ALTO IS WANTED for the Parish Church, Beckenham. Applicants must be Communicant Members of the Church of England. Stipend, £20 per annum. Apply to Mr. G. J. Hall, 1, Church Villas, Beckenham.

LIGHT TENOR and Heavy BASS, St. Thomas's, Regent Street, W. Good practice in Services, Anthems, and Mass Music. Gentlemen who would give assistance and interest themselves in the work, apply, Sundays (after Service), Thursdays (from 5 to 9 p.m.), or write, Choirmaster, as above.

CHRIST CHURCH, Endell Street, Bloomsbury.—Voluntary TENORS and BASSES, capable of taking Verse Parts and Solos, are WANTED for this Surprised Choir. Apply at the Church, on Wednesday evening, from 7 to 9 o'clock.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME EMMA BARLOW (Soprano)

(Leader and Choir Mistress, Platt Chapel, Fallowfield).
For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, Cantatas, Conversations, &c. Address, Forsyth Bros., or Urmoston, Manchester.

"Possesses a soprano voice of surprising range and clearness."—Southport Visitor.

MISS CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano).

(Pupil of the late Madame Saindon-Dolby.)
Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MISS FRASER BRUNNER (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, address, 44, Icknield Street, or Messrs. Rogers and Priestley's, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

MADAME EMILIE CLARK (Soprano).

(Compass G to C.)
For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, &c.
Address, 2, Wellclose Place, Leeds.

MISS ADELINA CLARKE (Soprano)MR. J. C. CLARKE, L.R.A.M. (Baritone and Solo Organist)

Are open to accept Engagements for Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c. Terms on application. Address, 24, Bridge Street, Walsall.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).

Pupil of Madame Saindon-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MISS LOUIE HARPER, R.A.M. (Soprano).

(Pupil of Signor Goldberg.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 182, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

MISS BESSIE HOLT, R.A.M. (Soprano),

3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.
"Miss Holt possesses a sweet and tuneful soprano voice, clear in quality, and of most extensive compass. She has evidently been taught in an excellent school, and her articulation and phrasing are alike worthy of the utmost praise. The trying air, 'With verdure clad,' and the more difficult 'On mighty pens,' were each sung with a perfection of vocalisation which evoked the warmest applause from her audience. Miss Holt is a decided acquisition to the ranks of oratorio singers."—Yorkshire Post, April 7, 1886.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., Crag Cottage, Knaresbro'.
MDME. MARIE SLADE, L.A.M. (Sop. & Pianist).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c., Adelaide Terrace, Ilford, E.

MISS LILY MARSHALL-WARD (Soprano).

MISS NELLIE MARSHALL-WARD (Mezzo-Sop.)
MISS JESSIE MARSHALL-WARD (Contralto).
Address, 80, Addison Street, Nottingham.

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).

Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MADELINE WHARTON (Soprano).MDLLE. JOSÉ D'ARCONVILLE, R.A.M.

(Contralto, of St. James's Hall and London Concerts).
Oratorio, Italian Operatic, and Ballad Concerts. 27, Central Road, Withington, Manchester.

MADAME L'ESTRANGE (Mezzo-Soprano).

Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 18, Eastbourne Terrace, W.

MISS CHADWICK, R.A.M. (Contralto).

58, Henshaw Street, Oldham, Lancashire.

MISS EMILY CLARKE (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Fiori and the late Madame Saindon-Dolby.)
"An artist in every sense of the word, and one of the purest and most charming contraltos that we have heard for some time."—Tunbridge Wells Gazette.

For Concerts, Lessons, &c., 9, Colville Square, Bayswater, W.

MADAME TALBOT LEGG (Contralto).

For Classical, Ballad Concerts, Lessons, &c., address, 94, Lenthall Road, Dalston.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE, L.A.M. (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Schira.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS KATE MILNER (Contralto).

(Of the Guildhall School of Music).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Lessons, &c., 77, Macfarlane Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MISS C. POOCK (Contralto and Pianist).

For Oratorios, Ballads, &c., address, 68, Green Hill, Derby.

MISS JEAN RICHARDS, L.C.M. (Contralto).
For Concerts, Lessons, Oratorios, At Homes, &c. For vacant dates, address, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MISS EDITH THAIRLWALL (Contralto).

(Pupil of Madame Saindon-Dolby.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Teaching, &c., 5, Provost Road, N.W.

MR. CHARLES BLAGBRO' (Principal Tenor).

Parish Church, Leeds.

MR. EDWIN BRYANT (Tenor).

30, Lady Margaret Road, N.W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor)

(Canterbury Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 12, St. Mary Street, Dane John, Canterbury.

MR. S. MASON (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral, Exeter.

MR. HENRY COATES (Baritone).

For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Church Festivals, address, 1, Alpine Terrace, Union Road, Clapham, S.W.

MR. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone).

(Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)
35, Knowle Road, S.W. (Also Concert Party.)

MR. BYRON DEWHURST (Solo Bass Vocalist).

For terms, address to Messrs. Forsyth Brothers, Manchester.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass).

And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

ALBERT REAKES (Bass-Baritone)

(Of the "London Ballad Singers").
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 30, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, or Mr. N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street, W.

MISS KATE NORMAN (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Concerts be addressed to her at 27, Belsize Park Gardens, N.W.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts, be addressed, 28, Grove End Road, London, N.W.; or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MR. HOLBERRY HAGYARD (Tenor), having fulfilled highly successful Engagements during the past Season at Birmingham, Glasgow, Paisley, Plymouth, Dover, Sunderland, Jersey, &c., &c., is now booking Engagements for Season 1886-1887; can accept Engagements at the Seaside during Summer months; or would join Concert Party on Tour during September. For references, terms, &c., address, Trinity College, Cambridge.

MR. F. E. CHOVEAUX (Baritone, Pianist, and Accompanist) has removed to 149, Bridge Road, Battersea.

MR. ROBERT GRICE (Baritone, of St. Paul's Cathedral) is at liberty to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios, Concerts, Dinners, &c. For terms and vacant dates, address, 8, Ringcroft Street, Holloway, N., or to St. Paul's Cathedral, E.C.

MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass), or Popular Vocal and Instrumental Concert Party. For terms and press notices, address, Willow Grove Hall, Leeds.

TO MUSICIANS, COMPOSERS, and others.—A YOUNG MUSICIAN (20) desires EMPLOYMENT, whole or part time, as PRIVATE SECRETARY or AMANUENSIS. Thorough practical knowledge of Orchestral Composition to undertake filling in of Scores. Pianist and Organist (six years' experience). Highest references, personal and musical. Address, Secretary, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO COMPOSERS.—SONG-LYRICS, in various styles, for setting to Music, sent on approval. Lyrics written to MSS. C. B. Foxon House, Caterham Valley.

GROSVENOR CHAPEL, South Audley Street.—A TENOR and BASS are WANTED for the Double Quartet (Surplined). Stipend, Ten Guineas per annum respectively. Services, 11.30 and 7. Sunday; weekly Rehearsals, Thursday, 8 till 9. Apply to Frederick J. Crowest, at the Chapel, on Thursday, from 7 to 8 o'clock.

BRISTOL CATHEDRAL.—A BASS (not Baritone) and a TENOR are needed to assist the Choir. It is requisite that they be thoroughly competent Soloists and well versed in Cathedral music. Salary, with extras, about £75. Testimonials of ability and character must be sent to the Rev. the Precentor on or before June 12.

BASS REQUIRED for Choir at Hampstead. No week-day duties. Stipend, £20 per annum. Address, Organist, 47, Woodsome Road, Highgate.

TO MUSIC PUBLISHERS.—An experienced MUSICIAN and COMPOSER (L.Mus., T.C.L.) is open to an ENGAGEMENT in the Editing Department of a good firm in London. Address, Musicus, 10, Ellington Street, Barnsbury, N.

MISS F. LOCKWOOD, Harpist to the Carl Rosa Opera Company. MISS C. LOCKWOOD (Medalist, R.A.M.), for Pianoforte Lessons. 6, Frederick Place, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.

MISS CLARA TITTERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Goldolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

CHORAL SOCIETIES and CONCERT-GIVERS supplied on the shortest notice with VOCALISTS, CHOIRS, ORCHESTRAS, &c., by the English and American Bureau, 45, Leicester Square, W.C. Manager, Mr. E. A. Williams. Office hours, 12.30 to 3 o'clock, except Saturdays.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The School is open for instruction from May 1st to May 31st. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macirone. F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

GERMANY.—Miss SERCOMBE, L.L.A., late Assistant Mistress at the Norwich High School, continues to receive a limited number of Pupils. Special arrangements made for Ladies wishing to study Music at the CONSERVATORIUM. Address, Danneckerstrasse, STUTTGART.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON., (1885), and T.C.D. (1884). MUS. BAC., CANTAB. (1885); MUS. BAC., T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., OXON.; Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (first in order of merit), 1st Mus. Bac., Oxon. (1886), L.R.A.M. (1886); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1885), N.S.P.M. (Professional and every other Section, 1885); Toronto (five in the 1st Class, 1885), F.C.O., A.C.O., &c. More than 140 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by DR. ALLISON'S Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885 and 1886. Theory, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

PIANO, HARMONY, and COUNTERPOINT.—A Lady, A.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS, personally or by correspondence. Address, Miss Champion, 7, Weymouth Street, Portland Place, W.

CORRESPONDENCE LESSONS.—Literary subjects, Mus. Bac. degree (Oxford and Cambridge) by successful Candidate. Oxoniensis, 27, Clyde Road, Croydon.

MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS.—Tuition by Post. Pass guaranteed within a few months. Terms, £1 12s. 6d. per Quarter. Address, Examiner, Harvey Cottage, Laleham Road, Staines, Middlesex.

ORGANIST of English Church on the Continent desires MUSICAL WORK during the Summer months in or near London. Would deputise. H. G. W., 15, Lenham Road, Lee, S.E.

ARTICLED PUPIL WANTED, by Mr. W. Haynes, Organist of the Priory Church, Malvern, for the past 35 years. There is daily service (choral) Sundays, Festivals also twice a week. Mr. Haynes's pupils have obtained good appointments and highest certificates in College of Organists, Trinity College, &c. His last articled pupil has just obtained the scholarship (value £100 a year) at Keble College, Oxford.

A RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL is required by the ORGANIST of Ware Parish Church. One able to play a plain service preferred. Fine three-manual Organ, Choral Services, &c. Terms moderate. Address, Mr. J. L. Gregory, F.C.O., Ware.

ARTICLED PUPIL REQUIRED. Excellent opening for a Youth. Very low terms. Apply, Mus. Bac. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE ORGANIST of Grantham Parish Church requires an ARTICLED PUPIL. One who can play a simple service preferred. Apply, Middlemore House, Grantham.

BOARD and RESIDENCE.—Address, F.C.O., Organist, Christ Church, East Greenwich; Lynwood, Ulundi Road, Blackheath, S.E. Organ practice by arrangement.

GOOD MUSIC TEACHING CONNECTION for SALE. Thirteen miles from London. Suit lady. Low premium. R., Mr. Walton, Stationer, Ball's Pond Road, N.

THE WORKS OF HANDEL, 38 Volumes, in Full Score (German Handel Society's Edition), for SALE. Cheap; never been used. For list and particulars, apply, Organist, Whitchurch, Salop.

£1 WORTH OF MUSIC for 1s. 6d. Songs, Pieces, best Composers, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Kuhe, Balfe, Sullivan, and others. Post free. Thistlewood, 5, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS and ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHOIRSTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS and CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Successful results at Coll. of Organists' Examinations, 1885. Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

MR. ARTHUR J. GREENISH, Mus. Bac. Cantab., F.C.O., A.R.A.M., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., taught personally or by correspondence. Candidates prepared through post for Musical Examinations. 23, Maitland Park Road, Haverstock Hill, N.W.

MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Address, Market Place, South Shields.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street, Mayfair, W.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. E. BURRITT LANE, L.Mus., T.C.L. (Tallis Gold Medalist, 1880), begs to announce his REMOVAL to 16, Bouviers Road, Stoke Newington, N. Tuition personally or by post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.

TUITION, by CORRESPONDENCE, for the Musical Examinations held by Trinity College, London, the College of Organists, Preceptors, and the Universities. Single Subjects taught. Full particulars from James Jennings and Co., Deptford, London.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT: THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.
SESSION 1885-6.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

The HALF-TERM BEGINS JUNE 15, when new Students can be received for a complete course of musical training, or for a single study.

MUSICAL EXHIBITIONS.

An Examination will be held at the College during the present Term for each of the following Exhibitions:—

The College Violin, Viola, Violoncello, and Double-Bass Exhibitions, the Benedict Pianoforte, and the Sims Reeves Vocal Exhibitions. Candidates must be British subjects by birth. The successful Candidates will receive the value of the Exhibitions in the form of free instruction in the subjects of them. The Examination will comprise the performance of one or more compositions, reading at sight, and tried voce questions. The fee for examination is five shillings, and the Exhibitions are tenable for one year.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS.

The Higher Examinations for Diplomas of Licentiate and Associate in Music and Certificates of Associate-Pianist, Associate-Vocalist, Organ-Associate, &c., and in Harmony, Counterpoint, Form, and Instrumentation, Choir-Training, and general musical knowledge, are held in January and July. Last day of entry, June 19.

In connection with these Examinations the "Gabriel" Prize of Five Guineas is annually awarded.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE.

The Examinations in Musical Knowledge take place in December and June, and are open to persons of either sex.

There are two National Prizes of Five pounds, one in each division, senior and junior, awarded annually in July.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SOLO SINGING, INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC, &c.

Arrangements are being made for holding Examinations in Vocal and Instrumental Music at the various centres.

Prospectuses, Forms of Application, Regulations, Lists of Centres, and all particulars can be obtained, post-free, by addressing the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By Order of the Academical Board.

REGENT HALL, LONDON.

[Established by Deed of Constitution (1886), for the Promotion of Artistic Excellence in the Design and Manufacture of Musical Instruments, and the Proficiency of Instrumental Tuners and skilled Musical Mechanisms.]

I. PIANOFORTE & OTHER KEYBOARD INSTRUMENTS.

The Governors of Regent Hall are now prepared to conduct examinations of the quality of tone, touch, and workmanship of keyboard instruments, and to affix their hall mark to approved instruments.

II. EXAMINATION OF PIANOFORTE TUNERS.

The Governors of Regent Hall, London, have made arrangements for holding examinations of pianoforte tuners, with a view to testing and certifying their professional efficiency.

The first examination will shortly be held.

The Regulations for either of the above Examinations, with lists of Examiners and other information, may be had of the undersigned,

CHARLES PETERS, Hon. Sec. to the Governors.

44, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, W.

ALBUMS OF GERMAN SONG

SELECTED, AND THE WORDS TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH,

BY

FRANCIS HUEFFER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

TWENTY-SEVEN SONGS

BY

JOHANNES BRAHMS.

A Troth.
Love and Spring (1).
Love and Spring (2).
Far over the field.
Amongst strangers.
West-wind blowing.
Spring.
My loved one has left me.
The reason why.
A Symbol.
Nightingales.
Faithful love.
Alone she stood by the window.
A Memory.

The swallow's flying West.
Alone.
Return.
The wounded youth.
Could I but once forget.
So secretly.
Serenade.
Longing.
The Kiss.
At Parting.
Parted.
The Smith.
To an Æolian Harp.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The "OTTO" Gas Engine

IS ADMIRABLY SUITABLE

FOR

DRIVING ORGANS.

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.	St. Thomas's (Oldham).
Westminster Abbey.	St. Andrew's (Southport).
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).	Holy Trinity
St. Mary's "	Alnwick (Parish Church).
Lichfield "	Congregational Church (Blackburn).
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).	St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
Salisbury Cathedral.	Parish Church (Folkestone).
St. Peter's (Eaton Sq., London).	Eton College, and others.
St. Mark's (Bradford).	Coombe Down Church.
Harrogate Baptist Church.	Thirsk Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

A SERIES OF

COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN

BY

LEFÉBURE-WÉLY.

	s.	d.
1. Choristers' March ...	3	0
2. Marche aux Flambeaux ...	2	0
3. Roman March ...	2	0
4. Grand Processional March ...	3	0
5. Funeral March in C minor ...	3	0
6. O Salutaris Hostia (Transcription) ...	2	0
7. Cantabile in A ...	2	0
8. Chœur de Voix Humaines (Andante in F) ...	2	0
9. Andante in B flat ...	2	0
10. Elevation in B flat ...	2	0
11. Elevation in E ...	2	0
12. Celebrated Capriccio in F (Transcription) ...	3	0

EDITED AND ARRANGED BY

ALFRED WHITTINGHAM.

LONDON: EDWIN ASHDOWN, HANOVER SQUARE.

WILL BE READY JUNE 8.

Written and composed expressly for the
Carl Rosa Opera Company

THE TROUBADOUR

A LYRICAL DRAMA,

IN 4 ACTS,

BY

FRANCIS HUEFFER,

Author of "Colomba."

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

(Op. 33.)

Price, paper cover, 5s.; scarlet cloth, 7s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

AN ODE

WRITTEN FOR THE OPENING OF THE

Colonial & Indian Exhibition, 1886

BY

ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON

SET TO MUSIC

FOR SOLO, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

BY

ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

JUNE 1, 1886.

"THE TROUBADOUR."

THIS is an Opera in four acts; libretto by Francis Hueffer; music by A. C. Mackenzie; to be produced at Drury Lane Theatre, on the 8th inst. We will tell the story of each act.

Act I. The Vintage. Guillem de Cabestanh, a noted Troubadour, arrives at the Court of Count Raimon, an illustrious noble of Provence. His appearance times with the holding of a vintage feast, and the poet-singer is therefore hailed with special cordiality. Guillem is not unknown to at least one of his entertainers. He and the Countess Margarida have met before, and they cherish a mutual passion. His coming so agitates Margarida that the Count observes her confusion, and speaks of it to Count Robert, a nobleman betrothed to his wife's sister, Azalais. Robert treats the matter lightly, without removing his friend's suspicions. Margarida, on her part, is troubled with a presentiment of approaching ill, but receives comfort from her sister and confidante. The vintage revel goes merrily on, and a Masque is performed, towards the close of which a youth representing St. Medardus, patron of the vineyards, offers Margarida grapes of a sort yielding wine called "Sanh del Trobador" ("Blood of the Poet"). The Countess starts at the ill-omened name. Presently, Guillem takes his lute and sings a song which is a veiled address to his host's wife. Much moved, Margarida crowns the Troubadour with a vine-wreath. Guillem kneels before her, and Azalais quickly steps to her side, "so that it appears doubtful for whom the homage is intended. The 'two Counts' look on." "Behold a mystery!" exclaims Robert; "Which I shall fathom," significantly replies Raimon. The train thus laid for trouble, the curtain falls.

Act II. The Hunt. Guillem and Margarida are together in the forest, and the Troubadour reads to his companion the appropriate story of Launcelot and Guinevere. To them enters Azalais, dressed for the chase. She playfully rallies her sister with warnings against the "poet's wile." Count Raimon overhears her closing words, and, entering, asks an explanation. Azalais lightly puts him off, and the hunt begins, but the two men do not join it till the host has requested, and the guest has promised, an interview on the same spot when the chase is done. Presently the Countess returns alone, to recall the circumstances of a loveless, childless marriage, and to contemplate the fate which she feels must attend her passion for Guillem. She associates herself with the hunted deer, exclaiming, when the death shout is heard, "The victim waits your coming." Count Raimon appears to keep his appointment with Guillem, unsuspecting of the fact that Margarida is hidden close at hand. A bowman attends him, and receives instructions so to conceal himself as that, at a given signal, he can send a bolt through Guillem's heart. Guillem enters. The Count demands the name of his innamorata; the Troubadour refuses, and the fatal signal is about to be given when Margarida rushes forth and seizes her husband's hand. Azalais also appears. The plot has failed. But Raimon is equal to the situation, and gaily asks Azalais to decide whether Guillem should or should not answer such a friendly and sympathetic question. Instantly the devoted sister grasps the opportunity, and declares that she herself is the fair and favoured one. Guillem assents, to save Mar- garida; the Countess is astonished and dismayed; the Count remains suspicious. The curtain falls as, with joyous song, the hunting train departs for Liët, Count Robert's castle.

Act III. The Feast. At the Castle of Liët, Guillem waits by night in the garden, under Margarida's balcony. The Countess appears above, soliloquising upon her passion and the treachery that, she thinks, has rewarded it. Guillem, overhearing, makes protest of unabated devotion, and soon Margarida joins him in the garden. A long love scene follows, presently interrupted by the entrance from the Castle of Count Robert and some departing guests. The host catches sight of Margarida's white dress, but is restrained by his friends from spoiling "good sport." Some gallant Troubadour, they hint, is looking for his "pearl" (Margarida=pearl) among the bushes. The resumed love scene is not made happier by this revelation of a passion become notorious. However, it continues till dawn, when the watchful Azalais deems it prudent to call the pair to their sober senses. This she does by means of a song from a window of the Castle. Having come to their senses, the lovers naturally separate. As the morning grows, certain games take place in presence of the noble visitors, and are followed by a scene in which Count Robert, worked on by Count Raimon, assails Guillem, in whom he sees a rival for the love of Azalais. As the two men cross swords, the wily Raimon cries for help against him who would kill the poet. Margarida hears, and rushing between the combatants cries, "You shall not slay him, he is mine!" Tableau.

Act IV. Sanh del Trobador. Margarida, at a window of her apartment, bids farewell to Guillem, who has scaled the balcony. The devoted Azalais keeps watch for both. Margarida is more than ever a prey to foreboding, but her sister utters cheering words. Guillem will return, she urges, from the hunting to which Count Robert, now his friend, has invited him. As the Troubadour's song fades in the distance, Count Raimon enters and invites the ladies to join him at the festal board. Sardonically he drinks to Guillem, and sings a song full of terrible significance, which his hearers do not fail to appreciate. The Count's manner changes on receiving a signal from a huntsman without. Affecting boisterous gaiety, he orders a fresh supply of wine. It is brought, glowing red in a crystal goblet. The Count praises it as choicest "Sanh del Trobador," and invites his wife to partake. She assents; pledges an absent friend, looks steadily in the glass and imagines she sees there an ambush and a victim done to cruel death. Then, protesting freely her love, she drinks. The Count exclaims that the blood of Guillem has passed her lips, uncovers a bier which has been brought in, and shows the Troubadour's dead body. Margarida answers that never shall food nor wine take away the sweetness of the draught. She flings herself from the window into the depths below. Curtain.

Let us now describe Mr. Mackenzie's share of the work, doing this, also, act by act.

Act I. An orchestral introduction (Adagio) precedes the rise of the curtain. It is founded, for the most part, upon three themes—one afterwards used in attendance upon Guillem:—

EX. I.

the remaining two—anticipating phases conspicuous in the terrible final scene. When the curtain rises the people in chorus describe Guillem's appearance and bearing, prominently using a phrase—which may be considered as giving its character to the entire number. The chorus is constructed with a free flow of parts, well sustained animation, and the varied rhythm which belongs to the composer's method. The theme last quoted, by the way, follows Count Raimon's message of welcome to the Troubadour, and may be significant of his cordial reception. Guillem enters, attended by the subject shown in Ex. I.; the Count then addressing him in dignified strains—powerfully contrasting with the agitation that marks the words of courtesy uttered in turn by his wife. An ensemble of welcome follows; all the resources of principals, chorus, and orchestra being brought to bear upon the subject sung by Raimon (Ex. 4). This is an effective example of massive writing. Guillem's answering solo, lightly built, courtly and graceful, presents no point for special remark save the recurrence again and again of a short phrase—which should be noted. As Guillem retires for "repose and comfort," he is accompanied by his theme (Ex. 1), which is also heard in the dialogue of the two Counts. Here the composer happily contrasts Robert's unconcern with Raimon's anxiety. "I opine that they met before this," observes the husband. The friend answers—

Both in this dialogue, and that which follows for Margarida and Azalais, the composer has more nearly approached recitative proper than in his previous work—wisely, because strain upon attention thus becomes gratefully relaxed. Throughout the Masque music Mr. Mackenzie successfully aims at rustic simplicity and an old-fashioned quaintness. Take this vocal passage as an example—

Ex. 7.

There is an engaging waltz in the same antiquated style, carried on into a solo and chorus with excellent effect. Vocal music, it may be added, plays a chief part in the Masque; that of the Peasant who speaks in Ex. 7, and acts as manager of the show, being exceedingly happy. Here is an archaic utterance—

Mention should also be made of a cheery vintage duet with chorus; but, indeed, Mr. Mackenzie has entered so fully into the spirit of the quaint revel that terms like "excellent" and "most appropriate" may be applied to the entire result, in view of which it is easy to forgive a long halt in the development of the plot. Let it be noted, before dismissing this incidental matter, that the Peasant, referring to the wine, "Sanh del Trobadour," utters its name thus—

We shall meet with this phrase again—it occurs, indeed, in the very next solo, when Azalais sings "let him prove withal that the 'Blood of the Poet' runs in his veins." The re-entry of Guillem is attended by the phrase conspicuous in his first solo (Ex. 5), now greatly emphasised and followed by the Troubadour's song, "The sunrays shine," with which the Finale of the act begins. This song takes verse form, the melody being repeated to different words, while the phrases are more regularly constructed and carefully balanced than is sometimes the case in the composer's works. A typical strain, and the one most largely used, runs thus—

As Guillem sings to his lute, the accompaniment is chiefly in arpeggio, and of a light character, but the air lacks nothing of the vigour born of passion. Now and then the chorus break in, with rich effect, but without disturbing the flow of the song, while the entire piece is marked by the free harmonic treatment which belongs to Mr. Mackenzie's method. The act ends with another ensemble, based upon the melody to which Margarida crowns her guest with vine-leaves—

Over all this falls a sinister shadow when, as Count Robert exclaims, "Behold, a mystery!" and Raimon

answers, "Which I shall fathom," the orchestra gives out the "Blood of the Poet" phrase—

Act II. The reading, and brief dialogue between Guillem and Margarida, with which this act begins, are chiefly carried on in a style approximating to recitative, and the main musical interest belongs to the orchestra. Here we have a fluent and interesting melody (Andante tranquillo), with the subjoined as its chief feature—

The playful solo of Azalais, "Sister, what ails thee?" and her answer to Raimon's question, "Who speaks of poet's wile?" we pass to reach the hunting chorus, "To the greenwood we go." In this case the composer permits himself to be conventional, and thoroughly popular—not without excellent reason, since measured accent and definite phrasing come well after the comparative vagueness, in these respects, of the preceding dialogues. The style of the hunting song will be recognised at a glance—

Very different matter is presented in Margarida's soliloquy after the hunt has departed. This takes scena form, with a short recitative, and a Lento and Allegro, answering respectively to cavatina and cabaletta. The Lento is a movement of intense sadness, freely constructed as to its melody, which, however, is in some parts beautiful and expressive, and not devoid of the form which brings back the principal theme. Such a theme as this, let us add, is welcome to come back—

The accompaniment, rich in colour and changeable harmony, adds much to the effect. Passing to the Allegro agitato, we find it ushered in by an orchestral passage—which will reappear, and may be expressive of Margarida's fateful passion. The movement, twice interrupted by incidents of the hunt, is declamatory in character, and of strenuous utterance. One passage cannot be passed over—

What is thy mean-ing, voice? Whither away dost thou lead me, slen - der hand?

because these phrases are used (and an answer given to the question) when Margarida exclaims, after drinking the blood of her lover, "No meat nor earthly drink shall touch these lips," &c. A repetition of the hunting chorus brings us to the scene of the attempted assassination. We hear the Troubadour's representative subject (Ex. 1), as he joins his deadly foe in the glade, and there are several points of thematic (orchestral) interest in the dialogue which ensues. It may be that the orchestra is too busy here; distracting attention from a verbal contest in which every word has importance. At the close of the dialogue, and as Raimon is about to give the death-signal, the orchestra introduces the sinister phrase last quoted. This strikes us as a happy touch, as does the change to courtly gaiety when the ladies intervene and Raimon dissembles. What contrast to murderous intent could be greater than this?—

The same strain serves when, a little later, Azalais makes the sacrifice of truth which, for a time, postpones the dénouement. A trio opens the Finale of the act; Margarida, Azalais, and Guillem giving distinctive utterance, through clever part-writing, to their individual emotions, the number being carried on by the joyous music to which the hunting train prepares for the journey to Castle Liêt. Raimon, dissembling more than ever, sings a rollicking song, anticipating the pleasures to come, and his people take up the strain in a capital and most animated chorus. Mark how lightly it moves—

Ex. 19.

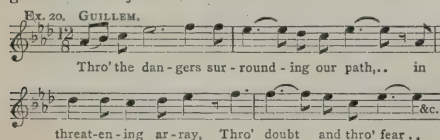

Where the maze of the dance will gladly
- - ly re - ceive us.

After the stage is cleared, a fragment of the hunting chorus brings down the curtain amid gloomy forebodings. The words sung are "Swifter than horses and hounds is death."

Act III. This act begins with the balcony and garden duet of Guillem and Margarida, introduced by an orchestral Prelude (Allegro giovane), intended to suggest the festive proceedings within Count Robert's castle. This is straightforward writing of an obvious and appropriate character. The Countess's mournful soliloquy on the balcony is preceded by the motif of her passion (Ex. 16), and attended by various fragments of themes, significant to those who may remember and recognise them. A like method of reminiscence is pursued in the following dialogue of the lovers. When, for example, Guillem explains Azalais's generous deception, we have the theme of the Tempo di minueto to which her words were sung, and so on. Otherwise, there are no musical features that can be dwelt upon advantageously here. Greater interest arises in the love duet of the now reconciled pair. This begins with an Allegro, having an energetic chief subject—

Ex. 20. GUILLEM.

Thro' the dan-gers sur-round-ing our path... in threat-en-ing ar-ray, Thro' doubt and thro' fear..

and carried on, for the first part, by the voices in alternation, with the composer's studied irregularity of phrase and freedom of rhythmic device. The duet, however, is in customary form. Thus it has episodes—one given out in completeness by the orchestra—

Ex. 21.

and another first stated by the tenor—

Ex. 22. GUILLEM.

We ask not whi-ther, we.. fol-low its po-tent be-hest, We hast-en, we come, after which the leading theme comes back, followed by a strenuous and passionate Coda. The duet is richly accompanied throughout, with all the free play of harmony to be expected from this composer. As Count Robert and his departing guests emerge from the Castle we hear passages from the festal Prelude, while light and cheerful conversation, interspersed with bursts of laughter, has been used by Mr. Mackenzie to relieve the intense earnestness so far characteristic of the act. The duet then resumes with Margarida's complaint that her name is in men's mouths, and Guillem's self-reproach for that his song (in Act I.) had betrayed her. The Countess consoles her lover, and as she does so we hear the theme of the song in charming accompaniment. This episode ended, another love duet begins, in which Night is called upon to hide them from prying eyes. Here the music (Larghetto soave) becomes an expression of extreme tenderness and abandonment to the influences of the situation. To this end the vocal phrases are more regularly constructed, more diatonic in character, and attended by a more natural flow of rich harmonies. An idea of the theme may be gathered from the subjoined—

Ex. 23. GUILLEM.

Night, within the ample folds of thy darkness Hide us and from this, which may be called a second theme—

Ex. 24. MARGARIDA.

From thy bo-som we sprang, To thine arms we re-turn.

When the voices cease the subject of the Troubadour's song, and that shown in Ex. 23 above, follow, in order of mention, with powerful suggestiveness. Morning breaks, and Azalais, who has kept watch over the lovers (a convenient Provençal fashion, it seems), proceeds to warn them in a song—one of those irregular effusions which indicate a local character, and are, at any rate, characteristic. It is in verse form, with a refrain on the words "Ah me! the dawn, it comes too soon." Thus the number begins—

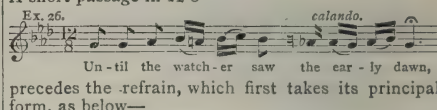

Ex. 25. AZALAIS.

Beneath a hawthorn on the bloom-ing lawn, A la-dy to her side... her friend had drawn,

A short passage in 12-8—

Ex. 26. calando.

Un-til the watch-er saw the ear-ly dawn, precedes the refrain, which first takes its principal form, as below—

Ex. 27. a piacere. a tempo.

Ah... me! the dawn, the dawn, the dawn, it comes too soon, ..

The opera contains no more engaging number than this. When Azalais concludes, the lovers rouse themselves with the theme of the refrain upon their lips, and separate as a very brief trio runs its course. The morning advances; trumpeters summon the people to sports prepared by Count Robert in honour of his guests; the stage fills, and the revels begin. Much light and pleasant music attends the preliminary ceremonies, and the "Jeu de Paume" (a species of tennis) is accompanied by a chorus (tempo di valse) in which is told the story of an old king who had a young wife and a handsome page. The music here is exceedingly quaint and pretty. Take, as favourable examples, the leading orchestral theme—

Ex. 28.

and the opening bars for the voices—

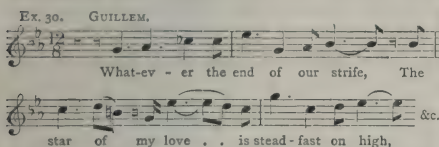

Ex. 29.

To play at ball one ear - ly dawn The Queen came to a gar - den fair, . . Ey - a, Ey - a, Ey - a, Ey - a, &c.

In this attractive manner the chorus runs on to its end, beyond which the orchestral tempo di valse continues as an accompaniment to the dialogue wherein Raimon directs the anger of Robert upon Guillem. When the conversation turns upon the Poet, his theme (Ex. 1) is heard in the orchestra. Presently he himself enters, and is insulted by Count Robert, but before they fight they sing—as do the combatants in “Faust” and “Les Huguenots.” The piece is a trio for Guillem, Raimon, and Robert, opened by the Troubadour alone, thus—

Ex. 30. GUILLEM.

What-ev - er the end of our strife, The star of my love . . is stand-fast on high, &c.

and worked at some length and with considerable elaboration. Many may think that the elaboration is too great for a situation demanding something “short, sharp, and decisive,” but passages of exceptional vigour tend to disarm the criticism. Here is one—

Ex. 31. f.

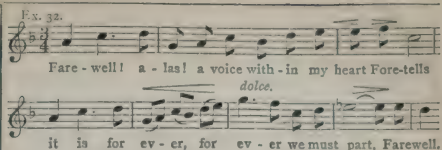

One is - sue is o - pen be - tween . . us, It lies, it lies with the sword.

When the trio ends, the Act hurries to a close with crossed swords and Margarida's fateful declaration, declaimed to the theme (Ex. 17) originally associated with the words “What is thy meaning, voice? Whither away dost thou lead me?”

Act IV. The last Act is introduced by a brief orchestral Prelude, partly founded on the theme (Ex. 16) which we have associated with Margarida's passion. Following this comes a trio for the Countess, her sister, and the Troubadour, having the subjoined as its leading theme—

Ex. 32.

Fare - well! a - las! a voice with - in my heart Fore - tells it is for ev - er, for ev - er we must part, Farewell.

and presenting a contrast between the part of cheerful, hopeful Azalais and those of the desponding lovers. To the motif of her passion Margarida begs that Guillem will let her hear his voice as he goes away. He disappears from the balcony, and the strains of his song in Act I. become fainter and fainter in the distance. Raimon enters to light and flippant music, as becomes the mock geniality in which he indulges. The board is spread, and as the three sit down the orchestra has merry music—

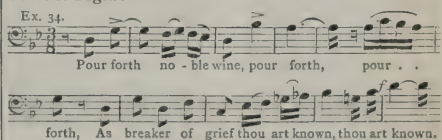

Ex. 33.

Pour forth no - ble wine, pour forth, pour . .
forth, As breaker of grief thou art known, thou art known.

to which the Count rallies the ladies upon their abstraction; sardonically pledges the absent poet, and offers to sing a “posy.” The drinking song which follows is one of the successes of the opera. Thus it begins—

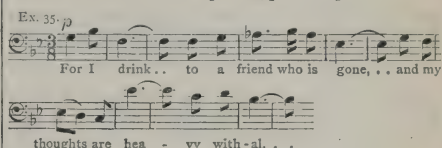

Ex. 34.

Pour forth no - ble wine, pour forth, pour . .
forth, As breaker of grief thou art known, thou art known.

The second verse is an episode, più tranquillo—

Ex. 35. p.

For I drink . . to a friend who is gone, . . and my thoughts are hea - vy with - al . .

but the third brings back the principal melody which now, however, is for some time but one part in a trio, the two others being supplied by the alarmed ladies as they question themselves concerning the sinister significance of Raimon's words. The combination is highly effective—

Ex. 36.

Oh! MARGARIDA, that my spi - rit could find AZALAIS, Oh! that the night, the night were RAIMON.
Pour forth no - ble wine, pour forth . .
rest. Oh! that the &c. pour . . forth, As breaker of grief thou art

When Raimon receives the signal that Guillem has been done to death, he boisterously calls for the better wine, “Sanh del trobador,” and to more light and flippant music (ghastly contrast) the blood-red liquid is brought; while, to make the mockery complete, the theme (Ex. 10) of Guillem's song, "Lo, from the flask it flows" (Act I.), is heard in the orchestra as the Count sings—

Ex. 37. RAIMON.
espress.

p See in the flask it flows Red-der than an-y rose,

Margarida takes the glass, and begins her final scene—

Ex. 38. MARGARIDA.
Andante.

I . . drink . . to an ab-sent friend. . . To a friend most leal . . and true. . .

The short Andante thus opened is followed by a Lento, commencing with a phrase heard in the orchestral Introduction, Ex. 2 (a)—

Ex. 39.
declamato.

I drink, and on the gob-let's ground ap-pears and now largely used in accompaniment. Great intensity, emphasised by all the composer's distinctive art, marks this slow movement; reaching its climax in the last phrase, and greatly contrasting with the soothing music of alarmed Azalais—

Ex. 40.
AZALAIS.

Lis-ten, dear sis-ter, fol-low me, con-ceal, . . conceal What but too loud-ly speaks of your

At the suggestion of concealment, Margarida's passion breaks loose again. Once more the ominous theme (Ex. 39) appears, and with it a melody, Ex. 2 (b), which is its close companion in the orchestral Introduction—

Ex. 41. MARGARIDA.

Drag-ging my love, . . my high-est sa-cred love.

The Andante (Ex. 38) presently resumes, on the words "Farewell to the days that pass," and is followed by the draining of the glass, which Margarida dashes to pieces on the floor. At that moment a curtain is drawn back, and huntsmen, singing their chorus (Ex. 14), bear in a cloak-covered bier. Raimon triumphantly throws back the covering, and we hear the Blood of the Poet motif in this connection—

Ex. 42. RAIMON.

Whose blood to-night in guise of wine serv'd at our feast, followed by the Poet's theme (Ex. 1) in orchestral unison. Margarida's last words are sung to the theme (Ex. 17) through which she asked the question of her lover, "Whither away dost thou lead me?"

Ex. 43. Lento.
MARGARIDA.

No meat nor earth-ly drink . . shall touch these lips, nor take . . from them the sweet-ness which the blood of Guillem there has left. . . .

She flings herself from the window, and the curtain falls on the tragedy.

ANTON BRUCKNER.

READERS of German musical papers will have noticed that during the last few months their columns have teemed with biographical and critical notices of the composer whose name heads this article, and who, on all sides, has been heralded by them as presenting the rare phenomenon of a man who, after the attainment of his sixtieth year, has suddenly burst upon the world with his Seventh Symphony, and wherever it has been performed has been at once recognised as a composer of extraordinary genius and acquisitions. In England the name of Anton Bruckner, which is not to be found in any biographical musical dictionary, either English or Foreign, that we have been able to consult, will probably only be familiar to a few from the fact that on the occasion of the opening of the Royal Albert Hall, in 1871, he was one of a number of foreign organists who, by invitation, repaired to this country with the view of exhibiting their skill upon the newly erected organ of the Royal Albert Hall and that of the Crystal Palace. As a performance of Herr Bruckner's Seventh Symphony, which has created so great a stir of late in musical Germany, is promised at a forthcoming Richter Concert, the name of this composer, if his Symphony meets with the same reception that it has had elsewhere, will be in everyone's mouth. We propose therefore to advance a few particulars of his artistic career, so far as we have been enabled to cull them from German papers which we have at hand, and from other sources.

Anton Bruckner was born on the 4th of September, 1824, at Ansfelden, in Upper Austria. At nine years of age he received his first music lessons from his father, a simple village schoolmaster. But these did not last long, for when he was scarcely twelve years old his father died, leaving his family in extreme poverty. Thanks to the kindness of the Prelate of St. Florian's, a provision was at once made for the boy by admitting him to a choral scholarship in that pious foundation. Here he was systematically instructed in pianoforte and violin playing by one Gruber, a pupil of the famous Schuppanzigh, and in thorough-bass by Bogner. At seventeen, after having gone through a course of instruction in harmony, under Dürnberger, at Linz, he received his first appointment as assistant teacher at a school at Windhag, near Freistadt. But as the salary attached to this only amounted to two florins a month (!), in order to escape starvation he was obliged to eke it out by fiddling dance-music at peasant weddings and other fêtes, at the rate of about sixpence a night. After spending some time here and at Kronsdorf, he returned, in 1845, to St. Florian, as teacher and sub-organist. By this time he had made himself thoroughly familiar with Marburg's "Thorough-bass," and Bach's "Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues," and now set to work to compose on his own account, the immediate result being several Masses, Psalms, and a Requiem.

In 1851 he succeeded to the post of principal organist of St. Florian's, which brought him in an annual stipend of eighty florins, in addition to the thirty-six florins which he still received as teacher. This accession of fortune enabled him to make several visits to Vienna, with the view of making himself known to the Court Bandmasters, Assmeyer and Preyer, but more especially to the celebrated theorist, S. Sechter. To Assmeyer's surprise he worked out a theme which he gave him as a double Fugue. Still more astonishing was the success with which he improvised an Introduction and Fugue, on subsequently competing for the organistship of the Cathedral at Linz—a post which, after this proof of his skill, was readily awarded to him. Of this occasion it is told that the music-teacher Lanz was so overcome that, while Bruckner was playing, he embraced him from behind and called out "Du bist der Tod Aller" ("You kill us all!").

From 1855 to 1861 he continued his studies under Sechter, and after having mastered all the mysteries of triple and quadruple counterpoint, received a certificate of proficiency from the Vienna Conservatory on passing an examination to the extreme satisfaction of the examiners, Sechter, Herbeck, Dessoff, Hellmesberger, and other professors. One would have thought that now, at the age of thirty-seven, he would have tried to turn his compositions to some tangible account; but no! for several years he still continued to increase his technical knowledge by constantly working out the most difficult contrapuntal problems. It was not, therefore, till 1864 that he came forward with his First Symphony, which, with a very inadequate orchestra, was performed for the first time at Linz. In 1867, with a view to his succeeding Sechter as Court Organist, Herbeck appointed him Professor of the Organ, Harmony, and Counterpoint at the Vienna Conservatory, a post which, together with that of Court Organist, he still holds. In 1869 he visited France, where, as a virtuoso of the organ, he secured a series of veritable triumphs, especially at Nancy and Paris. In 1871, as already stated, he came to England on a similar mission. Here it may be recalled that, on one occasion of his improvising at the Crystal Palace, he played in so inspired a manner, and was so carried away by his feelings, that the blowers were unable to supply the necessary amount of wind that he required.

Since Bruckner took up his residence in Vienna his life cannot be said to have been an eventful one. With the duties of Court Organist, and of a professorship at the Conservatory to fulfil, not to mention private pupils, he cannot have had much leisure time on his hands. But that he made the most of what he had, appears from the fact that he has found time to compose no less than seven Symphonies, a String Quartet, and a Te Deum. That, in the face of the absence of much encouragement, he continued to write, because he felt that he had something to say, and must give utterance to it, is evident from the fact that, when he had finished a composition, like Schubert, he put it aside and took no pains to get it either performed or published, but started at once on a fresh one. Still, during his twenty years' residence in Vienna, some of his works have occasionally been brought to a hearing there. His Second Symphony (in C minor) was heard, for the first time, at a Concert which he himself organised for the closing of the Vienna Exhibition of 1873. Herbeck, however, was the first to befriend him, and at his instigation his Symphonies, No. 2, in C minor, and No. 3, in D minor—the latter dedicated to Wagner—were brought to a hearing at Vienna in 1876 and the following year. Thus from time to time he came occasionally before the public and his brother artists of Vienna, but, like the proverbial prophet, who "is not without honour save in his own country," he does not seem to have made his mark there as a composer until quite recently. To insure recognition at home, as a composer, it was necessary, as so often happens, that he should first acquire a reputation abroad. The first step towards this was accorded him by the eminent Leipzig conductor, Arthur Nikisch, who introduced his Seventh Symphony at a Concert given at Leipzig, in aid of the Wagner Memorial Fund, on the 30th of December, 1884. This first step taken, performances of the work followed in quick succession at Munich, Carlsruhe, Cologne, Hamburg, Graz, and lastly at Vienna, where, in the course of the last few months, both his Seventh Symphony and his Te Deum have been brought to a hearing under the direction of Dr. Hans Richter.

Friendly critics have claimed Bruckner as the natural and legitimate outcome of Beethoven and Wagner. Be this as it may, it is certain that he came under the influence of Wagner at an early period of his career, the turning point of which seems to have been reached with the first performance of "Tristan und Isolde" (Munich, 1865), at which he was present. Listening to this stupendous work opened his eyes to the hitherto undreamt-of possibilities in the realms of melody, harmony, technical development, and instrumentation, which Wagner has therein revealed. Undismayed at this, as so many would-be composers have been, and in consequence have given up composing altogether, he, on the contrary, only felt encouraged, and under the conviction that a new world was opened to him set to work with redoubled energy to explore it. The first result of this was his Second Symphony, the composition of which dates from about this period. Having made the personal acquaintance of Wagner on the occasion of the first "Tristan" performance, and feeling himself mysteriously drawn towards the master, on his return to Linz he wrote to Wagner and begged him to let him have an excerpt from "Die Meistersinger" for performance by the Liedertafel which he conducted. Wagner sent him the closing chorus, which was thus brought to a first hearing under Bruckner's direction long before the publication and the performance of the opera in its entirety.

His Second Symphony was soon followed by a third (in D minor). This completed, his greatest desire now was to submit the two to Wagner. Accordingly, after permission had been asked and obtained, he started off for Bayreuth, taking his scores with him. This was in 1873, when Wagner was just putting the finishing touches to his "Ring des Nibelungs." Though over-busy with this and the preparations for its production in 1876, he received Bruckner in a most cordial manner, and, after going through his scores with him, and expressing both pleasure and surprise, accepted the dedication of his Third Symphony. Wagner never forgot him. On meeting him in Vienna, at the railway station, in 1875, and not being able to get near him for the crush, he greeted him from afar by calling out to him at the top of his voice: "Let us hear the Symphony!" Spying him out at a rehearsal of the "Ring," at Bayreuth, in the following year, he exclaimed, in the hearing of many present: "My friend is here, we will perform the Symphony." And only a few months before his death, Wagner encouraged him with the words: "Be assured, dear Bruckner, that I myself will perform all your Symphonies." Though Wagner did not live to fulfil this promise, Bruckner may still be said to be indebted to him to some extent for his friendly protection; for this the Wagner party, doubtless regarding their beloved master's words in the light of a sacred trust, have now extended to his disciple.

As only four of Bruckner's larger works—viz., his Symphonies, Nos. 3 and 7, his Te Deum, and a String Quintet—have as yet been published, it is impossible to speak of his compositions generally, except on hearsay. In preference to this, therefore, we confine ourselves to furnishing a few particulars of those of his works, the scores of which lie before us—viz., the Symphony, No. 7, in E, and the Te Deum. But preparatory to this it may be remarked that in the very early days of the "Richter" Concerts, Hans Richter brought the score of Bruckner's "Wagner" Symphony with him to London, with the view of performing the Scherzo therefrom—an intention which, however, was not realised. An opportunity was then accorded the present writer of cursorily examining the score of this Symphony, but all that at the present date he can recall respecting it is the fact that in outward appearance it was a work of gigantic proportions.

Schumann has remarked in one of his essays that every composer's mode of notation has quite a different aspect upon paper. In another place he has asserted that Berlioz's scores must be heard as well as read, before their effect can be realised even by the most skilful score-reader. Both these remarks are eminently applicable to Bruckner's Symphony in E. A hasty glance at the score is sufficient to prove at once that we are in the presence of a composer who has something important to say, and has his own peculiar mode of expressing himself. But so polyphonic is it in its structure, and so important and independent a part is assigned to the wind instruments, that, without further study than we have been able to give to it, it would be rash to predict how it will come out in performance. In regard to the pre-dominance of the wind instruments, it may, however, be said that in its external aspect it more nearly resembles the score of "Die Meistersinger" than any other which we can call to mind. Of the work generally it may be said that, though it conforms to the usual four-movement symphonic plan, it is laid out on a grand scale. Bruckner requires a large canvas for his picture, a goodly stock of brushes for the delineation of his subjects, both in mass and in detail, and a pallet furnished with the most vivid and brilliant colours. To drop metaphor, it may be said that his themes are of a strikingly bold and impressive character, and that both contrapuntally and orchestrally they are treated with consummate skill and effect. A strong family likeness exists between the first and last movements, a modification of the first subject of the former forming the principal basis of the latter, and thus serving to impart a sense of unity to the entire work. The Scherzo will probably be the most readily accepted of the four movements, but the Adagio is undoubtedly the most important. This was written soon after Wagner's death, avowedly as an Elegy in memory of the great master, and a most elevating and impressive Elegy it certainly is. Overwhelmed with grief at the death of his friend, Bruckner has here interpolated a motive from his Te Deum, which is therein associated with the words: "Non confundar in æternum," and thus comes very appropriately as a prayer both for the deceased master and for his survivors. No less proper and appropriate is the manner in which, whether consciously or unconsciously, Bruckner has here introduced reminiscences of some of Wagner's themes—not by actually borrowing them, but by reproducing the sentiment of some of those with which the hero Siegfried is closely connected. On this account he has been rated by some of his critics for plagiarising Wagner. Against this it may be said, that the would-be composer who obstinately refuses to profit by Wagner's teaching is as much to be condemned as he who slavishly sets to work to copy him. Beethoven did not disdain to learn from Haydn and Mozart; Wagner accomplished the feat of leading the full stream of Beethoven's symphonic music into the dramatic channel; why then should not Bruckner or any other composer take a leaf out of Wagner's book, and reverse the process by infusing the dramatic element and sentiment of Wagner's music and its glowing instrumentation into symphonic work? The world would be the richer; for though there may be some truth in the saying that, like the poet, the composer is "born not made," he is after all but the product of many others, with the addition of something else on his own account.

The orchestration of the Symphony is laid out on an extraordinarily grand scale, three trumpets, with three trombones and bass tuba, being employed in each movement, in addition to the usual complement of strings and wind. The Adagio and Finale are further complemented by three tubas and a contrabass tuba. We have not space to speak in detail of Bruckner's mode of working, but one or two points should not be passed over. His favourite contrapuntal device seems to be that of inverting his themes per moto contrario—a scholastic mode of procedure, which is productive of new results in thematic development, but is not one to be easily followed by the listener. Of drums he seems to have a holy horror, for he hardly ever uses them in rhythmical or melodic passages, but tuning his low F drum down to E (or up to E if an E flat drum be used), almost exclusively confines them to "rolls" in "pedal-points."

The Te Deum, which is laid out for chorus, a quartet of soloists, organ ad libitum, and orchestra, by its greater simplicity and rugged grandeur contrasts strongly with the elaborateness of the Symphony. It might be defined as consisting of six distinct movements or sections, which, without any break in the continuity, are together fused into one organic whole. Essentially a choral work, solos, properly so called, are entirely dispensed with, and the quartet of principals are only employed at rare intervals in short incidental solo and concerted passages. The orchestra too, for the most part, is used purely as one of accompaniment in support of the voices, and seldom claims the eloquence for itself. By maintaining, for the most part, a diatonic tonality in the purely choral portions of the work, by unison singing, by the admission of so-called ecclesiastical progressions, by the use of triads without their thirds, and by keeping the distinction between praise and prayer well in view, Bruckner has produced a work of an eminently religious character, and one for which the epithet "sublime" does not seem too strong. From what we have said, it will be apparent that this setting of the Te Deum is specially adapted for performance on a festival scale, and in such a wide area as that of the Crystal Palace or Royal Albert Hall. We hope, therefore, that it will not be long before the Te Deum, as well as the Symphony, is brought to a hearing in England.

THE FAUST LEGEND, AND ITS MUSICAL TREATMENT BY COMPOSERS

By F. CORDER.

VI.

26. CONCERNING the excellent dramatic version of "Faust," produced by the late Mr. Phelps at Drury Lane, in 1864, we have to remark that the incidental music compares favourably with that of the Lyceum play now running. The Overture was that of Spohr (also played at Mr. Irving's theatre), and amongst the incidental music we remember to have heard the Drinking song, and Church interlude from Spohr's opera, besides large selections from Mendelssohn's "First Walpurgis Night," for the Brocken scene (the appropriateness of which, however, may be questioned); and last, but by no means least, the lovely air of Bishop from Soane's "Faustus," which was converted into an angel's chorus, sung at the death of Marguerite. This simple and touching tune (quoted in our third paper), was caught up and retained by all who heard it, and when we discovered it recently in its original place, it was like meeting a near and dear friend unexpectedly in a distant part of the world.

28. "A Faust Overture." By Richard Wagner.

This work was composed at Paris, in 1839, but was re-written during Wagner's exile at Zurich, in 1855. We seem to gather from the title and the lines from Goethe, prefacing the score, that it is intended less as an Overture to the drama of "Faust" than as a musical portrayal of feeling—that feeling of bitterness and disappointment, such as Faust is described as experiencing, and such as Wagner himself was actually suffering at this period. The lines alluded to are those in the fourth scene, beginning "Der Gott, der mir im Busen wohnt," and may be translated thus:—

The Spirit reigning in this breast,
O'er all my might supreme doth tower;
But though the soul obeys its heat,
O'er outer worlds it has no power.
So doth existence but a burden bring;
Life seems a curse, and death a welcome thing.

From this it naturally follows that the work in question is of a very gloomy and sombre character, so much so indeed as to militate strongly against its popularity. Otherwise it is a clear and readily comprehensible Overture in ordinary form, the subject-matter being, as usual, with Wagner, of undeniable force and dignity, though perhaps deficient in quantity. The first subject, after forming the material for a very weird, slow introduction, appears in the Allegro in this form:—

No. 25.

The melancholy character conveyed by this rise and fall of an octave is very striking, and Wagner of course has been careful to turn it to the best advantage. A still more yearning expression is given by the use—in the second subject—of a pregnant phrase, which the composer afterwards turned to such good account in "Tristan und Isolde"—

No. 26.

The "Faust" Overture has been played several times at the Crystal Palace and the early series of Richter Concerts; but during the last four or five years has been quite laid by. It is certainly a work worthy of its composer, yet it does not show him at his best. But a cry of despair is not a pleasing thing to the public.

29. "A Faust Symphony." Three Character Pictures. By Franz Liszt.

If we were asked to point out Liszt's most thoroughly characteristic and original work, we should certainly select the Faust Symphony. Here are to be seen the composer's peculiar principles of musical construction in their fullest development; here are some of his best ideas and his finest instrumentation; and here also—for those who like to search them out—are all his faults, or what, from the critical standpoint of the present time, appear such. The work is dedicated to Hector Berlioz, and is of absolutely unique design. It consists of three separate portions—movements hardly seems the correct term, as each in itself embraces several different movements—of which the first endeavours to portray the character of Faust by means of certain well-chosen themes worked out on the same plan as that of the composer's other symphonic works and his Sonata for Pianoforte. The second section individualises Margaret in the same manner, but in addition to its own thematic material this piece also treats much of the previous matter, beautifying and idealising it however; in fact, giving us Faust's character as seen by the pure mind of Gretchen. In the third picture the same principle is carried still further. Mephistopheles, the spirit of Negation, like our Nihilists and Socialists, can only destroy and vilify whatever already exists; consequently we have here no new themes at all, only those of the two previous movements distorted and turned to mockery. A tolerably clear notion of the way in which this ingenious idea is carried out may be gathered from an inspection of the following three versions of the Faust motive, as it appears in the three several sections—

No. 27a. Allegro agitato.

No. 27b. Soave, con amore.

As regards absolute beauty of material; the second portion of the work, which depicts Margaret, is far superior to the rest. One place in this illustrates the plucking of the flower by the loving maiden, and a simple reiterated phrase to the rhythm of the words "He loves me—he loves me not"— is repeated till, after a timid hesitation as the last petal is about to be plucked, a sudden and beautiful transition into A flat announces Margaret's exultation at the favourable augury. The effect of this episode is most striking. Owing partly to the excessive length of the work, and partly to its peculiar plan of construction, the last movement is always found tedious in performance. Its leading features are, firstly a most extraordinary fugue on the principal themes of the work, and secondly a concluding part, or coda, which is a setting for tenor solo and male chorus of the Chorus Mysticus, founded on a phrase of the Margaret motive. The composer has supplied an alternative version for use when a chorus is not available, but this deprives the work of its climax, and enfeebles the whole last movement. Liszt's Faust Symphony claims the very highest rank as an Art-work, and what the critic regards as faults are just those points in which Liszt differs from all other composers—namely, the strained and laboured character and lack of homogeneity consequent on the perpetual change of key and rhythm. This conveys the impression that the composer has no settled plan for his work, which is by no means the case. In the time (if it ever arrive) when Liszt's style of composition shall be generally accepted, this work will certainly be regarded as its creator's masterpiece; at present it is decidedly "caviare to the general."

30. "Faust (after Goethe). Musical poem in two parts for Pianoforte." By Joseph Gregoir.

Of this composer we confess to knowing little beyond his name. Of his works, if they at all resemble his "Faust," we certainly desire to know nothing at all. This queer composition, or series of compositions, only deserves notice for its ludicrousness, consisting, as it does, of twelve morceaux, which for pretentiousness and utter feebleness it would be hard to surpass. In justice to the composer we must give the table of contents to show what the work is intended to portray.

No. 1. Night. (Faust meditates. He is buried in gloomy fancies which overpower him, and he summons the infernal powers to his aid. The sound of bells announces the festival of Easter, which the angels celebrate on high.)

No. 2. Promenaders leaving the town. Peasants dancing and singing.

No. 3. Soldiers' chorus.

No. 4. Vision.

No. 5. Margaret's song.

No. 6. Ecstasy!

No. 7. "... He loves me!"

No. 8. Love.

No. 9. Dies iræ. (The wrath of Heaven falls upon thee; the trumpets sound, the tombs are shaken, and the ashes of thy body, reanimated by flames, tremble with terror.)

Part II.

No. 10. The Sabbath. Introduction and Witches' dance.

No. 11. Dance of Spirits. In the midst of their revel Hell yawns, and the demons drag Faust into the abyss, disputing over their prey.

No. 12. Apotheosis.

In Nos. 1, 9, and 11 we cannot discover the least attempt on the part of the composer to carry out his programme, the latter number, for instance, being quite a commonplace galop with quite a conventional ending. It would be too bad to take leave of this work without quoting the editorial preface to the score. Translation would spoil it, so here it is in the original—

"L'œuvre que nous publions aujourd'hui a été exécutée pour la première fois à Anvers le 27 Janvier, 1847.

"Le poème de Goethe a tenté grand nombre de musiciens, depuis Spohr jusqu'à Gounod.

"Avant Gounod, d'autres Compositeurs, Berlioz, Schumann, Liszt, ont fait de la musique sur le même thème.

"La critique jalouse pourrait accuser un jeune auteur au début de sa carrière de s'être lancé sur les traces d'aussi grands noms.

"Heureusement pour M. Joseph Gregoir les dates sont là! à l'époque où il produisit son Faust il ne connaissait absolument rien de la musique de ceux qui avant lui avaient écrit sur la donnée épique de Goethe.

"Comme Berlioz en même temps que lui; comme Liszt et Schumann; comme Gounod après lui M. Joseph Gregoir a été séduit par le sujet dramatique de Faust et il s'est abandonné à ses propres inspirations.

"Sa partition restée inédite, est une des meilleures productions de l'école Belge, et c'est à ce titre que nous la livrons aux juges des amis de l'art."

We willingly acquit Monsieur Gregoir of the charge of following in the steps of either Berlioz, Liszt, or Schumann, or any other composer of merit who ever existed, but we are sorry to hear that his work is "one of the best productions of the Belgian school." It is to be hoped the statement is a mere publisher's puff.

31. "Faust; Musical Portrait for Orchestra." By Anton Rubinstein.

This seems an utterly unknown work, though the score is published, no performance having been given of it in either Germany or England, so far as we can find. It covers somewhat the same ground as Wagner's Overture, being of a restless and gloomy character, and having apparently been penned in a moment of disgust with the world. It is numbered Opus 68, and dedicated to Niels Gade, but is not a very satisfactory production, either from a technical or æsthetic point of view. It commences with a vague and sombre introduction, Molto Adagio, incessant repetitions of the phrase marked (a) in the following quotation forming the groundwork. This leads into the Allegro assai, which is the main portion of the work. The initial subject is as follows—

This is soon followed by a second subject of broader rhythm in B flat—

the harmony, or rather part-writing, of which is by no means irreproachable; and presently comes a Tutti, again in D minor—

We then return to the first subject, which is worked out at great length. Next follow some chords on the wind forming a sort of choral, while the violas persistently reiterate the phrase (a), continuing it against a recitative passage for bassoon which follows. After this the second subject is worked awhile in the keys of F minor and B flat minor. Then the phrase marked (b) in our last quotation appears on the cello, and is repeated for an immense while. Then breaks in a Recitativo Moderato for oboe, followed by the everlasting phrase (a), worked on the violas against an F sharp pedal. The whole of the first subject now reappears in Tutti, there is a pause, and then the vague introduction is repeated, bringing the work to a very pointless conclusion. The absence of comprehensible plan in this work is especially irritating, as we have no clue whatever as to the composer's intentions. It is to be presumed that he has founded his work upon Goethe's poem, but what portion or what particular sentiment he means it to illustrate we fail to discover. We should suggest one of the incomprehensible scenes of the second part. But then he calls it a Musical Portrait. What is there in Faust's character that can be portrayed by a worrying phrase in the violas that won't leave off? We give it up.

Having now reviewed our long list of compositions inspired by the grand old legend, we may say, in conclusion, that no other subject has ever evoked one tithe of the interest among musicians that "Faust" has done. The cause of this no doubt lies in the essentially lyrical genius of Goethe. It is, therefore, all the more curious that the great tragedy has only had one satisfactory set of incidental music written for it—that of Lassen. When the new Beethoven shall arise, he will therefore find at least one subject to hand which has not been thoroughly exhausted, and we look forward with interest to the thirty-third setting of "Faust."

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XVIII.—SCHUBERT (continued from page 264).

ACCORDING to Kreissle, the year 1823 was, in a musical point of view, the most important of Schubert's life. We shall presently see how this statement is supported by facts, and must at once mark a good beginning in the production of the incidental music to "Rosamunde," a play written by Wilhelmine Christine Chezy, a woman whose self-confidence and ambition were far in excess of her talent, and who enjoys the remarkable and fortunately rare distinction of having worked mischief to two such composers as Weber and Schubert. For the one she wrote the feeble book of "Euryanthe," for the other the absurd drama already mentioned. Wilhelmine might easily have been the evil genius of half-a-dozen other musicians. She was always on the alert for chances of using her fatal pen, and spent her time roaming from city to city, impelled by an insatiate desire to figure before the world in a capacity for which Nature had indifferently equipped her. There does not appear to have been much method in her wanderings. For example, she went to Vienna in 1823 by the merest chance. Kreissle says:—"The odd and capricious lady had intended to leave Dresden, her last place of residence, and revisit the North; but, on setting off and feeling her pocket, she missed her Prussian passport; the Austrian one, however, was safe, and Helmina, looking on the incident as a warning of fate, ordered the coachman to go by way of Prague to Vienna." From the Austrian capital the authoress went to Baden, and there, at the instance of a young man named Kupelwieser, she perpetrated "Rosamunde," for which Schubert was to supply music, the whole to be performed in Vienna for the benefit of Fraulein Neumann, an actress of whom Kupelwieser was enamoured. The piece was to be brought out at the Theater an der Wien, a very unsuitable house because frequented by a public having no special taste for such things. "Rosamunde," therefore, stood doubly condemned before trial—condemned alike by its own defects, and by the incompetency of the tribunal. Schubert, nevertheless, put into the work some of his best music, both vocal and instrumental. Who among English amateurs does not know this now? Who has not revelled in the lovely romance, and the entr'actes, so diverse in character, yet so equally bearing the impress of genius? These things, and the companion pieces, are treasures for the sake of which we are almost willing to bless the eccentric Chezy, and accept her as part of the providential machinery which makes for good. When Kreissle wrote his biography of the composer he could only speak from hearsay of some of the music, then lying perdu in a dusty cupboard belonging to a connection of the Schubert family, Dr. Schneider, where it was discovered, in 1867, by George Grove and Arthur Sullivan. The story of the finding has been told by the first-named gentleman (see his Appendix to the English edition of Kreissle) in terms so graphic that we cannot resist quoting it here:—

"It was Thursday afternoon, and we proposed to leave on Saturday for Prague. We made a final call on Dr. Schneider to take leave and repeat our thanks, and also, as I now firmly believe, guided by a special instinct. The doctor was civility itself; he again had recourse to the cupboard, and showed us some treasures which had escaped us before. I again turned the conversation to the 'Rosamunde' music; he believed that he had at one time possessed a copy or sketch of it all. Might I go into the cupboard and look for myself? Certainly, if I had no objection to be smothered in dust. In I went, and after some search, during which my companion kept the doctor engaged in conversation, I found, at the bottom of the cupboard and in its farthest corner, a bundle of music books two feet high, carefully tied round, and black with the undisturbed dust of half a century. It was like the famous scene at the Monastery of Souriani on the Natron lakes, so well described by Mr. Curzon:—"Here is a box," exclaimed the two monks, who were nearly choked with the dust, "we have found a box and a heavy one too!" "A box!" shouted the blind abbot, who was standing in the outer darkness of the oil-cellar; "a box! where is it?" "Bring it out! Bring out the box! Heaven be praised! We have found a treasure! Lift up the box! Pull out the box!" shouted the monks in various tones of voice." We were hardly less vociferous than the monks when we had dragged out the bundle into the light and found that it was actually neither more nor less than what we were in search of. Not Dr. Cureton, when he made his truly romantic discovery of the missing leaves of the Syriac Eusebius, could have been more glad or more grateful than I was at this moment. For there were the part books of the whole of the music in 'Rosamunde,' tied up after the second performance in December, 1823, and probably never disturbed since. Dr. Schneider must have been amused at our excitement; but let us hope that he recollected his own days of rapture; at any rate, he kindly overlooked it, and gave us permission to take away with us and copy what we wanted, and I now felt that my mission to Vienna had not been fruitless."

The Viennese of 1823 could little have dreamed that, forty-four years later, two strangers would come from an "unmusical country" beyond sea, and go into raptures over the discovery of works which they treated with indifference, and allowed to become—as to part at any rate—lost. A critic of the period was, however, good enough to bestow faint praise upon the composer, and say: "Herr Schubert shows originality in his compositions, but, unfortunately, 'bizarrie' also. The young man is in a period of development; we hope that he will come out of it successfully. At present, he is too much applauded; for the future may he never complain of being too much recognised." These sapient remarks could ill have consoled Schubert for the fact that once more his labour was thrown away. The man had written so much, with so little apparent result, that the wonder is he did not throw down the pen in sheer despair. That he worked on and on is the best proof of entire possession by the spirit of his art. Only two representations of "Rosamunde" were given before the Viennese declared the work dull and tiresome. Its withdrawal immediately followed.

Garrulous Wilhelmine naturally had a plausible explanation of so decided a failure. She opined that, as Schubert had quarrelled with Weber (in the manner already stated) the partisans of the composer of "Der Freyschütz" took their revenge by wrecking "Rosamunde." For this charge there appears to be no more ground than for a further statement that a third performance would have reversed the earlier verdict. The authoress, however, did justice to Schubert. In her own inflated style she wrote: "A majestic flow of melody, reflecting and glorifying the poetry by the subtle intricacies of music, captivated the hearts of all who were present. It matters not that certain members of the public who, ever since autumn began, have been hunting stage wolves and leopards on the boards of 'an der Wien' lost their way in the labyrinths of 'Rosamunde,' it matters not that a party had secretly influenced the mass of the listeners, this stream of harmony would have swept victoriously over every obstacle."

The three act opera "Fierrabras" is another product of 1823. Its libretto, commissioned a year before by the famous Barbaja, then manager of the Imperial Opera, was written by Josef Kupelwieser, and proved to be clumsy, inartistic, and uninteresting, even beyond the average of such things. Schubert, however, was no judge of libretti. He seems to have accepted without question whatever was put into his hands, and it is certain that he went to work upon "Fierrabras" with absolute enthusiasm. Beginning May 23, he completed the first act (300 pages of MS.) in seven days; the entire opera (1,000 pages) being ready on September 26; or, according to one authority, October 2. For due appreciation of this tremendous achievement let the reader turn to the full score just published as part of their great "critical edition," by Breitkopf and Härtel. That ponderous volume of 537 pages excites wonder which grows and grows as the nature of the music becomes more and more clear. "Fierrabras" was not performed at all, being rejected, ostensibly on account of the bad book, and again the poor composer saw his strenuous labour wasted, the seed of his genius cast on a stony soil. Fate was indeed hard upon him, and his sensitive nature must have deeply felt the cruel scourge of repeated disappointments. Had he faith, we wonder, in the ultimate triumph of justice? And could he see the "broad approach of fame" which the future reserved. Haply he had the consolation expressed in Thomson's lines:—

Ye good distress'd!
Ye noble few, who here unbending stand
Beneath life's pressure, yet bear up awhile,
And wait your bounded view, which only saw
A little part, deem'd evil, is no more;
The storms of wintry time will quickly pass,
And one unbounded spring encircle all.

A third work for the lyric stage of 1823 was a one-act opera, "Die Verschwornen," the autograph score of which, now in the British Museum, is dated April. It contains eleven musical pieces, with spoken dialogue interspersed. Schubert first met with the drama in an annual publication devoted to that class of literature, and was perhaps stimulated to write music for it by some introductory remarks wherein the author, Castelli, said:—"The complaint, generally speaking, of the German composers is this: 'Well, we should be very glad to set operas to music, only get us proper words to write to?' Now, here is one, gentlemen. If you will accompany it with music, pray let my words have fair play, and don't spoil the intelligibility of the plot, whilst you only look after roulades and flourishes in preference to musical characteristics. In my opinion, the opera should be a dramatically worked piece, accompanied with music—not music with a text specially adapted as an after-thought; and the general effect and impression, according to my view, are of more importance than that of giving an opportunity for some individual singer of displaying the elasticity and power of his vocal organ. Let us do something, gentlemen, for the bona fide German opera." Schubert, accepting the invitation thus offered, completed his music with characteristic impetuosity, but, as in the case of "Fierrabras," never heard it performed. Malignant influences still pursued the unfortunate master, whose MS. was returned from the theatre without even the compliment of an examination. "Die Verschwornen" lay in obscurity for more than forty years, and was first produced at a Concert of the Vienna Musical Society, March 1, 1861, under Herbeck's direction. Its next appearance was on the stage at Frankfurt, August 29, 1861, since which time it has been heard in many places, always with favour. Speaking of the first Vienna performance, Kreissle says:—"The freshness and beauty of the melodies, coupled with the marked individuality of each character in the piece, worked upon the attention of the hearers in the same degree as the power and facility of treatment shown in the vocal and instrumental parts called forth delight and astonishment on the part of those who were incredulous of Schubert's gifts in this particular branch of art."

To the year 1823 belongs also the set of songs known as "Die Schöne Müllerin," or, more generally, the "Müllerlieder." A story is told as to the accidental way in which Schubert first became acquainted with the poems set by him to undying music. Our composer was on terms of friendship with Randhartinger, private secretary to a nobleman, and one day called upon him at his employer's residence. During the visit Randhartinger was summoned from the room, whereupon Schubert, to beguile the time, took up a book which chanced to be lying there. It was a copy of Müller's works. The composer read some of the verses; slipped the volume into his pocket, and went home. Next day Randhartinger missed his Müller, and, suspecting the thief, went to Schubert's lodgings in search of it. There he found the composer with some of the songs already set to music. The task of writing the set of twenty songs occupied our master at intervals during the summer, and helped to while away the time he spent as a patient in a hospital. Other lyrics saw the light at the same period, as well as the Pianoforte Sonata in A minor, afterwards dedicated by the publisher to Mendelssohn.

Looking back upon the repeated disappointments of 1823, it is not to be wondered at that Schubert fell into a desponding mood, which he indulged with as much thoroughness as, in happier moments, he gave way to the promptings of a light heart. Judging from an extant letter to Kupelwieser—brother of the "Fierabras" librettist—he entered upon 1824 in a very gloomy state of mind. After describing himself as "the most unhappy, the most miserable man on earth"—which he was not, nor anything approaching to it—Schubert went on:—

"Picture to yourself a man whose health can never be re-established, who from sheer despair makes matters worse instead of better; picture to yourself, I say, a man whose most brilliant hopes have come to nothing, to whom the happiness of proffered love and friendship is but anguish, whose enthusiasm for the beautiful—an inspired feeling at least—threatens to vanish altogether, and then ask yourself if such a condition does not represent a miserable and unhappy man.

My peace is gone, my heart is sore,
Gone for ever and evermore.

I can repeat these lines now every day, for each night when I go to sleep I hope never again to wake, and every morning renews afresh the wounds of yesterday. Friendlessly, joylessly, should I drag on the days of my existence, were it not that sometimes my brain reels, and a gleam of the sweet days that are gone shoots across my vision."

At the same time the master poured his unhappiness into his diary where we read: "Grief sharpens the understanding and strengthens the soul"; "No one fathoms another's grief; no one another's joy"; "My productions in music are the product of the understanding and spring from my sorrow; those only which are the product of pain seem to please the great world the most." That Schubert was perfectly sincere in the expressions stimulated by his morbid condition cannot be doubted. He had a nature very susceptible to influences within and without. Easily pleased, and enjoying pleasure of the keenest, he was also easily depressed and apt to sink down at small provocation into the lowest depths of sadness. At the same time, the work he did under the pressure of his grief showed that the load, whatever noise he made about it, had no effect upon his powers. At the very time when complainings were on his lips he composed the Octet, and the String Quartets in E flat and E, and various pieces of less importance. In May came a change for the better, Schubert being then required to accompany Count Esterházy's family to Zélsz, their place in Hungary. Away from the distractions of Vienna, and surrounded by the calm of nature, the master received comparative peace into his soul. This we gather from the tone of a letter to his brother, Ferdinand, wherein the following occurs:—

"In order that these lines may not perchance mislead you to a belief that I am unwell or out of spirits, I hasten to assure you of the contrary. Certainly that happy joyous time is gone when every object seemed encircled with a halo of youthful glory, and that which has followed is the experience of a miserable reality, which I endeavour as far as possible to embellish by the gifts of my fancy (for which I thank God). People are wont to think that happiness depends on the place which witnessed our former joys, whilst in reality it only depends on ourselves, and thus I learned a sad delusion, and saw a renewal of those of my experiences which I had already made at Steyr, and yet I am now much more in the way of finding peace and happiness in myself."

In this mood Schubert addressed himself to work with renewed zest. At Zélsz he composed the fine Pianoforte Duo Sonata and the Theme with variations, both for four hands, since scored for orchestra by Joachim. There, also, he made essays in writing poetry; penned the curious "Dream," to which the reader's attention has already been directed, and found pleasure, thanks to improving health, in the steady discharge of his duties. Besides the works above named, he wrote at Zélsz the Pianoforte Sonata in B flat, the Variations in A flat, a number of waltzes, and the vocal quartet "Gebet." With regard to the last-named it is said that, one morning at breakfast, Countess Esterházy produced the poem, and asked Schubert to set music to it for home performance. The master took the book to his room, and had his work ready by the evening of the same day. Otherwise, he did little with vocal pieces at this particular time.

The Esterházy's remained in Hungary six months—too long for Schubert, who was a thorough child of Vienna, and could not live away from his mother city. He grew impatient of delay in returning to the capital, and it may be that part of his restlessness was attributable to a hopeless passion for one of his pupils, the Countess Caroline, who was then seventeen. Kreissle speaks of Schubert's love as of an undoubted fact, and relates that once, when the young lady jestingly reproached her teacher with never having dedicated a piece to her, he answered, "What would be the good of it? Everything I have ever done has been dedicated to you." Accepting this story the Countess could hardly have remained ignorant of Schubert's state, but she did not return his affection—a fact by no means surprising in the case of a girl brought up to believe that between her class and all others below it in the social scale was a gulf which none should pass. Moreover, Schubert's appearance and bearing were not such as might easily captivate a noble maiden's fancy. Even the lover, partially blinded to obstacles as most lovers are, must have seen that he had no chance, and longed to escape from the Tantalean misery to which living in the same house subjected him. It is fair to say that some of the master's biographers, among them Sir George Grove, throw doubt upon the whole matter, or, at least, charge it with exaggeration. But as Schubert was intensely susceptible there is nothing at all improbable in the story of his feeling and encouraging a passionate attachment to his young pupil, though all the time conscious of its utter futility.

(To be continued.)

MR. CORDER'S enquiry into the origin of the tune sung by "the Unemployed" has elicited a number of interesting communications on the subject from Scotch correspondents, who have recognised the melody as the property of their nation. Being unable to accord due space for these letters we must content ourselves with a short summary of the information they contain, with thanks, in which the original enquirer joins, to Messrs. W. Hume, J. D. Brown, and J. S. Neil, of Glasgow, H.M.C.M., of London, C. J. Stalker, of Edinburgh, Madame Filippi, of Milan, and others. The immediate origin of the tune in question is on all sides declared to be a child's song, "Castles in the air," popular in the North, but we think strange till now to English ears. It is included in the recently published Balmoral edition of Scotch songs, arranged by Mr. A. C. Mackenzie. The first verse runs as follows—

The bonnie, bonnie bairn, wha sits pokin' in the ase,
Glowerin' in the fire wi' his wee roon' face,
Laughin' at the fuffin' lowe, what sees he there?
Ha! the young dreamer's biggin' castles in the air.

These words are by the late James Ballantine, first published in his "Gaberlunzie's Wallet," and were adapted to the melody by a Mr. Robert Adams, of Glasgow, who is understood, but perhaps wrongly, to claim the tune as his own, whereas it is well known to be but slightly altered from an old song called "Bonnie Jean o' Aberdeen," of which more anon. The striking melody of "Castles in the air" has given rise to several other versions, one correspondent recognising it as "Down the burn, Davie lad," and others as a temperance song with the following words—

THE DRUNKARD'S RAGGED WEAN.

A wee bit ragged laddie
Gang's wanderin' thro' the street,
Wadin' among the snaw
Wi' his wee hacket feet.

The tune has a second part which appears to have got dropped on the other side of the border, at any rate by the "unemployed." We give it here in order to show the alterations to which the melody has been subjected in the process of translation into English. It will be observed that by the omission of what the late Charles Reade absurdly stigmatises as the "sordid and incongruous jerks," the character of the tune has been quite altered.

The air "Bonnie Jean" is practically identical, a few additional ornamental notes forming the only difference. The words, which do not fit the music over well, being in fact not the original ones, run thus—

Love's goddess in a myrtle grove
Said 'Cupid, bend thy bow with speed,
Nor let the shaft at random fly,
For Jeany's haughty heart must bleed.'

The air under this name appears in Johnson's "Scots' Musical Museum" (1787-1803), the words having been written by Allan Ramsay in the "Orpheus Caledonius" (1725) to replace older and less innocent ones. We are also informed that "Bonnie Jean" was utilised by Charles Coffey for a song in one of his operas, "The Female Parson," acted at the Haymarket Theatre in 1730. The old original of "Bonnie Jean" is lost in the mists of ages. The history of the tune being thus made clear, the most curious point still remains as obscure as ever. How, when, and by whom did it get adapted to suit the purposes of the cadging fraternity? To elucidate this point we should require the services of that eminent gentleman who as "One of the Crowd" contributes such whimsical odds and ends of information regarding the lower classes to a daily contemporary. Failing such aid we take leave of the subject for the present.

In case our readers should never have heard of the "Nottingham Bowman-Hart Musical Guild," we have much pleasure in drawing attention, not only to the fact of the existence of such an institution, but to the first number of a Quarterly Magazine, published especially to make known and advocate the objects of the Guild. The Founder and Examiner of the Association is Mrs. Mary Hutton Bowman-Hart, sister of the Director, Mr. John Farmer (late of Harrow), and the Conductor is Mr. A. Richards. "Twenty years ago," says Mrs. Bowman-Hart, "my knowledge of the poor and unworthy character of the musical literature of the working classes led me to determine in my mind never to rest satisfied until I had done something to help to elevate the standard of that musical literature. To attempt to accomplish this has been a difficult task. The present Guild is not the first I have endeavoured to found. I have tried the same principle before, but with less success; probably the time was not ripe. At last, after many attempts and many failures, the seed is sown and has taken root." The Guild has over 400 members (adult and juvenile), and classes are formed under competent teachers for giving instruction in the various branches of the art. The magazine, of which we have already spoken, is edited by a working man, and is sent to us, "not because" (as a letter which accompanies it tells us) "we attach any great importance to it as a publication, but to give some idea of the special character of the Guild and its work." The journal is fairly written throughout, and will no doubt improve; but the editor should thank us for telling him that the article headed "Newspaper criticisms, and our recent Guild Concert," is a step in the wrong direction.

To all who are interested in the good cause which aims at making the people their own entertainers in legitimate fashion, and have the means of practically furthering such a cause, we would recommend the appeal of Mrs. Hart on behalf of the Popular Ballad Concerts Committee. For the last three years classes in harmony and singing have been carried on at the East End at the low charge of a penny and twopence a lesson, with the result that a choir selected from amongst the pupils attending these classes has been able to discourse good music to their fellow-residents in the poorest districts of the metropolis. The annual expenses amount to the modest total of £300, but there is at present a debt of £100, which the Committee are naturally anxious to wipe out. "I cannot but think," writes Mrs. Hart in the Globe of the 5th ult., "that if our small needs and considerable achievements were better known, these necessities would be met, and the anxiety of financial difficulties would not be added to the heavy labour of carrying on so large an organisation." We are very glad of the opportunity to circulate this appeal, and will only add that the address of the Treasurer, Mr. Samuel Morley, is 34, Grosvenor Street. And, at the same time, we take the opportunity of reminding such of our readers as are interested in the part which music plays in the system of recreative evening classes recently inaugurated by the London School Board, that volunteer teachers are still urgently entreated to come forward in order that the campaign which begins next October may be entered on with as full and efficient a staff as possible. What the disciplinary value of this system is and how greatly it is needed will be gathered from the article "Thirteen to Seventeen," from the pen of Mr. Walter Besant, in a recent number of the Contemporary Review.

READERS of our New York correspondent's letter in the present issue will note with interest a paragraph concerning the attempt now being made in the States to foster a national opera. It is certainly unfortunate that the managers are compelled to rely upon a conductor of foreign origin, and artists who are for the most part aliens. But everything must have a beginning, and if the materials for a foundation are not at hand, it is necessary to bring them from a distance. The point chiefly observable, however, is the method adopted to stimulate public support for the American Opera Company in the chief cities visited on tour. Our correspondent speaks of Societies in Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, founded for this express purpose. We are not told how the Associations carry on the work; but may depend upon it that it is done in a practical spirit and with directness of aim. Thus much may be inferred from the fact that the Company's success in Boston was "unparalleled," and that "it now looks as though the New York enterprise was to become a national one." We trust that our correspondent will favour us with particulars regarding the auxiliary Societies, since it is not improbable that hints may be given for the guidance of those who desire to establish national opera in this country. Mr. Carl Rosa would think the good time come at last could he hear of similar organisations in the great towns of England and Scotland.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

WHEN things are at their worst it is reasonable to hope they will begin to mend, and at the moment of writing the fortunes of Italian Opera seem one degree less desperate than they were a little while ago. Whether it is the final flickering up of the flame previous to its utter extinction we cannot say, but, at any rate, a stand is being made, and the experiment will be watched with interest. The enterprise at Covent Garden, which has the name of Signor Lago as impresario, only commenced on the 25th ult., so that it is too soon as yet to say what it is likely to accomplish, but from the published announcements it would seem that the management is fairly alive to the necessities of the situation. The company appears reasonably strong in every department, though we shall be able to judge better of this later on, when some of the numerous debutants have appeared. One promise stands far above all others in importance, and if redeemed, will serve to give distinction to the season. We refer, of course, to the announcement concerning Mr. Mackenzie's "Colomba." True the work was promised two years ago and not given, but we should think a stout endeavour will be made to fulfil the present pledge, as the first performance of an opera by an English composer on the Covent Garden stage could not fail to arouse much curiosity. It is said that Madame Albani is studying the title part in "Colomba"; if so, the matter is as good as settled, for when a prima donna wishes to assume a certain rôle, her manager has only to bow meekly and act in obedience to her commands. The opening night served to show that the public is quite ready to give Italian opera another chance. Though the work was Donizetti's faded "Lucrezia Borgia," the house was crowded and the applause enthusiastic. But there was a reverse to the picture. The leading performers seemed more self-conscious than ever, and were apparently of opinion that the highest achievement in art is to advance to the footlights and shout with all the strength of their lungs at the gallery. Signor Gayarré, who can sing to perfection when he pleases, was the worst offender in this respect, but Madame de Cepeda sinned in like manner. On the other hand, Signor Pandolfini set a worthy example by keeping within his part, acting and singing with quiet force. Of Mdlle. Lubatovi, a new comer, it will be more prudent to speak on another occasion. Signor Bevignani conducted, and the band and chorus were fairly efficient.

CARL ROSA OPERA COMPANY.

This company, by beginning a four weeks' series of representations at Drury Lane Theatre, on the 31st ult., took a new departure as far as London is concerned; that is to say, the manager now presents opera in English as an attraction of "the season," and seeks to establish it in the position so long held by Italian opera. We heartily wish him success in the venture. He has the sympathies of every amateur, while the result will be watched with none the less interest because of the rival show at Covent Garden. At last the two lyric stages are squarely opposed; but there is room for both, and to wish the one well is not to desire the destruction of the other. Mr. Rosa, who opened with Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," intends to present sufficient variety during his brief campaign. He will, of course, play the most successful of the works produced during recent years, such as "Nadeshda," "Carmen," and "Manon"; but he will also add to the list an important novelty by a native composer. We refer to Mr. A. C. Mackenzie's "Troubadour," so fully described in our present issue. The production of this work cannot fail to prove the event of the season. It is fixed, we believe, for the 8th inst., when a thoroughly representative and sympathetic audience may be expected to fill "Old Drury." The performance will be conducted by the composer, the two leading parts of Margarita and Guillem being entrusted to Madame Valleria and Mr. Barton McGuckin. It is worth while adding, without going through a list of names, that Mr. Rosa appears with a strong company, qualified in every respect to present an adequate ensemble.

OPENING OF THE COLONIAL EXHIBITION.

A FULL description of the imposing ceremonial at South Kensington, on the 4th ult., will not be looked for in THE MUSICAL TIMES, and that part which immediately concerns us was not of such abstract importance as to demand lengthy notice. The announcement that all the arrangements of the day would be modelled as far as possible on the precedent of 1851, was happily not carried out as regards the music. Thirty-five years ago the art was not thought much of in official circles, and had it not been for the energetic action of the Sacred Harmonic Society—then at the zenith of its prosperity—the music at the opening of the great show in Hyde Park would have been carried out solely by the choirs of the Chapel Royal, St. Paul's Cathedral, and Westminster Abbey. On the other hand, the course pursued in 1862 and 1871 was inadmissible this year, as the present exhibition is not international, but national. Commissions, therefore, could not be offered to distinguished foreign musicians, and as our colonies are not yet producing composers, the music specially written for the occasion had to be limited to something from an English pen. Of course the opportunity might have been utilised to show how great our progress has been in creative art, and invitations given to some of our most gifted performers to produce works worthy of their respective reputations. But as music written to order is frequently unsatisfactory, we are not disposed to grumble because native art was solely represented by a new part-song, for such is Sir Arthur Sullivan's setting of Lord Tennyson's Ode. The piece is for four-part chorus, with soprano solli and orchestral accompaniment. It is bright and spirited enough, but without very much originality of idea. At Concerts of national and patriotic music, "Britons, hold your own" is quite likely to be in frequent request. Besides the new Ôde, the items were the "National Anthem," the "Hallelujah Chorus," "Home, sweet home," and "Rule Britannia." Against the appropriateness of any one of these not a word could be said, and "Home, sweet home" was sung with such touching expression by Madame Albani as almost to reconcile us to Bishop's sickly and common-place ditty. It seemed almost a pity to bring together the magnificent Albert Hall choir, with its conductor, Mr. Barnby, and a grand orchestra for such a meagre programme, but all who were present will agree that as a spectacle, the ceremony in the Albert Hall, on May 4, 1886, is not often matched in England.

THE "REDEMPTION" AT SYDENHAM.

As the Crystal Palace opened on a May Day, so does each annual season, and the event is always marked by a grand Concert in the central transept. Hitherto, programmes more or less miscellaneous have been the rule on such occasions, but in view of May Day last, a new departure was resolved upon—nothing less than the performance of Gounod's first and most popular sacred Trilogie. It is not difficult to make out why choice fell upon this work for a festive gathering, from which the solemn nature of the subject would seem to banish it. The "Redemption" remains as much an attraction for English people as it proved to be when first produced. Wherever presented it draws a large audience, upon whose ears the sacred story and its impressive music never fall wearily. The Crystal Palace directors showed wisdom in taking advantage of this favourable disposition on the part of the public, and were the more warranted in doing so because it was certain that the attitude of their audience towards the work would be one of becoming sympathy and reverence. Such, in effect, was the case. Nothing incongruous, and adapted to hurt the feelings of devout persons, gave rise to the sort of remarks often called for when religious pieces are pitchforked into the midst of holiday-making crowds. It may be added here that there was a very large attendance, the audience stretching some way down the nave, as well as filling the central transept.

Mr. Manns should be congratulated upon the musical success of a venture which had within it no inconsiderable element of risk. The Handel orchestra and the vast area before it answered very well for music of the less complex sort, but a question fairly arose whether the elaborately chromatic character of the "Redemption" would not have a confused effect when given in so large a space by an immense body of performers. It was also to be taken into account that the work contains much solo music of a kind ill-adapted for effect under the conditions. These considerations, however, did not prevail to hinder the idea from being carried out. The London contingent of the Handel Festival Choir was enlisted, a large orchestra engaged, and rehearsals commenced. With what result in the end? As to the choral music, simply that hardly anything of the anticipated evil was realised. The concerted numbers came out clearly, or, at any rate, with very little blurring caused by the composer's changeful harmonies, and some of them made a deeper impression than ever before. We scarcely need say that among these was "Unfold, ye portals everlasting." Here M. Gounod keeps to his key, and piles up massive chords, having a natural success. The resultant advantage was obvious, the full intentions of the composer were realised, and the effect enhanced, we may add, by stationing the "celestial choir" far up in the heights of the building, whence their music literally descended upon the crowd below. This chorus afforded the "sensation" of the day, and its Crystal Palace rendering will not soon be forgotten. Other numbers were proportionately effective, especially those in the last part, the "Reproaches," and the various chorals. It may be said, indeed, that the concerted music generally turned out to be a great, as well as an unexpected, success. Too much praise cannot be awarded to the chorus for their share of the task. They sang remarkably well, giving the Conductor no apparent trouble, and having plenty of attention to spare for the requisite expression, after paying due heed to textual accuracy. This is a great deal to say of 2,500 amateurs engaged upon a work like the "Redemption." The solos were entrusted to Madame Albani, Madame Patey, Miss Annie Marriott, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. F. King, and Mr. Santley, in whose hands they were as safe as care and skill could make them. They took secondary rank, of course, as all solos do in the transept, the more in this instance because of their narrative character. Nevertheless some appreciable effects were made, and when the music failed to spread over the wide area the profound interest of the story came in to fill its place. Need we praise the manner in which the solos were delivered? Assuredly not. Each artist's name was a guarantee of excellence, and each came up to expectation. As heretofore, Madame Albani carried off honours in "From His love as a Father," but we do not care to go on with particulars of individual effort when all did so well. Enough that the performance was, in this respect, irreproachable. The orchestra vied with the chorus in doing good work, and Mr. Manns, conducting with a firm beat, and the most watchful care, achieved a triumph with which men will remember to credit him in years to come.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MR. MANNS'S BENEFIT CONCERT.

It does not speak well for the gratitude with which Mr. Manns's indefatigable efforts should inspire the minds of all lovers of good music, that only a mere handful of persons should have assembled in the Concert-room on the occasion of his benefit. Some have sought to explain this unwelcome phenomenon by the superb weather which prevailed on the 8th of May, but for our own part we can only see in it a convincing proof of the scarcity, even in these enlightened days, of the votaries of legitimate, as opposed to eccentric, art. Such a performance as that of Schumann's D minor Symphony (No. 4), with which the Concert opened, was alone worth a journey to Sydenham—in a slow train—and proved that in the renderings of the works of this master, as in those of Schubert, Mr. Manns need fear no rival. In particular we would call attention to the deep feeling with which the seraphic first subject of the "working out" of the first movement was given, and the sympathy thrown by conductor and orchestra into their rendering of the Romanze, with its plaintive charm. Miss Fanny Davies sustained the solo part in the first movement of Beethoven's Third Concerto, besides contributing pieces by Chopin and Rubinstein, her performance of the first work being marked by that finished phrasing, and admirable sense of accent, which must make it a pleasure for an orchestra to co-operate with her. A strong phalanx of vocalists had offered their valuable services on this occasion. Madame Trebelli gave three of her familiar pieces—"Nobil Signor," the "Mignon" Gavotte, and the Habanera from "Carmen," in her own inimitable fashion; Mr. Winch sang Jensen's exquisite "Murmeldes Lütfchen," as he alone can sing it; the Misses Marriott contributed the Nocturne duet from Berlioz's "Béatrice and Bénédict," which combines breadth of vocal phrase and richness of orchestral embroidery in so happy a fashion; and Mr. King threw all possible spirit into the Recitative and Aria, "D'Egitto là sui lidi," from Verdi's "Nabuco." A youthful violoncellist, Master Schratzenholtz, showed such capacity in his rendering of Goltermann's Romance in E, as to leave little doubt of his ultimately winning a distinguished rank amongst the players of that instrument. The "Tannhäuser" Overture concluded a long and varied programme performed to an audience, who were, at any rate, resolved to atone for the paucity of their numbers by the enthusiasm of their applause.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE success of the revival of Handel's "Belshazzar," by way of celebrating the bicentenary of the master's birth last year, determined the directors of the Sacred Harmonic Society to repeat the work, and on the 7th ult. it served to conclude the season. We should certainly deserve to lose our reputation of being a Handel-loving nation if "Belshazzar" were not to be heard at frequent intervals.

Composers do not always form a just estimate of their own works, but Handel's high opinion of this Oratorio was certainly correct. As we said, in speaking of the work last season, the choruses are for the most part in his finest style, and the feeling for characterisation exhibited in the solos atones in great measure for the old-fashioned mould in which they are cast. As at the previous performance, the rendering of the choral numbers testified to the excellence of Mr. Cummings's training. Speaking generally, the choir sang with good attack, precision, and praiseworthy care in phrasing. With one exception, the soloists were the same as last year—namely, Madame Patey, Miss Chester, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. Bridson. The soprano was Miss Eleanor Farnol, who advanced her position before the public by her intelligent singing. Though for the most part unostentatious, the additional accompaniments of Mr. Edward Hecht are occasionally open to exception. The use of piccolos and triangle can scarcely be defended on the ground of suggesting the barbarous festivities of the Babylonian court. "Belshazzar" was warmly received by a numerous audience, and the revel chorus, "Ye tutelary gods," was redemanded, but Mr. Cummings firmly declined to repeat it. At the conclusion of the first season of his conductorship we may fairly congratulate him on the measure of success he has obtained. True, the performances have been marred by imperfections, but experience has to be purchased, and we look forward with confidence to an improvement next year. That which he mostly needs to acquire is a firm, resolute beat, and a method of conveying his intentions on points of detail such as everyone under him can understand and obey. In the accompaniment of recitative, or in numbers where changes of tempo or measure occur, the lead must be distinct, or the following will become a mere scramble.

RICHTER CONCERTS.

THE present season of these Concerts began on Monday, the 3rd ult., the scene being again St. James's Hall, and the conditions much the same as last year. Changes in the orchestra are, it is true, spoken of by the Director, Herr Franke, but these amount to little more than the displacement of one person by another. Herr Richter's band remains much as usual, neither better nor worse. Herr Franke, we observe, draws special attention to the fact that Englishmen now preponderate, thus replying to a criticism sometimes raised when a sharp line has to be drawn between the Richter orchestra and that of the Philharmonic Society. Other things being equal, we prefer to see native talent encouraged by employment, but Herr Franke can hardly raise the nationality cry as an advertisement, because its logical development may one day pose him with the question why he does not procure an English conductor, and then efface himself in favour of an English director. So far, the Concerts have not been over-well attended, for reasons hard to divine, unless it be that the audience, formed on the basis of a Wagner propaganda, do not quite approve the more miscellaneous programmes now in vogue. Our own opinion is that a resolute effort should be continued in the present direction, so as to rid the Concerts of their special sectional character, and establish them on an eclectic foundation.

The opening performance calls for but few remarks, owing to the familiarity of the works presented. These were a selection from "Die Meistersinger," including the Overture, Sachs's address to Walther (sung by Mr. Fischer), and the final chorus; the "Siegfried" Idyll, Liszt's first Hungarian Rhapsody, and Beethoven's Choral Symphony. With such a typical Richter programme, there is no call for discussion. Enough that the orchestral pieces were played so as to sustain the character of Conductor and orchestra as doers of thoroughly good and honest work. The strings were again lacking in the fulness and beauty of tone to which our best English orchestras have accustomed us, but no fault could be found with whatever in the performance depended upon the personal qualities of the artists themselves. Regarding the vocal music in the Choral Symphony, we shall be expected to say that a good deal was wanting to completeness. This must always be the case when impossible music is in hand.

At the second Concert (the 10th ult.), Wagner and Liszt again "held the field," the first-named with the "Walkyrie Ride" and "Tannhäuser" Overture, the second with three songs, tastefully rendered by Miss Lena Little. Over these things, which, indeed, need no comment, we may pass to reach Brahms's new Symphony in E minor, played on this occasion for the first time in England. The work has the usual four movements—namely, an Allegro non troppo, Andante moderato, third movement in Rondo form but of Scherzo character, and a Finale which presents a Passacaglia with variations. It is to be observed that the more prudent connoisseurs have avoided giving a definite opinion upon the Symphony, and this reserve we both applaud and imitate. Brahms is a recondite musician who does not carry his meaning on his sleeve, or pretend to purvey "milk for babes." His present work may certainly be regarded as meat for strong men, and even by them not at once digested. But while holding over the Symphony as a whole for "examination and enquiry," there need be no hesitancy in admitting the noble character and profound interest of the first two movements. The third movement and Finale are less satisfactory on first hearing, and, though they may ultimately establish themselves in favour, it is more than doubtful whether the Passacaglia and variations will pass muster as an ideal symphonic finale. Beethoven tried the variation form twice—in his "Eroica" and "Choral," both experiments resulting in what we must take leave to consider the weakest portion of those masterpieces. The unfavourable character of the form for such a position cannot be got over. It is to be hoped that Brahms's Symphony will soon have another hearing, and clear up the uncertainty now prevalent with regard to its precise worth. Cherubini's "Anacreon" was the only other item in the programme.

A selection from Dr. Villiers Stanford's Incidental Music to the "Eumenides" figured in the scheme of the third Concert, and excited much interest among those who had not witnessed the representation at Cambridge, for which it was composed. The music, as performed on that occasion, has already been discussed in THE MUSICAL TIMES at sufficient length. Into its details we do not now propose to enter, being content to say that the ability before pointed out was again conspicuous, and also the absence of charm such as keeps alive the music written by Mendelssohn to "Antigone" and "Œdipus." Would that our younger composers studied more carefully the secret of charm, and gave themselves less to sensation, which is a very different thing. The choral music was sung by the undergraduates who were entrusted with it at Cambridge, and who again acquitted themselves remarkably well. Textual accuracy and expressive power were conspicuous in all they did. The orchestral numbers were capitally played under Herr Richter's direction, and the music as a whole obtained an approving, though hardly an enthusiastic, reception. With it were given the Overture "Les Francs Juges," of Berlioz—a wild and gloomy work; Beethoven's Symphony in A, and three movements written by Bach for solo violin, but transformed by one Bachrich into a suite for strings. We regret to find Herr Richter aiding and abetting such outrageous liberties taken with works which should be sacred to the genius of their composer. But there are men other than French sappers to whom nothing is sacred, and among them appears to be this Bachrich. His adaptation is clever enough, but the fact amounts to an aggravation rather than an excuse, since it pleads with a careless public for pardon.

Another new Symphony was produced at the fourth Concert (24th ult.), the composer in this case being Eugene d'Albert, the young Englishman who, a while ago, took such pains to repudiate his native land and shoot puny arrows at her musicians. Herr d'Albert has made his choice and become more German than the Germans, even putting German terms, instead of the universal Italian, at the head of the movements in his work. Under such circumstances it is not surprising, perhaps, to find his compositions taken up by a Teutonic enterprise and duly presented to us, all unworthy of them though we be. Remembering a certain Overture from the same pen, it was expected that the Symphony would have a bizarre, if not chaotic, character. But Herr d'Albert has learned something of late, and actually adopted an approximation to classic form. Of course, it is only an approximation, since a composer now-a-days must not fail to show that he can improve upon his predecessors. Thus, we find the slow Introduction of the masters transferred from before the first movement to before the last, without obvious reason or apparent advantage. Other variations of less importance are noticeable, but generally the work is built upon established lines. Of its four movements, we prefer the first, as having the advantage in charm of theme, clearness of treatment, and absence of pretence. This is, indeed, a very good example of modern symphonic writing, and shows that the composer might do well if he would only be natural. The other movements are all more or less unfavourably affected by an incessant striving after original effects, which, when attained, are not worth having. The Langsam is pretentious dullness itself, with here and there a gleam of light flashing across its surface, but the Scherzo has good points which more fully redeem it from unmitigated censure. Its great fault lies in over-extension, and so with the Finale, where again there is a strong admixture of good work. Herr d'Albert appears to think that he cannot say too much. We differ from him. A Symphony lasting fifty-five minutes is an example of over-weening garrulosity such as ought not to be encouraged. The work was finely played, and received with a considerable amount of favour, which we will not set down as undeserved. Other things in the programme were Mendelssohn's "Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage," magnificently played; the Overture to "Egmont"; Dead March from "Siegfried"; and Liszt's second Hungarian Rhapsody. These call for no remark.

RUBINSTEIN'S RECITALS.

ANTON RUBINSTEIN is partial to saying—no doubt with perfect sincerity at the moment—that he does not intend to play the pianoforte in public any more, and that the visit he may be making to any country as an executive artist is his last. Rumour spreads a report to the same effect now; but sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof, and we may comfort ourselves with the thought that history has a tendency to repeat itself. For the present, at any rate, Rubinstein is amongst us, engaged in a titanic task such as might well strain even his herculean powers. But do not let us violate facts in order to pay him compliments. Remarks have been made in several quarters as though on the assumption that nobody ever gave "historical recitals" before. That is either a delusion or an oversight. It may be the case that no pianist of Rubinstein's renown has done so; still, such recitals have been given, by Mr. Pauer and Mr. Bonawitz amongst others, with even greater attention to accuracy than the present course shows. It is but fair to mention this. The professors just named may not have attracted all London. There they were, however, to be heard by anybody who chose to purchase a ticket. On the other hand, the fullest justice must not be denied to Rubinstein's scheme. As an historical exposition of pianoforte composition it is not faultless—it ignores the development of the Sonata, for example, and includes too large a number of duplicate illustrations—but it is very interesting, while the personality of the executant gives the working out a special importance.

Mr. Rubinstein began the series of seven recitals in St. James's Hall, on the 18th ult. By the way, why are we limited to seven, when Berlin amateurs, it is said, were supplied with a round dozen? Is it because the great artist does not want to repeat a good-humoured remark against himself, with which report credits him? "I gave twelve performances" said the master, "and might have added another made up of their wrong notes." But it may be that Rubinstein is compressing into seven London recitals the matter of twelve Berlin ones. He knows what a huge appetite the British concert-goer has, and how he will placidly get through a feast which would surfeit a continental amateur. Be this as it may, the seven programmes are not what the late Mr. Chorley used to call "lean." To sit out one of them, requires a very fair measure of endurance. Mr. Rubinstein began at the beginning, and, by leading off with Bird's Variations on the "Carman's Whistle," and John Bull's on "The King's Hunting Jig," gave due credit to England for making a start in clavier music. From these early English examples he went on to "Le Grand" Couperin—a leap of a hundred years—who was represented by five of the little pieces to which, anticipating a prevalent taste of our own day, he gave fanciful titles more or less appropriate. Couperin's contemporary, Rameau, came next with three pieces of like calibre, including the well-known "La Poule," wherein the clucking of a hen is so ingeniously imitated. Scarlatti followed with his "Cat's Fugue" and A major Sonata; and after him Sebastian Bach, from whose works were taken the Preludes and Fugues in C minor and D major; the Preludes in E flat minor, E flat and B flat minor ("Well-tempered Clavichord"), Chromatic Fantasia, Gigue in B flat, a Sarabande and a Gavotte. Handel supplied his Fugue in E minor, the "Harmonious Blacksmith," a Sarabande, Pachelbel, Gigue and Theme with Variations in D minor. Next Emanuel Bach took up the wondrous tale, contributing his Rondo in B minor, and several pieces of the Couperin-Rameau type. Then came Haydn with his Theme and Variations in F minor; Mozart bringing up the rear with his Fantasia in C minor, Gigue in G, and Rondo, "Alla Turca," from the Sonata in A major. In all, thirty-seven pieces were presented to the reciter's first audience, who emphatically had enough. Careful observers of the initial programme soon find out its cardinal defect. The Sonata is the highest form of solo pianoforte music, and during much of the period covered by Mr. Rubinstein's first stage, it was growing into its present shape. Yet no notice whatever is taken of the fact, and as far as historical teaching goes in this instance, there was no Sonata till Beethoven.

At the second Recital (21st ult.) Mr. Rubinstein gave the Sonata its revenge by playing no fewer than eight from the pen of the Bonn master. These were the "Moonlight," "D minor," "C major," "Appassionata," "E minor," "A major," "E major" (Op. 109), and "C minor" (Op. 111). An earlier example than the "Moonlight" might advantageously have been chosen to illustrate the Haydn-Mozart influence. Otherwise the selection, as representative of Beethoven, answered every purpose. It was, however, too much for a single sitting. The audience must have gone away in a state of muddle, with eight Sonatas hopelessly jumbled together in bewildered heads.

The third programme (24th ult.) was devoted to Schubert, Weber, and Mendelssohn, and showed the infusion of romanticism into classic forms. From the Viennese master's works were drawn the "Wanderer" Fantasia, six "Moments Musicaux," the Minuet from Fantasia Sonata in G, and the Impromptus in C minor and E flat. Weber contributed the A flat Sonata, Memento Capriccioso, "Invitation to the Waltz," and Polacca in E, Mendelssohn coming last with "Variations Sérieuses," Capriccio in E minor, eleven "Lieder ohne Worte," and Presto e Capriccio. Against this selection there is absolutely nothing to be said. It well represents, within its scope, the genius of the composers, and the nature of the pianoforte music of their day. With regard to Mr. Rubinstein's discharge of the tremendous task involved in the performance of such programmes, no words of eulogy can, in some respects, be in excess of deserts. We attach little importance to the fact that every piece was played without break and without a slip. Mnemonic feats are common enough; but the concentration of mind, the power of sustained sympathy, and the general endurance of the artist deserve unqualified acknowledgment and admiration. The well-remembered characteristics of Mr. Rubinstein's style were again to the fore. He sometimes played with a reckless abandon resulting in effects which made the judicious grieve. It was "pianism" of the convulsory school, and more curious than beautiful. Occasionally, too, the executant put so much of his own gloss upon the composer as to make him scarcely recognisable; but, after full allowance on these scores, there remains for praise a mass of most excellent work—more than enough to sustain Mr. Rubinstein's character as the foremost pianist of the day. It was delightful to listen to him in his gentler moods, when the very spirit of music seemed to animate him, and the rapport between composer and executant appeared complete. At such times the secret of his power could not only be felt but understood, and that secret lies not so much in manipulative excellence—many inferior performers are more finished—as in ability to absorb and then convey the innermost qualities of the music in hand.

Mr. Rubinstein's Recitals were continued on the 27th ult., but we reserve our remarks with regard to that performance.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

At the fifth Concert, on the 19th ult., M. Saint-Saëns had the most important portion of the programme to himself, appearing first as an executant in Beethoven's Piano-forte Concerto in G, and afterwards as a composer and Conductor of his new Symphony in C, written expressly for the Society. To speak first of the orchestral work, it must be stated that we are warned, in the Analytical Programme, against criticising it by the rules hitherto presumed to apply to the composition of a Symphony; for M. Saint-Saëns tells us that not only has he "sought to avoid the endless resummptions and repetitions which more and more tend to disappear from instrumental music under the influence of increasingly developed musical culture," but that he believes "symphonic works should now be allowed to benefit by the progress of modern instrumentation," in evidence of which he gives a formidable list of the instruments he has chosen, which includes the novel addition of the organ and pianoforte. Having thus disarmed those who might be inclined to do battle with him for his disregard of conventional form and conventional instrumentation, the only question is what has been gained by these innovations? Certainly linking the first with the slow movement, and the Scherzo with the Finale, as the composer has done in this work, has only the charm of novelty to recommend it; and although the organ in the Adagio is fairly sympathetic with the plaintive theme, the rapid arpeggios and scale passages on the pianoforte in the final Presto have a most incongruous effect with the other instruments. As abstract music only, then, we are bound to listen to this pretentious and lengthy work; and, so judged, there is certainly much to arrest the attention. The first movement, with a marked principal subject, which constantly reappears in a modified form—contrary to the composer's avowed theory of non-repetition—is in parts most effectively scored, and contains some exceedingly clever, if somewhat rhapsodical, writing; but the Adagio is unquestionably the gem of the composition, an expressive melody, given out by the strings, with sustained chords on the organ, and taken up by a clarinet, horn, and trombone, accompanied by strings divided, charming all hearers by its intrinsic beauty, as well as its skilful treatment. The last movement is so complicated and wild in character that, were it not for the reminiscences of the first subject of the opening movement, it would seem almost to belong to another work. There is infinite variety of colour, however, in the orchestration, although occasionally patchily laid on, and a brilliant Coda, unduly prolonged, forms an exciting conclusion to the composition. Those advanced in the new school as far as M. Saint-Saëns professes to be should invent new titles for their works. As we have said, there is a great deal to admire in this glowing Orchestral Rhapsody, but we distinctly decline to term it a "Symphony." M. Saint-Saëns's performance of Beethoven's G major Concerto exhibited his executive powers to the utmost advantage; but we scarcely admired his reading of the slow movement. The vocalists were Madame Antoinette Sterling, who was highly successful in Mozart's "Quando miro," and Miss Agnes Larkom, who made her first appearance at these Concerts, and sang the "Couplets du Mysoli," from Félicien David's "La Perle du Brésil," so well as to be twice enthusiastically recalled. Haydn's Symphony in E flat (No. 8 of the Salomon set) commenced the programme, and Wagner's Overture to "Die Meistersinger" was the concluding piece, both being played with that perfection to which, at these Concerts, under the bâton of Sir Arthur Sullivan, we are now becoming accustomed.

SEÑOR SARASATE'S CONCERTS.

THERE can be but little doubt that the Spanish violinist, Señor Pablo Sarasate, exercises a pronounced and peculiar fascination over the admirers of the instrument. A few years ago such performances as those recently given by the virtuoso would have been impossible, and we can well imagine what would have been the opinion of an artist's temerity who would essay the two chef d'œuvres of the fiddle—the Concertos of Beethoven and Mendelssohn—in a single afternoon, and would, moreover, offer no vocal relief to the instrumental selection. But, viewing matters by the light of recent events, we are fain to confess that vocal music is not the important factor which, but a short period since, it was in concert schemes. And this decadence in singing is attributable not only to any deficiency of really capable performances, but to the incongruous manner in which the songs and other works were associated. Herr Richter took the initiative, and cut the Gordian knot by dispensing with the assistance of vocalists on many occasions; and now Señor Sarasate has gone a step further in abolishing them wholly from the plan of his entertainments. We may take it for granted that the fiddle is the fashionable instrument of the day; time was when the pianoforte occupied that enviable position, but now learning the piano is as much part and parcel of an ordinary education as the "three Rs," and therefore the violin becomes the accomplishment instead of a customary acquirement. It is hardly to be wondered at that while such phenomenal executants as Señor Sarasate are before the public an additional incentive is given to the study of a very beautiful art. He is in truth a wonder-worker, and though perhaps exception may be taken to his reading of the classical masterpieces, his technical ability is simply amazing, while combined with his executive skill is the apparent inability for him to play out of tune. St. James's Hall has been crowded at each of his Recitals, and there is a similar welcome in store for him whenever he comes before the public. The programme of the second Concert, on the 1st ult., was peculiarly interesting, on account of Señor Sarasate bringing forward Mr. A. C. Mackenzie's Concerto in E, which, it will be remembered, was first heard at the Birmingham Festival of last autumn at the same hands. The reception awarded the composition originally has been fully substantiated, and there are few works of its generic class which more deservedly attract the attention of discriminating musicians. Like most art-products of an elevated order, the Concerto is not superficial—no trifle to please at a first hearing by its mere prettiness, and then to pall upon the taste. The thought which the author has bestowed upon it amply repays close study, and then it will be found that the Concerto in E is a really important and elevated composition, broad in its design and treatment, and altogether a work of which not only the composer, but the nation, may well feel proud. In the opening Allegro the freedom of the time-measure will be the first object of notice, and the independence of the solo part cannot escape observation. On this account, and because the idiosyncrasy of the design gives a somewhat restless character to the music, it will be less readily grasped than the succeeding movements; when, however, it has been carefully perused it will be discovered to be as clear as daylight, strikingly original, but containing no mere eccentricities just for the sake of making "sensational" effects. The solo is undoubtedly difficult in proportion to its brilliancy, but Señor Sarasate takes no heed of such matters. The expression "difficulty" possesses no terrors for him. The second movement, a Largo in A major, contains many passages of great melodic beauty, of a reflective rather than an impassioned character; but in the Finale the musician casts aside all restraint, permitting his muse to speak in the most jovial—not to say rollicking—accents. The spirit and energy of this section are simply irresistible, and the Concerto winds up in the most impressive and brilliant fashion. On the occasion under notice, as also at Birmingham, Señor Sarasate's playing was perfection itself; both he and Mr. Mackenzie were enthusiastically called to the platform at the end, and then the audience continuing to cheer, the violinist came upon the orchestra once more, and played the transcription of Chopin's well-known Nocturne in A flat—very acceptable, but not too much like Chopin. Other features of the Concert were Tchaikovsky's "Serenade Melancolique," a more attractive morceau than its title would appear to justify; M. Saint-Saëns's Rondo Capriccioso; a Ballad and Bolero from the Concert-giver's own pen; Mozart's perennially fresh Symphony in G minor; Weber's "Ruler of the Spirits" Overture, and an interesting ballet suite, "Le Roi s'amuse," by M. Léo Délibes. The band was in excellent order, with Mr. Wilhelm Wiener as chef d'attaque and Mr. W. G. Cusins as Conductor, and the entertainment seemed to give unequivocal satisfaction.

At the third Concert of the series, on the 15th ult., another pleasing selection attracted a very large audience. Señor Sarasate selected for his solos Herr Max Bruch's Fantasia Ecossaise; a Suite by Herr Joachim Raff, including the extraordinary Moto perpetuo which the virtuoso plays in so inimitable a style; his own "Chant du Rossignol," a fantastic piece in which large use is made of harmonics; with Liszt's symphonic poem, "Les Preludes"; Meyerbeer's "Struensee" Overture, and the Turkish March from Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens." Herr Bruch's Fantasia is not devoid of ingenuity, though whether the themes are strictly representative of the music north of the border is quite another matter. Raff's Suite is remarkably effective, both the Preludio and Moto perpetuo offering the fullest opportunities for the soloist to show his mastery of the finger-board, while the Minuetto, with its sentimental interludes, or "trios," is both picturesque and quaint. The audience would willingly have heard the Moto perpetuo over again, but even Señor Sarasate's iron wrist is not proof against such continued exertion, so the Chopin Nocturne was pressed into service again for the encore. The artistic significance of the "Chant du Rossignol" does not amount to much, but it wants accuracy and delicacy of treatment, which is precisely what Señor Sarasate is capable of bringing to bear upon his task. Another encore followed, as a matter of course, a Gipsy Dance being substituted for the repetition. The good qualities of the orchestra were once more conspicuous.

On the 22nd ult., the selections for the last Concert but one comprised Wieniawski's Concerto for violin; Lalo's so-called Symphony "Espagnole" for violin and orchestra; Volckmann's Serenade for stringed instruments (Op. 63); Gounod's "Saltarello"; Auer's Hungarian Rhapsody, and Wagner's "Tannhäuser" Overture. Respecting the merits of these compositions not much need be said. With Lalo's work the violinist would naturally experience every sympathy; while Auer, himself a very accomplished fiddler, has the reputation of possessing the capacity for writing for the instrument as well as he performs upon it. There was again a large audience, and the efforts of the distinguished artist were applauded to the echo. It will be remarked with pleasure that at the concluding performance Señor Sarasate proposes to repeat Mr. Mackenzie's Concerto. It is a courteous and graceful acknowledgment from one musician to another, and no doubt those amateurs who have not already made the acquaintance of the Concerto will gladly avail themselves of the chance of hearing it. The "modern Paganini," as Señor Sarasate has not unjustly been termed, has made his footing in this country thoroughly secure—in fact, it is difficult to find any brighter example of artistic popularity. His season of Concerts has proved of distinct value to all students of violin music, and it is with pleasure that the notification of a further series of performances will be generally received, even though there is so much music going on at the present time that a goodly proportion of it might be spared with advantage.

MR. CARRODUS'S CONCERT.

THERE are fiddlers and fiddlers, even as according to Molière there are "faggots and faggots"; but few will deny to Mr. J. T. Carrodus a proud position amongst the foremost knights of the bow and strings—an elevation which he has striven honestly and earnestly to attain. Mr. Carrodus, though prominently before the public in his capacity of orchestral leader, is perhaps heard less as a solo player than he deserves, and hence his organisation of a grand evening Concert at St. James's Hall, on the 13th ult., possessed an interest out of the common. Our English Joachim is nothing if not thorough, and he was obviously determined that English music and English musicians should be to the fore on the occasion of his benefit, the orchestra of seventy-four artists being natives of the soil to a man; while with himself as solo violinist, Mr. A. C. Mackenzie as general conductor, and Sir Arthur Sullivan to direct the performance of his Symphony in E minor (the "Irish"), all possible éclat was given to the selection. It will be said, doubtless, that Mr. Carrodus ought to have played nothing but music by a compatriot, but he has a tender place in his heart for the master—Molière—who taught him how to acquire his great proficiency upon the instrument, and therefore the resuscitation of Molière's Fifth Concerto, and "Fandango" for violin and orchestra was perfectly defensible. Moreover, although much of Molière's work has dropped out of its place in public estimation, and is regarded by many as antiquated and practically effete, it only needs the revival of such a production as the Concerto in A minor to prove that there is abundant vitality in it yet. Molière was well thought of in his day, and when this particular Concerto was first played by the composer at the Philharmonic Concert of May 14, 1849, eulogistic language was freely dealt in when describing the work, a well-known critic writing as follows:—"It is a chef d'œuvre from beginning to end. The symphony form is displayed in all its grandeur of development; the orchestra is employed with admirable variety and taste, and the solo instrument provided for with masterly effect. The Adagio in E major is one of Molière's most beautiful effusions, a perfect gem of melody and ingenious workmanship. The Rondo finale is one of the most clever, piquant, and ingenious of the master's works. In this species of music Molière yields to few, and in the present instance he has surpassed himself." This praise may sound rather extravagant to modern ears, but there is nothing to make us doubt the soundness of the writer's judgment. Because it is the affectation of modern times to decry anything approaching to the semblance of sustained melody, those productions of a bygone generation—when music was synonymous with beauty—are calmly pooh-poohed. But, after all, the world would be all the richer for a few more compositions of the Molière school. Mr. Carrodus had, of course, a labour of love to perform, and his rendering of this cheval de bataille was as fine and as praiseworthy as anything which has been heard in the fiddling world of recent years. The second movement created a great impression, and the Finale also pleased immensely. Mr. Carrodus received the honour of a double recall after the Concerto. The "Fandango" is a showy piece, very well worked up as a vehicle for display, and containing some telling passages in double-stopping. Again the soloist succeeded in gaining the hearty sympathy and admiration of the audience. The programme opened with Mr. Mackenzie's poetic and picturesque Orchestral Ballad "La Belle Dame sans Merci," which we like better each time that we hear it, and closed with Sir G. A. Macfarren's spirited "Chevy Chase" Overture. Sir Arthur Sullivan conducted his Symphony—first brought out at the Crystal Palace twenty years ago—and secured a very fair interpretation, saving a little erratic conduct on the part of one of the bassoons. The composition is itself replete with genuine inspiration, and it is a matter for regret that a successor has not yet been given to the world. But, in the absence of this, at least the Symphony in E might be repeated oftener. Madame Clara Samuël sang the cavatina from "Der Freischütz," "Although a cloud," with which no fault was to be found, and a trivial ballad from Wallace's "Amber Witch," to which a good deal of exception might be taken.

MR. CHARLES HALLÉ'S CHAMBER CONCERTS.

THE title of "Summer Pops" which these performances have sometimes received is more than ever justified this season, as the quintet of artists engaged is precisely the same as that which delights the public at St. James's Hall during the winter. At present we can only speak of the first two Concerts, which took place on the 15th and 22nd ult., when, in spite of the rivalry of Señor Sarasate, the Prince's Hall was well filled. At the opening performance two exceptionally fine trios were given, Beethoven's in B flat (Op. 97), concerning which criticism is necessarily dumb, and Dvůřák's in F minor (Op. 65), which repeated hearings only serve to prove is one of its gifted composer's most inspired utterances. Mr. Hallé played Schumann's now familiar Sonata in G minor (Op. 22), in his most admirable manner, and Madame Norman-Neruda was equally perfect in Bach's Sonata in A. As the violoncellist was Signor Piatti, it is needless to say that his share in the performance was superbly rendered.

At the second Concert an interesting novelty was a Sonata in A minor, for piano and violoncello, by Grieg (Op. 36). The work has been heard at Mr. Dannreuther's Concerts, but not elsewhere, so far as we are aware, in London. The music of the Norwegian composer generally impresses at once by certain characteristic touches in his melodies, and this is pre-eminently the case with the present Sonata. Before twenty bars have been played we feel that the work must proceed from a Scandinavian source. The first movement is the weakest of the three, but even that is very pleasing, and the middle Andante is full of charm. Though somewhat loosely constructed, the Finale attracts by its freshness and vivacity, the principal theme resembling a national dance. There is nothing remarkable in the structural development of the material, but the subjects themselves being so pleasing this is of less consequence. The Sonata evidently delighted the audience, and is likely to be often heard. The remaining concerted works in the programme were Schumann's beautiful and too rarely heard Trio in F (Op. 80), and Beethoven's Variations on "Ich bin der Schneider Kakadu" (Op. 121A); and Mr. Hallé played Chopin's Impromptu in F sharp (Op. 36) and the Barcarole (Op. 60).

M. DE PACHMANN'S RECITALS.

VERY simply this gifted pianist decided to bring his season to a close before the arrival of his greater compatriot, Anton Rubinstein. While the sun is shining, even stars of the first magnitude cannot be seen, and it would have been unfortunate had the popular favour in which M. de Pachmann is held been permitted to decline even temporarily. His final Recital for the present was given on the 3rd ult., at St. James's Hall, which, as usual, was crowded with his admirers. The programme was more diversified and more ambitious than those of previous occasions, and included three important Sonatas. The first of these was Beethoven's in A (Op. 101), a work needing almost every quality in pianoforte playing for its perfect interpretation. We cannot say that M. de Pachmann was altogether successful, something of breadth and intellectuality being wanting. In Chopin's work in B flat minor he was altogether in his element, his rendering of the Scherzo being especially admirable. Weber's rarely heard, though very fine, Sonata in D (Op. 49) was also capably played, and brought the Recital to an effective termination. Included in the programme was a "Thème et Variations," by Madame de Pachmann-Okey, which, although not exhibiting any marked originality, showed that its composer, who is herself a capable pianist, can also write fluently. It is understood that M. de Pachmann will resume his Recitals in the autumn, when he will be welcome.

MESSRS. WILLEM COENEN, VICTOR BUZIAU, AND JULES LASSERRE'S CHAMBER CONCERTS.

THE first of two projected Concerts of Chamber Music, by the above combination of artists, took place on the 20th ult., at Prince's Hall, and, to judge from the aspect of the auditory on this occasion, the undertaking bids fair to be attended by every success. Artistically, indeed, such a result may be said to have been assured beforehand, both on account of the quality of the music foreshadowed in the programme, and the well-known merits of the artists engaged in its performance. As a matter of course, the triad of Concert-givers embraced the opportunity to introduce themselves to their audience in the execution of ensemble pieces written for their respective instruments, and, as a consequence, three (to keep in with the auspicious number) Pianoforte trios obtained a hearing in the course of the afternoon—viz., Schumann's in F (Op. 80); Rubinstein's in B flat (Op. 52); and Saint-Saëns's adaptation in that form of Liszt's Symphonic poem entitled "Orphée." All three were, on the whole, capably rendered, with an occasional preponderance, however, of Mr. Coenen's somewhat impetuous individuality. The latter characteristic, on the other hand, stood its possessor in excellent stead in his solo performance, consisting of two Etudes, by Chopin and Rubinstein respectively, which, in combination with the brilliant executive powers of the performer, produced a very marked impression, and apparently raised the question on the lips of many of his listeners, why a pianist possessing such vigorous and distinctive qualities is not more frequently heard in our public concert-rooms. Other instrumental solos were contributed by Mr. Buziau—viz., a Romance, by Liszt, and a Mazurka, by Dvorák, Mr. Lasserre playing with exquisite taste and refinement the obligato violoncello part to a song by Lachner, "I think of thee," Mrs. Hutchinson being the vocalist. The second Concert is announced to take place on the 3rd inst.

MADAME FRICKENHAUS AND HERR LUDWIG'S CHAMBER CONCERTS.

ENCOURAGED, no doubt, by the success which attended the first series of their Chamber Concerts last season, these able artists resumed their joint performances on the 6th ult., at Prince's Hall, before an audience as appreciative as it was numerous. Again, as on previous occasions, the standard aimed at, as regards the constitution of the programme, was that of the Monday Popular Concerts, to the pioneering efforts of which, in familiarising the public with absolute music of a high order, undertakings like the present may be said, in a great measure, to owe their existence. At the same time, the evident desire on the part of the Concert-givers to extend the somewhat conservative répertoire of the popular institution in favour of contemporary masters, detracts nothing from the interest attaching to their scheme, and indeed constitutes a distinctive merit thereof. Thus the Concert under notice commenced with Dvorák's characteristic Pianoforte Trio in F minor (Op. 65)—so reflective in some of its movements, more especially in the Allegretto grazioso, of the composer's Bohemian nationality—and concluded with Niels Gade's genial Octet in F major (Op. 17), for stringed instruments, the Concert-givers, in association with Mr. Whitehouse, having been the executants in the former, and Messrs. Ludwig, G. W. Collins, Gibson, Heydrich, Whitehouse, and Teague, Misses Lilian Griffiths, and Cardew (pupils of Herr Ludwig) in the latter work. The programme also included a very clever performance, by Madame Frickenhaus, of a Gigue, with variations, by Raff; Beethoven's Sonata in G major (Op. 30, No. 3), for pianoforte and violin, admirably played by the lady pianist and Herr Ludwig, and two violin solos contributed by the latter. Miss Amy Sherwin was the vocalist. The second Concert of the season (20th ult.) presented some equally attractive features. Rheinberger's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat (Op. 38), which opened the proceedings, affords a refreshing reminder of the fact that the art of constructing a bright and interesting tone-picture upon the symmetrical lines prescribed by the classical masters of chamber music is not, as yet, entirely lost. It was capably rendered by Madame Frickenhaus, Messrs. Ludwig, Gibson, and Whitehouse. Herr Ludwig proved himself a worthy pupil of Dr. Joachim, in his skillful performance of Tartini's famous "Trille du Diable," which was vociferously encored, that artist being also associated with Madame Frickenhaus in a very sympathetic reading of Gade's Sonata in D minor (Op. 21), for pianoforte and violin; a melodious work in which the influence of Mendelssohn upon its composer is plainly discernible. Chopin's Scherzo, No. 4, in E major, was brilliantly played by the lady pianist, the Concert concluding with Mozart's String Quartet in A major, very ably led by Herr Ludwig, assisted by Messrs. Gibson and Whitehouse. Vocal solos were contributed by Mdle. Aloof. Mr. Oliver King was an efficient accompanist on both the occasions recorded.

MR. OSCAR BERINGER'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL.

THE annual Recital of this gifted pianist took place on the 10th ult. at St. James's Hall, which was well filled. We have so frequently commented upon the brilliant and versatile qualities of this performer as to render a detailed notice of their renewed display on the present occasion unnecessary. It will be sufficient to state that in the stimulating presence of a highly sympathetic and appreciative audience Mr. Beringer acquitted himself of a somewhat arduous task in a manner calculated to add to the number of his already numerous admirers. The interesting and diversified programme comprised Beethoven's Sonata (Op. 27, No. 1), popularly known as the "Moonlight"; pieces by Nardini, Scarlatti, and Chopin; and five numbers by Liszt, including the Sonata (as the Hungarian master interprets that term) in B minor, the Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 12, and a charming paraphrase of some Polish airs. Vocal solos by Beethoven, Franz, Rubinstein, and Liszt were admirably declaimed by Madame Antoinette Sterling.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

It may be doubted whether any other music school or conservatorium in Europe could put forward such a thoroughly efficient orchestral force, drawn from the ranks of its students, as that over which Mr. Weist Hill holds control in the city. True, the immense number of pupils gives greater freedom of choice than is possible elsewhere, but a quantity of material does not necessarily imply a corresponding proportion of merit, and the excellence of the Guildhall players may fairly be set down to the system of training pursued by the conductor. It could not be said that any want of ambition was apparent in the programme of the Concert given on Saturday, the 8th ult. The first movement of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, the Vorspiel to "Lohengrin," and Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" Overture, are not pieces to be lightly taken, in hand. But although the whole of the strings, except three double bass players, and about half of the wind were students, the rendering of all the items was thoroughly satisfactory, even regarded from a high standpoint. The Wagner Prelude was especially well given, and aroused to enthusiasm the somewhat apathetic audience that attends these Concerts. Mr. John Saunders, a youthful pupil of Mr. Carodous, showed striking promise as a violinist in the first movement of Beethoven's Concerto. The best of the vocalists was Miss Caroline Norman, but it cannot be said that the making of a first-rate artist was displayed by any one of those who sang.

THE MEMORIAL TO SIR JOHN GOSS.

THERE was a numerous company of musicians at St. Paul's Cathedral on the afternoon of the 10th ult., when the monument erected by subscription to the memory of the late Sir John Goss was unveiled. The family of the deceased musician was represented by his widow, Lady Goss, his daughter, Mrs. Sampson, and his only surviving son, Mr. Walter Goss. The music at the afternoon service was selected from the compositions of Sir John Goss, and included chants in E and A flat, the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E, and the fine anthem "Praise the Lord." After the service a descent was made to the crypt, where Dr. Stainer first addressed the assembly, referring in eloquent terms to the genius of Sir John Goss as a church composer, and to his many admirable qualities of head and heart. Mr. T. L. Southgate, the Hon. Secretary of the Committee, explained the unavoidable absence of the Chairman, Sir Arthur Sullivan, after which the wooden screen before the memorial was removed. We extract the following description from the official report:—"The monument has been designed by Mr. J. Belcher. It is of a classic character, the principal material being alabaster, variety being obtained by white and black marble. The chief feature is a piece of carving in Carrara, by Mr. H. Thornycroft, A.R.A., representing five chorists with music books engaged in singing. Below this panel is the opening phrase of Sir John Goss's anthem 'If we believe that Jesus died,' and beneath is the inscription: 'In remembrance of Sir John Goss, Knight, Mus. Doc., Cantab. Composer to H.M. Chapels Royal, and for thirty-four years Organist and Vicar Choral of this Cathedral. Born 27 December, 1800. Died 10 May, 1886. His genius and skill are shown in the various compositions with which he has enriched the music of the church. His virtues and kindness of heart endeared him to his pupils and friends, who have erected this monument in token of their admiration and esteem.' The base of the monument is richly carved with floral arabesques intertwining with a lyre."

The subscribers afterwards adjourned to the Chapter House, where the final general meeting was held, with Dr. Stainer in the chair. The accounts were presented, from which it appeared that a sum of about £330 had been received, while in consequence of the generosity of Messrs. Belcher and Thornycroft in making only a nominal charge for their valuable services, the expenditure had only reached £212. It was moved by Mr. E. H. Turpin, and seconded by Mr. T. Dyson, that the surplus should be devoted to the augmentation of the Goss Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, and, after some discussion, the motion was carried. Votes of thanks were passed to Messrs. Belcher and Thornycroft, to the Dean and Chapter of St.

Paul's Cathedral, for permission to erect the monument, and also for the use of the Chapter House, to the Executive Committee, to Mr. T. L. Southgate, to Sir Arthur Sullivan, and to Dr. Stainer. Letters from the Bishop of Ely, the Rev. Thomas Helmore, and others, regretting their inability to attend, were taken as read, after which the meeting was dissolved.

"MORS ET VITA" IN PARIS.

M. GOUNOD's Sacred Trilogy "Mors et Vita" was performed, for the first time in France, on the 22nd ult., at the Paris Trocadero, under the personal direction of the composer. The instrumental and choral body comprised some four hundred executants, and the solo parts were entrusted to Mesdames Krauss (who had come from Vienna for the occasion) and Conneau, M. Faure, and Mr. Edward Lloyd. We must defer presenting our readers with a résumé of French opinions respecting the work, which cannot fail to prove interesting, and in the meantime quote the following remarks anent the performance from the pen of the Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, who says: "Not only was the orchestra above reproach, but the chorus singers, on whom the effect of the work so much depends, executed their important task with remarkable precision and effect. When the Maestro first appeared on the platform he was greeted with far more warmth than a French audience usually displays, and all the more melodious numbers of the fascinating work were applauded with fervid enthusiasm. Of the Requiem, that takes up nearly the whole of the first part, the most popular numbers proved to be the tuneful quartet 'Quid sum miser,' in which the splendid phrasing of Madame Krauss told with conspicuous effect; and the only tenor solo, 'Inter oves locum præsta,' wherein the beautiful quality of Mr. Lloyd's voice made an unmistakable impression. . . . The 'Lachrymosa' and 'Pie Jesu' were also much liked, while the chorus at the opening of the second part, 'Sedenti in Throno,' with its effective introduction and accompaniment for violins, was applauded until M. Gounod, after much hesitation, allowed it to be repeated. M. Faure, the finest living declaimer of sacred music, lent emphasis to every word he uttered, and Madame Conneau's sympathetic voice was heard with pleasure in all the concerted pieces in which she took part." The great hall of the Trocadero was well filled by a very select audience. The performance was to be repeated on the 30th ult.

"MORS ET VITA" AT TORONTO.

GOUNOD's latest Oratorio was produced at Toronto, with marked success, on the 4th ult., under the able direction of Mr. F. H. Torrington. The local journals are unanimous in praise of the musical merits of the work, and we regret that space will not allow us to do more than make a few short extracts from the notices. The Toronto World says:—

"An immense audience filled the Pavilion Music Hall last night, when the Philharmonic Society presented Gounod's now famous Oratorio 'Mors et Vita,' on the occasion of their second Concert (fourteenth season). The grand chorus consisted of 250 voices, and the orchestra of fifty performers, under the leadership of the Society's able conductor, F. H. Torrington, to whom is due great credit for the manner in which the great work was performed. The soloists were Mrs. Gertrude Luther, of Buffalo (soprano), Miss Ryan (alto), Charles H. Thompson, of New York (tenor), and Fred. Warrington (bass). The great reputation earned by 'Mors et Vita' at its initial performance at the Birmingham Festival last year, and the announcement that the Philharmonic would produce it in Toronto, for the first time in Canada, was a whet to the appetite of the city's music-loving public, and the admirable rendition of last night was such that those who had anticipated a great treat in the work and its execution were not disappointed. It is indeed a grand work, and it is well that it has been one of those chosen for the coming musical festival."

The Toronto Mail, after speaking of the first part of the work, continues as follows:—

"An orchestral prelude entitled 'The sleep of the dead' leads to a musical representation of the trumpets at the last judgment. An orchestra of eighteen brass instruments is employed in the score to depict this scene. The effect, as may be imagined, is exceedingly striking, and that it created a profound impression last night was evidenced by the applause. 'The resurrection of the dead' then leads to a sub-section entitled 'The judge.' Then the motive of happiness is amplified into a broad and beautiful melody-song by the strings in unison, and then utilised as an accompaniment to the chorus 'To God high enthroned.' A soprano solo, 'The righteous shall enter into glory eternal,' very melodious and of a light and felicitous style, and responded to by the soprano and contraltos of the chorus, is suggestive of the beatitude of the saved. This number was so enthusiastically applauded that Mr. Torrington conceded the encore. The demand was a significant indication of the predilections of the audience."

And the opinion of the Toronto News, chiefly upon the performance, is thus expressed:—

"The best people of the city filled the Pavilion last night to listen to Gounod's masterpiece, 'Mors et Vita.' The interpretation given to this magnificent composition by the Toronto Philharmonic Society was both effective and artistic in a high degree, and adds another laurel to the chaplet accorded by universal consent to Mr. Torrington as one of the ablest teachers and conductors on this continent. The chorus was perfectly balanced, and the singing throughout was characterised by an exactness of time and distinctness of phrasing that was most satisfactory. There was a slight dragging in one or two places, notably in the closing measures of the chorus 'Day of anger.' This, however, was more than atoned for by the firm, stately sweep and rhythmical precision with which they gave 'Sacrifice of prayer' and 'Lord, for ever let the light.' The closing chorus was magnificently rendered. The training and artistic ability of the orchestra was apparent throughout, and nowhere more so than in the opening symphony of the second part. Their rendition of the wonderful conception 'The trumpets of the Last Judgment' and 'The resurrection of the dead' was very effective."

We may mention that at the Grand Musical Festival which is to take place at Toronto during the present month "Mors et Vita" will be given on the first day.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It is only in keeping with the wave of fervent loyalty which has just swept over Liverpool, and attracted the eyes of the world to a grand and significant Royal pageant, that this notice should give precedence to the part which music has played in this memorable visit. Every journal in the land has already had its share in the description of the ceremony on the 11th ult., when Her Majesty the Queen opened in person the International Exhibition of Navigation, Travelling, Commerce, and Manufacture, which has expanded so rapidly from the comparatively recent inception of the idea. It is therefore unnecessary to add to the encomiums which have been so well deserved by our worthy mayor, Sir David Radcliffe, whose exertions in the progress of the work have been of a most practical and assiduous character. Like the building itself, however, the musical arrangements were greatly hurried at the last, and it was only about a fortnight prior to the event that the Philharmonic Choral Society was informed that it had been selected by the Executive Council to sing the choral music at the opening. The honour was eventually shared with the chorus of the Philharmonic Society, which it was subsequently arranged should assist at the ceremony, and thus increase the number of the voices to 400. We could have wished to have ignored the lamentably imperfect arrangements which had been made for the accommodation of the orchestra and choir, considering that the occasion was so novel and exceptional, and that a certain margin of incompleteness must always be accorded to every Exhibition of importance; but an incident which subsequently occurred during the ceremony necessitates some reference to this matter. The chorists took the lead on the entrance of the Queen by singing Sir Michael Costa's arrangement of the National Anthem, which was given with force and spirit, but the sentiment was taken up too enthusiastically by the cheering auditors, to the detriment of the musical effect. This was followed by the Overture, composed specially for the occasion by Mr. F. H. Cowen, in which, by Her Majesty's permission, was incorporated a Choral, from the hand of the late Prince Consort. And here Mr. Cowen, who had entire control of the music throughout, was subjected to a thoughtless slight, which surely could not have emanated from the Royal command. The Overture was proceeding, but it was evident that amidst the buzzing excitement of the concourse of people it could only be heard a very short distance from the orchestra; and then the Mayor, probably in his anxiety to conserve the dignity of the ceremony, but without properly appreciating the significance of such an act, sent a message to Mr. Cowen to cut the Overture short, which was accordingly done. We are glad to know, however, that the amende honorable for this palpable oversight has since been made. After the presentation of the address, the opening chorus, "All men, all things," from Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," was given by the combined orchestra and chorus, and notwithstanding the deficient acoustic properties of the vast building, the effect was fine and impressive. The ceremony finally concluded with "Rule Britannia," which again served as fuel to the enthusiasm of the 20,000 people present, and completed an event which, with all its imperfections, will ever live in the recollection of Liverpudlians.

Herr Richter's Concert at the Philharmonic Hall, on the evening of April 27, took place too late to be recorded in the May number. The musical success of this Concert was most pronounced, but we are afraid that the same cannot be said of the finances, as the stalls were not so well filled as might have been expected. The programme contained two examples of Wagner, the Overture to "Die Meistersinger," so buoyant and refreshing, and so varied from what is accepted as the usual Wagnerian style; and the "Siegfried" Idyll, which was composed on comparatively limited lines as a Serenade. There were also the Overture to Cherubini's "Anacreon" and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody. But the great piece of the evening was Beethoven's Choral Symphony, a work which still holds its commanding pre-eminence, and which, by its exacting difficulties, renders its performance only possible to executants of the very highest calibre. The soloists consisted of Mr. Franke's Vocal Quartet, Miss Hamlin, Miss Lena Little, Mr. W. J. Winch, and Mr. O. Fischer, the choral work devolving upon the Liverpool Philharmonic Choral Society, which had been specially engaged for the occasion. It is only by the most thorough acquaintance with every note that an adequate rendering of the vocal portion is at all possible, and this the Society had fortunately received by a careful training under its excellent chorusmaster, Mr. James Sanders. The result was therefore without a flaw, and the members of the Philharmonic Choral Society have not only earned the thanks and congratulations of Herr Richter, which he has communicated to them in a handsome letter, but they have assisted in a performance of the Ninth Symphony, which it would be almost impossible to excel.

Another visit from Señor Sarasate—a sure indication of the success of his previous appearances in this city. His programme on the 8th ult., in the Concert Room of St. George's Hall, included as special items Schumann's Sonata in A minor and Wieniawski's Concerto, No. 2. These again sufficiently asserted the Spanish artist's claim to a position of the very highest standing, and his wonderful facility in the manipulation of his instrument. Señor Sarasate was accompanied by Mr. Cor de Lass, who rendered with considerable energy and power on the pianoforte several examples of Rubinstein, Chopin, &c.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

DR. HANS RICHTER'S annual visit to Manchester was paid on Thursday, April 29, too late in the month to be reported in my last letter. For the first time we had something like a fair opportunity of judging the capacity of the popular Conductor, and of estimating his influence over his interpreters. At previous Concerts here his orchestra had been largely composed of local performers, accustomed to other guides and styles of direction. Doubtless for business reasons the resources of the district were utilised to the utmost; and the results of insufficient acquaintance with the peculiarities of the director, and of inadequate rehearsal, were distinctly apparent. Whatever may be our musical wants, beyond all question we do, during the winter months, enjoy great opportunities of growing familiar with orchestral effects, and of forming a reasonably good estimate of what is attainable by competent players accustomed to one another, and to a sympathetic control. Consequently, Dr. Richter's previous visits to this city have been made under somewhat disadvantageous circumstances. But for his recent presentation of orchestral works, he secured a large contingent of performers accustomed to his bâton; and by increased rehearsal, familiarised with his mannerisms. And so the effects were altogether more complete, spontaneous, and satisfactory. Not only were the strings brighter and fuller, the wind more delicate and more skilful in tempering the peculiar rising dissonances of Wagner's characteristic scoring, but the whole was better balanced, the various sections responding more readily one to another. Strangely, however, the old blare of trumpets and banging of drums were tolerated, and it is evident, therefore, that the perfect conductor has not yet appeared.

I have dwelt thus upon the style of performance, because that forms the almost sole attraction and interest of Dr. Richter's visits here. The programme contained no novelty to a Manchester audience; and, indeed, was only very slightly varied from the schemes of former years. The "Eroica" we know; and Dr. Richter's idea of it we have had previous opportunities of testing. The Vorspiel to "Die Meistersinger" has become familiar. Mr. Hallé, several seasons ago, introduced us to Glinka's "Komarinskaja," in which sparkling orchestration does something to atone for, or hide, triviality of idea and workmanship. And, with all respect to its erudite author, and to those who, having got into the way of extolling all his works, persist in repeating the stock phrases with which for the last thirty years we have been regaled, I cannot help saying that "Anacreon" might now be allowed a little rest. The Hungarian Rhapsody in F (Liszt's No. 1) was very attractive at first; but we have heard it over and over again, and in all forms, and we would like a little relief.

At the Concert Hall, Señor Sarasate and Mr. Cusins gave a Violin and Pianoforte Recital, on the 3rd ult. The audience was more select than remunerative, as is usually the case here whenever any but the most familiar artists appear. The technical skill of the great Spanish violinist excited deserved applause; but a certain breadth of rendering, with which other players of first rank have charmed us, was missed. Absolute certainty of intonation and of execution, with a wonderful resonance and equality of tone, Señor Sarasate undoubtedly possesses, but, perhaps, a more reverent subordination of the player to the composer, of the messenger to the message, might be desired.

The Gentlemen's Concerts gracefully and appropriately concluded on Monday afternoon, the 17th ult., by a Pianoforte Recital, in which Miss Fanny Davies immensely increased the interest she a short time ago created in the same room. During the season the popularity of afternoon performances has been distinctly proved, and the wise path of the directors of the Concert Hall marked out. The capabilities of our native artists have also been largely insisted upon, and a prudent economy been shown to be feasible. In every way, therefore, the final gathering of the season was judiciously planned. A large audience assembled to listen to a young English player, not only of highest promise, but of present attainment. The programme embraced a very wide range in the development of pianoforte music, and demanded great executive skill and versatility of resource on the part of the interpreter. But, in Beethoven's Op. 101, and Schumann's "Études Symphoniques," especially, Miss Davies exhibited all the qualities of an experienced and a self-reliant player of the first rank.

Unfortunately for the enthronement of our new bishop, the cathedral organ—owing to repairs of the building—was not available; so that the musical part of the service was not impressive. The anthem "Awake," was not a wise selection.

Mr. Walter Parratt gave an Organ Recital in this neighbourhood on the 11th ult., at which Mrs. Stoney, one of our most promising local sopranis, sang "I know that my Redeemer" with great expression, and "From mighty Kings" with admirable power. The programme comprised Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D minor, and Handel's Concerto in A major.

On Saturday, the 22nd ult., Messrs. Seymour Jackson and Fred. Gordon ventured upon a joint benefit Concert before the former gentleman joins the Carl Rosa Company. As a purely local undertaking, the whole performance was extremely creditable. Miss Conway possesses a mezzo-soprano voice worthy of cultivation, and Miss Dewes sings with expression songs of somewhat mournful character. Mr. Gordon essayed "Honour and arms," and Mr. Jackson gave "Sound an alarm" with general acceptance. Mr. Pyne played Rheinberger's Concerto with accompaniment for strings and three horns, affording another evidence of the difficulty of effectively combining organ and orchestra. In spite of the skill of the soloist, the result was very patchy, the power of the organ causing the accessory instruments to sound fidgety rather than helpful, especially when, with strange want of judgment, the already feeble strings were muted.

At an interesting meeting of the members of the St. Cecilia Amateur Choral Society a silver service, of vase, basket, and trays, was presented to Mr. Hecht, as an expression of the regard entertained for him, and as a recognition of his energetic services on behalf of the Society during the past twenty-five years.

Herr Rubinstein's Recital, on the 25th, was arranged to show the chronological development of original clavier and harpsichord music, from William Bird's "Carman's Whistle" and Dr. John Bull's "The King's Hunting Jig" to the smaller compositions, such as the "Rondo alla Turca," of Mozart. The next performance will carry on the history to the present treatment of our household instrument, and will, probably, more thoroughly interest a miscellaneous audience. Herr Rubinstein's playing of Bach's Chromatic Fantasia is pretty generally known. Scarlatti's "Cat's Fugue," also, is not altogether a novelty. Of the less familiar works, Rameau's "Gavotte avec Variations" excited great favour, while the extraordinary rapidity with which the great player rendered Scarlatti's Sonata in A roused the enthusiasm of the vast audience. Still, the favourite pieces were those selected from Handel. Even those, certainly strange to most present, appealed with a definiteness of aim and with a concentrated purpose that made them stand out amid much that was vague. It is very questionable whether such a long selection of music of somewhat uniform style could ever be heard with entirely sustained interest, and the fact that upwards of three thousand people sat to the end of the performance proves not only the popularity of the executant, but a genuine love of music even of an entirely unexciting character.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The month of flowers has not been very fruitful here in events of serious musical interest, though the quantity of music performed has been in excess of that of previous months, and, so far as could be judged from the appearance of the audiences, considerably in excess also of public requirements. This remark applies more particularly to operatic music, serious and comic, which has been a prominent feature at two out of our three local theatres during a great part of the month. Concert music of the orthodox kind has been, on the other hand, remarkably scarce, the only entertainment of importance being the closing Concert of Mr. Stockley's orchestral series, which took place in the Town Hall on the 6th ult.

The interest of this event centred in the production for the first time, under the composer's direction, of a new concert Overture by Dr. J. F. Bridge, organist of Westminster Abbey, entitled "Morte d'Arthur," and based, as the name implies, upon Tennyson's beautiful setting of this section of the Arthurian legend. Whilst preserving the orthodox overture form, the composer has so far moulded it to the varying exigencies of the poetic situation that his work must be classed strictly as programme music, of which it may be pronounced at once an admirable example. An Preserve me, O God.

June 1, 1886.

ANTHEM FOR SOLO AND CHORUS.

Psalm xvi. 1-3, 7, 8 (Bible Version).

Composed by CHARLES SALAMAN (1884).

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

VOICE.

Andante con moto.

ORGAN.

Andante con moto.

sostenuto.
pp Sw. 8 ft.

Ped. soft 16 ft. (Sw. coupd.)

Alto Solo.

pp

Pre - serve me, O

God, for in Thee do I put my trust, pre - serve me, O God, for in cres.

Thee do I put my trust. O my soul, my soul, Thou hast said, Thou hast add Oboe. cres.

said un - to the Lord, Thou art my God,

Thou art my God, my glad-ness is cen-tred in . . Thee, and in the pi-ous of the earth, and the ex-cel-lent, in whom, in whom is all my delight. I will

SOPRANO. In whom is all my de-light, in whom is all my de-light.

ALTO. In whom is all my de-light, in whom is all my de-light.

TENOR. In whom is all my de-light, in whom is all my de-light.

BASS. In whom is all my de-light, in whom is all my de-light.

In whom is all my de-light, in whom is all my de-light.

Gt. Full to 15th. sf Sw. p Ch. 8 ft.

Con anima.

mf cres. f

I will bless the Lord. I will set the Lord al-ways be-fore me, I . .

mf

I will bless the Lord, bless . . the Lord.

mf

I will bless the Lord, bless . . the Lord.

mf

I . . . will bless the Lord, bless the Lord.

mf

I will bless the Lord, I will bless . . the Lord.

add 4 fl. Sv. cres.

. . . will set the Lord be-fore me.

pp

Pre-serve me, O God, for in

pp

Pre-serve me, pre-serve me, O God, in

pp

Pre-serve me, pre-serve me, pre-serve . . me, pre -

pp

Pre-serve me, pre-serve . . me, pre -

pp

p cres.
 Pre - serve me, O God, for in Thee do I put my
p cres.
 Thee do I put my trust, pre - serve me, O God, for in Thee do I put my
p cres.
 Thee do I put my trust, O God, pre - serve me, O God, for in Thee do I put my
p cres.
 - serve . . . me, O God, pre - serve me, O God, for in Thee do I put my
p cres.
 - serve . . . me, O God, pre - serve me, O God, for in Thee do I put my Gt. Sft. Coup. Sw. to Gt.

p cres.
 trust, for in Thee, for in Thee do I put my trust, my
p cres.
 trust, for in Thee, . . for in Thee do I put my trust, my
p cres.
 trust, for in Thee do I put my trust, my
p cres.
 trust, for in Thee do I put my
p cres.
 trust, for in . . Thee do I put my trust, my
Sw. cres.

trust. Be-cause He is at my right hand, I shall not be mov - ed. O trust. Be-cause He is at my right hand, I shall not be mov - ed.

trust. Be-cause He is at my right hand, I shall not be mov - ed.

trust. Be-cause He is at my right hand, I shall not be mov - ed.

trust, my trust. Be-cause He is at my right hand, I shall not be mov - ed.

Gt.

sf sf sf sf sf sf

God, pre - serve me! A - men.

Pre - serve me, O God! A - men, A - men.

God pre - serve me! A - men, A - men.

God pre - serve . . . me! A - men, A - men.

God pre - serve me! A-men, A - men.

Oboe in.

sf dim. Sr. p sf rit.

introduction in C minor, triple time, illustrating the lines

So, all day long, the noise of battle roll'd
Among the mountains of the winter sea ;

is appropriately energetic and martial in character, with bold vigorous phrases for the strings, emphasised by trombones and drums, and alternating passages for the woodwind. An expressive phrase for the horn ushers in the overture proper, opening with an Allegro for which the poetic material is derived from the dialogue between the wounded king and his faithful follower, bold Sir Redivere, the casting of the wondrous brand Excalibur into the mere, and the king's vision of the island valley of Avilion. The melody in which this vision is suggested is one of rare refinement and melodic beauty, and the Coda suggested by the disappearance of the barge with its royal burden, is both appropriate in feeling and ingenious and felicitous in construction. The work altogether is a masterly one, though more than one hearing is evidently needed to fathom its full significance. On the conclusion of the performance, which reflected great credit on the band, Dr. Bridge was honoured with a hearty recall.

Next in interest and novelty to Dr. Bridge's Overture came a Symphony (No. 1) for organ and orchestra, by Mr. A. Guilman. The work, which is entirely modern in feeling and treatment, and reveals few traces of the influence of the old contrapuntal school, consists of an introduction and three movements, of which the two first are partially fugal, but, perhaps, its most pleasing feature is the Choral, which occurs in the second movement, a Pastorale andante. It was capably played by Mr. Stimpson and the band. Gade's Symphony in C minor (Op. 5), which served in 1843 to introduce the composer to Mendelssohn and Schumann, is still seemingly as fresh and characteristic as when it was first heard in this country. Of the remaining orchestral items, the Overture to "Der Freischütz," and the brilliant Hungarian March from Berlioz's "Faust," it would be superfluous to speak. The vocalists were Madame Clara Samuelli and Mr. Edward Lloyd.

The Anniversary services of the Church of the Redeemer on the evening of the 25th, were distinguished by a very creditable performance, so far as the resources would permit, of Gounod's "Mors et Vita," with the assistance of a choir of seventy voices.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A VISIT from Herr Richter and his famous orchestra is a rare event in Yorkshire, and amateurs, already involved in obligation as they are to the promoter of the Leeds Popular Concerts, owe him especial thanks for the Concert which was given in the Leeds Coliseum on the 28th of April. The Concert was an extra one, the series originally announced for the season having been completed some time previously. It nevertheless rounded off in brilliant fashion a season of more than usual interest. The Concert was interesting in more senses than one, for the chief work selected for performance was Beethoven's Choral Symphony, which has not been heard here since the Musical Festival of 1880. With the recollection of that magnificent effort still fresh, it was only natural that Yorkshire musicians should attach exceptional importance to Herr Richter's Concert. The performance was a remarkably fine one. The chorus was that of the Leeds Philharmonic Society, supplemented by a contingent of the Dewsbury Choral Society, all of whom, along with their Conductor, Mr. Alfred Broughton, gave their services gratuitously. The voices were well balanced, full, and fresh, and they sang with a precision and spirit which appears to have commanded even the admiration of Herr Richter himself, who, a few days afterwards, wrote to Mr. Broughton, expressing his high sense of appreciation for their efforts. The orchestral work too was given with great finish, and although the performance as a whole may not have equalled in grandeur that of the Festival alluded to, it was no less impressive and abiding in its effect. As was to be expected, Wagner had an important place in a Concert for which so zealous a disciple was chiefly responsible. He was represented by the characteristic and remarkable Overture to "Die Meistersinger," and the "Siegfried" Idyll. To both these compositions the orchestra did full justice. A finer rendering of the Prelude could scarcely have been given, the Leitmotive being brought out in fine contrast, and the elaborate harmonies being reproduced with clearness and brilliancy. Two other works only were rendered—Cherubini's Overture to "Anacreon" and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody" in F, the former a joyous refreshing contrast to the severe Wagnerian fare, and the latter a fanciful and highly coloured work, which formed a brilliant Finale to the Concert. It should be added, that in the performance of the Choral Symphony, good service was rendered by the soloists, Miss Hamlin, Miss Lena Little, Mr. Winch, and Mr. Fischer.

The Manningham Vocal Union gave a very intelligent performance of Mr. Cowen's Birmingham Cantata "Sleeping Beauty," in the Bradford Grammar School, on April 30. The chorus gave a fairly satisfactory account of an exceedingly delicate and difficult task. Their rendering of the graceful and suggestive chorus of good fays, "Draw the thread and weave the woof," was one of their best efforts. The pianissimo passages generally were well marked, and the quality of tone was pure and well balanced. The orchestra was the weakest element, and although excellently led, betrayed many shortcomings. The test was undoubtedly a severe one for the band of the New Philharmonic Society. The soloists were Miss Norton, Mrs. Ashcroft Clarke, Mr. W. J. Newton—who gave a very fine rendering of the Prince's Scene, "Light, light at last"—and Mr. Newton Laycock. The Conductor was Mr. J. H. Rooks. The second part of the Concert included songs by Miss Weber, Mr. Holdsworth, and Mr. Arthur Broughton, a piano solo by Miss M. E. Dyson, and Mozart's Symphony in E flat. The money realised by the Concert was devoted to the Bradford Blind Institute.

The Bradford Old Choral Society gave Weber's Mass in G, and Romberg's "Lay of the Bell," in the Mannville Schoolroom, on the 7th ult. The two interesting works received fair treatment. The chorus sang the Mass music with excellent effect, and their efforts were ably supplemented by the Society's orchestra, who rendered the rich accompaniments with precision and animation. The soloists were Mrs. Stevenson-Arnold, Mrs. Ashcroft Clarke, Mr. H. Waddington, and Mr. G. H. Hartley. Mr. T. Ward conducted zealously and successfully.

MUSIC IN THE WEST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE fourth of the series of the Monday Popular Concerts for the present season was given at the Colston Hall, Bristol, on Easter Monday, before a somewhat limited audience. Perhaps there were other predominant attractions just at this time, but certainly the numbers were thinner even than is usual. The programme was, on the whole, hardly so interesting as many that are presented to us; but there were several works of great merit, the chief feature being Mr. Prout's first Organ Concerto in E minor, which was conducted by the composer, and most warmly received. Mr. George Riseley presided at the organ, and his masterly and spirited performance of his most difficult task left nothing to be desired. We have before had the opportunity of hearing this admirable work under the same auspices, and the audience seemed to enjoy it even more than on the former occasion, and both composer and soloist were obliged to return to bow their acknowledgments. The members of the band distinguished themselves even more than usual in the Overture to "Tannhäuser," with which the Concert opened, and also played the March from Raff's Symphony, No. 5, in E, very well. The other items were a pleasing Overture, entitled "Spring," written by Miss Ellicott, daughter of the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, Mendelssohn's Capriccio Brillant in B, for pianoforte and orchestra, in which Miss Bennett sustained the solo part very creditably, a cornet solo Fantasia, "Torquato Tasso" (Donizetti), splendidly played by Mr. Ellis, Langer's Duet for two violins, "Grossmutterchen," and a selection from "The Pirates of Penzance." The vocalists were Miss Fryer, Miss E. Lloyd, and Mr. Montague Worlock, whose several contributions were heartily applauded.

The fifth of these Concerts, which took place on the 10th ult., was one of special interest, as it witnessed the production for the first time in Bristol of Berlioz's Grand Symphonie Fantastique, "Episode de la vie d'un Artiste" (Op. 4), in five parts. No trouble was spared to ensure a worthy production of this truly great work, and the result of many careful rehearsals was an excellent performance. The difficulties are very great, and entailed much study on the part of every member of the band ere they could be satisfactorily surmounted. The band was augmented for this occasion, as was indeed necessary, for the score, besides the usual complement of strings and wind, contains an E flat clarinet, a cor Anglais, four bassoons, two ophicleides, two pair of drums, with four players; four harps, and two large bells, which were specially cast for this Concert by Messrs. Lewellins and James, of Castle Green, Bristol. The audience warmed to the work in a remarkable manner. The bright and taking second part first seemed to rouse them, and the novel effect produced by the four drums in Part 3 excited unwonted enthusiasm; certainly the "mimic thunder" was most splendidly managed, and too much praise can hardly be awarded to the band for the beautiful rendering of the tender pastoral phrases of this movement. The dramatic fourth movement was very successfully given, and the last part, in which, as Schumann confesses, "all goes head over heels," seemed to leave us with a great notion of the genius of the composer, who by means of music could call such strange and weird scenes into being. Mr. Riseley must be heartily congratulated on the entire success of his arduous undertaking. A large audience was present, though how much the announcement of startling novelties in the way of drums, bells, &c., had to do with the presence of a good many of those assembled, it is perhaps well not to enquire. We can only briefly notice the second part of the programme. The orchestral portion consisted of ballet music, "Samson and Dalila," (Saint-Saëns); Introduction to the third act of the "Meistersinger" and the "Ride of the Walküre" (Wagner); Prelude, "Le dernier sommeil d'une Vierge" (Massenet); and Rhapsody, No. 1, in F (Liszt). The vocalists were Miss Hannah Jones and Mr. J. F. Nash, of Bristol Cathedral.

The Grammar School, Warminster, more than sustained its reputation on Easter Tuesday, when it gave, at its annual Invitation Concert, three complete works—Macfarren's "May Day," Beethoven's Second Symphony, and Weber's "Preciosa," in Cantata form, as published by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co. The choir sang with precision, force, and delicacy, and the observance throughout the whole Concert of light and shade, and all the gradations from pp to ff, conveyed a lesson to a crowded and interested audience of 600. The chorus numbered about sixty voices, and the orchestra, a complete one, about thirty executants. The latter deserve especial praise for their spirited and admirable rendering of the Symphony, and Weber's brilliant and melodious Overture to "Preciosa." To Dr. Alcock, the head master, who originated and conducts these Concerts, and to the numerous members of his family who assist at them, thanks are freely given.

The Sarum Choral Society gave an excellent performance of "Elijah," in the Assembly Rooms, Salisbury, on the 5th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Aylward. The principal vocalists were Madame Wilson-Osman, Mdle. Hélène Arnim, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Thorndike, while the orchestra (which included all the principal professionals and amateurs in Salisbury) was reinforced by Mr. Burnett (leader), Mr. Whitehouse (cello), Mr. C. White (double-bass), and a full complement of wind from London. It being the week of the Synod, there was a large audience, and the Oratorio went without a hitch, giving the greatest satisfaction, and eliciting the general verdict that the Concert was the finest yet given by the Society.

The annual Morning and Evening Concerts of the Western Counties Musical Association were given in the Victoria Hall, Exeter, on April 29. The works selected for performance were Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and Sir G. Macfarren's "Lady of the Lake," Beethoven's Overture to "Egmont," Wagner's "Tannhäuser" March, and a double-bass solo. There was a crowded audience in the afternoon to hear the "Elijah," which was very creditably performed; but neither the audience nor the performance were so good in the evening. The "Egmont" Overture was very fairly played, and the March from "Tannhäuser" went well, and was much applauded, as was also Mr. Reynolds's very clever performance of De Beriot's Fifth Air, with variations, as double-bass solo. The performance of "The Lady of the Lake," however, left much to be desired, the orchestra showing an evident lack of sufficient rehearsal. This was also the case with some of the chorus work, though the first and second choruses, and the "Coronach" were well sung, and sustained the previous reputation of the Association. The principals, Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Henden Warde, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Watkin Mills, were all thoroughly efficient. Mr. D. J. Wood, Mus. Bac., Organist of the Cathedral, conducted throughout with ability and judgment.

The Salisbury Vocal Union gave their 22nd Concert in the Hamilton Hall, Salisbury, on the 17th ult. The first part was devoted to a selection from "Judas Maccabæus," which was exceedingly well rendered by a band and chorus of eighty performers. The second part was a miscellaneous selection of overtures, part-songs, and vocal solos. The soloists were Miss Julia Jones, Mrs. Alexander Colbourne, Mr. J. M. Hayden, and Mr. Arthur Crick. Mr. Calkin led the band, Miss Winifred Harwood presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. J. M. Hayden conducted, as usual.

The Bath Choral Union gave their third Concert for this season on the 11th ult., when Cowen's Cantata "Sleeping Beauty" was performed in a creditable manner. On the next evening the Orchestral Society gave their last Concert for the season at the Assembly Rooms, Bath, with Miss Alice Grey and Mr. G. Miles as vocalists, and Herr Van Praag as solo violinist, and this was followed on the 17th ult. by a grand Choral Concert, by the Bath Philharmonic Society, under the directorship of Mr. Albert Visetti. The programme consisted of choice selections from Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, Liszt, Sullivan, Schumann, &c. Madrigals, by Pyne and Pierraccini (Bath), and also compositions written especially for this Concert by Dr. Bridge and Mr. Albert Visetti. There was a full accompaniment of harp, organ, and strings, and the Concert was a great success.

Dvořák's work, "The Spectre's Bride," was performed by Mr. Riseley at the last of the Monday Popular Concerts for the season, on the 24th ult. A notice will appear next month.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MR. FRANKLIN PETERSON gave the second of his Historical Recitals on April 20; it consisted of selections from the more modern composers for the organ, Rheinberger, Guilmant, and Liszt. Miss Annie Grey sang Topli's "Consider the lilies" and Sullivan's "And God shall wipe away all tears."

On April 27, Señor Sarasate and Mr. Cusins gave a second Recital, which, needless to say, was a great pleasure to all present; the performance was warmly applauded.

On the evening of the 10th ult., Herr Otto Schweizer gave, by invitation, his annual Private Pupils' Concert. He was assisted in the vocal department by Miss Annie Grey, who was much appreciated in her rendering of "The flowers of the forest," and Mr. Arthur Edmunds, whose flexible voice and tasteful style always make him welcome. The most noteworthy performance was that of a young lady who played Schumann's A minor Concerto and Chopin's Nocturne in G major (Op. 37, No. 2).

Herr Gallrein gave his fifth Chamber Concert on the 11th ult., when he was ably assisted by Mr. Della Torre (pianist), Mrs. Jamieson, and Miss Annie Grey.

A Recital of sacred music took place in St. Vincent's Church, on the 13th ult. Mr. Arthur Edmunds contributed solos, among which Mendelssohn's "If with all your hearts," was conspicuous by the finished rendering it received. Mr. Gilbert Ferrier gave a Chamber Concert, assisted by Messrs. Cole, Daly, and Walton. His solos, carefully interpreted, were selections from Chopin and Scharwenka, and the concerted pieces included both Schumann's and Rheinberger's Quartets in E flat.

The Saint Giles's Choral Society performed "Samson" in the old Cathedral on the evening of the 21st ult. The solo parts were sustained by artists from London: Mdle. José Sherrington, Miss Emily Dones, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Arthur Rousbey. Mr. Hartley was Organist, and Mr. Sinclair, Conductor.

Mr. Carl Rosa's Opera Company visited Edinburgh this month. The principal artists were Mesdames Marie Roze, Julia Gaylord, Georgina Burns, and Jennie Dickenson, and Messrs. McGuckin, Esmond, Sauvage, Burgon, and Max Eugene. The novelty produced was "Fadette."

MUSIC IN GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The following Concerts took place at the end of April, too late for being mentioned in my May letter:—A performance of Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion," with other shorter selections, by the Musical Association of St. James's Established Church (Mr. Sweeney conducting, and of Weber's Mass in G, and other sacred and secular music, by the Choir of Laurieston Established Church, under Mr. Threshie's direction, both Concerts being on the 27th of April. A Concert of Secular Music, chiefly glees and part-songs, was likewise given by the Choir of Camphill United Presbyterian Church on the 29th of that month. The last-mentioned choir, it may be added, intends to produce Anderton's Cantata, "Yule-tide," next Christmas.

The Bothwell Musical Association, which is under the conductorship of Mr. Hugh McNabb, held its annual Concert on the 7th ult., when E. C. Such's Cantata, "Narcissus and Echo," formed the chief part of the programme. A very fair rendering was given of this agreeable composition, but the Concert in other respects was hardly what might have been looked for from the presumed musical acquirements of the members. Solos and such miscellanea are indeed the weak point generally in our smaller amateur Societies.

The annual Concert by the Glasgow Academy Choir (present pupils, boys, taking the treble and alto parts, and former scholars the tenor and bass) is generally the last event of the season, but by no means the least in importance, and that it still holds its place in public estimation was evident from the crowded and fashionable audience which gathered in the Queen's Rooms, on the 14th ult., at this, the eighth Concert. The chief composition performed was the new Cantata by Gustav Ernest, "Love's Conquest." It received a very creditable interpretation, the one drawback in its representation being the want of treble solo voices, which arose from an unavoidable and unexpected contingency not unfamiliar to those in charge of boys' choirs. The treble solos were allotted, under the circumstances, to a select body of twenty voices or so, which, on the whole, supplied the want acceptably. The Cantata, which is elegant and melodious, pleased very much. The pianoforte part was played by Mrs. MacLaren, and that for the harmonium, specially written for this performance by the composer, by Mr. C. H. Woolnoth. An anthem for first and second trebles, "If ye then be risen with Christ," and the Chorus of Handmaidens, from "Fridolin," "The Fay's Song," by Henry Smart, and other selections of similar character, together with solos, &c., by old Academy pupils, made up altogether an excellent programme, and the tuneful singing of the choir, their correct time, and their distinctness of pronunciation, were features highly creditable to the training of Mr. John MacLaren, their enthusiastic Conductor.

The members of the Glasgow Society of Musicians dined together for the last time this season, on the 6th ult. They have met thus prandially, if I may coin a word, once a month, sometimes twice, since October last, enjoying music of a high-class character as well as a good dinner; but while thus mindful of themselves, they have not been neglectful of strangers (musicians, of course). Among the most distinguished of their guests during the season were Herr Richter, Mr. A. C. Mackenzie, Mr. F. Hueffer, Mr. W. A. Barrett, and Mr. Alfred Littleton. Several Symposia have also been held, at which, at a sort of smoking lecture, papers were read by members on various interesting subjects, including one on "Sound propagation," with experimental illustrations, by Professor Mackendrick, a member of the Society.

I wish to correct an error I inadvertently made last month in the name of the composer of "Silvia," when noticing the performance of the Cantata at Johnstone. I should have written Louis N. Parker, of course, not F. Parker.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

New York, May 10, 1886.

I HAVE delayed a final review of the musical season in this City till the present moment, in order to include in it the principal achievements in all the departments of musical activity. Just now the American metropolis is enjoying a period of richly deserved rest after a season unexampled in the history of music in this country. Mr. Thomas brought his series of Popular Concerts to a close on April 15; two days later the American Opera Company gave its last representation at the Academy of Music, and immediately set out upon a tour which is to include the chief cities of the East and West. With the departure of Mr. Thomas and the forces under him, the local season virtually came to an end, although New York has continued since to enjoy as much music as any other city in the country, and new compositions have kept blossoming at opera house and concert hall. Thus an ambitious amateur conductor brought forward Massenet's "Mary Magdalen," on April 17; Dr. Van der Stucken and his German male chorus, the Arion Society, signalled the 18th by giving a Concert in which every work produced was novel to America, the more important compositions in the list being Gade's Orchestral Suite, composed for the celebration of Holberg's two-hundredth anniversary and entitled "Holbergiana"; Bernhard Scholz's "Das Siegesfest" cantata; and a Pianoforte Concerto in C minor, composed and performed by Louis Maas, formerly a teacher in the Leipzig Conservatory, now of Boston. On the same evening, Mr. Reinhold L. Herman, the conductor of the leading German Musical Association, the Liederkrantz, gave a performance of a setting for solo voices, mixed chorus, and orchestra, of Hood's "Bridge of Sighs," his own composition. Since then Mr. Dudley Buck has produced a cantata for solo voices, male chorus, and orchestra, entitled "The Voyage of Columbus," of which the authorship of both words and music is his, and that venerable relic of a bygone age, the Chevalier Antoine de Kontski, has written and given public representation to a comic opera, in French, which he named "The Sultan of Zanzibar," and produced for the double purpose, so he gave out, of benefiting the Polish exiles in America and satirising the political policy of Prince Bismarck with reference to the Chevalier's countrymen.

The occurrences which have exerted a dominant influence over the entire season have been those which have been under the direction of Mr. Theodore Thomas—the Popular Concerts and the representations of the American Opera Company. Neither enterprise turned out financially successful, though both were richly productive of interesting and instructive artistic results. The Concerts numbered forty-eight, two being given each week between the beginning of November and the middle of April. The programmes were, for the greater part, made up of selections from the standard repertory. The plan of devoting entire evenings to the compositions of single composers was abandoned early in the series, from a fear that the public would think such Concerts heavy. The desired degree of lightness was afterward secured by frequent performances of ballet music and short pieces. A review of the programmes shows that about fifty composers were represented with one hundred and fifty compositions. Beethoven had the greatest number of performances, thirty; Wagner came next with twenty-six, and the succeeding half-dozen ranked as follows:—Liszt, nineteen; Rubinstein, eighteen; Schubert and Mendelssohn, fifteen each; Berlioz, thirteen; Saint-Saëns, twelve; and Weber, eleven. The list of novelties was not large, and, to the disappointment of the advocates of the national movement, contained only one work by an American composer. The writers who contributed the novelties were Rubinstein, Tschaiakowsky, Fuchs, Svendsen, Dvorák, Silas G. Pratt, Borodin, Gernsheim, Bruch, and Delibes. Dvorák's works have won a decided popularity in our concert rooms, especially the Scherzo Capriccioso (Op. 66), which Mr. Thomas introduced here in the season of 1884-85, and which occupied places in a Philharmonic as well as a popular scheme this season. To the production of his Birmingham Cantata by the Brooklyn Philharmonic Society

I will recur later. Partly, I fancy, because the Concerts were not financially profitable, partly, may be, because Mr. Thomas's opera schemes make it impossible, the Thomas Concerts next season will be limited to six in the evening and twelve in the afternoon.

The American Opera Company is reaping a much greater degree of popular success in other cities than it reaped here. The fact is, of course, easy of explanation. No other city in the United States has been called on, like New York, to patronise one hundred and twenty-seven representations of Grand Opera, to say nothing of several times as many performances of operettas within six months; and no other city has had its standard of judgment pitched by representations of such admirable excellence as those given at the Metropolitan Opera House. To the people outside of New York the American Opera has come with a brilliancy of scenery, a sumptuousness of attire, which have been almost as irresistible as they were novel to them. The success of the institution in Boston was unparalleled, and was beautifully supplemented by the organisation of a society having for its aim the encouragement of American opera. The same step was taken in Philadelphia and Baltimore, and it now looks as if the New York enterprise was to become a national one, and the metropolis was to be yielded up to the managers of the German Opera at the Metropolitan Opera House. Perhaps Mr. Thomas has taken a leaf from Mr. Carl Rosa's book of experiences. The company gave fifty-six performances in New York, the operas being, "The Taming of the Shrew," "Orpheus and Eurydice," "Lohengrin," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "The Flying Dutchman," "Lakmé," "The Magic Flute," and Massé's "Marriage of Jeannette." The last-named pretty little work was given as a companion piece to Delibes's ballet "Sylvia," "Aida" and "Néro," which were announced as in study, were not given. The Company is now in the West and will enjoy a needed rest during next week, when Mr. Thomas and his orchestra will be engaged in the Musical Festival at Cincinnati. This Festival, by the way, is the seventh of the biennial Festivals established by Mr. Thomas in 1873. The principal choral numbers to be performed are Bach's B minor Mass, Haydn's "Creation," Rubinstein's "Tower of Babel," and Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust." An account of it will occupy my next letter.

In Brooklyn, on March 20, Dvorák's "Spectre's Bride" was performed under Mr. Thomas's direction. The solo parts, with one exception, were in good hands—namely, in those of Madame Helene Hastreiter, Mr. William Ludwig, and Mr. Whitney Mockridge. The latter gentleman was not up to the requirements of the score. The orchestra was admirable, the chorus sang spiritedly, and the Cantata achieved the most decided success of any new work brought out here this season, with the exception of the operatic novelties.

The Boston Symphony orchestra, after completing its series of twenty-four weekly Concerts, visited a number of cities, giving Concerts under the direction of Herr Gericke. The tour was undertaken to keep the musicians together a longer time than has been done heretofore, and thereby to increase their proficiency. With the same end in view, a series of Popular Concerts is now being given. Mr. Mapleson's Italian opera was shipwrecked in California, and the destruction was so much more complete than usual that New York will be spared the usual spring visitation. The same fate overtook Emma Nevada's Concert company. Such wrecks, when considered in connection with the successful ventures of the season, cause no heart pang.

MUSICAL MEETINGS IN WALES.

THE Eisteddfod seems to be as popular an institution as ever in Wales. At Eastertide musical meetings of this description took place in almost every town or populous place. The Abergavenny Eisteddfod, although held in Monmouthshire, is regarded as a Welsh institution. It was perhaps the most important of the series. The competitions were held in the market place under the presidency of Mr. T. P. Price, M.P., and the adjudicators were Dr. Roland Rogers, Bangor; Mr. D. Emyln Evans, and other gentlemen. The test piece in the chief choral competition was "Thanks be to God" ("Elijah"), a first prize of £80 and a gold medal, and a second of £25 and a silver medal being offered. Seven choirs competed—viz., Sirhowy and Tredegar (Mr. W. Jones, conductor), Ebbw Vale (Mr. J. Williams), Bridgend and Tondy (Mr. John Jenkins), Blaenavon (Mr. J. Jones), Rhymney and Pontlottyn (Mr. J. Roberts), Dowlais (Mr. Dan Davies), and Mountain Ash (Mr. D. E. Coleman). The Birmingham Musical Association was expected to be present also, but the train arrangements did not suit. Much regret was expressed on this account. The contest was watched with great interest by the large assemblage, and the result was declared as follows:—Dowlais, 1; Mountain Ash, 2. In giving his adjudication Dr. Rogers deprecated the action of the leaders in seeking to make their choirs shout loudly. Until this fault was remedied, South Wales choral singing must always be inferior to that of other parts of the country. This expression of opinion has not unnaturally occasioned a great deal of local attention. But this Eisteddfod promises to be eclipsed by one that is to be held at Aberdare in July next, when several important prizes will be offered for choral singing. Eisteddfodau were also held at Aberdare, where the Aberaman Choir, which did not appear as expected at Abergavenny, competed for and won £25 for the best rendering of the same test piece; at Caerphilly, at Aberavon (when a prize of £50 for the best choral rendering of "The many rend the skies" was taken by the local Choral Society, led by Mr. J. Phillips), at Neath, at Llan-twit Vardre, Llanelly, Penarth, Maesteg, and many other places.

THE performance of "Samson"—an Oratorio quite unduly neglected—by the Holy Trinity, Paddington, Choral Society, on behalf of the Children's Hospital, Paddington Green, at the Kensington Town Hall, on the evening of the 25th ult., bears agreeable testimony to the increased demand for general efficiency which characterises the minor musical associations of the metropolis. Mr. Bates—a name of happy omen in connection with Handel's oratorio—is decidedly to be congratulated on the achievement of his chorus, in which a contingent of boys took part with excellent effect. The tuneful and correct singing of the choir throughout bespeaks careful training, while the fresh and resonant quality of the voices, and the ability of the tenors to hold their own, points to a careful selection or singular good fortune on the part of the Conductor. The solos were entrusted to Misses Marianne Fenna and Josephine Yorke, and Messrs. Edwin Bryant and Henry Pope. It is only fair to Mr. Bryant to mention that his efforts were on two several occasions cruelly interfered with by the obligato accompaniment of a piano-organ and cornet in the street below. Miss Marianne Fenna did full justice to the florid music which falls to the soprano, while Miss Yorke and Mr. Henry Pope turned their dramatic experience to good account, the former being very successful in her rendering of "Return, O God of hosts," and the latter gaining hearty applause by his vigorous delivery of "Honour and arms." A small, picked orchestra of some twenty professional players, including several instrumentalists of first-rate ability, rendered the accompaniments and incidental music in an efficient fashion. But the feature of the performance was the singing of the choir, and we shall look forward with interest to their future appearances.

MR. TINSLEY gave an Evening Concert at the Brixton Hall, on the 5th ult. The programme was opened with an organ solo by Mr. C. J. Frost, Mus. Doc., Cantab., the "Offertoire de Sainte Cecile" (Grisson), which was excellently played. The principal vocalists were Miss Amy Denning, Madame Enriquez, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. Frank May, R.A.M., all of whom were warmly and most deservedly applauded. Herr Carl Deichmann (violin) gave an artistic rendering of Beethoven's Romance, and Air Varié et Polacca (De Beriot); Miss E. J. Gollge performed two pianoforte solos in a highly creditable manner, three of Mr. Tinsley's pupils gave the music allotted to them with excellent taste, reflecting much credit on his method of teaching, and Mr. S. West gave a flute solo, which was cordially received. Miss Frances Burbridge filled the post of accompanist in alternation with Mr. Tinsley.

A VARIED programme was performed by "Ye London Gleemen" at their annual Concert, held on the 13th ult., at the Criterion, under the direction of Mr. Richard Mackway; the locale chosen on this occasion enabling the members of the Criterion Glee Choir to co-operate with greater convenience to themselves and to the undoubted satisfaction of the audience. The boys of the choir were heard to great advantage in Wellings' song "The old lock," which was given in unison with a fulness of tone and a delicacy of expression which almost reconciled us to the sentimentality of the composition. The full choir also gave Wilbye's Madrigal "Flora gave me fairest flowers," and the Sextet from "Patience" in very good style. Bishop's glee "Oh! bold Robin Hood" was perhaps the best effort of the Gleemen, whose performance, excellent as it was, suffered from a slight want of balance in the outer parts. The alto strove their hardest but were occasionally overweighted in the *tutti*s. Songs, humorous and sentimental (in the latter department Mr. Mackway's own refined style and excellent enunciation deserving a passing word of praise), recitations by Messrs. Vernon Heath and Kestin, and solos on the pianoforte and violin, lent much variety to the entertainment and met with cordial recognition from an audience which, though chiefly composed of ladies, did not exclude a fair sprinkling of the more demonstrative sex.

A VERY good performance of the "Rose of Sharon" was given on the 4th ult., at Christ Church Schoolroom, Crouch End, by the members of the Choral Society. This Society has now been in existence twelve years, and though numbering barely 100 voices, has, under the direction of its conductor, Mr. Alfred J. Dye, done good service in making known new works in the neighbourhood, not the least important being Mr. Mackenzie's fine Oratorio, which was listened to and warmly applauded by a large and enthusiastic audience. The parts of the Sulamite and the Beloved were respectively undertaken by Miss Emily Buxton and Mr. Henry Piercy. Madame Florence Winn was heard to advantage in the opening solo, and received an encore for her rendering of the air "Lo, the King," and Mr. Frank Ward as Solomon made the most of an exacting part. Although Mr. Mackenzie's charming orchestration suffered somewhat from the want of a complete orchestra, a very good substitute was provided in a professional string quintet led by Mr. S. Dean Grimson, supplemented by piano, Mr. J. G. Calcott, and harmonium, Dr. C. W. Pearce. The choruses were remarkably well rendered.

THE programme of Mr. Kiver's Annual Concert, held in Prince's Hall, on the 14th ult., offered as its most notable feature a String Quartet by Sterndale Bennett which, written as long ago as in 1831, was only recently discovered, and now performed from the MS. for the second time, the first performance having taken place at the Oratory last November. This interesting specimen of Bennett's early mastery of form and command of unforced melody was excellently played by Messrs. F. Ralph, Louis Hann, Ellis Roberts, and Charles Ould. Mr. Kiver was heard in the pianoforte part of Sterndale Bennett's Sestet in F sharp minor, besides exhibiting his powers in several compositions of the romantic school, and met with the cordial recognition which his skill and versatility deserved. Songs by Madame Marian McKenzie and Mr. H. Fulkerson were interspersed between the instrumental numbers, and Mr. T. Wingham, with whom the credit rests of giving to the world the String Quartet above mentioned, lent his able services as Conductor.

MR. HENRY PHILLIPS, a new recruit in the ranks of tenor vocalists, gave his first Morning Concert on the 14th ult., at 16, Grosvenor Street (Messrs. Collard's). Mr. Phillips, who is to be commended for his choice of songs, made a decidedly favourable impression on an audience amongst whom the sterner, and perhaps more critical, sex were in a considerable minority. The Concert-giver was fortunate in securing the services of a number of excellent brother and sister artists, whose admirable efforts rendered the performance more than usually interesting. Madame Patey, Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Grahame, Mr. Guy, and Mr. Barrington Foote were all heard to advantage; Herr Poznanski contributed pieces for the violin, and Miss Sasse for the pianoforte, Miss Filippi giving a brief but excellent recitation.

THE St. John's, Fulham, Choral Society, gave its last Concert of the season in Beaufort House, Fulham, on Thursday evening, the 6th ult., when Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen" was performed with great success, under the direction of Mr. Edward J. K. Toms. The choruses were sung with precision and refinement, evincing careful practice and training, and the solos were excellently rendered by Miss Selina Quicke, Miss Ellen Marchant, Mr. Edwin Phillips and Mr. Frank May, the last named gentleman being highly successful in the solo "Tis jolly to hunt," which was redemanded. The accompaniments were played by Miss A. F. Elliott at the pianoforte, Mr. J. K. Toms at the harmonium, and a small but efficient band led by Mr. H. C. Tonking. The Cantata was preceded by a miscellaneous selection, in which the singing of Miss Marchant, and the pianoforte playing of Miss Batty (a pupil of Mr. Toms) were special features.

AT the Concert at the Crystal Palace on the 15th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. August Manns, the artists were Miss Clara Dowle, Miss Alma de Lisle, Mr. Gawthrop, Mr. Carl Jung (violin), Mr. L. W. Hardy (cornet), and Mr. A. J. Eyre (organ). The instrumental pieces were finely performed, the most noticeable being Beethoven's Septet and Handel's Largo in G. Miss Clara Dowle made her third appearance at these Concerts and was very favourably received. Her songs were "Softly sighs" (Weber) and "Poor wandering one" (Pirates of Penzance), in both of which she was enthusiastically recalled. Miss Alma de Lisle, a pleasing contralto, received a similar compliment for her rendering of the Recit. "Armida despietata," and Air "Lascia ch'io pianga" (Handel). Mr. Gawthrop gave "In native worth" ("Creation") and "Alice, where art thou" (Ascher), and was twice recalled.

IF the performance of Verdi's "Rigoletto," under the direction of Mr. Richard Temple, at the Gaiety Theatre, on the 10th ult., was intended to prove that a company of English artists could give an adequate rendering of an Italian Opera, it was fairly successful. At the same time, it would have been wiser to have adopted an English translation, as the mellifluous Tuscan suffered not a little. Mr. Temple sang and acted with great energy the part of the unfortunate jester, occasionally falling into the sin of exaggeration. Madame Rose Hersee is no novice in the rôle of Gilda, and but for some failure of voice power would have left nothing to desire. Mr. Durward Lely made a favourable impression by his intelligent embodiment of the licentious Duke. The large audience was effusive in its applause, but to the performers' credit be it said they took no notice of it until the end of each act.

AN excellent Concert was given on the 7th ult., by the members of the St. George's Glee Union, in the Piccolo Rooms, Warwick Street. The first part was miscellaneous and included a solo on the Mustel organ by Mr. J. Munro Coward, and the Overture "William Tell" (Mustel organ and pianoforte), by the same artist and Mr. F. R. Kinkee. The vocalists were Miss L. Distin, Miss Annie Wilson, Mr. Holberry Hagyard, and Mr. Thurlay Beale. Several madrigals were well rendered by the choir. Sir Sterndale Bennett's Cantata "The May Queen" occupied the second part of the programme. The solos were admirably sung by the above mentioned artists, and the choruses were rendered with firmness and good expression. The Cantata was accompanied by Mr. Coward on the Mustel organ and Mr. Kinkee on the pianoforte. Mr. Joseph Monday conducted.

A CONCERT was given by the students of the violin classes, on the 5th ult., at the Birkbeck Institution, under the direction of Mr. Fitzhenry. The students performed with good effect a selection from "Der Freischütz" and Danse Romanesca (Muscata), Mr. T. E. Gatehouse gave two violin solos, both of which were encored; Mr. C. G. Macpherson and Mr. A. Allen played pianoforte and flute solos respectively, and songs were contributed by Miss Nellie Oxenham, Master Frank Peskett, Mr. James Budd, and Mr. J. Kift.

WE record with pleasure the arrival in London of the celebrated Florentine pianist, Signor Giuseppe Buonamici, who, it is to be hoped, will be heard in public during the few weeks of his visit to this country.

A VERY efficient performance of Dvorák's Stabat Mater and Coven's "Sleeping Beauty" was given on the 18th ult., at the Athenæum, Highbury New Park, by the Choral Society connected with the Islington Presbyterian Church, under the direction of its Conductor, Mr. J. Conyers Keynes. The solo parts were throughout ably interpreted by Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Eleanor Rees, Messrs. Harper Kearton, and W. G. Forington. The orchestral portions of the respective scores were skillfully substituted on the part of Messrs. Fountain Meen (pianoforte) and W. Tate (harmonium). The audience testified by their numbers to their appreciation of the spirited efforts of the Society in bringing forward two such interesting works of modern date, the worthy performance of which, as in the present instance, signifies much previous zeal and labour bestowed thereon on the part of all concerned.

A CONCERT was given on the 15th ult., at the Royal Park Hall, Camden Town, in aid of the Funds of Berkeley Road Chapel, Chalk Farm. Miss Annie Browning contributed two pianoforte solos, "Balmoral" and a Pasquinade by Gottschalk, both of which were performed in a highly creditable manner. Mr. and Madame Vernon were very successful in their vocal selections, and Mr. Wedlake in a song by Mr. Theo Ward, entitled "Broken Vows"; and Mr. Frank May in "I'm a roamer," "The Braves of Britannia," and "Coolest maid" (H. C. Hiller), were deserving of much praise. Mr. Oakley Parratt (violin) was warmly applauded for his rendering of "Scène de Ballet" by De Beriot and selections from "Faust." Mr. Theo Ward, R.A.M., was the Conductor.

THE members of the St. Augustine's Musical Society, Highbury, gave their tenth Concert on the 6th ult., the first part consisting of Dr. Stainer's Cantata "Daughter of Jairus." The work was admirably rendered and much appreciated by an enthusiastic audience, Dr. Stainer, who conducted, receiving quite an ovation. The soloists were Miss Dakin and Messrs. Charles Strong and Frank Ward. The accompaniments were played by Miss Lomas (pianoforte) and Mr. William Hodge (harmonium). The second part, which was miscellaneous, included a flute solo (Mr. C. Spencer West), a violoncello solo (Mr. Hubert S. Ward), and part-song, "With horse and hounds," conducted by Mr. Charles Strong.

THE 232nd Anniversary Festival of the Sons of the Clergy was held under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral on Wednesday, the 12th ult. The musical arrangements were on the imposing scale adopted in recent years, the orchestra and chorus numbering 300 executants under the direction of Dr. Stainer. Sir Arthur Sullivan's Overture "In Memoriam" was played as an opening voluntary, and the effect when the organ joined the orchestra in the Coda was exceedingly fine. Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion" was performed as an anthem, and Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" was sung at the conclusion of the service. The Sermon was preached by the Very Rev. John Gott, D.D., Dean of Worcester.

ON Thursday, the 20th ult., a Concert was given in Eccleston Square Church, Belgrave Road, S.W., in aid of the incidental expenses. The first part of the programme consisted of Dr. Stainer's Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus," the solos being admirably given by Miss Selina Quick, Mr. Edwin Phillips, and Mr. Frank May. The second part was made up of solos and choruses of a miscellaneous character, Miss Annie Griffith contributing Mendelssohn's "But the Lord is mindful" and Gounod's "There is a green hill." The musical arrangements were under the direction of Mr. Rowland Briant, A.R.A.M., F.C.O., and the accompanist was Mr. Frank Idle, the newly appointed Organist and Choirmaster of the Church.

THE Woodside Park Musical Society terminated the first season most successfully on the 6th ult., at Woodside Hall, North Finchley. The programme, which was carefully rendered, included Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion" and "Judge me, O God," and a miscellaneous selection. The solos, vocal and instrumental, were contributed by members of the Society. At the close of the Concert the Conductor, Mr. Dye, received quite an ovation. Mrs. Williams was an efficient accompanist, and Mr. J. G. Callcott presided at the harmonium.

THE 148th Anniversary Festival of the Royal Society of Musicians was held at St. James's Hall on the 12th ult., under the presidency of the Hon. Mr. Justice Chitty. Admirable speeches were made by the chairman, Sir George Macfarren, Mr. John Hollingshead, Mr. Randegger, Mr. H. L. W. Lawson, M.P., and Mr. Meadows White, Q.C. The artists who contributed to the musical selection were Mdlle. de Lido, Madame Patey, Mr. W. Winch, Miss Fanny Davies (pianoforte), Signor Pezze (violoncello), and the London Vocal Union, under the conductorship of Mr. Fred. Walker. A list of subscriptions, amounting to upwards of £500, and including 50 guineas from the chairman, was read by Mr. W. H. Cummings, the Hon. Treasurer.

THE Primrose Hill Choral Society gave a Concert on the 18th ult., at the Vestry Hall, Haverstock Hill, in aid of the funds of the Boys' Home, Regent's Park. Barnett's "Ancient Mariner" formed the first part, the second part was miscellaneous, comprising instrumental pieces, songs, and part-songs. The soloists were Miss Ethel Winn, Miss Mary Willis, Mr. Lance Calkin, and Mr. Vaughan Edwardes; Miss Mabel Fraser (violin), Mr. Reynolds (contrabasso), Mr. George Gear (piano), and Mr. King Hall (Mustel Organ). The choir acquitted themselves very creditably, and Mr. George Calkin was an efficient Conductor.

AN excellent performance of Sir Sterndale Bennett's Cantata "The May Queen" was given at the Assembly Hall, Mile End Road, on the 1st ult. The work was preceded by a miscellaneous selection, in which Miss Rose Dafforne gave a highly artistic rendering of Gounod's "There is a green hill," singing, as an encore, "The better land." The Cantata was warmly received, and the principal vocalists—Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss Rose Dafforne, Mr. Alfred Kenningham, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail—as well as the choir, deserve the utmost credit for their efforts. A string band accompanied the singers. Mr. C. Day Winter conducted.

MISS KATE WESTROP, Organist of St. Edmund King and Martyr, Lombard Street, gave her annual Organ Recital on the 5th ult., after the mid-day service. The selection, which was well played, included "Splendente te, Deus" (Mozart), Largo in G (Handel), and Festive March (Smart). Vocal solos were contributed by Master Holder, Mr. Henry Sheldon, and Mr. R. J. Knight. Two Anthems, "They have taken away my Lord" (Stainer) and "If we believe that Jesus died" (Bunnett), were rendered by the choir in an efficient manner, under the direction of Mr. Charles J. Robinson, choirmaster. The church was crowded with an attentive congregation.

THE 171st monthly Concert given by the Grosvenor Choral Society, was held at the Grosvenor Hall, Buckingham Palace Road, on Friday, the 21st ult., when Barnett's Cantata "The Ancient Mariner" was most successfully rendered. The solo parts were taken by Madame Wilson-Osman, Miss Annie Dwyer, Mr. T. P. Frame and Mr. F. Bevan. The programme opened with a miscellaneous selection, including part-songs by Rossini, Moir, and Marzials, and songs given by the ladies above mentioned and by Mr. Frederick and Mr. H. Davis. Mrs. T. P. Frame presided at the piano, and Mr. G. Winney at the Mustel organ. Mr. David Woodhouse conducted.

THE Kyrie Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of "Elijah" in the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End Road, on the 5th ult. The soloists were Mrs. Lenthal Swift, Mrs. Dean, Mr. Reginald Groome, and Mr. Jabez West. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ. On the 20th ult. the Choir performed "The Messiah," in the Somers' Town Presbyterian Church, Ossulston Street. The soloists were Mrs. Livesay Carrott, Miss Isabel Tomaton, Mr. Martin Frost, and Mr. James Blackney. Mr. Albert Orme conducted, and Mr. William Tate was the accompanist.

ON the 18th ult., Mr. William Hodge gave an inaugural Organ Recital, on his appointment to the post of Organist and Precentor of the Choir at St. Marylebone Parish church. An interesting programme, including Mendelssohn's Organ Sonata, No. 4, in B flat, and Bach's Toccata e Fuga in D minor was rendered with great facility by this young and talented artist.

A PROSPECTUS of the Regent Hall, London, Association for the Encouragement of Artistic excellence, by proving and attesting thoroughness of Workmanship in the Design and Manufacture of Musical Instruments, has been recently issued; and certainly if the objects of the Institution are effectually carried out, it should gain the confidence of the musical public. The certified opinion upon the merits of an instrument will be in all cases accompanied by the Hall Stamp; and the examination being entrusted to eminent members of the musical profession, their verdict may be safely relied upon. The temporary office of the Association is at 44, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, London.

THE Annual Concert and Distribution of Prizes to the younger members of the Choir of St. James's Church, Kensington, took place in the Boys' Schoolroom, on Tuesday, the 11th ult., under the direction of Mr. William Tozer, the Organist. The lady vocalists were Miss Kate Limbert, R.A.M., and Miss Isabelle Girardot, R.A.M., each of whom gained a warm reception. The last named also played a violin solo "Romance et Bolero" (Dancía). The pianoforte selections of Miss Annie Shelton were deservedly applauded. The programme was brought to a most successful conclusion by the Distribution of Prizes by Mrs. Bache Harris.

THE Popular Choral Society gave a performance of Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen," at St. Andrew's Hall, Newman Street, W., on the 8th ult., for the benefit of the funds of the choral classes at Clerkenwell, Whitechapel, and Bermondsey, from which centres of instruction the Choral Society is recruited. The Concert was under the direction of the Conductor, Mr. W. Henry Thomas, the other artists who assisted in the "May Queen" being Miss Margaret Hoare, Miss Myers, Mr. Nicholl, Mr. Bridson, and Mr. F. Lewis Thomas. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous.

THE sale of the quartet of instruments by Stradivarius, by order of the executors of a French amateur, Madame de Saint-Enoch, took place on Saturday, the 15th ult., at the Hotel Drouot, Paris. The following prices were realised:—The violin dated 1737, £604 (bought in by the family); the violin dated 1704, £280; the viola dated 1728, £516; the violoncello dated 1696, £420. These instruments were not remarkably fine ones, and, with the exception of the violin dated 1737, none were perfect. Visitors to Messrs. Hill's may remember seeing the violoncello, which was for sale by them about five years back.

A CONCERT was given by the Plaistow and Canning Town Choral Society in the Parish Hall, St. Andrew's Road, Plaistow, on Monday evening, the 3rd ult., under the direction of Mr. Leonard G. Winter, the recently appointed Organist to St. Andrew's. Miss Done presided at the pianoforte. The vocalists were Miss Ambler (Mrs. W. H. Brereton) and Mr. W. H. Brereton. Mr. Joseph Ivimey, jun., gave two solos on the violin. The programme comprised Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," Macfarren's "May Day," and a miscellaneous selection. The choir sang with much taste and feeling.

A SPECIAL Members' Concert, the fourth and last of the season, was given by the St. Peter's Choral Society, at St. Peter's Hall, Wickham Road, on the 11th ult., when Sir George Macfarren's "May Day" was performed, under Dr. C. J. Frost's conductorship. The choir sang in an admirable manner, showing that great care had been bestowed on the rehearsals. The solo was taken by Mrs. Van Essen, who also joined Miss K. Willcocks, Miss Crombie, Mr. H. J. Bromley, and Mr. H. C. Thomas in a quintet "Remember the children of Edom, O Lord," the composition of the Conductor, which was awarded a unanimous encore.

THE last of a very successful series of Concerts given by the St. Jude's, Peckham, Choral Society, took place on the 13th ult. T. M. Pattison's Cantata "The Lay of the last Minstrel" formed the first part, the soloists being Miss Meta Russell, Miss Annie Morley, Mr. E. J. Turner, and Mr. C. E. Wheeler. The choir, numbering fifty voices, was very efficient. The second part was miscellaneous. Miss Evelyn Seymour Smith and Mr. F. M. Taylor accompanied on the pianoforte and harmonium respectively, and Mr. George Kett conducted.

A VERY successful Concert was given on Wednesday evening, the 12th ult., at the Sydenham Baptist Chapel, Forest Hill. The first part of the programme consisted of Alfred R. Gaul's Cantata "Ruth," the solos being sustained by Miss Phemie Black, Miss Alice Rickard, and Mr. Frank May, R.A.M. The vocalists in the second part were Miss Black, Miss Rickard, and Mr. May. The choruses were well sung by a highly efficient choir. Mr. C. E. Swan presided at the organ, Mr. Alfred Avery officiated as accompanist, and Mr. John Eagleton, Organist of the chapel, was the Conductor.

THE first scholar at the Royal College of Music, under the Montreal Scholarship, has recently been elected. Her name is Miss Ella Walker, of Montreal. Miss Ada Moylan was so exactly equal with her, that the Examiners were unable to decide which should receive the award. Lots were therefore drawn, when the Scholarship fell to Miss Walker, whereupon Mr. Donald A. Smith, one of the two donors of the Scholarship, generously agreed to find the money for the tuition and support of Miss Moylan for three years at the College.

ON the 4th ult. a performance of A. R. Gaul's Cantata "The Holy City" was given at St. Philip's Church, Queen's Road, Battersea Park, with full orchestral accompaniment. The orchestra, led by Mr. Percy Ould, consisted of members of the Clapham Orchestral Society. The solos were taken by Master Folkard, Messrs. J. H. Walker, C. Langton, and Thornton Colvin. The choruses were given with great precision and effect. Mr. Howard Leask presided at the organ, and Mr. George Winny conducted.

MISS MAUD COOKE gave an Evening Concert, at Gresham Hall, Brixton, on Thursday, the 13th ult. The bénéficiaire was well received, both her songs being encored. The remaining contributors were Madame Frances Brooke, Miss Florence Venning, Miss Emily Dones, Madame Spencer Jones, Mr. Henry Yates, Mr. Joseph Lynde, Miss Jessie Meadows (pianoforte), Mr. Luigi Carozzi (flute), and Messrs. Turle Lee, John Harrison, and Claude Trevor (accompanists).

MISS EDITH ALOOF gave her annual Concert, at Brixton Hall, on Monday evening, the 17th ult., an excellent programme being provided. The Concert-giver's solos were received with well-merited marks of appreciation. Efficient aid in the performance was lent by Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. Henry Guy, Mr. F. Horscroft, Mr. W. L. Barrett (flute), Mr. Edmund Woolhouse (violoncello), and Miss Alice Aloof (pianoforte). Miss Emma Buer accompanied.

MISS S. EMILY OLDHAM gave an "At home," at 57, Elgin Crescent, on Saturday, the 15th ult. Songs by the Concert-giver were sung by Mdle. Alice Roselli, Miss Adelaide Mullen, Miss Annie Layton, and Mr. W. H. Cummings, and well received by the audience. Miss Helen d'Alton, Mdme. de Fonblanque-Campbell, and Mr. Bernard Lane contributed songs; and Miss H. Sasse, Mrs. Cuff, Mr. E. H. Thorne, and M. Wagner gave pianoforte solos.

IN connection with the Beckenham School of Music, a Concert was given at the Public Hall, Beckenham, on the 18th ult., when several pupils greatly distinguished themselves, both as vocalists and instrumentalists (most successfully evidencing the excellent teaching of the Institution), and a pianoforte solo was so well rendered by Mr. Ridley Prentice, the Principal of the school, as to create a marked effect.

MISS ROSE WILLIAMS gave her first Evening Concert on Wednesday, the 5th ult., at Chelsea, before a large audience. The vocalists were Mrs. Edwards, R.A.M., Miss Winifred Parker, Miss Rose Williams, Mr. Charles Lockwood, Mr. Francis E. Choveaux, and Mr. A. J. Layton. Violin solos were contributed by Mr. G. H. Wilby, and Mrs. A. J. Layton, F.C.O., and Mr. F. E. Choveaux were the pianists.

CONSEQUENT upon the retirement of Mr. Joseph Bennett from the editorship of the Lute, the literary part of that journal will now be discontinued. Mr. Bennett will henceforth contribute to no other musical journal but THE MUSICAL TIMES.

MR. FRANK MAJOR, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's, Chelsea, gave his annual Concert on Thursday, the 6th ult., at St. Saviour's Schoolroom, Walton Street, assisted by Miss Eldena Eldon, Miss Maude Evans, Mrs. Mackey, Miss Lizzie Wynne, and Signor Villa. Mrs. Frank Major, R.A.M., and her pupil, Miss Edith Burr, presided at the pianoforte.

A CONCERT was given on Tuesday, the 11th ult., in the Sutherland Chapel, Walworth Road, the vocalists being Miss E. Elliott, Miss L. Lloyd, Miss Isabel Sparks, Miss Beaumont, Mr. G. Goodwin, and Mr. C. Hardy. The choir, under the conductorship of Mr. J. H. Ellison, sang several pieces. Mr. F. E. Choveaux was the solo pianist and accompanist.

At the recent examination for the Scholarship of the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society, at the Royal College of Music—Examiners, the Board of Professors of the College, Sir George Grove in the chair—ten candidates were sent up from the preliminary examination (conducted by Mr. George Mount), and the award was made to Alfred Michael Wall, of Camden Town, aged 11, for violin.

THE Walworth Choral Society gave a very successful performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," at Camberwell, on Monday, the 19th ult. The solo parts were sung with great efficiency by Miss Kate Fusselle, Miss Annie Layton, Mr. John H. Müllerhausen, and Mr. Frank May. Mr. W. E. Curtis conducted. Mr. A. L. Oliphant led the band and Mr. W. W. Crome ably presided at the harmonium.

DR. STAINER'S Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus" was performed on the evening of Monday, the 17th ult., at St. James's Church, Clapton. The solos were rendered by Master Humm (of the Temple Church), Mr. Hanson, and Mr. Kempton (of St. Paul's Cathedral). The Cantata was conducted by the Composer, Mr. Alfred Cox (Organist of the Church), presiding at the organ.

DR. DIXON (Oxon.) having resigned his appointment as Organist and Choirmaster of Grantham Parish Church, which he had held for twenty-one years, the vicar, churchwardens, and other friends in the town and neighbourhood, have presented him with a sum of £200 as a testimonial of their appreciation of his services during that period.

UNDER the head of the "St. Cecilia Series," Mr. William Reeves has arranged to publish a series of Sixpenny Volumes of Musical Biography and Criticism, each of which will contain a portrait and miniature music pages. The first volume, on Franz Liszt, has just been issued.

MR. CHARLES E. TINNEY, of St. Paul's Cathedral, and one of the Professors at the Guildhall School of Music, has been appointed to a professorship at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, U.S. Mr. Tinney will commence his duties in September next.

MR. FOUNTAIN MEEN has been appointed Professor of the Organ at the Guildhall School of Music, in place of the late Josiah Pittman.

THE Leeds Festival Committee have engaged Mr. Joseph Bennett to supply analytical and historical notes to all the works in their forthcoming programme.

REVIEWS.

Life of John Hullah. By his Wife.
[Longmans, Green and Co.]

We should be lenient in criticising the work of one who prefaces her book by the following sentence: "It is hoped that the study of a life spent in spreading a knowledge, among the youth of England, of a noble and refining art may prove sufficiently interesting to outweigh defects of plan or style in the telling of it." We have also a right to expect that the biography of an artist, sketched by the sympathetic hand of his widow, will be in every respect both minute and reliable. But these are personal matters, and although such a book should be cherished by all who wish to preserve an accurate account of the man as he lived, apart from his influence upon the progress of the world around him, it cannot satisfy those who look upon musical biographies as contributions to a history of the art.

That Mr. Hullah was a pioneer in the cause of musical education there can be no doubt; and had he lived to tell his own story in his own way, we might have been presented with a valuable record of events during his long and active career. Unfortunately, however, the bulk of the book consists of recollections of her husband by Mrs. Hullah; and so many of these are mere reminiscences of scenes and incidents which have no bearing upon his artistic life that they have small value to musical readers. In the few pages of autobiography contributed by Mr. Hullah we have many paragraphs which are exceedingly interesting as reflecting the state of the art during the writer's studentship. For instance, he tells us that "numberless compositions now easily accessible were in those days unattainable, or frightfully costly in this country. The four parts, or books, of the preludes and fugues of Bach cost me, I recollect, three pounds sterling, and a full score of one of Handel's Oratorios about as much. The more recent sonatas of Beethoven were costly, and slow in finding popularity. I remember attempting the performance of—now one of the most popular—the 'Sonata Pathétique,' in the presence of some half-dozen musical friends of my master, not one of whom, save the latter, had ever before heard it, or heard of its existence." As a student of the Royal Academy of Music, Mr. Hullah devoted much of his attention to the formation and cultivation of the voice, under Crivelli; and during his connection with the Institution became acquainted with Miss Fanny Dickens (then a pupil there), and afterwards with her brother Charles, who was at that time writing articles under the now well-known title "Sketches by Boz." This friendship led to the production of an opera, called "The Village Coquettes," the libretto by Mr. Charles Dickens and the music by Mr. Hullah, which was played in London about sixty successive nights. In the account of the cast of this work, we have a glance at the degraded position which music occupied in England at that time, for it is said that "in the course of rehearsal many changes ensued, as well among the performers as in the piece they had to perform. One part intended for a singer was performed (without a note of music) by a comedian, Mr. Strickland, and the first solo was executed by another young comedian who has since risen to high eminence—Mr. Alfred Wigan." After several visits to Paris, Mr. Hullah resolved to introduce Wilhelm's method of teaching singing into England, and to this system he adhered, with slight modifications, to the end of his life. His classes at Exeter Hall, and afterwards at St. Martin's Hall, the destruction of the last-named building by fire, the earnestness of Mr. Hullah's devotion to the cause he had at heart, in spite of this calamity, and his appointment as Government Inspector of Music at the Training Schools of Great Britain, are subjects upon which much more might have been written had the materials ready to hand been entrusted to the care of one conversant with the times in which these events took place, and less desirous of writing a chatty and amusing book. Some of the letters contained in the volume are full of interest; and artists will be pleased to find long extracts from Mr. Hullah's official reports upon his examinations at the Training Schools. It must be remembered, too, that he not only delivered many excellent lectures upon music in various parts of the country, but that he was the author of several educational works on the art, which will hand down his theoretical views upon the true system of teaching singing in classes, even if in practice these views should fall into disuse. We may say, in conclusion, that the book sadly wants an index.

Novello, Ever and Co.'s Albums for Violin and Piano-forte. No. 3. Transcriptions from "Elijah." By Berthold Tours. [Novello, Ever and Co.]

THESE ten Transcriptions from "Elijah" will, we are certain, be welcomed by all amateurs who desire to charm rather than to astonish, their hearers, and to derive real gratification from the legitimate powers of their instrument. From an educational point of view, the cultivation of that singing quality on the violin which makes itself so universally felt, is of the utmost importance; and certainly nothing can be imagined more suitable or attractive for this purpose than the lovely themes from Mendelssohn's Oratorio, which has now so thoroughly grown into the hearts of the English people. The numbers contained in the selection before us are the Recitative and Air "If with all your hearts," the Air "Lord God of Abraham," the Quartet "Cast thy burden," the Arioso "Woe unto them," the Air "Hear ye, Israel," the Recitative and Air "It is enough," the Air "O rest in the Lord," the Recitative and Arioso "For the mountains shall depart," the Air "Then shall the righteous," and the Quartet "O come every one that thirsteth." Mr. Tours's long-proved skill in transcribing vocal parts for instruments is a sufficient guarantee of the manner in which he has performed his task; and it need scarcely be added that although every piece is extremely effective, this effect is never sought to be gained at the expense of the fidelity of the originals.

A Left-Handed Marriage. A Story of Musical Life. By Mrs. Oscar Beringer. [Remington and Co.]

SEEMING that this novel is stated to be a story of "Musical Life," and that it is dedicated to the Abbé Liszt, it might be reasonably imagined that the principal interest of the book would arise from events in some measure connected with the art. Even the authoress herself, however, would scarcely assert that this is the case. Certainly the hero is a musical genius, and he meets and converses with the Abbé; but were Maurice Dettmar a student in any other art, the main incidents of the tale need not be in the slightest degree altered, and the novel might take its place amongst the ordinary works of this class so plentifully supplied to the book market. Apart from this objection—which certainly absolves us from the necessity of giving a detailed notice of the story in these pages—we have much pleasure in bearing testimony to the marked ability of Mrs. Beringer in holding the attention of the reader through two volumes, especially when, as the title implies, the English public would hardly sympathise with the subject upon which the novel is founded, and which, in fact, gives rise to the many complications occurring so constantly in its pages. Some of the characters are exceedingly well drawn, Minna, especially, being a life-like portrait of a pure-minded and trusting girl, and Felicia Demetzkoï a carefully finished type of a heartless coquette.

Morceau à la Gavotte, for Piano.

Lullaby, for Piano.

Composed by Otto Flörsheim.

[Musical Courier Office, New York.]

BOTH these pieces show very decided musical feeling; but Gavottes and Lullabies are so plentiful in the present day that it is difficult to strike out an original train of thought. The first on our list, although somewhat conventional, is extremely melodious; but we prefer the "Lullaby," which is full of character, and, despite the formidable array of double flats, may be safely undertaken by any amateur who can sufficiently sing the theme with the fingers.

Song-Book for Schools. The music arranged and harmonised by C. Villiers Stanford, Mus. Doc.

Sight-Singing for Schools, and Elements of the Theory of Music.

[National Society's Depository: Sanctuary, Westminster.]

It cannot now be said that the teaching of music in schools suffers for want of a supply of books admirably adapted to all the requirements of the day. On all sides professors of high standing are lending valuable aid to the progress of the movement by writing, editing, and harmonising songs suitable, both in words and music, for young pupils. The two books now under notice are important contributions to the store of such educational works; and we cordially commend them to the notice of those engaged in the musical tuition of schools. The songs selected by Dr. Stanford are good, healthy specimens of the English school, well calculated, as he says in his preface, "to develop that responsive sympathy which produces national art, artists, and art lovers." We quite agree with the editor's assertion that genuine folk-songs, which have grown up with the country itself, should be taught to children in the very early stages of their vocal training; and here indeed is a choice collection of such pieces, harmonised and arranged with a skill guaranteed by the name of the eminent artist who has undertaken the task. The book on sight-singing includes a complete and graduated course of Musical Exercises—in which, by the way, we regret to see the old form of the minor scale adhered to—and an explanation of the elements of musical theory, which will be found extremely useful, although, as the author must know, much of his teaching involves points of dispute.

Catechism on the Rudiments of Music. Enlarged Edition. Elementary Exercises. To be used in connection with the above. By E. Ellice Jewell.

[Alfred Hays, for Lamborn Cock.]

THE authoress of this Catechism tells us in her preface that her only motive for publishing it is that "she was unable to find one of recent date in the form of Question and Answer." We can, however, supply her with another reason why it should have been issued, and that is its excessive clearness, and consequent practical value to all young students who desire to make themselves acquainted with the elementary principles of an art of which too many are content merely to skim the surface. It is indeed so simple and lucid in its explanations throughout that any child can thoroughly understand it; and, taken in conjunction with the companion Elementary Exercises, a perfect mastery of the subject must be obtained. We may say that a novel feature in the Exercise book is that no manuscript music-book or paper is required, space being left, with ruled staves, for the pupil to write in. Some idea may be formed of the kind of Exercises given by the following quotations:—"Change the following rests into notes of equal value"; "Change the following notes into rests of equal value"; "Change the following triplets into single notes of same value"; "Copy the triplets, and change them into rests of same value"; "Write signatures and keynotes of enharmonically related scales"; "Write all the minor scales in the harmonic form, marking tones, semitones, and augmented second."

The Bridal Day. A Pastoral written by Frederick B. Needham. Composed by Leonard Barnes.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

CONCURRENTLY with the striking increase in the number of large and efficient Choral Societies capable of doing justice to the most elaborate works of classical and modern composers, there are constantly forming numbers of smaller bodies of more modest pretensions, for whom music suited to their requirements is needed. Such music need not be wanting in artistic qualities because it is simple, and Mr. Barnes has exactly hit the mark in the above-named Cantata. Nothing could be more unpretentious than the story on which it is founded. A rustic wedding is about to take place, but the bride has a jealous rival who invites an ancient crone with the reputation of being a witch to attend and prophecy coming ill. So dire, however, are the predictions of the beldame that the girl herself is frightened, and, confessing her fault, begs for forgiveness, which is promptly granted, and the festivities are resumed. The music is characterised by an easy flow of melody, and within its limits is expressive and musicianly. The best number is the duet of the bridal pair after the witch has uttered her ominous warning. There is no difficulty whatever in the part writing nor in any one of the five solo parts, and the work may be commended to the notice of singing classes.

Phantoms (Fantasme nell' ombra). Cantata for solo voices and chorus. The words by E. Augusto Berta; English version by the Rev. Dr. Troutbeck. Composed by Ciro Pinsuti. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

SIGNOR PINSUTI'S vocal pieces are always graceful, refined, and melodious; his most unpretentious songs being so artistically treated as to ensure them a welcome, even with a thoroughly critical audience. But little is attempted in the Cantata before us, yet sufficient dramatic feeling is thrown into the little story he has to tell to awaken the utmost interest in the listeners. There is much individuality in the solos assigned to each phantom; and the choral portions are admirably woven in. The final scene, with the phantom "Love," the soprano solo being accompanied by the chorus pianissimo, e quasi a bocca chiusa, is extremely effective, and brings the piece to a happy termination. The pianoforte part is merely a reduction of the vocal score; and in every respect the Cantata is eminently fitted for drawing-room performance.

FOREIGN NOTES.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Leipzig Signale writes from Vienna under date May 1:—"This day 100 years have elapsed since the first performance at the Vienna Burg-Theater of Mozart's 'Le Nozze di Figaro.' The event was anticipated last night by a festive performance of the opera (which had not been heard here since March, 1883) the parts being distributed as follows:—Count Almaviva (Reichmann), Figaro (Hablavetz), Bartolo (Lay), Basilio (Schmitt), Countess (Papier), Susanne (Bianchi), Cherubino (Braga), &c. All the artists engaged in this interesting performance, including the excellent members of the orchestra, under the able and zealous direction of Herr Jahn, vied with each other to render it a memorable one. The passage of so many decades has left no trace upon the youthful vigour of this masterpiece; may it continue to bring delight to the hearts of many generations to come! The place where it was written exists to this day—viz., the house No. 8, Grosse Schuler Strasse, on the first floor where, a year previously, Mozart had received his father on a visit, to whom, in the presence of Joseph Haydn, he introduced his then but recently composed String Quartets. The first performance of the work in German took place on July 10, 1798, at the Kärnthnerthor-Theater. The grand total of Viennese performances up to date amounts to nearly 400." The wonder is, indeed, that the number is not a much greater one, but then the work had to contend for years after its production with the intrigues carried on by a clique, whose influence at the leading operatic stage of the capital was almost paramount, the Emperor Joseph, moreover, being no friend of "the many notes" which Mozart had managed to get into his operas, and which the latter told him on one occasion were "just as many as were required and no more." The "Figaro" centenary has been appropriately commemorated on most of the operatic stages of Germany, notably at Dresden, where the performance of the work was preceded by a dramatised dialogue, written by Herr Niese, most effectively introducing, it is said, the personalities of the composer, and of his librettist, Da Ponte.

With reference to Franz Liszt's recent stay in this country, the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, of the 7th ult., publishes an article from the pen of Mr. F. Praeger, from which we extract the following: "It is quite impossible to exaggerate in any way the extraordinary excitement which Liszt's presence here has called forth. Not only the musical world proper, artists and amateurs, to whom the manifold merits of the Altmeister have been for years a matter of notoriety, but the public at large were in a state of commotion. Crowds of people were to be met with wherever the conspicuous personality of the master showed itself, whose portrait appeared in all the illustrated papers, and was being exhibited in every other shop window. The newspapers, on their part, furnished their readers with a host of anecdotes, &c., concerning our visitor, some true and some the reverse thereof, and to the latter species the proverbial 'ben trovato' of the Italians was not always applicable. In short, it is necessary to have witnessed the enthusiasm of the public in order to credit the extent to which the Liszt-worship has been carried on here."—Dr. W. Langhans, writing on the same subject in the Neue Berliner Musik Zeitung of the 13th ult., remarks—"No one can fail to admire the astounding energy of will which has enabled the veteran master to go through the manifold festivities in his honour which had been crowded into the space of two short weeks, without exhibiting the least sign of fatigue. No less astonishing, on the other hand, was the attitude of the public towards Liszt, and again and again we felt constrained to search for the secret springs of the enthusiasm which his appearance called forth on the part of both young and old, high and humble. Was it the influence of his music? Hardly; for it cannot by any means be described as popular here. Was it his reputation as a former virtuoso? or the share he has had in the reformatory movement of the last few decades? Most probably so. It can only have been that indefinable charm of the personality, which also distinguished a Goethe from all other mortals. . . . And the impression caused by this personality will indeed be the greater, in proportion as we are able to contemplate it in the light of the high historical position occupied by the master in the progress of our art; a point of contemplation aptly adopted by the writer of an article devoted to Liszt in the May number of THE MUSICAL TIMES."

A number of Paris notabilities, amongst them MM. Ambroise Thomas, Ch. Gounod, Massenet, Saint-Saëns, Madames Viardot, Jaell, and the Baroness Legoux, were assembled on the 12th ult. at the residence of M. Munkacz, the eminent Hungarian painter, for the purpose of bidding farewell to Liszt, who left the French capital on the following day. The soirée, which, as a matter of course, included some capital musical performances, only terminated at a late hour.

Franz Liszt arrived at Weimar, his usual summer residence, on the 17th ult., in excellent health.

Respecting a recent performance by the Vienna Singakademie of Dvorák's "Stabat Mater," the Wiener Musikalische Zeitung remarks, inter alia:—"This composition of the undoubtedly most gifted of all Bohemian composers has impressed us most profoundly, and we have no hesitation in placing it in the same rank with Brahms's 'Deutsches Requiem.' Its very first number arrests our attention by its rich melodiousness and truly religious sentiment. The same may be said of the quartet 'Quis est homo,' while the following chorus 'Eia mater,' with its vigorous rhythms and grand elaboration, forms one of the finest portions of the work. . . . Herr Max Weinzierl, the Conductor of the Singakademie, had been well advised in taking up this work, and has once more demonstrated his eminent capacity in the performance of similarly important masterpieces." The above criticism of the noble work of the Bohemian master goes some way to show that the prejudice which doubtless exists in certain quarters of the Austrian capital, against all musical productions emanating from a Slavonic source, is by no means so universal as some would have us believe.

At the Paris Opéra Comique a new lyrical drama entitled "Maitre Ambros," the libretto by MM. François Coppée and Auguste Dorchain, the music by M. Widor, was successfully brought out last month. Other interesting performances at this institution have been Grétry's "Richard Cœur de Lion," Mozart's "La Flûte enchantée" (Die Zauberflöte), and a revival of M. Thomas's "Le Songe d'une Nuit d'Été." A new work by M. Emmanuel Chabrier, entitled "Le Roi malgré lui," has been accepted by M. Carvalho, and is to be the first novelty of the coming season, while M. Gounod's charming early work "Le Médecin malgré lui" is to be revived before the close of the present. At the Grand Opéra very little worth recording has lately taken place. The répertoire has been chiefly drawn upon for stock pieces, such as "L'Africaine," "Guillaume Tell," "Rigoletto," and "Faust." A new work by M. Paladilhe, entitled "Patrie," is, however, in course of active preparation, and M. Camille Saint-Saëns's opera "Henri VIII." was to be revived last month.

The 500th performance of Halévy's "La Juive" was given on the 25th ult (the anniversary of the composer's birth), by the Paris Grand Opéra, on which occasion the veteran Duprez, who created the part of Eleazar upon the first production of the work in 1835, recited some verses in commemoration of the event.

The following was the interesting programme of a Concert given by M. Lamoureux at the Eden Theatre of Paris on Good Friday last—viz.: Overture, "Tannhäuser"; Introduction to first and third act, "Tristan und Isolde"; Overture, "Faust"; Prelude and Good Friday scene, "Parsifal"; Introduction and part of first act, "Walküre"; "Waldweben," from "Siegfried"; Funeral Dirge, from "Götterdämmerung"; Introduction to third act, "Lohengrin." The fact that a programme like the above, composed entirely of fragments from Wagner's works, should be not only possible in Paris, but highly acceptable to French audiences, renders the recent abandonment by M. Carvalho of his fully matured scheme of producing "Lohengrin," at the Opéra Comique, somewhat anomalous.

M. Alexandre Guilmant has resumed his excellent Concerts of organ music, with the co-operation of an orchestra—viz., that of M. Colonne, at the Trocadéro. It is only at these Concerts that the music of Sebastian Bach and Handel can be heard in Paris, M. Guilmant having for years past made it his mission to popularise these masters in France.

We read in L'Art Musical that, upon leaving the French capital, after his recent short visit, M. Rubinstein has caused the sum of 10,000 francs to be distributed in equal proportions to the following recipients—viz., the widow of the late Theodore Ritter, the Pasteur Institution, the Association des Artistes Musiciens, the Abbé Roussel's Orphanage, and an artist whose name is not stated. The above is one more illustration, added to many previous ones, of the generous way in which the great pianist-composer interprets the old maxim of noblesse oblige.

Liszt's Oratorio, "St. Elizabeth," was performed in a worthy manner, on the 8th ult., at the Paris Trocadéro, under the direction of M. Vianesi, and in the presence of the composer. The solos were interpreted by MM. Faure, Auguez, and Soum, and Mesdames Masson and Cremer. The performance, which occupied three hours, was listened to with much attention by a numerous auditory.

Victorien Joncières's "Le Chevalier Jean," the highly successful production of which, as "Johann von Lothringen," both at Cologne and at Berlin we have recently recorded, will also shortly be brought out at the Frankfurt Stadt-Theater, and bids fair to make the round of the German lyrical stage.

The Paris Société des Compositeurs offers to award three prizes to successful competitors during the current year—viz., 3,000frs. for a symphony, 500frs. for a pianoforte quartet, and a similar sum for the setting of a poem to be specially written for the Society.

M. Ambrose Thomas, the composer of "Mignon" (which opera is just now being performed with enormous success at the Carcano Theatre of Milan), is engaged in the composition of a new operatic work entitled "Circe," the libretto of which is from the pen of M. Jules Barbier.

Berlioz's "La damnation de Faust" has recently obtained an extraordinary success on its first performance before a Spanish audience—viz., at the Liceo, of Barcelona, under the direction of M. Nicolan. No less than five numbers—amongst them the Rakoczy March and the Mephisto Serenade—had to be repeated.

Under the directorship of Professor Klindworth a new Choral Society has been founded at Berlin, an announcement which has caused much satisfaction in those musical circles of the capital where Herr Klindworth's eminent ability as a conductor, combined with his progressive tendencies as a musician, meet with especial appreciation.

Dr. Hans von Bülow resumed, on the 3rd ult., his annual course of instruction at the Raff'sche Conservatorium, at Frankfurt. During three hours on four days in the week the eminent pianist initiates his pupils into the study of the works of Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Raff, Liszt, Chopin, Mozart, and Mendelssohn. Among the numerous pupils attending this course are the Princess Marie of Saxe-Meiningen, and Prince Alexander of Hesse.

The Berlin opera house will be closed earlier than usual this season—viz., at the beginning of the present month, in order to allow time for the necessary alterations in connection with the introduction at that institution of the electric light next season.

At the Kroll'sche-Theater of Berlin a season of opera was inaugurated on the 4th ult., with a performance of "Der Troubadour" ("Il Trovatore"), which has been followed since by Flotow's "Martha," Weber's "Freischütz," Mozart's "Figaro," and other popular works. The ensemble of the company is said to be excellent, and the performances are well attended.

Victor Nessler, the successful composer of the operas "The Piper of Hamelin" and "The Trumpeter of Säckingen," has just completed a new operatic work of a similar type entitled "Otto der Schütz," which will most likely be brought out on the Leipzig stage.

Herr David Popper, the well known violoncello virtuoso, has accepted a professorship of that instrument at the Conservatorium of Pesth.

At the German Theatre of Prague, under the direction of Herr Angelo Neumann, a most enthusiastic reception has recently been given to Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde." The same elaborate work was announced to be performed at the Vienna Hof-Theater, where also the entire Tetralogy "Der Ring des Nibelungen" has been for some time in active preparation.

Frau Materna, and Herren Winkelmann and Reichmann, the artists engaged at the Vienna Hof-Theater, whose co-operation in the forthcoming festival performances at Bayreuth had been for some time doubtful, will, it is now definitely stated, certainly take part in the projected representations of "Tristan und Isolde" and "Parsifal" at the little Bavarian town.

For the information of those amongst our readers who intend to witness the Bayreuth representations this year, we subjoin the exact dates of performances, which will take place as follow: "Parsifal" will be given on July 23, 26, 30, August 2, 6, 9, 13, 16, and 20; "Tristan und Isolde" on July 25 and 29, August 1, 5, 8, 12, 15, and 19. The performances commence at 4 p.m. and conclude at 10 p.m., and the price of admission is 20 marks (£1).

On the 5th of this month, sixty years will have been completed since the death, at the residence of the late Sir George Smart, in Great Portland Street, of Carl Maria von Weber, the world-famed composer of "Der Freischütz," whose last operatic work, "Oberon," had been specially written for Covent Garden Theatre. In December next, as already stated, the centenary of the composer's birth is to be commemorated with appropriate festivities at his native Eutin (Holstein) as well as in musical centres and circles probably all the world over.

The annual meeting of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musikverein is to be held from the 3rd to the 6th inst. at Sondershausen. The attendance of musicians is likely to be a large one, and the proceedings promise to be of a very interesting character. Franz Liszt will be the president.

A new comic Opera "Malawika," by Felix Weingartner, was announced to be brought out on the 27th ult. at the Munich Hof-Theater, under the direction of its composer.

Goethe's drama "Pandora" (a fragment) was produced on the 2nd ult., for the first time on any stage, at the Weimar Hof-Theater, with musical numbers, composed for the occasion by Herr Lassen (the composer also of music to "Faust"), which is said to have proved highly effective.

Wagner's "Parsifal" was produced on April 4, in concert-form, by the Oratorio Society of New York, conducted by Mr. Walter Damrosch. The leading parts were in the hands of Fräulein Marianne Brandt, Herren Max Alvary, and Emil Fischer, and the performance is said to have produced a profound impression. This was the first occasion of Wagner's latest work being heard in the United States.

The Wiener Musikalische Zeitung is publishing a series of very interesting articles concerning Liszt's Symphonic Poems, from the pen of Herr Rudolf Benfey, to which we gladly draw attention.

Herr Ludwig Bösendorfer, the well-known pianoforte manufacturer, of Vienna, has, according to a statement making the round of German papers, invented an apparatus by means of which anyone, however inexperienced, will be enabled to correctly tune his own instrument. This welcome announcement is probably one of those which must be accepted cum grano salis.

The Brussels Théâtre de la Monnaie has tided over its recent difficulties, two new directors having been nominated in the persons of MM. Dupont and Lapisside, while the annual subsidy to be paid to the establishment by the Municipal Council has been raised to 120,000 francs.

Verdi's new opera "Othello" will, it is now stated, be first produced at La Scala, of Milan, in January next, the leading parts to be interpreted by Madame Pantaleoni, M.M. Tamagno and Maurel. Little credit is, however, to be attached at present to the ever-changing rumours respecting this new work by the composer of "Aida."

"La figlia di Jaffe" is the title of a four-act opera by the Maestro Micelli, which has just been brought out with some success at the San Carlo Theatre of Naples.

An Italian Opera "Fiore fatale," by the Russian composer, M. Krotkoff, has been well received on the recent performance of the work at Moscow.

A one-armed pianist, Signor Carlo Grosso, has just given a series of most successful Concerts at the Vittorio Emanuele Theatre of Turin.

A new opera, "Junker Heinz," by Carl von Perfall, has been performed with considerable success at the Munich Hof-Theater.

It is stated that no less than thirty-one Belgian theatres have had to be closed during the past winter in consequence of the non-success of their respective directors to make them pay. The above number, in view of the comparative smallness of the country, is certainly an enormous one.

The following was the programme of a Concert held at the Berlin Zions Kirche, on the 4th ult., under the direction of Herr Otto Dienel, assisted by a number of artists, and the members of the Berlin Domchor, viz.:—Prelude and Fugue, A minor (S. Bach), Requiem (Jomelli), Largo for violoncello (Handel), Prayer (A. Stradella), Adagio for violin (A. Becker), Prayer (Ferd. Hiller), Jubilate (Th. Moore), Adagio from Second Grand Organ Sonata (O. Dienel), Air from "Elijah" (Mendelssohn), Violoncello solo (Gluck), Choral (F. E. Wilsing), Air for violin (Phil. Scharwenka), Pastorale and Finale from Sixth Grand Concert Sonata (O. Dienel).

Bach's "Passions Musik" (St. Matthew) was performed at the following German towns, among others, during Passion week, viz.:—Munich (Musikalische Akademie), Berlin (Sing-Akademie), Carlsruhe (Chorgesellschaft), Magdeburg (Kirchengesangverein), Stuttgart (Verein für klassische Kirchenmusik). In the same period the following sacred works were produced at other towns of Germany, viz.:—Bach's "Passions Musik," according to St. John, at Frankfurt (Stockhausen's Academy) and Schwerin (Hof-Theater Chor); Heinrich Schütz's "Passions Musik," at Berlin (Schnöpscher Gesangverein) and Magdeburg (Kirchenchor); Handel's "Messiah," at Coblenz (Kirchenchor); Bach's Cantata "Gottes Zeit" and Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," at Chemnitz (Singakademie); Wagner's "Parsifal" (fragments only), at Hamburg (Stadt-Theater). A monument erected to Joseph Haydn at the Esterhazy Park of Vienna was to have been unveiled on the 31st ult.

A monument was erected last month in the gardens adjoining the castle at Mannheim, to Jean Becker, the late eminent violin virtuoso, and leader of the famous "Florentine Quartet," well remembered also by the early frequenters of the Monday Popular Concerts.

At Rome, a monument has just been unveiled, dedicated to the memory of Metastasio, the great Italian poet and librettist, who died in 1782. The festive proceedings in connection with the ceremony included the performance of a musical fragment from an opera, "Attilio Pregelò," composed by Metastasio.

At Paris died, on April 24, Albert de Lasalle, a well-known musical critic and fertile author on subjects connected with the art, aged fifty-four.

At Brussels died, at the age of fifty-one, Jean Louis Gobbaerts, pianist and composer of numerous pièces de salon for his instrument.

At Berlin, on April 30, the death is announced of Hieronymus Thrun, the composer of numerous popular male quartets, and one of the most prominent figures in musical circles of the capital, aged seventy-five.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE ART OF TRANSPPOSITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—To Mr. Charles Santley belongs the honour of having offered to students the only prize in the Kingdom which, briefly stated, is for transposing at sight. Writing as a student of the pianoforte under both private teachers and professors at public institutions for years past, I cannot forbear saying that the art of transposition has hitherto been systematically shirked or neglected.

Principals of music schools do not establish classes for transposition and—as a consequence, perhaps—musical litterati do not publish manuals on the subject.

May I enquire in all-conscious ignorance the reason for this?

While there are inborn mathematicians who can solve a problem without the aid of the first four rules of arithmetic, or even pencil and paper, so, too, among us there are musicians (some blind) whose gifts ask instruction of none. But, it may be added, neither can they communicate to any their wonderful powers. Theirs is miracle perhaps, not art.

In bringing the neglected—I hope not forgotten—art of transposition to public attention, through the columns of THE MUSICAL TIMES, no apology I believe is needed. The important step initiated by Mr. Santley, who has stationed his Prize for some years since at the Royal Academy of Music, should have many imitators, and the time, we hope, may be not far distant when prizes will become both valuable and plentiful in first rate music schools and colleges throughout the country.

FORTUNE CÆTERA MUNDO.

Stratford, E., May 20, 1886.

[Mr. Santley's prize is for the best accompanist, but it also includes transposition.—ED. Musical Times.]

TALLIS'S MOTETT FOR FORTY VOICES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—May I beg a small space in your columns for a matter which should be of exceptional interest to those of your readers who are anxious to maintain the position of the English school of music?

The Motett for forty voices written by Tallis stands alone as a unique production of one of our greatest English composers, also as one of the most extraordinary efforts of musical genius; yet this great national possession still remains in MS.

It is surely a great loss that such a composition should be scarcely even heard of by a large number of musical people, and one can hardly believe that any such extraordinary foreign production would have been allowed to remain so long unpublished.

The cost of publishing 250 copies of this Motett in large octavo score would be about £50. Is it too much to expect that fifty of your readers will be willing to invest £1 (for which they will receive five copies) in the production of what should be a national pride? We may fairly hope that, if the Motett be brought out in a suitable form, we may sometimes hear it performed by our larger Societies, and thus give many musical people the advantage of admiring as well as studying the marvellous resources of one of our greatest musicians of the past. I propose bringing this Motett out as soon as possible (if I receive fifty names), with the original Latin words and an English translation of the same. Hoping you will be able to spare me the space to make this my appeal public,

I am, with many thanks, yours faithfully,

A. H. MANN.

King's College, Cambridge, May 21, 1886.

BRASS BANDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—It was with pleasure and pride that I read your leaderette in the May issue on the development and popularity of the brass band movement. The bands of Lancashire and Yorkshire are as near perfection as it is possible to train them, and people who have never heard them can form no idea of the grand and striking effects they can produce. The foreign bands which were engaged at the "Inventions"—German "Jagers," Belgian Guides, French Engineers, &c.—cannot compare with the amateur bands of the North of England, and, in the words of Mr. C. Godfrey, "we can challenge the world to find their equal."

Some of the bands (Black Dyke, Besses o' th' Barn, Kingston Mills, Oldham Rifles) pay a professional man at the rate of £100 per annum for one lesson a week, and possess instruments to the value of £400 each band, Besson's "Prototypes" being almost exclusively used. The paper you were so kind as to notice, The Brass Band News, is the outcome of the enthusiasm displayed by the supporters and friends of the village bands which compete for prizes, the judges giving their notes and reasons for each award through the medium of that journal; and these notes are eagerly read and discussed as soon as made public, each band thus receiving a valuable lesson at every contest. No form of musical entertainment can do more to educate the masses than the bands of the North of England are doing at this present day. Now, sir, I appeal to you, as the head of musical journalism, to say a few words in favour of establishing brass band competitions in London, thus rousing the bandsmen of the Metropolis and neighbourhood to activity in promoting and attending contests, in order to learn by comparison what to imitate and what to avoid. Should you do so, you will earn that which will be ungrudgingly bestowed—viz., the lasting gratitude of 100,000 of my fellow bandsmen. Again thanking you for the notice,

I am, yours, &c.,

BRASS BAND.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

WILLIAM L. FROST.—The notice of our correspondent's Concert, which took place on April 12, was forwarded too late for insertion in our May number.

EDWARD G. CROAGER.—In the paragraph upon the Concert of the Kyrie Choir supplied to us the name of the above artist was written as we printed it.

PROGRESS.—Our correspondent's letter is under consideration.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, U.S.A.—The Easter Morning Service in St. John's Episcopal Church, was rendered under the direction of Mr. G. Davis James, F.S., Organist of the Church. The musical portion of the services consisted of Processional Hymn, "We march" (Harnby); Anthem, "Christ our Passover" (Savage); Psalms (Tallis); Te Deum (Jackson) in F (by request); Jubilate (Woodward); Anthem, "The Lord is great in Zion" (Best); Kyrie (Toussaint); Gloria Tibi (Tallis); Hymn before Sermon, "Jesus Christ is risen" (Carey); Offertory Sentences (Anthon); Sursum Corda and Sanctus (G. Davis James); Gloria in Excelsis (Old Chant); Eucharistic Hymn, "The strife is o'er" (Palestrina); concluding voluntary, "Hallelujah" (Beethoven).

ALNWICK.—At the Annual Meeting of the Choral Union on the 19th ult., Mr. Moore and Mr. Wise, the Conductor and accompanist to the Association, were presented each with a handsome electro type service and tray, bearing suitable inscriptions. The presentation was made, with a highly complimentary speech, by Mr. Graham, and the gift gracefully acknowledged by the recipients.

BAKESWELL.—A successful Concert was given by the Choral Society, on Tuesday, the 4th ult., at the Corn Law Hall. The programme was miscellaneous, the first part of the Concert, and the second was miscellaneous, including songs, glees, &c., and a violin solo by Miss Lily Mellor. The principal vocalists were Madame Farrar Hyde, Messrs. F. Gilman, E. Moreton, and J. W. Malby. Pianoforte, Master Westbrook; Conductor, Mr. T. B. Mellor. The choruses were accompanied by an efficient band.

BARNSTABLE.—A successful Musical Festival took place on Easter Wednesday, at the Music Hall, two Concerts being given under the direction of Mr. Edwards and his son, Dr. H. J. Edwards. The principal item at each Concert was Dr. Edwards's Oratorio The Ascension, which was excellently rendered, and received with the greatest favour. The solo vocalists were Miss Anna Williams, Madame McKenzie, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. M. Worlock. The orchestra was ably led by Mr. Rice, who also played the violin obligato to Madame McKenzie's solo, "My Saviour, can it ever be?" with so much sympathy as to elicit warm applause. The Oratorio was conducted by the composer. Both Concerts were well attended.

BATLEY.—On Tuesday, the 4th ult., the choir of the Hick Lane Wesleyan, assisted by a few friends, gave a performance of Van Bree's St. Cecilia's Day. The recitatives and solos were effectively sung by Miss E. Farrar and Miss S. Child, and the choruses were well played on the organ and pianoforte by Mr. J. A. Earnshaw and Mr. T. Holgate, respectively. Mr. S. Child ably conducted. The second part was miscellaneous. Songs were given by Miss Farrar, Mr. Harrison, and Mr. Smith.

BEDFORD.—The Amptill Musical Society gave its last Concert of the present season, in the Court-room, on Friday, the 7th ult. The programme consisted of Mendelssohn's Lauda Sion, Locke's Macbeth Music, and a miscellaneous selection. The soloists were Mrs. Trust, Mrs. Barton, Miss Jeanie Rosse, Mr. Cole Hamilton, and Mr. Claude Pym. Mr. H. W. Stewardson, L.Mus., T.C.L., conducted.

BEXLEY HEATH.—Mr. J. Flint, Organist and Choirmaster of Christ Church, gave his Annual Concert in the Club Room, Station Road, on Wednesday evening, the 13th ult. The first part of the programme consisted of Romberg's Lay of the Bell, and the second was miscellaneous. The solo vocalists were Miss Wood, Miss Harris, Miss Gardner, Mr. Farquharson, and Mr. E. Towey. Pianoforte solos were contributed by Miss Hewby and Mr. J. Turpin, Mus. Bac., Cantab. The choruses and part-songs were well sung by the members of the Choral Society. Mr. Turpin presided at the pianoforte as accompanist, and Mr. Borland at the harmonium.

BIRMINGHAM.—On Thursday, April 20, the members of the Sunday School Union Choral Society gave a performance of the Holy City in the Wycliff Church, Bristol Road. The principal vocalists were Miss Clara Lurgey, Miss L. Dewa, Mr. Paeton Smith, and Mr. T. Horrex. The composer, Mr. Alfred R. Gaul, Mus. Bac., Cantab., presided at the organ. Mr. W. Skelton (the late honorary secretary of the Society) wielded the bâton. The whole performance was highly creditable, Miss Dewa especially distinguishing herself.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—The Auckland Musical Society's last Concert of the season, was given on Tuesday, the 4th ult. The chief item in the programme was Liszt's Oratorio, St. Elizabeth (Part I), performed with full band and chorus; solo vocalists, Mrs. Hutchinson and Mr. Nutton. Haydn's String Quartet was also performed, the quartet being Mdlle. B. Brouill, Mr. W. Lax, Mr. J. H. Beers, and Mr. F. Weston.

BOURNEMOUTH.—An attractive Concert was given by the members of the Young Women's Christian Association on Wednesday, the 5th ult., at Shaftesbury Hall. The principal item of the evening was the Pilgrim Fathers, by G. Root, which was well rendered. Solos were effectively sung by Mrs. Root, Miss Hawkins, Mr. Clarke, Dr. Frost, &c.; and the choruses, directed by Miss Moseley, were given with great precision.

BROCKLEY.—On the 13th ult., a performance of Haydn's Creation was given in the Presbyterian Church, with band and chorus of 100. The soloists were Madame Riechelmann, Mr. Conell, and Mr. Harrison, song soloists; Messrs. Edwards, Organist of the Church, and Miss Trickett, R.A.M., presided at the pianoforte and American organ respectively; Mr. W. Cowper Pellatt conducted, and Mr. Meriton Sargeant led the band. The Concert was a marked success in every way, Madame Riechelmann's fine singing of "On mighty pens" and "With verdure clad" eliciting much applause.

BURNLEY.—It was due entirely to the enterprise of Mr. Massey, an accomplished local amateur, that the people of Burnley enjoyed the enviable opportunity of hearing Gounod's Oratorio, the Redemption, a work only previously given in this district. Nor was this the first time that this gentleman has sacrificed labour and money for the sake of enabling his fellow-townsmen to enjoy high-class music. The performance, on April 26, was surprisingly good, and would, in fact, have done credit to choirs of far greater fame. The chorus included none but local singers, and the orchestra was selected chiefly from Mr. Hallé's and Mr. De Jong's bands, with Herr Otto Bernhardt as leader. The solo singers were Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Horner, Miss Wakefield, Mr. Winch, Mr. Barrington Foote, and Mr. Brereton. Mr. Massey, who conducted the performance, must have devoted much zeal and attention to the rehearsals, and assuredly the labour was not thrown away. The quality of the voices was generally excellent, the sopranos and tenors being especially fine, and the singing throughout was characterised by accuracy and intelligence. The musical resources in the Redemption is very extensive, and, considering the unusual resources, but if Mr. Bernhardt's band had been stronger it might have been too large for the room, and if the substitute for the organ, which plays so important a part in the score, was not all that might have been desired, this was not the fault of either the Conductor or Leader. The principal singers were all equal to their duties. Mrs. Hutchinson, who has sung the soprano part in Macbeth, is evidently thoroughly familiar with the music. Miss Wakefield's beautiful voice and cultivated style were not less admired, and Miss Horner was very useful in the concerted pieces. The tenor solos are well adapted to Mr. Winch's voice and style, and he evidently created a favourable impression. The music to which the words of the Saviour are set, was most efficiently interpreted by Mr. Brereton, who sang with considerable fervour and finish, and Mr. Barrington Foote was also thoroughly efficient. On the 2nd ult., Weber's Mass in G was sung at Salem Chapel by an augmented choir, the solos being well rendered by local artists. A large congregation attended.—A fine organ, built by Messrs. Bryceon, has been presented to Holy Trinity Church, Habergarn Eaves, by John Collinge, Esq., in memory of his mother, the late Mrs. Collinge, of Spring Hill. The instrument is one of the finest and largest in the district. It has three manuals, thirty-two stops, contains 1,848 pipes, and is provided with hydraulic blowing attachment. The chance of the church has also been more efficiently lighted, and much-needed alterations of the choir stalls carried out, the expense being generously defrayed by C. J. Massey, Esq., The Hollins. The organ was dedicated and consecrated at Evensong, on the 5th ult., when Mr. J. Kendrick Pyne, of Manchester, presided. Special hymns were appointed, including "O worship the King" and "Abide with me," sung to tunes composed by the Organist and Choirmaster, Mr. R. Watson, whose careful and zealous training for the last twenty years has raised the choir to its well-known efficiency. After the vicar, the Rev. J. M. Dorset Owen, M.A., had pronounced the prayer of dedication and consecration, Mr. Pyne gave a Recital, which included compositions by Schumann, Beethoven, Bach, Widemann, Grisar, Rheinberger, and Smart. The services were continued on Sunday, the 9th, the church being crowded at Evensong, when the anthem was Gounod's solo and chorus, "From Thy love as a Father" (Redemption). At the close a short Recital was given by Mr. W. A. C. Cruickshank, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist of the Parish Church.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—The members of the Choral Society gave their last Concert for the season on the 19th ult. The work selected was Romberg's Lay of the Bell, which was splendidly rendered, and the second part of the programme was miscellaneous. The principal vocalists were Miss E. Leitch, Mr. Dudley Thomas, and Signor S. S. The band and chorus numbered 100 performers. Mr. T. B. Richardson proved an efficient Conductor.—The Oratorio, Christ and His Soldiers, by J. Farmer, was performed in St. Mary's Church, on the 19th ult. The choir was considerably augmented by members of the Choral Society, and their efforts proved highly successful, the effect on the large congregation being most marked. The solo and quartets were ably rendered by Miss Kate Leitch, L.R.A.M., Miss E. B. Snape, Mr. Holberry Hayard, and Mr. F. Pattie. Mr. T. B. Richardson presided at the organ, and rendered the accompaniments in masterly style.

CARNARVON.—On the 6th ult. the members of the Choral Society gave their first Concert at the Pavilion, the work selected being Haydn's Creation. The solo parts were sung by Madame Lizzie Williams, Mr. Dyved Lewys, and Mr. Lucas Williams. Mr. J. W. Collinson led the orchestra, and Mr. John Williams (Organist of Christ Church) conducted.

CLACKMANNAN, N.B.—The Tonic Sol-Fa Association gave a very creditable performance of Mendelssohn's Athalie, on Wednesday, the 13th ult., in the Parish Church. The solos were undertaken by the members of the Association, and the excellent arrangement of the accompaniment for piano and harmonium, by Mr. J. W. Elliott, was well rendered by Miss Cummings and Mr. J. McGhie. Mr. W. H. Locker, the Conductor, was highly complimented on the excellent singing of the members.

CLEVEDON.—The members of the Choral Society gave a very successful Concert at the Public Hall on the 18th ult., the programme consisting of Cowen's Rose Maiden and a miscellaneous selection. The solos in the Cantata were taken by members of the Society. The second part included songs by Miss E. Cole and Mr. Charles Hayman, a violin solo by Miss Ethel Butten, and a pianoforte solo by the Conductor, Mr. W. Haydn Cox, L.R.A.M.

CLIFTON (BEDFORDSHIRE).—The Festival Services, in connection with the opening of the new organ in All Saints' Church, were held on Thursday, the 13th inst. Mr. W. Carling, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist of the Parish Church, Hitchin, gave an Organ Recital from the works of Handel, Haydn, Mendelssohn, Smart, and Gounod, in the afternoon, and in the evening there was full choral Evensong. Mr. W. B. Cook (Organist of the Church) accompanied the latter part of the service, and gave a short Recital from the works of Costa, Watson, and Scotson Clark. During the service the Offertory Sentences were sung to special settings composed for the occasion by Mr. Cook. The Psalms and Canticles were sung to Gregorian Tones, accompanied by a brass band and the organ.

CRICKHOWEL.—On April 29 the Philharmonic Society gave a Concert, when Handel's Serenata Acis and Galatea was exceedingly well rendered, with orchestral accompaniment. The soloists were Mrs. Sicklemore, Mr. T. Davies, and Mr. Lucas Williams, R.A.M. Conductor, Mr. T. Davies, A.C.O.

CROYDON.—An excellent Concert, consisting of Mendelssohn's Athalie, and a miscellaneous selection, was given by the Philharmonic Society, on Wednesday evening, the 4th ult. The solo vocalists were Miss Eleanor Farnol, Miss Alice Roper, and Miss Lottie West; Reader, Mr. G. C. Hyde; Organist, Mr. E. G. Ingrams; Conductor, Mr. H. L. Balfour.

DARTFORD.—The members of the Choral Association gave their final Concert of the season at the Assembly Rooms on Monday evening, the 10th ult. The first part of the programme consisted of Sterndale Bennett's Cantata, The May Queen, which was admirably rendered. The solo vocalists were Miss Kate Fusselle, Miss Annie Wilson, Mr. Fred Lewis, and Mr. Musgrove. Tuffnell, Mr. C. R. Green conducted, Miss A. Reynolds presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. H. Blicke led the band. A feature of the miscellaneous portion was a violin solo, admirably played by Mr. Blicke, and accompanied on the pianoforte by Mdlle. Blicke.

DAVENTRY.—The Musical Society gave the last Concert for the season on the 6th ult., when Cowen's Rose Maiden was performed, and received thorough justice from soloists and chorus. The vocalists were Miss Nellie Levey, Mrs. Cox, Mr. A. Page, and Mr. R. C. Allen, all of whom sang admirably. Mr. C. W. Herbert conducted.

DENBIGH.—An Organ Recital took place at St. Mary's Church, on the 7th ult., the performer being Mr. E. W. Toles of Stafford, Doctor of Music, and Fellow of the College of Organists. As on former occasions, a rich treat was provided for the audience, and it need hardly be said that the performance was in every way most admirable. The programme was highly interesting.

DORKING.—A fine performance of The Messiah was given by the Choral Society, on the 7th ult. Miss Bertha Moore, R.A.M., created an exceedingly favourable impression by her splendid rendering of "Come unto Him"; Madame Leonora Pople sang with much feeling; and Messrs. Probert and Forington were equally successful in their respective parts. Mr. E. Withers conducted, and too much praise cannot be bestowed upon him for the careful and painstaking manner in which he has been effectively trained the class.

DURHAM.—An invitation Concert was given in the Town Hall, on Monday evening, the 10th ult., by the members of Mr. S. Albion Alderson's amateur choir, to a large audience. The principal item in the programme was Gade's Crusaders, the solos in which were well sung by Mrs. Mason, Mr. H. Welch, and Mr. Riley. Mr. Alderson conducted, and the accompaniments were played in a masterly manner by Mrs. Whatford.

EAST GRINSTEAD.—The members of the Choral Society gave their third Concert at the Public Hall, on the 4th ult., before a large audience. The Society has been exceedingly trained by Sister Edith of St. Margaret's. The programme included a selection from The Messiah, the solo vocalists being Miss K. McKrill, R.A.M., and Mr. J. Consterline. In the second part, which was miscellaneous, the chief item was Jensen's Feast of Adonis. The vocalist was Mr. Harwood, a local tenor of much promise. The Rev. C. N. Sutton contributed a violin solo (encored). Miss E. Taylor accompanied, and Mr. F. J. Parker, A.C.O., presided at the harmonium. Mr. C. J. Viner conducted.

EDINBURGH.—The members of St. Aidan's Choral Society performed Gade's Erl-King's Daughter at their Annual Concert, in the Masonic Hall, on the 12th ult., with an efficient string quintet. Mr. J. Millar-Craig, Miss Charlotte Clark, and Miss Mackay, as the soloists, acquitted themselves admirably, and the choir sang with much effect. The second part consisted of part-songs and solos by local amateurs, which were thoroughly appreciated, as was also the Conductor's Romance and Barcarole for violin, played by Mr. Winram and encored. Messrs. Tom Craig and H. S. Smart presided at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively, and Mr. J. M. Sinclair conducted.

ELMHAM.—A very successful Concert was given in the National Schoolroom on Wednesday evening, the 18th ult., in aid of the Parish Church Choir. A small but efficient band, led by Mr. J. U. Martin, opened the first part of the programme with Rossini's Overture to L'Italiana in Algeria, and the second part with two movements from Mozart's Jupiter Symphony. The vocalists were Mrs. and Miss Gambling (the former giving Sullivan's "Lost Chord," with harmonium obligato by Mr. Slater), and Mr. Shellar. Mr. Slater played with masterly skill Chopin's Nocturne (Op. 37, No. 2), and elicited great applause. The choir sang with their usual precision and effect. Three of the part-songs were composed for the last Norwich Festival, and two others were new part-songs by the Conductor, Mr. W. W. Pearson.

ENFIELD LOCK.—On the 14th ult., a Concert was given in the Large Hall of the R.S.A.F. The first part consisted of the Passion Music from The Messiah, and the second of selections from the works of Handel, Haydn, Mendelssohn, Gounod, and other masters. The principal parts were sustained by Miss A. Tabernacle, Miss L. Dews, Mr. B. Riley, and Mr. Leyton Barker. Miss Dews gave a fine rendering of "He was despised" and Gounod's "There is a green hill," as did also Mr. Riley of "How vain is man," each singer being received with every mark of approval. The choruses were given with great precision by the R.S.A.F. Church Choir, and the band, led by Major W. Lockyer, rendered very valuable assistance. Mrs. G. Corbie presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. E. J. Holt at the organ. The Concert was under the direction of Mr. E. Holt, to whom, at the final rehearsal on the previous evening, a very valuable ad lib was presented by the members of the band and chorus in acknowledgment of his services.

FAREHAM.—On Tuesday, the 11th ult., the members of the Choral Society gave their second Concert at the Town Hall. The solo vocalists were Madame Wilson-Osman, Mrs. Goble, Miss Cae, Miss Richardson, Messrs. Sylvester, Scott, and Shilling. The band was led by Mr. Churcher, Miss Darby presided at the pianoforte, Miss Abraham at the harmonium, and Mr. F. Rutland conducted. A miscellaneous programme was well rendered.

FOLKESTONE.—A very successful Concert was given in the Winter Gardens, Pavilion Hotel, on Tuesday, April 27, when Dr. Storer's new Cantata, The Tournament, and the 18th and 19th ult. respectively, the Village Belles were performed with full chorus and orchestra. A miscellaneous programme, which included a Sextet for strings and pianoforte, by Dr. Storer, was also well rendered. The principal vocalists were Lady Folkestone, Mrs. Nugent, Miss Minnie Kirtin, Miss Morse, Rev. H. Carpenter, Messrs. Rose and Pope. Mr. J. R. C. Roberts led the orchestra and Dr. Storer conducted. On the 17th ult., Dr. Storer's new Cantata, The Tournament, was given by the choir and Choral Union at Christ Church. The soloists were Mr. Harry Stubbs, of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, Master Fidge, and Mr. Baker. The performance was under the direction of Mr. W. E. Fairclough, who presided at the organ. On the 20th ult., Mr. Fairclough gave an Evening Concert in the Town Hall, the programme including Gade's Spring's Message, a Schumann's "Gypsy Life," Mendelssohn's Capriccio in B minor, with string quintet accompaniment, and two movements of Schubert's "Trout" Quintet for piano and strings. The artists were Madame Clara Suter and Mr. Henry Cooper, vocalists; Mr. C. M. Gann, violin, and Mr. W. E. Fairclough, pianoforte. The Cantata and two part-songs were sung with the accompaniment for a small orchestra, and conducted by the Concert-giver.

HADLEIGH.—Two performances of The Messiah were given in the Parish Church, on the 11th and 12th ult. respectively, the members of the choir being drawn from Hadleigh and the villages in the vicinity, and trained by Mr. George A. Hardacre. The solo vocalists were Miss Winnie Beaumont, Miss Agnes Broome, the Rev. R. M. Hawkins, and Mr. H. Brockbank, all of whom were thoroughly efficient. The choruses were given with much precision and effect. On the following evening, according to the programme, a highly successful performance was given in the Town Hall, the principal vocalists being Miss Winnie Beaumont and the Rev. R. M. Hawkins; Mr. R. C. Bailey (flute), Mr. H. Musgrove (violin), and Mr. W. E. Whitehouse (violinello). The programme included selections from Mr. W. H. Cummings's Cantata The Fairy Ring, vocal and instrumental solos, and Franklin Taylor's Tro Sympphony. Mr. Hardacre conducted and presided at the pianoforte.

HAVERFORDWEST.—A very successful performance of Cowen's Rose Maiden was given by the Choral Society on the 19th ult. The solos were sustained by Miss Katie Thomas, R.A.M., Mrs. W. J. Jones, Miss Morgan, Messrs. C. V. Harding and Stockham. Leader of the band, Mr. Ribbon; pianist, Miss J. White; Conductor, Mr. C. Videon Harding.

HECKMONDWICK.—On Monday, the 17th ult., a Concert was given at the National School by Messrs. Johnson and Co., music-sellers, on behalf of the proposed Church of St. Saviour. The programme was given by the choir, and was performed with high success, Messrs. Johnson and Dyson accompanying throughout the Concert with much ability.

HERNE BAY.—The Easter Services in the Parish Church were well attended, the musical portion being effectively rendered under the superintendence of Mr. Crutenden, who presided at the organ. The anthem was Dr. Stainer's "They have taken away my Lord," and the evening service concluded with the "Hallelujah" chorus from The Messiah. A Concert in connection with the Choral Society was given in the Town Hall, on Thursday, the 13th ult. The programme comprised a miscellaneous selection and Sir G. A. Macfarren's Cantata May Day, the solo in which was well sung by Miss Falkenberg. The other vocalists were Mrs. Fenoulhet, Mr. Flower, and Mr. Rhodes. Miss M. Bowes and Miss S. A. Collard presided at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively, and violin solos were contributed by Miss Iglduden. Mr. Crutenden conducted.

HEXHAM.—Van Bree's St. Cecilia's Day was given by the Choral Society, on the 7th ult., with a band and chorus of 200 performers, under the conductorship of Mr. Kirkley. The soloist engaged, was Miss Winnie Beaumont, who most ably sustained her reputation, as Messrs. Beech (violin), S. Beers (violinello), R. Smith (clarinet), Parker (flute), and R. Seaton (pianoforte) contributed solos very effectively, and Mr. Parker played the flute obligato to Miss Beaumont's "Lo! here the gentle lark," with much skill.

HIGH WYCOMBE.—On Monday evening, the 3rd ult., the members of the Choral Association gave their final Concert of the season in the Town Hall before a large audience. The programme included a large portion of Mendelssohn's Israel in Egypt, a short miscellaneous selection. The principal artists were Miss Alice Parry, Miss Hipwell, Mr. Kenningham, and Mr. Musgrave Tufnail. Mr. J. G. Wrigley, Mus. Bac., Oxon., conducted.

HINGHAM, NORFOLK.—On Easter Day a full choral service was held in the evening at St. Andrew's Parish Church, the choir being assisted by the members of the Choral Society. The Service was Bunnett in F, and the anthem Elvey's "O give thanks." Mr. B. Jackson, the newly appointed Organist, presided at the organ, and played as voluntaries Smart's Andante Grazioso in D and Tour's Postlude in D.—On Easter Monday an Organ Recital was given in St. Andrew's Parish Church by Mr. B. Jackson, which was well attended. The programme was selected from the works of Smart, Mendelssohn, Handel, Lemmens, Scootson Clark, Bach, and Merkel.—On April 27 a Concert was given in the Fairland Hall by the members of the Choral Society, who have met during the winter months under the able conductorship of the Rev. R. W. P. Montgomery. An excellent programme was performed and much appreciated. Alice Mary Smith's Duet "O that we two were Way" was exquisitely rendered by Mr. Montgomery and Miss Musket. Pianoforte solos were contributed by Mr. R. Temple Beevor, who also shared the accompaniments with Mr. B. Jackson.

HULL.—At the Public Rooms, on the 7th ult., the Harmonic Society gave its concluding Concert for the season by the first production in Hull of Sir Julius Benedict's Oratorio St. Peter, which was composed for the Birmingham Musical Festival of 1870. The performance, under the able conductorship of Mr. Porter, may be confidently described as a great success, considering the great diversity of the work to a Hull audience. The vocal singers were all of the Royal Academy of Music—Miss Thudichum, Miss Ellis, Mr. Nichol, and Mr. Musgrave Tufnail—and these principals were supplemented by a chorus and band of nearly 200 performers, the band being chosen from the leading orchestras of the kingdom. The libretto is selected entirely from the Holy Scriptures, and portrays, in the vivid and language of the Bible, the principal events of the great Apostle's life. The work almost naturally divides itself into two parts, the first being the Divine call and the trial of faith; and the second the denial, the repentance, and the deliverance. Among the items which most conspicuously display the genius of the composer may be mentioned the Quartet near the close of the first part, "O come let us sing unto the Lord," which was most exquisitely rendered, and encored. The concluding chorus, the 13th ult., "Praise ye the Lord from the Heavens" was also a splendid performance. As a soprano singer, Miss Thudichum perhaps scored one of her highest triumphs in the air, "Gird up thy loins and arise." The work concludes with a grand chorus, "Sing unto the Lord, O ye Saints of His."

HUNTINGDON.—A successful Concert was given in the Corn Exchange on Tuesday evening, the 4th ult., before a crowded audience. The first part of the programme consisted of Gaul's Holy City, the principal parts in which were taken by Miss Carrie Blackwell, Madame Leonora Pople, R.A.M., Mr. Malwain Humphreys, and Mr. Frank M. R.A.M., the choruses were particularly well rendered by the Huntingdon Musical Society, reflecting great credit on the Conductor, Mr. A. A. Mackintosh, F.C.O. The band was under the leadership of Mr. Arthur Hudson, R.A.M. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous: Miss Edith Mann, pupil of the late Sir J. Benedict, played "Where the bee sucks," and, as an encore, gave Thalberg's "Home, sweet home," and Mr. Arthur Hudson performed Raff's Cavatina and a Mazurka by Wieniawski in excellent style.

LEFORD.—The Vocal Union gave its second Concert, in the Wesleyan Chapel, on the 13th ult., with much success. The Union sang Elvey's "O give thanks" and "In that day," the Gloria from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, Pissini's "Spring song," Bishop's "Where art thou, beam of light?" Benedict's "Home," and Hatten's "England." Miss K. Nicholls and Mr. Henry Dean contributed solos in an artistic and refined style, and the Misses Haynes gave some excellent instrumental music, Miss E. Haynes's playing of the Andante from Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto being specially worthy of notice. Mr. A. Starr conducted.

INVERNESS, N.B.—The members of the Philharmonic Society gave their seventeenth Choral Concert (the second of the present season) in the Music Hall, on Thursday evening, the 13th ult. The works performed were Schubert's Song of Miriam and Gaul's Cantata The Holy City, both of which were excellently rendered. The solo parts were well given by members of the Society; the chorus was very fairly led, and, with the aid of the orchestra, the instrumentalists was thoroughly efficient. Mr. J. H. Gibbons-Money conducted.

JERSEY.—Two very successful Concerts were given by the Choral Society on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, the 4th and 5th ult., at the Oddfellows' Hall, when The Messiah was admirably performed to a crowded audience. The solo vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Ann Horton, Mr. Holberry Hagyard, and Mr. Henry Brockbank. The rendering of the choruses testified to the care with which the voices had been trained by Mr. E. Dowden, the Conductor of the Society. Messrs. C. E. R. Stevens and I. Malzard presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. M. Mallett at the harmonium; there was also an efficient orchestra.

KETTERING.—On Monday, the 24th ult., the Choral Society gave the third Concert of the season, when Handel's Israel in Egypt was performed with great success. Additional strength was given to both band and chorus by help from the neighbourhood, especially from Market Harborough. The choruses throughout went well. The soloists were Miss Kate Fusselle, Miss Coyte Turner, and Mr. Holberry Hagyard, all of whom gave much satisfaction. Mr. Hagyard's declamation of "The Enemy said," being especially successful. Mr. Ed. Messrs. James Palmer and Miller (members of the Society) sang "The Lord is a Man of War." Mr. H. G. Gotch, as usual, conducted.

LEAMINGTON.—A very successful Concert was given by Messrs. C. S. Birch and E. Roberts-West, R.A.M., on the 12th ult. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Birch, Miss Ellen Marchant, Mr. A. Bailey, and Mr. Adolphus Phillips. M. De Jong, as flautist, received warm applause for his splendid playing, and Mr. Birch and Mr. West contributed pianoforte solos.—The Musical Society's first Concert for the season took place at the Public Hall, on Thursday evening, the 20th ult. Rossini's Stabat Mater and Cowen's Rose Maiden were well rendered. The solo vocalists were Madame Worrell, Miss Frances Hipwell, Mr. Sidney Tower, and Mr. F. H. Horscroft. Mr. Frank Spinney conducted. The Musical Society, which has been formed, promises an Orchestral Concert in October, and the Creation at Christmas.

LEICESTER.—Three Testimonial Concerts, arranged by a number of friends in honour of Mr. Henry Nicholson, the well-known flautist and conductor, were given, during the past month, with great success. Mr. Nicholson, although a resident in Leicester, has been for years associated with artists in London and the provinces, and much esteemed; consequently, the programmes contained the names of some of the greatest singers and instrumental performers.

LEWISHAM.—A Concert was given, on the 5th ult., under the direction of Mr. Waterhouse, Secretary to the Algeonon Road Littering Society, which was much appreciated. A feature of the programme, which was miscellaneous, was the violin playing of Miss Dixon, who, although only ten years of age, showed great power and command of the instrument. Mrs. J. S. Hoyle contributed pianoforte solos, and was an efficient accompanist.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—On Easter Monday, a Pianoforte Recital was given by Dr. C. H. Briggs in the Town Hall. The programme, which included compositions by Bach, Beethoven, Delius, Kücken, Mendelssohn, and Thalberg, was greatly appreciated.—On Tuesday, the 13th ult., the Philharmonic band and chorus gave their second, and last, Concert of the season in the Corn Exchange, when a selection from Handel's Samson was performed before a large and appreciative audience. The principals were Miss Jackson, Miss McKennie, Mrs. Penny, Miss Maud Harding, R.A.M., Mr. E. Dunkerton (Lincoln), Mr. E. Chapman, and Mr. Paltridge. Mr. Dunkerton gained a deserved encore for his fine rendering of "Thus when the sun," Mrs. Penny sang "Let the hie Scaramp," and the Corn Exchange band, captained by Mr. Geary, and Mr. McKennie, were very successful in the unaccompanied solo in "Glorious hero." Mr. J. Kibby led the band, and Mr. F. White conducted.

LOUTH.—The members of the Choral Society gave a Concert in the Town Hall, on Tuesday evening, the 4th ult. The programme consisted of part-songs, vocal solos, and instrumental music. The principal vocalists were Miss Delves Yates, Miss Lilian Delves Yates, and Mr. Charles B. King. The band was led by Miss E. M. Porter, daughter of the Conductor of the Society, Mr. G. H. Porter, Organist of the Parish Church.

LOW FELL.—On Tuesday evening, the 4th ult., the members of the Gateshead Fell Amateur Vocal Society, gave a performance in the National School, of Niels Gade's Cantata Comala. The music for the soprano (Comala), was most effectively rendered by Miss Emma Thompson, whose clear enunciation and dramatic style were much admired. The other parts were well interpreted by Mrs. H. D. Wilson, Miss Ranson, and Mr. T. B. Idle. A noticeable feature in the performance was the fine singing of the choruses. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Edwin J. Rowley, the Conductor, for his tireless exertions in training the voices. In the absence of an orchestra, Mrs. Wm. F. Horsley played the accompaniment on a grand pianoforte, with much ability. The work was listened to with earnest attention by a crowded audience. A miscellaneous programme brought the Concert to a close.

LYNN.—The Philharmonic Society gave its last Concert of the season in the Music Hall on Friday, the 7th ult. The band, led by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre, played well, and the chorus, conducted by Dr. Horace Hill, was extremely effective. The first part of the programme consisted mainly of selections from Handel's Israel in Egypt, the solo vocalists being Miss Jeanie Mills, Miss Agnes Hitchman, Mr. H. J. Jones, Rev. E. J. Alvis, and Mr. G. R. Oswell. The most artistically rendered item in the first part was Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," in which Miss Mills gained great favour with her audience. The second part was miscellaneous.

MAIDENHEAD.—On Tuesday, the 4th ult., the members of the Philharmonic Society gave their last Concert of the season in the Town Hall. The programme included a large selection from Mendelssohn's Elijah, &c. The principal artists were Miss Alice Parry, Miss Hipwell, Mr. Alfred Kenningham, and Mr. Tufnail. Mr. J. G. Wrigley, Mus. Bac., Oxon., conducted. The various items were well rendered, Miss Hipwell being especially successful in Haydn's "Spirit's Song," and Mr. Tufnail in "The Toreador's Song" (Carmen). Mr. Wrigley gave an excellent performance of Raff's Caprice in C minor (Op. 79).

MANCHESTER.—The last of the series of the Working Men's Concerts was given at the Free Trade Hall, on Saturday, the 8th ult., when the director, Mr. De Jong, took a well-deserved holiday, and the programme included the British Army Quilts, performed by several military bands. The vocalists were Misses Eleanor Falkner, Marie Athol, Dewa, and Wolstenholme; Messrs. George Barton, David Barri, and Edward Grime. In addition to the above Mr. De Jong had secured the services of Miss Conway, who gave an effective rendering of Gounod's "There is a green hill," and Bishop's "Love has eyes." Mr. De Jong performed a flute solo; Mr. J. H. Greenwood gave an amusing sketch, called "The Rosemaid," and Mr. Herbert Walker accompanied the songs in his usual effective style.

MELBOURNE.—On February 22, the Metropolitan Liedertafel gave a Concert for gentlemen only. The programme consisted of orchestral selections and part-songs. The instrumental performances were much appreciated, the following pieces being encored: "Marche Funèbre" (Chopin), "Traumeri" (Schumann); Turkish March (Ruins of Athens), Beethoven; and Serenade (Schubert). The part-singing was excellent, and altogether the Concert was one of the most enjoyable given in this province. The Concert was given at the request of Mr. Herz was warmly received on his reappearance after his recent illness.—The same Society, on the 29th of March, gave its 166th Concert in the Town Hall, in presence of an audience which completely filled the building. The programme consisted of the first act of the Huguenots (Meyerbeer), and third act Tannhäuser (Wagner). A full orchestra was employed, and the works were performed from the original scores. The act from Tannhäuser was particularly successful. The artists were Madame Bolema, Mr. Armes Beaumont, Herr Hartung, and Signor Savrini. Mr. Julius Herz conducted, as usual.

MIDDLESBOROUGH.—Dvorák's Cantata, The Spectre's Bride, was performed by the Musical Society, on Wednesday, the 5th ult., the principal parts being sustained by Mr. H. Harrison, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. John Bridson. The orchestra, largely augmented by the leading players of the north, rendered the difficult accompaniments in an excellent manner, and the choruses were exceedingly well sung. The work was preceded by Schubert's Symphony in C major, sung by the solo vocalists, and a movement of a String Quartet, by Mdlle. Brouill, Messrs. Lax, Beers, and Weston.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—The thirteenth private Invitation Concert of Mr. T. Albion Alderson's Amateur Chorus was given in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, the 11th ult., before a large audience. The programme consisted of Gade's Crusaders, Eaton Fanning's Moonlight, the Spinning chorus from Wagner's Flying Dutchman (for ladies' voices only), and Jensen's Fest of Adonis. The solo music was well rendered by Mrs. Mason, Mr. Riley, and Mr. T. H. Armstrong. Mr. Alderson conducted, and Mr. W. H. Whatford presided at the piano-forte.

NEWPORT (MON.).—On the 6th ult., at the Albert Hall, the Choral Society gave a rendering of Spohr's Last Judgment, followed by a miscellaneous orchestra. The artists were Miss Clara Doyle, Eos Morlais, Miss Katherine James, R.A.M., and Mr. David Hughes, R.A.M., vocalists; pianoforte, Miss Charlotte Jones; harmonium, Miss L. M. Williams; Conductor, Mr. Thomas Jones. The Oratorio was excellently performed, the choruses, especially "Destroyed is Babylon," being extremely well sung. In the miscellaneous items, Miss Katherine James, Mr. Hughes, and Miss Doyle created a marked effect, the two last-named artists being enthusiastically encored. The audience thoroughly appreciated the efforts of the Newport Choral Society, and Mr. Jones and his party are to be congratulated on the success which has attended their efforts.

NORWICH.—On Thursday, the 13th ult., the St. John's, Maddermarket, Choral Society gave a most successful Concert in Noverre's Rooms, the principal items of the programme being Schubert's Song of Miriam, Haydn's "Distracted with care," a duet for two pianofortes by Mozart, the same composer's Overture to La Clemenza di Tito (rendered by the orchestra), a new song, "The Actor," by Mrs. Morlais, by the Conductor, Mr. T. Arthur Harcourt, and a violoncello solo, written and performed by Mr. Ernest Harcourt. Schubert's fine work was rendered in a most creditable manner, as also the other choral portions of the programme, and Mr. Harcourt is to be congratulated on the successful issue of his labours during the past season.

PERTH.—An event which has been looked forward to for some time with much interest in musical circles throughout Perthshire, took place on the 1st ult. under the most favourable auspices, at the East Parish Church, Perth, was celebrated the first annual festival of the recently organised Perthshire Church Choir Union, which was in every respect a decided success. It must have been very encouraging to Mr. Graves, the energetic Conductor, and those who have worked so hard with him during the last few months, to see results so excellent arising from their patient and arduous labours. The Association was formed in the autumn of 1885, and now consists of eighteen choirs, representing an aggregate of about three hundred and fifty voices. The Festival is to be held annually in some suitable church in the county—the suitability having reference to size of building and the possession of an organ. The service commenced with an organ voluntary, this was followed by the 100th Psalm, sung by the united choirs and the congregation, after which the O. W. Worship, "The King at glorious above," was sung in a praiseworthy manner to Dr. Croft's tune "Hanover." The Te Deum was sung to Dykes's setting in F, and the rendering was everything that could have been desired. Elvey's Christmas anthem "Arise, shine, for thy light is come," followed the Te Deum and was even better sung than the latter. After the sermon by Dr. A. K. Boyd, came the 124th Psalm, sung to the well-known "Old 147th," and the closing hymn was "Onward, Christian Soldiers," to Sir Arthur Sullivan's popular tune. It was sung by the united choirs with great spirit. Mr. Dan Wylie presided at the organ with marked ability throughout the service, and Mr. F. S. Graves was a highly efficient Conductor.

PEWSEY, WILTS.—The Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's St. Paul, on Thursday, the 13th ult., in the New School. The band and chorus numbered upwards of sixty. The solos were well rendered by Miss Katherine Jones, who was most successful in "Jerusalem," the Rev. H. W. Carpenter, of Salisbury Cathedral, and the Rev. S. H. Lushington. The choruses were sung throughout with steadiness and precision. The band was ably led by Mr. Alfred Foley, of Salisbury. Miss Hussey's cello obbligato in "Be thou faithful," was much admired. The Lady Constance Bouverie and Miss Smelt presided at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively. The Rev. W. H. Weekes conducted.

RETFOED.—Mr. Hamilton White's Vocal Class Concert was given, at the Town Hall, on the 11th ult. The part singing was extremely good, and evinced the effect of intelligent and careful training. The principal vocalists were Miss Julia Hyde, Miss Ada Batley, and Mr. Charles Blagbro', all of whom were received with warm applause, as was also Miss Clark in her pianoforte solos, two excerpts from Chopin's works being especially well rendered.

RICHMOND.—A Concert of the Piscatorial Society took place at the Masonic Hall on the 5th ult. A feature in the evening was the excellent singing of Miss Rose Dafforne, who after both her songs—"Pinsuti's forward and warm," and Rodney's "Alone on the Raft"—was called upon to sing "Praise Music," which was given with great effect. Miss Mary Rachel, Messrs. Edward Dalzell, Fred. Bevan, A. Thompson, Scharlau, and McCall Chambers, whose vocal contributions were thoroughly appreciated. Solos were also most successfully given by Miss Vaughan (pianoforte) and M. Adolphe Brouill (violincello).

SEVENOAKS.—The eighth Concert of the St. John's Choral Society was held at the Royal Crown Assembly Room, on Tuesday evening, the 11th ult. The Concert commenced with Macfarren's Cantata, May Day, the solo in which was well sung by Miss Kate Norman. The choir, ably conducted by Mr. A. W. Marchant, was very satisfactory. Mr. C. W. Smith presided at the pianoforte. In the miscellaneous portion of the programme songs were contributed by Misses Emma Norman, M. Norman, Mr. Tilleard, and Mr. Bridson. The accompanists were Mr. Smith, Mr. Marchant, and Mr. Seare.

SHEFFIELD.—Mackenzie's Rose of Sharon was performed in the Albert Hall, on Easter Monday (April 26), with full band and chorus, the principals being Misses Jessie Royd and Dews, Messrs. J. Nutton and G. H. Welch (Durham Cathedral). The work was excellently rendered. Mr. T. T. Trimmell, Mus. Bac., presided at the organ, Mr. John Peck led the band, and Mr. William Brown conducted with care and steadiness.

SIDMOUTH.—The members of the Choral Society gave their last Concert of the season on the 5th ult., at the Assembly Rooms. Mendelssohn's St. Paul formed the first part of the programme. The Overture was especially well performed by the band, led by Mr. Foley, of Salisbury. The second part of the programme included Overture (Egmont), Entr'acte, No. 1 (Rosamunde), Schubert, and other interesting items. There was an efficient choir and orchestra, numbering about seventy members, conducted as usual by Dr. H. A. Harding.

SNODLAND (ROCHESTER).—An Organ Recital and Choral Service took place in St. John's Church, on the 14th ult. The programme, selected from the works of Wely, Batiiste, Smart, and Mendelssohn, was well rendered by the Organist, Mr. W. B. Hodgkinson, under whose direction several anthems were sung by the choir. The solo vocalists were Mr. and Miss Bevis, of Maidstone. The Recital was thoroughly appreciated.

STRATFORD.—On Tuesday evening, the 4th ult., the Upton Choral Society gave the last Concert of its fourth season in the Town Hall, to a large and appreciative audience. The artists were Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss F. A. Jones, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Robert Hilton, vocalists, and Mr. A. Wieland, narrator. Mr. Joseph Proudman conducted. The programme comprised Mendelssohn's Athalie, and a selection of songs and part-songs, which were excellently rendered. The Overture to Athalie, and "War March of the Priests," were well played by Messrs. F. C. Kitson and G. B. Gilbert. Mr. Kitson was as excellent accompanist.—The musical competitions, founded in 1883 by Mr. J. S. Curwen, took place at the Town Hall, on the 8th and 10th ult. There were 230 candidates in the twenty-nine classes. The judges were Messrs. W. H. Cummings, Ridley Fenn, Mr. T. Parsons, and Mr. E. Olive. The Plaistow Congregational Choral Society won the challenge cup, and the prize for a hymn tune was taken by a foreman painter. Mr. W. H. Bonner, the Secretary, had the general management of the meetings.

TONBRIDGE WELLS.—A very excellent performance of the second and third parts of The Messiah was given, at Christ Church, on Thursday evening, the 20th ult., under the direction of Mr. R. G. Godfrey, the energetic Organist of the Church. The solos were sung by Miss Eva Penn, Miss Panton, Miss Laubach, Mr. J. T. Parsons, and Mr. E. Olive. Mr. Godfrey presided at the organ with much skill and judgment. The performance was for the benefit of the organ and choir fund of the Church.

TORQUAY.—Miss Amina Goodwin, in conjunction with Herr Leo Schratzenholtz, a young violinist, gave a Concert at the Bath Saloon, on Thursday afternoon, April 29. The programme included pianoforte and violincello solos, admirably rendered by both artists, and duets for the two instruments, which were highly effective and much appreciated. The vocalist was Miss Alice Gomes.—On the 1st ult., the Torquay Musical Society, assisted by the Orchestral Society, gave Mendelssohn's Oratorio St. Paul in the Bath Saloon, before a large audience. The solo vocalists, Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Gertrude Hicks, Mr. Orlando Harley, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnal were thoroughly efficient, and the choruses were given throughout with excellent effect. The band and choir numbered upwards of 200 performers, and Mr. M. G. Rice was an able Conductor. This is the third Oratorio the Musical Society has produced during its two years' existence, the works previously performed being Elijah and The Messiah.

WARE.—The sixth annual Concert of the Musical Society was given at the Corn Exchange on the 4th ult. Lloyd's Cantata, Hero and Leander, which formed the first part of the programme, received an excellent rendering by the Society, under the conductorship of Mr. J. L. Gregory, F.C.O., the leading parts being sustained by Mrs. Daglish and Mr. A. E. Gregory. The accompaniments were effectively played by a quartet of strings; leader, Mr. J. E. Hilton; harmonium, Mr. G. H. Gregory, Mus. Bac., and pianoforte, Mr. M. Heywood, R.A.M. The second part was miscellaneous.

WHITBY.—The Choral Society, aided by a professional band, under the excellent leadership of Miss Bertha Brouill, gave a successful Concert on the 6th ult. The chief features in the programme were the first part of Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony (efficiently conducted by Mr. Kilburn, Bishop Auckland) and Acis and Galatea, with Mozart's instrumentation. The band, soloists (Miss V. Beaumont, Messrs. Blagbro' and Beard), and choir were all heartily and most deservedly applauded by a crowded audience. Miss Little was an able accompanist for the miscellaneous items. The musical management was entirely in the hands of Mr. H. Hallgate, the Society's honorary Conductor.

WILTON.—The Musical Society held the third Concert of the season at the Talbot and Wyvern Hall, on the 19th ult. An excellent performance of a selection from Judas Maccabaeus was given in the first part, and a short miscellaneous selection formed the second. Miss Julia Hyde, Misses Panton, and Mrs. Dafforne, and Messrs. Hayden and Crick rendered the solos with capital effect. The Concert was the most successful yet given and reflected much credit upon all concerned. Misses Eyres and Brazier presided at the pianoforte, Mr. Holt at the organ, and Mr. Hayden again conducted.

WINDSOR.—The third and last Concert for the season of the Windsor and Eton Choral Society, was held on Monday evening, the 24th ult., at the Albert Institute. The programme consisted of Haydn's Spring, Sir G. Elvey's Birth-day Cantata (conducted by the composer), and a miscellaneous selection. The solo vocalists were Miss Josephine Turner, Mr. W. Clinch, and Mr. F. Whitehouse. The orchestra was composed of local amateurs, led by Herr Gustav Morsch, who also contributed a violin solo. Mr. H. R. Coudrey presided at the pianoforte and harmonium, and Mr. S. Smith conducted.

WORKSHOP.—The first Concert in connection with Mr. Hamilton White's vocal class took place at the Criterion Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 5th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Julia Hyde and Miss Ada Batley. In the instrumental portion of the programme Mr. White was assisted by his pupil, Miss Clark, whose playing was much admired. The part-singing was admirable.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. W. E. Bell Porter, to St. Martin's Church, Worcester.—Mr. Charles Henry Ricks, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Michael's Parish Church, Bray, near Maidenhead, Berks.—Mr. Samuel Warren, to Trinity Episcopal Church, Elgin.—Mr. Frederick W. Whitehead, A.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Elgin, N.B.—Mr. C. E. Stevens, Organist to St. Mark's Church, Jersey.—Mr. Frederick W. Doe, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Ann's, Wandsworth, S.W.—Mr. R. W. Strickland, Organist and Choirmaster to College Street Chapel, Northampton.—Mr. W. G. Phillips, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Botolph, Aldgate, E.C.—Mr. John Bell, to Anderston Parish Church, Glasgow.—Mr. William Hart, to All Hallows, Barking Church, Great Tower Street, E.C.—Mr. Leonard G. Winter, to St. Andrew's, Plaistow, E.C.—Mr. W. H. Jewell, Organist and Choirmaster to Congregational Church, Heywood, Manchester.—Mr. Duncan Baillie, Organist and Choirmaster to Hawarden (Flintshire) Parish Church.—Mr. H. Wolfenden, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Luke's, West Holloway.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. F. P. Smith (Tenor), to Christ Church, Oxford.—Mr. J. S. Robinson (Tenor), to Christ Church, Oxford.

DEATHS.

On April 27, WILLIAM PROWSE, of Stroud Green, Hornsey, and Chesapeake, London, in his 82nd year.

On April 24, at her residence, St. John's Park, Ryde, Isle of Wight, Mrs. MEREST, widow of J. D. Merest, Esquire; late Maria B. Hawes, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Hawes, of Her Majesty's Chapels and St. Paul's Cathedral.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir A. GORE OUSLEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s. Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.

II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.

III. In 32mo. Words only. 1d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 6vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MADAME WILSON (Soprano)

(Compass G to C),

MR. WILHELM WILSON

(Solo Pianist and Accompanist).

For Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, and Organ Recitals, address, 130, Wilderspool Road, Warrington.

TWO LEADING BOYS WANTED, at once, for Church at Stamford Hill. Two Choral Services on Sundays; two or three weekly Practices. Free education at first-rate middle-class school, and small amount of pocket money. Apply, at once, to Organist, W. J. Letts, St. Ann's Vicarage, Stamford Hill.

ALTO (Male) WANTED, for the Church of St. Stephen, Wandsworth. Must be a good Reader, and regular attendant. Services: Sundays, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., and on Greater Festivals; Friday, Rehearsal at 8 p.m. Salary according to qualification. Apply at the Church, at 9.15 p.m., on Friday evening, or by letter to the Vicar, The Vicarage, Manford Road (Postal address), Putney.

ALTOS, TENORS, and BASSES WANTED, for Voluntary Church Choir, near City. Choral celebrations. One weekly practice. Address, H. J. T., 50, Finsbury Square, E.C.

TENOR (good quality and quick Reader), age 26, desires to leave the profession for some permanent occupation. Served a commercial apprenticeship. Good references. Would be glad to help in a choir if desired. Enquiries solicited. M. E., 7, Park Terrace, Westbourne, Bournemouth.

TENOR.—Good Voice. Several years' experience. Now studying under first-class professor. ENGAGEMENT WANTED in a West-end Church. Minimum salary, £40. A.B.C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 86 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

ST. EDMUND'S, Lombard Street, E.C.—A SOLO TENOR, also TREBLE VOICES (Boys) WANTED, for Choir of above Church. Must have good voices and be Readers of Music. Apply to Choirmaster, Wednesday or Friday Evenings.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, Derby.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED. Apply, at once, to the Churchwarden, C. J. Storer, Derby.

ORGANIST.—ST. PAUL'S, Bermondsey, near Guy's Hospital.—Artisan Parish. Good organ and church. Choral service (no ritualism). WANTED, an able Man who will take an interest in his work. Communicant. Apply by letter, without testimonials, Churchwardens, 83, New Kent Road, S.E.

MR. A. M. COLCHESTER, A.C.O., &c., Organist of St. Augustine's, Highbury (Gordon Calthrop's), will be at liberty to accept a new appointment after the 24th inst. A better organ desired. Highest testimonials. 31, Poet's Road, Highbury.

A LONDON ORGANIST, about to resign his present post, offers his services free at a London or suburban church. Earnest worker. Communicant. Address, with particulars, C. P. W., 24, Milkwood Road, S.E.

EXPERIENCED TUNER WANTED. Must be a steady, reliable man, with good address. Send photo, and state salary required. Duck, Son, and Pinks, Musicellers, Bath.

WANTED, as APPRENTICE to MUSIC TRADE in Country. Good opening for Young Lady. Must be good Pianist, and Read well. No Salary at first. M. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TWO-MANUAL HARMONIUM, with PEDALS, £20. CHANCEL ORGAN, with Pedals, by FORSTER and ANDREWS, £40. Ditto, by BYSSON, £30. These prices include carriage and fixing. C. Klitz, 26, Hanway Street, London, W.

FOR SALE, a 50-guinea Class Church Model AMERICAN ORGAN. 16 Stops, 10 Sets of Reeds, Knee Swell, and Grand Organ. Been in temporary use in the Parish Church, Gillingham, Kent, during rebuilding of the Organ, and now offered at £35 net. Apply to C. W. Bland, Organ Builder, Gillingham Church, Kent.

COMPOSITIONS by ROBERT MACHARDY.

WOODLAND WITCH (Opera), 3s.

"Is melodious, vocal, and musician-like in its treatment throughout."—Musical Times.

FAIRY MOTHER (Cantata for Ladies' Voices), 2s.

Just published.—SANTCA FELICE (Pianoforte Sonata), 5s. "Exquisite work."—Evening Telegraph.

PROGRESSIVE PIANOFORTE PLAYING, 5s. net.

"This work is beautifully got up, and ought to command a widely extended sale."—Exhibitors' Illustrated Review.

PROGRESSIVE SIGHT-SINGING, 1s.

"Exceedingly clever and valuable work."—Graphic. "Its explanations are clear as a sunbeam."—Oldham Chronicle.

A SONG OF THE TWILIGHT, 4s. Dedicated to Madame Nilsson.

"Exceedingly dramatic and original."—Dundee Advertiser.

UNDER THE BONNET, Song, 4s.

KARLUS' WALTZES, Pianoforte, 4s. Orchestral parts, 1s. 6d.

"Elegant and irresistible. It is a most pleasing dance."—Oldham Chronicle.

LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY (Limited), 54, Great Marlborough Street, London.

MUSIC PUPIL'S REGISTER (title registered).—Dr. BRADFORD's Work, designed for recording the Teacher's instructions and the Pupil's practice, has been extensively used for the past ten years.

MUSIC PUPIL'S REGISTER. Dr. JACOB BRADFORD. Fourth Edition. Price One Shilling. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MUSIC PUPIL'S REGISTER contains Columns for the work set by the Teacher, time devoted by the Pupil to practice, and the progress of the latter for one year. One Shilling. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMMEMORATIVE MARCH. By Dr. JACOB BRADFORD. Pianoforte Solo, 3s.; Duet, 5s. STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 54, Bond Street, W.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

SULLIVAN, SIR ARTHUR.—An Ode, written for the Opening of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, 1886, by ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON. Set to Music for Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra. 1s.

THE CATHEDRAL PSALTER. With Canticles and Proper Psalms. Set to Appropriate Chants. Demy 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

THE PSALMS (Bible Version). Pointed for Chanting by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK, Hon. Chaplain to the Queen. Cloth, 1s.

GOUNOD, CH.—Ten Transcriptions from "Mors et Vita." A Sacred Trilogy. For Violin and Piano-forte, by BERTHOLD TOURS. (No. 4 of Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Albums for Violin and Piano-forte.) 2s. 6d. Also for Violoncello and Piano-forte.

DIENEL, OTTO.—Original Compositions for the Organ.

No.	1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.	7.	8.	9.	10.	s. d.
1.	Fugue in G, Op. 2	1 0
2.	First Grand Sonata in D minor, Op. 3	2 0
3.	Concert-Satz, Op. 10	2 0
4.	Second Grand Sonata in G minor, Op. 11	3 6
5.	Funeral March on the Choral "Jesus, my trust," Op. 12	1 6
6.	Adagio in D, Op. 13, No. 1	1 0
7.	Andante in C, Op. 13, No. 2	1 0
8.	Third Grand Sonata in F, Op. 13	5 0
9.	Echo-Andante, Op. 19	1 6
10.	Andante espressivo, Op. 20, No. 1	1 0
	" " " " " 2	1 0

PROUT, E.—"The Hundredth Psalm." For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra (Organ ad lib.). 1s.

DAVIS, WM. ALFRED.—(in D). Te Deum and Jubilate. 6d.

BRADFORD, JACOB, Mus. D., Oxon.—"Now our barns are full of treasure." Harvest Hymn. 2d.

BRIDGE, JOSEPH C., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.—"O that men would praise the Lord." Anthem for Harvest Festivals. 4d.

FIELD, J. T.—"Send out Thy light." Anthem for Whitsuntide or General use. 4d.

IRONS, H. S.—"There is no condemnation." Anthem for Quartet and Chorus (Whitsuntide). 3d.

BRAHMS, JOHANNES.—Twenty-seven Songs. The English Version by FRANCIS HUEFFER. (No. 4 of Albums of German Song.) 1s. 6d.

AUSTIN, WALTER.—"Five months ago." Song. 1s. 6d.

COMERFORD, E.—"A Nation once again." Song. 2s.

ROBINSON, J. C.—"Through the darkness." A Maiden's Reverie. Song. 1s. 6d. Obligato Parts for Organ and Harp and Violoncello, Violin, or Flute. 1s.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"The Bonnie Fishwives." A Cantata for Female Voices. Written by EDWARD OXENFORD. 2s. 6d.

TINNEY, CHARLES E.—"Come, live with me, and be my love." Two-part Song. 3d.

—"There is a garden in her face." Two-part Song. 3d.

HARWOOD, BASIL.—"To Daffodils." A Trio for Female Voices. Words by HERRICK. 3d.

FIELD, J. T.—"Fair Daffodils." A Four-part Song. Words by HERRICK. 2d.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

No. 528.	The Norse Queen's Gift	...	WALTER HAY	3d.
529.	Cavalry Song	...	C. A. MACIRONE	3d.
530.	The Winds that Waft	...	W. VINCENT WALLACE	3d.
531.	Corin for Cleora dying	...		3d.
532.	Maudeleine	...	JOSEPH L. ROECKEL	3d.

THE ORPHEUS.—Five Four-part Songs for Male Voices. With Accompaniment for Horns (ad lib.). Op. 137.

No. 198.	The Song of the Chase	...	R. SCHUMANN	4d.
199.	Have a care...	...	"	4d.
200.	The Hunter's Morning Song	...	"	4d.
201.	At break of day	...	"	4d.
202.	In full chase	...	"	4d.

HUNTER, E. WALKER.—"Sylvia." An Impromptu for Piano-forte. 1s. 6d.

LAWRENCE, E. M.—Sonata in F sharp minor. For Violin and Piano-forte. Op. 20. 5s.

BISHOP, SIR HENRY R.—"Merry boys, away." Orchestral Parts, 5s.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS IN THE TONIC

SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. McNAUGHT.
No. 445.	Nunc dimittis	...	THOMAS EBDON 1d.
454.	The Maiden of the Fleur-de-Lys	...	E. A. SYDENHAM 1d.
461.	The Letter	...	J. L. HATTON 1d.
462.	Turn Thy face from my sins	...	ARTHUR SULLIVAN 1d.
463.	Lord, we pray Thee	...	J. V. ROBERTS 1d.
464.	Wreath ye the steps	...	F. SCHUMANN 1d.
465.	All is still	...	G. A. MACFARREN 1d.
466.	A Christmas Madrigal	...	T. IONS 1d.
467.	Joy to the Victors	...	A. SULLIVAN 1d.
468.	I will arise	...	REV. R. CECIL 1d.
469.	Blessed is He who cometh	...	CH. GOUNOD 1d.
470.	The Forester	...	E. STIRLING 1d.
471.	By the Waters of Babylon	...	G. B. ALLEN 1d.
472.	Christ is risen from the dead	...	E. H. THORNE 1d.
473.	Ave Maria	...	FRANZ ABT 1d.
474.	Behold, I bring you glad tidings	...	C. W. SMITH 1d.
475.	Call to remembrance	...	VINCENT NOVELLO 1d.
480.	The Lord is my strength (Easter)	...	HENRY SMART 1d.
481.	Doth not wisdom cry?	...	R. HAKING 1d.
482.	O taste and see...	...	ARTHUR SULLIVAN 1d.
483.	Luna	...	J. BARNEY 1d.

THE PSALMS

(BIBLE VERSION)

POINTED FOR CHANTING

BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

Hon. Chaplain to the Queen.

CLOTH, ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED, NEW EDITION.

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER

TOGETHER WITH THE

CANTICLES AND PROPER PSALMS

SET TO APPROPRIATE CHANTS.

Demy 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FIVE FOUR-PART SONGS

FOR MALE VOICES

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR FOUR HORNS

COMPOSED BY

R. SCHUMANN.

198.	The Song of the Chase	4d.
199.	Have a care	4d.
200.	The Hunter's Morning Song	4d.
201.	At break of day	4d.
202.	In full chase	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

BRAHMS, J.—FOUR SONGS, for a High s. d. or Low voice, with English and German words ... 8 0

— SIX SONGS, for a High or Low voice, with English and German words ... 8 0

DESHAYES, H.—THIRD BOOK of COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN, containing Triumphal March, Meditation, and Allegretto ... net 3 6

SCHUMANN, ROB.—THE MINSTREL'S CURSE. Orchestral parts. Edited by Clara Schumann net 20 6
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY, by G. H. SWIFT (Organist, Parish Church, Hungerford, Berks), EVENING SERVICE in E. Price 4d.

SING PRAISES UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. Price 3d.
SHOW US THY MERCY. Anthem. Price 6d.
O SING UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. 3d. edition. Price 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST HYMN. Written by ERNEST RINGWOOD. Composed by DR. JACOB BRADFORD. Two Tunes. Price 2d. Words only, 2s. 3d. per 100.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Will be ready in July.

HARVEST CANTATA. Composed by DR. JACOB BRADFORD.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual new Tubular Pneumatic Organ, 18 stops, blown by Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR FOR A COURSE at Blennerhasset's Organ Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.
Manufacturer of THE PERFECT HYDRAULIC ENGINE for supplying wind to Organs of any size to the smallest Harmoniums. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective.
 Particulars and estimates as above free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c.; blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

QUEENSTOWN CHURCH.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, from August 1, 1886. Salary, £50 per annum. Fair opening for tuition. Apply, with testimonials, by letter, before June 8, to Rev. M. W. Day, Crescent, Queenstown, County Cork.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for St. Margaret's Church, Lee, S.E. Must be a good disciplinarian (experienced as director of the Choir), cultivate the boys' voices, and give them thorough instruction in vocal music. Stipend, £100. Sunday services, holy day evenings, two weekly practices for boys, and one for full choir. Address, with copies of testimonials, the Rev. F. H. Law, The Rectory, Lee, S.E.

TO ORGANISTS.—Vacant, the post of ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER in a Wesleyan Church in the south suburbs of London. Candidates should furnish evidence not only of skill on the organ, but also of tact and experience in the management of a Choir. Address, with testimonials and particulars as to salary required, &c., Secretary, Springfield, Roupell Park, S.W.

DEPUTY ORGANIST WANTED.—The Organist of a Church near Victoria Station would be glad to hear of a gentleman who, in return for practice on three-manual organ, would occasionally deputise for him. E. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, an ORGANIST, for St. Paul's Church, Walsall. Salary, £25. Apply to the Vicar.

WANTED, VOLUNTARY ORGANIST, for St. Mary's Church, Clarence Street, Old Kent Road. GRAY and DAVISON Organ. Address, Vicar, as above.

ORGANIST VACANCY, Presbyterian Church, end of June. Address, stating terms, experience, &c., R. I., 24, Paternoster Square, E.C.

ORGANIST, upwards of 20 years' experience, will take TEMPORARY or DEPUTY DUTY. J. S. Creswell, Tamworth.

ORGANIST, eleven miles from London, wishes to exchange House and Church duties with Organist at Seaside for three weeks in August. References exchanged. Address, C. J. G., Ashbrooke, Hartford Road, Bexley, S.E.

ORGANIST, with experience, will deputise for use of Organ. Anglican Music. Address, Y., 17, Savernake Road, Gospel Oak, N.W.

ORGANIST.—An F.C.O. will be willing to take Sunday duty as above in a Church in London after the middle of June until the end of July. Services voluntary, but organ must be good and practice on it required. Apply, W. S., Union Society, Cambridge.

ORGANIST.—Gentleman offers his services voluntarily. Good organ indispensable. Address, Musicius, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

GENTLEMAN, holding Royal Academy certificate, desires ORGAN APPOINTMENT. Good testimonials. Organ, 22, Palace Road, Crouch End.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, of large experience and success, desires APPOINTMENT as CHOIRMASTER in or near Town where a good hearty Service is aimed at. Could provide Organist (by Deputy) if required. C. M., West London Society, 138, Sloane Street, S.W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Cathedral education), communicant, will shortly be open to an ENGAGEMENT in a town where there is a good opening for a Music and Singing Master. Excellent testimonials and references. Address, Organist, care of Mrs. Lyon, Cricket St. Thomas, Chard, Somerset.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires ENGAGEMENT in London. Several years' experience. E., 57, Cumberland Street, S.W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, APPOINTMENT WANTED, in or near London. Ten years' experience. Address, E. P., 49, Tabley Road, Parkhurst Road, Holloway, N.

POST WANTED as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, in small provincial town, by a gentleman who will be dispensed after August 1. Accustomed to General Services. Excellent testimonials. Good organ indispensable. Apply, Amott, Rudloe, Box, Wiltshire.

WANTED, by a Gentleman in the North of London, post as CHOIRMASTER, ORGANIST, or ASSISTANT. Would give services in return for practice. Must be a good Organ. Address, Organist, 50, Regina Road, Tollington Pk., N.

YOUNG GENTLEMAN (Assistant) requires ENGAGEMENT, in small Church or Chapel, as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Small Salary. Testimonials from Clergy and Organist of present Church. P. S. T., 10, Milner Terrace, Cadogan Square, London, S.W.

WANTED, First-class TUNER of PIANOFORTES, AMERICAN ORGANS, and HARMONIUMS. Must be steady and reliable. References, photo, age, and salary required, to J. Herbert Marshall, Midland Music Depot, Leicester.

WANTED, an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. One with a knowledge of Counter trade preferred (South Coast). Apply, stating age and salary, to J. J. J., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a thoroughly good TUNER, for a High-Class Connection in the Country. One who can Regulate American Organs preferred. Good wages and constant employment. Address, Even Scale, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNERS (out-door).—VACANCIES for two or three good sound Tuners. Age about 30. Those preferred who have a knowledge of Harmoniums and American Organs. Good salaries. Send photo and references to J. B. Cramer and Co., 26, Church Street, Liverpool.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED. Must be experienced. Liberal salary to a competent man. Apply, Graham, 6, Standwick Place, Edinburgh.

WANTED, Permanent RE-ENGAGEMENT, by a thoroughly practical and experienced REPAIRER of Pianofortes, Harmoniums, and American Organs. Fair Tuner. Some years' London Factory experience. First-class testimonials, and references also from present employer. Address, T. W. F., 85, Buckingham Street, St. George's, Birmingham.

REPAIRER.—WANTED, a First-class Hand, able to do all kinds of Repairs to Pianos and American Organs. Good Salary. Apply, stating age, references, &c., to J. B. Cramer and Co., 26, Church Street, Liverpool.

PIANOFORTE.—Practical TUNER and REPAIRER. Any branch; Pianoforte and Harmonium throughout, or Organ. Late John Brinsmead and Sons' Showrooms. Six years' country experience. Age 36. Good wages required; not afraid of work. C. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN experienced TUNER seeks a SITUATION in Town or Country. Wages moderate. Address, H. Peacock, 19, Sydney Street, Oakley Square, S.W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER or ASSISTANT.—SITUATION required as above. Good references. Age 27. Address, C. B. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (Outdoor).—WANTED SITUATION as above by First-class Tuner. Has tuned for leading Professionals. H. Wafford, 147, Stanhope Street, Euston Road, N.W.

SITUATION WANTED, as TUNER (21). Six years' Factory and out-door experience. P., 8, Lordship Villas, Stoke Newington, N.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Harmoniums, &c. References good. Address, F. R., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

DEALER'S SON (16) requires experience in REPAIRS, REGULATING, &c., of PIANOS, &c. State terms. Dealer, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, SITUATION as IMPROVER to the Tuning and Repairing. W. Breakpear, High St., Ringwood.

WANTED, SITUATION as IMPROVER to the Tuning and Repairing. Highest references. Apply to G. H. Sherborne, 6, Salvandy Terrace, Jersey.

WANTED, SITUATION as REPAIRER. Highest references. Six years' experience; non-tuner. Apply R. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC SALESMAN WANTED, at once, for large Music Warehouse in Lancashire. Thorough knowledge of Catalogues indispensable. One preferred who is able to try over Pianos and Organs. Good Salary. Age about 30. Send photo and full particulars to Music, Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

MUSIC TRADE.—LADY WANTED, for the Midlands. Good Pianist and Sight Reader and knowledge of Catalogues. Liberal salary given. Apply B. H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, an energetic and experienced YOUNG LADY, to Manage a Music and Piano Business in the provinces. Good Reader and Pianist. Address, stating experience and salary required, to M.U.S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO MANAGERS.—The Proprietor of a large MUSIC and PIANOFORTE BUSINESS is desirous of arranging with a view to future Partnership, for the services of a first-class Man as responsible MANAGER. It will be necessary that he shall already have filled a similar position. A good Salary will be offered, and an interest granted in the Business at once. Apply to H. and S. Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A YOUNG LADY, of good education, address, and appearance, REQUIRES a SITUATION in a PIANOFORTE and MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Good Pianist, and has had seven years' experience in the Trade. Address, E. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A YOUNG LADY, of more than two years' experience, desires a SITUATION in MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Address, J. H., care of Mr. Ellis, Music Warehouse, Chester.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as ASSISTANT. Town and country experience. Good references. Thorough knowledge of Catalogues, &c. E. A., 100, Upper Kent Street, Leicester.

SITUATION WANTED, as ASSISTANT in a MUSIC BUSINESS. Experienced. Good Sight-player. Music, Thorpe-le-Soken, Essex.

ADVERTISER requires a SITUATION as ASSISTANT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Has a knowledge of Photography. Age 24. Apply, H. F., 56, Palmerston Road, Southsea.

TUNING CONNECTION (small), in and around London, for SALE, producing between £75 and £80 per annum. A. Jeun, 2, Jeffreys Street, Kentish Town Road, N.W.

MUSIC PUBLISHING and MUSICAL INSTRUMENT TRADE.—For SALE (owner going abroad), a well-established BUSINESS, with old substantial Connection and extensive Premises, in commanding thoroughfare, W.; offering an unusual opportunity to a provincial house desiring a London base. Rent nominal, in consequence of subletting. Stock, Lease, Goodwill, and Book Debts at a valuation. For further particulars, apply to Lucas, Son and Co., 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

PIANOFORTE BUSINESS in the most fashionable town on South Coast to be SOLD, a great bargain. Stock, lease, furniture, all at £300. Low rent. Elm, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANO HIRE BUSINESS for DISPOSAL, at a fashionable watering place in the West of England, by reason of death of proprietor. Season approaching. Stock of best makers. Apply to F. R., 11, Hamilton Terrace, St. Margaret's, Twickenham.

NOTICE.—AGATE and CO. (late Agate and Pritchard), of 68, Gracechurch Street, have now opened their NEW PREMISES, at 300, REGENT STREET. Orders for Music, Tunings, Pianos on Hire, &c., will receive prompt attention. Violin Strings, for which they have been so long celebrated—length E, 6d. each; finest quality, solo E, 1s. each, post-free. AGATE and CO., 300, Regent Street, W.

SECOND-HAND First-class MUSIC and MUSICAL WORKS.—Ancient and Modern. Full Scores and Orchestral Parts of scarce and out-of-print Works—Vocal and Instrumental—for Violin, Flute, Violoncello, Organ, Concertina, Harp, Guitar, &c. A large Stock of Scarce Old Music. Robinson's, 95, St. Martin's Lane. Removed from 369, Strand. Catalogues, two stamps.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. PECK, 36, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Academy House, 295, Oxford Street, W., MUSIC PUBLISHERS and General MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Composers' Works Revised, Engraved, and Published in the best style and at lowest charges, and afterwards offered for sale. Estimates free. Approved MSS. purchased. Private Rooms, with use of Pianos for Professors' teaching use, or for practice. Lessons given by highly qualified Professors on Pianoforte, Violin, Flute, Banjo, Guitar, and all instruments; Singing, Harmony, &c. PIANOFORTES by all Makers for Sale (cash or three years system). VIOLINS (old and new), Strings, &c. Value not to be excelled. For terms, lists, &c., apply, 295, Oxford Street, W.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 25, Warwick St., Regent St., London, undertakes Revising and Publishing all Musical Works, in the best manner, on lowest terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogue on application. Parcels of Music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS. London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MUSIC ENGRAVING.—Authors' works Engraved and Printed in the best style on the shortest notice. Estimates and terms post-free. Akerman and Attwood, 7, Upper John Street, Golden Square, W.

MESSRS. BEARE & SON,

34, RATHBONE PLACE, LONDON, W.

Invite an inspection of their Collection of OLD VIOLINS, &c.

All genuine examples of the celebrated Old Masters. Over 300 Old Instruments from which to select.

PRICES FROM £5 UPWARDS.

Sole Wholesale Agents for JAMES TUBBS' Celebrated BOWS.

TOY INSTRUMENTS AND MUSIC

For the Performance of TOY SYMPHONIES. One Guinea and a Half the Set, including Music. Lists sent on application.

Patentees and Sole Manufacturers of the New Instrument—

THE VOIXOPHONE.

Merchants, Shippers, and the Trade supplied.

Newly Revised and Illustrated Catalogue just out.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

Copyright and other Music Plates, Lease, &c., of the late Theodore W. Blockley, of 72, Berners Street.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON will Sell by AUCTION, at their House, 47, Leicester Square, W.C., on MONDAY, June 7, and Following Day, at ten minutes past One o'clock precisely, the Valuable COPYRIGHTS, ENGRAVED PLATES, STOCK, LEASE, FIXTURES, &c., of the late Mr. THEODORE W. BLOCKLEY, of 72, Berners Street, W., deceased. The Catalogue contains many of the most valuable Compositions purchased at the Sale of the late Mr. John Blockley, of Argyll Street, with others more recently acquired. Catalogues on receipt of two stamps.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

CC ORGAN for SALE, built for — Pugin, Esq., Private Chapel, by Baymexon and Sons. In condition equal to new. Gothic arch Venetian swell. Stops, open diapason, stop diapason, principal, fifteenth. Cash price, £40. Address, Henry Abram, Ramsgate.

NEW ORGAN for SALE.—6 Stops (CC to F), open diapason, metal; almba, metal; dulciana, metal; liebleich gedacht, wood and metal; principal, metal; piccolo, wood, all in general swell except open diapason; octave and half of pedals. Price £90. Also, a Second-hand Organ with 7 stops (CC to F). Price £20. Apply to Messrs. Nicholson and Co., Organ Builders, Worcester.

CC ORGAN for HIRE, on very low terms; or on SALE, very cheap. Quite an orchestral instrument. 3 manuals, pedals, 31 stops, 4 compositions. A bargain. Apply, G. J., 23, Brunswick Street, Poplar, E.

ORGAN. Two full-compass Manuals (CC to A), 15 Stops, including Bourdon throughout. Room wanted for the erection of a new Organ. Will sacrifice this for £25, or would let on hire. To be seen at 34, Studholme Street, Asylum Road, S.E.

ORGAN (Pipe). Handsome Gilt Front. 7 Stops, Pedals (sliding). Splendid Tone. Perfect order. Suit Residence or small Church. 30 Guineas. 21, Watlington Road, Paddington.

FOR SALE, Modern Two-manual CHAMBER ORGAN, 11 Stops, by BEVINGTON and SONS. Handsome Oak Case. Front and side pipes (speaking). Richly decorated, with Oak Stop. Price £175. Bevington and Sons, Soho Organ Works, London.

FOR SALE. Two-manual ORGAN (Booth's), in Staincliffe Wesleyan Chapel. Fifteen Stops. For particulars, apply to J. W. Turner, Staincliffe, near Dewsbury.

A PIPE ORGAN, 9 ft. high, suitable for Church or Chapel, cost £140, will be SOLD for less than one-third; or also AMERICAN ORGAN, 16 Stops. For further particulars, apply to J. Lawrence and Sons, Timber Merchants, Hawley Road, N.W.

ORGAN for SALE. A fine-toned Instrument. Great organ, 11 stops; swell organ, 9 stops (all of which go through to CC, except the gemshorn); pedal organ, 3 stops; six compass pedals. Full particulars on application to W. White, Music Warehouse, Grantham.

ORGAN for SALE. Now in Ebenezer Congregational Church, Chatham; must be moved to make room for larger Instrument. Two Manuals, Pedals, and usual Couplers. Great Organ; diapason, principal, flute, twelfth, fifteenth, and sesquialtra. Swell Organ; diapason, principal, hautboy, and fifteenth. Handsome ornamental case. Apply to H. F. Mann, 44, Hamond Place, Chatham.

ORGAN, fine Tone, two Manuals, CC, 16 ft. Open on Pedals, 18 Stops. £125. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway.

FOR SALE, CHURCH ORGAN. Sixteen Stops, two Manuals, and Pedals. Price £100. Apply to Messrs. Trustam, Organ Builders, Bedford.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE, to make room for larger Instrument. G Organ. Built by WALKER. 2 Manuals, 15 Stops. Size 12 ft. by 6 ft., height 18 ft. Price £50. Apply to the Vicar of Holbeach.

CHANCELLOR ORGAN for SALE. Two Manuals, 5 Octaves. Handsome Case. Gamba and Gemahorn in the Swell; Open and Stop'd Diapason, Dulciana, and Flute on the Great; Swell Coupler; removable Concave Pedals (full compass). New six months since. Can be seen by appointment. Price £60. Cressingham House, Benilton, Sutton, Surrey.

ORGAN for SALE.—A fine-toned Instrument, in handsome mahogany case. Eight stops and couplers; two manuals; independent Bourdon pedals. Price £80. Apply T. R. Willis, 29, Minorities, E.C.

ORGAN PEDALS, Concave and Radiated, Full Compass, and Action for Attaching to Pianoforte. Price, including Stool, £5 5s. S. F., The Priory, Larkhall Rise, S.W.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL AMERICAN ORGAN. 21 stops and swell; pedals, 30 notes; 15 sets of reeds, octave, manual, and pedal couplers; foot and side blowers. In carved and panelled walnut case, with ornamental gilt pipe top, and stool. Guaranteed in perfect order. Cost £275. For SALE, a bargain. Can be seen and tried at Mr. Stagg's, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

MASON-HAMLIN ORGAN for SALE, property of Organist, 9 stops, 2 knee wheels. Splendid tone. Perfect condition. Price £16. R., Mr. Walton, Stationer, Ball's Pond Road, N.

EUPHONICON PIANO.—One of the only three made, and as exhibited in the recent South Kensington Exhibition. Beautiful rosewood case, most artistic design, elegantly figured and mounted in ornolu. Full compass, sweet and powerful tone, with cover complete. Cost £200; lowest price 30 Guineas. Particularly suitable for an Artist's Studio. B., Bishopscroft Cottage, Mount Pleasant, Guildford.

7-OCTAVE PIANOFORTE, Walnut, with Organ Pedals, Roller Board Action, and Stool. Excellent condition. 25 Guineas. 42, Ledbury Road, Bayswater, W.

PIANOS (Broadwood Cabinet, Collard and Collard Square Grand), extra good preservation; tone very good. Price 13 Guineas each. Cornet, Boehm Flute, soprano Cornet (conditions as new), at a sacrifice. No dealers. Flautist, 100, Elmore Street, N.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.—IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and Co. (established 100 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every Instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guineas, 17 guineas, 20 guineas, &c.; Organs, 5 guineas, 11 guineas, 15 guineas, 24 guineas, &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

THE CLARABELLA AMERICAN ORGANS, U.S.A.—NEW STYLES, containing Patents and effective Combinations.

The lowest priced organs in the market. Ask dealers for Catalogues, or send to the Wholesale Manager for Europe.

CLARABELLA ORGAN COMPANY, CHELTENHAM, ENG.

CENTRAL ORGAN WORKS, Manchester, S.W.—W. E. RICHARDSON, Builder to her Majesty.—ORGANS for Church, Public, or School, from £35. Several New and Second-hand Organs on Sale.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists sent free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minorities, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minorities, London.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

VIOLIN AND BOW

MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,

GEORGE WITHERS & CO.

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF

MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, PARIS, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,

ARTISTIC HOUSE,

PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARŠIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

Catalogues and testimonials post-free on application.

FOR SALE, a fine old Italian VIOLIN (GUARNIERUS). For particulars, address, W. N., 10, Abbey Churchyard, Bath.

FOR SALE, a BANKS' VIOLIN, in good Condition. Date 1774. Genuineness undoubted. Apply, Handel House, Yeovil.

AN ITALIAN VIOLONCELLO, genuine AMATI. Concert Instrument of the late Violoncello virtuoso, Julius Steffens, is offered for SALE. Price 6000 Marks (£205). Further information may be obtained from Mr. C. Steffens, 5, Schillerstrasse, Berlin, W., or from J. L., Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

OBOES.—Professional Players and others are respectfully invited to try the "NEW MODEL," which is unrivalled for equality of tone throughout the entire scale; the faulty notes so often found on the right hand are guaranteed perfect. J. Sharpe, Oboist and Musical Instrument Maker, Pudsey, near Leeds.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Finest Italian, three firsts, post-free as sample, for thirteen stamps.—Alphonse Cary, Newbury.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent post free for 13 stamps. PRENZEL'S PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS have been awarded a GOLD MEDAL at the INVENTIONS EXHIBITION, 1885, and the Sole GOLD MEDAL, SOCIETY OF ARTS, 1885, for VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, and BOW MAKING.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS (the Experts) to the Historic Music Loan Collection, Inventions Exhibition, 1885) give opinions as to the make and value of Violins for a moderate fee. Old Violins, Violas, and Violoncellos bought or sold on commission. Particulars on application. 72, Wardour Street, London. Established 1745.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES

ARE SIMPLY INVALUABLE TO SPEAKERS AND SINGERS.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS writes :—

"I think very highly of your Lozenges after a thorough test."

MISS JESSIE JONES, R.A.M., writes :—

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the excellent effect produced by your Lozenges upon the throat and voice."

MRS. MUNDELLA writes :—

"Please send another 2s. 6d. tin of your Lozenges, which I have already found so useful."

MR. FARLEY SINKINS, Exeter Cathedral,
writes :—

"They restore the voice when suffering from a cold far better than any Lozenges I know, and I have tried a large assortment."

MR. HENRY CROSS, R.A.M., writes :—

"In your Lozenges I find a valuable remedy and friend. I can safely say that they are the best aid for the voice I have ever tried."

MR. SWIFT, Peterborough Cathedral, writes :—

"I think them excellent for the voice and throat. . . They will command a great sale."

F. NEWCOME, Esq., M.D., writes :—

"It affords me much pleasure to bear medical testimony to the efficacy of your Lozenges in cases of relaxed throat, chronic bronchitis, &c. . . Invaluable to speakers and singers. . . They contain no narcotic."

For coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, huskiness, tickling sensation, relaxed sore and dry throat, bronchial irritation, croup, &c., they have no equal.

Sold only in tins 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d. each. Free by post for 14 or 33 stamps. Wholesale, W. Sutton and Co., Bow Churchyard, London, and all Patent Medicine Houses.

PREPARED ONLY BY

J. A. BASKER, F.C.S.,

PHARMACEUTICAL CHEMIST & ANALYST, BRIDGWATER, ENGLAND.

MEDAL OF HONOUR,
INVENTIONS EXHIBITION.

RUMMENS' ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT.

THE SUPERIORITY OF THIS ATTACHMENT

OVER ALL OTHERS

IS AMPLY ATTESTED BY THE FACT THAT IT HAS SECURED TESTIMONIALS FROM

DR. STAINER,
DR. STEGGALL,
DR. BRIDGE,
DR. FROST,
DR. MARTIN,

And many others.

FULL PARTICULARS OF PRICES, &c., ON APPLICATION

A liberal discount to the Profession and Trade.

ADDRESS :—

HENRY J. RUMMENS,

47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS, ORGAN BUILDERS,

BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

CURE OF DEAFNESS.

NOISES in the EARS.—Rev. E. J. SILVERTON invites members of the musical profession who may be suffering Deafness or other Aural Troubles to send for his work on the subject. 300th Thousand, post-free for 6d., with letter of advice if case be stated. Free consultations daily, from 11 to 4; Saturday, 11 to 1. Address, Rev. E. J. Silvertton, Imperial Buildings, Ludgate Circus, E.C.

"Invaluable aids to the voice."—Rev. Idrisyn Jones.

VOICE, VOICE.—Instant clearness, full volume of tone and power by using JAMES'S "SINGER'S FRIEND" LOZENGES. Valuable hints on voice with each box. Stamps, 7d. and 1s. 2d., of W. James, Chemist, Highgate Road, London, N.W., and through Chemists everywhere.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S PRIMERS

MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY

HECTOR BERLIOZ
FREDERIC CHOPIN
ROSSINI

CHERUBINI MEYERBEER

ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR PIANOFORTE.

	Arranged by	s. d.
GOUNOD'S REDEMPTION	... BERTHOLD TOURS	5 0
" MORS ET VITA	... "	5 0
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	... "	5 0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	... "	3 0
MOZART'S FIRST MASS	... VINCENT NOVELLO	2 6
" SECOND MASS	... "	3 0
" SEVENTH MASS	... "	3 0
" TWELFTH MASS	... "	3 0
" REQUIEM MASS	... J. PITTMAN	3 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RUDALL, CARTE & CO.

(Established upwards of a Century)

Were awarded by the Jury of the International Exhibition of Inventions & Music, 1885,

THE GOLD MEDAL

FOR

IMPROVEMENTS IN FLUTES

AND

GENERAL EXCELLENCE OF OTHER INSTRUMENTS
MADE BY THEM.

RUDALL, CARTE & CO.'S CYLINDER FLUTES

IN COCOA WOOD, EBONITE, SILVER AND GOLD.

RUDALL, CARTE & CO.'S INDESTRUCTIBLE EBONITE CLARIONETS, OBOES, AND BASSOONS.—This material, which Messrs. RUDALL, CARTE & Co. have adopted with success upon their Flutes for nearly twenty years, they have lately applied in the manufacture of the rest of the Instruments which were formerly made of wood. The non-liability of this material to crack or be affected by moisture was its first claim to the attention of Military Bands, and its claim is strengthened very much by the singularly fine quality of tone of all Reed Instruments made of it, and the ease with which they are sounded. Messrs. RUDALL, CARTE & Co. also make these instruments in wood. The Oboes to which special attention is given are made on Barret's System, or on any of the newest models.

RUDALL, CARTE AND CO.'S NEW PATENT DOUBLE-SLIDE TROMBONES, on which, by means of a double slide, instead of, as hitherto, a single one, the well-known hindrance to facility of execution on this fine instrument is removed. The arm has to be extended only half the usual distance, and all the notes are consequently brought within an easily playable distance from each other. There is no drawback to the use of these Trombones. They are as free in Tone as the single-slide instruments, and they are not only so much easier to play, but they balance better and are easier to hold. As the slides are only half the length on the new instruments, the bearing is of course proportionately less; and in addition to this, from there being two slides instead of one, the pressure and consequent wear is again reduced by one half.

RUDALL, CARTE AND CO. are the Manufacturers of the new RAOUX MODEL FRENCH HORNS now in use at the Royal Military School of Music, Kneller Hall.

RUDALL, CARTE AND CO. have made important improvements in their CORNETS, EUPHONIONS, MILITARY FLUTES, and PICCOLOS, &c.

Price Lists on application at the Manufactory—

23, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Publishers of the PROFESSIONAL POCKET BOOK AND MUSICAL DIRECTORY, published annually since 1852.

ANTHEMS for ASCENSIONTIDE.

Awake up, my glory M. Wise	3d.
Christ became obedient unto death ...	Dr. J. F. Bridge	14d.
God is gone up H. Croft	4d.
Grant, we beseech Thee H. Lahee	4d.
If He then be risen J. Naylor	3d.
King all glorious J. Barnby	6d.
Leave us not, neither forsake us J. Stainer	14d.
Lift up your heads ...	J. L. Hopkins	14d.
O clap your hands J. Stainer	6d.
O clap your hands ...	T. T. Trimmell	4d.
O God, the King of glory H. Smart	4d.
O how amiable J. Barnby	3d.
O Lord our Governor H. Gadsby	3d.
O Lord our Governor Marcell	14d.
O risen Lord J. Barnby	14d.
Rejoice in the Lord ...	J. B. Cusack	3d.
Rejoice in the Lord ...	Sir George Elvey	14d.
The earth is the Lord's ...	T. T. Trimmell	4d.
The Lord is King H. Gadsby	6d.

WHITSUNTIDE.

And all the people saw J. Stainer	6d.
As pants the hart Spohr	14d.
Come, Holy Ghost ...	T. Attwood	14d.
Come, Holy Ghost ...	J. L. Hatton	3d.
Come, Holy Ghost ...	Sir George Elvey	4d.
God came from Teman ...	C. Stegall	4d.
God is a Spirit ...	W. S. Bennett	6d.
Grieve not the Holy Spirit ...	J. Stainer	3d.
Holy Spirit, come, O come (Ad Spiritum Sanctum) ...	G. C. Martin	14d.
I was in the Spirit ...	Dr. Blow	6d.
If ye love Me ...	C. S. Heap	14d.
If ye love Me ...	W. H. Monk	14d.
If ye love Me ...	Tallis	14d.
If ye love Me ...	Sir R. P. Stewart	14d.
It shall come to pass ...	G. Garrett	6d.
Let not your heart be troubled ...	H. G. Trembath	3d.
O Holy Ghost, into our minds ...	G. A. Macfarren	14d.
Oh! for a closer walk with God ...	Myles B. Foster	14d.
There is no condemnation ...	H. S. Irons	3d.

TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man ...	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory ...	Dr. Boyce	14d.
Grant, O Lord ...	Mozart	14d.
Holy, holy, holy ...	Dr. Croft	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents ...	Sir F. Ouseley	14d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings ...	Spohr	14d.
I am Alpha and Omega ...	J. Stainer	14d.
I beheld, and lo! ...	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great ...	Sir F. Ouseley	14d.
In humble faith ...	G. Garrett	14d.
In Jewry is God known ...	J. Clarke-Whitfield	14d.
In sweet consent ...	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord ...	J. Stainer	6d.
I will magnify ...	J. Shaw	14d.
I will ring of Thy power ...	A. Sullivan	3d.
I will sing unto the Lord ...	H. Waring	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee ...	J. V. Roberts	14d.
O Father blest ...	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see ...	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see ...	A. Sullivan	14d.
O taste and see ...	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless ...	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd ...	G. A. Macfarren	14d.
The Lord is my Shepherd ...	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion ...	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God ...	Sir H. Oakeley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD

CANTATA FOR WHITSUNTIDE

COMPOSED BY

J. S. BACH.

The English adaptation by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, D.D.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE.

I WILL NOT LEAVE YOU COMFORTLESS

BY WILLIAM JOHNSON.

Full, easy, and effective. Price Threepence.

The Orchestra, March 27, 1886, says:—"An intelligent and musically setting of the well-known verse from the Gospel of St. John, which we can unhesitatingly recommend; it is as suitable for highly-trained choirs as it is for those containing singers of ordinary capabilities."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS for ASCENSION and WHITSUNTIDE.

By THOMAS SMITH. 3d. All full.
"Lift up your heads." 2nd Ed. "Sing me merrily." 4th Ed. "If ye love me." 4th Ed. "O send out Thy light."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

NEW ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE.

THERE IS NO CONDEMNATION

FOR QUARTET AND CHORUS

COMPOSED BY

H. S. IRONS.

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WILL GREATLY REJOICE IN THE LORD.

Anthem for Whitsuntide, by BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE STORY OF THE DESCENT OF THE HOLY GHOST. 2nd Edition. By F. A. WALTER (Organist). Copies of the COMPOSER, Shepperton, Middlesex. Words, with Music 4d.; Specimen, 2d.; Words only, 2s. per hundred.

AND WHEN THE DAY OF PENTECOST.

(Whitsunday.) Price 4d. "Easy, popular, and telling."

M. MARSHALL, Yorktown, Surrey.

WHITSUNTIDE ANTHEM.

AND SUDDENLY THERE CAME, by JOHN

LAYLAND, Organist of St. Peter's, Chorley. Full, easy, and effective. Suitable for Parish choirs. Price, Old Notation, 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., or of the COMPOSER, 80, Park Road, Chorley, Lancashire.

HYMN for ST. JOHN BAPTIST'S DAY.

Words by the Right Hon. and most Rev. EDWARD WHITE BENSON, D.D., Archbishop of Canterbury. Music by Rev. CHARLES H. LACON, M.A. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM FOR HOSPITAL SUNDAY.

BLESSED IS HE THAT CONSIDERETH

THE POOR, by Dr. F. E. GLADSTONE. Composed for the Choir Benevolent Fund. Octavo, 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A NEW TUNE for the Harvest Hymn, WE

PLOUGH THE FIELDS, by ARTHUR COTTMAN. Third edition. Price 2d. The usual allowance to choirs.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SHORT SETTINGS

OF THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

(INCLUDING BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI)

FOR PAROCHIAL AND GENERAL USE

EDITED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price One Shilling each.

Church-music which is modern in form, interesting to a choir, and devotional in effect, whilst also of easy execution and of moderate compass for the voices, is certainly much needed in these days when choral societies are almost universal. This want is specially felt with regard to music for the Office of Holy Communion, and it is hoped that these services will be found well within the capabilities of an ordinary choir, yet not wanting in an effort to give due expression to the solemnity of the words. G. C. M.

No. 1. J. BAPTISTE CALKIN in C.

" 2. DR. GARRETT in A.

" 3. J. STAINER in F.

" 4. SIR GEORGE ELVEY in E.

" 5. BERTHOLD TOURS in C.

" 6. W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK in E flat.

" 7. REV. H. H. WOODWARD in D.

" 8. BATTISON HAYNES in E flat.

" 9. KING HALL in C.

" 10. J. F. BRIDGE in D.

(To be continued.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GRAND MASS in C, composed by P. MAZZONI.—

First performed at the Italian Church, Hatton Garden. Just published, price 6s. net.

Applications by Churches, Choral Societies, &c., for performance of this work to be made to the Publishers, where the full score MS. and Orchestral Parts may be had on hire.

HUTHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit Street, Regent Street, W.

TO ORGANISTS, PIANISTS, &c.

THE NEW MARCH, VOX POPULI. Post-free, 2s.

net. London: F. PITMAN, Paternoster Row; LEVY and CO., 13, Queen Street, Holborn.

PRODUCED AT THE
WORCESTER FESTIVAL, 1884.

HERO AND LEANDER

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

FOR SOPRANO AND BARYTONE SOLOS, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

THE LIBRETTO WRITTEN BY F. E. WEATHERLY

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. HARFORD LLOYD.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

Orchestral Parts, 16s. Full Score, 27s.

TIMES.

"Throughout this well-constructed piece the music is impressive and very delicately scored. Among the remainder of the numbers Yew's monologue and the final elegy on the death of the lovers deserve special mention. Mr. Lloyd's Cantata earned the applause it fully deserved."

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"Judged as a whole, 'Hero and Leander' strengthens hope of the young Oxford musician, who should now be numbered amongst our coming men."

STANDARD.

"'Hero and Leander' was received with signs of unequivocal gratification, and at the conclusion Mr. Lloyd was heartily called back to the platform to receive the plaudits of the public and the executives who had laboured in his behalf."

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PRODUCED AT THE
HEREFORD FESTIVAL, 1885.

THE

SONG OF BALDER

FOR SOPRANO SOLO, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY FREDERIC E. WEATHERLY

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. HARFORD LLOYD.

Paper Cover, 1s.

Orchestral Parts, 10s. 6d.; Full Score, MS.

THE TIMES.

"His music is the work of a competent and gifted composer. It is melodious and well written for the voices, and absolute freedom from pretentiousness gives additional charm to it. There is some very brilliant writing in the second portion of the work, and the climax is reached in a hymn-like Allegro maestoso of great power."

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"Mr. Lloyd has dealt with the twofold aspect of this theme in a manner perfectly homogeneous, yet in each case distinctive. His style may be described as a mixture of the classical and the romantic, the classicism being that of Mendelssohn, and his romanticism that of Schumann. . . . The 'Song of Balder' is a work of taste and refinement, charged with expression, now tender, now forcible, but always apt and full of the element of beauty, without which there can be no work of art worthy to be so called. Mr. Lloyd seems everywhere well within his means, and armed with a reserve force. It can hardly be requisite to add that the little Cantata is a worthy addition to English music."

DAILY NEWS.

"The text for Mr. Lloyd's music has been supplied by Mr. F. E. Weatherly, who has furnished two suggestive verses, which the composer has set in a very impressive style, some representative themes being used in reiteration with good effect. The music is throughout well written, alike for the solo voice, the chorus, and the orchestra."

DAILY CHRONICLE.

"Mr. Lloyd writes as one who is sure of his ground. His music is not abstruse, and exhibits no vain striving after sensational effects. He succeeds in making his meaning plain, to accomplish this end, goes the straightest way to work. Two or three fluent melodies seize the ear during the progress of the 'Song of Balder,' and whilst the vocal portions abound in spirit, the instrumentation is exceedingly vigorous. The climax is well built up; indeed, it is here that the composer has judiciously put forth his greatest strength."

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

BEETHOVEN.—Turkish March from "Ruins of Athens." ..	s. d.
Arranged for Two Pianofortes (eight hands) by A. Horn ..	3 0
BRAHMS.—Hungarian Dances. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet, with Violin and Cello, by F. Hermann. Book 2 ..	12 6
— Four Songs. For a high or low voice. (English and German words.) Op. 96 ..	24 0
— Six Songs. For a high or low voice. (English and German words.) Op. 97 ..	8 0
BRUCKNER, A.—Seventh Symphony in E:—
Full Score ..	net 40 6
Orchestral Parts ..	40 6
Arranged as Pianoforte Duet ..	11 40
BRUNO, F.—"Album Leaves." Five Pianoforte Pieces ..	4 0
CHOPIN.—March from Op. 49. Arranged for Two Pianofortes (eight hands) by A. Horn ..	3 0
DESHAYES, H.—Compositions for the Organ. Book 3: Triumphant March, Meditation, Allegretto ..	net 3 6
DRAESEKE, F.—Adagio. For Horn and Pianoforte. Op. 31 ..	4 0
Romance. For Horn and Pianoforte. Op. 32 ..	4 0
DUPONT, A.—Pianoforte School. Série XXXI. and XXXII. Books 1 and 2 ..	each 8 0
FISCHER, C. A.—"Pentecost." Concerto for the Organ. Op. 26 ..	5 0
FÖRSTER, A.—"Aus der Kinderwelt." Eight Easy Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 96 ..	4 0
— "Für die Jugend." Six Easy Pieces for Pianoforte Duet. Op. 97 ..	7 0
GOENS, D. VAN.—Adagio. For Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 2 ..	4 0
GUMBERT, F.—Waltz Rondo. Arranged for Harmonium and Pianoforte ..	3 0
— Theme. Flute and Pianoforte ..	3 0
HENSELT.—"Love Song." From Op. 5. For Violin and Pianoforte. By Hermann ..	2 0
HOFMANN, H.—"Im Schlosshof." Suite for the Orchestra:—
Full Score ..	net 18 0
Orchestral Parts ..	42 0
As Pianoforte Duet ..	13 0
— "Waldmärchen." Eight Pieces for Pianoforte Duet:—
Book I ..	8 0
Book II ..	9 0
HOFMANN, C.—Concerto in D minor. Op. 55. For Two Violins and Orchestra:—
Full Score ..	net 40 0
Orchestral Parts ..	32 0
For Two Violins and Pianoforte ..	20 0
HOFMANN, R.—"The Young Violinist." Easy and Progressive Pieces for Violin Solo ..	6 0
— The same. For Violin and Pianoforte ..	12 0
HUMMEL.—Concerto, in A flat major. Arranged for Two Pianofortes. By C. Reinecke ..	16 0
KLEINMICHEL, R.—"The Young Pianist." Easy and Progressive Pieces for Pianoforte Duet ..	12 0
LEMMENS, J. N.—"Works." Vol. III. Containing three Masses and eight Motets. With Organ Accompaniment ..	15 0
LEYBACH.—Fourteen Easy and Progressive Pieces. For Harmonium ..	6 0
MOZART.—Minuet, from the Serenade for Wind Instruments. For Two Pianofortes (eight hands) by J. Knorr ..	3 0
OGAREW, M.—Nocturne. Op. 7. For Cello and Pianoforte ..	3 0
— Berceuse. Op. 8. For Cello and Pianoforte ..	3 0
— Ricardo. " 9. " " " ..	3 0
— Complainte. " 11. " " " ..	3 0
— Memento. " 13. " " " ..	3 0
— Ballade. " 14. " " " ..	4 0
— Sweet Repose. " 17. " " " ..	2 0
— Cantilena. " 18. " " " ..	3 0
— Musette. " 19. " " " ..	3 0
— Marchesina. " 22. " " " ..	8 0
— Gavotte. " 27. " " " ..	3 0
— Percio Sîa. " 38. " " " ..	3 0
— Danse Espagnole. " 40. " " " ..	5 0
POPPER, D.—"Second Tarantella." For Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 57 ..	10 0
PUCHAT, M.—Three Fantasia Pieces. For Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 4 ..	8 0
REINECKE, C.—Overture to "William Tell." Arranged as a Pianoforte Duet ..	3 0
— Overture to "Glückskind und Pechvogel." As a Pianoforte Duet ..	3 0
RIES, FR.—"Perpetuum Mobile." From Op. 34. For Violin and Pianoforte ..	5 0
ROSENHAIN, J.—Aria from the Oratorio "Saul." (With English and German words) ..	2 0
— Sonata. For Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 98 ..	9 0
— The same. For Viola or Violin and Pianoforte ..	9 0
SCHUBERT.—New Edition of Complete Works:—
Série XV. Vol. 6: "Fierrabras." Opera. Full Score, net 41 0
R. I., No. 4: Tragic Symphony. Orchestral Parts, net 10 6
SCHUBERT.—Marcia from the Divertissement à la Hongroise. For Two Pianofortes (eight hands) by J. Knorr ..	2 0
SCHUMANN.—New Edition of Complete Works:—
Série IX.: "The Minstrel's Curse." Orchestral Parts ..	net 20 6
SULZER, J.—Novellette in E. Op. 5. For Cello and Pianoforte ..	3 0
WILHELM, A.—Cadenzas to Beethoven's Violin Concerto ..	2 0
ZICHY, GÉZA.—"Der Zaubersack." Ballad for a Tenor Voice, with Pianoforte. (German and Hungarian words) ..	7 0

Sold at half price, if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Now Ready. Small 4to, price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal Parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 3d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE

CANTICLES AND HYMNS
OF THE CHURCH,

POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS, SINGLE AND DOUBLE

TOGETHER WITH

RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., M.A.,
AND
EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE "	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in F. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
Te Deum, in E. Octavo	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate, in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in A	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	3d.
If we believe. Easter Anthem	4d.
O, how amiable. Soprano Solo and Chorus	4d.
Out of the deep. 130th Psalm	18.

PART-SONGS.

The Rhine Maiden. Four Voices	3d.
Spring	3d.
Beware	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price Fourpence.

THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

Including Kyrie, Gloria Tibi, Gracías, Sursum Corda, Sanctus,
Gloria in Excelsis, and Antiphon

Set to Music in the Key of F by
GEORGE KETT.

Merbecke's Credo (Barnby's Setting in the Key of F) is to be used with this Service.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

TE DEUM and JUBILATE DEO

SET TO MUSIC IN E MAJOR

BY

JOSEPH MOSENTHAL.

Organist and Choirmaster of Calvary Church, New York.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net.
STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

Nearly Ready.

NEW EDITION, WITH MANY ADDITIONS,

WORDS OF ANTHEMS

EDITED BY

THE REV. W. RAYSON, M.A.,
JOHN STAINER, M.A., D.Mus.,

AND

THE REV. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.
Cloth, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

THE LONDON CHANT BOOK

EDITED BY

HARVEY LÖHR and HOWARD B. HUMPHERY.

Containing nearly 600 Chants, single and double, set to the Psalms for the Month, Special days, and Canticles.

In paper covers and cloth back, price 4s. net.

Bound in whole cloth, price 5s. net.

Kyries, Ancient and Modern,

EDITED BY

WILLIS F. A. LAMBERT, M.A.

(Clerk in Orders and Director of the Choir of St. James's, Piccadilly).

Prices: Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s.

The above may be ordered through any Music-seller.

London: WEBER and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

Just published.

FRANZ SCHUBERT'S
NEW EDITION OF COMPLETE WORKS

Série XV., Vol. I. FIERRABRAS. Heroic, Romantic Opera s. d. in 3 Acts. Full score	net 41 0
" II. OVERTURES and other ORCHESTRAL WORKS, in full score	net 12
" I. No. 4. TRAGIC SYMPHONY. Orchestral parts	net 10 6

Subscriptions to the above works are received by Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co., the Sole Agents for England, who will forward prospectus and full particulars on application.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN

BY
OTTO DIENEL

(Organist of St. Marien-Kirche, Kgl. Musik Director, Berlin).

No.		s. d.
1.	Fugue in G, Op. 2	1 0
2.	First Grand Sonata in D minor, Op. 3	2 6
3.	Concert-Satz, Op. 10	2 0
4.	Second Grand Sonata in G minor, Op. 11	3 6
5.	Funeral March on the Choral "Jesus, my trust," Op. 12	1 6
6.	Adagio in D, Op. 13, No. 1	1 0
7.	Andante in C, Op. 13, No. 2	1 0
8.	Third Grand Sonata in F, Op. 18	5 0
9.	Echo-Andante, Op. 19	1 6
10.	Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 1	1 0
	Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 2	1 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CHURCH ORGANIST

A COLLECTION OF PIECES FOR USE DURING
DIVINE SERVICE

BY CHARLES COLLIN.

Book I. 2s. 6d.		Offertoire. Postlude. Offertoire.
March. Communions. Elevation.
Book II. 3s.		Communions. Ditto. March. Postlude.
Offertoire for the Feast of Pentecost. Hymn. Elevation.
Book III. 2s. 6d.		Communions. Elevation. March.
Elevation. Postludium. Offertoire.
Book IV. 2s. 6d.		Grand Chœur.
Offertoire. Elevation.
Book V. 2s. 6d.		Offertoire for Easter-day. Offertoire or Communions.
Communions or Offertoire. Prelude on the Hymn of St. Joseph.
Book VI. 2s. 6d.		Allegro-Fanfare.
Allegretto. Elevation.
Book VII. 2s. 6d.		Andantino. Grand Chœur.
March. Communions. Andante.
Book VIII. 2s. 6d.		Allegretto. Prelude. Te Deum.
Offertoire (for Xmas Day). Hymn (Jesu, dulcis memo- ria).

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Inscribed by permission to Madame SCHUMANN.

THE CELEBRATED

LARGHETTO

FROM SCHUMANN'S B FLAT SYMPHONY

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN BY

W. LYLE BIGGS,

Organist of St. Peter le Bailey Church, Oxford.

Price 1s. 6d. net. Post-free from the ARRANGER, 8, Queen St., Oxford.

TRIUMPHAL MARCH, arranged for the Organ (with Pedal obbligato), from the Oratorio GIDEON. Composed by J. CHRISTOPHER MARKS, Mus.D., Oxon. Price 2s. net. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 7, Berners Street, W.; or of the COMPOSER, 16, South Mall, Cork.

TO ORGANISTS.—Price 2s. net.

THE GORDON MARCH, by R. P. BARCLAY.—"An effective production, with many phrases of great vigour. Very impressive."—Bristol Times and Mirror. "An original and most effective piece of organ music, which deserves to find a large share of admirers."—Musical Record. To be had of AUGENER & Co., London; P. J. SMITH & SONS, Bristol.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

London: WEEKS and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO

WELL. Fourth Edition. Price 1s.

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. Price 1s. 4th Ed.

LITTLE DIFFICULTIES IN PLAYING EXPAINED. 1s.

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A CHOIR. Price 1s.

HOW TO TUNE YOUR OWN PIANO. Price 1s.

THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. 1.

FOUR MARCHES

COMPOSED BY

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

No. 1. Wedding March. | No. 3. Cornelius March, Op. 108.
" 2. War March of the Priests. | " 4. Funeral March, Op. 103.

TRANSCRIBED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 2.

THIRTY MELODIES

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

These Melodies are expressly written to be used in connection with the Author's VIOLIN PRIMER.

No. 3.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 4.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

GOUNOD'S "MORS ET VITA"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

*. These Albums may also be had arranged for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and CO.

ROBERT SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE WORKS

EDITED AND FINGERED BY

MISS AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

ALBUM FOR THE YOUNG

55 PIECES.

Price 2s. 6d., paper cover; or, 4s. 6d. cloth, gilt.

Or, in Three Parts, One Shilling each.

ALBUM LEAVES

20 PIECES.

Price 1s. Paper cover.

SCENES OF CHILDHOOD AND FOREST SCENES

22 PIECES.

Price 1s. Paper cover.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE SONGS

WITH ENGLISH AND GERMAN WORDS

COMPOSED BY

SIR W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT.

Op. 23.

No. 1. Musing on the Ocean.

2. May Dew.

3. Forget-me-not.

4. To Chloe (in Sickness).

5. The Past.

6. Gentle Zephyr.

Op. 35.

No. 7. Indian Love.

8. Winter's Gone.

9. Dawn, Gentle Flower.

10. Castle Gordon.

11. As Lonesome through the Woods.

12. Sing, Maiden, Sing.

PRICE ONE SHILLING;

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

Also separately, folio, price 1s. 6d. each net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices.

Price 3s. String parts, 11s. Wind parts, MS.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlvii.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR-PART SONGS by S. S. STRATTON.—

"Monarch Winter," words by W. S. PASSMORE, 3d.; "Summer is but fleeting," words by E. OXFENFORD, 3d.; "Merri-very bosom boundeth," words by THOMAS MOORE, 3d.
 London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee.
 By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.

net.

WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) s. d.
 The Words written by F. E. Weatherly 2 0
 (Song by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)

KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly 2 0

BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner 2 0

ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) 2 0
 (Song by Miss ADA TOLKIN.)

THE ZINGARA 2 0
 (Song by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)

THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford 2 0

THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq. 2 0

NELLIE OF THE LEA. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq. 2 0

THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxfenford 2 0

(Song by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)

PIANOFORTE, &c.

ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold.) 2d. Edition 2 0

Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook 2 0

MY LADY BARBARA'S GAVOTTE 2 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

THE THREE STARS. 2d. Edition 0 2

THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 7th Edition 0 2

GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 19th Edition 0 2

THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition 0 2

TO THE WOODS. 10th Edition 0 2

HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition 0 2

THE HOUR OF REST. 5th Edition 0 2

DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 8th Edition 0 2

DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 6th Edition 0 2

WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) 0 3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

Just published.

THE GROSVENOR SERIES OF PART-SONGS,

suitable for Schools and Class-Singing:—

No. 1. Voice of a joyous heart. Two voices C. Vincent.

2. Kit the Owl. Two voices C. Vincent.

3. It was a lover and his lass. S.A.T.B. W. Bendall.

4. Good night, beloved. T.T.B.B. G. Lardelli.

5. A pretty ditty, Trio and chorus. Treble voices. C. Vincent. Price 3s. each (8vo.)

(To be continued.)

MERRIE RHYMES FOR YE YOUNGSTERS. Two-part choruses. Music by J. MAUGHAN BARNETT.

Illustrated. Price 1s. 6d. net (4to).

J. & J. HOPKINSON, 95, New Bond Street, W.

CATECHISM ON THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC

and PIANOFORTE PLAYING. By E. ELLICE JEWELL.

Fourth and Revised Edition, price 1s. Also,

ELEMENTARY EXERCISES, to be used in conjunction with the above-named work. No manuscript music-book or paper will be required, as space is left with ruled staves for the pupil to write all the exercises in this book. Price 2s.

PIANOFORTE STUDENT'S DAILY STUDY, comprising Scales, Chords, Arpeggi, and Finger Exercises. Arranged by ELLICE E. JEWELL. Price 6s.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M. BOWLES.

Price 1s.

"The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times.

"A great deal of information as to what is generally called Thorough-Bass is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Orchestra.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXFENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

Parts I. and II.	s. d.
Complete, paper cover	1 6
Ditto, paper boards	2 0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	3 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S

POPULAR PART-SONGS for S.A.T.B. 8vo.

I love the merry springtime	20th thousand	2d.
Gaily thro' the greenwood	48th "	2d.
The coming of spring and Sunny rays	4th "	each 3d.
England's glory and Forest echoes	7th "	3d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes, and Fairy revels	9th "	3d.
Where are you roaming and Who is Sylvia?	2nd "	3d.
O Anglia! land of the brave	1st "	3d.

(More than 200,000 of W. J. Young's Part-Songs have been sold.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

Manchester: HIME and ADDISON; or, COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

By W. W. PEARSON.

The Iron Horse	4d.	Welcome, Young Spring!	2d.
The Ironfounders (16th thou.)	3d.	Sweet to Live (2nd thou.)	2d.
The Stormy Petrel	3d.	The Anglers	2d.
The Coral Grove	3d.	The Dream of Home	2d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhru	3d.	Summer and Winter	2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal)	3d.	Departed Joys	2d.
The Ocean	3d.	There's Beauty in the Deep	1d.
The River	3d.	Soldier, Rest!	1d.
Over the Mountain Side	3d.	Woods in Winter	1d.
Soul of Living Music	3d.	Autumn	1d.
The Jager Chorus	3d.	Sombre Shadows of the Night	1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

Three Children Sliding. (Just published)	3d.
Three Doughty Men. (16th thousand)	3d.
A Ryghte Merrie Geste	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS GLEES, PART-SONGS, &c., by

A. J. CALDICOTT:—

Humpty Dumpty	6d.	Sobbing Quartet	3d.
The House that Jack Built	6d.	The Haymakers	3d.
Jack and Jill	4d.	Yule	4d.
Little Jack Horner	6d.	Out on the Waters	4d.

Now ready, A FISHY CASE

Children's Operetta, in two acts, with illustrations, price 2s. 6d.

METZLER and Co., Great Marlborough Street, W.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS and CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs. For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS BY H. T. TILTMAN.

HOMeward BOUND. 2s. net. Sung by Miss Hilda Wilson.

DAPHNE. Sung by Mr. Frank Walker. 2s. net. Both the above published by Messrs. WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Just published.

A FAREWELL.—Song. The Words written by Lord TENNYSON; the music composed by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 2s. net.

EDITH.—Serenade for the Pianoforte. Composed by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 1s. 6d. net. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW MUSIC, by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.—LITTLE JACK HORNER. Humorous Glee for S.A.T.B. Sung with the greatest success in London and the provinces. Price 4d. THE ROBIN. Two-Part Song, s.c. Price 4d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VOICE-TRAINING EXERCISES

(For Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, Baritone, & Bass Voices)

BY

EMIL BEHNKE

AND

CHARLES W. PEARCE.

Price Eighteenpence each. In Cloth Boards, Three Shillings each.

"I am much obliged to you for sending me your Voice Exercises. They seem to me admirable, and doubtless will prove of great utility.

"FREDERICK A. G. OUSELEY."

"I like the Vocal Exercises very much; they are scientific, systematic, and ingenious.

"JOHN STAINER."

CHAPPELL & Co.'s TUTORS

ARE USED BY ALL THE PRINCIPAL PROFESSORS.

SINGING.

RIMBAULT'S NEW SINGING TUTOR, adapted from the celebrated Tutor of Lablache, for Soprano, Tenor, Contralto, or Bass each 5 0

LABLACHE.

LABLACHE'S INSTRUCTION FOR SINGING:—

The complete work for Tenor or Soprano Voices	21	0
Ditto, Mezzo-Soprano or Contralto Voices	21	0
Ditto, Bass Voice	21	0

LABLACHE'S PROGRESSIVE SOLFEGGI for Contralto or Mezzo-Soprano ... 5 0

This Edition can also be used for a Bass Voice.

LABLACHE'S PROGRESSIVE SOLFEGGI for Soprano or Tenor ... 5 0

LABLACHE'S PROGRESSIVE SOLFEGGI for Medium Voices ... 5 0

THE SINGER'S DAILY PRACTICE—1. For Soprano or Tenor; 2. For Contralto; 3. For Bass each 4 0

LABLACHE'S VOCAL EXERCISES 5 0

PIANOFORTE.

RIMBAULT'S COMPLETE PIANO TUTOR, containing the First Rudiments of Music, a Gradual and Progressive Series of Exercises, Scales, &c., including a Selection of Popular Music, arranged by EDWARD F. RIMBAULT; the whole revised and enlarged by JOHN HILES 5 0

CHAPPELL'S AMERICAN ORGAN TUTOR

Edited by DR. BRIDGE, Organist of Westminster Abbey.

Price Five Shillings.

LONDON:

CHAPPELL AND CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

CITY BRANCH—15, POULTRY, E.C.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 521.—Vol. 27.

Registered for transmission abroad.

JULY 1, 1886.

Price 4d.; Post-free, 5d.

Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5s.

GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

SEPTEMBER 7, 8, 9, and 10, 1886.

Principal Vocalists:—

Madame ALBANI.	Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.
Miss ANNA WILLIAMS.	Mr. W. WINCH.
Miss HILDA WILSON.	Mr. WATKIN MILLS.
Madame PATEY.	Mr. SANTLEY.

Solo Pianist	Miss FANNY DAVIES.
Leader	Mr. CARRODUS.
Conductor	Mr. C. L. WILLIAMS.

Particulars of Mr. Nest, Gloucester.

NOTTINGHAM GLEE CLUB.

The Committee of above announce that

PRIZES VALUE £10 & £5 ARE OFFERED

FOR THE BEST

GLEES FOR FOUR MALE VOICES,

WITH PIANO ACCOMPANIMENT.

Introducing short Solos for Tenor and Baritone or Bass. Open to the United Kingdom. The Copyright of all Glee sent for competition to remain the property of their composers.

For further particulars apply T. H. Selby, Hon. Sec., Poultry Hotel, Nottingham.

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

Tuesday, July 13, at 10 a.m. ... Examination, F.C.O., Organ Playing.
Wednesday, July 14, at 10 a.m. ... Examination, F.C.O., Paper Work,

Thursday, July 15, at 10 a.m. ... Examination, A.C.O., Paper Work.
Friday, July 16, at 11 a.m. ... Diploma Distribution.
Tuesday, July 27, at 8 p.m. ... Annual General Meeting.

N.B.—Candidates for Examination must send in names and fees on or before July 7.
E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS." (Reg.)—
Conductor, JOSEF CANTOR.

Unprecedented success in Manchester.
Unprecedented success in Leeds.
Unprecedented success in Liverpool.
Unprecedented success in Preston.
Unprecedented success in Bolton.

THE "GEMS OF THE OPERAS" CONCERT COMPANY comprises a highly trained Choir of Ladies and Gentlemen, assisted by a select Orchestra:—

Principal Soprano Madame LAURA SMART.
Solo Flute Mr. V. L. NEEDHAM.
(Of Messrs. Chas. Hallé's and Edw. de Jong's orchestras.)

Mr. Cantor is now negotiating for dates during the ensuing season.
All particulars, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

THE MUSICAL ARTISTS' SOCIETY.—The next CONCERT will take place at Willis's Rooms on SATURDAY, July 10, at 8 o'clock. The musical arrangements under the direction of Mr. Alfred Gilbert, Hon. Sec., The Woodlands, 89, Maida Vale.

LONDON CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC. (Inst. 1876.) New Building, Porchester Square, Hyde Park, W. Branches: 4, Royal Exchange Buildings, City; 92, Colmore Row, Birmingham. Scholarships (resident or otherwise) for talent. Prospectus free. LANDSOWNE COTTELL, Director.

BIRMINGHAM BRANCH, LONDON CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC.—The Director attends every Monday to award SCHOLARSHIPS and LONDON INTRODUCTIONS. Appointment only by addressing Secretary, London.

TO ORGANISTS and all LOVERS of MUSIC.—

A new ORGAN is much needed for Billingsboro' Church, Lincolnshire. A Fund for this object has already been started, to which it is regretted contributions come in very slowly. Will all interested in this kind of work add something? Donations of a shilling and upwards will be gratefully received and thankfully acknowledged by Mr. W. H. E. Dean, Organist, Billingsboro', Folkingham. P.O.O. are payable at Billingsboro'.

J. B. CRAMER & CO.,

CONCERT AGENTS,
LIVERPOOL.

MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN begs to announce that he can now accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, W., or 34, Elgin Road, Maida Vale, W.

OXFORD (New College).—CHORISTERS WANTED.—Trial of BOYS' VOICES, on Friday, July 9. For particulars apply to the Precentor, New College, Oxford.

PARIS.—CHOIR BOYS are required for the American Church in Paris. Advantages: good English education, with special facilities for the study of the French language. Every care in Choir House as to Board and Lodging. Qualifications required, good voice, some knowledge of music, and respectable position. Applications to be made at once to Mr. Stedman, Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, W.

SALISBURY CATHEDRAL.—An ELECTION of THREE CHORISTERS will take place on THURSDAY, July 20. Further particulars may be obtained on application to the Rev. G. Bennett, The Close, Salisbury.

LEADING CHOIRBOY (good Soloist) WANTED, for St. John's Church, Torquay. Good Reader, and experienced in Gregorian Chanting and Anglican Services, &c. Age between 11 and 13. Board and education free in Choir School, under immediate supervision of Vicar and Clergy. Apply, by letter, to Organist, J. Webb, Esq., Montpellier Villa, Torquay, or to the Vicar, Rev. B. Airey, Engadine, Torquay.

TO CHOIRMASTERS, &c.—A SOPRANO (pupil of Mr. Fred Walker) is desirous of meeting with an appointment as LEADER in a Choir. Address, Miss A. Davies, 26, Gloucester Crescent, Regent's Park, N.W.

ST. PAUL'S, Southwark.—ALTOS, TENORS, and BASSES WANTED, to complete Voluntary Choir. Weekly practice. Address, Vicar, 94, Lambeth Road, S.E.

TENOR WANTED, for Christ Church, Kensington (near Gloucester Road and High Street Railway Stations). Must be able to chant and read well. Matins and Evensong on Sundays and one weekly Choir practice. Five weeks' holiday in August and September. Salary, £15. Apply to Choirmaster, 23, Young Street, W.

TENOR.—There is a VACANCY for a SOLO TENOR (good Reader) in a church in the North of London. Two services on Sundays and Good Friday, one service on Christmas day, and evening service on Ash Wednesday and New Year's Eve. Rehearsals, Friday evenings. Cathedral music. Stipend, £30 per annum. Address, M., Belgrave House, Richmond, Surrey.

WANTED, for a Church adjoining Sydenham Hill Station (L.C. and D.R.), a TENOR and BASS. Must be good Readers and produce satisfactory references. £20 each per annum. Apply, by letter only, to Mr. Herbert Green, Wallington, Surrey.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.—There will shortly be VACANCIES for TWO ASSISTANT VICARS-CHORAL (Bass). Candidates must be under 30 years of age, and have been regular Communicants of the Church of England. Apply to the Succentor, Rev. W. Russell, 4, Amen Court, E.C.

WANTED, for the Wesleyan Middle-class School, Truro, in September next, a RESIDENT MUSIC MASTER, who must be a good Teacher. Apply, with full particulars, to the Head Master.

MUSICAL STUDENT.—An experienced Music Master can receive into his country home (with another Pupil) a young Gentleman desirous to qualify himself as a MUSICIAN. This opening, being exceptional, is fitted for the special case of one unable or unwilling to enter any Public School or Academy. It is available only for a youth of good breeding, education, and fair promise, furnished with ample means. Address, M. G. E., Mus. Doc., Oxon.; Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—Mr. G. ERNEST LAKE, Organist and Musical Director, All Saints', Kensington, REQUIRES a gentlemanly YOUTH to train for a high-class professional position. Daily Choral Service. Large Organ, Broadwood Concert Grand, Music Library, and home comforts. Small Premium for Youth with talent. 37, Burlington Road, North Kensington.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano).

(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby.)
Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MADAME EMILIE CLARK (Soprano).

(Compass G to C.)
For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, &c.
Address, 2, Wellclose Place, Leeds.

MISS ADELINA CLARKE (Soprano)

MR. J. C. CLARKE, L.R.A.M. (Baritone and Solo Organist)

Are open to accept Engagements for Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c. Terms on application. Address, 24, Bridge Street, Walsall.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano, G to D).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).

Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MISS LOUIE HARPER, R.A.M. (Soprano).

(Pupil of Signor Goldberg.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 182, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

MISS BESSIE HOLT, R.A.M. (Soprano),

3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MISS LILY MARSHALL-WARD (Soprano).

MISS NELLIE MARSHALL-WARD (Mezzo-Sop.)

MISS JESSIE MARSHALL-WARD (Contralto).
Address, 80, Addison Street, Nottingham.

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).

MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).
Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MADELEINE WHARTON (Soprano).

MDLLE. JOSÉ D'ARCONVILLE, R.A.M.
(Contralto, of St. James's Hall and London Concerts).
Oratorio, Italian Operatic, and Ballad Concerts. 27, Central Road, Withington, Manchester.

MISS CHADWICK, R.A.M. (Contralto).

58, Henshaw Street, Oldham, Lancashire.

MISS EMILY CLARKE (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Fiori and the late Madame Sainton-Dolby.)
"An artist in every sense of the word, and one of the purest and most charming contraltos that we have heard for some time."
Tunbridge Wells Gazette.
For Concerts, Lessons, &c., 9, Colville Square, Bayswater, W.

MADAME TALBOT LEGG (Contralto).

For Classical, Ballad Concerts, Lessons, &c., address, 94, Lenthall Road, Dalston.

MISS MARGARET LEYLAND (Contralto).

(Certificated with Honours, R.A.M., and Gold Medalist.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 51, Plymouth Grove, Manchester.
"The contralto solo 'But the Lord is mindful of his own' was, with its introductory recitative, given with charming taste by Miss Margaret Leyland."—Sheffield and Rotherham Independent.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE, L.A.M. (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Schira.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS KATE MILNER (Contralto).

(Of the Guildhall School of Music.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, Lessons, &c., 77, Macfarlane Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MISS C. POOCK (Contralto and Pianist).

For Oratorios, Ballads, &c., address, 68, Green Hill, Derby.

MISS EDITH THAIRLWALL (Contralto).

(Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Teaching, &c., 5, Provost Road, N.W.

MR. EDWIN BRYANT (Tenor).

30, Lady Margaret Road, N.W.

MR. GEO. BUTTERWORTH (Tenor).

Honours, Cert. R.A.M. (1886); Honours, Cert. T.C.L. (1885).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 7, King William St., Blackburn.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).

(Canterbury Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 12, St. Mary Street, Dane John, Canterbury.

MR. S. MASON (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral, Exeter.

MR. J. SHAKESPEARE ROBINSON (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Cathedral, Oxford.

MR. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone).

(Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)
35, Knowle Road, S.W. (Also Concert Party.)

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass).

And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MISS MAUD PRESCOTT (Soprano) begs to announce that she can accept Seaside and Country ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts from July next. 53, Sutherland Gardens, Maida Vale, W.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts, be addressed, 28, Grove End Road, London, N.W.; or, 59, Church Street, Liverpool.

MISS NELLIE LEVEY.—"A charming singer."
—Vide Press. Pupil of Mr. Frederick Walker. For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, address, 12, Red Lion Square, Holborn.

"MISS MEREDYTH ELLIOTT (Contralto) filled the void occasioned by the absence of Madame Antoinette Sterling, and the most thrilling of all the vocal items of the programme was her rendering of 'The Lost Chord' which was a performance of unparalleled beauty."—Southampton Times. Address, 24, Studley Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MR. JAMES GAWTHROP (Tenor), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James's, begs that all communications be addressed to 34, Priory Park Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MR. THOMAS KEMPTON (Bass-Baritone) is now booking Engagements for Season 1886-7. Quartet Parties provided for Oratorio, Ballad, and Miscellaneous Concerts; also for Church Festivals, Masonic Banquets, Garden Parties, &c., &c. For terms, vacant dates, &c., address, 52, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, N.

MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass), or Popular Vocal and Instrumental Concert Party. For terms and press notices, address, Willow Grove Hall, Leeds.

GIUSEPPE VINCI, Solo Violinist, is prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Practice with Amateur Pianists of Sonatas, Chamber Music, &c. Address, 48, Berners Street, W.

STRING QUARTETS, &c.—A Gentleman PIANIST is desirous of joining Professional Artists with a view to Concert work. Address, Pianist, 20, Ellington Street, Barnsbury, N.

CHORAL SOCIETIES and CONCERT-GIVERS supplied on the shortest notice with VOCALISTS, CHOIRS, ORCHESTRAS, &c., by the English and American Bureau, 45, Leicester Square, W.C. Manager, Mr. E. A. Williams. Office hours, 12.30 to 3 o'clock, except Saturdays.

MISS F. LOCKWOOD, Harpist to the Carl Rosa Opera Company. MISS C. LOCKWOOD (Medalist, R.A.M.), for Pianoforte Lessons. 6, Frederick Place, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.

MISS CLARA TITERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titerton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Goldolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The Fees payable in advance. Trinity Term began May 6. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macirone.
F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

GERMANY.—Miss SERCOMBE, L.L.A., late Assistant Mistress at the Norwich High School, continues to receive a limited number of Pupils. Special arrangements made for Ladies wishing to study Music at the CONSERVATORIUM. Address, Danneckerstrasse, STUTTGART.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC. OXON., (1885), and T.C.D. (1884). MUS. BAC. CANTAB. (1885); MUS. BAC. T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC. OXON. Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (May 1886). 1st Mus. Bac. Oxon. (1886). L.R.A.M. (1886); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1886). N.S.F.M. (Professional and every other Section, 1885); Toronto (five in the 1st Class, 1885). F.C.O., A.C.O., &c. More than 170 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by DR. ALLISON'S Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885 and 1886. Theory, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. M. J. MONK, Mus.B. Oxon., informs his former Pupils and others that he has resumed teaching HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and kindred subjects, by post, and will be happy to reply to letters addressed 20, Marlborough Road, Banbury.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties, artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY OF ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection. CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. ARTHUR J. GREENISH, Mus. Bac. Cantab., F.C.O., A.R.A.M., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS, Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., taught personally or by correspondence. Candidates prepared through post for Musical Examinations. 23, Maitland Park Road, Haverstock Hill, N.W.

MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Address, Market Place, South Shields.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street, Mayfair, W.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. E. BURRITT LANE, L.Mus., T.C.L. (Tallis Gold Medalist, 1880), begs to announce his REMOVAL to 26, Boulevard, Stoke Newington, N. Tuition personally or by post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Successful results at Coll. of Organists' Examinations, 1885, and First Mus. Bac., Cantab., First Class, 1886. Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

A RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL is required by the ORGANIST of Ware Parish Church. One able to play a plain service preferred. Fine three-manual Organ, Choral Services, &c. Terms moderate. Address, Mr. J. L. Gregory, F.C.O., Ware.

A PROFESSOR of MUSIC in the North of London, having a large connection, and holding an Appointment at an important High Church, is in want of an ARTICLED PUPIL. Excellent opportunity for acquiring great general experience both in Orchestral and Church work. Premium required. One who could take Elementary Pianoforte and Violin Lessons at once preferred. Address, Verax, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL REQUIRED. Every advantage for a Youth wishing to enter the musical profession. Moderate terms. Address, Mus. Bac., F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE and HARMONY TEACHER (German also if required).—A Lady (two years at Leipzig Conservatorium) seeks ENGAGEMENT in High School or Ladies' College. Certified and experienced. Address, Beta, care of Mr. Stanford, 55, Charing Cross.

THE Parents of a Young Lady would be glad to hear of a VACANCY for their Daughter, either as ARTICLED PUPIL with a Professor or as JUVENILE MUSIC GOVERNESS. It must be in a good class School. Brilliant Pianist; good Soprano voice; excellent Sight Reader. F.P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO PUBLISHERS.—MSS. of ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS for SALE. Cheap. Composer, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC legibly COPIED and TRANPOSED at 6d. per page. Piano taught. C. Shaw, Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. PECK, 35, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual new Tubular Pneumatic Organ, 18 stops, blown by Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive ONE SHILLING PER HOUR FOR A COURSE at Blennerhasset's Organ Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Manufacturer of THE PERFECT HYDRAULIC ENGINE for supplying wind to Organs of any size to the smallest Harmoniums. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective.

Particulars and estimates as above free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c.; blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

TAMWORTH PARISH CHURCH.—WANTED, an ORGANIST. Salary: £60, first year; £40 afterwards. Good Organ; three Manuals. Sixteen men, thirty-two boys in Choir. Testimonials to Vicar, Tamworth, Staffordshire, on or before July 8.

WANTED, for the Parish Church, Cullompton, an efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, who can be thoroughly recommended for Christian character. Address, stating age, references, and salary, the Vicar and Churchwardens, The Vicarage, Cullompton, Devon.

ORGANIST WANTED, for St. James's Church, Muswell Hill, N. Two choral services Sunday; Choir practice Wednesday evening. Surplised Choir, and Choirmaster. £28 per annum. Apply, by letter, to the Vicar and Churchwardens.

SOUTH WALES.—Country Church, Male or Female ORGANIST required in August. Fine scenery. Railway Station. Small salary only can be offered. Good organ. Vicar, Talgarth, R.S.O.

WANTED, a VOLUNTARY ORGANIST. For Church and particulars apply to Rector, care of Mr. Brough, 7, Brunswick Villas, Grosvenor Park, S.E.

WANTED, by an Organist in the N.W. District, an efficient DEPUTY for the first three Sundays in August. Good organ. Apply to Organist, 23, Maitland Park Road, N.W.

THE ORGANIST (L.Mus., &c.) of an important Parish Church, who has been Head Boy in one of the best Cathedrals, and thoroughly understands Choir-training and the culture of boys' voices, desires an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER where there is a good Organ, good Choir (or opportunity of forming one), and a good opening for Teaching. Accustomed to a Full Cathedral Service with Choral Celebrations. Compositions and splendid testimonials. Apply to Cantuar, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST or INSTRUCTOR in MUSIC desired by Bachelor of Arts, Oxford, who has had long experience in Church Services and the best Tuition; has passed First Examination for Degree of Mus. Bac., Certificate, Trinity College, London. Address, Rector, care of Messrs. R. F. White and Son, 33, Fleet Street, E.C.

STUDENT of MUSIC desires EMPLOYMENT in town, either Clerical or Musical, for a month or six weeks. Good writer and mathematician. Plays Organ and Piano well. Good knowledge of brass and orchestral instruments. Only small salary expected, but short hours. Excellent references. G. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST, upwards of 20 years' experience, will take TEMPORARY or DEPUTY DUTY. J. S. Creswell, Tamworth.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of several years' experience is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in London. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Cathedral education), Communicant, is open to an ENGAGEMENT in a Town where there is a good opening for a Music and Singing Master. Excellent testimonials and references. Address, Organist, care of Mrs. Lyon, Cricket St. Thomas, Chard, Somerset.

TO SEASIDE ORGANISTS.—The Organist and Director of the Choir of Church in fashionable suburb of London can DEPUTISE for three weeks in August or September. Choral Services and good Organ. Letters to E. A. C., Public Hall, Beckenham.

ORGAN.—A Lady wishes for a temporary post as ORGANIST during the months of July and August. Address, J. P., Phillipson's Library, Kingston-on-Thames, Surrey.

ORGANIST, in favourite Summer resort in South of Scotland, would like to exchange Church duties with Organist in or near London, during August. Address, G. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT PUPIL.—Youth, 17½ years of age, who could take a Service and assist in Teaching, if required, desires SITUATION as above. Has had charge of a small Choir; also acted as Deputy, Moderate salary or board and residence. Good organ indispensable. Mr. Prendergast, Organist, Parish Church, Wem, Salop.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED. Must be experienced. Liberal salary to a competent man. Apply, Graham, 6, Standwick Place, Edinburgh.

WANTED, a thoroughly efficient PIANOFORTE REGULATOR and REPAIRER. One who understands American Organs and Harmoniums, and one who can tune in case of need preferred. Address, with full particulars, to Smith, Oxford Road, Manchester.

WANTED, a good Country TUNER. Must be a thoroughly steady man. A practical knowledge of American Organs and Harmoniums indispensable. Permanent situation. Good salary. Address, P. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

EXPERIENCED SALARY WANTED. Must be a steady, reliable man, with good address. Send photo, and state salary required. Duck, Son and Pinker, Musicians, Bath.

WANTED, immediately, a TUNER (married preferred), to manage a country Business; for terms apply by letter, to Messrs. Kirkman and Son, Soho Square, London.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, &c.—SITUATION WANTED, as above. Can Tune well; used to out-door Tuning and Counter trade. Good references. Address, M.U.S., 24, Lucius Street, Torquay.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Steady and reliable. Understands Harmoniums, &c. Tuner, W. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER, experienced, requires PARTIAL ENGAGEMENT. Town or country. A. A., 15, Olinda Road, Stamford Hill, N.

SITUATION REQUIRED, by an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER. Address, J. F. R., care of Mr. Fawcett, Musiceller, Northgate, Cleckheaton.

TUNER—WANTED, by a Young Man, aged 20, a SITUATION in a good Music Business as SECOND TUNER. Can tune well. Address, S. H. II., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN experienced TUNER (Blind) seeks a SITUATION in Town or Country. Wages moderate. Address, H. Peacock, 19, Sydney Street, Oakley Square, N.W.

OUTDOOR TUNER.—SITUATION REQUIRED as above, by first-class TUNER, for three or four days a week or full time, in town or suburbs. Has tuned for leading professors. A. Jenn, 2, Jeffrey Street, Kentish Town Road, N.W.

LADY ASSISTANT REQUIRED, for a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Must have thorough knowledge of the Catalogues and be good Pianist. Apply, enclosing photo, H. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUTH (20) REQUIRES SITUATION, in-doors, as IMPROVER to the TUNING in MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Is a good Pianist and Violinist. Would give time. Address, P. W. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SITUATION REQUIRED, in MUSIC WAREHOUSE, by a Lady Assistant, who is a good player. Apply to M. D. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as MANAGER or TRAVELLER in Sheet Music Trade. 21 years' experience. 16 years in present situation. Well up in catalogues. G. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNING CONNECTION.—WANTED, to PURCHASE. London or Suburbs. H. T., 10, Castle Street, Oxford Street, W.

OLD-ESTABLISHED MUSIC BUSINESS on Welsh Coast (North-West) to be DISPOSED OF. First-class Hiring and Tuning connection. Good opening for Teaching. Stock, fixtures, and goodwill at a valuation. Executors, Fairlight Villa, Golden Hillock Road, Birmingham.

NOTICE.—AGATE and CO., 300, Regent Street, W., beg respectfully to inform the Music Trade and the Profession that they have PURCHASED the BUSINESS of the late T. W. BLOCKLEY, 72, Berners Street, W., together with many of the principal copyrights from his important Catalogue. Agate and Co. also beg to notify that the business is now carried on at 300, Regent Street, to which address all orders should be sent. A complete Catalogue, with several new and important additions, may now be had on application.

AGATE and Co., 300, Regent Street, London, W.

NOTICE.—AGATE and CO. (late Agate and Pritchard), of 68, Gracechurch Street, have now opened their NEW PREMISES, at 300, REGENT STREET. Orders for Music, Tunings, Pianos on Hire, &c., will receive prompt attention. Violin Strings, for which they have been so long celebrated—4 length E, 6d. each; finest quality, solo E, 1s. each, post-free. AGATE and Co., 300, Regent Street, W.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Academy House, 295, Oxford Street, W., MUSIC PUBLISHERS and General MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Composers' Works Revised, Engraved, and Published in the best style and at lowest charges, and afterwards offered for sale. Estimates free. Approved MSS. purchased. Private Rooms, with use of Pianos for Professors' teaching use, or for practice. Lessons given by highly qualified Professors on Pianoforte, Violin, Flute, Banjo, Guitar, and all instruments; Singing, Harmony, &c. PIANOFORTES by all Makers for Sale (cash or three years system). VIOLINS (old and new), Strings, &c. Value not to be excelled. For terms, lists, &c., apply, 295, Oxford Street, W.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 24, Warwick St., Regent St., London, undertakes Revising and Publishing all Musical Works, in the best manner, on lowest terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogue on application. Parcels of Music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 10, Paternoster Row, E.C.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions. Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. Nine Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

NEW ORGAN for SALE.—6 Stops (CC to F), open diapason, metal; gamba, metal; dulciana, metal; lieblich gedacht, wood and metal; principal, metal; piccolo, wood, all in general swell except open diapason; octave and half of pedals. Price £90. Also a Second-hand Organ with 7 stops (CC to F). Price £20. Apply to Messrs. Nicholson and Co., Organ Builders, Worcester.

ORGAN for SALE. A fine-toned Instrument. Great organ, 11 stops; swell organ, 9 stops (all of which go through to CC, except the gemhorn); pedal organ, 3 stops; six composition pedals. Full particulars on application to W. White, Music Warehouse, Grantham.

FOR SALE, CHURCH ORGAN. Sixteen Stops, two Manuals, and Pedals. Price £100. Apply to Messrs. Trustam, Organ Builders, Bedford.

CHAMBER ORGAN, by GRAY and DAVISON, one row of keys; compass CC to G, 4½ octaves; pedal compass, 2 octaves and 3 notes CCC to E; 12 draw stops, with general swell and 3 composition pedals. At present near Oxford. Address, D. S. Hadleigh House, Windsor.

FOR SALE. Three-manual ORGAN, 21 stops; a fine toned instrument, handsome case, richly decorated pipes, &c., &c. Apply to the London Music Publishing Company, Limited, 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

ORGAN for SALE.—A CHAMBER or CHANCEL ORGAN. Two manuals (great, open diapason, Lieblich flute, principal swell, dulciana, stopped diapason, pedal, bourdon (29 notes), couplers, great to pedals, swell to pedals; radiating, concave pedals, solid mahogany case. Price very reasonable. Builder, BRINDLEY, Sheffield. Apply to Mr. C. Martin, Organ Builder, St. Clement's, Oxford.

ORGAN for SALE.—Two manuals, eight stops and couplers, independent bourdon pedals, in handsome mahogany case. Price £80. T. R. Willis, 29, Minories, E.C.

ORGAN (fined toned). Two-manual, 17 stops, pedal, open diapason. £125. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway, N.

ORGAN for SALE.—4 ft. 6 in. wide, 8 ft. 4 in. high. Mahogany case, pedals, two octaves, principal, diapason stopped, flute, dulciana, fifteenth. In perfect order. Cash only—what offers? G. E. C., 88, High Street, Camden Town.

CC ORGAN, nearly new. 5½ notes, 2½ of pedals; bourdon, 16 feet, 7 stops. Gothic case, 12 feet high, 7-6 wide, 4-3 deep, with or without general swell. Price £60. C. Lloyd and Co., Organ Builders, Nottingham.

ORGAN (Pipe), CC to F, Mahogany Case, Gilt Front Pipes. Splendid Tone. Four Stops. Room wanted. £12, or part exchange larger Organ. J. A., 395, Nechells Park Road, Birmingham.

ORGAN for SALE. Price £400, or offer. A modern instrument, of two Manuals (CC to G), Pedals (CCC to F), 30 Stops (12 on Great, 11 on Swell, 3 on Pedal, 4 Couplers), by HEDGELAND. Suitable for Chamber or Church purposes. Very superior Tone. Full printed particulars to be obtained, and Instrument to be seen, on application to Frank Bradley, 7, Grove Lane, Stamford Hill, London, N.

WANTED, Second-hand C ORGAN (two manuals and pedals), from 15 to 25 stops. State price and dimensions to the Rev. A. H. Stevens, Mus. Bac., The College, Dover.

SEVERAL PIPE ORGANS, suitable for Church, Chapel, or School, to be SOLD cheap, to make room for factory extension. 3 stops and pedals, £25; Scudamore's £35; 6 stop, £25; 6 stops and swell, £45; 9 stops, with metal front and Bourdon pedals, £85; 9 stops, with swell, Bourdon pedals, and Handsome Illuminated Speaking Front, 16 feet high, £120. Jones and Co., 21 and 22, Bridge Street, Bristol.

ORGAN.—WANTED, a Chamber or other ORGAN, suitable for an Iron Church seating 400. Two manuals and pedals. Modern construction and good builder indispensable. Full particulars, measurement, and price to Rev. H. Edmonds, Bromley, Kent.

ORGAN PEDALS, Concave and Radiated, Full Compass, and Action for Attaching to Pianoforte. Price, including Stool, £5. S. F., The Priory, Larkhall Rise, S.W.

AINSWORTH'S PERFECTION-ACTION ORGAN PEDALS and ATTACHMENT, for PIANO, for SALE, cheap. Nearly new. Price £4 10s. Apply, S. Stranks, Brackley, Northamptonshire.

AMERICAN ORGAN for SALE, in perfect condition, by CLOUGH and WARREN, with patent qualifying tubes, 27 stops, 6½ rows of vibrators of 5 octaves each. Walnut case, solid and handsome. Effective swell and Vox-Humana. Price £60. List price, 105 guineas. Address, Organ, care of Mr. Walter Gauthorpe, 16, Long Acre, London, W.C.

WANTED, a Second-hand AMERICAN ORGAN, with 24 Octaves of Pedals. Please send price and particulars, at once, to A. C. F., 27, Southampton Row, W.C.

PEDAL HARMONIUM for SALE.—13 stops, 200 notes, and 2 fortes; pedals, 2 stops, 58 notes. Independent bellows. Suitable for small Church or Chapel. Grand instrument. Price £40 or offer. H. Cokayne, 581, Holloway Road, N.

C. W. BLAND (from Messrs. Hill and Sons, London), practical ORGAN BUILDER, Chatham, Kent. New organs, two manuals and pedals, from £60; bourdons, £10 per octave extra. Tunings for all parts of the country yearly or casually.

CENTRAL ORGAN WORKS, Manchester, S.W.—W. E. RICHARDSON, Builder to her Majesty.—ORGANS for Church, Practice, or School, from £35. Several New and Second-hand Organs on Sale.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists post free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

VIOLIN AND BOW

MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,

GEORGE WITHERS & CO.

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF

MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, PARIS, 1879.

Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,

ARTISTIC HOUSE,

PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHONNE, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

Catalogues and testimonials post-free on application.

CAPPA VIOLIN for SALE.—Very fine. Address, Rector, Penshaw, Fence Houses, County Durham.

W. FORSTER VIOLONCELLO, 1878. In good condition. Red varnish; excellent tone. Price, with case, £33. Cello, 115, George Street, Limerick.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Finest Italian, three firsts, post-free as sample, for thirteen stamps.—Alphonse Cary, Newbury.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent post free for 13 stamps. PRENZEL'S PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS have been awarded a GOLD MEDAL at the INVENTIONS EXHIBITION, 1885, and the Sole GOLD MEDAL, SOCIETY OF ARTS, 1885, for VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, and BOW MAKING.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS (the Experts) to the Historic Music Loan Collection, Inventions Exhibition, 1885, give opinions as to the make and value of Violins for a moderate fee. Old Violins, Violas, and Violoncellos bought or sold on commission. Particulars on application. 72, Wardour Street, London. Established 1745.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. Moore's, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES

ARE SIMPLY INVALUABLE TO SPEAKERS AND SINGERS.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS writes:—

"I think very highly of your Lozenges after a thorough test."

MISS JESSIE JONES, R.A.M., writes:—

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the excellent effect produced by your Lozenges upon the throat and voice."

MRS. MUNDELLA writes:—

"Please send another 2s. 6d. tin of your Lozenges, which I have already found so useful."

MR. FARLEY SINKINS, Exeter Cathedral, writes:—

"They restore the voice when suffering from a cold far better than any Lozenges I know, and I have tried a large assortment."

MR. HENRY CROSS, R.A.M., writes:—

"In your Lozenges I find a valuable remedy and friend. I can safely say that they are the best aid for the voice I have ever tried."

MR. SWIFT, Peterborough Cathedral, writes:—

"I think them excellent for the voice and throat. . . . They will command a great sale."

F. NEWCOME, Esq., M.D., writes:—

"It affords me much pleasure to bear medical testimony to the efficacy of your Lozenges in cases of relaxed throat, chronic bronchitis, &c. . . . Invaluable to speakers and singers. . . . They contain no narcotic."

For coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, huskiness, tickling sensation, relaxed sore and dry throat, bronchial irritation, croup, &c., they have no equal.
Sold only in tins 1s. 7½d. and 2s. 6d. each. Free by post for 14 or 33 stamps. Wholesale, W. Sutton and Co., Bow Churchyard, London, and all Patent Medicine Houses.

PREPARED ONLY BY

J. A. BASKER, F.C.S.,

PHARMACEUTICAL CHEMIST & ANALYST, BRIDGWATER, ENGLAND.

"Invaluable aids to the voice."—Rev. Idrisyn Jones.

VOICE, VOICE.—Instant clearness, full volume of tone and power by using JAMES'S "SINGER'S FRIEND" LOZENGES. Valuable hints on voice with each box. Stamps, 7d. and 1s. 2d., of W. James, Chemist, Highgate Road, London, N.W., and through Chemists everywhere.

JAMES'S "SINGER'S FRIEND" LOZENGES.—

Testimonials from all parts of the kingdom, certifying these Lozenges to surpass all others for the voice and throat.

CURE OF DEAFNESS.

NOISES IN THE EARS.—Rev. E. J. SILVERTON

invites members of the musical profession who may be suffering Deafness or other Aural Troubles to send for his work on the subject, 300th Thousand, post-free for 6d., with letter of advice if case be stated. Free consultations daily, from 11 to 4; Saturday, 11 to 1. Address, Rev. E. J. Silvertown, Imperial Buildings, Ludgate Circus, E.C.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.—

IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and CO. (established 100 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every Instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guineas, 17 guineas, 20 guineas, &c.; Organs, 5 guineas, 11 guineas, 15 guineas, 24 guineas, &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

NINE SACRED DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO,

COMPOSED BY

HENRY SMART.

- | | |
|---------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| No. 1. There was joy in Heaven. | No. 6. Where the weary are at rest. |
| " 2. The Lord is my shepherd. | " 7. Vox Matutina. |
| " 3. When brighter suns. | " 8. By Babylon's waters. |
| " 4. Faint not, fear not. | " 9. Evening. |
| " 5. The Sabbath Bell. | |

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S PRIMERS OF MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY

BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY

HECTOR BERLIOZ
FREDERIC CHOPIN
ROSSINI
CHERUBINI MEYERBEER

ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR PIANOFORTE.

	Arranged by	s. d.
GOUNOD'S REDEMPTION	... BERTHOLD TOURS	5 0
" MORS ET VITA	... "	5 0
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	... "	5 0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	... "	3 0
MOZART'S FIRST MASS	... VINCENT NOVELLO	2 6
" SECOND MASS	... "	3 0
" SEVENTH MASS	... "	3 0
" TWELFTH MASS	... "	3 0
" REQUIEM MASS	... J. PITTMAN	3 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

A FEW COPIES REMAINING OF THE

SELECTION OF MUSIC

Performed by the Choral Societies who took part in the competition at the National Music Meetings at the Crystal Palace

THEY WILL BE SUPPLIED AT

SIXPENCE EACH.

CLASS I., PRICE SIXPENCE (92 PAGES).—1874.

See from his post Euphrates flies ("Belshazzar")	... Handel.
Be not afraid (Motetti)	... Bach.
Hark the deep tremendous voice	... Haydn.
The people shall hear and be afraid	... Handel.
Sir Patrick Spens	... Pearsall.
Why, my soul, art thou so vexed (Psalm xlii.)	... Mendelssohn.

CLASS II., PRICE SIXPENCE (50 PAGES).—1873.

Cherubim and Seraphim ("Jephtha")	... Handel.
O God, who in Thy heavenly hand ("Joseph")	... Handel.
Jehovah, Lord God of Hosts (Motetti)	... Spohr.
Hosanna to the Son of David (Anthem)	... Gibbons.
Fire, fire my heart (Ballet)	... Morley.
Sweet honey-sucking bees (Madrigal)	... Wilbye.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEMS & HYMNS.

All Thy works praise Thee...	...	E. H. Thorne	3d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord...	...	H. Gadsby	14d.
Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice	...	Sir J. Goss	6d.
Give unto the Lord the glory	...	C. H. Lloyd	14d.
God said, Behold, I have given you every herb...	...	J. F. Bridge	4d.
Great is the Lord	...	G. A. Macfarren	6d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	...	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	...	E. J. Hopkins	6d.
I will magnify Thee, O God	...	J. Barnby	4d.
Make melody within your hearts	...	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O give thanks	...	Rev. F. A. I. Hervey	3d.
O how plentiful is Thy goodness	...	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	...	T. M. Pattison	3d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	...	J. Barnby	14d.
O praise the Lord	...	Sir G. A. Macfarren	14d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	...	Sir Herbert Oakley	4d.
Praise the Lord, whose creation	...	Dr. W. Hayes	4d.
Praise ye the Lord for His goodness	...	H. Labay	14d.
Praised be the Lord	...	G. Garrett	14d.
Sing praises to God	...	C. Steggall	1/-
The earth is the Lord's	...	H. W. Wareing	14d.
The earth is the Lord's	...	A. Lowe	3d.
The fostering earth, the genial showers	...	T. T. Trimmell	4d.
The harvest-tide thanksgiving	...	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
The Lord hath done great things	...	J. Barnby	14d.
The Lord is loving unto every man	...	H. Smart	4d.
This is the day	...	G. Garrett	3d.
Thou visitest the earth and blessest it	...	Sir Herbert Oakley	4d.
Thou visitest the earth	...	W. H. Callcott	2d.
While the earth remaineth	...	Dr. Greene	14d.
While the earth remaineth	...	J. Baptiste Calkin	4d.
Ye shall dwell in the land	...	C. Swinerton Heap	4d.
	...	B. Tours	14d.
	...	J. Stainer	14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR

HARVEST

SELECTED FROM "THE HYMNARY."

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Sing to the Lord a joyful song	...	J. Barnby	...
O Lord, the heaven Thy power displays	...	Sir F. Ouseley	...
Father, blessing every seed-time	...	Dr. Dykes	...
Lord, in Thy Name Thy servants plead...	...	W. Metcalf	...
The wintry time hath ended	...	Dr. Gauntlett	...
Come, ye thankful people, come	...	Sir George Elvey	...
God, the Father, whose creation	...	H. Smart	...
Lord of the harvest, Thee we hail	...	Anonymous	...
Lo, summer comes again	...	Rev. E. B. Whyley	...
Praise, O praise our Heavenly King	...	German	...
Summer ended, harvest o'erJ. Adcock	...
O Lord of heaven, and earth, and sea	...	Dr. Wesley	...

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST.

THE JUBILEE CANTATA

(HARVEST CANTATA)

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY

C. M. VON WEBER

Op. 58.

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised, by EBENEZER PROUT. The word translated from the German version of Wendt by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Octavo, 18s.; Full Score, 21s.; Orchestral Parts, 15s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST FESTIVAL ANTHEMS, &c.—
"Popular, easy, melodious, and effective." Composed by CALEB SIMPER.

PRaise THE LORD, O MY SOUL. New	3d.
FEAR NOT, O LAND. 4th Thousand	3d.
AND GOD SAID, LET THE EARTH. 7th Edition	3d.
THEY THAT SOW IN TEARS. 4th Edition (with Duet)	3d.
O LORD, HOW MANIFOLD. 4th Thousand. For Parish Choirs	4d.
MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE. 5th Thousand	3d.
MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in F. 6th Edition	4d.
TE DEUM in F. 4th Edition	3d.
Sung at numerous Choral Festivals.
COMMUNION SERVICE in F. New	6d.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

WE PLOUGH THE FIELDS. Harvest Tune, 2d. Te Deum, "set to a quadruple chant," 2d. Although simple, a great favourite where introduced. Address, CALEB SIMPER, Organist, Worcester.

Just published.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

GREAT IS THE LORD

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

Full, easy, and effective. Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

29th Thousand. "Can be heartily recommended."—Musical Times.

O GIVE THANKS

Full Easy Anthem for Harvest. By E. A. SYDENHAM. Price 3d.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price 14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

Easy, melodious, and effective.

THE EYES OF ALL WAIT UPON THEE

Price 3d.

Composed by EDWYN A. CLARE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price Fourpence.

NEW ANTHEM FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS.

O THAT MEN WOULD PRAISE THE LORD

BY

DR. JOSEPH C. BRIDGE, M.A.,

Organist of Chester Cathedral.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST

THANKSGIVING MARCH

FOR THE ORGAN

BY

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN

One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST CAROL.

SOWING AND REAPING. Words by ANNA SHIPTON; music by J. MAUDE CRAMENT, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Price Twopence.

Words only, 1s. 4d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.—I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING, by WM. JOHNSON. Easy and effective. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A NEW TUNE for the Harvest Hymn, WE PLOUGH THE FIELDS, by ARTHUR COTTMAN. Third edition. Price 2d. The usual allowance to choirs.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS for TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	14d.
Grant, O Lord...	Mozart	14d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Croft	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	14d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	14d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	14d.
I know that the Lord is great	Dr. Blow	6d.
In humble faith	Sir F. Ouseley	14d.
In Jewry is God known	G. Garrett	14d.
In sweet consent	J. Clarke-Whitfield	14d.
I saw the Lord	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I will magnify	J. Stainer	6d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	14d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
O Father, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	14d.
O Father blest...	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	14d.
O taste and see	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	14d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God...	Sir H. Oakley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT: THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

SESSION 1886-87.

MICHAELMAS TERM COMMENCES SEPTEMBER 28.

Students (Professional and Amateur) are received for a complete course of musical training, or for a single study. The following is a list of the subjects taught, with names of Professors:—

HARMONY.—Prof. Gordon Saunders, Mus.D., Humphrey J. Stark, Mus.B., C. W. Pearce, Mus.D., Prof. Jas. Higgs, Mus.B. COUNTERPOINT.—H. J. Stark, Mus.B., Prof. Jas. Higgs, Mus.B., C. W. Pearce, Mus.D. FORM AND ORCHESTRATION.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. MUSICAL ACOUSTICS (University Lectures).—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P. PIANOFORTE.—Prof. Bradbury Turner, Mus.B., Miss Alma Sanders, L.Mus., F. G. Cole, L.Mus., G. E. Bambridge, L.Mus., ORGAN.—W. Pinney, Mus.B., C. E. Willing, F. G. M. Ogbodrne. FIGURED BASS PLAYING.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. SOLO SINGING.—A. Visetti, J. C. Benthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel, C. E. Willing, Walter Bolton. THE ART OF PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT.—C. E. Willing, VIOLIN.—J. T. Carodius, L. Szczepanowski. VIOLONCELLO.—E. Woolhouse. DOUBLE BASS.—John Reynolds. FLUTE.—John Radcliff, W. L. Barrett. OBOE.—A. J. B. Dubrucq, W. M. Malsch. CLARINET.—H. Lazarus. HARP.—Ernest R. Lockwood. HORN.—T. E. Mann. ORCHESTRAL CLASS.—George Mount. MUSICAL HISTORY.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. SIGHT-SINGING.—W. G. W. Goodworth, L.Mus. CHORAL CLASS.—F. G. Cole, L.Mus. VOCAL AND AURAL PHYSIOLOGY (Lectures).—C. E. Armand Semple, B.A., M.B. VOICE PRODUCTION CLASS (Lectures).—A. Visetti. ITALIAN.—Prof. A. Farinelli. FRENCH.—D. Hovelacque, B. ès L. GERMAN.—F. Ludwig.

* Classes have also been established in General Subjects for the benefit of Students of the College.

The fee for Three Studies (e.g., Pianoforte, Singing, and Harmony) is Five Guineas per term.

New Students are received at the commencement of each term, and there are three terms in the year.

Both Male and Female Students are received, and there is no limit as to age. There are Evening as well as Day Classes.

Students of the College are allowed to enter for any of the College Examinations at reduced fees.

Prospectuses, Forms of Application, and all particulars can be obtained, post-free, by addressing the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By Order of the Academic Board.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

ALBUMS OF GERMAN SONG

SELECTED, AND THE WORDS TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH,

BY

FRANCIS HUEFFER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

TWENTY-SEVEN SONGS

BY

JOHANNES BRAHMS.

A Troth.
Love and Spring (1).
Love and Spring (2).
Far over the field.
Amongst strangers.
West-wind blowing.
Spring.
My loved one has left me.
The reason why.
A Symbol.
Nightingales.
Faithful love.
Alone she stood by the window.
A Memory.

The swallow's flying West.
Alone.
Return.
The wounded youth.
Could I but once forget.
So secretly.
Serenade.
Longing.
The Kiss.
At Parting.
Parted.
The Smith.
To an Æolian Harp.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.
VOLUMES I., II., III., IV., V., CLOTH, FOUR SHILLINGS EACH.

VOLUME I.

- No. 1. Compositions by Bach.
" 2. Compositions by Bach.
" 3. Compositions by Bach.

VOLUME II.

- " 4. Compositions by Handel.
" 5. Compositions by Handel.
" 6. Compositions by Handel.

VOLUME III.

- No. 7. Marches.
" 8. Marches.
" 9. Marches.

VOLUME IV.

- " 10. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.
" 11. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.
" 12. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.

VOLUME V.

- No. 13. Compositions by Wollenhaupt.
" 14. Compositions by Wollenhaupt.
" 15. Compositions by Wollenhaupt.

" 16. Scotch Airs (Duets).

List of Contents may be had gratis and post-free.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The "Otto" Gas Engine

IS ADMIRABLY SUITABLE

FOR

DRIVING ORGANS.

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.
Westminster Abbey.
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).
St. Mary's " "
Lichfield " "
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).
Salisbury Cathedral.
St. Peter's (Eaton Sq., London).
St. Mark's (Bradford).
Harrogate Baptist Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).

St. Thomas's (Oldham).
St. Andrew's (Southport).
Holy Trinity (Ayr).
Congregational Church (Blackburn).
St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
Parish Church (Folkestone).
Eton College, and others.
Coombe Down Church.
Thirsk Church.

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

A SERIES OF

COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN

BY

LEFÉBURE-WÉLY.

	s. d.
1. Choristers' March	3 0
2. Marche aux Flambeaux	2 0
3. Roman March	2 0
4. Grand Processional March	3 0
5. Funeral March in C minor	3 0
6. O Salutaris Hostia (Transcription)	2 0
7. Cantabile in A	2 0
8. Chœur de Voix Humaines (Andante in F)	2 0
9. Andante in B flat	2 0
10. Elevation in B flat	2 0
11. Elevation in E	2 0
12. Celebrated Capriccio in F (Transcription)	3 0

EDITED AND ARRANGED BY

ALFRED WHITTINGHAM.

LONDON: EDWIN ASHDOWN, HANOVER SQUARE.

THE PSALMS

(BIBLE VERSION)

POINTED FOR CHANTING

BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

Hon. Chaplain to the Queen.

CLOTH, ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED, NEW EDITION.

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER

TOGETHER WITH THE

CANTICLES AND PROPER PSALMS

SET TO APPROPRIATE CHANTS.

Demy 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW EDITION, WITH MANY ADDITIONS,

WORDS OF ANTHEMS

EDITED BY

THE REV. W. RAYSON, M.A.,
JOHN STAINER, M.A., D.Mus.,

AND

THE REV. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Cloth, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

JULY 1, 1886.

ANTON RUBINSTEIN, PIANIST.

No London musical season lacks plenty of pianists. They come with the nightingales, and almost in equal numbers, while for one who actually arrives a dozen are prepared to set out, should a chance offer of charming British ears and witching British guineas from one pocket to another. It would be interesting to know what our resident pianists think of the annual invasion. As regards their notion of its necessity we may assume something with tolerable confidence, and as men are generally impatient of a superfluity when they suffer by it, a further deduction is possible. But protection to native industry, or, at all events, resident industry, is even more out of the question here than in relation to the making of hardware. The process of competition in an open market must go on, and if Mr. Rubinstein, coming to us for a few weeks, departs with thousands of pounds, diverted his wares from the ordinary native channel, it can only happen because he either has a better thing to sell, or, which amounts to the same in the end, because the public think he has. We must admit that Mr. Rubinstein is an aggravated example of foreign rivalry. Other artists from realms beyond sea come hither and compete on something like fair terms with one another, and with our own people. They give a modest recital or two, or, as is often the case, rest content with being one feature among many at ordinary concerts. They go about here and there picking up good fortune, where they can find it, and taking the rough with the smooth. But the Moldavian pianist comes like a conqueror to gather tribute. He sits on certain days at the receipt of custom, and the subject multitude flock to his presence with their dues. Does he court the guineas? Not at all. He simply gives an opportunity for payment. He is scarcely civil in the act of reception. There is that about him which says, "Don't suppose you are doing me a favour. I dislike the whole business. It is really a bore. Let us get through as quickly as possible, and part." A kind of bearing, this, not wanting in fascination, and invariably profitable, when it has a sufficient basis of talent. We have all observed how dearly the public love a man who is masterful, and doesn't care for them. But they have no tolerance for one who cracks the whip without having the right which superiority gives. The asses in the fable kicked one of their number when he donned a lion's skin. With the real lion the asses were meek enough.

In the manner foregoing it is possible to predicate Mr. Rubinstein's possession of a special power; which, however, we are not driven, for lack of other reasons, to infer only from the attitude of the public. What is that special power? Here we open up an interesting question worth considering, in view of the phenomenon of the man.

Before discussing what qualities Mr. Rubinstein has, let us indicate some which he has not. To do this well, we must enter upon comparisons with other pianists. Comparisons, however, need not be made "odious." The proverb anent them is too sweeping, as it is in the nature of every proverb to be, for sometimes they are legitimate enough in themselves, and indispensable to important conclusions. To begin with, Mr. Rubinstein has not the quality, which Madame Schumann possesses, of so presenting a classic work as that, while instinct with all requisite human feeling, it seems disentangled from the personality of the medium. This quality is pre-eminent in the great artist just named, and forms the highest measure of her greatness. We thus contend, because it must be clear that an abstract creation of pure mind and feeling is fully conveyed to us only by the most spiritualised exercise of the same faculties. Madame Schumann's performance of a sonata by Beethoven is scarcely a personal effort. In listening to it without deliberately focussing the pianist in our mind, we are hardly conscious of her at all; indeed, but for the evidence of sight, she might not be in existence. What we do take cognizance of is the work of art in its separate state—that is, we have it brought before us without the intervention of a personality made conscious to us by the action of grosser qualities than those which are of pure intellect and emotion. In this sensible embodiment of an art-work through the operation of an artist's spirit we recognise the highest possible achievement open to interpretative genius. There is nothing in it of the earth, earthy. It rises above all efforts which are tainted by individualism, and merges the performer in the creation of the composer. We have never been able to associate Mr. Rubinstein's playing with this freedom from personality. The individual in it is omnipresent and overpowering. It makes us supremely conscious of Rubinstein, and compels us to think more of him than of the art-work he professes to serve. In reality, he does not serve, he masters—not by spirit only, which would be more legitimate, but by qualities pertaining to the lower attributes of our complex humanity. How this fact manifests itself, and in what measure, will appear more fully by and by.

It follows as of course from the foregoing that Mr. Rubinstein lacks the adaptiveness essential to the interpreter of an art which has many phases. Very few persons, we apprehend, quite fully estimate the well-balanced mind and closely-governed temperament required by an artist who passes at a step "from grave to gay, from lively to severe"—who is expected at one moment to be rigidly formal, at another to be passionate, now to penetrate the farthest regions of idealism, and then to concern himself with subjects the most prosaic. Not many are fully equal to this demand. The most part break down somewhere, either for want of faculties sufficiently Protean, or because they are not adequately under control. Mr. Rubinstein does not lack the faculties. All who have carefully observed him must have recognised with how much ease, when in the mood, he can pass from theme to theme. What he wants is the power of governing himself, so as to be independent of mood. As it is, mood frequently masters him, and he falls into something very like a burlesque of his subject. No pianist of his rank has more often misrepresented compositions. Sometimes we almost fail to recognise their spirit and meaning, while even that part of them of which sense takes cognizance appears twisted out of shape. To ascribe this to deliberate intent would be to mistake the character of the man and do him an injustice, because the very works which, at one time, he distorts, are, at another, revealed in their purity of meaning and of form. We have thus a case of the predominance of temperament over artistic consciousness and purpose. But let us not run away with the notion that this is an unmixed evil. It sometimes happens that the performer's passing humour and the nature of the subject are in accord. Then come those electrifying results upon which the artist's fame is built. The vein may be that of Ercles or of the sucking dove, but the output is perfect. We recognise the unique and say, "There is only one Rubinstein."

To the same cause of temperament may chiefly be ascribed Mr. Rubinstein's defects of technique. The Moldavian pianist is not a finished executant in the sense that Mr. Pachmann may, within his more restricted sphere, be so described. His passages are not polished to the last degree, and turned out of hand with unvarying uniformity of detail. Knowing the man, we cannot conceive of a result like this. One might as well expect the north-east wind to blow always with the same degree of pressure on the gauge; or a person of quick sensitiveness to speak ever with an academic choice of phrases. It even appears, sometimes, as though Mr. Rubinstein were defiantly careless of accuracy in detail. To see him throw himself upon the keyboard and dash his hands about with apparently reckless and well-nigh savage energy is, for want of a more ready explanation, to imagine that he acts thus for the sake of an effect gained at the expense of art. But this, we believe, does the great pianist an injustice. We credit him with being above simulation. He plays as he is moved to play at the moment by impulse, not by consideration of results, and no man is more ready to agree with his critics than Mr. Rubinstein when accused of wrong notes and blurred passages. He very well knows that he is guilty of them, but they are the consequences of what with him is inevitable. On our part, we must take the man as we find him. To exact the precision of Mr. Pachmann or Mr. Hallé would be to sacrifice the qualities which spring from a temperament less governed, but capable of greater things, than theirs. Rubinstein would be Rubinstein no longer.

We have endeavoured to show that there are respects in which our hero suffers by comparison with certain of his fellows. What, then, accounts for his general pre-eminence? This brings us to the affirmative part of the subject.

As regards Mr. Rubinstein's superiority in public esteem, it is necessary to make a partial distinction between the qualities that appeal to connoisseurs and those producing an effect upon the popular mind. There are mountebank performers whom crowds run after for the sake of the posturing so easily understood, but Mr. Rubinstein is a great artist, and very few pianists of his class could fill St. James's Hall eight times running with an eager throng. Hence there must be something in the man which all can comprehend and enjoy. What is it?

Much may be attributed to the fact that Mr. Rubinstein has a powerful personality. It is hard to define in what this attribute consists. One might almost as well attempt an exposition of the character of genius as endeavour to analyse the influences by which some men exercise a species of fascination upon those who approach them. The means we cannot fathom, but the end is plain enough. It is as though some subtle element, inappreciable by our powers of observation, radiated from the individual and affected all within its scope. Many examples will occur to the reader; most probably that of Franz Liszt, whose extraordinary glamour has lately been in evidence amongst us. We may venture to say that not a tithe of the crowd who schemed and struggled with loss of temper and manners to get near the Weimar musician were moved to do so by any knowledge they had of his artistic capacity. Liszt, as a performer, belongs to the past, while his more serious efforts as a composer are still subjects of contention in the debatable land between acceptance and rejection. Yet he was run after by miscellaneous throngs as though he were the hero of some great national achievement, while it could not escape observation as a curious feature that people were never weary of looking at him. He fascinated them by some sort of psychical influence. So it always has been throughout his long career, and this is the explanation of acts of almost adoration which, otherwise, cannot be explained at all. Mr. Rubinstein, in his way, is also a personality, differing in important respects from Liszt, and not, perhaps, exerting an equal influence, but powerful all the same. Evidence of the fact may be discovered in the absolute preponderance of the individual, as far as public recognition goes. It is not in more than the slightest degree a question of what Mr. Rubinstein will play; scarcely is it a question of how he will play; the whole interest centres in the man himself. People go to look on him, as intensified by the reflection which appears in the music performed. For, be it observed, that in every such case of a great artistic personality, the execution of the music discharges the function of music in connection with an operatic character or situation—it gives added colour, intensity, and strength. This arises from the fact that an artist so endowed almost of necessity transforms the piece he plays by infusing into it a personal spirit. He draws his own portrait, so to speak, on the canvas supplied by another. In some sense, therefore, he gives us his character materialised and made appreciable by sense. We feel this, though there may be no conscious recognition thereof; and we feel it to an uncommon degree in the case of Mr. Rubinstein, because of the very striking features that go to make up his individuality. He has been spoken of above as a man lacking the steady self-government which prevents the domination of moods, and enables an artist to show himself before the public in the self-denying spirit which best becomes the function of an interpreter. This may be bad for Mr. Rubinstein's art, but it is undoubtedly well for his general popularity. After all, nothing interests man more than humanity: "That which is nearest us touches us most." Hence when Mr. Rubinstein, in an access of passion, tears to pieces a poor, innocent composition; or when, in a fit of carelessness, he scrambles through a piece in a style which would cause a student to be "sent back"; or when, in a congenial temper, he plays so as to "bring all heaven before our eyes," his hearers are profoundly interested as by the revelation of the phases of a great character. Were Mr. Rubinstein to efface himself in his work he would be a greater interpretative artist, because more uniformly truthful, but he would have much fewer admirers.

We have already pointed out that, while the predominance of personal temperament in Mr. Rubinstein's artistic work acts unfavourably in very many cases, there are times when the result is unique excellence. Such times occur, as before stated, if the performer's mood happens to accord with the spirit of the music in hand, but one can never be sure of them. Going to a Rubinstein recital is, as regards any particular piece, much like investing money in a lottery. The upshot may be a prize, or it may be a blank. In other words, the artist may give a perfect interpretation, or one which more or less belongs to travesty. In the very nature of the case, this follows from the overwhelming individuality which we all recognise in Mr. Rubinstein. In the very nature of the case, also, a certain popular attraction arises—one which those cannot command whose playing is more mechanical or more abstract and less instinct with human passion. Even the uncertainty indicated above has its charm. It calls forth speculation and curiosity, strings up the mind to a pitch of excitement and relaxes it by gratification, after the manner which enters into so many of our pleasures. There is this to be said, moreover, that Mr. Rubinstein at his best is worth a disappointment or two. He resembles the geysers of Iceland. You may visit the geysers again and again without seeing them spout. Then comes a moment when the fitful water-works are turned on, and all bootless trouble is forgotten in the grandeur and curious interest of the spectacle. The result of such a happy moment in Mr. Rubinstein's case is necessarily proportionate in value to the full tide of feeling poured into the music. It appears as though the composition acquires, under his fingers, new life and fuller meaning—as though the gentle becomes more gentle, the furious more furious, and profound emotionalism more profound.

With regard to our artist's purely executive qualities, while it must be contended that they do not form his main attraction, it is certain that they exercise the influence due to consummate mechanical skill which, in the absence of a disturbing emotionalism, would always produce perfect results. Mr. Rubinstein is so sure of his technical powers that he never thinks about them, and sometimes it is clear that he acts in this regard with more confidence than prudence. But at his best he exerts admiration not unmixed with wonder. His command over every gradation of tone, the ease with which he brings under his fingers the most complex structure, giving due prominence to every detail; the perfection of his cantilena, wherein the pianoforte rivals a finished vocalist and transcends most singers in expression; the dainty elegance of style which, displayed in one piece, gives way, in the next, to the thunderings of a Boanerges, or the roar of a winter storm—these are qualities that, united in one person, elevate him to the rank of a phenomenon. We contend, however, that these alone go only part of the way towards making a Rubinstein. The power—and, at the same time, the weakness—of this great pianist consists not in his acquirements, but as those acquirements are affected by his inner self. He is as much a psychological as an artistic study. At any rate, no one can approach to an understanding of the artist without considerable study of the man.

By way of contribution to the study of the man we offer this article—one by no means exhaustive, partly speculative, and assuredly imperfect even as far as it goes. Our readers may be tempted to follow up the line of thought here indicated, and perhaps, to apply the same method in the case of other great performers. We are convinced that it is the right way to get at the secret of an artist who is something higher and better than a mere executive machine.

MODERN SONG WRITERS

IV.—JOHANNES BRAHMS.

By FR. NIECKS.

THE qualities of Brahms's songs are such as would justify him in laying claim as a song writer to the supremacy among his contemporaries which as a composer of symphonies is universally accorded to him. But before engaging in the examination of these qualities, let us take a glance at the master's life and his works generally.

Johannes Brahms was born on May 7, 1833, at Hamburg, where his father was a double-bass player in the orchestra. The latter fact insured of course his early introduction to the musical art, into which he grew and with which he became imbued as it were unawares. He had for his first pianoforte teacher a musician of the name of O. Cossel. In 1845 he came under the guidance of Edward Marxsen, who systematically taught him the theoretical branches of the art, to which, however, he had already previously paid some attention. Two years later, at the age of fourteen, he made his first public appearance, playing with great success, among other things, variations on a folk-song of his own composition. It may not be amiss to say here a few words about the master whom Brahms still gratefully cherishes.

Edward Marxsen (born 1806), who, after studying in Hamburg under Clasing, enjoyed, during a stay of sixteen months in Vienna (1830-31), the tuition of Bocklet in pianoforte playing, and of Seyfried in counterpoint, settled subsequently at Hamburg, and devoted himself to teaching and composition, by both of which he acquired the esteem of the best. The conferring upon him of the title Königlicher Musikdirektor (Royal Music-director), in 1875, shows that his merits have not been overlooked in high places. Among his pupils he numbers, besides Brahms, another, though less eminent, notability—namely, Ludwig Deppe. As a composer Marxsen has tried his powers in symphonies, overtures, pianoforte pieces, songs, &c. In 1839 Schumann reviewed favourably two of his pianoforte works, three Pièces Fugitives (Op. 31), and three Impromptus for the left hand.

But to return to the subject of this essay, Brahms stayed with his parents in Hamburg till 1853, when he undertook a concert-tour with the Hungarian violinist Reményi. The connection, however, was not of long duration. Fétis remarks that Brahms, fortunately for himself, soon parted from "this kind of vagabond, whose talent is very extraordinary, but whose habits cannot please a well-born artist." No doubt the two were strangely matched, although, of course, the disparity was then not so great as it would be now. For though the Hungarian may have preserved all his original wildness, the German has certainly become artistically more temperate than he was in those early days. According to another account, it was the success he obtained at Hanover, Göttingen, Weimar, and other towns that determined Brahms to dissolve his partnership with Reményi. Liszt and Joachim were among those whose admiration he excited; the latter was particularly struck by the impromptu transposition of the piano part (a semitone higher, on account of the low pitch of the instrument) of a sonata for violin and piano by Beethoven. According to Dr. Schubrig, the scene of action was Göttingen and the sonata in question the one in A major (Op. 47), the Kreutzer sonata; according to La Mara the scene of action was Celle and the sonata in question the one in C minor (Op. 30, No. 2). But whether in the one or the other, or in both places, the feat was no doubt performed. And whatever was the cause of the separation, Brahms had parted company with Reményi in October, 1853, when he went on a pilgrimage to Düsseldorf to visit Schumann.* How the latter was impressed by his visitor we learn from a letter of his, dated October 28, 1853, and addressed to a gentleman of the name of Strackerjan.† "Latterly I have been very industrious. Thus have come into existence an Overture to 'Faust,' the copestone of a larger series of scenes from 'Faust'; a Concert-Allegro for piano and orchestra; three Sonatas for the young; a Cycle of Dances, à quatre mains, Kinder-

* A manuscript in the possession of Dr. Joseph Joachim, mentioned by Professor Spitta in the article on Schumann in Sir George Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," throws some light on what Düsseldorf was in those days, and the interest Schumann took in and the influence he must have exercised on young composers. The title-page of the manuscript bears the words: "In anticipation of the arrival of our beloved and honoured friend Joseph Joachim, this sonata was written by Robert Schumann [the finale], Albert Dietrich [the first movement], and Johannes Brahms [who signs himself Johannes Kriessler (Kriessler being a musical character in one of Hoffmann's tales)—the intermezzo]."

† An officer in the Oldenburg Army.

ball; a Concerto for violin and orchestra, and a Fantasia ditto, which Joachim played yesterday in an enchanting manner at the concert. There is now also a young man here, from Hamburg, Johannes Brahms by name, of such a powerful genius [genialer Kraft] that he seems to me to outshine by far all younger artists, and of whose wonderful works (especially songs) something will certainly soon also reach you." Such was indeed the effect produced upon Schumann by Brahms's compositions and playing that he felt impelled to proclaim the young musician to the world at large as a newly-risen, epoch-making genius. Schumann had given up the editorship of the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik in 1843, and since then he had ceased to contribute to it, although the appearance of more than one man of talent had tempted him to take up his critical pen again. Now, however, his absorbing activity in composing, could not prevent him from giving expression to his thoughts and emotions—he must tell the joyful news. The main portion of the enthusiastic manifesto entitled "Neue Bahnen" (New Paths), which appeared in the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik in October, 1853, that is, immediately on his making Brahms's acquaintance, runs thus:—

"In following with the greatest interest the paths of these elect [Joseph Joachim, Ernst Naumann, Ludwig Norman, Woldemar Bargiel, Theodor Kirchner, Julius Schäffer, Albrecht Dietrich, and C. F. Wilsing] I thought that, after such forerunners, there would and must at last, all on a sudden, appear one whose mission it would be to utter the highest expression of his time in an ideal manner, one who would attain mastery not by degrees, but, like Minerva, would at once spring completely armed from the head of Cronion. And he is come, a youth at whose cradle the Graces and heroes kept watch. He bears the name of Johannes Brahms, came from Hamburg, where he worked in retirement, but was trained by an excellent and enthusiastic teacher [Marxsen] in the most difficult doctrines of the art, and was introduced to me by an honoured and well-known master. Also in his outward appearance he bore all the marks which announce to us: This is one with a mission. Sitting at the piano he began to unveil wonderful regions. We were drawn into more and more magic circles. To this was added his playing, full of genius [ganz geniales Spiel], which made of the piano an orchestra of lamenting and jubilating voices. There were sonatas, or rather veiled symphonies; songs whose poetry might be understood without the words, although a deep vocal melody runs through them all; some piano pieces, partly of a dæmonic nature, and of the most graceful form; and sonatas for violin and piano; string quartets—every one so different from every other that each seemed to flow from a different spring. And then it seemed as if, rushing along as a river, he united all in a waterfall, which bore over the down-shooting waves the peaceful rainbow, and on the banks was played around by butterflies, and accompanied by the voices of nightingales.

"When he will lower his magic wand where the powers of the masses in chorus and orchestra lend their forces, we may expect still more wonderful glances into the secrets of the spirit world. May the highest genius give him strength for that of which there is hope, as in him dwells also another genius, that of modesty. His brethren greet him on his first journey through the world, where will await him perhaps wounds, but also laurels and palms. We bid him welcome as a strong champion."

In the following year (1854) Breitkopf and Härtel and Bartholf Senff engraved and printed Brahms's first works, which comprised three Sonatas for piano (Op. 1, 2, and 5); a Trio for piano, violin, and violon-cello (Op. 8); a Scherzo for piano (Op. 4), and three books of Songs (Op. 3, 6, and 7). Had not Schumann introduced him to the musical world as he did, these two firms might not have so readily accepted for publication the young, untried composer's unconventional compositions, although his visit to Leipzig, and his playing there at a public concert, on December 17, 1853, no doubt furthered his interests.*

The extraordinary successes he had obtained—the applause of intelligent concert audiences, the admiring friendship of Schumann and other distinguished musicians, and, last and rarest, the goodwill of publishers—did not turn Brahms's head; for after a stay of several weeks with Liszt at Weimar, and some concert-tours, he accepted the posts of chorus-conductor and music-teacher at the court of Lippe-Detmold, and quietly settled down to further studies for the mastery of the mysteries of his art, for which his duties, which claimed him only during the winter months, left him ample leisure. But after a few years he freed himself even from these by no means very exacting engagements. Still, his publications were yet for a good while few and far between. He was thinking more of self-improvement than self-manifestation. Indeed, he was passing through the most acute stage of artistic fermentation. His Op. 9, Variations for piano on a theme of Schumann, came out soon after the works above enumerated; Op. 10, Ballades for piano, in 1856. The Serenade for orchestra (Op. 11) did not appear till 1861; and the Serenade for small orchestra (Op. 16) and the Sextet (Op. 18), not till 1862. In January, 1859, he played at Leipzig, for the first time, his Pianoforte Concerto (Op. 15), which, however, was then not yet published. Interspersed between these more important works there were an "Ave Maria" for female voices, organ, and orchestra (Op. 12); a Funeral Hymn for chorus and wind band (Op. 13); eight Songs and Romances (Op. 14), and four Part-Songs for female voices, two horns, and harp (Op. 17).

Since leaving Detmold Brahms has travelled and frequently changed his place of residence, living now at Hamburg, now at Zurich, now at Vienna, now at Baden-Baden, &c. Up to 1863 he seems to have remained attached to his native town, subsequently the Austrian capital had the greatest attraction for him. However, we need not follow the course of Brahms's life, for, apart from the publication and production of his works, it is, as far as we know, uneventful. The only other outstanding facts of his life that ought to be noticed here are his direction of the Vienna Singakademie during the season 1863-1864, with which society he brought to a hearing Bach's Christmas Oratorio and Cantata "Ich hatte viel Bekümmerniss"; and his direction of the Concerts of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde from 1872-1875, where he had Rubinstein as predecessor and Herbeck as successor; perhaps also such honours bestowed upon him as the Maximilian Order by the King of Bavaria, the title of Doctor by the Philosophical faculty of Breslau, and the membership of their body by the Berlin Academy of Arts.

Brahms prefers the retirement of his study and intercourse with a circle of intimate friends to the turmoil and strife of the great world. Unlike so many of his famous contemporaries, he publishes nothing but music. Indeed, considering the eminence of the artist, it is astonishing how little we know of the character of the man. The personality of Wagner, of Liszt, of Rubinstein, of Bülow, and of others is, as it were, an open book to everyone. But what do we know of the personality of Brahms? As pianist and conductor he has been often enough before the public, and yet he has managed to remain, one might almost say, hidden behind a curtain, an invisible, mysterious presence. This being so, a peep behind the curtain cannot be otherwise than acceptable. Dr. Hermann Deiters, who made his acquaintance at Bonn about the middle of the sixth decade of this century, says that Brahms distinguished himself by his whole nature from the young men in whose company he met him. "Not, however, by that outward unrestraint of artists which rarely impresses one sympathetically; and yet he seemed to be unconcerned about the surrounding world, full of an artistic ideal, of a vigorous striving conscious of its aim, and gaily and willingly communicating out of the treasury of his convictions."* Another peep shows us the man about twenty-two years later. "A week ago," wrote from Baden-Baden, on September 28, 1877, the composer, Adolf Jensen, to one of his friends, "Brahms called on me, who is in the habit of enjoying here every year the beautiful autumn days. In spite of his colossal inwardness he is outwardly so simple, loyal, and upright that I feel always exceedingly comfortable in his society. He is still here, and I hope to see him again."† Very characteristic seems to me what I heard one evening, years ago, at the supper table of a well-known German conductor, composer, and pianist. Brahms had lately been in the town, and had conducted his latest symphony. What more natural, therefore, than that the conversation should turn to this interesting incident of the musical season! Addressing me, the lady of the house exclaimed: "Imagine! Brahms, when after the performance he was warmly congratulated by my husband and other musicians in the artists' room, pretended that the work no longer interested him. What affectation!" And the Herr Kapellmeister nodded assent to this remark of his wife. Now, with all respect (and it is most genuine) for the estimable persons whom I have taken the liberty to introduce into the discussion, I venture to think that the interpretation given to Brahms's words was not correct. I have no difficulty in believing that they expressed nothing but the simple truth; nay, I would go farther, and say that they seem to me in consonance with the whole tenor of his life, with that unwearied, unselfish striving after greater perfection, regardless of reward or success of any kind. Indeed, the true artist can only regard a work achieved as a stepping-stone; for even should he in each work rise to his ideal, his doing so would place him successively on levels whence wider views present themselves to his sight, and call up in him new and nobler ideals. These reflections lead us to a consideration of the master's works.

* The connoisseurs of Leipzig were, according to a contemporary account, divided into two parties, the exaltados and the moderados, the latter admitting, indeed, Brahms's talent and boldness, but accusing him of crudeness, awkwardness, and immaturity.

Liberally gifted as Brahms showed himself in his earliest compositions, they contained along with the universally normal too much of individual lawlessness, along with what was, and ever will be, beautiful, too much of mere ingenuity and downright eccentricity, to be altogether satisfactory as works of art. In one word, the artist was the servant of his imagination, whereas the reverse relation is the only proper one. The composer felt that himself, and when after an interval of some years he came once more forward with new works (the Serenades, the Sextet, &c.), it was evident that the time had been spent in studying the great masters, in severe self-criticism, and in exertions for the attainment of a thorough craftsmanship. In this study, this self-criticism, this exertion were not confined to those years alone, but have been going on ever since up to the present day. Brahms is unceasingly striving for a nobler content and a more perfect form. Beginning as a deep-dyed romanticist, he more and more developed into a classicist, till at last he has become—without indiscriminately eschewing the resources of romanticism—the foremost representative of classical art—i.e., of the art in which beauty of form is a sine qua non and the supreme law. For a long time Brahms's music was "caviare to the general"; so far from pleasing the millions, it may be said to have touched only a few hundred believing disciples. It was not till 1868, when he produced his forty-fifth work, the "Deutsche Requiem" ("German Requiem"), that a more general interest began to be taken in this master's works. The "Triumphlied" ("Song of Triumph") for double chorus and orchestra (Op. 55), 1871, and the "Schicksalslied" ("Song of Destiny") for chorus and orchestra (Op. 54), 1872, deepened and spread the favourable impression made by the "Deutsche Requiem." And this was done perhaps even more effectually by the Symphonies, the first of which (Op. 68), in C minor, was first performed in 1876; the second (Op. 72), in D major, in 1877; the third (Op. 90), in F major, in 1883; and the fourth, in E minor, in 1885. Brahms has cultivated every branch of composition except one, the opera, of which he has not given us, and is not likely to give us, an example. The exception ought to be noted as significant. To complete my account of Brahms as a symphonic composer, I must mention yet, in addition to the first Concerto for piano and orchestra (Op. 15), a second one for the same solo instrument; a Concerto for violin and orchestra (Op. 77); Variations on a theme of Haydn for orchestra (Op. 56), and the Tragic Overture. As a composer of chamber music Brahms ranks very high, and his contributions in this genre are both numerous and varied—two Sextets for strings (Op. 18 and 36); a Quintet for piano and strings (Op. 34); three Quartets for piano and strings (Op. 25, 26, and 60); three Quartets for strings (Op. 51 and 67); a Trio for piano, violin, and violoncello (Op. 8); a Trio for piano, violin, and horn (Op. 40); a Sonata for piano and violoncello (Op. 38), and a Sonata for piano and violin (Op. 78). Then there are a number of piano pieces (ballades, variations, studies, &c.), choruses with accompaniment, part-songs for female voices, duets, and songs for a single voice, to which latter we shall presently give our whole attention.

Has then Brahms fulfilled Schumann's prophecy? I do not think that it can be said of him that he has "uttered the highest expression of his time in an ideal manner." But for all that Brahms is a composer of great power. If I am not able to say with the worshippers of the master that in his works has ripened and borne fruit what Schumann aimed at and failed to achieve, that the one is the necessary complement of the other, and that in writing his first symphony he added a tenth to Beethoven's nine, I am still less able to approve the sneers of Wagner* and the venomous expectorations of a section of his partisans.† We may admit Brahms's superiority in the mastery of form. But do we find in his music Schumann's glow of feeling, fragrance of poetry; in short, his magic of romance? And Beethoven? Does he not stand as yet unequalled in force and depth of mascu-

* Take, for instance, this sentence from the Bayreuther Blätter of the year 1879 (p. 127). "They have been obliged to admit that I conduct well and know how to inculcate a correct rendering; on the other hand, I have not bound myself to teach also how to compose, as I may properly think that this is well done by those of Beethoven's successors who write Brahmsian symphonies."

† I have especially in my mind Joseph Rubinstein, who distinguished himself so infamously by his criticisms on Schumann, Brahms, and other composers in the Bayreuther Blätter.

* Breitkopf and Härtel's "Sammlung Musikalischer Vorträge," Nos. 23 and 24: "Johannes Brahms," by H. Deiters.

† "Aus Briefen Adolf Jensen's," Berlin: J. Trautwein.

line thought and the heart and mind-compelling power of evolving the infinitely great from the apparently little, of combining the profusely manifold into clear, beautiful, and undoubtable unity? As regards the disparagers, one can forgive a creative artist like Wagner his exclusiveness, which may be a necessary condition of his greatness, the latter being the result of concentration and peculiarity of direction; but if those who are not original creative artists exhibit such want of sympathy, and even make a boast of it, as if narrowness were a virtue, any fair-thinking man ought to consider it incumbent upon him to expose the falseness of their position and the hollowness of their pretension. A critic must have an eye for faults and excellencies alike, and be able to distinguish the proportion which they bear to each other. Now, that is exactly what neither the worshippers nor the disparagers do, who, on the contrary, are blind to one side, and view the other through a magnifying glass.

I called it significant that Brahms never composed an opera. It points indeed to the chief characteristic of the master—his habit of looking inward rather than outward, a habit which degenerates often into sombre brooding and subtle rumination. This inwardness, with its concomitant disregard of the sensuous for its own sake, of mere euphony and ad captandam effects, stamp him as a Germanic composer, whose nationality, moreover, is widened by every turn of thought and expression. Hence the complete neglect of him by the Romanic nations, a fate which he shares with another, though differently tempered, countryman of his, I mean Louis Spohr. Even in France, where latterly so much has been done for the popularisation of symphonic and, to some extent also, vocal concert music, and where chamber music, although less cultivated, receives a not inconsiderable measure of attention, Brahms is almost unknown; at any rate, not one of his works has been incorporated into the regular répertoire, and very few indeed have had the honour of a performance. As late as 1885, Dr. Hans von Bülow's performance of Brahms's Scherzo for piano was accompanied by the audience of one of Colonne's Châtelet concerts by hemming, coughing, and groaning. This is, of course, no conclusive proof of French opinion with regard to Brahms's works generally; but it shows, at least, that his name does not command respectful silence when his music does not immediately please. That, however, the master is not popular even in Germany might be gathered, if this were not already made clear enough by the serious and subtle nature of his works, from a saying which is reported of the Viennese, à propos of the first performance of the Third Symphony: "This time we have understood Brahms at once."

It seems almost a mystery that Brahms, with his bent toward the larger forms and the developing and deepening of thought, should at the same time excel in songs. This, however, is most emphatically the case, and much of the mystery disappears when we consider the nature of the thematic material of the works in the larger forms. Brahms, we may assume, regards the composition of songs as a relaxation after more arduous undertakings, as a kind of sport after work; and the publication of two, three, and even four sets of songs in close succession shows that the sport is pursued passionately. Here is a list of his productions in this genre: Op. 3 (6)* 6 (6), 7 (6), 14 (8 songs and romances), 19 (19), 32 (9), 33 (15 romances), 43 (4), 46 (4), 47 (4), 48 (7), 49 (5), 57 (8), 63 (9), 69 (9), 70 (4), 71 (5), 72 (5), 84 (romances for one and two voices), 85 (6), 86 (6), 94 (5), 95 (7), 96 (4), and 97 (6). In short, Brahms has nearly reached the third quarter of the second hundred, and the above list does not contain his songs for two voices (for instance, Op. 20, 28, 61, 66, and 75), nor those for four and more voices (for instance, the Liebeslieder, waltzes for pianoforte duet and voices, Op. 52 and 65; and twelve songs and romances for female chorus, &c.)

Of all the works of Brahms which Schumann saw and heard at Düsseldorf in 1853, he was especially struck by the songs (see the above-quoted passage from his letter to Strackerjan). And if we take up Brahms's Op. 97, his last publication in this genre, we notice no falling off; on the contrary, we cannot but recognise in him one of the most genuine classical song writers. His songs are real songs (not declamations which, however legitimate as a form of composition, however interesting as music, can lay no just claim to the name)—i.e., lyrical effusions, feelings transmuted into melody. Although, as a rule, melodic, Brahms does, however, not hesitate to be declamatory where this suits his purpose. His setting of Heine's "Der Tod, das ist die Kühle Nacht" (Op. 96, No. 1) is an instance. But even here he is only to some extent declamatory, and for the most part fragmentarily melodic. The dream-like effect aimed at demanded the predominance of colour over form.

Brahms's melody is distinguished by purity, simplicity, naturalness, and grace. Exquisite pleasure may even be derived from following its lovely lines with the eye as they appear on paper. Schubert was no doubt one of the most influential of the master's teachers; we perceive this especially in his early songs, in one of which (Op. 6, No. 2; see "Spring," in Novello's fourth "Album of German Song") his predecessor's "Thine is my heart" seems all through to be struggling to assert itself. But a still more influential master of Brahms was Beethoven, much of whose virile frankness he has succeeded in assimilating. Schumann, too, was a very influential master of our composer; not, however, in melody. To what extent, if at all, Brahms profited by the example of Robert Franz, who preceded him by eleven years in the publication of songs, it would be difficult to determine.

Turning from the melody to the accompaniment, we are struck first of all by its infinite variety, and on recovering from this surprise we perceive with no less wonder the rare perfection of the workmanship. But, and this is remarkable, however rich the accompaniment may be, it remains an accompaniment, a subordinate companion, a zealous supporter. The special form of the accompaniment is often due to the words, whose suggestion the composer may have sometimes followed unconsciously. At any rate, the tone-painting we not infrequently meet with in Brahms's songs is so delicate, so unobtrusive, and yet so effective, that, whatever theory we may adopt as to its genesis, we are bound to own that nature and art go here hand in hand and do their very best. The last opus of songs contains three (Nos. 1, 2, and 3) in which the accompaniment indicates respectively the song of the nightingale, the chirping of a young bird, and the clatter of a horse's hoofs, especially the first in a very reticent manner. In No. 4 of Op. 96 (Heine's "Meerfahrt") the accompaniment of the fascinating melody calls up in the mind of the hearer the jerky sounds of oars moving in the rowlocks. But Brahms understands also how to realise atmospheric effects. The sunshine in No. 3 of Op. 96 (Heine's "Es sehen die Blumen") is to me as unmistakable as the darkness in No. 1 (Heine's "Der Tod, das ist die kalte Nacht"). Nor is this mastery in the painting of backgrounds confined to the later songs, although it is there most conspicuous. The inquirer will find an interesting early example in Op. 3, No. 6 ("Song," in Novello's fourth "Album of German Song").

* The figures in parentheses indicate the number of songs contained in the sets.

As to form, Brahms has furnished examples of almost every kind, from the simple folk-song to the most elaborate through-composed art-song and romance. His fifteen romances from Tieck's "Magen-lone" (Op. 33) may in every sense of the word and without exaggeration be called classical. They are not only among the finest of Brahms's compositions for one voice and pianoforte accompaniment, but also among the finest specimens of the kind generally. The genius of serene beauty, we hold, must have inspired them. It would be impossible to examine the peculiarities and estimate the excellences of the many songs which Brahms has given to the world within the limits of an article; this could not be done even with all the classes into which they might be divided. I shall therefore take a leap from one extreme to the other, from the most extended (though not most elaborate) compositions for one voice, the romances, to the shortest, the folk-songs. These latter are very numerous among Brahms's songs. Mr. Hueffer's collection (Novello's fourth "Album of German Song"), which contains twenty-seven songs, and is confined to the earlier works (Op. 3—19), includes as many as seven. Nor are those which are thus entitled the only folk-songs. Indeed, the popular element occupies a large space in Brahms's music, and is an important ingredient in his style. Here I may also mention that the sombreness which makes itself so frequently felt in his larger works is hardly to be met with in the songs. Op. 94 may be instanced as an exception.

I have repeatedly mentioned Novello's lately published fourth "Album of German Song," which consists of a selection of Brahms's songs by Mr. Hueffer. We may, perhaps, wish this or that song added to the Album, or included in it the later as well as the earlier songs, but we are not likely to advocate the exclusion of any it contains.

And now a concluding word on Brahms as a song writer. Dangerous as prophesying is, I venture to express my belief that this master's songs will have a permanent place in musical literature. I hesitate the less to express this belief as it is shared not only by his thorough-going admirers, but even by those who are decidedly sceptical with regard to his symphonic productions. My reasons for my belief in the vitality of the songs are the genuineness of their inspiration and the perfectness of their form.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XVIII.—SCHUBERT (continued from page 330).

At the beginning of 1825 Schubert was again resident in his dear Vienna, living as careless a life as ever with the few people whom he admitted to his intimacy. At this time he made the acquaintance of Sofie Müller, who enjoyed some renown as an actress, and was a singer to boot. Schubert and his cronies often visited the lady, the composer taking with him his newest songs for the pleasure of hearing her interpret them. Likely enough he wrote songs for no other purpose, and, if so, we should give thanks that Sofie Müller existed, and had a taste for music. From the artist's diary, published in 1832, we gather the names of some of the works with which she was concerned. Amongst them are that genuine masterpiece, the "Young Nun," "Der Einsame" and "Drang in die Ferne." The last gathering at her house took place on March 30, shortly before Schubert started for a holiday amidst the romantic scenery of the Austrian Tyrol.

We are not informed how Schubert found the money for travelling expenses, but it may well be that he needed very little. Once on the scene of his wanderings every house was opened to him, and as the singer Vogl was his companion it is not likely that the cost of moving from place to place troubled him much. Be this as it may, our composer found himself at Steyr, Vogl's birthplace, some time in April. From that town the friends made excursions to various places within reach. "When summer began," writes Kreissle, "the two artists, like wandering minstrels, started forth on their beautiful country expedition, bent on making at one time a stately convent, at another a city or town, ring with their already famous lays. They made considerable halts at Linz and Gmunden, and again at the proper starting point of their wanderings—Vogl's birthplace. Everywhere they fell in with friends and acquaintances, who received them with open arms. The still living witnesses of these days of Schubert's wanderings talk with delight of the happy hours they passed in the society of the unassuming and, at that time, happy and cheerful Schubert." One loves to think about, and sympathise with, the composer's delightful experience during this tour. To him came so few moments of life's sunshine, that the pleasure his journey gave him seems, as we dwell upon it, to find its own reflection in ourselves, especially when we consider that, if there be any truth in the theory of nature's compensation, his delight must have been intense indeed—the crowding into a few weeks of enjoyment that which with most people is spread over years. We learn incidentally that he was far too busy with his new friends to think much of those at home, and it is like the careless Schubert to be told by his father in a letter:—"I, as well as all your belongings, am surprised at your not letting us hear anything of you." He wrote to nobody, as far as can be ascertained, till July 21, when he communicated with his friend Spaun, whom he had hoped to find at Linz, but did not. We can judge of his high spirits from the opening sentences of the letter:—

"You may well imagine my uncommon vexation in being obliged in Linz to write to you in Lemberg. Deuce take that abominable duty which separates friends from one another, when they had scarce sipped the cup of friendship. Here, I am sitting still in Linz, half dead with the melting heat and perspiration. I have a whole number of new songs, and you are not here! Are you not ashamed? Linz without you is a body without a soul, a rider without a head, broth without salt. If I didn't get good beer at Jägermaier's and decent wine at the Schlossberg, I would go and hang myself on the parade out of grief for the soul of the Linzers, which has taken wing and flown away."

Further on he says: "For the rest, don't let your hair grow grey with misery at being so far away from us. Brave the simple fate, let your gentle spirit expand like a flower, that you may diffuse the warmth of life in the cold north, and show your divine origin wherever you go." Then he adds a pompous aphorism akin to those already quoted from his diary: "Contemptible is the grief which stealthily creeps upon a noble heart; cast it away from you, and tear to pieces the vulture which is gnawing at your heart."

On July 25 Schubert found time to send off a letter to his parents. He began it with a confession of sin: "I admit the justice of your rebuke at my long silence," and went on to a lame excuse: "But, as I am averse to writing mere empty words, and the present time with me offers but little of interest, you will forgive me if I have kept all news of myself from you until after the receipt of your affectionate letter." Once with pen in hand Schubert writes at length, and we get a detailed account of his experiences, mixed up with which are some allusions to his setting of the songs in Scott's "Lady of the Lake":—"My new songs out of Walter Scott's 'Lady of the Lake' were very warmly approved. My audience expressed great delight at the solemnity of my Hymn to the Blessed Virgin ('Ave Maria'); it seems to have infected the minds of listeners. I believe I have attained this result by never forcing on myself religious ecstasy, and never setting myself to compose such hymns or prayers except when I am involuntarily overcome by the feeling and spirit of devotion, in that case devotion is usually of the right and genuine kind." After this very interesting glimpse of Schubert's higher method, we find further reference to the songs, in which the name of England occurs:—"I intend to have some other arrangement as to the publication of these songs, the present one inviting so little attention. They must have the illustrious name of Scott on the title-page, and thus make people more curious; with the addition of the English text they might help to make me better known in England, if only once I could make some fair terms with publishers; but in that matter the wise and beneficent management of the Government has taken care that the artist shall remain for ever the slave of miserable hucksters." The letter contains a remark upon criticism which may also be worth transcribing. It arose out of a favourable notice of one of Schubert's works in some journal, and runs thus: "I should like to have examined the review myself, to see if there was anything to be learned from it, for, however favourable the criticism may be, the whole thing may be simply ridiculous if the reviewer, as is often the case, has not the proper understanding and capacity for reviewing." Thus did Schubert properly distinguish between unintelligent praise and that which comes from a man having connaissance de cause. Most artists, we should say, recognise the difference, but very few are bold enough and frank enough to say so openly. They take laudation all round with equal appetite, for fear of giving offence. Next in this fruitful letter we find a hit at a certain school of pianoforte players, since largely developed and now making pretensions, supported by a silly public, to be the only school. Speaking about certain of his own pieces, he remarks: "These I played alone, and not without success, for some assured me that the keys under my hands sounded like singing voices, which, if it be true, is a delightful compliment, as I cannot endure the execrable pounding peculiar to even distinguished pianoforte players—it neither tickles the ear nor moves the feelings." Another citation and we have done with the letter. The master speaks of "the divine lakes and mountains," which so impressed his imagination, and lets it be seen that Nature, in her grand and beautiful manifestations, had given him both comfort and strength. It is with him "a great happiness to be restored anew to life, strength, and energy."

Later on (September 12) Schubert addressed a long letter to his brother, Ferdinand, in which he gives an animated description of his journey from Steyr to Salzburg. The exordium of this epistle contains a modest deprecation of the writer's descriptive power, but Schubert had a fair share of the quality in question, and could really express himself very well. Take the following as a specimen:—

"From Neumarkt, which is the last stage before Salzburg, one gets the first glimpse of the snow-covered tops of mountains emerging from the Salzburg valley. About an hour from Neumarkt the country is exceedingly beautiful. The Waller-See, which pours forth its clear bluish-green water, lights up this fair scene in an enchanting way. The situation is very lofty, and from that point one goes by a constant descent as far as Salzburg. The mountains appear higher and higher; the Untersburg, with its ghosts and legends, particularly peers above the rest like magic. The villages show signs of the wealth of former days. In the commonest peasants' houses one finds on all sides marble window and door ledges, sometimes even staircases of red marble. The sun darkens, and the gloomy clouds lower over the black mountains like children of the mist; but they touch not the peak of the Untersburg—they glide past as though afraid of its dreadful tenants. The far-off valley, which is studded with isolated castles, churches, and peasants' huts, becomes plainer and plainer to the enchanted eye. Towers and palaces gradually appear; at last one drives by the Kapuzinerberg, where the mighty rampart of rock rises perpendicularly from the roadside, and looks grimly down upon the wayfarer. The Untersburg, with its attendant mountains, becomes gigantic; its majesty seems almost to crush us. And now our road lies through some beautiful avenues to the town itself."

The truth of this picture is instantly recognised by those who know the road, and the character of it suggests that Schubert had been reading Walter Scott's descriptions of scenery with as much attention as he devoted to his lyrics. Our master goes on to tell about the town, the kind reception he and Vogl met with there, and so on. Presently comes a reference to Michael Haydn:—

"From the cathedral we went to the monastery of St. Peter, where Michael Haydn resided. The church here also is wonderfully beautiful. Here, as you know, is the monument of M. Haydn. It is very fine, but badly placed in an obscure out of the way corner. . . . Haydn's head is enclosed in an urn. I thought to myself, May thy pure and peaceful spirit hover around me, dear Haydn; and if I never can become like thee, peaceful and guileless, at all events none on earth have such deep reverence for thee as I have. Sad tears fell from my eyes, and we went on."

But not a word about Mozart—the presiding genius of the place. Schubert avoids even mentioning his name. Strange omission! One supposes that he could hardly have thought of anybody else, and is puzzled by this inexplicable silence.

A second letter (September 21) describes the journey from Salzburg to Hallein, "a remarkable town, but uncommonly dirty and dismal," where all the inhabitants "look like ghosts," and are "thin enough to make tapers of." Then on through the Pass of Lueg, famous for a desperate fight between the Bavarians and the Tyrolese. A red cross commemorates the battle, and at sight of it Schubert breaks out into rhapsody, "O glorious Christ, how many wicked deeds must Thy sacred image appear to sanction! Thou Thyself, the cruellest memorial of human guilt, men set up Thy image as though they would say, Lo, with insolent feet we have trampled upon the most perfect creation of the great God; should we feel compunction of heart in annihilating that noxious insect called man?" Finally the travellers regained Steyr where Schubert found a letter from his friend Bauernfeld, regarding domestic arrangements for the approaching winter in Vienna, and saluting him with a decided personality: "How fares it with thee, fattest of friends? I declare I believe your stomach is a size larger. Heaven keep it and bless it!" Schubert replied in a style of equal freedom, mentioning the early days of October as the probable date of his return. So it turned out. Vogl went off into Italy, Schubert made for Linz, and there encountered a friend, Gatty, with whom he hired a one-horse carriage and drove back to the capital, rich in comparative health and spirits, but almost as poor in pocket as the beggars on the road. His first care in Vienna was to sell the "Lady of the Lake" songs—for 200 gulden or £201—and repay the friends who had, in his absence, kept matters square with his landlord.

Schubert did not allow his pen to remain idle all the time he was away. He composed several songs and is said to have completed the Grand Symphony which should stand between the B minor fragment and the C major. Sir George Grove says: "But the great work of this date was the Grand Symphony, which had been before him so long. We found him eighteen months ago writing quartets and the octet as preparation for it, and an allusion in a letter of Schwind's shows that at the beginning of August he spoke of the thing as virtually done. That it was actually put on to paper at Gastein at this date we know from the testimony of Bauernfeld, who also informs us that it was a special favourite with its composer." There can hardly be a doubt that Schubert was engaged during 1825 upon some such work. So much is proved by the references to it cited by Sir G. Grove. But one of the strangest incidents in musical history is its utter disappearance. While numberless smaller compositions have survived all vicissitudes, and well-nigh every work of the master is accounted for, the "Gastein Symphony" has vanished as completely as those Central Asian rivers which desert sands absorb. We do not even know its key, and Dr. Kreissle has not more than a word to say even about its supposed existence at any time. To make these facts the more remarkable, the history of the work can be traced as far as September, 1826, when a member of the Austrian Musical Society conveyed to his brethren Schubert's desire to dedicate to them a symphony, and when the Society voted him £10 as a mark of good will, Schubert it is said, deposited the manuscript at the Society's rooms, along with a letter running thus:—

"To the Committee of the Austrian Musical Society.—Convinced of the noble desire of the Society to give its best support to every effort in the cause of art, I venture, as a native artist, to dedicate this my symphony to the Society, and most respectfully to recommend myself to its protection. With the highest esteem,—Your obedient, Franz Schubert."

Now comes the strangest part of this most curious story. Here we see a great musical work pass into the hands of a Society which has shown practical sympathy with the composer, yet no record exists of its rehearsal, no one remembers that it was ever tried, and the catalogue of the Society's library may be searched in vain for any trace of it. Sir G. Grove truly says that "except for the minute and letter given above, and the positive statements of Bauernfeld quoted below, it might as well be non-existent." In presence of such a mystery as this, the mind casts about for a probable explanation. It is piqued by the puzzle and almost resents it. Now then, what explanation seems most probable? Obviously that the Gastein Symphony and the Symphony in C are, in their origin, one and the same. It is at least conceivable that the Musical Society found the Gastein work either not to their taste or not within their means (we know that the "C major" was voted impracticable), and that Schubert took it back for revision, which, in his careless way, he did not immediately set about. This speculation is somewhat strengthened by circumstances connected with the autograph of the "C major." The MS. in question contains many emendations, unusual with Schubert, but such as a man, having once entered upon revisions, might go on making. Moreover, in the Scherzo are sixteen bars taken from the octet, which, as we have seen, was written as a preparatory study for a grand symphony. Further, Sir G. Grove tells us that the autograph score is no rough copy; there are no traces of sketches or preparation, "the music has gone straight on to the paper without any intervention"—features which one would look for in the case of a revised edition of an already existing work. Documentary evidence tending to show that the "Gastein" and the "C major" are distinct compositions is found only in an article written by Bauernfeld for a Vienna journal after Schubert's death. There the master's friend says: "To the larger works of his latter years also belongs a symphony written in 1825 at Gastein, for which its author had an especial predilection. . . . At a great concert given by the Musical Society shortly after his death, a Symphony in C was performed, which was composed as early as 1817 (1818), and which he considered as one of his less successful works. Perhaps the Society intends at some future time to make us acquainted with one of the later symphonies, possibly the Gastein one already mentioned." It is clear from this that Bauernfeld supposed the MS. of the "Gastein" to be in the Society's possession. But if that were so, why, at a kind of commemorative concert, was it not performed?

A work specially dedicated to the Society by the dead author would surely have had infinitely greater claims than one of an earlier date and smaller pretensions. The inference is that the MS. had passed out of the Society's hands, and possibly back into those of the composer. In his catalogue of Schubert's works Bauernfeld makes two entries, as follows: "1825, Grand Symphony. . . 1828, Last Symphony." Clearly, therefore, he believed that each was an independent work; but it is pretty evident, also, that Bauernfeld knew very little about either. There is nothing whatever in his testimony to show that his knowledge on the subject was not of the very vaguest kind. We here put forward the identity in origin of the "Gastein" and the "C major" simply as a speculation, which cannot well be a basis of belief. But it seems to us the only way out of a difficulty that, apart from it, presents an almost inconceivable concatenation of circumstances. Sir George Grove, whose research cannot be too highly praised, so far adopts the theory of a distinct existence for the "Gastein" that he styles the C major "No. 10," instead of No. 9, but a faint suspicion seems to linger in his mind, otherwise he would have used more positive language than the following: "That it is an entirely distinct work from that in C, written two and a-half years later, can hardly admit of a doubt." That which hardly admits doubt is not absolutely barred against it.

Of Schubert's doings between the date of his return to Vienna and the close of 1825, very little can be gleaned. He may have given himself up to the delights of friendship; consorting with that odd little company of intimates to whom the reader has already been introduced, and writing songs for their delectation as well as, incidentally, for a living. At any rate, the compositions of the year make a respectable total, and include twenty-three songs, as well as the pianoforte Sonatas in A minor, D major, and A major; and the Funeral March, à quatre mains, on the death of the Emperor Alexander. "It is also more than probable," says Sir G. Grove, "that the String Quartet in D minor was begun before the end of the year."

In 1826 Schubert had several chances of settling down to regular employment. We find one mentioned, as in prospect, by his friend Schwind, who, writing to the master, then in Upper Austria, said:—

“Worschizek (Imperial Court Organist) is on his last legs, and there will be a serious agitation on the question of the Court organistship. As far as I can learn, the successful man will be he who can best acquit himself as an extemporaneous performer on a given subject. At Gmunden you will have an organ at your service to practise on.”

Worschizek died shortly after this letter was written (November, 1825), but we hear nothing of our master's candidature for the empty seat. Six months earlier another Court musician, Salieri, had passed away; his place being taken by Eybler, whose promotion left vacant the post of Vice-Capellmeister. This position Schubert coveted, as we know from his own lips, and in due course he joined the running for it, in company with seven others, namely, Seyfried, Girowetz, Kreutzer, Hoffmann, Hüttenbrenner, Würfel, and Glaser. Previously to this, the dignity had been offered to Wittasek, who declined it on account of age and infirmity. Umlauf was also proposed for the place, but ultimately it became a matter of competition, as we have just seen. All the candidates were spoken of by the Hofmusikgraf in his report to superior authority as “men of merit; each and all having claims, more or less worthy of consideration.”

With regard to Schubert personally these words were used: “Schubert appeals to his services as Court singer, confirmed by a testimonial of Salieri, who taught him composition, and vouches for the fact of his having composed five Masses, which have been used in several churches.” In disposing of the appointment the Emperor passed over all the eight men above named, and gave it to Josef Weigl, Capellmeister at the Court Theatre, thus leaving poor Schubert out in the cold. When informed of his bad luck, the master said: “I should have much liked to receive that appointment, but I must feel satisfied in its having been bestowed upon so worthy a man as Weigl.” In this spirit of philosophic resignation he went back to writing songs which, while they enriched the publishers, barely enabled him to live.

Another delusive prospect opened before Schubert at this time, and was lost, if we may credit Anton Schindler, through his own obstinacy and utter want of worldly wisdom. Herr Krebs (father of Marie Krebs, the now well-known pianist) having removed to Hamburg, his post of conductor at the Kärnthnerthor Theatre became vacant, and Schubert so far became the favoured candidate as to be taken on trial—that is to say, his appointment depended upon the successful setting of some operatic scenes. When rehearsing these, the soprano, Schechner, objected to certain features in one of her airs, and begged their modification. Schubert refused, and the result was that, at the general rehearsal, the lady broke down. Let Schindler continue the story:—

“There was a deep silence throughout the house, and consternation on every face. Whilst this was going on, Duport, the manager, was seen advancing now to one group, now to another, or talking mysteriously to the prima donna or the Capellmeisters who were present. As for Schubert, he sat during a scene painful to every one who witnessed it, like a marble figure, fixed to his chair, with his eyes rivetted upon the pages of the score lying open before him. At last, after a long pause, Duport stepped in front of the orchestra and said, in a very polite tone: ‘Herr Schubert, we should like to put off the performance for some days, and I must ask you to make the necessary alterations in the scena, at all events, and to make it an easier matter for Fräulein Schechner.’ Several of the players in the orchestra now exhorted Schubert to give way. Schubert's wrath, after he had listened to Duport's speech, only grew more intense, and, calling out at the top of his voice, ‘I alter nothing,’ he shut up the score with a bang, put it under his arm, and walked off home as fast as he could. There was an end to all hope of his appointment.”

This is a circumstantial story, and its truth is supported by the fact that Sir George Grove adopts it without question. It is right to mention, on the other hand, that Kreissle takes up a doubtful attitude, urging that Schindler was not unused to drawing the long bow, that the behaviour imputed to Schubert denies his “honest, good-tempered manner,” and that an eye-witness, then in the orchestra of the theatre, while allowing that the music given to Schechner was beyond her powers, could remember no such scene as that described above. Rather, according to this authority, did Schubert behave “in his usual quiet and self-contained manner.” We cannot decide between these conflicting statements, but are anxious to believe with Kreissle, since Schindler represents our master as guilty of very foolish obstinacy. How could the world go on if it were full of dogged and unyielding resolution on matters of small importance?

(To be continued.)

THE DECLINE OF ITALIANATION.

COSMOPOLITAN though our society, and particularly our artistic society, has become, it may be regarded as a not altogether bad sign of the times that the passion for denationalising themselves has, in a great measure, abated amongst professional musicians. Nay, the reaction has set in so far that singers of the most uncompromisingly English, Irish, and Scotch appellations (we cannot recall to mind any instance of a Welshman who ever assumed an Italian name) seem to take a pride in adhering to them, and the reductio ad absurdum of Italianation has been reached in the case of artists who, appearing originally under Italian pseudonyms, are now content to figure under their real names, with Signor—in a bracket to explain their identity. It is now sufficient to cultivate the appearance of a foreigner without assuming his name, though indeed there are few artists before the public who are guilty of such folly. To these we recommend Roger Ascham's homily on the text of the Italian proverb current in the middle of the sixteenth century, “Inglese Italianato e un diavolo incarnato.”

The decline of Italianation is due to a variety of causes, which it might be interesting on some other occasion to discuss at length in these columns. For the present, these may be roughly identified with the downfall of Italian Opera in England, which has been brought about by the abuses of the “star” system; the growth of a realism impatient of the romance and frivolity which amused our fathers; and the taste for gorgeous orchestral colouring which Berlioz and Wagner have done so much to foster. There is also to be taken into account the development of the middle-class audience—the real supporters of music in England—who prefer to listen to operas and vocal music in a tongue they understand, the most striking proof of which demand for the vernacular is afforded by the success of the Carl Rosa English Opera Company, where we find a French prima donna obliged to conform to the linguistic necessities of the situation. The fact that singers should have to consider the interests of the general public is significant, though we take it on the whole to be a loss that some of our best native performers are unable to sing in either French or German.

While, then, there is a demand amongst all public audiences for native artists of merit—a demand which, though now and again savouring of insularity, is on the whole healthy—it must be admitted that in the houses of the aristocrats and plutocrats who make the “season” there is still a notorious predilection for foreign artists. It is difficult to account for this; but we would suggest that it is partly a tradition and partly due to the amazing dulness of aristocratic society, which countenances Bohemianism and patronises art, not from any especial regard for talent, but simply from the desire to be amused; and a greater piquancy of contrast is naturally found in the society and performances of foreigners. Thus the strange anomaly becomes possible that nine musicians out of ten may have never heard of, much less heard, a singer of such exceptional ability—dans son genre, be it understood—as De Soria, who rarely sings out of Mayfair, and never in public. The same remarks apply also to artists who have little to recommend them but their complexion, moderate facility, and immoderate assurance.

It is worthy of notice that, while amongst foreign writers an occasional tendency has been shown to adopt Christian names—e.g., Henry Murger, Henry Gréville, George Sand—a practice which actresses of note have latterly followed, foremost among whom we notice the now welcome name of Jane Hading—we know, per contra, of no instance where a foreign musician has Englished his patronymic. But the real proof of the affectation of the whole system is to be seen in the fact that no composer of note, no great conductor, has endeavoured to win higher renown by making himself out to belong to a more musical country than his own. These vagaries are confined to singers and players, principally opera-singers, whom Berlioz once described as monsters, though often attractive monsters. With regard to the assumption of names in general, it should be noticed that the choice is dictated by a variety of motives. It is generally due to a desire to escape from the realm of the commonplace. Sometimes a name lends itself so easily to the change that the temptation is irresistible. Again, local associations are not infrequently the determining cause, and so we get Albani from Albany, while another American singer has taken the name of Nevada. The name of the most famous living contralto is, we believe, simply a “palindrome,” and an eminent Italian composer, Arrigo Boito, figures in the capacity of a librettist as Tobia Gorrio, an anagram upon his real name. This passion for aliases is characteristic of musicians, some of whom in this country also vary their name according to their sphere of action. But, on the whole, we think that a step has been taken in the right direction, and that no really first-rate native artist now cloaks his identity beneath an Italian pseudonym. We have got beyond such absurdities as Giulio Perkins and Buggini (mé Buggins); and we wish that the obviously British matron would also drop the minor affectation of “Madame,” which imposes upon nobody, and is never adopted in private life. But if fiction produced strange and outlandish titles, the unvarnished truth, or varnished only in the Christian name, is capable of even stranger combinations. The following names, drawn from the advertisement and ordinary columns of musical papers, will amply illustrate our statement. They could hardly have been invented, and yet if encountered in the pages of a novel would have been condemned as tasteless or grotesque. We would call special attention to the prevalence of double surnames and spondaic endings. Bantock Pierpoint, Holberry Hagyard, Talbot Legg, Jessurun, Auty, Poock, Pelham Roof, Augusta Piffin, Avalon Collard, Billinie Porter, Dafforne, Christina Smellie, Blackbee, Fountain Meen. For the last-named gentleman we have found an appropriate Sors Horatiana—Fies nobilium tu quoque fontium. It will be seen from the foregoing list that there is little tendency to adopt melodious or Italianised titles. But whether real or invented, these names are striking and individual. A friend who has been much exercised in mind by this peculiarity spends a good deal of time in coining combinations, some of which we are able to offer for the benefit of our readers—Matlock Buxton, Handel Turner, Octave Sharp, Blundell Sands, and Tarley Bindells. He assures us that the above are not copyright, but may be used in public without the payment of a fee.

We are pleased to state that it has been found unnecessary to make a call upon the guarantors of the Philharmonic Society, the incomings of the past season having equalled its outgoings. This agreeable announcement was made at a dinner of the directors, guarantors, and other friends of the Society, held at the Holborn Restaurant on the 24th ult., Lord Coleridge in the chair. We congratulate all concerned upon another year of success, and another strengthening of the firm foundation of judicious enterprise upon which the Society is rebuilding its fortunes. There seems now to be no reason why our oldest musical institution should not, in the face of formidable rivalry, attain to its old pre-eminence. In any case, the directors cannot do better than persevere in their present course, and carry on a policy which combines due regard for contemporary work with fitting homage to the great achievements of a classic past. They thus consult the wishes of the vast majority of amateurs—the men and women who avoid extremes of opinion, and ask only for that which is good whether new or old. As regards the production of works specially written, it may be that none of those brought out during the season just ended will attain classic rank. Such a result no board of directors can guarantee. The utmost is done when men of mark like Saint-Saëns and Moszkowski are secured to write for the Society. That settled, the responsibility shifts to the composers. At the dinner to which reference has been made, lively interest was shown by a large company in the fortunes of the one English institution which boasts an illustrious place in the history of music.

THE Park Band Society, numbering on its committee a Prince and several eminent titled philanthropists, seems hardly to have realised the educational opportunities which the resources at their disposal put in their way. It is to be supposed, a priori, that the music performed in Hyde Park would be more carefully chosen than that to be heard in the other public recreation grounds where this excellent Society provides entertainment on Sundays. But if we were to judge from our own experience of a few weeks back we should pronounce their programme to have been chosen mainly for the purpose of agreeably tickling the ear. It was a beautiful sunny evening—before the recurrence of the recent glacial epoch—and an immense crowd was gathered outside the well-filled enclosure where a programme and a seat are supplied for the sum of twopence. The audience were manifestly enjoying themselves greatly, but our contention is that they would have enjoyed themselves every bit as much if the music had been of a slightly higher order. Nearly half the pieces played were dance tunes pure and simple, while the introduction of one solitary sacred piece only served to accentuate the prevailing secularism of the selection. Now let it be clearly understood that we are not attacking the promoters of this scheme for the preference shown to secular music. If recreation be the aim in view, such preference is inevitable. But the nominally secular répertoire contains a great number of pieces the effect of which is distinctly inspiring, elevating, and ennobling. And, on the other hand, many works will be found in the category of sacred music against which the charge of dulness or heaviness cannot possibly be sustained. Of a judicious combination of such elements we hold that the programmes of these Sunday Concerts should be composed. By these means a fair amount of deference would be shown to the feelings of those who sincerely object to the secularising of the first day of the week, a full concession would be made to those who plead for some lightening of the gloom of the English Sunday, while something would be done to improve the taste of the masses, instead of keeping them down to the opéra bouffe level. In conclusion, we would point to the strange inconsistency which betrays itself in the protests raised against Sir George Grove's proposal to hold Sacred Concerts on Sundays, although not a word have we heard uttered against these purely Secular Concerts held on the same day in the presence of thousands of respectable people. Would they be a whit less popular if the music was better? We believe not, and we would earnestly urge upon the Park Band Committee the desirability of experimenting in the direction of a deviation from the ad cap-tandum style of their present programmes.

AMID the conflicting stories now current regarding the late unfortunate King of Bavaria, it is clear that musicians and music-lovers everywhere should look upon him as happily slain on one point. He had a genuine feeling for art, and the disposition to further it by sacrifice of his own means to its interests. We can look at this matter without consideration of the particular music he affected or of the composer whose munificent friend he remained through many years. Every man, even a king, has a right to the indulgence of his artistic tastes in his own way. That may not be our way, but at any rate we must applaud and value the disposition, since all phases and manifestations of art contribute something to the ultimate purity and excellence which will remain when time has eliminated the dross. We could wish that it were the fashion among monarchs and the great ones of the earth to act as did poor King Ludwig. Not that any desire a return to the days of an offensive patronage, when rich men kept musicians about them as they kept dogs and race horses—as appendages to their greatness. A time like that is impossible of recurrence, but there are many ways wherein those who have the means to assist art may do so with entire propriety and certain issue of good. Such ways occur to every man who has given the matter a thought. What results would follow, for example, from an endowment of our leading musical societies, sufficient to rescue them from the ignoble and artistically dangerous position of living from hand to mouth? And how valuable to the cause of opera, whether English or Italian, would be a guarantee fund held at disposal under conditions favourable to the progress of art! In some countries the State largely concerns itself with these matters, but in England we trust to private enterprise. Wealth abounds amongst us, and so does, professedly, love for music. Cannot the love bring the wealth, as it did in the case of Ludwig II.?

We are told in our books on the rudiments of music that "melody is a succession of single sounds"; but there can be little doubt that this by no means expresses the conventional meaning of the word, for a fascinating air and a hideous progression of notes are equally "a succession of single sounds." The signification of the term by "one of the crowd" is a "tune," which can be reproduced at will, either by humming or whistling; and such critics, therefore, are dissatisfied when they find that a work contains not ample material capable of being put to such use. The advance of music, however, should convince us, not only that important compositions cannot be produced by stringing together a number of tunes, but that the character of these tunes changes in the course of time. When Beethoven's Sonatas, for example, were pronounced by tune-lovers in this country to be dreary, one of the greatest pioneers of the day, Cipriani Potter, used to play some of the most lovely passages from these works to his pupils, exclaiming at intervals "There's no melody in Beethoven, you know—no melody in Beethoven." The melody of course was there; but it was not of the kind to which those who professed to love the art had been accustomed; and like much of the music of the present time, instead of exactly representing the prevailing taste, went slightly beyond it. A celebrated New York musician, we read recently in a musical journal, had said that he anticipated with much pleasure the production of Weber's Opera "Oberon" in America, as it was "replete with delightful melody." Shortly after the first performance of "Oberon" in England, a well-known arranger published his "Fantasia on a melody in Weber's 'Oberon,'" and a critic, in noticing this, said, "the author of this piece is a clever man, for he has discovered a melody in 'Oberon.'" Persons accustomed to deliver such decisive opinions on the works of great men should be careful, for their reviews may live.

Under the signature of "Progress," a correspondent has recently forwarded us a letter commenting on the fact of our rarely hearing solos at Concerts upon any other instruments than the violin, pianoforte, or violoncello. He truly says that "those who are inclined to keep things as they are should recollect that the last few years have brought developments in concert-giving which our grandfathers could not have believed possible. More Concerts are probably now given in the metropolis in a single week of the winter season than would occur throughout the entire country in a twelvemonth—if we take a period thirty years back. Obviously the pianoforte, violin, and cello would be more suitable to that time, and its conditions, than to the countless concerts of our day; to which we ought to add that the defective mechanism of the wind instruments of years gone by materially helped to keep them in the background, though there is no cause for complaint on that score now." In an article inserted in our columns some time ago, entitled "A Plea for the Flute," a list was given of the many fine solos written for that instrument, even by the most classical composers; yet none of these are ever performed in public. When we consider that equally important solos were composed for the clarinet by Mozart, Weber, Spohr, Schumann, and Reissiger; for the oboe by Handel, Hummel, Schumann, and Kalliwoda; and for the bassoon by Mozart, Ferdinand David, Kalliwoda, Weber, and many lesser known writers, it certainly seems almost incredible that at the numerous musical entertainments, where novelty would be welcomed, the instruments we have named should be invariably confined to their places in the orchestra. The subject is indeed one well worthy of consideration; and we are glad to be enabled to aid our correspondent in giving publicity to his well-founded complaint.

SINCE the absurd system of "encoring," either at the Opera-house or in a Concert-room, became a subject of discussion in musical journals the majority of Conductors have done their utmost to abate the evil by allowing the storm of applause to cease, and then quietly proceeding onwards through the programme, even at the risk of offending some who expected a repetition of the song or piece which had created such enthusiasm. This is as it should be. The Conductor has always the power of acceding to, or resisting, a demand so utterly destructive of the continuity of a work as that for the performance of one movement of a Symphony or Concerto twice over. But when he has to deal with favourite vocalists he finds the case more perplexing, for as a singer is now scarcely considered to have been successful without a "recall," the danger is that, being once again on the platform, and the applause renewed, he or she, emboldened by this fresh token of public appreciation, will favour the noisy portion of the audience by repeating the song. Of course it is difficult for any person in authority to stop this; but prolonged applause is not always a sign that the public want a song over again; and if vocalists, therefore, will take this matter into their own hands, we beg to direct their attention to a recent criticism upon a concert in the United States, when the thermometer was at freezing point. The Conductor, it appears, having heard, as he supposed, thunders of applause, asked the audience to kindly desist from requesting encores. The author of this notice, however, says "had he known that the liberal stamping of feet was to obtain bodily comfort, he would not have been so willing to apply it to the various performances." Here, then, is an undeniable proof that vocalists should be cautious how they accept encores in intensely cold weather.

WE have much pleasure in calling attention to an excellent article in the June number of the English Illustrated Magazine, on the "Singing Voice," by Dr. Morell Mackenzie. Many volumes have recently been written on the same subject by eminent medical authorities; but it is rare to find a paper which in so small a compass gives plain and straightforward directions for the cultivation of the vocal organ on true and natural principles. Upon this point everybody knows that much difference of opinion exists. "To speak figuratively," says Dr. Mackenzie, "philosophers agree, as much as can be expected of their kind, about the voice on the level plain, but half-way up the hill-side they begin to call names, and at the top they come to blows." Of course it would be impossible to follow our author in his description of what he truly terms the "vocal instrument"; but let us say that we are quite in accord with him when he tells us that students are too much burdened with medical facts at the time they ought to be learning to sing. "Some slight knowledge of the structure of the vocal machinery," he writes, "may be advantageous to the singer by teaching him to take more care of it than he might otherwise think it worth while to do; but the smattering of universal science to which so much importance is now attached in certain quarters is quite unnecessary, and is in fact more a hindrance than a help. Let the pupil leave the scalpel and the laryngoscope to doctors, and cultivate the powers of his voice as the pugilist develops his arms, or the runner his legs, without caring to know the details of the mechanism which his will sets in motion, and which trained instinct will manage better than the most exact anatomical and physiological knowledge." The reader will find much more of this plain speaking in the admirable paper to which we refer.

It is time that public opinion should put an end to the absurdities allowed both on the Italian and English stage of opera. There have been several aggravated cases this season, especially as regards recognition of the audience by artists while the curtain is up. The traditions of Italian Opera allow this, and much else which is utterly inartistic, but it is surprising that the good example set by the Wagnerian cult has not had due influence upon the stage of English Opera. At both Drury Lane and Covent Garden artists are allowed to come on bowing and smirking to the audience, keeping the stage waiting meanwhile; after a song they are permitted to tout for an encore by dodges that need not be described, and there seems to be no law against their stepping out of the character at any moment in order to acknowledge approval. At Covent Garden the other night Antonio ("Linda di Chamouni") cursed his daughter with all the intensity possible, and flung himself out of the room as though to escape a polluted atmosphere. Languid applause following, back came Antonio, no longer an outraged and angry parent, but a smiling and satisfied person in masquerade dress. It is such absurdities as this that turn intelligent people against the lyric stage. Why does not the press take the matter up, and harp upon it till managers, following the example of some of their brethren on the Continent, fine every artist who looks over the footlights to recognise in any manner what is going on there?

It is a remarkable and significant fact that there are now in England, and at the height of the London season, three first-class prime donne, of whom two have no occupation on the lyric stage, and one appears but once a week. Had such a state of things been foretold fifteen, or even ten, years ago, even those who desired it would have laughed at the prophet as a dreamer, yet so it is. Madame Patti and Madame Nilsson have no operatic work to do, and Madame Albani appears at intervals of seven days. The farce of the prima donna assoluta, who domineers over manager, artists, and the public, thus seems to be played out, and we to have entered upon an era of just proportion and common sense. Long may it continue. Of course the pampered artists who lorded it yesterday will not come down with a good grace to an altered state of affairs. That is their business, and the public will, in a most equitable temper, leave them to do as they like. Meanwhile the prime donne have transferred themselves to the concert room as a kind of forlorn hope, seeking there to play the old game. For a time, therefore, we may see on the platform what has often disgusted us on the stage. This however, is a smaller matter that gives sensible people no concern. A miscellaneous Concert is one thing; the representation of a great operatic work is quite another.

THE CARL ROSA OPERA SEASON.

MR. CARL ROSA has held his fourth season of English opera at Drury Lane, and has only taken four weeks over it. Nevertheless, this brief period has been fraught with a great deal of importance, and in one particular respect was artistically valuable, perhaps beyond the energetic impresario's happiest of his happy efforts. While versions of German, French, and Italian opera in the vernacular go to swell the bulk of the Carl Rosa prospectus, the controversy about "English opera" or "Opera in English" is likely to be pursued; but, at the same time, real English opera is not neglected, as the production of Mr. A. C. Mackenzie's "Colomba," Mr. A. Goring Thomas's "Esmeralda" and "Nadeshda," and Mr. C. Villiers Stanford's "Canterbury Pilgrims" sufficiently attests. This is a very good record for three years, but Mr. Rosa does not rest satisfied with the laurels he has already won, and this year he has signalled his brief tenancy of Drury Lane by the production of a second opera by Mr. Mackenzie, written in collaboration with his former librettist, Mr. Francis Hueffer. The North British musician is undeniably one of the men of the age, and he has shown the world that there is no branch of his art with which he cannot deal with absolute mastery. Opera, oratorio, overtures, orchestral occasional pieces, a concerto for violin, chamber music, and numerous songs all bear testimony to the activity as well as the comprehensiveness of their author. It is not saying too much to state that the future of English opera lies to a very large extent in Mr. Mackenzie's hand, for he alone has had the courage to attempt to restore that form of entertainment to the position it once enjoyed, while keeping pace with the times and giving us the later development of dramatic lyrical work in place of the conventional or stereotyped form of the art. The old-fashioned operas by Loder, Barnett, and others were, no doubt, charming in their way—melodious music is always acceptable—but they have had their day, and amateurs clamour for something of a more advanced description. The Sullivan-Gilbert comic operas are inimitable in their way again; but, making every allowance for the genius displayed by both of these famous colleagues, they leave the matter of grand or romantic opera untouched. The claims to consideration presented by Messrs. Goring Thomas and Villiers Stanford naturally cannot be ignored; they have both done really fine work, and no doubt will furnish still more. But, on the whole, Mr. Mackenzie appears to have the destiny of our national opera in his keeping, and there is every reason to expect that he will prove worthy of the charge. He has, so far, only written two operas, but he has gained already just that amount of experience necessary to enable a composer to know really what the public requires, and to adapt artistic considerations to meet popular tastes. No doubt Mr. Mackenzie's third opera will be better than his first or second; but that is not the theme which concerns us now—we ought to be thankful for what is before us, rather than that which is in prospect, and respect the hand which gave us first "Colomba" and secondly "The Troubadour"—the latter produced with the most triumphant success on Tuesday, the 8th ult. Repetitions of the work only tended to substantiate the good impression made on the first night, and those who have heard "The Troubadour" twice or three times will want to hear it again and again. Mr. Mackenzie does not spread himself out for the crowd, and his music repays study as well as attention; his style is anything rather than superficial, and while we encounter melody in abundance, it is obvious that it is not present for mere ear-tickling purposes. If here and there we find traces of Wagnerian influence, it is the genial Wagner of "Die Meistersinger" renowned—the humorist and quaint archaic joker who could give a pleasant expression to mediæval homely life, and who had no objection to an operatic chorus—not the perpetrator of monstrous fables and unpleasant legends. Nothing could possibly agree better with the subject selected for illustration than Mr. Mackenzie's music, and probably any thoughts of the "Meistersinger" which it may conjure up are due rather to the appropriate treatment of an antique story than to any actual resemblance in phrase or measure. And what a subtle charm hangs around this old world music—ancient, yet, by a curious contradiction, ever fresh. It is like the perfume of lavender, long hidden from the light of day in some old press, or the aroma of rose-leaves by chance discovered between the pages of an old book, telling of bygone days of sunshine and warmth.

In selecting the theme for his second opera book, Mr. Hueffer had recourse to fact in preference to fiction. That is to say, the Troubadour who figures in the new work really did exist, and really came to the tragic end depicted in the stage version. Mr. Hueffer was obliged to omit some of the details of the historical narrative, and the audience was not expected to imagine that the heroine eats the roast and peppered heart of her lover. This matter is glossed over with a great amount of skill, and Mr. Hueffer has shown the possibility of casting a glamour of terror upon a dramatic subject without descending to revolting details. History tells us that Guillem de Cabestanh, the son of a poor Knight of Provence, was a Troubadour—musician and poet. He entered the service of Count Raimon, of Rossilho, as a kind of lackey, fell in love with the Countess, was detected in his misdoings, and waylaid and slaughtered by the Count, who caused the victim's heart to be served up at supper, and interrupted the ghastly meal by producing the Troubadour's head. Probably many will perceive some kind of rude justice in the doom which befel Guillem, when compared with the customs and manners of the privileged classes of the eleventh or twelfth centuries. Nevertheless, although we are content to sup our fill of horrors in "Il Trovatore"—in Italian, remember—this kind of carouse is too disagreeable to please staid Britons. So thought Mr. Hueffer, and we perfectly coincide with his ideas.

With a considerable amount of ingenuity and skill, the author has spared his audience many of the repulsive details which go to build up the history of Guillem de Cabestanh. In the Masque, allegorically portraying the Vintage, St. Medardus approaches the Countess with an offering of peculiarly rich grapes, from which is made a wine called "Blood of the poet"—Sanh del Trobador. This same wine is called for by Raimon, and in it Margarida pledges an "absent friend" at her husband's suggestion. Whether the "Blood of the poet" is here nothing but symbolical, or whether the life current of the hapless Guillem is presumed to have passed Margarida's lips, the spectator is left to judge for himself. Taken altogether, we are inclined to rate the libretto of "The Troubadour" at a much higher value than that of "Colomba." Few things in this world are perfect, and perhaps the book has its blemishes as well as its excellencies. Having taken a simple and direct story in hand, however, Mr. Hueffer has treated it in a straightforward fashion; some of the lyrics are extremely good—notably the tenor song in the first act, "The sunray's shine"—imitated, as we are informed, from a model written by the real Guillem—and the reproduction of a Provençal alba for the contralto in the third act, "Beneath a hawthorn."

The composer dispenses with the orthodox overture in favour of a short introduction, which announces the material which he intends to employ as leitmotiven, or identifying themes. First of all the woodwind and horns give out the leading subject of the hunting chorus; but above this steals in the Troubadour motif, stately and enticing in its perfect simplicity. One is tempted to fancy that music such as this would have pleased the judgment of Chaucer or other primitive poet. A few bars lead to the enunciation of the second theme, occurring in the last scene of the drama, and yet a third, which also is employed in illustration of the catastrophe. With no formal cadence the movement passes, by an enharmonic change looking far more formidable on paper than it is in reality, to the preamble of the first chorus. The rise of the curtain discloses a group of people, conveniently classed as "retainers, serving-maids, &c.," who are in a huge state of excitement about something. The "something" having resolved itself into the advent of a noble knight, "Upright and tall he stands," the chorus merge their exclamations into a charmingly bright, flowing strain in 6-8 measure. Count Raimon, lord of the estate, and his fidus Achates, Count Robert, of Tarascon, come upon the scene, the former bidding his vassals tell the stranger to approach the court. The Guillem motif, pompously announced by the full strength of the orchestra, leads to the entry of the hero. Troubadouring must have been a very good undertaking in those palmy Provençal days; for Guillem de Cabestanh not only bestrides a "palfrey" which would do honour to Sanger's circus, but is attended by two pages, who respectively carry his helmet and sword and lute. In dignified tones Count Raimon bids his guest be welcome, addressing him as "Thou noble singer." The Countess Margarida encounters him with less tranquillity. A tell-tale start has already aroused the vigilance of the suspicious Raimon. The full chorus and principals repeat the "Welcome" theme, after which Guillem returns thanks, in a solo hardly to be classed as an arietta, but still rising to a higher level than that of mere recitative. Lightly and fancifully scored, this address at once draws favourable notice to the singer and his task. In return for the Count's hospitality, Guillem offers the only treasure that belongs to him, as he modestly puts it—his songs. But Raimon will not put him to the test until he has rested and refreshed himself. Count Robert treats Raimon's growing suspicions with laughter, but already the shadow of impending doom has spread itself over Margarida. In vain her sister, Azalais, counsels caution, stating that there is no danger but that which lies in discovery; Margarida is considerably frightened, and hardly regains her self-possession through the masque which now ensues.

Light tripping strains, scored with the utmost daintiness, give token that some new change of sentiment has come over the scene. One very characteristic phrase in the 3-4 Allegretto movement reminds us of a part of the orchestral ballad "La Belle Dame sans Merci," but it is quite Mr. Mackenzie's own, and adds to the gracefulness of the theme. A peasant solicits permission to present the first-fruits of the bounteous season. Meanwhile seats are placed for the knights and ladies, and rustic music, imitating bagpipes and almost serving to suggest that the composer's foot is on his native heath and his name McPibroch, ushers in a carol-like melody, given out by the tenor peasant, and asking attention for the "rude show and simple rhymes." The nobles being seated at one side of the stage, and the two leading peasants standing opposite them on a kind of dais, girls come in bearing baskets of grapes, and armed with silver sickles. The music takes the form of a waltz during the short time the evolutions are in progress; but after a while the peasant lass, explaining matters to the spectators on the stage, takes up the strain, which here passes from the minor to the major key, and takes the rhythmical beat of a bolero. Very choicely harmonised is this brief solo and its choral response. The masque proceeds with two wild men of the woods—Satyrs, in fact—breaking in upon the peaceful serenity of the celebrants of the vintage feast, chasing the girls, and robbing them of their grapes. St. George, fully accoutred in shining armour, and Hercules, armed with a responsible club, soon put the wild men to rout. The chorus relate what is taking place in the mimic show, and the barbarians being killed, and thus having fulfilled their task in the exhibition, get up and make their bow before retiring. A song in praise of wine, "For wine gladdens the heart of man," is next allotted to the two leading peasants, and in this number Mr. Mackenzie has been favoured with the happiest inspiration. It is quite new and original, and the manner in which each verse winds up is most telling. We find another reminiscence of the "Belle Dame" motif in the refrain "Viva la joya," but this is now recognised as an essential part of the opera. The apparition of St. Medardus, patron of vineyards, arouses Margarida from a state of lethargy; the Saint offers grapes, which, the peasant tells us, make the wine "Blood of the poet"—Sanh del Trobador—where, of course, the fatal leitmotiv comes in. A short interval elapses before the reappearance of Guillem, who is asked to sing. His song, "The sunray's shine," is lyric beauty personified. Ostensibly raised in praise of the generous juice of the grape, the ballad is directly intended as a love song for Margarida, whose synonym—a pearl—is constantly referred to. Probably admirers of "The Rose of Sharon" will find a family likeness between the first tenor song in that work and the gem of the new opera, heightened too by the device of supporting the voice with a solo violin. Here is the only objection possible to urge; the tones of the voice and the fiddle do not amalgamate unless the instrument is particularly well played, and the same result of giving breadth and prominence to the melody could be attained by using muted violins playing in octaves. As the song gathers in passion, so do the throng of on-lookers commence to intermingle their ejaculations with those of the poet, until the whole reaches an extraordinary pitch of intensity. Mr. Mackenzie is no formalist, and his writing for the voice sometimes places a heavy strain upon the singer. The interval, for example, from E on the first line in the treble to the A above the staff must be excessively trying to any tenor. Mr. McGuckin, however, was fully equal to the exigencies of the case, not only surmounting this difficulty with ease, but winding up with a resonant B flat from the chest. Margarida, off her guard, approaches Guillem, to crown him with the vine; but the watchful Azalais takes the garland from her sister's hand before she can bestow it. The quick-eyed Raimon has, nevertheless, seen too much for his peace of mind, and the strains of the "Sanh del Trobador" motif, in augmentation, mingle with the approving plaudits of the crowd; while Robert, sinister of mood, exclaims, "Behold, a mystery!" Raimon adding, "Which I shall fathom," as the curtain falls to the Guillem theme. The second act, entitled "The Hunt," reveals an open glade in the forest. In a natural bower Guillem and Margarida are discovered—he insidiously reading the narrative of Launcelot and Guinevere. The "pearl," however, has not lost its lustre up to the present, but like Tristan and Isolde, or Francesca da Rimini and Paolo Malatesta, the pair are enraptured with each other. The highly convenient Azalais, who happens to be hunting around about there, takes Margarida to task, but is herself overheard by Count Raimon, who is more than ever incensed at the gabble about the "poet's wife" and "tender pity." In the distance are heard the voices of the huntsmen, who presently come into view on their way to the chase. The music is suggestive as well as ear-haunting, and Mr. Mackenzie makes some wonderful effects with the tympani, which are not only startling, but, as far as we know, perfectly original. There is more than a suspicion of the "Scotch snap" about the setting of the couplet—

To the greenwood we go to chase the deer,
Green is the woodside, brown is the heath.

The number is none the worse for that, nevertheless. While the hunters file across the stage Raimon requests Guillem to give him a private meeting there, after the chase. The dismal forebodings of the chorus "Swifter than west-wind and cloud is death," remain present with us while the singers are seen and heard no more; and a long soliloquy is indulged in by Margarida. She has known no husband's love—has felt no sympathy extended to her by the man to whom she is mated against her will. Here is a situation calling for the most graphic powers of the musician, and Mr. Mackenzie has fully risen to it. Unfortunately, at the second performance, Madame Valleria was compelled by fatigue to eliminate it and the work was thus shorn of one of its leading events. A cry from one of the huntsmen proclaims the sighting of a quarry, and Margarida (who is just a trifle morbid in her fancies) foresees her own doom. Unwitnessed by the party of hunters, she sees them return laden with their spoils, and also overhears an iniquitous plot laid by Raimon to assassinate Guillem in cold blood. At a given signal a churl in ambush is to dispatch a bolt from his cross-bow through the poet's heart. The opportune presence of Margarida renders this scheme nugatory; but the Count has another card yet to play, and asks the name of the mistress who inspires his songs. Azalais, to shield her sister, assumes the position of the enamoured one. All the music hereabouts is intensely thrilling, as well as admirable as abstract art. A trio, in the author's favourite triplet rhythm, "My plighted troth," for Raimon, Azalais, and Margarida, works up to a vigorous climax, the strain being taken up by the chorus. Raimon appears to care nothing for other people's wrongs, but only for his own, so that when Azalais's honesty is put to the test by a proposed visit to her future husband's castle he makes no demur, and the party are all supposed to set out for Liët, Count Robert's residence. As the curtain again descends, all the bustle, passion, and excitement of the drama is removed from the stage, and through the gloom comes the inexorable song of the hunters, "Swifter than horses and hounds is death."

There is a vigour and elasticity about the finale of the second act which cannot fail to impress impartial hearers; in conception and construction the work is quite in the mode of grand opera, and it is not to its detriment that the leading melody clings to one. Extreme intervals for the voice Mr. Mackenzie frequently indulges in, but when it comes to handling the orchestra he is perfectly in his element, and need not cry "peccavi" to any contemporary musician. We have already referred to the point made by the introduction of an extra drum in the hunting chorus, but this is a veritable grain of sand in a bushel—wherever we look for it we find evidences of thought, care, conscientiousness, and freedom.

For the third act the musician has provided an elaborate entr'acte, robust and manly, like the majority of his compositions, and replete with "out-of-door" flavour. On its first performance this interlude took an immediate hold upon the audience, and was redemanded and repeated with great enthusiasm. The gloomy mood is abandoned for something less sombre; the brass instruments sing out in no bashful way—and though at first the metre suggests the dance, above serious interest, the closing section is majestic and pompous enough to gratify even a provincial mayor. Above broad staccato chords the cornet blares out a semi-martial subject, the basis of which is unquestionably mediæval and very invigorating to listen to. The entr'acte will often be heard in the concert-room, apart from the opera itself, just as the interlude from "The Rose of Sharon" found acceptance in the ranks of concert programmes. The third act of "The Troubadour" is entitled "The Feast." The locality is Castle Liêt, the home of Count Robert of Tarascon; the hour approaching midnight; the scene the gardens surrounding the château; the actors Guillem and Margarida. He waits below in the obscurity, while she utters reflections upon the uncharitableness of fate. The sounds of revelry, coming from the great hall, break in upon and interrupt Margarida's reflections. She believes her lover to be faithless, and it occupies Guillem a considerable time to explain away how great and generous was the sacrifice made by Azalais. The misunderstanding being removed, a love duet of the most intense description ensues. It is hard to indicate the directness or force of a love scene such as this, which probably only knows its equivalent in the "Tristan and Isolde" of Richard Wagner. The revellers come from the castle, having been treated in a princely fashion, and being disposed freely to admit it. The cornet phrase from the entr'acte depicts the thanks of the guests. The luckless Troubadour and his lady love are detected, though their identity is unsuspected by others than Robert, who certainly knows in what direction the land lies. He is too jovial a spirit to spoil sport, and for this once Guillem and Margarida are left to their own devices. That being so, of course they sing a duet—remarkable in this instance for the adherence to the diatonic scale, not, as a rule, a mark of modern musical productions. Muted violins, divided, and the woodwind band take the chief share of the accompaniments. All is reposeful: all is charming. The lovers rest in sweet communion until the birds are heard in the leafy canopy overhead; but the handy and considerate Azalais is hovering about the neighbourhood, to preclude intrusion. She sings to her not extra-prudent sister an alba or morning song, as the Provençals would have denominated it: watch-song, as the Germans would possibly feel inclined to designate it. This composition is a stroke of positive genius; and where to discover its compeer we know not. Two clarinets and a couple of horns play the preliminary symphony—then the stringed band takes up the accompaniment. Mr. Mackenzie has surprises innumerable in store for his hearers. He will neither convince you of his own determination of casting his composition in any one specified key nor any arbitrary time-measure; but his guidance is so reliable that we follow him, unquestioning, whithersoever he may lead. This alba, or aubade, is a gem without price; it is thoroughly unique, and completely beautiful. Miss Marion Burton's singing of this air was also a thing which few would wish to find improved upon. Margarida and Guillem permit themselves to be aroused from their dreams of bliss, because with the first blush of dawn come the contestants for the "Paume" championship, the two houses of Rossilho and Tarascon being represented. While the players are amusing themselves and their antagonists, the chorus indulge in a moral homily—a pretty part-song on the antique lines, but eminently calculated to rouse the ire of such a choleric gentleman as Count Raimon. The expected assault does not come from this quarter, but from Count Robert, who is prompted into ill-feeling against his will. When one wishes to kill a rival, perhaps meaner ways than ordinary to bring matters to an issue are con-donable. So Robert, despite his nobility, calls Guillem ugly and ill-mannered, and then hacks and hews at the minstrel with a big double-handed sword—persistent use of which would prevent any mediæval lute-player from shining in his calling. No damage comes of this flashing of sword blades, because Margarida interposes, declares that the Troubadour is hers, and that to him all her love is given. The Counts content themselves with exclaiming "A marvel," and a "very quick curtain" finishes the act. The fourth act is the Nemesis of the piece. In an upper chamber of the Castle of Rossilho, Guillem and Margarida are found engaged upon their customary pursuit of love-making. The love-music is pretty and impassioned and when Guillem has taken his departure, and the faint reverberations of his exquisite motto-song have waned, the vengeful Count Raimon asserts himself again. The soft, warm tone of the accompaniment to the Troubadour's last utterance is a masterstroke of instrumentation; but Raimon brings a different element to bear on the fact. In a boisterous drinking song he bids his wife to drink to the absent poet—the brindisi reminding one, in rough muscularity and brusqueness of instrumentation, of the serenade in Berlioz's "Faust." Margarida's vision, as she witnesses the slaughter of Guillem, "in a glass, darkly," is relieved with some passages of fine music—anticipated, or, rather, epitomised, in the introduction. Madame Valleria threw immense spirit into her assumption, and in her histrionic, no less than in her vocal, display, did herself full justice. Margarida is taunted with her love for the poet; the curtains are withdrawn after a while as the huntsmen bring in their "quarry," and the burden of their song is heard for the last time. Margarida believes that she has drunk of her lover's blood; she asserts her undying love for the butchered minstrel, and defeats the murderous intent of her husband by casting herself from the window.

The final scene for the soprano, in Mr. Mackenzie's new opera, is certainly as trying a task as was ever entrusted to a prima donna. From the mere muscular fatigue there is not so much to fear as the tension of the artist's nerves. Madame Valleria kept herself fully well strung for the part, but the second advertised performance was obliged to be kept in abeyance, owing to her indisposition. The third advertised representation (in reality the second) occurred duly, and the opera was greeted with ringing cheers. In making mere mention of the effectiveness of Mr. Barton McGuckin as the hero; of the dramatic and vocal ability shown by Mr. Crotty as the Count Rossilho; of Mr. Barrington Foote's intelligence in the rôle of Count Robert; and of the clever singing of Mdlle. Vadini and Mr. Beaumont as the Peasants in the Masque, an inadequate tribute to the abilities of the various performers is made. Madame Valleria was throughout excellent; and Miss Marion Burton sang the delicious "alba" in the best possible taste. The mise-en-scène by Mr. Harris, was, we suppose, as effective as could be expected in the short time at his disposal, the theatre not having been closed for a single evening previous to the commencement of the opera season. The opera was, however, produced with considerable display, especially in the case of the costumes, the richness and variety of which, we believe, were due to the liberality of Mr. Rosa.

The exigencies of space, no less than the absence of further novelty from the achievements of the season, render a very brief summary of the doings at Drury Lane sufficient to fulfil all useful purposes. Not only the stock operas, in "The Marriage of Figaro," "Faust," "The Bohemian Girl," and other familiar excerpts from the Carl Rosa repertory, have attracted large and attentive audiences, but such comparatively new works as "Carmen," "Esmeralda," "Nadeshda," and "Manon" have secured their due share of notice. The valuable assistance of Madame Marie Roze as Carmen and Manon has been conspicuously apparent; Madame Georgina Burns and Madame Julia Gaylord have repeated favourite impersonations with excellent result; Mr. Barton McGuckin, by his fine acting and impassioned singing in the part of Des Grieux, in Manon, has almost given a solace for the absence of the late Joseph Maas—the "creator" of the character in London; Mr. Charles Lyall has once again exhibited his exquisite sense of drollery; Messrs. James Sauvage, Ben Davies, Beaumont, Turner, Burgon, Aynsley Cook, Walter Clifford, and Crotty, have lent willing and effective energies to the cause, and Miss Marion Burton has displayed marked progress in the delineation of contralto rôles. Mr. Mackenzie has conducted his own work; the practical direction otherwise devolving upon Mr. Carl Rosa or his assistant, Mr. E. Goossens.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

WITH every desire to write words of encouragement concerning the present endeavour to re-establish Italian Opera, it cannot be said with justice that Signor Lago has so far exhibited any special fitness for the task he has undertaken. Not that the average merit of the performances has been so low as to call for direct censure, but reliance has been placed on a semi-worn out répertoire, and as regards the stage arrangements there has been a woeful falling off from the high standard observed at Covent Garden Theatre in former days. Up to the 26th ult., the Operas given have been "Lucrezia Borgia," "Rigoletto," "Faust," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Les Huguenots," "Un Ballo in Maschera," "Il Trovatore," "Ernani," "La Gioconda," "La Traviata," "Linda di Chamouni," and "Don Giovanni." If three-fourths of this list were permanently removed from the catalogue of available operas, no one would complain. The attitude of the public in the matter has been significant—"Faust," "Les Huguenots," and "Don Giovanni," have drawn excellent houses, but on the other nights the appearance of things has generally been unsatisfactory. It would be a weary and profitless task to speak in detail concerning the whole of the performances; indeed the only important point for consideration is the claims of the various new singers to rank among acceptable lyric artists. So far the impresario appears to have made his engagements with tact and judgment. Foremost among the novices in London must be placed Miss Ella Russell, an American soprano. Her voice is a true soprano, not very powerful, but sympathetic in quality and absolutely free from vibrato; and though she does not indulge in very daring feats of vocalisation, her singing is remarkable for neatness and refinement in execution. As an actress she has more to learn, or rather we should say, she has to reap the benefit of experience. Another American vocalist who sings under the name of Madlle. Giulia Valda has also made a favourable impression. She has a bright and well-trained soprano voice, and she acts with vivacity and intelligence. Madlle. Teodorini, who has appeared as a dramatic soprano, is unfortunately past her prime. She is an extremely earnest and painstaking artist, but her voice is somewhat hard and unpleasant in quality at present, whatever it may have been at an earlier period of her career. We have only to add a favourable word concerning Signor D'Andrade, a high-class baritone, who has rendered valuable service in several parts. It would be an injustice not to refer to the remarkable histrionic improvement evinced by Madame Albani in every character she has sustained, and it is much to be regretted that she has not as yet been called upon for work of a higher class. The orchestra and chorus have been on the whole satisfactory, but, as already stated, the scenic arrangements have been generally mean and poverty-stricken. "Colomba" has not yet been placed in rehearsal, so that there is small chance of its being produced this season.

RUBINSTEIN'S RECITALS.

THESE performances, so much discussed while in progress, almost belong now to old history, while the remarks upon the performer which appear in another part of our present issue, render unnecessary here any attempt at general criticism. But our record must be made complete, even if by no more than an "abstract and brief chronicle." We take up the series, therefore, at the point of breaking off last month.

The fourth Recital took place May 27, and was entirely devoted to the works of Robert Schumann, whose vast influence upon pianoforte music thus obtained adequate—some may think more than adequate—recognition. In the course of a long performance, Mr. Rubinstein played the Fantasia in C, the "Etudes Symphoniques," the "Kreisleriana," Sonata in F sharp minor, four of the Fantasias (Op. 12), and the "Carnival Scenes," as well as a few isolated pieces. Comment upon these works is unnecessary. So frequently are they performed now that Schumann is a fashionable composer with pianists, that themselves and their significance must be known to everybody. The artist did his best to keep up the interest of a long programme devoted to one man's music and therefore dangerously defiant of ennui. Mr. Rubinstein loves Schumann's works with good reason, for in all of them we find the interpreter and his theme more or less in accord; while some of them serve to bring out whatever in him is most admirable. Among such are the little fantasias known as "Traumeswirren," "Abends," &c., selections from which the great pianist played to absolute perfection. His rendering of the "Carnaval" was awaited with interest, and generally answered expectation. Now and then Mr. Rubinstein gave way to impulse and fell into exaggeration, but these cases were very exceptional.

On the 1st ult. (fifth Recital) the artist presented a very mixed selection, drawn from Clementi, Field, Hummel, Moscheles, Thalberg, and Liszt—all of them men who were both pianists and composers, and who wrote not only for their own instrument, but, presumably, to suit their own strong points. The audience were thus invited to an afternoon with the diu minores, and very much, we are bound to say, they appeared to enjoy it. Mr. Rubinstein was at his worst in the Sonata of Clementi, which contains the theme taken by Mozart for the "Die Zauberflöte" Overture. It came first in the programme, and the late arrivals were pouring in. The reciter, therefore, did not treat this item seriously, but scrambled through it almost anyhow. He made amends in a selection from Field's Nocturnes, playing them with charming delicacy and grace, and with a power of refined expression absolutely his own. Hummel's Rondo in B flat was simply travestied, but Moscheles came in for better treatment. Nothing could have improved Mr. Rubinstein's execution of that composer's pretty "Conte d'Enfant," which used to be so great a favourite years ago. How he performed such congenial music as that of Henselt needs no telling, while in a large group of Liszt's pieces the varied powers of the artist received ample demonstration. On the whole this Recital was an execrable success. He had not to do with works of the highest class as abstract music so much as with works written for a specific and limited purpose akin to that of the Recital itself.

On the 4th ult., Mr. Rubinstein devoted an entire performance to the works of Chopin, as was looked for by those who had ventured to speculate upon his probable course in dealing with that attractive and, in some respects, unique composer. This was an heroic effort, even if regarded only as a feat of memory and endurance. In the extensive programme were the F minor Fantasia, six Preludes, four Mazurkas, four Ballades, two Impromptus, three Nocturnes, three Waltzes, a Barcarole (F), Scherzo (B minor), the Sonata with the funeral march, a Berceuse (D flat), and three Polonaises—in all thirty pieces. Mr. Rubinstein's reading of Chopin's music is so well known that we need not discuss it here. The main point for notice is whether he was in the mood to rival the best of his former achievements. To a certain extent an affirmative answer must be given. Many of the pieces came forth clothed with all the graces that a sympathetic genius could add to their own. Others again had more or less violence done to their spirit and meaning; the artist imposing upon them so much of his own individuality as to obscure, if not to hide, that of the composer.

Chopin was introduced also at the seventh Recital (8th ult.) when Mr. Rubinstein played eleven of the Polish master's Studies, following on with a liberal selection from various Russian composers, including Glinka, Tschai-kowsky, Rubinstein himself and his brother Nicholas, as well as others unknown in this country even by name. It must be confessed that, apart from Chopin, the final programme of the series was an anti-climax, many of the pieces challenging interest merely as examples of contemporary Russian art, in which, as such, an English public could not be expected to take much interest. The great pianist gave an extra performance on the 11th ult., then playing a number of miscellaneous selections, and again drawing an overwhelming audience. For some general reflections upon the whole campaign we refer our readers to the article already mentioned.

RICHTER CONCERTS.

THE fifth programme of the series (May 31), was remarkable as containing no work from the pen of Richard Wagner, whose place was taken for the nonce by his contemporary, and, in some respects, exemplar, Hector Berlioz. Two movements—"Scène d'Amour" and "La Reine Mab"—were contributed by the French composer, before whom came Beethoven with his fifth Pianoforte Concerto (Mr. C. Hallé), and after whom came the same great master with his "Eroica" Symphony. These things belong to Mr. Richter's stock repertory, and it would be superfluous to discuss either them or their performance. The Berlioz music was given with great delicacy and refined expression. By way of novelty, the director set before his patrons an overture written by Mr. F. H. Cowen for the opening of the Liverpool Exhibition, and then only played in part, owing to the intervention of a Mayor whose notion of the dignity of art fits him to pose as a typical British Philistine. It thus happened that the performance of the work in St. James's Hall was the first ever given. Mr. Cowen's pièce d'occasion made a more favourable impression than is usually the case with its kind. It is modelled on the customary form, with a slow introduction; reveals the composer's characteristic fancy and grace, and is marked by considerable ingenuity of treatment. The prominence among its themes of a choral by the late Prince Consort constitutes no drawback, Mr. Cowen having handled the tune with impressiveness. It is the fate of these ceremonial pieces to die quickly, but in many respects the Liverpool overture deserves a better one.

The sixth and seventh Concerts (7th and 10th ult.) were wholly devoted to Richard Wagner, but it should be stated that the second of the programmes was merely a reproduction of the first. In this case the purpose was to make some small amends to the lovers of German opera for the absence this season of their favourite delectation. Of course little could be done at the best, but Mr. Franke achieved that little by presenting the entire second act of "Tristan und Isolde" and part of the last act of "Siegfried"; specially bringing over from Germany as chief vocal executants two Wagnerian singers of fame—Fräulein Malten and Herr Gudehus. The gentleman might as well have stayed at home, for either voice fatigue or a bad cold so incapacitated him that it became necessary to make an apology on his behalf to the crowded and expectant audience. The lady, on the other hand, did good service. She is experienced as a Wagnerian declaimer, and her rendering of Brunnhilde's music was especially a success. The other vocalists were Miss Cramer, Mr. Ritter, and Mr. Henschel, each of whom did well—the last-named, if possible, better than well as regards the spirit and dramatic significance of his theme. In such works as those above-named, however, the orchestra stands first, and for this the greatest Wagnerian conductor of the day fully answered. The intricate, sometimes perplexing, texture of Wagner's instrumental music could not have been more fully revealed, or the composer's intentions more clearly carried out. In these respects the entire performance gave immense satisfaction.

On the 16th ult., the director, Mr. Franke, took a "benefit" in the Albert Hall, following up his policy of the previous week by filling the programme with one or more selections from each of Wagner's operas, beginning with "Rienzi" and, of course, ending with "Parsifal." The hall was by no means full, yet the beneficiary must in some respects have been satisfied with an attendance which elsewhere would have appeared enormous. Very little need be said about what was done, for the sufficient reason that the programme contained nothing that has not been played time and again at the regular Richter Concerts. The "Rienzi" Overture, Senta's Ballad, sung by Madame Valleria; the "Tannhäuser" Overture, the "Lohengrin" Introduction, the Introduction and closing scene from "Tristan," the "Meistersinger" Overture, the "Walkürenritt," the Funeral March from "Götterdämmerung," and the Introduction to "Parsifal"—all these pieces are as familiar now as household words. So, too, is the character of their rendering under Mr. Richter's bâton. Besides Madame Valleria, Miss Cramer and Mr. Henschel took an efficient part in the vocal music. The band was increased to 150 performers, yet, somehow, wanted resonance.

It was proposed to introduce a much talked of Symphony by Bruckner, at the eighth Concert (the 21st ult.), but its performance had to be postponed. The programme was thus deprived of every element of novelty, and restricted to such stock pieces as the "Euryanthe" and "Leonora" Overtures, the "Pastoral" Symphony, and two or three of the customary Wagner selections, in some of which the vocal ability of Mr. Henschel was displayed. Concerning the final Concert, and the Bruckner Symphony then performed, we must speak in our next issue.

SEÑOR SARASATE'S CONCERTS.

THIS season has proved to be an unexampled period of hero-worship and concert patronage, notwithstanding the fact that music in all of its varied phrases has been utterly done to death. There must be more money in the country than has been supposed by pessimists, or people would not have flocked in their shoals to all the Liszt entertainments and receptions, to the recitals given by Messrs. Pachmann, Frederic Lamond, Stavenhagen, and last, though by no means least, Mr. Anton Rubinstein, or to the violin and orchestral concerts given by the wonderful Spanish virtuoso, Señor Sarasate. Nor would the permanent concerts, such as the Philharmonic and Richter performances, have obtained such liberal support, if the fancied depression had affected the paying public—the moneyed classes. Señor Sarasate has peculiar claims upon the attention of amateurs of the fiddle, because he is nothing short of a phenomenon, the Paganini of the day—though it is to be doubted whether Paganini himself ever rivalled, by legitimate means, his gifted successor. It is well known that the eccentric Italian fiddler was not at all particular as to the way in which he produced his effects, so long as he obtained them, and that he would alter the tuning of the instrument if by that device he could simplify technical difficulties. Sarasate has no need to resort to such meretricious adjuncts: he compels the violin to do everything he pleases—except speak—and truly shows the fiddle to be the "marvel of music," as Mr. Gladstone in a happy moment (and one which did not need contradicting) expressed it. The parallel between Sarasate and Paganini extends further yet: both the champions of their respective epochs in exercises of agility, they neither of them ever seem to have practised, after once having reached proficiency in their art. Certainly the Spanish musician's powers have improved of late years; and the wonder is how that comes about, when he is at no pains whatever to maintain his executive facilities. The remark of Dogberry applies, with a slight alteration: "To be a well-favoured man is the gift of fortune, but to play the violin comes by nature."

Particular interest attached to the fifth and final Concert given by Señor Sarasate at St. James's Hall on the afternoon of May 29, by reason of the repetition of Mr. A. C. Mackenzie's "Birmingham" Concerto, first introduced to the notice of London musical circles by the artist for whom it was written at his second concert. There can be but little doubt that, now that the work has been thoroughly familiarised (by Señor Sarasate, by Herr Gompertz, and by M. Sainton's extremely clever young lady pupil at the Royal Academy of Music), it will not be suffered to lapse into oblivion. For such a production, violinists great and small have been waiting for years, and now that they have obtained their hearts desire, it is quite as probable that we shall have too much rather than too little of the Mackenzie Concerto in the immediate future. At least, that is, assuming it to be possible to have too much of a good thing—a position we are not inclined to take up with reference to this special work. As before, Señor Sarasate's playing of this exacting composition was a veritable revelation of dexterity; not wanting, however, in the higher qualities of tenderness and grace of expression in the slow movement. The Finale, which runs its impetuous course with a fire and vigour quite characteristic of the composer's energetic moods, created an extraordinary effect, the audience being hushed into silence by the very genius of the player, only, however, to burst out at the conclusion into cheers which might have been heard as far off as Charing Cross, by those possessed of acutely sensitive ears. Twice was the player recalled to the platform, in company with Mr. Mackenzie, and the greeting which awaited the pair was something not easy to be removed from one's recollection. A more popular triumph cannot be imagined; and this is all the more gratifying, since the Scotch composer wears his fast accumulating laurels with so much modesty. Señor Sarasate's further contributions to the programme were Mendelssohn's Concerto, and his own Fantasia on airs from "Carmen"—how rendered it would be invidious to mention. Suffice it that the leaving-taking of the artist was as cordial as his welcome, and that all will be very pleased to see him back in the Metropolis. The orchestra, conducted as heretofore by Mr. W. G. Cousins, and again "led" by Mr. W. Wiener, played Beethoven's Symphony in F, No. 8; the Ballet Music from Rubinstein's opera of "Der Dämon" (by far the best part of the work), and Liszt's arrangement of Schubert's March in B minor, most satisfactorily.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE sixth and last Concert of the season was given on the 2nd ult., the novelty in the programme being an Orchestral Suite, by Moszkowski, written expressly for the Society, and conducted by the composer. Unfettered by the necessity of musically suggesting a number of dramatic incidents, as in the last work by Moszkowski submitted to a Philharmonic audience—the "Joan of Arc" Symphony—the composer merely provides us with five pleasing and tuneful movements which, if not strikingly original, are never dull, partly on account of the cleverness of the instrumentation, and partly owing to their never being protracted to an undue length. Artistically considered, the opening movement is the best, the plan being legitimately worked out almost like the opening Allegro of a Symphony. The second movement, Allegro gioioso, includes some highly attractive themes, with much ingenious orchestration; the third movement is an Andante, with variations, one of these, a moto continuo for the first violins, with a pizzicato accompaniment, being extremely effective; the fourth movement, in the minuet-trio form, contains much graceful writing, the trio especially being remarkably tuneful; and the final movement, a Perpetuum mobile, is vivacious and sufficiently interesting to bring the work to a satisfactory conclusion. The composer, who conducted, was recalled twice, and overwhelmed with applause; yet, in spite of its undoubted success, we cannot say that the Suite is of sufficient importance to occupy so large a portion of a Philharmonic programme. The exceptionally fine performance of Beethoven's Violin Concerto by M. Ondricek, and the magnificent rendering of the same composer's "Ah! perfido," by Madame Christine Nilsson (who afterwards sang Schubert's "Erl-King," a composition by no means suited for her) were notable items in the selection; Mozart's G minor Symphony, and Berlioz's Overture "Le Carnaval Romain," displaying the powers of the orchestra and the masterly conductorship of Sir Arthur Sullivan to the utmost advantage.

MR. CHARLES HALLÉ'S CONCERTS.

SEEKERS after novelty have had no reason to complain of the programmes provided by Mr. Hallé during his present series of Chamber Concerts. On every occasion thus far one or more unfamiliar works have been brought forward, and some of them by composers utterly unknown to fame, at any rate in this country. At the third Concert, on May 29, the first item was Brahms's Trio in B (Op. 8), which, oddly enough, considering the esteem in which the composer is held, has never been performed at the Popular Concerts. It is, of course, an early work, and signs of immaturity are mingled with much that is interesting and even beautiful. The first movement is much too long and diffuse, but the Scherzo is one of Brahms's most genial inspirations. Like everything that he has written, the Trio is well worthy of at any rate occasional performance. In the same programme was a Trio in G minor, by Benjamin Godard, the French composer, whose works, so far as we are acquainted with them, display considerable originality, albeit of a somewhat bizarre type. The present example, for instance, has little pretension to classic rank in consequence of the lack of form and symmetry in the movements. But, on the other hand, the themes are generally fresh and piquant, and particularly in the two middle movements. The first book of Kiel's "Deutsche Reigen," and Beethoven's Sonata in E (Op. 109) completed the programme.

On the following Saturday there was a very attractive scheme, including three acknowledged masterpieces—namely, Mozart's Trio in E, Beethoven's Sonata in A for piano and violoncello (Op. 69), and Schumann's Fantasia in C (Op. 17). The last-named work had been played only a few days previously by Rubinstein, and if Mr. Hallé's rendering could not compare with that of the great Russian artist in intensity and wonderful contrasts of tone and style, it was a broadly intellectual interpretation, and, in a technical sense, absolutely perfect. The Beethoven Sonata was splendidly played by the Concert-giver and Signor Piatti, as was Rust's Violin Sonata in D, by Madame Néruda. The Concert ended with a series of "Trio Phantasies" (Op. 83, Book I), by Hans Huber. Having regard to the opus number, Huber must be a somewhat prolific composer, but his name is not to be found in any of the musical dictionaries. The fantasias are little sketches in various styles, and without any connection one with another. Some of them are pleasing and well-written trifles, though without any special character or individuality.

For the Concert of the 12th ult., the executants were increased to five, and Mr. Howell replaced Signor Piatti as the violoncellist. Another novelty by an unknown composer headed the programme, to wit, a Quintet in D (Op. 16) for piano and strings, by Karl Nawratil. Here again we have a work which leaves no abiding impression on the mind, owing to the absence of distinctiveness both in the thematic material and its treatment. The composer is evidently a well read musician, and we detect the influence of more than one master, though in no case is there anything to justify a charge of plagiarism. The Finale, with its strongly accentuated principal subject, is the most attractive movement of the Quintet. Goetz's Pianoforte Quartet in E (Op. 6) has been heard at the Popular Concerts, though it can scarcely be described as yet as a familiar work. It deserves to be well known, for it contains some of its lamented composer's most fresh and beautiful writing, the first, second, and fourth movements being full of spontaneity and charm. The programme was completed by Beethoven's Sonata in F sharp (Op. 78) and Brahms's Sonata in G for piano and violin (Op. 7).

A Quintet in A, by Kiel (Op. 75), opened the Concert of the 19th ult., but it proved to be no more interesting than other works from the same source which we have heard from time to time. Kiel wrote a quantity of what Wagner called Kapellmeister music, and this Quintet is a favourable example of his talent, but beyond that nothing can be said in its favour. The entire programme of this Concert showed considerable faith in the favourable disposition of the public towards unfamiliar works. Mr Hallé played Brahms's fine Rhapsodies in B minor and G minor (Op. 79), and joined Madame Néruda in Emmanuel Bach's Sonata in C minor for piano and violin, the Concert ending with Saint-Saëns's Piano Quartet in B flat (Op. 41).

THE LONDON MUSICAL SOCIETY.

AT the second and last Concert of the present season, given at St. James's Hall on the 22nd ult., this Society departed somewhat from its usual course. In place of works needing an orchestra for their execution, a programme of unaccompanied part-music, interspersed with vocal and instrumental solos, was offered, the scheme thus resembling that of a Leslie Choir Concert. We are far from saying that the change was unwelcome, for the madrigal and part-song are now distinctively English, and it would be a grave misfortune were a delightful form of art to fall into neglect in consequence of the vast increase in the study and appreciation of instrumental music. There is no occasion to deal at length with the London Musical Society's programme as no important novelties were presented. The choral items included two charming Deutsche Volkslieder by Brahms, sung in German, and more or less familiar compositions by Morley, Converso, Pearsall, Leslie, Silas, and Elliott. Speaking generally the part-singing was distinguished by refinement and unity of expression, testifying to the skilful training of Mr. Joseph Barnby. The soloists of the evening were Fräulein Friedländer (in place of Miss Lena Little), Herr Von zur-Mühlen, Miss Amina Goodwin, Miss Nettie Carpenter, and M. Lasserre, but their selections do not call for remark.

MESSRS. WILLEM COENEN, VICTOR BUZIAU, AND JULES LASSERRE'S CHAMBER CONCERTS.

THE second and last of these excellent Concerts took place at Prince's Hall, on the 3rd ult., when, as on the previous occasion, a number of interesting chamber compositions obtained a hearing. M. Saint-Saëns's Pianoforte Trio in F (Op. 18) opened the proceedings, which were judiciously varied by vocal and instrumental solos, the former well declaimed by Miss Hope Glenn, the latter consisting of two pieces for violoncello by Schumann and Davidoff, contributed by M. Lasserre, and Liszt's Rhapsody (No. 8) for pianoforte, which fell to the share of Mr. Coenen. Mr. Buziau was associated with the pianist just named in the con amore performance of Schubert's Fantasia for pianoforte and violin (Op. 159), embodying a paraphrase of one of the composer's own Lieder, and representing the master in one of his happiest moods. In such conditions we must be prepared for some of those "heavenly lengths" of which Robert Schumann speaks with rapture, and to the unwearied charm of which we can the more readily testify, since, by a curious coincidence, we heard the Fantasia in question performed twice over on the above date, in the same locality, by different combinations of artists. The concluding number of the programme—viz., Brahms's Pianoforte Quartet in G minor (Op. 25)—again united the Concert-givers, with Mr. Bernhardt as their coadjutor, in the very satisfactory interpretation of one of the most charming, because least abstruse, specimens of that gifted master's workmanship. The appreciative attitude maintained by a numerous audience throughout the performances should induce a renewal of this meritorious joint-undertaking another season.

HANDEL SOCIETY'S CONCERT.

ONLY on the principle that a charitable object disarms criticism can such a Concert as that given by the Handel Society, on the 3rd ult., be exempted from adverse comment. But such a principle we are not for a moment prepared to admit, when the locale chosen is St. James's Hall, and the nature of the works and the scale of their production is such as rather to challenge than to deprecate notice. The animadversions of the press on the unequal balance of this choir at their former Concerts have not had any effect, and the composition of the chorus on the present occasion showed no disposition on the part of those responsible to mend matters. According to the programme-book the choir mustered fifty-four sopranos, forty-nine altos, twenty tenors, and thirty-five basses, "supplemented on this occasion by a few additional voices." The evidence of the senses, however, was hard to reconcile with this statement. Unless our eyesight was grievously at fault, there were but forty male singers. This forces us to the supposition that while the printed list represented the full strength on the books, it became necessary to call in the aid of professional or semi-professional aid at the last moment in order to bring up the muster to some three-quarters of its strength on paper. This is only a supposition which we would gladly hear contradicted, but if our surmise be correct, it would go far to confirm the notorious difficulties which beset conductors of amateur societies, the members of which are of such social and political distinction as those of the Handel Society. The orchestra, principally composed of amateur players, was also "supplemented by a few additional instruments." But when we point out that the wind contingent numbered only seven players all told, of whom four were flautists, it will be admitted that the epithet we have italicised hardly expresses the full dependence of the Society on external aid. To quit the consideration of the personnel for that of the performance, we have first to notice that only one work, and that one of the most uncompromising specimens of Handel's most ponderous style, was chosen to vindicate the fitness of the title borne by this Society. Handel's Sixth Chandos Anthem does not afford any very special opportunities for distinction to either soloists or chorus, but, such as they are, the latter cannot be said to have availed themselves of them. The opening number narrowly missed being a complete fiasco, owing to a false start, and the general effect was of almost painful raggedness. This impression was partly dispelled by the singing of Mrs. Tuer and Mr. Frank Pownall, two excellent amateurs, whose rendering of the contralto and bass music fell little to be desired. Mr. Harper Kearton, owing to illness, was replaced by Mr. Reginald Groome, who gave a vigorous rendering of the air "All ye who love Him," and the soprano solo was sung by Miss Thudichum, the effect of whose naturally fine organ is impaired by a vibratory production and indistinct enunciation. The anthem was followed by Mozart's E flat Symphony, minus the last movement, and given fairly by the band. After this the choir was heard to much greater advantage in Raff's charming "Morgenlied" for chorus and orchestra, and a distinctly meritorious performance of the "Schauspiel Direktor" Overture by the latter brought the first part to a conclusion. The remainder of the programme was filled by Beethoven's so-called "Praise of Music" Cantata. The discrepancy between the sentiment of the English words which have been fitted to this work and the music itself can hardly fail to strike a person who is unacquainted with the circumstance of its composition. In this work a very fair standard of efficiency was attained by the choir, the aria and chorus "Join with me" being perhaps the best effort. The exacting soprano part of the Cantata was satisfactorily sustained by Miss Thudichum, and a word of praise is due to Miss Nunn's excellent playing of the obbligate accompaniment for violin in the aria just named. Mr. Docker conducted with conscientious care throughout.

MADAME FRICKENHAUS AND HERR LUDWIG'S CHAMBER CONCERTS.

IF public appreciation does not invariably wait upon genuine merit publicly displayed, it does so at all events as a rule, and the present (second) series of Chamber Concerts instituted by the two artists at the head of this notice furnishes one more illustration of the fact. While the high standard aimed at from the beginning in the selection of their programmes has been fully maintained, their performances have been singularly free from that undue assertion of the individual for which similar undertakings have before now created a convenient opportunity. On the other hand, there has been a steadily increasing attendance, and on both the third and the final Concerts of the season (the 3rd and 17th ult.) the Prince's Hall was completely filled with an audience as discriminating as it was appreciative. On the former occasion the performances included, among the solo numbers, Madame Frickenhaus's very spirited reading of the series of miniature tone-pictures entitled "Faschings Schwank," by Robert Schumann, and a masterly interpretation on the part of Mr. Whitehouse of the Sixth Violoncello Sonata, by Boccherini, in which the fine tone and perfect mechanism of the player were conspicuously exhibited. This artist should ere long take a high rank amongst the professors of his instrument. The lady pianist was associated with Herr Ludwig in Schubert's Fantasia in C major for pianoforte and violin (a work to which we refer in another place), Beethoven's String Quartet in C (Op. 59, No. 3), and six short movements for Pianoforte Quartet by Dvořák, called "Bagatellen," being the concerted numbers. The latter are charming trifles, full of melodious grace and characteristic detail. Mr. Oswald was the vocalist.

The fourth and concluding Concert of the season introduced two novelties—viz., a Sonata for violin and pianoforte, by Mr. Oliver King, and a Septet for strings in combination with oboe, clarinet, and horn, by Fritz Steinbach. Mr. King's Op. 40 is a musicianlike production, well-written for the respective instruments, and, as it appeared to us upon a first hearing, a distinct advance upon his previous efforts, as regards development of themes and general transparency of construction. It was admirably played by the Concert-givers, and at its conclusion the composer was called upon the platform. The Septet is a showy composition, rich in harmonious effects, but suffering from over elaboration and occasional triteness of its leading themes. The executants were Madame Frickenhaus, Messrs. Ludwig, Gibson, Whitehouse, Malsch, Beddome, and Catchpole. Other features of the programme were Madame Frickenhaus's playing of the "Waldstein" Sonata, and Herr Ludwig's very able rendering of Bach's Prelude and Fugue in G minor for violin. Vocal solos by Handel, Rubinstein, and Lassen were effectively declaimed by Miss Thudichum, to the very efficient accompaniment of Mr. Oliver King.

These Concerts may now be numbered amongst the regular institutions of the Metropolis, and their resumption next season will be looked forward to by numerous amateurs.

MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

If, amid the bustle of a more than ordinarily sensational musical season, the Concerts of Mr. Leslie's Choir had been overlooked by the public, there would have been small cause for wonder. Happily they have not been overlooked, but, on the contrary, have been so well attended that an additional performance was at once decided upon to take place on the 30th ult. This, of course, cannot be noticed in our present number, and we have only to speak briefly of the Concert on May 27. On this occasion, in addition to several of the most popular items in the repertory of the choir, such as Pearsall's "Lay a garland," Mendelssohn's "Judge me, O God," and Gounod's "Ave Verum," a new part-song was introduced, "Go, lovely rose," by Mr. J. G. Callcott, which was favourably received. The necessary relief to the choral music was provided on a liberal scale by the engagement of some of the finest available vocal and instrumental artists. Madame Norman-Néruda and Mr. Charles Hallé played Mozart's piano and violin Sonata in A, No. 17, and both performers contributed solos entirely to the satisfaction of the large audience. Mr. Lloyd was unable to sing, but Madame Albani appeared and made her accustomed effect in Gounod's "Ave Maria," and in the lovely air with chorus, "From Thy love as a Father," from "The Redemption."

HIGHBURY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The last Concert of the eighth season of this now well-established and thriving Society, was given at the Highbury Athenæum, on Monday, May 31, when Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was performed. The choruses were sung with admirable precision and vigour, and the band of the Society, supplemented by some professional wind-instrument players, rendered careful and effective support. The soprano solo music was sustained by Madame Clara Samueli, whose singing of "Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets," was all that could be wished; the contralto was Miss Evelyn Gibson, who rendered "But the Lord is mindful of His own," in a very impressive manner; Mr. Charles Chilley was efficient in the tenor solos, for which the late Mr. Joseph Maas, always a friend of, and a great favourite with, this Society, had originally been engaged; and Mr. R. Hilton, who was in capital voice, delighted the audience by his singing of the bass solos, especially "O Lord have mercy." Dr. Bridge, the Musical Director of the Society, conducted, and Mr. Betjemann led the orchestra. The performance was, as a whole, a fitting conclusion to what has proved a very successful season.

ASCENSION DAY IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

It has now become an annual custom to hold a special musical service on Ascension Day in Westminster Abbey, at which is performed some well known work with a full orchestra. This year the service was more than ever a musical one, as there were only a few short prayers and two lessons besides the works selected for performance. These consisted of the second and third parts of Gounod's "Mors et Vita" and Dr. Bridge's setting of Mr. Gladstone's Latin version of the Hymn "Rock of Ages." Additional interest was created by the assistance of Madame Albani, who, ever ready to help in the cause of charity, had kindly consented to sustain the soprano solo music in Gounod's work. The proceeds of the collection made at the close of the service were devoted to the building of a chapel for the Westminster Hospital, which is close to the Abbey.

The orchestra consisted of many of the leading players, together with some of the best known amateur strings; it was ably led by Mr. Gilbert H. Betjemann, and Mr. Winter, assistant organist of the Abbey, presided with great efficiency at the organ. The choir was a large one, numbering nearly 200 voices, amongst whom, besides the full strength of the Abbey establishment, were the boys from the Chapel Royal and Lincoln's Inn, and notably a strong contingent from the choir belonging to the Novello Oratorio Concerts. The effect of many of the movements in "Mors et Vita" was highly impressive; particularly to be noticed were the passage, "Discedite a Me, maledicti," for tenors and basses, accompanied by brass and percussion, and the "Sanctus," in which the effective crescendo was fully appreciated and excellently rendered. Madame Albani's beautiful voice was heard to perfection in the solo, "Beati qui lavant," and Mr. R. Hilton, of the Abbey choir, sustained the bass solo music, and notably "Jerusalem Cœlestis" in excellent style. His voice is well adapted to the character of the music, and he showed, in addition, a thorough apprehension of the proper manner of interpretation thereof, together with great care and precision in singing. Madame Albani also sang "I know that my Redeemer liveth" ("Messiah") in her best manner. Special interest attached to the performance of "Rock of Ages," from the fact that Mr. Gladstone was present; Mr. Hilton sang the bass solo, which, together with the concluding fugue, form the principal features of the work; the latter especially being a fine specimen of its class, finishing in quite dramatic style. It must be gratifying to the composer that this, his most recent work, should also be, in the general opinion, his best. Dr. Bridge conducted the orchestra and chorus throughout with his usual skill. The Old Hundredth Psalm was sung by the whole congregation, the full band also joining in, at the close of the service. The Abbey was crowded, several hundred people occupying the triforia; and the collection, together with a few special donations, amounted to nearly £500, being more than sufficient to defray the expense of completing the hospital chapel.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY MUSICAL SOCIETY.

THE Concerts given by this enterprising and valuable society are usually interesting to musicians, and that of the 15th ult. formed no exception to the rule, though the programme did not include any novelties. Prominence was given to selections from the incidental music composed by Dr. Villiers Stanford for the performance of "The Eumenides" last December, and that of Dr. Hubert Parry for "The Birds" of Aristophanes, which was performed two years earlier at Cambridge. Dr. Stanford's work having been heard recently at the Richter Concerts, and duly noticed in last month's MUSICAL TIMES, there is no occasion to speak further concerning its unquestionable merits and appropriateness to its subject. The numbers from the companion work included the very graphic orchestral movement "The Gathering of the Birds," the charming tenor Song of the Hoopoe (Nightingale), tastefully sung by Mr. Walter Ford, and the bright and melodious Bridal March and Chorus. The scoring in Dr. Parry's music is noteworthy for piquancy and variety of colour. The audience was evidently delighted with it, and the composer received a hearty call to the platform. Included in the programme were Brahms's Choruses for female voices, with horn and harp accompaniment (Op. 17), Wagner's Siegfried Idyll, and Beethoven's Elegiac Song (Op. 118), lately performed at a concert of the Bach Choir.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

IN the excitement and enthusiasm with which the greatest of living executive pianists has been hailed in the Metropolis, the single visit paid to Liverpool on May 22 pales in its importance. Herr Rubinstein's afternoon Recital was given in the Philharmonic Hall before a select and appreciative audience; and although the popular parts were crowded, there was ample room for more in the higher priced seats. It is difficult to explain the reason for this, seeing that Liverpool in the past has done its share in the enthusiastic reception with which the North has always greeted the great executant. The fact remains, however, and as a consequence we have this time had to rest content with this single performance, as no entreaties or promise of reformation could induce Herr Rubinstein to fulfil his second engagement on the following Saturday.

The programme for the above Recital was composed entirely of Beethoven's Sonatas, in the following order:—1. Op. 27, C sharp minor; 2. Op. 31, D minor; 3. Op. 53, C major; 4. Op. 57, F minor ("Appassionata"); 5. Op. 90, E minor; 6. Op. 101, A major; 7. Op. 109, E major; 8. Op. 111, C minor.

It is difficult to attempt to single out any one of these works as meriting exceptional praise, every theme, phrase, and note being given out with that marvellous ease and insistent power which has, at least as regards Beethoven, given Rubinstein an unimpeachable superiority over every living performer. Two of the Sonatas, however, require special mention: the "Appassionata," which, although frequently heard, has been made by Herr Rubinstein, perhaps more than any other work, essentially his own; and the last on the programme, that in C minor, which, as every would-be interpreter of Beethoven knows, is so excessively exacting that few can attempt it. The piano used was by Becker, of St. Petersburg, and was of fine tone and quality—occasionally, however, in loud and rapid passages, the vibrato of the bass was so great as to blur the clearness of the runs, to the detriment of the general effect.

The report of the Philharmonic Choral Society for the past season, 1885-6, has just been published, and from its gratifying character it was naturally received at the annual meeting, held on the 7th ult., with mutual congratulations. After providing for every liability, there remains a balance to the credit of the Society of over £155. This is a larger sum than the treasurer has ever had in hand, and it is a matter of unfeigned satisfaction that the Society has been enabled to live through all the vicissitudes of its three seasons' work, and is still before the public strong, healthy, and vigorous, with a better financial status, and a more promising prospect than even when it started full of hope and enthusiasm.

As recorded in the Report of the Committee, this successful result is due primarily "to Mr. Randegger for his invaluable assistance in the maintenance and success of the Society; to Mr. W. T. Best, who, by his splendid services, has enabled the Society to rely solely upon the organ accompaniment in lieu of an orchestra; to their very able chorus-master, Mr. James Sanders; to Mr. W. Lee, the hon. pianist; and to Mr. J. H. Turvey, the hon. secretary, by his untiring energy in promoting its welfare."

The first Concert held in the Grand Concert Hall of the Liverpool International Exhibition was given on the evening of Friday, the 11th ult., before an audience about half filling the large hall, which has been built to accommodate 4,000 persons. The paucity of the attendance is doubtless due to the high price of admission (5s., and no second price) which the authorities at first advertised, many people not being aware that on the day before the prices were lowered to 2s. 6d. and 1s. Mr. Rensburg, as President of the musical arrangements of the Exhibition, is, however, to be congratulated on the treat afforded to those present, through his having engaged the principal artists of Her Majesty's Italian Opera Company, who had arrived in Liverpool from New York the day before. The following artists appeared:—Mdlles. Alma Fohström and Dotti, Madame Labache, Signori De Falco, Vetta, and Del Puente, with Signor Arditì as Conductor. Mesdames Minnie Hauk and Nordica, who should also have taken part, were unavoidably absent. The orchestra, composed of forty-two players, was selected by Mr. John Ross, of this city, thirty being from Liverpool and twelve from Manchester. The programme, though somewhat lengthy, was excellently compiled, and contained the names of Mozart, Handel, Rossini, Meyerbeer, Verdi, Bizet and others. All the performers were well received, and by their performance well merited the good reception accorded them, but special notice must be made of Mdlle. Alma Fohström (who made her début here on this occasion) and Signor Del Puente, an old Liverpool favourite. Mdlle. Fohström possesses a bright soprano voice of fine quality and great compass, reaching, in one of her selections, E flat in alt. In the Bolero "Mercè diletti amici" ("Vesperi Siciliani"), by Verdi, her wonderful execution secured for her an enthusiastic encore. Those who heard her are looking forward with pleasure to this lady's reappearance in Liverpool in October next, when the same company is engaged for a series of Operas in Italian, at the Alexandra Theatre here. Signor Del Puente's rendering of the Torador's Song from "Carmen" was most dramatic, and gained for him the hearty plaudits of the audience. A word of praise is also due to Signor Vetta, who possesses a deep rich bass voice of good compass and timbre. The orchestra played with precision and energy the accompaniments throughout, besides the Overture to "William Tell" (Rossini), Weber's "L'Invitation à la Valse," and the grand March from "Le Prophète" (Meyerbeer), the last two items being conducted by Mr. John Ross. Whatever the financial success of the Concert may have been, there is no doubt it was in every respect a musical success.

An organ is being built in the Concert Hall of the Exhibition by Messrs. Mitchell and Thynne, and will shortly be opened. The Viennese Ladies' Orchestra continues to attract goodly numbers inside, while various military bands, of good repute and ability, discourse music to the crowds in the beautiful grounds outside.

MUSIC IN THE WEST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE long looked-for performance of Dvorák's Cantata "The Spectre's Bride" took place at the Colston Hall, Bristol, on May 24; this Concert being the last of the series of six given by the Monday Popular Concert Society during the present season. There had been two full rehearsals with band and choir, and the last of these encouraged those who attended it to hope for an exceptionally fine rendering of the work. The soloists engaged were Miss Annie Marriott, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Bridson, who all fulfilled their most trying tasks with skill and success. Miss Marriott's flexible voice was heard to great advantage in her two principal solos, Nos. 2 and 17. Mr. Kearton sang the music allotted to the Spectral Bridegroom with praiseworthy care, albeit a little coldly, and Mr. Bridson can hardly be too highly commended for the artistic manner in which he rendered the part of the Narrator, his splendid voice and fine style being exactly what was required to give the music telling effect. The only thing to be regretted was that he evidently had not rehearsed with the chorus, and this produced a raggedness in several of the numbers, notably the baritone solo with chorus, No. 3, where the choir were certainly not of the same mind as the soloist as to the tempo, and failed to come in with decision. As to the choruses generally, they were most creditably given, the choir knew their work thoroughly, and the light and shade were conspicuous in their delicacy, especially in Nos. 9, 11, and 16. No. 15 was quite a masterpiece of refined chorus-singing, and the words came out with the greatest distinctness; the alto leads in this number, too, deserve a word of commendation. The choir was fairly well balanced, although the tenors were again rather too weak, and apparently not well placed, but they worked very hard and steadily. The sopranos and basses were, as usual, by far the strongest parts of the choir, and the body of tone produced was very fine, though, occasionally, there was a slight unsteadiness, chiefly among the basses. The work of the band was so excellent as really to be almost beyond criticism, and if we might suggest a slight softening of tone during the solos, there would be nothing left to be desired but an increased number of such admirable musicians. We may mention that the band was augmented for this occasion, and, with the chorus, there were about 350 performers. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous, the two chief items being Mendelssohn's "Loreley," Liszt's "March of the Crusaders," from "St. Elizabeth," and Max Bruch's Violin Concerto (Op. 26), in which Mr. Carrington's skilful manipulation of the solo instrument won for him an enthusiastic recall.

All is Peace.

FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by EDWARD OXFORD.

Composed by BERTHOLD TOURS.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.G.)

Lento e tranquillo.

SOPIRANO.
When the tem - pest's rage is o - ver, And its noi - sy

ALTO.
When the tem - pest's rage is o - ver, And its noi - sy

TENOR.
When the tem - pest's rage is o - ver, And its noi - sy

BASS.
When the tem - pest's rage is o - ver, And its noi - sy

PIANO.*
♩ = 56.
p tu - muls cease, . . . Then the world . . from strife and tur - moil

tu - muls cease, Then the world from strife and tur - moil

tu - muls cease, . . . Then the world . . from strife and tur - moil

tu - muls cease, Then the world from strife and tur - moil

p

* For practice only.

pp cres. dim.
 Finds re - lease, sweet re - lease, finds re - lease, sweet re - lease!
pp cres. dim.
 Finds re - lease, sweet re - lease, finds re - lease, sweet re - lease!
pp cres. dim.
 Finds re - lease, sweet re - lease, finds re - lease, sweet re - lease!
pp cres. dim.
 Finds re - lease, sweet re - lease, finds re - lease, sweet re - lease!
pp cres. dim.
 Finds re - lease, sweet re - lease, finds re - lease, sweet re - lease!

Though on earth are cares and sor - rows, They in time to

Though on earth are 'cares and sor - rows, They in time to

Though on earth are cares and sor - rows, They in time to

Though on earth are cares and sor - rows, They in time to come will cease, In the gold-en . . realms of hea-ven All is peace,

come will cease, In the gold-en . . realms of hea-ven All is peace,

come will cease, In the gold-en realms of hea-ven All is peace, come will cease, In the gold-en . . realms of hea-ven All is peace,

dim. p pp

molto rallentando.

heaven - ly peace, All is peace, heaven - - ly peace.

heaven - ly peace, All is peace, heaven - - ly peace.

heaven - ly peace, All is peace, heaven - - ly peace.

heaven - ly peace, All is peace, heaven - ly peace. . .

dim. pp

molto rallentando.

dim. pp

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF TRIOS, QUARTETS, &c. FOR FEMALE VOICES.

RECENT NUMBERS.

r63. Ye shining stars...	R. Würlt	3d.
r64. Nanie	R. Schumann	2d.
r65. Sink the Night...	"	2d.
r66. The stedfast heavens	"	2d.
r67. To a skylark	Charles H. Lloyd	3d.
r68. Nurse's Song (A Two-part song)	B. Luard Selby	2d.
r69. The moorland ride	Carl Hering	2d.
r70. The shepherd boy	"	3d.
r71. Evening rest	"	2d.
r72. At the spinning wheel	"	2d.
r73. The Hussar's departure	"	3d.
r74. The Festival	"	2d.
r75. Voice of the western wind	J. Barnby	3d.
r76. The twilight star	"	3d.
r77. Sweet May	"	3d.
r78. Vox Amoris	Otto Schweizer	3d.
r79. The Knight and the Lady	"	3d.
r80. Where'er the sounding harp is heard	J. Brahms	6d.
r81. Come away, come away, Dearest	"	4d.
r82. The Gardener	"	6d.
r83. The death of Trenar	"	6d.
r84. Eglantine	Adolf Jensen	3d.
r85. The Mountain Spirit	"	3d.
r86. Spring and his Bride	"	4d.
r87. The Fairies' Song	Sir Henry R. Bishop	4d.
r88. June	Finlay Dun	3d.
r89. A Northern Love-song	H. Hofmann	3d.
r90. Sympathy	Otto Schweizer	3d.
r91. Quiet Hours	R. B. Addison	2d.
r92. Morning Hymn	G. Spontini	4d.
r93. Sweet and low	B. Luard Selby	2d.
r94. Flow down, cold rivulet	"	3d.
r95. Blessed are the pure in heart	Ernest Lake	3d.
r96. Through murr'ous leaves	G. Bartel	2d.
r97. On the land afar extending	"	3d.
r98. Morning sweet Cuckoos greet	"	3d.
r99. True life to live	"	3d.
r200. The Nightingale	Thomas Weelkes (arr. by H. Leslie)	2d.
r201. Twelve by the clock	Charles H. Lloyd	3d.

(To be continued.)

THE ORPHEUS (NEW SERIES).

RECENT NUMBERS.

r60. Breathe, my harp	Sir H. R. Bishop	3d.
r61. Fare thee well! and if for ever	C. A. Macrone	4d.
r62. Come, follow me	E. T. Driffeld	4d.
r63. Autumn is come again	F. C. Corder	4d.
r64. Great Orpheus was a fiddler...	A. C. Mackenzie	6d.
r65. Tom he was a piper's son	E. T. Driffeld	4d.
r66. O mistress mine...	"	3d.
r67. The Love Spell	T. B. Evison	3d.
r68. I wish to tune my quiv'ring lyre	S. S. Wesley	6d.
r69. Roaming	H. Hofmann	2d.
r70. Sir Cuckoo	"	4d.
r71. Glorious May	"	3d.
r72. In Spring time	"	4d.
r73. Our Maxim	"	3d.
r74. In dulci júbilo	"	4d.
r75. Dim and grey appear the mountains	Franz Abt	3d.
r76. At Andernach in Rhineland	"	3d.
r77. The Grave of a Singer	"	4d.
r78. Laughing	"	4d.
r79. Tell me where is fancy bred	Ciro Pinsuti	3d.
r80. Hymn to Cynthia	Berthold Tours	3d.
r81. The Patriot	Charles H. Lloyd	2d.
r82. A sad disappointment	C. E. McCheane	2d.
r83. Cold blows the wind	G. C. Martin	3d.
r84. Fly to my mistress	Charles H. Lloyd	3d.
r85. Fisherman's Song	Joachim Raff	3d.
r86. Herdsman's Song	"	2d.
r87. Alpine Hunter's Song	"	2d.
r88. Come, brother, gaily drink	"	4d.
r89. Winter Song	"	2d.
r90. Sad that I must turn to dust	"	2d.
r91. Cossack's Drinking Song	"	2d.
r92. One little star in the heaven...	"	2d.
r93. A mighty king is wine...	"	2d.
r94. God rules alone	"	2d.
r95. A wet sheet and a flowing sea	Charles H. Lloyd	3d.
r96. Stars of the summer night	W. A. C. Cruickshank	3d.
r97. The Norman Cider	Arthur E. Dyer	3d.
r98. The Song of the Chase	R. Schumann	4d.
r99. Have a care	"	4d.
r200. The Hunter's Morning Song	"	4d.
r201. At break of day	"	4d.
r202. In full chase	"	4d.

(To be continued.)

CANTATAS FOR FEMALE VOICES.

FRANZ ABT.

The Fays' Frolic	s. d.
The Water Fairies	2 6
The Silver Cloud	2 6
The Washing Stone	2 6
Minster Bells	2 6
The Golden City	2 6
Springtime	2 6
Summer	2 6

WILFRED BENDALL.

The Lady of Shalott	2 6
---------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

CHARLOTTE SAINTON-DOLBY.

Florimel	2 6
----------	-----	-----	-----	-----

MYLES B. FOSTER.

The Bonnie Fishwives	2 6
----------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

H. HOFMANN.

Song of the Norns	1 0
-------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

JOHN KINROSS.

Songs in a Vineyard	2 6
---------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

HENRY LAHEE.

The Sleeping Beauty	2 6
---------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

Tonic Sol-fa edition	0 6
----------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

G. A. MACFARREN.

Songs in a Corn-Field (new edition)	2 6
-------------------------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

MENDELSSOHN.

A Midsummer Night's Dream	1 0
---------------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

PERGOLESI.

Stabat Mater	1 0
--------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

E. PROUT.

Queen Aimée	2 6
-------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

HENRY SMART.

King René's Daughter	2 6
----------------------	-----	-----	-----	-----

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS OF THE FOREST

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

Poetry by EDWARD OXFORD

MUSIC BY

JOHN KINROSS.

OP. 10.

Price 1s. 7 or, singly:—

1. Early Morning	...	3d.	4. Flow'ers fair	...	3d.
2. Hunter's Song	...	3d.	5. The Waterfall	...	3d.
3. Merry Songsters	...	3d.	6. Shades of Night	...	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART ANTHEMS

FOR

LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

No. 1. The Night is far spent	...	Advent.
" 2. There were Shepherds	...	Christmas.
" 3. Is it nothing to you?	...	Good Friday or Lent.
" 4. Why seek ye the living among the dead?	...	Easter.
" 5. If ye then be risen with Christ	...	Ascensiontide.
" 6. Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard	...	Whitsuntide.

Price One Shilling; or, Threepence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

FOR LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price One Shilling; or, singly, twopence each.

No. 1. To Sea!	...	No. 5. Song should breathe of	...
" 2. If hope were but a fairy.	...	" 6. March.	...
" 3. The willow and its lesson.
" 4. The Promised Land.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUMMER NIGHTS

(LES NUITS D'ÉTÉ)

SIX SONGS BY THÉOPHILE GAUTIER

Set to Music, with Accompaniment for small Orchestra or Pianoforte,

BY

HECTOR BERLIOZ

OP. 7.

English version by FRANCIS HUEFFER. Price 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Mr. Kearton and Mr. Bridson each contributed a solo, for which they were deservedly and warmly applauded, though, as usual, the rule of "no encores" was strictly enforced. The choir was thoroughly satisfactory in "Loreley," though there was once a distinct mistake made by some of the sopranos, who came in too soon by more than a bar. Miss Marriott seemed to have reserved herself for the soprano solo in this work, and her impassioned singing of the part of Leonora was her best effort during the evening. Mr. Carrington was the leader, and Mr. George Riseley, the enterprising and honorary Conductor of these Concerts, has every reason to be gratified by the result of his ambitious undertaking. We should not omit to notice that, in honour of the Queen's birthday, the Concert opened with the National Anthem, arranged by Sir M. Costa.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THERE are but few musical matters of interest to record for the past month. The Recital given by Madame Helen Hopekirk on May 29 was an interesting event, Edinburgh being her native city. A good programme, admirably rendered, fully justified the fame she has gained during her sojourn in America, and amply confirmed the good opinion she left with her own country people three years ago. The programme comprised Beethoven's A flat Sonata (Op. 110), Schumann's Fantasia in C (Op. 17), a selection from the works of Scarlatti, Mendelssohn, Chopin, and Liszt, and two compositions by Madame Hopekirk, "Romance" and "Fantasy Pieces." The various items of the programme were received with much enthusiasm by the audience.

Herr Gallrein gave his sixth and last Chamber Concert on the 9th ult. in the Literary Institute, when Madame Agnes Drechsler-Hamilton reappeared as violinist, and Mr. Robertson, of Glasgow, was the pianist. Herr Gallrein's solo performances consisted of compositions by Goltermann and Popper, and the programme included, among other pieces, Gade's trio "Noveletten."

Music has been represented at the International Exhibition by the bands of the Royal Marines, the Seaforth Highlanders, and the Edinburgh professional band, and also by daily organ performances.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW AND THE WEST OF SCOTLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE members of the Glasgow Choral Union held their annual pic-nic on the 5th ult. They went to the same place as last year, namely, to Lochgoilhead, but landing at Carrick Castle, a little further down the loch. There was a goodly muster of both ladies and gentlemen, and on shore and sea all seemed thoroughly to enjoy themselves. There was plenty of dancing and singing, some good old part-songs having been rehearsed for the occasion.

The annual business meeting of the Glasgow Society of Musicians took place on May 28, when the reports of the secretary and treasurer were submitted. There is a balance of £52 to the credit of the Society; a very satisfactory state of matters, considering that the club has only completed its second year of existence. Weekly social meetings are to be held in addition to the monthly dinners, the better to facilitate friendly intercourse, and to give opportunities for suggestions of interest to the profession.

Nearly all our Concerts here are at present out of doors, there being several band performances throughout the week in the public parks, of which recreative places there are some four or five in Glasgow. Generally speaking these performances are of merit.

Dr. A. L. Peace has begun his fortnightly Organ Recitals in the Cathedral, and will probably continue them during July and August.

The Musical Association connected with St. Vincent Street United Presbyterian Church intend studying Cherubini's Fourth Mass in C major, and, as usual with this Society, which is conducted by Mr. H. McNabb, the work will be performed with an efficient orchestra.

On the 5th ult. the annual open air Concert of part-music was given on Gleniffer Braes, near Paisley, the choir, which numbered about 500, being conducted by Mr. J. Roy Fraser. The weather, fortunately, was fine, and there were about 20,000 persons present. The object of these meetings, as has been before mentioned, is now to raise funds for the erection of a statue in Paisley to Robert Burns, the poet.

A demonstration of part-singing, sight-singing, ear exercise, and violin performance was given in Paisley, on the 18th ult., by the students and choirs who have gained prizes and certificates this year in connection with the Paisley Musical Education Scheme, instituted four years ago. The several selections, which included a prize anthem and hymn tune, were most creditably rendered, the sight singing test (Tonic Sol-fa Notation), and the ear exercise, a somewhat difficult one, being satisfactorily accomplished. Mr. R. L. Reid conducted the choral music, and Mr. James Pattinson, Mus. Bac., Cantab., and Miss Thomson were at the piano and harmonium. On the platform were Provost Cochrane, Mr. Barbour, M.P., Mr. Myles, of the Glasgow Choral Union, Mr. W. Hume, and others. The Secretary, Mr. James Parlane, read a most interesting report of the work done during the past year, and the interest of the inhabitants in the Scheme was testified to by the crowded state of the hall.

The Ayr Choral Union will probably take up Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" as its chief work for next session.

MUSIC IN OXFORD.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE summer term in Oxford has, as usual, been marked by considerable musical activity. To dismiss first what is of least importance, a number of virtuosi have paid a visit to Oxford in the course of their travels. Rubinstein, it is true, did not come, but Pachmann, Saint-Saëns, Piatti, and Miss Fanny Davies have all been heard here during the last two months.

When we come to deal with music that is more local in its character, much of interest presents itself. During the week of the Eights' races, two fresh Colleges, Trinity and Brasenose, recruited the ranks of the Concert-giving Colleges, and both did very well for a first essay. At Trinity, the powerful aid of Miss Emily Shinner and Mr. Walter Parratt lent especial interest to the performance, which took place on May 31. The following evening was fixed upon, not only by Brasenose, but also by the non-collegiate students, for their performance, and, on the 2nd ult., an interesting Concert was given at Worcester. The first part consisted of Stanford's "Eumenides" music, the difficulties of which were well surmounted by the chorus. The music itself, perhaps owing to the want of dramatic accessories, did not make much impression. It is always rather a hazardous experiment to transfer music from the stage to the concert-room. The remainder of the Concert was chiefly noticeable for a very creditable performance of Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata by Messrs. Gauntlett and Duchesne.

The two next days, the 3rd and 4th ult., were marked by the most important musical event of the term, Mr. Ebenezer Prout's visit to Oxford on the occasion of the first performance of his new Symphony. On the 3rd "Alfred" was admirably performed at Merton College Concert. Miss Hyde, Mr. A. G. Bailey, and Mr. Sunman took the solo parts, and both band and chorus did their work well. On the 4th, the new Symphony was produced at the Queen's College Concert. Although the composer has restricted himself to an orchestra which extends no further than one pair of horns, with trumpets and drums, the richness of the instrumental colouring prevented anything like thinness or poverty of effect. The work is laid out in full symphonic form, and occupied a few minutes over the half hour in performance. On the whole, the slow movement, in spite of some most ingenious scoring, made least effect. The tunefulness of the first movement, the grace of the Scherzo, and the fire of the Finale came in for ample recognition, and at the close of the performance Mr. Prout received quite an ovation. It seems safe to predict that the new Symphony will speedily be heard in many other places, especially as the fact that it only needs a small orchestra will make it practicable in many places where a modern symphony is generally found impossible. Both the Concerts just mentioned had other items of interest. At Merton, Beethoven's "Prometheus" Overture was played, and at Queen's, Alice Mary Smith's "Red King," David's "Desert," and a chorus by Dr. Iliffe, composed for the occasion, were sung. Exeter College Concert, at which Sullivan's "Kenilworth" was performed, also took place on the 4th ult., which was the last day of Concerts for the time. A number of performances, less important on the whole, but still of some interest, are announced for the closing days of the month, too late for notice now.

WORCESTER CHORAL FESTIVAL.

THE fifth general triennial Festival of Church Choirs was held in Worcester Cathedral, on the 10th ult., with a success both remarkable and significant. For the first time there was only one service, full evensong, beginning at four o'clock, so as to allow of a general rehearsal at half-past two. The processional hymn "We march, we march to victory," to Barnby's tune, was not begun till the first division of the surpliced choirs, consisting of some 1,350 voices, were in their places. The tune, bright in itself, was brightly sung, though without any particular attention to light and shade. The service was taken by the Precentor, the Rev. E. V. Hall, with the beauty of voice and phrasing for which he is so well known. The effect of the large mass of men's and boys' voices in the Lord's Prayer, and other unison passages, was most striking; the tone—round, smooth, and full—was wholly different from that of an ordinary congregation, composed, alas, so largely of women, and even in the Cathedral the contrast between the responses of the choirs and of the enormous congregation was curiously perceptible to any one placed near the division between the two. From such a position, however, nothing was heard of Tallis's harmonies, sung by the 200 voices, including the Cathedral choir, stationed in the choir, excepting a faint echo of the concluding "Amen." The special Psalms xxiv., cxlix., and cl., the former to Marsh in E and the last-named to Pelham Humphreys, were wonderfully effective. In Psalm xxiv, the verse "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors: and the King of Glory shall come in," was sung by men alone; the fresh trebles gave the question, "Who is the King of Glory?" and the men answered it, the first time alone, the second time with all the other voices, but still in unison. It is seldom one hears a rendering so thoroughly ideal. The boys and men were also skilfully alternated in Psalm cl., but the chant lost some of its brightness in the key of B major.

The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D were by the Precentor, the Rev. E. V. Hall, and, as a whole, were effective, in spite of one terribly crude modulation, or rather transition, from the key of A straight into B flat without any preparation. The solo "And His mercy" was charmingly sung by Master Holloway, of the Cathedral Choir. The Cathedral singers also took the unaccompanied quartet "He, remembering His mercy," and the opening verse of the Nunc dimittis.

The anthem, Sir George Elvey's "Praise the Lord," did not go quite so well as the rest of the music, but this was perhaps because the Hallelujah Chorus, which was sung, we had almost said, in place of the usual sermon, had absorbed so much time and attention at practice. The Offertory Hymn was "This is the house where God doth dwell," to Dr. Dykes's beautiful tune, sung in a subdued manner, which sounded reverent. The organ continued playing till after the presentation of the alms, and then came the Hallelujah Chorus, massive and imposing, if not absolutely perfect in its execution. Is it vain to hope that, at some future day, 1,600 eyes will be able to look at the beat (we say 1,600 advisedly, bearing in mind the old maxim "one eye on your music and the other on the stick") and not remain as they do now, glued to the book, especially in any difficult passage? The idea of the majority of chorus-singers seems to be that the conductor is a man who beats time, and that if they can count their own time there is no need to look at him. It may perhaps dawn gradually on their minds that a look at the stick tells them in an instant at what beat of the bar they are, in itself a great help in complicated passages; and also that one glance at their music will show them the notes of the whole phrase, while the conductor will show them in what manner it is to be sung, if they will only give him the chance. Any uncertainties in the Hallelujah Chorus at this Festival were amply accounted for in this way, and the wonder is that under the circumstances there were not more. If every man can keep his own time for his own self, even in such an approximate degree, it looks rather as if we were not, as a nation, so utterly devoid of the sense of time as we are sometimes said to be. The Recessional Hymn "Forward be our watchword," to Smart's tune, sung in the same manner as the Processional, brought the service to a close.

The Conductor-in-Chief was Mr. Milward, of the Cathedral Choir, assisted by the Secretary of the Church Choral Association for the Archdeaconry of Worcester, the Rev. H. H. Woodward, and Messrs. Dyson and E. J. Spark. Mr. Done played the large organ in the nave, and his pupil, Mr. W. Harber, the smaller one in the choir, and five cornets, led by Mr. Gilmer, helped to keep up the pitch. Mr. Milward and Mr. Dyson had done the whole of the preparatory training, with a success shown by the result, and the sixty-two choirs (fifty-five surpliced) have not only to carry away with them the inspiring remembrance of having taken part in a fine—nay, in some respects, an ideal—performance, but the solid advantage of thorough practice—namely, hard work skilfully directed.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

New York, June 9, 1886.

THE June number of THE MUSICAL TIMES reaches me just in time to enable me to comply, measurably at least, with the Editor's suggestion touching the auxiliary societies organising in various cities of the United States to promote the American Opera enterprise. I cannot promise that the information will be either so full or so explicit as to serve the purpose announced by the Editor. The United States is a country of magnificent dimensions and, in spite of the enterprising spirit of the newspaper press, many things occur which are not fully or accurately reported. Besides, the inner workings of the American Opera are hedged around with much secrecy, and many of the statements about it which find their way into print must be taken with reservation. Since the company entered upon its tour of the country, steps tending to the organisation of the auxiliaries have been taken in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, St. Louis, and Chicago. The plan was elaborated in Boston, where the warmest encouragement was met with. In brief it is this: It is proposed to incorporate, under the laws of Massachusetts, an "American Opera Company of Boston." The capital stock of the Company is to be 100,000 dollars, divided into 1,000 shares of 100 dollars each. Subscriptions are not to be binding unless the full sum of 100,000 dollars is raised, and the American Opera Company of New York obtains subscriptions for its entire capital stock of 500,000 dollars. As neither of these contingencies has been fulfilled as yet, it will be seen that everything is still in an experimental state. Assuming that the money be raised, then the Boston Company is to pay into the treasury of the parent Company 75,000 dollars, against which 750 shares of stock of 100 dollars each will be issued to the former by the latter to be held by the Boston Company for its own benefit; the balance of the Boston Company's capital to be invested and held as a guarantee against loss. In consideration of the money paid into its treasury, the New York Company gives to the Boston Company the right of representation in the General Directory, and turns over its artists and equipment for a series of performances in Boston and New England, on the payment of the actual cost of the troupe and an allowance for the depreciation of "properties" in use. The Boston Company takes the receipts and divides possible profits with the New York Company. The risk of loss is, of course, borne by the Boston Company.

Under our present operatic conditions the advantages which this arrangement offers to the parent Company are much more obvious than the prospective good fortune of the various local organisations established on the lines laid down in the above statement. But the elements of local pride and patriotism enter largely into the calculations of the promoters of the American Opera, and if half a dozen energetic auxiliaries are established outside of New York, there is no question but that they can be made to contribute greatly toward the founding of a national operatic institution, the influence of which will be beneficial to the whole country.

All the musical activities of the country during the month of May were overshadowed by the great Festival held at Cincinnati from the 18th to the 22nd. The Festival was the seventh of a series begun under the direction of Mr. Theodore Thomas in 1873. The Festivals have been held biennially, and their influence, not only in Cincinnati but throughout the country, has been well nigh incalculable. They achieved immediate importance because of the lofty plane which they occupied, Mr. Thomas making them the highest expressions of his ideal in music. Stimulated by the fame which they attained, half a dozen cities have tried to imitate them, some of them going so far as to almost duplicate the programmes and to secure the services of Mr. Thomas and the solo singers participating with him in the Cincinnati Festival of the same year. None of these efforts has been successful, and Cincinnati is left to her proud position as peculiarly the Festival city of the New World. It must be confessed that this reputation is deserved. The Cincinnati Festivals represent the most ambitious and unselfish strivings that the history of music in America has to show. Their origin did not differ greatly in principle from those of the German singing feasts, which had been held in the United States for a quarter of a century when the Cincinnati enterprise came into being. One of these monster festivities had left a great building in Cincinnati, which was purchased by a committee of citizens as the house of expositions designed to exploit the industries of the city. Mr. Thomas was then giving concert tours through the country with his orchestra, and accepted an invitation from another committee of citizens to conduct an American musical Festival. He brought his orchestra from New York, eminent singers were engaged for the solo parts, and a choir of 1,000 voices was organised out of twenty-nine singing societies of Cincinnati and surrounding towns. The Festival was so successful artistically, and the patronage of the public was so generous, that an Association was incorporated for the purpose of making similar Festivals of biennial recurrence. After the second Festival in 1875, public interest in the affair was so great that a magnificent Music Hall was built on popular subscription, at a cost of over £60,000, and provided with one of the finest and largest organs in the world. The third Festival was given in 1878, and so great was the interest and curiosity excited by the new hall and organ that, although the expenses of the Festival aggregated £8,000, the receipts were large enough to cover them, and leave a surplus in the treasury of £6,500.

I have made mention of these facts because they are essential to an understanding of the present condition of the affairs of the Festival Association, and will help to explain a change of method which seems to be imminent. With the profits made the Association paid a debt of £3,000 resting on the organ, and distributed £1,000 among the Choral Societies that had taken part in the Concerts. It was then resolved to dispense with the services of singers from other places, and to organise the Festival choir permanently. Since 1878 the choir has consisted wholly of Cincinnati singers, and within the last two years (the Festivals of 1882 and 1884 having made losses which exhausted the Association's treasury) it has been maintained by private subscriptions of £10 each, made by the stockholders of the Association, whose aims in the administration of the Festivals are kept pure and unselfish by a legal prohibition against the application of profits to the payment of dividends. As evidence of the character of the programmes, I give a list of the choral works that were performed at the first six Festivals:—

First Festival, 1873.—Beethoven, Ninth Symphony; Gluck, Scenes from "Orpheus"; Handel, Dettingen Te Deum; Mendelssohn, the "First Walpurgis Night"; Schubert, Twenty-third Psalm; Schumann, "Gipsy Life."

Second Festival, 1875.—Bach, Magnificat in D; Beethoven, Ninth Symphony; Brahms, Triumphal Hymn; Liszt, "Prometheus"; Mendelssohn, "Elijah"; Wagner, Scenes from "Lohengrin."

Third Festival, 1878.—Beethoven, Ninth Symphony; Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony; Gluck, Scenes from "Alceste"; Handel, "The Messiah"; Liszt, "Missa Solennis"; Otto Singer, Festival Ode.

Fourth Festival, 1880.—Bach, Cantata, "A Stronghold Sure"; Beethoven, "Missa Solennis"; Dudley Buck, Prize Composition, Scenes from Longfellow's "Golden Legend"; Handel, Utrecht Jubilate and Coronation Anthem, "Zadok, the Priest."

Fifth Festival, 1882.—Bach, "St. Matthew Passion"; Berlioz, Scenes from "The Fall of Troy"; W. W. Gilchrist, Prize Composition, Psalm Forty-six; Handel, Dettingen Te Deum; Mozart, Requiem Mass; Schumann, Scenes from Goethe's "Faust" (Part III.).

Sixth Festival, 1884.—Beethoven, Ninth Symphony; Brahms, the German Requiem; Gounod, "The Redemption"; Handel, "Israel in Egypt"; Wagner, Scenes from "Tannhäuser."

To this list, for the sake of the comprehensive review which it affords, let me add the larger choral works of the seventh Festival given last month:—

Seventh Festival, 1886.—Bach, Mass in B minor (Kyrie and Gloria); Berlioz, "Damnation of Faust"; Haydn, "The Creation"; Rubinstein, "Tower of Babel"; Wagner, "Meistersinger" (Act III.).

In the above abstract of the Festival programmes I have omitted the orchestral and solo numbers as being features which, however interesting, are not, like the choral works, characteristic of the Cincinnati Festivals. The review will enable the reader to see how widely and intelligently the field of choral masterpieces has been gleaned. The chorus during the last two years has been studying almost constantly; not only part rehearsals, but classes in sight-reading and solfeggio have been maintained.

During the period from May 18 to 22 five evening and two afternoon Concerts were given. The chorus numbered 494 voices, supplemented in the Rubinstein and Berlioz works, with 100 children from the public schools. The orchestra consisted of 100 instrumentalists from New York, and seven from Cincinnati. The solo singers were Miss Lily Lehmann, Miss Emma Juch, Madame Helene Hastreiter, Miss Emma Cranch (sopranos and altos); Mr. William Candidus, and Mr. Theodore J. Toedt (tenors); Mr. William Ludwig, Mr. Alonzo E. Stoddard, and Mr. Wynn W. Whitney (baritones and basses). Mr. Theodore Thomas conducted the performances, the choral works having been studied under the direction of Mr. Arthur Mees. It would be a waste of time to go into the details of the interpretations of the various works in the Festival scheme. The high aim which has been steadily kept before the chorus from the inception of the noble enterprise, and the enthusiasm and intelligence which have marked all the methods pursued, have combined to make the Cincinnati festivals stand for the highest achievements that America can boast in the choral field. The national weakness in the tenor voice was the one physical objection to the composition of the body, and it was almost lost sight of in the admiration called forth by the precision, expressiveness, and tone quality which marked the singing. The Festival was enlivened by the presence of the Governors of Ohio and other neighbouring States, and the dedication of a magnificent new Art Museum, which, like the Music Hall, is a monument to the public spirit and refinement of Cincinnati's citizens. Financially the Festival was not successful. The receipts were 72,957 dollars 48 cents, the expenditure 35,196 dollars 72 cents, making a deficiency of 7,239 dollars 24 cents to be covered by an assessment of 15 per cent. on the guarantee fund of 54,000 dollars.

COWEN'S "SLEEPING BEAUTY" AT OTTAWA.

THIS highly successful Cantata, produced at the Birmingham Festival of last year, was performed for the first time in Canada on May 20, under the able conductorship of Mr. J. W. F. Harrison, and received with enthusiastic marks of approbation. Of its merits a local paper thus speaks:—"Space will not allow of our giving a detailed analysis of the music of 'Sleeping Beauty,' as justice could not be done to it in the limits of a newspaper criticism. Its principal characteristics, judging by a single hearing, are beauty of melody, dramatic fitness, and magnificent orchestration. The latter is shown more particularly in the beautiful opening chorus of Fays, the music of the 'Wicked Fay,' and the exciting chorus in valse time, 'The Dawn of day.' This was perhaps the best effort of the chorus during the entire work, being given with great spirit, changes of time well marked, the great climax at the end producing an immense effect. Altogether the chorus work was admirable, the only objection being the numerical weakness of tenors, and the whole body being rather small for the building. This defect, however, can only be remedied by greater enthusiasm impelling more of our amateurs to swell the ranks of those who are doing such good work for music in this city. Miss Code had in the Princess a part which, though arduous, was excellently adapted to her voice and style of singing. She gave a reading of the music which brought out the dreamy nature of the young maiden, and also was not lacking in the more impassioned parts. Miss Jane Aumonier gave an admirable interpretation of the Wicked Fay, her fine voice and dramatic delivery showing to great advantage. Her singing of the declamatory portions was especially admired. Mr. Eugene Belleau gave with great feeling the short but difficult portion allotted to the King. He was in good voice and sang with that perfect correctness as to time and phrasing which is one of this gentleman's characteristics. Mr. Norris, already established as a favourite here, settled himself still more firmly in his position by his singing last night. The tenor part is long and difficult, but he proved himself not only equal to it physically, but also in his intelligent reading of the part. The solo 'Light, light at last,' undoubtedly the finest portion of the work, was magnificently sung, and appeared to suit him better than anything we have yet heard him in."

MRS. A. J. LAYTON, F.C.O., gave her fifth annual Concert at the Onslow Hall, South Kensington, on Thursday, May 27. The first part of the programme consisted of Sir George Macfarren's Cantata for female voices "Songs in a Cornfield," with accompaniment for pianoforte, harp and harmonium. The choruses were excellently sung by the members of Mrs. Layton's Ladies' Choral Class. The solos were taken by Miss Rose Williams, Miss Jessie King (pupils of Mrs. Layton), and Miss Adelaide Mullen. Miss Laura Cater and Miss Florence Hughes played the pianoforte accompaniment, Miss Ida Audain the harp, Mr. C. G. Lamb the harmonium, and Mrs. Layton conducted. The performance of the work gave evident satisfaction to a large audience. The principal item in the second part of the programme was the performance of Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor for pianoforte and orchestra; Mrs. Layton, who played the pianoforte part, received very enthusiastic applause. Solos and duets were sung by Miss Adelaide Mullen, Miss Annie Layton, Mr. Gilbert Campbell, and Mr. Alfred J. Layton.

A MOST successful Concert was given in the Albert Palace, on Saturday, the 5th ult., in aid of the Teachers' Orphan and Benevolent Fund. A choir of over a thousand voices, conducted by Mr. J. Westwood Tosh, Assistant Superintendent of Singing to the London School Board, sang a selection of choruses, glees, and part-songs, in so excellent a manner as to elicit many encores. The soloists were Madame Worrell and Mr. Egbert Roberts, who were much appreciated by a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. A. Fagge, organist to the Palace, was the accompanist.

ON Fridays, May 21 and 28, Sir G. A. Macfarren awarded the following Scholarships given yearly at the Music School in Baker Street, under the direction of Miss Macirone, and the prizes to the successful students of the Honorary Classes, under Miss Oliveria Prescott: Senior Scholarship to Miss Gladys Mills Wood, Junior Scholarship to Miss Helen Easton, Externs Scholarship to Miss Jane Richmond. Honorary Prizes; Senior, Miss Jane Richmond, Junior, Misses Margerie Austie and Maud Goslin.

MR. ARTHUR JACKSON writes to us as follows:—"It having been stated in your June issue that Mr. Hodge had been appointed Organist and Choirmaster at St. Marylebone Church, I beg to say that he is appointed Choirmaster, but that I am Organist, having held that post for twelve years, and still retain it."

A CORRESPONDENT sends us the following observations on a work entitled "Substance of several Courses of Lectures on Music, read in the University of Oxford and in the Metropolis, by William Crotch, Mus. D.," published 1831, which we are certain will be read with interest: "It is a great pity that this book is almost unknown to us now, except by name only, or by seeing its companion work, 'Specimens of various Styles of Music referred to in a Course of Lectures,' mentioned in a catalogue of second-hand music now and then. Dr. Crotch was a man of high culture in, and of warm sympathy with, the arts generally, and had not the fault, so often justly ascribed to musicians, of being wrapped up in their own profession, to the exclusion of other interests. This very circumstance made Crotch the keen critic, the just judge, and the genial companion while discoursing on music, which these Lectures show him to be. He was, by the way, a great admirer of Sir Joshua Reynolds, 'whose just sentiments and forcible language,' he writes, 'I cannot too often quote.' In the introductory chapter Crotch, speaking of the great masters whose works 'have stood the test of ages,' says, 'Who these great masters were it may be easy to discover, but the degree of veneration in which they ought to be held, and the comparative excellence of their several productions, may not be so obvious to the student. It is probable that, far from being enraptured, he would at first be disappointed and even displeased with their works, and tempted to throw them aside as dull, heavy, monotonous, void of feeling, expression, and effect. But to experienced judges they constitute what the remains of antiquity are to painters, architects, and sculptors. Let him, then, 'regard them as perfect and infallible guides, as subjects for his imitation, not his criticism' (Sir J. Reynolds)." In the second chapter the Doctor says, 'Music, like other arts, may be divided into three styles—the sublime, the beautiful, and the ornamental, which are sometimes distinct, and sometimes combined.' . . . 'Simplicity and its opposite, intricacy, when on a large scale (such an intricacy as, from the number of parts, becomes incomprehensible), are sublime.' . . . 'The clearness of harmony in the madrigal of many voices, or in the full anthem, and the deep science of the organ fugue, produce sublimity from seemingly opposite causes.' . . . 'Beauty, in all the arts, is the result of softness, smoothness, delicacy, smallness, gentle undulations, symmetry, and the like. When, therefore, in music, the melody is vocal and flowing, the measure symmetrical, the harmony simple and intelligible, and the style of the whole soft, delicate, and sweet, it may with as much propriety be called beautiful as a small, perfect, Grecian temple, or a landscape of Claude Lorraine.' 'The ornamental style is the result of roughness, playful intricacy, and abrupt variations.' . . . 'In music, eccentric and difficult melody, rapid, broken, and varied rhythm, wild and unexpected modulation indicate this third style.' In the chapter on 'Musical expression,' there is a passage which it would be well for many composers to realise: 'Music has been called the language of Nature, but it is a very imperfect language; it is all adjectives and no substantives. It may represent certain qualities in objects, or raise similar affections in the mind to what these objects raise, but it cannot delineate the objects themselves.' Here is a passage in the fourth chapter, which seems a probable explanation of the continued sanity of our forefathers under the infliction of the 'organum' or accompaniment of consecutive fourths, fifths, and octaves to the chants in old times. Crotch says that this 'organum,' if sung softer than the melody, probably produced a similar effect to that of certain stops in the organ, which seem to have had their origin in this species of accompaniment.' Here, in Chapter v., is a passage comforting to the souls of all lovers of Handel who have been brought reluctantly to fear that their idol was not altogether perfect: 'In most cases he merely took ideas, and greatly improved them; but when he introduced the passages entire and unaltered, it must be considered as a quotation of a well-known classical author, and not as a plagiarism, which results from poverty of invention, and with the hope of escaping detection.' In conclusion, cannot some enterprising firm be found to bring out a reprint of this work, with a sufficient number of the 'specimens' to illustrate the Lectures, and to form together with them a handy edition? There are many persons, I believe—musicians and others—who would be very glad of this."

ALTHOUGH we retain our opinion of the inutility of artificial aids in pianoforte practice, we willingly give insertion to the following letter: "Gentlemen,—In the May number of THE MUSICAL TIMES you were kind enough to notice the Hand Guide patented by Messrs. Marsden and Wright of Leeds. In the closing remarks you say, 'Considering that Logier's 'Chiroplast' has so fallen into disuse, it seems tacitly admitted that mechanical methods of acquiring a good position at the keyboard are of little use.' The impression conveyed by the above passage implies that Logier's apparatus was a genuine test of the value of a mechanical support or guide in pianoforte playing. To this view we beg to differ, as from a careful examination of Logier's invention we can find many reasons for its unpopularity, without in the least condemning its principle. In constructing the hand guide we have endeavoured to remedy these defects. The points we aimed at were to make an appliance that should be simple, cheap, easily adjusted to any piano, comfortable to use, suitable to any size of hand, that would insure a correct position of the hand, prevent thumping, and compel the action to come from the finger, also promote the acquirement of a perfectly free wrist action, and enable the hands to move unrestrainedly the whole length of the keyboard. All these points we have accomplished, resulting in an appliance which, if properly used (that is with a free wrist, lightly touching the bar), will be found (to use your own words) an invaluable boon.—We remain, yours respectfully, MARSDEN and WRIGHT, 3 and 5, Hunslet Lane, Leeds.—To Messrs. Novello, Ever and Co."

A CLEVER little pianist, ten years of age, Miss Pauline Ellice, made her début in public at a vocal and instrumental Concert arranged for her under the auspices of Mr. Ganz, on the 1st. ult., at Prince's Hall, Piccadilly. There was every opportunity afforded for the audience to marvel (as they are called upon to do on such occasions) at the display of an exceptionally early development of some of the faculties which go to the making of a brilliant pianist. It will be sufficient, for the purpose of illustration, to state that the youthful executant went through the solo portions of Weber's Pianoforte Concerto in C major, and Mendelssohn's Capriccio in B minor for pianoforte and orchestra, with a degree of self-possession all the more noticeable, since she was playing from memory. Miss Ellice, who was also heard in solo pieces by Bach, Schubert, Chopin, and one or two other composers, gives fair promise for the future; but her career, if it is to be a professional one, may be either made or marred according to the amount of judgment exercised by her advisers. In our opinion, her public appearance in so ostentatious a manner has been premature. Mdlle. de Lido, Mrs. Armstrong, and Mr. Deane Brand contributed vocal solos to the programme, which was also varied by orchestral numbers. Mr. Ganz was the Conductor, and with admirable discretion greatly aided the spirited efforts of the child-pianist in her association with the orchestra.

We are informed on good authority that the new organ now being constructed in Canterbury-Cathedral by Messrs. Willis, will be, when completed, in every way worthy of the grand old sacred edifice of which it is to form a most important part. The entire instrument will be operated by electricity, the supply being derived from a battery which is being placed in the old Singing School. Some idea of the wondrous properties of the new instrument may be gathered from the fact that the length of the cables conducting the electric currents average 120 feet from the console (or keyboard) to the pneumatic levers operating the valves of the sound boards. The organist will occupy a raised position in the second arch of the south aisle, just over the spot where the old instrument was played, his manipulation of the keys being flashed by means of the electricity through the 120 feet of cable to the action of the instrument in the triforium above. The organ will be blown by four men in the old Singing School. The whole of the patents employed in the pneumatic and electric action are the inventions of Messrs. Willis, who are affording good evidence of their intention to thoroughly sustain their world-wide reputation in the work upon which they are now engaged. A second list of subscribers to the organ fund has recently been issued, the amount in the first list being over £1,000.

At the seventh public Concert of the St. Cecilia Society, held at Prince's Hall on the 8th ult., the first part was occupied by Pergolesi's chef-d'œuvre—viz., the "Stabat Mater," scored for a stringed band and organ expressly for the Society, by its Conductor, Mr. Malcolm Lawson. The solo portions of the work were rendered by the Misses Emily Lawson, Wike, Howell, and Tomalin. The second part of the programme was of a varied character, including some very interesting features, among which may be instanced the capital rendering of a Russian Suite for strings, by Wuerst (solo violin, Miss Amy Hickling), a very pleasing and musician-like Pastorale and Scherzo, by Miss Mary Carmichael (played by the composer), and a chorus and song, by Mr. Malcolm Lawson. We may also mention, per contra, a three-part chorus with baritone solo (Mr. Herbert Thorndike) entitled "Am Traunsee," by Thieriot, a composition of combined pretentiousness and unmitigated dullness, presenting, moreover, a hopelessly ungrateful task to the declaimer of the solo part. Notwithstanding the, to an outsider, somewhat perplexing mannerism of his beat, the Conductor has his choral and orchestral lady-executants well in hand, and the Society may be congratulated upon making distinct progress.

MRS. M. A. CARLISLE, who will be known to many of our readers as the author of an excellent little brochure on "Breathing," gave her Matinée on the 25th ult., at Steinway Hall. Special mention is due to Miss Dorothy Garthe, who made her début on this occasion and sang Hope Temple's "An old garden" and Spohr's "Rose softly blooming." Mrs. Carlisle must be congratulated on the effective singing of her pupil, who possesses a rather high soprano voice of remarkable purity and sweetness, which she has learnt to use with excellent taste. Miss Garthe won a recall after each solo. Mrs. Carlisle gave a charming rendering of Gounod's "Quando a te lieta," and an "Egyptian Lullaby" by S. G. Pratt, and joined Miss Garthe in Mary Carmichael's duet "It was a lover and his lass." Mr. Frank May's admirable and dramatic renderings of Mendelssohn's "I'm a roamer" and Pinsuti's "Raft," were among the successes of the Concert. Master Isidore Pavia, a young pianist of eleven years, created great interest by his clever playing. Miss A. Dinelli gave violin solos with her usual skill and Mr. John Thomas played a harp solo; Miss Cowen contributed a recitation and Herr Curt Schulz gave solos on the zither and philomel.

At a Concert given by the Kensington Orchestral and Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. W. Buels, at the Kensington Town Hall on the 18th ult., the programme included Weber's "Jubilee" Cantata, and a new Te Deum, specially composed for the Society by Mr. Morton Latham. Weber's work, it may be remembered, was composed for the commemoration of the fiftieth year of the reign of Frederick Augustus I. of Saxony. It contains some of the composer's best music, and, as it is not often heard, its revival was welcome and also well timed. Unfortunately we are unable to speak in very favourable terms of the performance. The band was energetic, but the choir was weak and unsteady, so that some numbers did not produce anything like their proper effect. It was said that about thirty of the members were absent, a singular circumstance, unless an epidemic of hoarseness prevailed at Kensington. Mr. Latham's Te Deum is a solidly written work, exhibiting more of the style of Handel and Bach than of more modern composers. Various solos during the evening were agreeably rendered by Miss Eveleen Carlton, Miss Flora Mantell, Mr. Hirwen Jones, and Mr. E. F. Buels.

On Ascension Day and the following Sunday evening the choir of St. John's, Waterloo Road, sang a selection from "The Messiah," applicable to the season, consisting of six choruses and four solos, the latter including the rarely heard "Thou art gone up on high" and "If God be for us," effectively sung by Mr. Fred Winton and Master Warren. The choir was thoroughly efficient, especially in the two final choruses of the work, which were sung with much precision. Mr. Henry J. B. Dart played the accompaniments on the fine organ, situate at the west end of the church, and Mrs. Dart gave valuable aid with a pianoforte in the chancel. The choir is to be congratulated on its enthusiasm in the work, this being the eighth performance of the kind since Advent.

THE Third Annual Festival of the Association of Tonic Sol-fa Choirs, took place at the Crystal Palace, on Saturday, the 5th ult. In the morning a choral competition was held, Mr. Barnby, Dr. Bridge, and Mr. Prout being adjudicators, when gold, silver, and bronze medals were awarded to the Strand Temperance Choral Society (Mr. J. A. Birch), the Chesterfield Harmonic Society (Mr. G. A. Seed), and the Peckham Tonic Sol-fa Choir (Mr. T. R. Rayment), respectively. Other choirs from Bayswater, Hackney, Regent Street, Dartford, and Nottingham also competed. This was followed in the afternoon by a Concert given by about 2,500 singers, with full orchestral accompaniments, Mr. L. C. Venables acting as Conductor, and Mr. A. J. Eyre as Organist. The programme included amongst other pieces, Gounod's "Hymn of the Apostles," from "The Redemption," Mendelssohn's 13th Psalm, "Lord, how long" (soloist, Miss Hilda Wilson), and Costa's "With sheathed swords," the whole being rendered in a highly satisfactory manner.

MISS OLSON, a Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music, gave a Recital of pianoforte music on the 25th ult., at Messrs. Collard's Rooms, in Grosvenor Street, when she went through a programme sufficiently representative to test the powers of any aspiring pianist. The young lady, we are bound to say, stood the test remarkably well, more especially as regards brilliancy and readiness of attack, as instanced in three Toccatas, by Schumann, W. Macfarren, and O'Leary, and in Mendelssohn's Fantasia in F sharp minor, but she has scarcely as yet grasped the spirit of Beethoven's Sonata in C (Op. 53), which, apart from occasional errors of judgment as to tempi, lacked warmth and poetic feeling. These latter, however, are qualities which continued application to her art will doubtless bring to the surface, for that Miss Olson is not really wanting them was amply proved by her interpretation of two of Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte." We shall follow this young artist's career with much interest.

MR. CHARLES GARDNER gave his annual Matinée Musicale, on the 19th ult., at Willis's Rooms, assisted by a number of artists, including Mdlle. de Lido, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mons. Albert, and Herr Josef Ludwig. The solos of the Concert-giver were Beethoven's Sonata, No. 2 (Op. 31), and two pieces by Liszt and Raff, in the interpretation of which he again proved himself the earnest artist and skilful pianist which we have long known him to be. Other items of special interest were a song by Rubinstein, "The Night," sung in the Russian language, and with much feeling, by Mdlle. de Lido; Mr. W. H. Cummings's fine interpretation of Clay's serenade "I'll sing thee songs of Araby" (encored), and the spirited performance by Miss L. Griffiths, Messrs. Gardner, Ludwig, and Albert, of the "Bagatellen" (Op. 47), by Dvóřák.

THE annual meeting of the Music Publishers' Association was held at the offices, Air Street, Regent Street, on the 1st ult., and numerously attended by the representatives of the principal firms. The report stated that the Association had been in correspondence with the chief Commissioners of Customs at Natal and the Cape of Good Hope respecting the importation of foreign reprints of English copyrights, on which an ad valorem duty of twelve and a-half per cent. should have been levied, and which has not been received. Satisfactory replies were elicited to these applications; and in all cases where infringement of copyrights had been detected the Society had at once taken active measures in the matter, and always with a successful issue. It is to be hoped that so useful an institution may receive the cordial and financial support of all music publishers.

In the church of St. Botolph's, Aldersgate, of which the Rev. S. Flood Jones, M.A., Precentor of Westminster Abbey, is rector, on Thursday, the 17th ult., was performed Sterndale Bennett's "Woman of Samaria" at a special service held in memory of Mr. J. R. Murray, who was many years Organist of the Church, and well known as the founder and conductor of the London Church Choir Association. In addition to the organ the choir, which was greatly augmented for the occasion, was accompanied by an orchestra, conducted by Dr. J. F. Bridge, Organist of Westminster Abbey, and a very pleasing and successful performance was the result. A collection was made at the close of the service for the benefit of the family of the late Mr. Murray.

MR. GABRIEL THORP gave his annual Concert at Stein way Hall on Thursday evening, the 3rd ult., before a large and appreciative audience. The songs selected by the bénéficiaire were Faure's "Les Rameaux" and three others, including Marzials' "My love has come," which he rendered with much effect. Miss José Sherrington, in the Jewel song from "Faust," and Miss Fairman, in the "Gate of Heaven," by Tours, were also highly successful. The other vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom (who gained warm applause for her two songs), Miss Hipwell, Miss Helen d'Alton, Miss Myers, Miss Percy, Signor Mhane, Mr. Redfern Hollins, Mr. George Cox, and Mr. Barton. The songs were agreeably diversified by instrumental solos by Miss Audain (harp) and Miss Gyde (pianoforte).

ON Wednesday, the 9th ult., the civil contract of the marriage of Madame Adelina Patti to Signor Nicolini, was signed before the French Consul in Walter Road, Swansea. The witnesses were Mr. Johnson and Herr Ganz. The wedding party subsequently returned to Craig-y-Nos Castle. Madame Patti's residence, where congratulatory addresses were presented on behalf of various local bodies, and the wedding presents were numerous. The marriage took place on the following day at Ystradgynlais Church, in the presence of a crowded congregation. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. D. Glanby, vicar, assisted by Rev. Howell Thomas and Rev. D. J. Davies, curates, the bride being given away by M. Maynard. Herr Ganz was "best man."

MISS MADELINE HARDY gave a very successful Concert at St. Andrew's Hall, Newman Street, on Wednesday afternoon, the 9th ult. The bénéficiaire's bright soprano voice and excellent execution were heard to much advantage in Schira's "Sognai," and she gave a refined interpretation of the duet "Dear love of mine" (from Goring Thomas's "Nadeshda"), in conjunction with Mr. Orlando Harley. The other vocalists were Madame Fasset, Miss Eleanor Rees, Miss R. Sutherland (pupil of Miss Hardy), Mr. Isidore de Lara, Mr. A. Thompson, Mr. R. Temple, and Mr. Maybrick. Pianoforte solos were contributed by Mr. A. H. Fox and Miss Kate Cheyne, and harp solos by Mr. John Cheshire. Miss M. Carmichael, Mr. Fox, and Mr. Sidney Naylor were the accompanists.

A SELECTION of Sacred Music was given at the Wesleyan Chapel, Studley Road, Stockwell, in connection with the reopening service, on Wednesday evening, the 16th ult. The programme consisted of a selection of sacred solos together with five anthems, all of which were most carefully given. Handel's "Angels ever bright and fair" was well sung by Mr. C. T. Carter, and Mendelssohn's "But the Lord is mindful," by Miss Pringle. During the evening the Organist performed some very effective organ pieces, and the Rev. G. Talaun Newton delivered a short address on "Music in the Church." The music was under the direction of the Organist and Choir-master, Mr. J. Clark, who presided at the organ.

MR. STOCKLEY, of Birmingham, the Director of the Orchestral Concerts bearing his name, was, on the occasion of the last Concert of the season, held in the Birmingham Town Hall, presented by the members of his band with his portrait, in life-size, painted by Mr. Manns. The portrait and address was presented by Mr. G. H. Johnstone, a prominent member of the Festival Committee, who, in a few well chosen sentences, alluded to the success of Mr. Stockley's untiring efforts in the cause of orchestral music in Birmingham, and to the able way in which he had been supported by the band. Mr. Stockley's reply terminated a gratifying episode.

In connection with the growth of the demand for musical accompaniments to recitation, the morning performance given by Miss Mary Dickens (grand-daughter of the novelist) and Mr. Orton Bradley at the Lyric Club, on the 15th ult., is deserving of notice. Mr. Bradley's musical setting of Jean Ingelow's "High Tide on the Lincolnshire Coast," and Rossetti's "Blessed Damosel," is unpretending and effective, and was played by him in such a way as never to overpower the reciter, whose resources are better adapted for genre pieces than the tragic vein. Mr. Bradley's other contributions to the programme were well chosen, and played with neatness and restraint.

AN interesting Concert was given on the 24th ult., at Princes' Hall, by Mr. Francis Ralph and Madame Kate Roberts (Mrs. Ralph), in association with Messrs. Lewis Hann (second violin), Ellis Roberts (viola), and Edward Howell (violoncello); Mr. W. Winch being the vocalist. The Concert opened with Schumann's Piano-forte Quartet in E flat (Op. 47), and concluded with Beethoven's String Quartet in F minor (Op. 95). Madame Kate Roberts gave a much appreciated rendering of piano-forte pieces by Bach and Liszt, and was vociferously recalled after her performance; the lady being also associated with Mr. Howell in Chopin's familiar Sonata in G minor (Op. 65), for piano-forte and violoncello.

MR. CARL ARMBRUSTER, the Musical Director at the Court Theatre, will, by kind permission of Messrs. Clayton and Cecil, take part in the forthcoming Festival performances of "Tristan und Isolde" and "Parsifal" at Bayreuth, having been engaged by the Wagner Festival Committee at the special request of Dr. Hans Richter. Mr. Armbruster will fill the responsible post of Conductor of the elaborate stage music in the two above mentioned musical dramas, which are perhaps the most difficult of all the master's works. At the request of the Philosophical Institution, Edinburgh, Mr. Carl Armbruster will give his Recital Lecture, "The Historical Development of Music," early in the winter session.

MADAME ANTOINETTE STERLING'S Morning Concert, given on May 31, at St. James's Hall, included, among the solo performances, that lady's effective and sympathetic rendering of Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," she having also undertaken the solo part in Rubinstein's "The Mermaid," a cleverly scored piece for contralto and chorus, with piano-forte, harp, and harmonium accompaniment. The Concert-giver was supported by an entire galaxy of eminent artists, both vocal and instrumental; the St. Cecilia Choir, and the Blue Hungarian Band, likewise adding their valuable services to the numerous attractive features of the programme.

SIGNOR GIULIO, assisted by several of his pupils, gave a very successful soirée musicale at Steinway Hall on Tuesday, May 25. The vocalists included Miss N. Beeton, Miss A. Davis, Miss K. Abrahams, Mrs. Leyden, Mr. J. Leyden, Mr. Chambers, and Herr Deutsch, all of whom were very successful. The Concert-giver was heard to great advantage in a recitative and air, "The Musician," by Logé (the violin obligato accompaniment to which was played by Miss Hickling). Instrumental solos were given with much effect by Miss Hickling, Mr. Charles Oberthür, and M. Henri Logé.

THE Report of the Oratorio Society of Baltimore for the season 1885-86 announces that, for the first time in its history, the receipts have exceeded the expenses, and it is now hoped that a permanent lease of life has been entered upon. The warm support accorded to the Society by the public, and the alacrity with which the members came forward, attending rehearsals, even during the most inclement evenings, prove increasing confidence in the future of the Institution; and it is believed that the purchase of Oratorio Hall will materially aid the attraction of the Concerts during the coming season.

THE past and present members of the Choir of St. Barnabas's, Kensington, being desirous of showing their high appreciation of their Organist and Choirmaster, Mr. M. S. Skeffington, who has resigned the appointment after twenty-one years' service, presented him with a handsome testimonial, consisting of a clock, silver-mounted bâton, and an address on parchment, after the Dedication Festival on St. Barnabas Day. The presentation was made in a few suitable words by Mr. Clowes, and duly acknowledged by the recipient.

AT St. Mary's, Stoke Newington, on Trinity Sunday, being the anniversary of the Queen's accession, Handel's "Zadok the Priest" was sung as the morning anthem, and Dr. Stainer's Trinity anthem "I saw the Lord" at evening service—"Zadok the Priest" being repeated after the sermon. The organist (Dr. Pringuer) incorporated the National Anthem into the concluding voluntary at both services, that in the evening being the varied arrangement by the late Dr. S. S. Wesley.

THE North-East London Choral Society gave the third and last Concert of the season on Wednesday evening, May 26. The works performed were Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion" and Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty"; solo vocalists, Madame Clara West, Miss Jeanie Rosse, Mr. Alfred Kenningham, and Mr. W. G. Forington. Mr. L. B. Prout presided at the piano-forte, Mr. Fountain Meen at the harmonium, and Mr. John E. West conducted. The Concert was a great musical success.

THE Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave performances of "Elijah" in Christ Church, Somers Town, on May 26, and of the "Creation" at St. Saviour's Church, Southwark, on the 23rd ult. The soloists on the first occasion were Mrs. Albert Samuelli, Mrs. Dean, Mr. Sinclair Dunn, and Mr. James Blackney, and at the second performance Miss Clara Hoschke, Mr. Reginald Groome, and Mr. James Mackney. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ.

THE annual Choir Festival of Emmanuel Church, West Dulwich, took place on the 20th ult., when a selection from "The Messiah" was given after the evening service. The performance throughout, with the exception of the boys' voices in one or two pieces being a little weak, was highly creditable. The soloists were Master William Turrell, Mr. J. W. Hanson, and Mr. Fred. Bevan. Mr. Theo. Ward, R.A.M., very ably presided at the organ.

THE degree of Doctor of Music was conferred on Mr. Herbert W. Wareing by the University of Cambridge, on May 27. The exercise for the degree was a Cantata for eight-part chorus, solo voices, and orchestra, entitled "New Year's Eve" (words by Lord Tennyson), the Overture to which will be performed at Mr. Stockley's next Orchestral Concert at Birmingham. Mr. Wareing received his musical education at the Conservatorium of Leipzig.

A CHORAL Service, in which the principal work was Dr. Stainer's sacred Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus," was given at St. James's Church, Knatchbull Road, Camberwell, on Ascension Day. The interpretation was highly creditable throughout, the solos being sung by Mr. J. S. Holliday, Mr. Martin, and Masters Sherwood and Long. Mr. R. Felix Blackbee presided at the organ.

AT Mr. Avalon Collard's Concert at the Vicarage, Kensington, on the 8th ult., Dr. Bridge's setting of the hymn "Rock of Ages," for baritone solo and chorus, was performed, under the direction of the composer, with great success. Mr. Robert Grice was the soloist. Miss A. Ehrenberg, Mr. Henry Bird, Signor Erba, and Mr. Hopkins Ould also contributed to the programme.

THE Dedication Festival of the Church of the Ascension, Balham Hill, was held on the 3rd and 6th ult., the following anthems being very effectively rendered by the choir—viz., Goss, "The Glory of the Lord"; Mozart, "Glorious is Thy Name"; Beethoven, "Hallelujah"; and Antoine, "Except the Lord build the House." Mr. Adolphus Antoine gave a short Organ Recital after each service.

AN Organ Recital was given by Mr. H. C. Tonking, at St. Saviour's Church, St. George's Square, on Trinity Sunday, after Evensong. The programme included pieces by Liszt, Sterndale Bennett, Bach, and a very fine Fantasia and Fugue by W. G. Wood, all of which were well rendered, and listened to with interest by a crowded congregation.

THE Association of Tonic Sol-fa Choirs held its Annual Festival at the Crystal Palace, on the 5th ult. Mr. H. W. Weston, A.C.O., gave an Organ Recital during the evening on the great organ, the programme including selections from the works of Handel, Gounod, Auber, &c.

MR. HARVEY LÖHR gave his fifth annual Concert, on the 2nd ult., at Messrs. Collard and Collard's Concert Rooms in Grosvenor Street, assisted by a number of well-known vocal and instrumental artists. There was the usual interesting miscellaneous programme.

WE hear that the position of Organist and Choirmaster of Westminster Chapel will soon be vacant, on account of the resignation of Mr. H. C. Tonking. Amongst his predecessors have been Messrs. Joseph Bennett, Frederick Archer, Wilfred Bendall, and George J. Bennett.

MESSRS. C. and C. H. ROWCLIFFE, Choirmaster and Organist, respectively, of St. Luke's, Hackney, were on their retirement presented by the gentlemen of the choir with a handsome cruet and stand, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of their valuable services.

THE University of Trinity College, Toronto, has conferred the Degree of D.C.L., honoris causa, upon Sir Herbert Oakley, LL.D. and Mus. Doc., and upon Rev. E. K. Kendall, M.A., acting Registrar for England.

It is stated that Mr. E. H. Turpin has retired from the editorship of the Musical Standard. His predecessor, Mr. John Broadhouse, will resume the editorial duties with the commencement of the present month.

A SAN FRANCISCO paper records the great success of Mr. Whitley, a young English organist, who has been giving concerts in America to large and enthusiastic audiences.

WE hear that Mr. Frank Bradley has been engaged to give Organ Recitals during the present month at the Liverpool Exhibition.

REVIEWS.

Review of the New York Musical Season, 1885-1886; containing Programmes of Noteworthy Occurrences, with numerous Criticisms. By H. E. Krehbiel.

[New York and London: Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE plan of this volume very closely resembles that of Mr. Joseph Bennett's "Musical Year—1883." Both the arrangement and the nature of the contents are similar, while, as in the one, so in the other, the author relieves a bare chronicle of events by critical notices which originally appeared in a great daily paper. Points of difference are, first, that the American book limits itself to the musical doings of a particular city, and second, that it opens with an introduction which takes a general view of the season afterwards treated in detail. Regarding the value of a work like this there can be no doubt. A systematic record of musical occurrences is adapted to render great service to many persons concerned in, or interested about, the art, while the criticisms, whatever their value per se, at least serve to indicate a contemporary opinion which, in the very nature of the case, must have exercised considerable influence upon public judgment. Mr. Bennett's project of an annual publication was suspended by an unfortunate illness, and still remains in suspense through imperative demands upon his time. Mr. Krehbiel, we trust, will be more fortunate, and find himself able to continue, year by year, the enterprise auspiciously begun.

It may be asked why we take the trouble to review at length a mere local chronicle, having but a faint interest for English readers. We cannot give a direct answer to the question, because its assumptions are inadmissible. In the first place, this book, justly considered, is no mere local chronicle; and, in the second place, it has an interest more than faint for every musical Englishman who projects his mind into the future, or, in common parlance, looks beyond his nose. We are all apt to consider that history culminates in our own time—that the long march of past events has been but an approach to a climax happening in the little day of our own existence. This is very natural, but scarcely philosophic. Just as the past prepared the present, so the present is preparing the future. We are not only making history by the accomplishment of events, but we are digging foundations and gathering material on which, and with which, those who come after us will work to the achievement of definite results. How does this apply to the book before us? The answer is, that every phase of music in America has more than an immediate interest. Its chief interest, indeed, lies in its bearing on the future; for we are now witnessing, as regards that great country, an early formative process, the result of which no man can foretell, though we all feel that it must be vast and impressive. The present generation will not see it, since our cousins have yet much to do in building up the material structure of their empire, and in assimilating the heterogeneous humanity that pours in a constant stream upon their shores. But the fascinating employment of watching and speculating is open to us. Every musical Englishman should be particularly interested therein. In politics, literature, and social life, Great Britain and her gigantic offspring act and react upon each other. It must needs be so while the Anglo-Saxon element in America remains strong enough to absorb every other, and keep touch with the Anglo-Saxon spirit on this side the Atlantic. It will be so presently in matters of art. Our music may be immensely affected by that of America, wherefore in American music we have a national interest.

Mr. Krehbiel styles the season surveyed in his book, "a most extraordinary one." He is justified in using these words, if only by the number of performances given. A hundred and twenty-seven "notable operatic representations" are enumerated, excluding those of comic operettas, &c. Note is also made of forty-eight orchestral concerts, and twenty-one others given by the Philharmonic Society, &c. This undoubtedly indicates musical life far in excess of that of London, having regard to the fact that New York is much smaller than the British metropolis. But the significance of the New York season does not lie in the multiplicity of its doings so much as in their prevailing character, and notably with respect to operatic enterprise. We see recorded in this book what appears to be the firm establishment of German opera—or, rather, opera in German—side by side with the beginning of a new enterprise having as its object the furtherance of a national American lyric stage. These are the features which give the season its noteworthy-ness, and, in his preface, Mr. Krehbiel very properly discusses them at length. There is no reason for surprise at the success of German opera in a city which, like New York, contains a very large and wealthy Teutonic element, while its general population show a marked preference for the lyric theatre above the concert-room. Moreover, in the Metropolitan Opera-house, the public were presented with a good ensemble. An artistic spirit prevailed, and all-round efficiency was not sacrificed in favour of a "star." This state of things met with instant appreciation. To the credit of the New York people let it be said that they abandoned Italian opera, as misrepresented by Mr. Mapleson and his company, and went over to a new enterprise based upon recognition of the fact that art has claims per se, and is not a mere fulcrum for commercial speculations. There exists no reason why German opera should not take the place, and more than the place, whilom held by its Italian congener. The managers are wise enough not to limit their repertory to the productions of the Fatherland, and already it includes the "Huguenots," the "Prophète," "Masaniello," "La Juive," "Carmen," and "Faust." These are, of course, given in the German tongue, but the main fact is not the language employed so much as the existence of an enterprise determined by artistic aims. The American Opera Company, which gives performances in the vernacular, has not yet got beyond an experimental stage. Its purpose is a lofty and comprehensive one—namely, the creation of a national lyric stage, manned by native artists, and performing works by native composers. This may prove beyond the strength of the enterprise, for, undoubtedly, America is yet a long way from the possibility of such results. But everything must have a beginning, and we are not disposed to make merry over a "national" opera in which the work is done by foreigners, even the orchestra, as Mr. Krehbiel says, being "almost exclusively Germans." It is to the credit of the managers that they produced nine works and gave sixty-six representations during their first season. Of the nine works not one was American; still, it is something to have the idea of ultimately representing native art kept before the public mind. We need not insist that the state of opera in New York, as disclosed by this book, offers matter for the reflection of those who desire to see action taken to a similar end in London. True, the conditions of the two cities are not exactly the same, but what New York has accomplished may, mutatis mutandis, surely be achieved in a far greater and richer metropolis having the advantage of closer touch with all the centres of musical life.

It is no part of our purpose to discuss Mr. Krehbiel's criticisms, but we may say that their author appears to be a very well-read man, who has a facile command of his knowledge and is able to convey it in pleasant fashion. Indeed, the articles extracted from the New York Tribune cannot be read without much profit. Their author has a clear way of looking at things, and is very far from a blind partisan. For example, although his sympathies seem to be with the Wagnerian school, he writes as follows, à propos to "Die Walküre":—

"The incestuous love of Siegmond and Sieglinde, celebrated by Wagner with the whole force and ardour of his genius, finds no palliation here as it might among people so accustomed to viewing the story in its deeply poetical and symbolical aspect as the Germans. It will not do simply to say that it is a relic of the mythical age, and must be taken in its allegorical meaning as the union of Spring and Love. This might do in an epic, but in a drama the vividness of the characters, in their purely human aspect, precludes such a view."

This is admirably put, and there are many equally valuable passages in the book, which we now commend to the attention of our readers.

The Life and Works of Robert Schumann. By August Reissmann, translated from the Third Edition of the German by Abby Langdon Alger. [Bell and Sons.]

PENDING the appearance of a satisfactory version of the Third Edition of Wasielewski's "Life of Schumann," the volume before us must be regarded as an acceptable addition to the literature of the subject, hampered though it be with the imperfections which seem unfortunately inseparable from work of this nature. For the translator's name, associated already with the rendering of the second edition of Wasielewski, is hardly a sufficient guarantee for competence. The style of Reissmann, and his metaphysical disquisitions upon Schumann's music, do not gain in lucidity in their English garb. In the very interesting chapter on Schumann's work as a critic occurs the following incomprehensible passage: "Nor does he judge more favourably of the art 'which would be but a small art, if it had only sounds and no speech or symbol fitted to express the varying emotions of the soul,' eagerly cried the youth in regard to the 'classicists,' the contrapuntists." Again we read, on page 101, that "Schumann's emotions were as chaste and devout as those of any pure woman's heart, and he was so fluent in the language of tone that he also regained the art of moulding form." These are only two instances out of many where the author's thought, perhaps a little hard to follow in the original, is entirely obscured and rendered unintelligible in its foreign dress. Apart from this obscurity and an occasional angularity of phrase (such as a "spice of unity," page 97), the translation reads fluently enough. But evidences are not wanting to suggest a suspicion of general inaccuracy fatal to the peace of mind of the curious reader. On page 29 we read of Schumann's quitting Wieck's house and taking up his residence in Reichel's Garden. A reference to the recently published "Jugendbriefe," page 203, reveals the fact that it was in Riedel's and not Reichel's garden where he found such agreeable quarters, while a recent writer in the Athenæum has proved that certain allusions to instruments which occur in these pages can only be explained on the supposition of the translator's ignorance. Enough will now have been said to show why we cannot always accept this translation as a satisfactory representation of the statements contained in the original. But where we are not haunted by this sense of insecurity, Reissmann's remarks are generally suggestive and often admirable. The work is comprised in eight chapters, the first being devoted to an account of his home and family, and his University life at Leipzig and Heidelberg. Some of these pages require, if not rewriting, at least some modification by the light of the recently published "Jugendbriefe," which prove him to have taken at times, and at Heidelberg, a far more active share in the sociable side of student life than we should infer from the picture given by Reissmann. To say that, "as heretofore, he lived almost solely for art"—at Heidelberg, in 1830—is misleading. A letter to his brother, Julius, dated February 11, 1830 ("Jugendbriefe," page 102), winds up with the remark that he goes to parties or balls almost every night. After a short description of the circumstances which led him to embrace music as a profession, and of the nature of his training, we come to a very important chapter, entitled "Oppositional compositions," a heading explained and justified by the attitude consciously assumed by Schumann in regard to the tendencies of the time.

Upon the "Davidsbündlerschaft" the author has the following excellent remarks: "We deem it no mere romantic fancy, but a necessity of his whole nature and previous development that Schumann should thus strive to personify the two most prominent traits of his character, dreamy tenderness and mysticism as Eusebius, and passionate energy as Florestan. He had early recognised it to be his most especial mission to lay bare his soul and pour it forth in music, nor could this be more freely and more surely accomplished than by an attempt to mould this twofold nature in twofold form, and to study the resultant image." And after mentioning the other personages in this fanciful society, he goes on, "this procedure, viewed in the clearest light, is certainly based upon the Jean Paul tendency to which his youthful spirit bowed. It is the self-same romantic idealisation of all reality, the fanciful embellishment which he learned from Jean Paul and practised here with full consciousness. But, for him, the attempt had the great advantage that all those nearest his heart also appeared as bright particular stars in his imagination, and helped to disseminate order and moderation." This same chapter contains a very thoughtful comparison of the different circumstances of the intellectual evolution of Mendelssohn and Schumann. "Mendelssohn's whole education was early directed to giving his rich intellect that harmonious perfection and refinement upon which the consummate form of his artistic utterances rests. Therefore even his earliest artistic productions reveal an outward perfection scarcely consonant with their substance. His own individuality seems still so constrained by formality, it is still so overgrown with foreign matter learned in the schools, that it is hardly to be recognised. But by this very perfection he awed and impressed Schumann, whose strong mind, as we have seen, was forced to yield to foreign influences before his unbounded imagination could be schooled and restrained. Mendelssohn was obliged, by renewed efforts, to burst the fetters of form in which conventions had bound his fancy and his whole inner man, that they might break forth into freedom; while Schumann strove with equal energy to acquire the laws of form in which his education was so deficient." More than one passage in the "Jugendbriefe" bears out the truth of this analysis, notably that on p. 283, where he says he could learn from Mendelssohn for years, and yet felt conscious of greater energy of imagination. Schumann's achievements in the domain of song-writing are treated in a separate chapter, and with considerable elaboration, the various degrees of intellectual affinity between him and the different poets whose works he set to music being carefully investigated. We will confine ourselves to but one quotation from this chapter, a passage from a letter from Schumann to Keferstein, dated February 29, 1840: "I can hardly tell you," he writes, "what a delight it is to write for the voice in comparison with composing for any instrument, and how my spirit swells and surges when I sit down to work." Readers will not fail to contrast this admission with the familiar anecdote of Beethoven's always mentally hearing an air in the tone of an instrument, not in those of the human voice. Schumann's "Work as a critic" fills the fifth chapter, and here again the author has been very fortunate in his illustrations, often drawn from Schumann himself, of the aims which the latter set before himself. Of the value of suggestive, but not technical criticism, Schumann had a high opinion, witness the following passage. After stating that he considered that "to be the highest form of criticism which leaves behind it an impression similar to that produced by the original which animated it," he goes on, "In this sense Jean Paul might possibly contribute more to the comprehension of a Beethoven Symphony or Fantasia by a poetical antithesis (even without any allusion to the Symphony or Fantasia) than the dozen critics who place ladders against the colossus and carefully measure it with yard sticks." The remaining chapters, which treat of his "Period of highest development," that of his "Shattered powers," and finally of his artistic and literary rank, are marked by the same thoughtful and discriminative criticism which this brief and imperfect survey has, we hope, already shown to be the characteristic of the earlier pages. Of particular interest are the analyses of "The Paradise and the Peri," and indeed of all this master's chief works, which occur in the second half of the volume, analyses enriched by musical extracts and comments, the occasional vagueness of which is almost certainly the fault of the translator rather than of Dr. Reissmann.

Biographical Dictionary of Musicians. With a Bibliography of English Writings on Music. By James D. Brown, Mitchell Library, Glasgow.
[London: Alexander Gardner.]

THE scope of this work is avowedly limited, and the extent of the limit may be gathered from a single sentence in the preface: "The notices of Foreign Musicians are confined to such as claim attention by their acknowledged eminence, or by their connection in any way with Britain." On the whole, perhaps, this is a useful restriction. To have dealt with foreign composers and artists exhaustively would have been enormously to increase the bulk and cost of the work without corresponding advantage to the class of students who are likely to resort to its pages. Besides, as every reader may test for himself, almost all alien musicians who have made anything of a name are included in Mr. Brown's list. On the other hand, the compiler has treated the subject of British musicians with all possible fullness. Looking through his 600 pages we are struck with the multitude of names which are comparatively or absolutely obscure. As to this the preface says:—"Prominence has naturally been given to British Musical Biography, and no one whose life or works seemed of interest has been knowingly omitted. The bibliographical character of the work accounts for the presence of many names of minor importance, and accordingly no apology is offered for the comparative insignificance of any name mentioned throughout the book." Assuredly no apology is asked for. It is desirable, for reasons of utility as well as of justice, that a handy record of all who have, in any way or measure, contributed to our national art should be available. This the present dictionary supplies. We have put it to rather severe tests, and only, in a few instances, discovered that men entitled to notice are overlooked. The work is thus made of very considerable value to the musical bibliophile, who may find in it particulars of authors and books not elsewhere to be met with. Let us add that American writers and composers are by no means overlooked.

In a work of this kind the method of arranging facts is almost as important as the facts themselves. Mr. Brown's plan is, on the whole, a good one. He first gives the chief events of a life, in the fewest possible words. Then comes a list of works, followed by a short comment upon their qualities and the genius of their author. We have our doubts as to the last of these three sections, and believe that its omission would not only have saved space materially, but increased the value of the book as a work of reference. Mr. Brown says: "The critical remarks occurring here and there throughout the work are generally digests from a collation of opinions by writers of authority." That may be, but a dictionary should deal with "hard facts" and not with opinions which are always changing. Besides, the plan here adopted introduces an element of controversy undesirable in any book of the kind, and needless, not to say irritating, in one likely to be consulted by people who, on grounds deemed sufficient by themselves, have formed opinions of their own. Should Mr. Brown require space for an augmentation of his facts in future editions, he may best obtain it by sweeping away all the critical remarks. With regard to general accuracy, the compiler deserves high praise. Into such an enormous mass of particulars it must be that errors come, but Mr. Brown, as far as our examination goes, has admitted very few. On the whole, the book is a most creditable example of patient and painstaking labour. It has, moreover, a distinct value, and in right of its succinctness, trustworthiness, and handiness, will have a place in every musical library.

A General History of Music, from the Infancy of the Greek Drama to the Present Period. By W. S. Rockstro. [Sampson Low, Marston and Co.]

THE author of this work says in his preface, "There is, indeed, no volume of moderate size embodying the entire history of music available at the present moment to the English reader; and it is with the view of providing him with such a volume that the following pages have been written." The paucity of good translations of foreign works on the history of the art should be a reason for welcoming a book by so competent a musician as Mr. Rockstro; but it must not be forgotten that he writes for England rather than the world, and we are rather complaining him upon the success of his efforts when we say that his work is so coloured with that patriotic feeling which may be expected from a truly British artist that it will scarcely satisfy those who desire a fair and thorough impartial account of the growth and development of music from the earliest time to the present day. In case it may be imagined that we believe the author to have unintentionally thus favoured his countrymen, let him speak for himself: "In a work," he says, "designed expressly for the use of English readers, we have naturally dwelt a considerable length upon the history and vicissitudes of our national school—a circumstance which will, we hope, sufficiently account for what might otherwise appear to indicate a want of due proportion between the dimensions of some of our chapters. For instance, in the chapter on Handel occupies more space that devoted to Beethoven, it is simply because his influence upon our national taste was so powerful and enduring that its effect at the present moment is scarcely less remarkable than it was while he was still working in the flesh at the head of the English School. That influence, as a plain matter of history, is naturally described in the narrative portion of our work, whereas the characteristics of Beethoven's individual style are more fittingly discussed in the Appendix, which forms the complement of this, as well as of many other biographical notices." The plan of his book being thus set forth, we have no need further to allude to it, and proceed therefore to the more pleasurable task of pointing out its salient points. The chapter on the music of the Greeks, although throwing no additional light upon the subject, is well written and not burdened, as is too often the case, with a display of learning. In the remarks on the music of the early Christians we have a good account of the reforms effected by S. Ambrose and S. Gregory, the origin of the staff, clefs, and time-table. Before coming to that important subject, the invention of counterpoint, the hideous succession of fourths in the Antiphon by Huchald is given, and also the still more excruciating Litany for the Dead, which was extremely popular in the middle ages. We all know that eminent modern musicians have doubted whether these compositions could ever have been sung as they have been handed down to us; but our author tells us that such sceptics can never have read "the venerable treatises in which the whole process of constructing such a quadruple harmony is laid down in terms which can admit of no possible misunderstanding." Be this as it may, it could scarcely be expected that those gifted with sensitive ears, and sufficiently liberal to throw aside these crude specimens—albeit written by the accredited artists of the day—would rest satisfied until they had, as Mr. Rockstro says, "worked out for themselves a better state of things"; and through the well known Faux bourdon gradually arose a style of Ecclesiastical Music which was brought to perfection by Palestrina. The contents of the third and fourth books—devoted to music in the 17th and 18th centuries—are exceedingly interesting, especially the chapters on the origin of the Opera and the Oratorio, on the English School of the Restoration, and on the origin and progress of the modern system of Part-writing. But we are sorry when we arrive at the chapter headed "The Seven Lamps," not only because in this classification the author finds it necessary to prove the genius of seven great men already immortalised by their works, but to shatter the claims of others who might be admitted by equally competent judges to a like distinction. Of course we have no desire to set up our own idols, either of the past or present time, against those of Mr. Rockstro; but, as a matter of principle, we cannot but think that it is the duty of a faithful musical historian not so much to think for his readers as to provide them with materials for thinking themselves. Passing onwards, we may say that the sketchy notices of modern composers give a very fair idea of their value in the art world; yet considering what the author of this volume has previously written concerning the operatic works of the great reformer, Wagner, it seems strange to read the following from the same pen: "The polyodic involutions of Wagner's subjects bear a very close analogy to, though they are far from identical with, what is commonly called 'Fugual treatment'; and prove that he must have studied Bach's method of Part-writing through and through before he invented a new one for himself. In connection with this point, also, the world has been led very far astray. Simple folk, too inexperienced to judge for themselves, yet really anxious to arrive at the truth, have been tempted to mistake the means for the end, and as a natural consequence, have failed to enter into the true spirit of the Dramas presented to them. 'The music of this scene,' says the typical eulogist, 'is entirely made up of the "Love-motif," and the "Doubt-motif," and the "Fear-motif," and the "Jealousy-motif"; no other element whatever enters into its construction.' Very possibly. But the intention of the music is to express the passions of Love, and Fear, and Doubt, and Jealousy. The four melodic phrases are used only as means for the attainment of that expression; and listeners whose whole attention is rivetted upon the ingenuity with which these phrases are woven together miss the intention of the Scene as completely as the children who use their lorgnettes for the purpose of spying out the ropes and pulleys attached to the Swan-boat of Lohengrin." To all this we have nothing whatever to say as valid and legitimate criticism; yet we cannot but think that one who speaks so decisively upon the "Seven Lamps" which have shone for so many years, should have been amongst the first to herald the approach of an advancing light which was shortly to illumine the whole world of art. With all its faults, however, Mr. Rockstro's is an earnest and thoughtful book, and will, no doubt, be extensively read.

Scenes of Childhood, and Forest Scenes. Twenty-two Pianoforte Pieces. Composed by Robert Schumann (Op. 15 and Op. 82). Edited and fingered by Agnes Zimmermann. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WE are certain that the many amateur pianoforte players who for years have been performing rapid imitations of Schumann's charming little pieces originally published under the title of "Kinderscenen," will be pleased to hear that they are now issued in a cheap form, carefully edited by one of our most accomplished pianists, and with the German fingering, which has for some time been adopted by this firm. It will be quite unnecessary here to point out the many beauties of these juvenile sketches; but we may say that, juvenile as are all their titles, a trained touch and a trained mind are absolutely essential for their due rendering, the poetical feeling of such numbers, for example, as "A curious story," "The Child's Petition," "By the Fireside," and "A Child falling asleep," requiring much sympathetic feeling on the part of the executant. The "Forest Scenes" (Wald-scenen) make somewhat higher demands upon the powers of the pianist; but all who will bestow careful and earnest work upon them will be amply rewarded for their trouble. Many of these are already known apart from the series of which they form a portion; but those who wish to illustrate the little story in the mind of their composer must get the entire work. Certainly these two groups of tone-poems are amongst the most attractive of the minor works of Schumann.

The Prayer Book Psalter, with Chants. By Sir Herbert Oakeley, M.A., Mus. Doc., LL.D. [Nisbet and Co.]

TWO years ago, Sir Herbert Oakeley published a pointed edition of the "Bible Psalter," presumably for use in Non-conformist places of worship, where, of course, our Prayer-Book version is never sung. The present is therefore a companion work, the same principles being observed in its preparation. What those principles are the editor explains in his preface. In the first place, he has no sympathy with those who taboo double chants as being unecclasiastical, flippant, &c. Indeed, he speaks somewhat contemptuously of single chants as "half chants," a scarcely admissible term, as, with few exceptions, every verse of the Psalms is complete in itself. Still, we may agree that for antiphonal singing double chants are preferable, as "a satisfactory antiphon ought to consist of a second and a different strain musically responding to the first strain." In the collection of chants, some of our old florid friends reappear, but with all superfluous crotchets removed. The well-known Battis-hill in D sounds very odd, stripped of its gaudy embellishments. With respect to the pointing, Sir Herbert Oakeley is unquestionably right in saying that "a prevalent fault is to hesitate, although no stop occurs in the text, just before the barred or strict time commences," and in order to obviate this, he dispenses altogether with marks for stress or accent. But practical experience proves that when no word is so indicated, a pause is made on the last syllable of the recitation, be it even an article or a preposition. Again, in short verses, such as "Yet have I | set my | King | upon my | holy | hill of | Sion, ||" unless a stress is laid on the syllables yet and on, the reciting bars will be shorter than the others, and the balance completely destroyed. On the other hand, we agree with the principle of not confining the notes of the mediation to one syllable apiece where the flow of the words seems to demand more, though the division here is frequently very odd. For example, " | stand, in the | judgement ||" is preferable to "stand | in the | judgement ||"; but " | law of, the | Lord ||" is indefensible, and " | faults are, not | hid from | Thee ||" is sheer nonsense. Scores of similar instances of extremely good and extremely bad pointing in close juxtaposition might be cited. On the whole, although we commend the work to the notice of choirmasters, as containing many useful hints, we cannot recommend it as a substitute for Elvey's or the Cathedral Psalter.

Original Compositions for the Organ. By Otto Dienel. Nos. 1 to 10. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

HERR DIENEL, whose organ works have gained some footing in this country, chiefly through the medium of the "Organist's Quarterly Journal," is organist of the St. Marien Hofkirche at Berlin. Six of the ten books now before us contain reprints from the Quarterly, but the pieces in Nos. 4, 8, 9, and 10 appear for the first time. In the first of these latter four we have a Grand Sonata in G minor (Op. 11), a work that at once stamps the composer as a master of his art. The first movement is written in a broad, vigorous style, the principal theme being subjected to a good deal of imitative treatment, while the flowing and melodious second subject affords a happy contrast. The Adagio which follows is virtually a flute solo abounding in ornamental passages of the most florid type. By far the most important movement, however, is the Finale, in which the material is developed at symphonic length and with immense spirit. Recital players will find in this Sonata a highly effective addition to their repertory. The same remark will apply to No. 8, another Sonata in F (Op. 18), of even greater length and importance. The first movement is more cheerful than the corresponding section of the other Sonata. There is something of Handelian brightness in the opening, and the second subject is almost flippant, though the hand of a musician is quickly apparent in its skilful treatment. The next portion is a pretty and ingeniously constructed Pastoral, which does not come to a full close, but merges into the Finale, a very lengthy movement full of ingenuity but, on the whole, rather laboured. The important coda, however, in which a choral is introduced, brings the work to a very effective conclusion. The so-called Echo-Andante, No. 9, is a piquant movement in C, in which short figures given out on one manual are repeated on another. A more suave and flowing theme occurs as second subject in the dominant and is repeated in tonic, the echo figures here serving as accompaniment. No. 10 contains two brief Andantes (Op. 20), the second of which is the more developed and pleasing of the pair. Herr Dienel is not sparing in executive difficulties, and as usual in German organ music the pedal part is always very important. On the whole, however, his works are freer and lighter in style than those of many Teutonic organ composers.

Souvenirs. Two little Pianoforte Pieces. By Henry Charles Banister. (Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co.)

THESE extremely refined and musicianlike little sketches may be conscientiously recommended to all young players. As excellent studies, as well as attractive pieces, they are admirable; and Miss Charlotte Ellen Burr, for whom they were composed, should consider herself highly honoured.

Original Compositions for the Organ. Nos. 49 to 52.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE rapid growth of this series of new pieces seems to testify to its usefulness. A few words concerning each of the above numbers will suffice. No. 49 contains an Andante in E, and a Minuet and Trio in A minor, by Luard Selby, several of whose previous compositions have received favourable mention. This Andante is quiet and unpretentious, the theme being slightly suggestive of Mendelssohn. The Minuet is stately and dignified and not by any means unsuitable as a church voluntary. No. 50 consists solely of a brightly written, but quite easy, Postlude in D, in the style of a March, by W. G. Wood. The same composer's Allegro in C, No. 51, is less commendable; transcribed for piano it would make a spirited little piece, but it is scarcely in the true organ style. No. 52, Melody in B flat, by Arthur Carnall, may be highly commended as a tastefully written trill with a good deal of modern feeling in the harmonic progressions.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in Chant form; Benedicite in D. By I. Herbert Stammers. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE first and more important setting of the evening canticles was composed for a harvest festival at Liverpool last year. It commences quietly enough, but there is some bold writing in the later verses commencing with "He hath shewed strength." The musicianship is unimpeachable throughout, but Mr. Stammers is too fond of triple measure, the prevalence of which conduces to loss of dignity in church music. Further, the use of the same figure for the opening of the "Nunc dimittis" and the "Gloria" cannot be defended. Musical effect should certainly give way to ecclesiastical fitness in such cases. The chant service is generally so good that it is a pity it is disfigured by some atrocious grammatical errors. The consecutive fifths in the third bar, and the octaves between treble and bass in the first "Gloria," are unpardonable. There is plenty of variety in the Benedicite, and most of the nine chants are very pleasing.

Organ Compositions. By C. W. Pearce, Mus. Doc.
[London Music Publishing Company.]

THE chief peculiarity of these pieces is that they are mostly founded on ancient chorals or other ecclesiastical melodies. It is open to question whether a composer does not hamper himself by this procedure, although an illustrious exemplar may be found in J. S. Bach. Dr. Pearce however has gone far beyond his model as regards freedom of construction in his compositions. In most instances he has taken his canto fermo from the Sarum Hymnal, the tunes of which have recently again become familiar to High Churchmen, as many adaptations will be found in "Hymns Ancient and Modern," and "The Hymnal Noted." Dr. Pearce's compositions range from trifling pieces of twenty or thirty bars each to preludes and fugues, a dramatic fantasia, and a symphonic poem. His object, he says, is to increase the stock of organ music suitable for recitals in church, and he thinks that ancient hymn tunes, from their solidity of construction, are better suited than modern melodies for elaboration and development. With this most musicians will agree, and we are also pleased to admit that Dr. Pearce has shown the necessary ability for his task. A large amount of high class musicianship and knowledge of effect will be found in these pieces, seven in number, especially in the symphonic poem "Corde natus," and the fantasia "The Royal Banners."

Album of Songs. Composed by Edmonstone Duncan.
(Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co.)

OF the four songs contained in this volume, the poetry of three are by Moore, the other being Tennyson's "Miller's Daughter," the setting of which is melodious and appropriately simple. The music to Moore's verses is more ambitious, and, in places, somewhat restless in tonality; but the whole of the compositions show an earnest desire to colour the words with the sympathetic feeling of a brother artist; and on the whole Mr. Duncan may be congratulated on what we may presume is his début before the public.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A. By W. H. Garland.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

MR. GARLAND'S service was composed for a festival of church choirs at Halifax last year. It is a remarkably bright and spirited setting, but though the voice parts are chiefly in unison, it is scarcely easy, owing to the abundant use of chromatic progressions and the very free organ accompaniment. Still it will well repay the trouble of learning.

The Music of the Faithful Shepherdess. By the Rev. A. Wellesley Batson, Mus. Bac., Oxon.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS is the incidental music composed for the performance of "The Faithful Shepherdess," at Coombe, last summer. Anything like modern elaboration and complexity of structure in illustrating Fletcher's play would have been wholly out of place, and Mr. Batson has carefully observed the conditions of his task. Pastoral measures and dactylic rhythms abound in his choruses and instrumental movements, and the general style is broad, simple, and, we might add, English. The most engaging number is the unaccompanied four-part chorus "Come, charming sleep," which may be recommended to the notice of choral Societies.

Sowing and Reaping. Harvest Carol. Music by J. Maude Crament, Mus. Bac., Oxon.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

IN a few weeks harvest thanksgiving services will be general throughout the country, and music suitable to such occasions will be in large request. Mr. Crament's carol is bright and tuneful, being in style neither so churchlike as a hymn, nor so secular as a part-song. In a technical sense it is well written and by no means difficult, so that it appears to possess every quality necessary to command popularity alike with choir and congregation.

Together let's stand or let's fall. Words by Thomas Hood. Adapted from the old English tune "Saddle to rags," by C. A. Macirone. [Frederick Pittman.]

THESE stirring words have been well adapted by Miss Macirone to an equally stirring tune; and as it is said that the song "may be sung without fee or licence," there can be little doubt of its becoming popular, especially as we are informed that it will be published in leaflets, in a cheap form. The composition will be found, both in words and music, especially suitable for large meetings.

Ave Verum. For Baritone solo and male voice chorus. By George Sampson. [Spottiswoode and Co.]

THIS setting of the Latin hymn is very pleasing and melodious, though perhaps a little too ballad-like. Those, however, who prefer tune before everything else, will scarcely consider this an objection. The accompaniment is for organ and harp, but it is equally suitable for piano and harmonium. The composer is organist and choirmaster of St. Alban's, Holborn, where no doubt the hymn is in frequent request.

FOREIGN NOTES.

THE annual meeting of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musikverein was held from the 3rd to the 6th ult., at Sondershausen, the pleasant little capital of Thuringia. There was an unusually numerous gathering of musicians from all parts of the German empire, representing in their great majority the advanced or progressist school in matters connected with the art. The fact of the veteran Franz Liszt, the principal founder of the Society, presiding over the meeting, while considerably increasing its attractiveness, could not fail also to influence very considerably the musical performances held in connection therewith. Thus, two evenings were devoted exclusively to compositions by the Hungarian master, including very fine interpretations of his Oratorio "Christus," four symphonic poems—viz., "Die Ideale," "Hamlet," "Berg-Symphony," and "Hunnenschlacht," as well as four "Hungarian character sketches" (orchestral arrangement by Herr Arthur Friedheim), intended to portray in outline the leading idiosyncrasies of some Hungarian personalities—an experiment as interesting as it is said to have been successful. High praise has been bestowed upon the Sondershausen orchestra in the execution of these works, under the energetic direction of Herr Carl Schröder, the Court Capellmeister. Among the numerous new compositions which obtained a hearing under the auspices of this interesting gathering, may be instanced two movements from a fourth symphony, and a string quartet, by Anton Bruckner, a "Ballade" for string quartet by Adolf Ruthardt, a "Spring Fantasia" by Hans von Bronsart, and a "Carnival Scene" by the American composer, Arthur Bird. French music was represented by Berlioz's "Sinfonie Fantastique," and Jean Louis Nicodé's "Symphonie Variations," the latter being received with marked enthusiasm. Franz Liszt, with his accustomed indefatigable vigour, attended all the proceedings, and, as a matter of course, was the recipient of that homage which his presence invariably commands. We are glad to add that the report which has recently reached this country of the illness of the Abbé is entirely without foundation.

Liszt's seventy-sixth birthday is to be celebrated in October next by the newly founded Liszt-Society of Leipzig by festive performances extending over several days, and including a dramatic representation of "St. Elizabeth."

A correspondent of the Daily Telegraph writes from Berlin, under date ult.:—"Mr. D'Oyly Carte's Company was most cordially welcomed to-night at the Wallner Theatre, where it gave its first performance of 'The Mikado.' The Crown Prince and Crown Princess, with their daughters and suite, honoured the performance with their presence, and Sir Edward and Lady Erymtrude Malet, with the members of the British Embassy, occupied another box. The theatre was crowded by a most distinguished audience, and the reception afforded to the piece, which was given in English, was thoroughly favourable. Several of the songs were encored; Messrs. Courtice Pounds, and Fisher, and Miss Geraldine Ulmar were repeatedly recalled, and earned well-merited applause." Since the above was written, Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's Operetta has continued to attract full houses, the same authors' "Trial by Jury" having lately been added to the "Mikado" performances.

A new Opera by Heinrich Hofmann, "Donna Diana," is to be the first novelty at the Royal Opera of Berlin next season. "Junker Heinz," the successful new opera by Herr C. von Perfall (recently brought out at Munich), is likewise in course of preparation at the same Royal establishment.

During the forthcoming Bayreuth performances the theatre will be illuminated by the electric light.

According to a statement contained in the Musikalisches Wochenblatt, Beethoven's entire music appertaining to the occasional piece "Zur Weihe des Hauses" (of which the overture only has hitherto been known) has just been discovered at Vienna, together with a number of unpublished compositions by Franz Schubert.

The following works are to be produced during next season by the Berlin Sing-Akademie—viz., Handel's "Samson," Bach's "St. Matthew Passion," "Christmas Oratorio," Ascension and Whitsun Cantatas, Haydn's "Creation," Kiel's "Requiem," and Blumner's "Fall of Jerusalem."

It is stated that the members of the Russian National Opera of Moscow will give a series of representations of operatic works by Russian composers in the capitals of Europe during next winter.

According to Herr Ferdinand Gumbert's statistical notes, there have been 255 operatic performances at the Berlin Royal Opera during last season (August, 1885, to June, 1886), no less than thirty of which were devoted to Nessler's "Trompeter von Säckingen," thirteen to Bizet's "Carmen," and eight to Joncières's "Chevalier Jean." Wagner was represented by forty-three performances, Mozart by thirteen, Meyerbeer by twelve, Weber by eight, Beethoven and Gluck by seven, Gounod by two, and Spohr only by one. Among the novelties produced during the period in question, the most important were Wagner's "Siegfried," and the above "Chevalier Jean" (as "Johann von Lothringen"), by Joncières.

At the sixty-first annual Festival of the Lower Rhine, held at Cologne last month, the following were the principal works which obtained a hearing:—Handel's "Belshazzar," Bach's Cantata, "Ein feste Burg," Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Mozart's Symphony in E flat, Brahms's

New Symphony, portions of a Te Deum by Wüllner, and fragments from Wagner's "Parsifal." The performances were conducted by Dr. Franz Wüllner, the worthy successor at Cologne of the late Ferdinand Hiller. There was the usual numerous attendance from all parts of Germany and other countries.

Professor Wilhelmj, the eminent violinist, has returned to his residence near Wiesbaden, after a most successful concert tour in the East, in the course of which he has repeatedly played before the Sultan, at Constantinople, who has conferred a decoration upon the artist.

Felix Weingartner's new opera "Malawika" was produced at the Munich Hof-Theater on the 3rd ult., with good success, to which the impersonation of leading characters by Herren Gura and Vogl are said to have not a little contributed.

A correspondent writes to us: "The anniversary of the birth of the late Joachim Raff was celebrated at the Conservatorium bearing his name, on May 27, at Frankfurt. Dr. Hans von Bülow, the Honorary Director of the institution, pronounced a discourse on this occasion in his accustomed epigrammatical style, after which, to add a special feature to the ceremonies, Brahms's Sonata (Op. 78) for pianoforte and violin was interpreted by two Royal pupils of the Conservatorium, Prince Alexander of Hesse and Princess Marie Elisabeth of Meiningen."

The firm of Gilhofer and Ranschburg, of Vienna, are offering for sale two exceedingly rare and interesting musical works by Hans Gerle, of Nuremberg—viz., "Musica Teusch, auf die Instrument der grossen und Kleinen Geygen, auch Lauten, welcher massen die mit grundt und art irer Composition auss dem Gesang in die Tabulatur zu ordnen und zu setzen ist, sampt verborgener applicacion und Kunst," &c.—published at Nuremberg in 1532 (the earliest lute instruction book known to exist in the German language); and a Collection of Psalms, Motetts, and Songs by German, Italian, and French masters, arranged in Lute Tablature by the same author, and dated 1533. Of the former work only one other copy is extant (in the Royal Library of Berlin); the second work is said to be absolutely unique. Hans Gerle belongs to a family of celebrated lute makers who flourished at Nuremberg in the latter half of the fifteenth and in the sixteenth centuries. It is needless to point out the value of these works from a musico-historical point of view, but the prices asked for them by the above firm—viz., 3,000 and 3,600 florins respectively—appear to us altogether prohibitive.

At the Imperial Opera of Vienna the following works, either novelties or newly mounted, will be produced during next season—viz., "Maria" by Hager, "Le Cid" by Massenex, Goldmark's "Merlin," Lortzing's "Waffenschmidt," and "Wildschütz," Weber's "Euryanthe," and Wagner's "Nibelungen" Tetralogy.

"The Marriage of the Monk" is the title of a new opera by Herr Klughardt which will be brought out at the Berlin Opera. Herr Felix Mosse, of Karlsruhe, is said to be engaged upon an operatic work founded upon the same subject.

Eugene d'Albert, the young pianist and composer, will shortly undertake an extensive concert tour in Russia and Scandinavia.

Dr. Hans von Bülow will conduct a series of important orchestral Concerts at Hamburg during next season.

Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel have published a second volume of Herr Oesterlein's "Katalog einer Richard Wagner Bibliothek," containing references to all books, pamphlets, &c., which have appeared concerning the Bayreuth master and his works up to the year 1881.

A commemorative tablet has been placed against the house, at Coblenz, where Henriette Sontag, the world-famed singer, was born.

A series of popular Symphony Concerts will be given during the present summer at the Gürzenich Hall of Cologne under the direction of the energetic Dr. Wüllner.

Peter Cornelius's charming opera "Der Barbier von Bagdad" is to be produced at several German theatres next season, notably at Cologne, Karlsruhe, and Munich.

A violin virtuoso, Herr Marcel Herwegh, son of the well known German poet, Georg Herwegh, has created much enthusiasm on his recent concert tour in Russia, and is about to extend his visits to other European countries.

The Hamburg Stadt-Theater closed its present season at the beginning of last month, with an excellent performance of Wagner's "Nibelungen" Tetralogy.

Lovers of Spohr's music will be glad to hear that a hitherto unpublished composition of that master—viz., a spirited "Festmarsch," has just been issued by Herr Paul Voigt, of Cassel, in an arrangement for pianoforte. The March was composed some sixty years since in honour of the marriage of Princess Marie of Hesse with the Duke of Saxe-Meiningen.

Madame Christine Nilsson will commence what is announced to be her last European operatic tour in October next.

In an article headed "La Question Wagner," recently published in the Paris Revue Contemporaine, the writer, M. Alfred Ernst, says, inter alia: "The public are at length beginning to question the sincerity of certain press organs in their systematical and calumnious onslaughts against Wagner, and to grow heartily tired of these incessant outbursts of insane hatred and vulgar abuse. A strong desire is manifesting itself in many quarters to become acquainted with the dramas of the great reformer in a more complete and satisfactory way than through mere analyses or excerpts. The principal scenes of the first act of 'Die Walküre,' recently produced at M. Lamoureux's Concerts, have raised a perfect storm of applause, as spontaneous as it was unanimous. Thus, 'Lohengrin' will assuredly not be the only one of Wagner's works which, if performed on the stage, will prove highly acceptable to a future French audience."

M. Gounod, at the request of the directors of the Paris Grand Opéra, will most likely write a new operatic work, to be brought out in connection with the projected International Exhibition at Paris in 1889. The story of "Héloïse et Abélard" is mentioned as the probable subject of the libretto.

A statue of Hector Berlioz will be unveiled at the Place Vintimille of Paris in October next, for which ceremony elaborate preparations are being made.

Under the title of "Georges Bizet et son œuvre," an interesting and elaborate volume on the subject of the composer of "Carmen" has just been published at Paris, from the pen of M. Ernest Guiraud. Another valuable French publication recently issued is entitled "La Voix et le Chant, traité pratique," by M. J. Faure, the eminent baritone.

Dr. Josef Joachim has accepted engagements for concert performances during the entire month of January next in Paris and the provincial towns of France.

It is audibly whispered in competent quarters of the French capital that M. Lamoureux is actively engaged in organising the performance during next season, most likely at the Eden Theatre, of Wagner's "Lohengrin" and "Die Walküre." The Eden not being a state-subservient theatre like M. Carvalho's Opéra Comique, it is thought that one of the principal objections raised against the production of Wagner's works by French "patriots" will fall to the ground.

Miss Augusta Holmes, the well-known Irish composer residing in Paris, is just now engaged upon a musical drama entitled "Erin." The lady has already written a symphonic work which she has named "Ireland."

At the Paris Opéra interesting revivals have lately taken place of works emanating from the modern French School—viz., of M. Meyer's "Sigurd," M. Massenet's "Le Cid," and M. Camille Saint-Saëns's "Henry VIII.;" Verdi has also figured on the répertoire with the majority of his recognised operas.

During the present and next months the Paris theatres will be closed, with the exception of the Porte St. Martin and the Cluny.

At Rouen Cathedral a new oratorio by M. Charles Lenepveu, entitled "Jeanne d'Arc," was performed on the 1st ult. in connection with a festival held in honour of the French heroine, under the auspices of the Archbishop. The orchestra and chorus numbered 400, M. Alexandre Guilmant, the eminent organist, presiding at that instrument. The work created a most favourable impression and is spoken of very highly in French journals.

The Russian composer, M. Pierre Tchaikowsky, is just now in the French capital, where it is expected he will give a series of concerts, including the performance of some of his most important works.

A new theatre is being built on the Boulevard Victor Hugo at Nice, which will be devoted to the lyrical drama.

A French physician, Dr. Sandras, is said to have discovered a means by which any given human voice may be considerably increased in its compass or its timbre improved, his treatment consisting in the inhalation of certain chemical substances. The matter has been submitted to the Paris Conservatoire and the Academy of Medicine, the result of whose investigations will be looked forward to with much interest.

At one of the Popular Orchestral Concerts of Bologna a new Symphony has recently been performed, the work of the Baron Alberto Franchetti, which has been exceedingly well received. The composer, who has studied in Germany, is about to complete an opera, "Asrael," which is to be brought out at Bologna next season.

A committee of ladies has been formed at Rome with the object of ensuring, by way of raising subscriptions or otherwise, the performance at the Apollo Theatre in autumn next of an opera entitled "Jacopo," whereof Signor Antonio Leonardi, a professor of mathematics at the Liceo, is the author, both of the libretto and the music.

The young Maestro Giuseppe Martucci, who has already acquired a considerable reputation beyond his native Italy as a composer and orchestral conductor, has been appointed to the directorship of the Liceo of Bologna, lately vacated by the Maestro Luigi Mancinelli.

A great success has recently been achieved at the Theatre Carcano of Milan by an opera entitled "Flora Mirabilis," by a Maestro of Greek extraction, Signor Samara.

The news comes from Rome of Pope Leo XIII. having decided to admit no new soprano and contralto singers, of the type hitherto employed, to the choir of the Sistine Chapel, whose ranks are in future to be recruited by boys' and female voices. It may not be generally known that the castrati, though abolished at the Papal chapel in 1797, under Pius VI., were reinstated by his successor. It was time the world had heard the last of this miserable abuse.

At Naples a new two-act opera by the Maestro Scarano was recently performed with moderate success, bearing the peculiar title of "Lui? Lei?" (He? Her?).

Under the nom de théâtre of Montiano, a former deputy of the Spanish Cortes has made his very successful début at Madrid, in the leading tenor part of "Lucrezia Borgia."

The copyright of dramatic works is at length to be secured also in Spain, the Minister of Public Works in Madrid being about to submit a project for that purpose to the Cortes.

According to Il Trovatore, Italy possesses at the present moment 1,399 theatres.

M. de Kontski's Opera "The Sultan of Zanzibar" has met with a complete fiasco upon its recent production at the Academy of Music in New York. Both the libretto and the music wedded thereto are considered singularly devoid of interest. The composer himself conducted the performance, and a malicious writer in the Musical Courier vows that he saw him fall asleep over it several times.

The melancholy death, on the 13th ult., of King Louis II. of Bavaria, recalls to the musical world the important services this high-minded monarch has rendered in the earlier days of his reign to the art generally, and to the aspirations of Richard Wagner in particular, to whom he was both a protector and a friend. It is probably not too much to say that without the helping hand extended by this most idealistic of all sovereigns, neither the "Tetralogy," nor "Parsifal," nor even the "Meistersinger," would have seen the light of day—three monumental productions of a master mind, which will remain a source of inspiration to others for generations to come.

At Dresden, died, at the age of sixty, the once celebrated prima donna Madame Bürde-Ney, for many years one of the most esteemed members of the Dresden Hof-Theater.

Heinrich Stiehl, a popular composer of pianoforte pieces, and lately organist at Reval (Russia), has recently died in that town at the age of fifty-seven.

At Paris died, on June 3, Ernest David, an esteemed musical writer and author of a "Life of Bach" and of a similar volume on Handel, which has been reviewed in this journal. He had attained his sixty-first year.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE FAUST LEGEND.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In common, doubtless, with many of your readers I have greatly enjoyed Mr. Corder's papers on the musical treatment of the Faust legend. I trust he will not think it ungracious on my part to express regret that, among the items omitted, are the instrumental Quartets by Hermann Hirschbach. Schumann wrote enthusiastically of three Quartets and a Quintet by this composer, all written on passages from Goethe's "Faust"; they were performed in private about the year 1838, and were the first compositions that brought the young musician into notice, although he had contributed some remarkable articles to the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik. Perhaps Mr. Corder would supplement his admirable essay by a few words on these compositions, which it is to be feared are unknown in this country. I have never met with the name of Hirschbach excepting in Schumann's writings and in Mendel's Lexicon. He was born at Berlin, February 29, 1812, and for all that I know is still living.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully, STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

Birmingham, June 21, 1886.

[Schumann's remarks upon Hirschbach are thoughtful and interesting, but it is rather doubtful whether the composer deserved such serious attention. Modern present-day judgment would probably decide that he was one of those ill-regulated geniuses who, perhaps, from insufficient or badly directed study, have failed to become genuine artists. As to the Quartets themselves, Schumann says in one place that the motives from "Faust" are put "mehr als Schmuck als zur Erklärung" (more for ornament than use), and in another that they were probably affixed after the compositions were written, a course of proceeding which he himself frequently adopted. In any case, they have no more connection with the "Faust" legend than sundry Overtures by Schulz, Seifried, and other small fry, which consideration for the patience of my readers induced me to pass over. I might at least have mentioned their existence, however, and am obliged to Mr. Stratton for the reminder.—F. C.]

THE WAGNER PERFORMANCES AT BAYREUTH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—It may interest some of your readers to learn that the performances of "Tristan und Isolde" and of "Parsifal" are not postponed, as was at first announced, on account of the death of the King and the Laudes-Trauer. The rehearsals begin on June 29. As some of your readers may wish to know how to get housed, a difficulty I have myself encountered on former occasions during the performances at Bayreuth, I may mention that at Ruprechtstegen, on the Nürnberg and Bayreuth line, is a very comfortable establishment, where there is a good cook, everything clean, host most obliging, situated in lovely scenery among dolomitic limestone crags, where a visitor can be en pension for four shillings and sixpence a day, all included. The special train for the performances from Nürnberg halts at Ruprechtstegen, in going and returning, so that one can lunch there, attend the performance at Bayreuth, sup at Bayreuth, and return to sleep at Ruprechtstegen; moreover, the ticket of admission to the theatre gives the holder free passage on the line to and from Bayreuth to the performance. The second class from Charing Cross to Nürnberg, express, is just £4. Ruprechtstegen is an hour on by train.

As visitors have on former occasions found a difficulty in getting accommodation, and when they have got it have found the accommodation very dear, this hint may be of use to them.—I remain, yours faithfully,

S. BARING-GOULD.

Bayreuth, June 20, 1886.

ORIGIN AND CONSTRUCTION OF THE DIATONIC AND CHROMATIC SCALES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Having recently had occasion to consider the ratios of the intervals of the chromatic scale, I was surprised to find that the majority of writers on the subject ascribe the ratio 25 : 24 to the ordinary chromatic semitone, and 9 : 5 to the dominant seventh. The former error evidently arises from neglecting to note that A in the key of G must be a comma ($81 : 80$) higher than A in the key of C if the accepted ratios of the scale are to be respected. Thus, measuring from Tonic A, we get $\frac{5}{4} \times \frac{81}{80} \times \frac{2}{3} \times \frac{1}{2} = \frac{135}{128} = C\sharp$; whereas, measuring from Submediant A, we get $\frac{5}{4} \times \frac{5}{4} = \frac{25}{16} = D\sharp$. The interval is, however, more properly measured as two perfect fifths from B, thus: $\frac{3}{2} \times \frac{3}{2} \times \frac{1}{2} = \frac{135}{128}$.

A similar neglect of the comma gives us the false minor seventh $\frac{10}{9}$, instead of $\frac{10}{9} \times \frac{81}{80} = \frac{105}{80}$, as we find it in the familiar series of whole numbers—24 27 30 32 36 40 45 48, extended to the octave of the fourth, thus:—

24	27	30	32	36	40	45	48	54	60	64
				G				F

These positive and commonly quoted errors, and the absence from the text-books of any satisfactory account of the nature of the diatonic scale, have impelled me to examine the subject anew. Some of the results of my inquiries are briefly as follows.

The whole musical scale, diatonic and chromatic, including every possible interval deducible from the accepted ratios 24 27 30, &c., is founded on the three prime numbers 1, 3, and 5; 1 being the primary root, 5 the secondary root, and 3 the generator, thus:—

Natural Scale of Twelfths.

Primary Root.				Secondary Root.
$\frac{1}{1}$	$\frac{1}{3}$	$\frac{1}{5}$	$\frac{1}{9}$	$\frac{5}{3}$	$\frac{5}{5}$	$\frac{5}{15}$	$\frac{15}{15}$
C	G	C	D	D	A	E	B
Tonic Group.				Mediant Group.

Multiplying by 9, we get the above in whole numbers—

3	9	27	81	5	15	45	135
---	---	----	----	---	----	----	-----

Multiplying by the various powers of 2, we bring the whole series within the limits of one octave—

96	72	108	81	80	120	90	135
----	----	-----	----	----	-----	----	-----

Reduced to its simplest form, and omitting the fifth term, this series is seen to be identical with the accepted ratios—

$\frac{32}{F}$	$\frac{24}{C}$	$\frac{36}{G}$	$\frac{27}{D}$	$\frac{40}{A}$	$\frac{30}{E}$	$\frac{45}{B}$
----------------	----------------	----------------	----------------	----------------	----------------	----------------

Let it be observed that the mathematical order in any of the above series of figures (and, indeed, in any arrangement of the scale whatever) is precisely the same, whether estimated upwards from the tonic or downwards from the mediant.*

The number 1 is the primary, natural, sensuous, and obvious root of the scale, because it is the simplest prime number from which ratios can be measured.

The number 3 is the natural generator of the scale, because it is the simplest prime number from which the ratios of notes, other than octaves, can be formed.

The number 5 is the secondary, inverse, and purely mathematical root of the scale, because it is the simplest

* From this indisputable fact there follows the inevitable corollary, that the only perfect inversion of a melody is that in which the tonic of the original becomes the mediant of the inversion, and vice versa, the supertonic being the same in both, thus—

A perfect inversion of "God Save the Queen."

A melody, thus inverted, has the same mathematical identity with the original, that the form of the reflection of an object in a looking-glass has with the form of the object itself.

prime number from which ratios can be formed, other than octaves and other than those formed by 1 and 3.

The chromatic scale is merely an indefinite extension of the double series of fifths or twelfths constituting the diatonic scale; the ratios of subdominant, tonic, dominant, and supertonic being found in the tonic series, and those of submediant, mediant, and leading-note in the mediant series.

RATIOS OF THE CHROMATIC SCALE FROM F♯ TO E♯
Mediant Series.
655360	327680	81920	20480	5120	1280	320	160	40	10	5	5
531441	177147	59049	19683	6561	2187	243	81	27	9	3	4
F♯	C♯	D♯	E♯	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
8192	4096	1024	256	64	16	4	1	3	9	27	81
6561	2187	729	243	81	27	3	1	2	8	16	64
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32768	16384	4096	1024	256	64	16	4	1	3	9	27
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
10035	5017	1254	313	78	19	5	1	0	27	81	243
8192	4096	1024	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81	243
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
SEKISMA.
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16	4	1	0	27	81
262144	131072	32768	8192	2048	512	128	32	8	2	54	162
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
F	C	D	E	F	G	F	C	D	E	B
32805	16402	4100	1025	256	64	16

W. David in the evening. Mr. E. R. Jones (Caradog), Salem Choir, Master, took the prize of £5 ros. for the best rendering of "Yr Haf," by Gwilym Jones. Mr. Gwilym, Llanelly, secured the prize for reading music at sight. "Comrades in arms," by male choirs of not less than twenty voices, Noorly Minstrel (five guineas); chief choral prize of £20, for best rendering of "Destroyed is Babylon," was awarded to the only choir attending—Maesteg. Madame Clara Novello Davis was the pianist. At the evening Concert the vocalists comprised Madame Williams-Penn, Miss Rees, Mr. D. Lloyd, and Mr. Williams. Caradog gave two violin solos.

CROWBOROUGH.—The Annual Eisteddfod was held on the 14th ult., Mr. D. Jenkins, M.P., Aberystwyth, being musical adjudicator, and Mr. F. Stibba acting as accompanist. Eleven competitors sang "The Children's Home" (soprano test), and a little girl named Polly Rowlands, Pontnydd, took the prize.

DEWSBURY.—A performance of the Oratorio, Christ and His Soldiers, was given at Thornhill Lees Church, on the 3rd ult., with the object of defraying the cost of a window placed in the church, to the memory of the late Mrs. Hague. In every respect the work was excellently rendered. The solos allotted to Master's Troop, of All Saints', London, Messrs. T. Raspin, Hemsworth, J. Walker, Fox, and S. Senior, were well sung, and much praise is due to Mr. H. H. D'Aeth for the manner in which he accompanied the vocalists, and played the introductions.

DORCHESTER.—A Concert was given on May 25 by the choir of the Dorset County School, assisted by Messrs. W. Stone (violin), W. W. Alcock (violin), and F. H. Cliffe (pianoforte). The glees and madrigals which were sung, included Ravenscroft's "In the Merry Spring," Stewart's arrangement of "The Bells of St. Michael's Tower," &c. The instrumental music comprised Beethoven's Trio in C minor (Op. 9), and the same composer's Kreutzer Sonata. Mr. Cliffe played Weber's "Il moto continuo" and Chopin's Waltz in C sharp minor with much effect. Mr. Durden was the solo vocalist.

DUBLIN.—The second Concert of the seventh season of the Amateur Orchestral Society took place on May 26 in the Antient Concert Rooms. A most attractive programme was provided, but the attendance was not large. Mr. Telford's band, which now consists of seventy performers, including several lady instrumentalists, is deserving of the highest commendation for the excellence with which every item in the programme was played. A feature of the Concert was the violin playing of Miss A. Burke-Irwin, her rendering of Vieuxtemps's "Réverie" and Wieniawski's Mazurka, eliciting enthusiastic applause. The pianoforte soloist was Herr Bluthner, a young professor of the Leipzig Conservatoire. The vocalist was Miss Lucie Heinekey, whose singing was much admired. Mr. Telford conducted.

EASTBOURNE.—Two Organ Recitals were given in All Souls' Church, on the afternoon and evening of the 2nd ult., by Mr. Henry Baillie, the Organist. Mr. Baillie played Bach's C minor fugue, Mendelssohn's Trio in G major, and selections from the works of Gounod, Handel, Smart, &c.

GREENWICH.—On Whit Sunday, the 13th ult., at Evensong, a full Choral Service was held in St. Mary's Church, Greenwich Park, and the sermon, preached by the Rev. W. H. K. Soames, was listened to with great attention by a large congregation. The Canticles were sung to Ebdon in C with great precision, the beautiful tries being exceedingly well rendered. The choir was also highly efficient throughout the anthem (Attwood's "Come Holy Ghost"); but the special feature was the singing, after the service, of the final chorus from Gounod's Redemption ("The Hymn of the Apostles"). This piece was given in an admirable manner, thoroughly sustaining the reputation of the choir, and reflecting great credit on Mr. Blenkhorn, the director of the choir, who conducted with his usual ability.

GUILDFORD.—A Pianoforte Recital was given by Mr. Henry Smith, Organist of Holy Trinity, at the Western Hall, on May 27. The programme was varied and well selected, and Mr. Smith's performance was listened to with earnest attention by an appreciative audience. The Concert-giver was assisted in the vocal department by Miss Amy Aylward, and by Mr. Herbert Thorne (pianist).

HARTLEY WINTNEY, WINCHFIELD.—On May 25, the newly formed Choral Society gave a Concert of secular music before a large audience. The programme included Horsley's fine arrangement of "God save the Queen" (as sung by the Bristol Madrigal Society), Spofforth's "Hail, smiling morn," the madrigal, "Matona, lovely maiden," Pearsall's glees "When Allen-a-Dale," and "The Song of the Zealand Fishermen" (Sir G. Elvey), the last two works being re-demanded. Mrs. Cooke received a well merited encore for her playing of Weber's Concert-studio and Miss Lifford sang "Should I be a Soldier?" and Mr. Good presided at the pianoforte, and the Rev. C. H. Keable conducted.

HOLLINWOOD, OLDHAM.—Mr. Irvine Dearnaley, Organist of Ashton-under-Lyne Parish Church and musical Director of the Manchester Gentlemen's Glee Club, gave a Recital on the new organ erected in the Parish Church by Messrs. Hill and Son, on Tuesday evening, May 25. The programme contained compositions by Mendelssohn, Smart, Bach, Siles, Hopkins, Handel, and Lemmens. There was a large attendance.

HOMERTON.—On Wednesday evening, the 2nd ult., the Choir and Friends of St. Barnabas gave a performance of sacred music before a large congregation. The first part consisted of a selection from the Oratorio, and was followed by an original Sacred Cantata entitled The Ascension, composed by Mr. Harold B. Osmond, Organist of the Church; the words compiled by the Rev. E. L. G. Houndie. The choruses were given with much care and precision by the choir, the soloists being Miss Edelstein, Miss Emmerson, Mr. B. T. Bartum, and Mr. P. E. Tuckwell. Mr. Edwin Farthing conducted with marked ability.

LEA.—The annual Choir Festival at St. Mildred's Church, Burnt Ash, was held on Monday, May 24, and, in spite of the inclement weather, was a decided success. The first and second parts of the Haydn's Creation were performed as the anthem, the solos being admirably rendered by Master Humm (Temple Church), and Messrs. Kenningham and Kempton (St. Paul's Cathedral). The choral portions of the work were sung with precision and effect by the festival choir, numbering seventy voices. Mr. Howard Leask presided at the organ, Mr. G. Winny at the pianoforte, and Mr. E. Lister conducted.

LIVERPOOL.—Mr. A. W. Borst, who has done good service in the cause of art for nearly twenty years in Liverpool, being about to depart for Philadelphia, a complimentary illuminated address, admirably executed in album form by Messrs. Yates and Hess, was presented to him by the Liverpool Musical Club at the meeting on the 19th ult. A thoroughly representative gathering of the Club, of which the majority of the leading local professors are members, was presided over by Mr. J. J. Monk, and the presentation was made in an appropriate speech by Mr. Carl Heinecke.

LUTON.—On Ascension Day, special Services were held in Christ Church on the occasion of the opening of the new organ, which has been built by Messrs. Nicholson & Co. of Worcester. It is a fine three manual instrument. Mr. Arthur J. Lambert, Organist of the Church, played the services in the morning, and Mr. W. Haynes, Organist of the Priory Church, Malvern, gave a Recital in the afternoon, both programmes being excellently rendered.

MERTHYR.—A Concert in aid of the Boys' Higher Grade School was given at the Temperance Hall, on the 10th ult., Miss Ruth Davies and Miss Harpur being amongst the vocalists. Concerts were held on subsequent dates in aid of the Girls' Higher Grade School.

NEWBURY.—The fifty-fifth anniversary of the opening of the church of St. Mary's, Speenhamland, was celebrated, on the 3rd ult., by special morning and evening services, the organ accompaniments being supplied by a small orchestra. Several programmes of the organ, and also for organ and orchestra, were given both at the morning and evening service; and Mr. James Brown, Organist of the Parish Church, Isleworth, may be congratulated upon the mastery manner in which he brought out the capabilities of the fine instrument at which he presided. The choir was considerably augmented, and evidenced the excellent training of the Organist of the Church, Mr. H. S. Bellows, under whose supervision the whole of the arrangements were carried out.

NORWICH.—The seventy-first Concert of the Philharmonic Society was given in Noverre's Assembly Rooms, on the 4th ult., before a large audience. Haydn's "Letter Q" Symphony, Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, an Overture composed for the occasion by the Conductor, Dr. Horace Hill, called "May Morning," and a Festival March, composed by Mr. Richard Price, were excellently played by the orchestra, the movements from Mozart's Don Giovanni being charmingly rendered by Mr. H. Kingston Rudd (pianoforte), Mr. E. C. Dubruq (oboe), Mr. Francis Bell (clarinet), Mr. C. F. Catchpole (horn), and Mr. F. A. K. Doyle (bassoon). The principal vocalists were the Misses Palmer and the Rev. E. J. Alvis. Mr. James Mottram accompanied ably on the pianoforte.

PORTSMOUTH.—Gade's Cantata, The Crusaders, was presented for the first time before a Portsmouth audience by the Philharmonic Society on the 8th ult., and achieved a decided success. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Mann, R.A.M. (who was warmly and most deservedly applauded in all her solos), Mr. Charles Chilley, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnall, the singing of both these artists being in the highest degree satisfactory. The choir was, on the whole, exceedingly good. The second part was miscellaneous. Mr. J. W. D. Pillow conducted, Mr. F. H. Simms presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. T. H. Robinson at the harmonium.

READING.—The second Concert of the Orpheus Society for the present season took place in the New Town Hall, on Wednesday evening, May 27. The programme, which was excellently conducted, was excellently rendered. The artists were Mrs. Hutchinson and Mr. Ben Davies (vocalists), Mr. Svendsen (bute), and Mr. C. H. H. Sippel (pianist). Pearsall's Quartet, "There is a Paradise," was well sung by Messrs. Bilson, Allen, Critchley, and Knill. Mr. F. J. Read conducted, and also contributed a solo on the organ.

RUSHDEN.—An interesting Service was given in the Parish Church on the 1st ult., the choirs of the neighbouring villages, numbering 150 voices, being assembled on the occasion. Similar festivals have previously been held in the locality, but this was decidedly in advance of any of them. The Processional hymn, Ye Mariners of God, the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were given to music by G. M. Garrett, the anthem was "The Lord hath done great things for us" (Henry Smart), and the hymn before the sermon was "Father, blessing every seed time" (Rev. J. B. Dykes). The musical portion of the service, which was exceedingly well rendered, was under the direction of the Rev. W. F. Wilkinson. Mr. J. E. Smith presided at the organ, and the conclusion of the service played a Postlude in E flat, by H. Smart.

SOUTH BANK, YORKSHIRE.—On May 25 the season of the Harmonic Society was brought to a close by an excellent Concert, which was given in the Town Hall. The first part was miscellaneous, and the second part devoted to a performance of Mr. Henry Lahee's Cantata The Building of the Ship, the principal parts in which were admirably rendered by Mrs. Whatford, Miss Beadle, Miss Williams, Mr. Mace, and Mr. Grice. The choruses were extremely well sung, and Mr. J. Morgan was an efficient Conductor.

SOUTHSSEA.—Mr. Charles Behr, R.C.M., Leipzig, gave an Organ Recital on Friday evening, the 11th ult., at Elm Grove Church, before a large audience. The programme was selected from the best masters—Wagner, Batsiste, Bach, Liszt, Mendelssohn, and others. Messrs. R. Y. Banks and Loose contributed some sacred songs, and the entertainment was altogether highly successful. During the evening the Pastor of the chapel, the Rev. J. P. Williams, thanked Mr. Behr and his colleagues for their services, and expressed his great delight with the performance.

STROUD.—On the evening of Ascension Day, Dr. Stainer's Cantata, The Daughter of Jairus, was performed in Holy Trinity Church, before a choir of seventy voices and a small band. The soloists were Master Allen Kenningham, Mr. E. S. Morgan, of Bristol Cathedral, and Mr. S. Brandon. The Rev. A. W. Palmer presided at the organ, and Mr. S. Hackwood, A.C.O., conducted. The work received an excellent rendering, the choir taking up the leads with precision, and giving due attention to light and shade, and the soloists left nothing to be desired. Mr. Hackwood, who trained the chorus, for the most part consisting of the church choir, is deserving of much praise, and the Rev. E. H. Hawkins, Vicar, must be commended for introducing a work of this class into a church service for the first time in Stroud.

TAUNTON.—On Thursday evening, May 27, the Philharmonic Association gave a very successful performance of Sir G. A. Macfarren's Cantata, The Lady of the Lake, before a large and appreciative audience. The solo vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkson, Miss Marie Hayward, Mr. W. D. Fowell, Mr. H. E. Small, Mr. A. Richmond, and Mr. Loveday. The choruses were rendered with accuracy and precision, every detail being observed with commendable care. The work was received with much enthusiasm. Mr. T. J. Dudeney, L.R.A.M., F.C.O., conducted, and Mr. M. G. Rice led the band.

THORNTON HEATH.—The members of the Musical Society gave their last Concert of the twelfth season, at the Public Hall, on Tuesday, May 25, before a large and appreciative audience. The work chosen for performance was Gadsby's Cantata The Lord of the Isles, the solo parts in which were well sustained by Misses Ethel and Blanche Murray, and Messrs. Hulbert Fulkerson, Frederick Cundy, Charles Copland, and Fuller Allen; the choruses being admirably rendered by a choir of about sixty voices, under the able conductorship of Mr. Ernest Niver. Mr. Alfred Izard was an efficient accompanist.

WAKEFIELD.—On Sunday, May 30, the opening of the new organ just erected in St. Andrew's Church, Peterson Road, was celebrated by three services during the day, and at each there was a large congregation. The musical portions of the Liturgy were rendered morning and evening by St. Andrew's Church Choir, under the Choirmaster and Organist, Mr. A. E. Sugden; the afternoon service being taken by Wakefield Parish Church Choir, with Mr. J. W. Young as Conductor, and Mr. J. Emmerson presiding at the organ. The Rev. D. S. Cowley, Vicar of Christ Church, preached an appropriate sermon at the morning service, the afternoon preacher being the Rev. W. A. Lewis, Vicar of Thornes, and the sermon in the evening was delivered by the Vicar of the parish to a very crowded congregation. The organ is the gift of Mrs. Disney Robinson, and is presented by that generous lady as a memorial of the late Bishop of Ripon, whose administration of the See for the long period of twenty-seven years will shortly be recorded by an inscription which is to be attached to her costly and beautiful gift. It has been built by Mr. Alfred Kirkland, of Wakefield, and 665, Holloway Road, London. The special services are continued on Tuesday evening, when the sermon was preached by the Very Rev. the Dean of Ripon, from Psalm lxxviii, 24-6. The St. John's Choir was in attendance, and under the direction of the Choirmaster, Mr. S. Day, performed the musical portions of the service in a highly praiseworthy manner. At the conclusion of the service Beethoven's "Hallelujah to the Father" was efficiently rendered, Mr. J. Marshfield, the Organist, playing the accompaniment most effectively. The concluding service of the series was held on Thursday night, the musical portion being admirably sung by the Holy Trinity Church Choir, under the Honorary Choirmaster, Mr. F. K. Perkin. Out of a total strength of thirty-six voices, there were no fewer than thirty-one in attendance, and Mr. Clegg, the Organist of Holy Trinity, presided with artistic taste and devotional feeling at the new instrument.

WALTHAMSTOW.—Miss E. Hudson gave an Evening Concert on the 7th ult., the artists being Madame Clara West, Miss Rosa Dafforne, Mrs. E. Hudson, Mr. G. Booker, Mr. T. Jones, and Mr. Fountain Meen.

WELLS.—The members of the Musical Society gave an open meeting on Tuesday evening, May 25, the programme consisting of Barnby's Rebekah and a miscellaneous selection. The solo vocalists were Miss Jessie Palmer, Mr. E. M. Hippisley, and Mr. Drayton. Miss Palmer was highly successful in her solos, and the choruses were excellently rendered. Mr. Chubb contributed a violin solo, which was enthusiastically endorsed.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. E. R. Foster, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Mary Magdalen, Southwark.—Mr. W. W. Dry, to St. Nicholas Church, Dundalk.—Mr. W. A. Taylor, to the Parish Church, Portadown.—Mr. Thomas Gale, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Agatha's Church, Finsbury Square, City.—Mr. George C. Richardson, to St. Augustine's, Highbury.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. William Cook (Alto), to Holy Trinity, Gray's Inn Road.—Mr. H. Gregory Hast (Tenor), to St. Peter's, Eaton Square.

MARRIAGE.

On May 31, at Bergeford, near Hamburg, Mr. CHARLES VOLKERT, Manager of Schott and Co, 159, Regent Street, W., to Miss CAROLINE CHRYSANDER, only daughter of Dr. F. CHRYSANDER, biographer of Handel.

DEATH.

On May 25, at 14, Alexander Square, South Kensington, CHARLES D'ALBERT, after three years of suffering, in the 78th year of his age.

MADAME DE LISLE (Contralto)

(Pupil of T. A. Wallworth, Esq., Professor at the Royal Academy of Music).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 5, North Street, Swindon, Wilts.

To Secretaries of Institutions, Concert-givers, &c.

MADAME DE LISLE begs to inform the above that her High-class CONCERT and OPERETTA COMPANY is at liberty to accept ENGAGEMENTS during the ensuing Season. For full particulars, address, Madame de Lisle, 5, North Street, Swindon, Wiltshire.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements, and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE DUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s. Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 5d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

- I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.
- II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.
- III. In 32mo. Words only. 14d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MISS FLORENCE LOGAN (Contralto).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 77, King Street, Woolwich.

MR. J. G. HEWSON

(Principal Bass, Church of "The Holy Name," Manchester.)
Address, 312, Hyde Road, Manchester.

MISS AMY ALLTON, R.A.M. (Soprano, A to C).
Medalist; reported excellent in Elocution. Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, Tours, &c. References to Sir George Macfarren, Charles Hallé, Esq., and many distinguished personages. Address, Vicarage, Warrington, or Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

MR. ARTHUR ROUSEBY (Baritone). Specially engaged to support Mr. Sims Reeves, July 12, 14, 16, and 17, in Opera at Theatre Royal, Edinburgh. For Oratorio, Concerts, &c., address 25, Old Bond Street, W., or Agents.

CHOIR BOYS WANTED (Two), who can read Music well and to sing Solos occasionally. Stipend, £10 each. Two services Sunday; rehearsal, Friday. Apply, Vicar, 53, Guilford Street, Russell Square, W.C.

WANTED, for Catholic Church, good Soprano and Alto SOLO BOYS. Must be able to read well. Apply, T. S., 13, St. Thomas's Place, St. Thomas's Square, Hackney.

BARITONE is desirous of obtaining an APPOINTMENT in a Choir engaged in Day Services, agreeably in London or country. Address, X, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

BASS WANTED, for All Saints' Church, Blackheath, S.E. Two Sunday services and evenings of great Festivals; Friday evening rehearsal. Salary, £15. Apply, by letter, to Richard Lemaire, 8, Pier Road, Erith, S.E.

ORGAN RECITALS.—WANTED, during August, RECITALS on newly-placed Organ in Congregational Church, Southwold. Would suit thoroughly competent gentleman making his holiday for the month in that charming health-giving resort. Reply, Southwold, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of some years' experience, specially trained at one of the principal Cathedrals, and who can be highly recommended as a superior performer, is open to accept suitable appointment either in London or Provinces. Apply, D. S. C., Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. CHURCHILL SIBLEY can receive a PUPIL to train for the Profession. 22, Maude Grove, Brompton, London, S.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three Manuals. One Shilling per Hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane (close to Brixton Station).

WANTED, SITUATION as SECOND TUNER. Good knowledge of Repairs, Harmoniums, and Small Goods. Address, W. H. Day, 1, Goswell Place, London Road, Newbury, Berks.

WANTED, by a Musical Instrument Importer, a GENERAL REPAIRER. One who understands Small Goods, Concintrinas, and Harmoniums preferred. Address, Accord, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSICSELLER'S ASSISTANT.—Young Gentleman seeks ENGAGEMENT as above. Good Pianist; can read at sight. Well up in Musical matters, Bookkeeping, &c. Carte sent. Box 2723, Sell's, 167, Fleet Street, E.C.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"The Troubadour." A Lyric Drama, in Four Acts, written by FRANCIS HUEFFER. Paper cover, 5s.; scarlet cloth, 7s. 6d. The following songs are published separately:—

For WINE GLADDENS THE HEART OF MAN. Wine-song, for Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

THE SUNRAY'S SHINE. For Tenor. 2s.

IN THE PLACES OF LIGHTLESS SORROW. For Soprano. 2s.

To LIET. For Baritone. 2s.

BENEATH A HAWTHORN. Morning Song, for Mezzo-Soprano. 2s.

FOUR FORTH NOBLE WINE. Drinking Song, for Baritone. 2s.

SCHUMANN, ROBERT.—"Scenes of Childhood and Forest Scenes." Twenty-two Pianoforte pieces. Edited and fingered by AGNES ZIMMERMANN. 1s.

GADSBY, HENRY.—"The Forest of Arden." Intermezzo and Tantara. Composed for, and dedicated to, the Philharmonic Society. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet by the Composer. 4s. Full Score, 7s. 6d. Orchestral parts, 10s.

WORDS OF ANTHEMS.—Edited by Rev. W. RAYSON, M.A., JOHN STAINER, D.Mus., and Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D. New Edition, with many additions. Cloth, 3s. 6d.

KREHBIEL, H. E.—Review of the New York Musical Season, 1885-86, containing Programmes of Note-worthy Occurrences, with numerous criticisms. Cloth, 7s. 6d.

BRASHIER, EDWARD H. A.—(in C). Te Deum laudamus. Chant form. 3d.

GREGORY, E. C.—(in F). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. For Congregational use. 4d.

GUNNER, ALEXANDER.—Litany and Final Amens, as used at Christ Church, Hendon. 6d.

INTERMODAL HARMONIES for Gregorian Tones and Sarum Responses. Harmonised by Rev. J. W. DORAN and Rev. E. D. GALLOWAY. Paper cover, 2s.; cloth, 3s.

SHAW, J. PATTERSON, A.C.O.—(in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 4d.

STABLES, W. HOWARD, B.A.—(in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 6d.

STAINER, J.—The Ancient Plain-Song of the Athanasian Creed. Arranged for Voices in Unison with Organ Accompaniment. 3d.

WARNEFORD, REV. HARRY LAUNCELOT.—(in F). The Nicene Creed, with Kyrie Eleison. 4d.

CLARE, EDWYN A.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." Anthem for Harvest. 3d.

CRAMENT, J. MAUDE, Mus. Bac., Oxon.—"Sowing and Reaping." Harvest Carol. 2d.

JONES, GEORGE.—The Jubilee Anthem, 1887. Words by AGNES CARPENTER. 2d.

LACON, REV. CHARLES H., M.A.—Hymn for St. John Baptist's Day. 1d.

LAYLAND, JOHN.—"And suddenly there came." Anthem for Whitsuntide. 3d. Tonic Sol-fa edition, 1d.

STAMMERS, I. HERBERT.—Supplemental Hymn Tunes to "Church Hymns." 3d.

SYDENHAM, E. A.—"Great is the Lord." Anthem for Harvest or general use. 3d.

BACH CHOIR MAGAZINE, THE. Edited by OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT.

- | | | | |
|---------|--|---------------------|-----|
| No. 20. | a. Eight-part Motett | JOH. CHRISTOPH BACH | 9d. |
| | b. Marienlied. Four parts | MICH. PRÆTORIUS | |
| | c. Marienlied. Four parts | Modern | |
| 21. | a. Alleluia Christus surrexit. Four-part Motett. | | |
| | (Edited by W. S. ROCKSTRO.) | FELICE ANIERIO | 8d. |
| 22. | b. Beata es virgo. Six-part Motett. | G. GABRIELI | |
| 23. | Three Popular Songs (English) | | 6d. |
| 24. | Two Popular Songs (Scottish). | | 6d. |
| | (Edited by A. H. D. FRENDEGAST.) | | |

COSTA, SIR MICHAEL.—"Earth, with its troubled voices." ("Noti che attristi e piaci"). Four-part Song. Words by MISS G. E. TROUTBECK. 3d.

ELVEY, SIR GEO., Mus. D., Oxon.—"Victoria." An Ode written for the Opening of Holloway College by Her Majesty the Queen. The Words by GEORGE MARTIN-HOLLOWAY. 1s.

HAM, ALBERT, F.C.O.—"The Skylark." Two-part Song. 2d.

GAUL, ALFRED R.—The Months. Twelve Duets for Soprano and Contralto. Words by EDWARD OXFENFORD. Separate Numbers, each 2d.

PINSUTI, CIRO.—Twelve Vocal Duets. Book 2. 2s. 6d.

LYON, RALPH E.—"A Fancy." Song. The Words by A. J. ADAMS. 2s.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

HADLOW, W. H.—String Quartet in E flat. 10s.

BISHOP, SIR HENRY R.—"Daughter of Error." Orchestral Parts. 2s. 6d.

PURCELL, HENRY.—"Come, if you dare." Orchestral Parts (additional accompaniments by E. PROUT). 2s. 6d.

CALKIN, GEORGE.—Soft Voluntaries for the Organ. Book VIII. 2s. 6d.

CLARKE, HAMILTON.—Three Andantes for the Organ. 1s. 6d.

SPARK, DR. W.—The Organists' Quarterly Journal. Part lxxi. 5s. Andante in G, F. Kilvington Hattersley, A.R.A.M.; Preludium et Fuga in E minor, Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart.; Pastorale in D, C. Aug. Fischer (Dresden); Marche Héroïque in D flat, Percy Jackson.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS IN THE TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. McNAUGHT.

- | | | | | | |
|----------|--|-----|-----|------------------------|-----|
| No. 475. | Comfort, O Lord | ... | ... | CROTCH | 1d. |
| | (Summer Eve) | ... | ... | J. L. HATTON | |
| 484. | The Wanderer's Night-Song | ... | ... | SCHNYDER VON WARTENSEN | 1d. |
| 485. | (Since first I saw your face | ... | ... | THOMAS FORD | 1d. |
| 486. | Ye spotted snakes | ... | ... | R. J. S. STEVENS | 1d. |
| 487. | Echoes | ... | ... | ARTHUR SULLIVAN | 1d. |
| 488. | The Sea-King | ... | ... | HENRY SMART | 1d. |
| 490. | Orpheus, with his lute | ... | ... | G. A. MACFARREN | 1d. |
| 491. | The Curing | ... | ... | HENRY SMART | 1d. |
| 492. | Protect us through the coming night | ... | ... | CURSCHMANN | 1d. |
| | Weel may the keel row | ... | ... | ... | |
| 494. | Huntsman's Chorus | ... | ... | WEBER | 1d. |
| | (The Fisherman. Adapted from "O Pescator") | ... | ... | ... | |
| 495. | The last night of the year | ... | ... | ARTHUR SULLIVAN | 1d. |
| 496. | The Harvest-tide thanksgiving | ... | ... | JOSEPH BARNBY | 1d. |

MUSIC SALESMAN, MANAGER, or COUNTRY-VELLER (26).—SITUATION WANTED as above. Country not objected to. Twelve years' experience. Can furnish the highest references. Thorough knowledge of the trade, catalogues, and music business in general. Address, C. M., Messrs. Cogan, Manon, Soper and Co., 89, Chancery Lane.

APPOINTMENT WANTED, as MANAGER of a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Advertiser has had great experience, and is thoroughly acquainted with all branches of the Trade. He is also a competent performer on Piano, Harmonium and Organ. B.B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A PARTNER WANTED, with Capital, to enlarge a steady growing PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS in the South of Ireland. One that could take part in the Business preferred. Apply, K., Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC ENGRAVING.—Authors' works Engraved and Printed in the best style on the shortest notice. Estimates and terms post-free. Akerman and Attwood, 7, Upper John Street, Golden Square, W.

ORGAN (Pipe). Handsome Gilt Front. Pedals, 7 stops. Perfect order. Suit Residence or small Church. 30 Guineas, or part exchange. 21, Waltherton Road, Paddington.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL AMERICAN ORGAN. 21 stops and swell; pedals, 30 notes; 15 sets of reeds, octave, manual, and pedal couplers; foot and side blowers. In carved and panelled walnut case, with ornamental gilt pipe top, and stool. Guaranteed in perfect order. Cost £75. For SALE, a bargain. Can be seen and tried at Mr. Stagg's, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE. 2 Manuals, 15 stops, pedals, composition pedals. Mahogany case, ornamental pipes. Price, 100 Guineas. Apply H., 8, The Grove, Blackheath.

ALEXANDER CHURCH HARMONIUM. Oak case; full compass; ditto, pedals; 2 manuals, 14 stops; swell lever. Can be blown by hand or foot. 30 Guineas; cost £70. Letter for appointment, H., 32, Southampton Row, W.C.

BEST PRICES paid for Second-hand and Worn-out Double Action HARPS. Meyer, 13, Ranelagh Grove, Pimlico, S.W.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

No.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Bourgeois Antique.	Cloth.	s.	d.
1.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Bourgeois Antique.	Cloth.	1	0
2.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique.	Double	0	6
3.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique.	Double	0	4
4.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique.	Double	0	3
5.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth.	bevelled boards,	4	0
6.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth.	bevelled boards,	5	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth.	bevelled boards,	4	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth.	bevelled boards,	2	0
9.	Hymns with Tunes.	Ditto.	Cloth.	bevelled boards,	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes.	Large type.	Imperial 8vo.	Cloth.	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No. g.	The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.	s.	d.
10.	Limp cloth	4	0
11.	Cloth boards	5	0
12.	Small edition	3	0
13.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems,

Printed for Chanting for Congregational use ... 1 3

(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN;

And all Booksellers and Musiciansellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 6d. and 6d.; paper, 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and SIMPSON and MARSHALL.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYER. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices, Second Series. Female and Male Voices. These Anthems are available as Duets for private use. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBOURN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tunes; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and many Tunes, &c. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C	9d.
West and Nunc dimittis in A	6d.
Antate and Deus miseretur in G	6d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100)	1d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS OF THE CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK.

Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO. OXFORD: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by

E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND

CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 6s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1d. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and PARKER AND CO.

Nineteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Recting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS,

and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. Sr. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION.

Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. Sr. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat,

by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By

JAMES FITZGERALD, Organist, Kidderminster. Price 1s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW ANTHEM.

O PRAISE GOD IN HIS HOLINESS, by ALFRED R. GAUL. As sung by the London Church Choirs in St. Paul's Cathedral.

"A remarkably fine example of choral writing."—Daily News.

"A perfect specimen of chorus writing."—Church Times.

Price Sixpence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

VESPER MUSIC, No. 5, now ready. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by W. HAYNES, Organist, Priory Church, Malvern. These Settings have been sung at several Choral Festivals. No. 1, 2d.; Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 3d. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E flat).....	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A).....	6d.
Bridge, Dr. (in G).....	4d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A).....	4d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G).....	4d.	Stainer, Dr. (in B flat).....	4d.
Fanning, Eaton (in C).....	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A).....	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C).....	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C).....	6d.
Lloyd, C. H. (in F).....	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F).....	4d.
Mann, A. H. Dr. (in E).....	1s.	Tours, Berthold (in D).....	6d.
Martin, George C. (in C).....	6d.

Cantate and Deus (in C), Dr. Steggall, 6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment, or with organ only, when necessary.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED PRICE.

Third edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover; 3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS

SINGLE AND DOUBLE

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants, which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET, W., AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET, E.C.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price Fourpence.

THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

Including Kyrie, Gloria Tibi, Gratias, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, Gloria in Excelsis, and Antiphon

Set to Music in the Key of F by

GEORGE KETT.

Merbecke's Credo (Barnby's Setting in the Key of F) is to be used with this Service.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PLAIN SETTING

OF THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

INCLUDING

BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI, FOR GENERAL USE.

By E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. Doc.

Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

TE DEUM AND JUBILATE DEO

SET TO MUSIC IN E MAJOR

BY

JOSEPH MOSENTHAL,

Organist and Choirmaster of Calvary Church, New York.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net. STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

REFORM IN CHURCH MUSIC.—Antiphonal Chanting by Congregation and Choir. Send five stamps for TE DEUM and SPECIMENS OF CHANTING, &c., to E. GRIFFITH, F.C.O., Chislehurst.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in F.	Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
Te Deum, in E.	Octavo	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate, in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in A	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	3d.
Te Deum in E.	Chant Form	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E.	Chant Form	3d.
Harvest or Festival Hymn Tune.	Music and Words	1d.
Harvest Anthem—"Blessed be Thou."	Four voices	3d.
Anthem—"I will magnify Thee"	3d.
"If ye love me"	3d.

PART-SONGS.

The Rhine Maiden.	Four Voices	3d.
Spring	"	3d.
Beware	"	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC by ALEX. S. COOPER, F.C.O.,

Editor of the Parochial Chant Book, &c.

COMMUNION SERVICE. Fourth edition ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 6d. |

NICENE CREED. Ely Prize Setting ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 4d. |

Monotone Setting ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 3d. |

ATHANASIAN CREED. With appropriate Chants ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 3d. |

BENEDICTE. Three different Settings. 4th edition ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 3d. |

UNISON CHANTS. With varied Accompaniments ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 6d. |

COME UNTO ME. Full Anthem. 6th edition ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 3d. |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; or WEBER and Co.

NOW READY, by G. H. SWIFT (Organist, Parish Church, Hungerford, Berks), EVENING SERVICE in E.

Price 4d.

SING PRAISES UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. Price 3d.

SHOW US THY MERCY. Anthem. Price 6d.

O SING UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. 3rd edition. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready, price Threepence.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS (in F), composed by E. A. SYDENHAM, Organist of All Saints', Scarborough.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS. Set to Music by Rev. A. W.

MAJIN.

SIR ROBERT STEWART says:—"Your twelve hymns I like well. They are credulous and yet not whining, and the harmonies are far more pure than the average run of hymns."

DR. MARTIN (St. Paul's) says:—"I like your tunes very much indeed. As to the modulations in No. 5, they are very natural and easy, considering the remote keys into which you go. I am glad to find you have published such nice tunes."

DR. DIXON (Grantham) says:—"You have eminently succeeded in your endeavour 'to give due musical expression to the words.' I must congratulate you on the excellent music you have (generally considered) set to the hymns you have selected."

One Copy, 1s.; Six Copies, 4s.

LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING Co., 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

VOCAL SCORE. OLD NOTATION. NINTH THOUSAND.

RUTH

A HARVEST PASTORAL

BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

SUITABLE FOR

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

"The Biblical story of which Ruth is the central figure lends itself with remarkable suitability to an illustration of a harvest celebration. The country landscape, the ripened corn, the sturdy reapers, the standing sheaves, the active gleaners, and the busy farmer, all combine to fill the mind's eye with a pleasant scene of excitement. Set to music by a competent composer such as Mr. A. R. Gaul, the narrative of Ruth's eventful episode lends itself to a pathetic, picturesque, and pleasant performance. The bereaved and sorrowful trio of women on whom the calamity of poverty and famine has fallen, as if to give intensity to their greater grief, and the unexpected and happy influence of patriarchal benevolence displayed by the mighty Boaz, who so quickly transforms sorrow into joy, are all introduced and aptly take their allotted place in the melodious music of Gaul's interpretation of the tale."—Glasgow Citizen.

"The work, like the 'Holy City,' is full of beautiful orchestral passages, while the vocal score abounds with charming numbers."—Bucks Herald.

"Ruth' is a work of sterling power; its musical form is that of perfect tunefulness combined with simplicity and strength. . . . The composer has grasped his theme in a thoroughly sympathetic manner, and has produced a work which is worthy of the subject."—Bradford Observer.

"Bright, tuneful, fresh, and musically—this work will be a great favourite, and will add to Mr. Gaul's reputation."—Birmingham Weekly Dart.

"Ruth' has been set to music by several composers; none, however, has become so worthily popular as the Cantata under notice. It contains some charming music, and is highly characteristic of the story it so vividly illustrates."—South Wilts Express.

"Full of flowing melody."—Salisbury Times.

PERFORMED IN THE TOWN HALL, BIRMINGHAM, ON SEVEN OCCASIONS.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s.; ditto, paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s. The Chorus (only) in Vocal Score, for Musical Societies, paper cover, 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, gd. Band Parts on loan.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BACH CHOIR MAGAZINE

SELECTED VOCAL PART-MUSIC OF DIFFERENT SCHOOLS

EDITED BY

OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT.

1. PALESTRINA.—Adoramus Te. Motett } ... 3d.
- VITTORIA.—Jesu dulcis. Motett
2. JOH. ECCARD.—Presentation of Christ in the Temple. Motett for six voices } ... 6d.
3. PALESTRINA.—Hodie Christus natus. Motett for two choirs } ... 6d.
4. J. M. BACH.—Now is Christ risen from the dead. Motett for five voices } ... 3d.
5. PALESTRINA.—Sanctus ("Missa Papæ Marcelli") } ... 6d.
6. — Benedictus and Agnus Dei (ditto) } ... 6d.
7. G. GABRIELI.—Magnificat (Latin). (Eight voices) } ... 6d.
8. C. S. BACH.—Now shall the choir (double chorus) } ... 8d.
9. SPOHR.—God is my shepherd; Psalm xxiii. (Quartet and Eight-part chorus) } ... 9d.
10. PALESTRINA.—Adoramus Te. Motett } ... 4d.
- VITTORIA.—O quam gloriosum. Motett
11. J. S. BACH.—Sanctus (Latin) } ... 6d.
12. PALESTRINA.—Kyrie ("Missa Papæ Marcelli") } ... 6d.
13. — Gloria ("Missa Papæ Marcelli") } ... 6d.
14. — Credo ("Missa Papæ Marcelli") } ... 9d.
15. TWO GERMAN VOLKSLEDER } ... 6d.
1. In silent night.
2. The enchanted nightingale.
16. H. PURCELL.—Jehova quam multi sunt hostes. Five-part Psalm (Latin and English words) } ... 8d.
17. J. S. BACH.—Sanctus (No. II.) } ... 4d.
18. PALESTRINA.—Assumpta est Maria. Motett for six voices } ... 6d.
19. TWO SCANDINAVIAN SONGS } ... 6d.
1. How splendid is crystal.
2. Enticing sounds.
20. a. JOH. CHRISTOPH BACH.—Eight-part Motett } ... 9d.
- b. MICH. PRÆTORIUS.—Marienlied. Four parts
- c. MODERN.—Marienlied. Four parts
21. a. FELICE ANERIO.—Alleluia Christus surrexit. Four-part Motett. Edited by W. S. Rockstro } ... 8d.
- b. G. GABRIELI.—Beata es virgo. Six-part Motett
22. THREE POPULAR SONGS (English) } ... 6d.
23. TWO POPULAR SONGS (Scottish). Edited by A. H. D. Prendergast } ... 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARIADNE

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

WORDS BY

JAMES SMITON, M.A.

MUSIC BY

J. MORE SMITON.

Price 2s. Band Parts on hire.

SCOTSMAN.

"The Cantata is unmistakably the work of a composer of original talent and ample musical knowledge."

SCOTTISH NEWS.

"A work ample in scientific quality, and abounding in melodic choruses, noble recitatives, and charming solo numbers."

DUNDEE ADVERTISER.

"A work of sterling merit, the product of undoubted musical genius, which, by well-ordered study, has acquired the art of expressing thought and feeling."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices.

Price 3s. String parts, 11s. Wind parts, MS.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlvii.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MASS FOR MALE VOICES

Two Tenors and Two Basses, Soli, and Chorus.

COMPOSED BY

ODOARDO BARRI.

Performed at the Church of the Holy Name, Manchester; Sant' Ambrogio, Milan; and the leading Cathedrals. Price 5s. net, of the COMPOSER, 60, Margaret Street, W.

INTERMODAL HARMONIES FOR GREGORIAN TONES and SARUM RESPONSES. Harmonised by Rev. J. W. DORAN and Rev. E. D. GALLOWAY. In paper cover, 2s.; in cloth, 3s. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASY ANTHEMS. By THOS. SMITH. Price 3d. each. No solos. All full.

"Thou crownest the year." 24th Ed. "O sing unto the Lord." 4th Ed. "Fear not, O Lord." "If ye love me." 4th Ed. "O worship the Lord." 17th Ed. "I was glad." 4th Ed. "My heart is fixed." 3rd Ed. "O send out Thy light." "It is a good thing to give thanks." "Hear my prayer." "Like as the hart." "The Lord is my shepherd." "Lift up your heads." 2nd Ed. "Sing we merrily." 4th Ed. Te Deum in F. Five Kyrie Eleisons. 4th Ed.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free from the Composer, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

Just published.

THE ANCIENT PLAIN-SONG

OF THE

ATHANASIAN CREED

Arranged for voices in unison, with Organ Accompaniment, by

J. STAINER.

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN:

Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO

WELL. Fourth Edition. Price 1s.

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. Price 1s. 4th Ed.

LITTLE DIFFICULTIES IN PLAYING EXPLAINED. 1s.

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A CHOIR. Price 1s.

HOW TO TUNE YOUR OWN PIANO. Price 1s.

THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

Now ready, crown 8vo. 6s.

THE HYGIENE OF THE VOCAL ORGANS:

A Practical Handbook for Singers and Speakers. By MORELL MACKENZIE, M.D., Lond., Consulting Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat, formerly Physician and Lecturer on Physiology at the London Hospital, Physician to the Royal Society of Musicians. MACMILLAN and Co., London.

Just published.

In One Volume, Demy 8vo, 640 pp. Cloth extra, gilt top, 15s.; half vellum, 17s. 6d.

BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY

OF
MUSICIANSWITH A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF ENGLISH WRITINGS ON MUSIC.
By JAMES D. BROWN.

ALEXANDER GARDNER, Paisley and London.

Reduced price, 2s. 6d. net.

ALBUM OF ITALIAN SONGS.

TWENTY-TWO SONGS SET TO ITALIAN WORDS,

WITH ACCOMPANIMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

COMPOSED BY

ANGELO MARIANI.

4to, gilt edges.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| 1. Ave Maria. | 12. Il silfo e la mammola. |
| 2. L'Angellin della Biondina. | 13. La Zingarella. |
| 3. Una Foglia. | 14. Date un pane al poverello. |
| 4. Vi Chiamo invano notte e giorno. | 15. L'abbandono. |
| 5. L'ora fatale. | 16. La prece della sera. |
| 6. Ah! tu non m'ami più. | 17. La Provera operaia e l'usignuolo. |
| 7. Lia è morta. | 18. Una Rosa in cimitero. |
| 8. Giovinnettino della bella voce. | 19. Dolore e speranza. |
| 9. La povera madre. | 20. Io son poeta e re di gran corona. |
| 10. Oh! come tu soffri mio povero cor! | 21. L'invito alla libertà. |
| 11. Mia dolce speranza. | 22. Passato, presente, e futuro. |

Or, singly, folio, each 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price 3d.

TWO-PART SONG FOR BOYS' (OR LADIES') VOICES

FAIRY REVUELS

By J. C. B. TIRRELL.

Admirably adapted for Schools and Colleges.

LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., 54, Gt. Marlborough Street, W.

FOUR-PART SONGS by S. S. STRATTON.—

"Monarch Winter," words by W. S. PASSMORE, 3d.; "Summer ja but fleeting," words by E. OXENFORD, 3d.; "Merrily every bosom boundeth," words by THOMAS MOORE, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee.

By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.

WHOS FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) net. s. d.
The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... 2 0
(Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)

KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... 2 0

BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner... 2 0

ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... 2 0

(Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)

THE ZINGARA ... 2 0

(Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)

THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford ... 2 0

THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq. ... 2 0

NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq. ... 2 0

THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford ... 2 0

(Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)

PIANOFORTE, &c.

ALFANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold.) 2d Edition ... 2 0

Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook ... 2 0

MY LADY BARBARA'S GAVOTTE ... 2 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

THE THREE STARS. 2d Edition ... 0 2

THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 7th Edition ... 0 2

GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 7th Edition ... 0 2

THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition ... 0 2

TO THE WOODS. 10th Edition ... 0 2

HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition ... 0 2

THE HOUR OF REST. 4th Edition ... 0 2

DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 8th Edition ... 0 2

DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 6th Edition ... 0 2

WHOS FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) ... 0 3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.,

and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

Third Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

Parts I. and II. ...	each	1 0
Complete, paper cover ...	each	1 6
Ditto, paper boards ...	each	2 0
Ditto, scarlet cloth ...	each	3 0
Or, in Twelve Numbers ...	each	0 2

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S

POPULAR PART-SONGS for S.A.T.B. 8vo.

I love the merry springtime ...	20th thousand	2d.
Gaily thro' the greenwood ...	48th	2d.
The coming of spring and Sunny rays ...	4th	each 3d.
England's glory and Forest echoes ...	7th	3d.
Blow ye balmy breezes, and Fairy revels ...	9th	3d.
Where are you roaming, and Who is Sylvia? ...	2nd	3d.
O Angel! land of the brave ...	1st	3d.

(More than 200,000 of W. J. Young's Part-Songs have been sold.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

Manchester: HIME and ADDISON; or, COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

By W. W. PEARSON.

The Iron Horse ...	4d.	Welcome, Young Spring! ...	2d.
The Ironfounders (16th thou.)	3d.	Sweet to Live (22nd thou.)	2d.
The Stormy Petrel ...	3d.	The Anglers ...	2d.
The Coral Grove ...	3d.	The Dream of Home ...	2d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu ...	3d.	Summer and Winter ...	2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal) ...	3d.	Departed Joy ...	2d.
The Ocean ...	3d.	There's Beauty in the Deep ...	1d.
The River ...	3d.	Soldier, Rest! ...	1d.
Over the Mountain Side ...	3d.	Woods in Winter ...	1d.
Soul of Living Music ...	3d.	Autumn ...	1d.
The Jager Chorus ...	3d.	Sombre Shadows of the Night ...	1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

Three Children Sliding. (Just published) ...	3d.
Three Doughtie Men. (16th thousand) ...	3d.
A Ryghte Merrie Geste ...	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS GLEES, PART-SONGS, &c., by

A. J. CALDICOTT:—
Humpy Dumpty ...	6d.
The House that Jack Built ...	6d.
Jack and Jill ...	4d.
Little Jack Horner ...	6d.

Now ready, A FISHY CASE

Children's Operetta, in two acts, with illustrations, price 2s. 6d.

METZLER and Co., Great Marlborough Street, W.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS and CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs. For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS BY H. T. TILTMAN.

HOMEWARD BOUND. 2s. net. Sung by Miss Hilda Wilson.

DAPHNE. Sung by Mr. Frank Walker. 2s. net. Both the above published by

Messrs. WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Just published.

A FAREWELL.—Song. The Words written by Lord TENNYSON; the music composed by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 2s. net.

EDITH.—Serenade for the Pianoforte. Composed by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 1s. 6d. net. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW MUSIC, by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.—LITTLE JACK HORNER. Humorous Glee for S.A.T.B. Sung with the greatest success in London and the provinces. Price 4d. THE ROBIN, Two-Part Song, s.c. Price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN

BY
OTTO DIENEL

(Organist of St. Marien-Kirche, Kgl. Musik Director, Berlin).

No.		s. d.
1.	Fugue in G, Op. 2	1 0
2.	First Grand Sonata in D minor, Op. 3	2 6
3.	Concert-Satz, Op. 10	2 0
4.	Second Grand Sonata in G minor, Op. 11	3 6
5.	Funeral March on the Choral "Jesus, my trust," Op. 12	1 6
6.	Adagio in D, Op. 13, No. 1	1 0
7.	Andante in C, Op. 13, No. 2	5 0
8.	Third Grand Sonata in F, Op. 18	1 6
9.	{Andante Espressivo, Op. 19	1 0
10.	{Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 1	1 0
	{Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 2	1 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CHURCH ORGANIST

A COLLECTION OF PIECES FOR USE DURING
DIVINE SERVICE

BY CHARLES COLLIN.

March. Communion. Elevation.	Book I. 2s. 6d.	Offertoire. Postlude. Offertoire.
Offertoire for the Feast of Pentecost. Hymn. Elevation.	Book II. 3s.	Communion. Ditto. March. Postlude.
Elevation. Postludium. Offertoire.	Book III. 2s. 6d.	Communion. Elevation. March.
Offertoire. Elevation.	Book IV. 2s. 6d.	Grand Chœur.
Communion or Offertoire. Prelude on the Hymn of St. Joseph.	Book V. 2s. 6d.	Offertoire for Easter-day. Offertoire or Communion.
Allegretto. Elevation.	Book VI. 2s. 6d.	Allegro-Fanfare.
March. Communion. Andante.	Book VII. 2s. 6d.	Andantino. Grand Chœur.
Offertoire (for Xmas Day). Hymn (Jesu, dulcis memo- ria).	Book VIII. 2s. 6d.	Allegretto. Prelude. Te Deum.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARRANGEMENTS for the ORGAN

BY
GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

No. 1.	Slow Movement (Quintet)	Schumann.
	Minuet (12 Minuets)	Beethoven.
2.	Andante (Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 147)	Handel.
	Largo	Spohr.
	As pants the hart	Schubert.
3.	Agnus Dei	Handel.
	Overture, "Acis and Galatea"	Schumann.
	Albumblätter, No. 1	Beethoven.
4.	Adagio (Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 2, No. 1)	Scarlatti.
	The Cat's Fugue	Schumann.
	Albumblätter, No. 5 (Op. 99)	Schumann.
5.	Romance and Scherzo (Fourth Symphony)	Schumann.
	Air (Overture for Suite) in D)	Bach.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S ORGAN MUSIC

EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

SIX SONATAS

AND

THREE PRELUDES AND FUGUES.

In One Volume, oblong, price 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SOFT VOLUNTARIES FOR THE ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

GEORGE CALKIN.

Eight Books, price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ORGAN WORKS OF JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH

EDITED BY

J. F. BRIDGE, AND JAMES HIGGS,
Mus. Doc., Oxon. Mus. Bac., Oxon.

BOOK I.—EIGHT SHORT PRELUDES AND FUGUES 2s. 6d.

In this edition much help is offered towards a correct and effective rendering of Bach's Organ Music. The distribution of the parts between the two hands is clearly shown. The notes most conveniently played by the right hand are printed on the upper, and those best taken by the left hand on the lower, of the two manual staves. The pedalling is indicated where necessary. Marks of expression and phrasing are added occasionally, and suggestions for the effective use of the organ are given throughout. The Preface contains many useful hints.

BOOK II.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND TRIO ... 3s. 0d.

The second book of the new edition of Bach's Organ Works is more advanced in point of difficulty than the first, and will be found of conspicuous interest. It includes the well-known "Giant" in D minor, the shorter Prelude and Fugue in E minor (a great favourite with Mendelssohn), and an exceedingly effective Prelude and Fugue in C minor, in addition to other less-known but important works. It is a specialty of this edition that a convenient and effective mode of performance is everywhere indicated. Appended to the preface is a suggested metronomic rate for each movement.

BOOK III.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND FANTASIA ... 3s. 0d.

The third book contains compositions of greater difficulty, it is therefore more fully fingered and marked for the pedals. It is believed Organ Students will derive the greatest possible assistance by having their attention directed from the outset to a convenient method of dealing with each difficulty as it arises. The present book includes the Fugue in B minor, on a subject from Corelli, a beautiful Prelude and Fugue in A major (most useful for obtaining command of the higher part of the Pedal-board), a Prelude and Fugue in C major, a Fantasia and Fugue in C minor, and the well-known short G minor Fugue. There is, as usual, in this Edition a Preface containing interesting particulars of the several works.

BOOK IV.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL ... 3s. 0d.

The fourth book contains the first three of the six celebrated Sonatas or Trios for two-manuals and pedal. Spitta says: "These Sonatas were intended by J. S. Bach to complete the education of his eldest son, Wilhelm Friedemann, as an organist." They are invaluable as studies and very beautiful as music. In the present edition they are for the first time fingered and marked for the Pedals.

BOOK V.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL ... 3s. 0d.

The fifth book contains the last three of the six Sonatas. Those in E minor, C major, and G major. They are of exceeding value to the Student of Organ Playing. The mastery of them assuring him of that thorough independence of hands and feet so indispensable to the fully accomplished organist. As in the former book, proper fingering and pedalling is everywhere indicated. The Preface contains a detailed analysis of each movement.

BOOK VI.—PRELUDES AND FUGUES ... 3s.

The sixth book includes several of Bach's greatest and most popular Organ Works. (1) The Toccata in D minor, with its contrasting effects of recitative-like passages and massive harmonies. (2) The well-known Prelude and Fugue in D major, which Spitta describes as "one of the most dazzlingly beautiful of all the master's Organ Works. ... Skilful pedal-players will find it exactly suited to them, for the theme is quite exceptionally fitted for pedal technique." (3) The Prelude and Fugue in F minor, less known perhaps than the other contents of the book, but scarcely less beautiful, or less worthy of the student's attention. (4) The Great Prelude in E flat major, together with the Fugue in three sections, known as the St. Ann's. The whole are laid out with especial regard to the convenience of the player. Necessary fingering and other marks to help to effective performance are inserted, and the Preface contains various notes and suggestions relative to the history, structure, and treatment of the several works.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

AIRS FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN BY

GEORGE CALKIN.

In Two Books, 2s. each net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PIANO & HARMONIUM ACCOMPANIMENTS.

To obviate the difficulty experienced by such Country Choral Societies as are unable to procure the assistance of an Orchestra for the performance of complete works, Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co. intend publishing an arrangement of the Orchestral Accompaniments of many popular works for Pianoforte and Harmonium. The Accompaniments of the following works are now ready:—

	Arranged by	s. d.
REBEKAH— J. Barnby	KING HALL	5 0
MAY QUEEN— Bennett	J. LEMMENS	7 6
CRUSADERS— N. W. Gade	J. W. ELLIOTT	7 6
REDEMPTION— Ch. Gounod	"	10 6
MORS ET VITA— Ch. Gounod	KING HALL	10 6
GALLIA— Ch. Gounod	T. E. ATYWARD	2 6
THE MESSIAH— Handel	KING HALL	10 6
THE CREATION— Haydn	WINDEYER CLARK	10 6
MAY-DAY— G. A. Macfarren	"	5 0
ROSE OF SHARON— A. C. Mackenzie	KING HALL	10 6
ATHALIE— Mendelssohn	J. W. ELLIOTT	7 6
ELIJAH— Mendelssohn	E. PROUT	10 6
LAUDA SION— Mendelssohn	WINDEYER CLARK	5 0
HEAR MY PRAYER— Mendelssohn	MYLES B. FOSTER	2 0
HYMN OF PRAISE— Mendelssohn	J. W. ELLIOTT	7 6
FIRST MASS— Mozart	WINDEYER CLARK	5 0
TWELFTH MASS— Mozart	"	7 6
STABAT MATER— Rossini	J. LEMMENS	6 0
GOD, THOU ART GREAT— Spohr	KING HALL	2 6
LAST JUDGMENT— Spohr	"	7 6
CALVARY— Spohr	"	7 6
DAUGHTER OF JAIUS— J. Stainer	W. HODGE	5 0
ST. MARY MAGDALEN— J. Stainer	"	7 6

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BISHOP'S GLEES, &c.

THE ORCHESTRAL PARTS

Reprinted from the Original Full Scores.

	s. d.
ALLEGIANCE WE SWEAR	6 6
BLOW, GENTLE GALES. Quintet	2 9
CHOUGH AND CROW. Trio and Chorus	5 0
COME O'ER THE BROOK. Glee	2 6
DAUGHTER OF ERROR	2 6
FISHERMAN'S GOOD-NIGHT. Glee	2 0
GOOD-NIGHT, GOOD REST. Glee	2 0
HARK! 'TIS THE INDIAN DRUM. Round for four Voices	3 9
HART AND HIND ARE IN THEIR LAIR	4 9
MERRY BOYS, AWAY	5 0
MYNHEER VANDUNCK	4 9
NOW BY DAY'S RETIRING LAMP. Quintet	3 6
NOW TRAMP O'ER MOSS AND FELL. Chorus	4 3
O BY RIVERS. Serenade	3 3
SLEEP, GENTLE LADY. S.A.T.B.	2 3
Ditto. A.T.T.B.	2 3
SPIRITS, ADVANCE	3 3
STAY, PLYTHKE, STAY. Sestet	3 9
THE TIGER COUCHES IN THE WOOD	4 3
TO SEE HIS FACE. Round	3 0
WHAT HO! CLANSMAN. Chorus	6 0
WHAT SHALL HE HAVE THAT KILLED THE DEER. Glee, with Chorus ad lib.	4 0
WHEN THE WIND BLOWS. Round for three Voices	3 9
WHO IS SYLVIA? Glee	2 0
WINDS WHISTLE COLD. Glee... ..	3 3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR TRIOS FOR FEMALE VOICES WITH ACCOMPANIMENT OF TWO HORNS AND HARP

COMPOSED BY
J. BRAHMS.

Op. 17. 1s. 6d.; or, singly:—

When'er the sounding harp is heard	6d.
Come away, Death	4d.
The Gardener	6d.
The death of Tressar	6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY

DR. STAINER.

In issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

NOW READY.

1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - E. PAUER.
2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. CUMMINGS.
3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
4. THE HARMONIUM (2s.) - KING HALL.
5. SINGING (4s.; Paper boards, 5s.) A. RANDEGGER.
6. SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer) (2s.) - A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S.
7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - E. PAUER.
8. HARMONY (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - DR. BRIDGE.
10. FUGUE (2s.) - JAMES HIGGS.
11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - DR. STONE.
12. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT (2s.) DR. BRIDGE.
13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (1s.) - REV. J. TROUTBECK.
14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - REV. T. HELMRE.
15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. PROUT.
16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - E. PAUER.
17. THE VIOLIN (2s.) - BERTHOLD TOURS.
18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - JOHN CURWEN.
19. LANCASHIRE SOL-FA (1s.) JAMES GREENWOOD.
20. COMPOSITION (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
21. MUSICAL TERMS (1s.) STAINER & BARRETT.
22. THE VIOLONCELLO (2s.) JULES DE SWERT.
23. TWO-PART EXERCISES (396) (1s.) JAMES GREENWOOD.
24. DOUBLE SCALES (1s.) FRANKLIN TAYLOR.
25. MUSICAL EXPRESSION (3s.) MATHIS LUSKY.
26. SOLFEGGI (4s.; paper boards, 5s.; or in 3 parts, 1s. 6d. each) FLORENCE A. MARSHALL.
27. ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT (2s.) DR. BRIDGE.
28. THE CORNET (2s.) - H. BRETT.

(To be continued.)

ANY OF THE ABOVE MAY BE HAD, STRONGLY BOUND IN
BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

DOUBLE SCALES

SYSTEMATICALLY FINGERED

A SUPPLEMENT

TO ALL

EXISTING PIANOFORTE SCHOOLS

BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

THREE HUNDRED AND NINETY-SIX

TWO-PART EXERCISES

FOR

CHOIRS AND SCHOOLS

BY

JAMES GREENWOOD.

May be used with any system of Sol-fa.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

In paper boards, One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION

OF

TWO-PART SOLFEGGI

In the principal major keys, designed for the practice of Choristers and Vocal Classes generally,

SELECTED FROM

DURANTE, HANDEL, LEO, SCARLATTI, STEFFANI,
NARES, WEBBE, &c.

BY

JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT

OF THE

CHORAL SERVICE

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS TO ORGANISTS AS TO THE
SELECTION AND TREATMENT OF CHURCH MUSIC

BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE,

Mus. Doc., Oxon.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

Paper Boards, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS

FOR THE

ORGAN.

No.			s. d.
1.	Two Introductory Voluntaries ...	George J. Bennett	1 0
2.	Three Andantes ...	Hamilton Clarke	2 0
3.	Postlude (Christmas) Dr. Garrett	1 6
4.	Andante con moto Dr. Garrett	1 0
5.	Interlude for Advent Oliver King	1 0
6.	Prelude for Lent, Op. 10, No. 2 Oliver King	1 0
7.	Fantasia on a Theme by Hermann Goetz, Op. 20 (8)
8.	Three Pieces: (a) Baptism, (b) Wedding, (c) Burial ...	A. C. Mackenzie (each)	1 0
9.	Voluntary for Christmas Eve ...	Sir Fredk. Ouseley	1 0
10.	Voluntary ...	Sir Fredk. Ouseley	1 0
11.	Short Voluntary for a Time of Sorrow ...	Ridley Prentice	0 6
12.	Short Voluntary for Lent ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
13.	Postlude in C Minor ...	Dr. Steggall	1 0
14.	Concluding Voluntary or Fantasia (Lent) ...	C. E. Stephens	1 0
15.	Three Canons ...	W. G. Wood	2 0
16.	Allegretto ...	C. H. Lloyd	1 0
17.	Allegretto in D ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
18.	Three Pieces: No. 1, Allegretto moderato; No. 2, Andante con moto; No. 3, Processional March ...	H. M. Higgs	2 6
19.	Andante in G ...	Herbert W. Wareing, Mus. Doc.	1 0
20.	Andante in A and Minuet in A ...	C. Carford Lloyd	2 6
21.	Allegro ma non troppo ...	Oscar Wagner	1 0
22.	Processional Wedding March ...	Henry R. Bird	1 0
23.	Réverie ...	B. Luard Selby	1 6
24.	Three Pieces in F, D, and G ...	B. Luard Selby	1 6
25.	Marche Sérieuse ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
26.	Six Miniatures ...	Oscar Wagner	2 6
27.	Three Preludes ...	John E. West	1 0
28.	Soft Voluntary in D flat (Communion) ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
29.	Preludium e Fughetta ...	Dr. Gladstone	1 0
30.	Introduction and Fugue ...	Dr. Gladstone	1 6
31.	Allegretto ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
32.	Andante and Fugue ...	B. Luard Selby	1 6
33.	Pastorale and Melody in A flat ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
34.	Orchestral March ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
35.	Sonata ...	Oscar Wagner	1 6
36.	Sketch in C minor ...	John E. West	1 0
37.	Fugue in E minor ...	John E. West	1 0
38.	Minuet and Trio ...	F. Luard Selby	1 0
39.	Andante in B flat, and Short Postlude ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
40.	Sarabande ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
41.	Postlude in D ...	B. Luard Selby	1 0
42.	Andante Grazioso ...	Dr. C. S. Heap	1 0
43.	Fantasia in C ...	Berthold Tours	1 6
44.	Allegretto Grazioso ...	Berthold Tours	1 0
45.	Menuetto ...	Berthold Tours	1 0
46.	Postlude ...	Berthold Tours	1 0
47.	Fantasia in C minor ...	W. S. Hoyte	1 6
48.	Four Short Voluntaries ...	Kate Westrop	1 6
49.	Concert Fantasia and Fugue ...	V. G. Wood	2 0
50.	Sonata in D minor ...	Charles H. Lloyd	2 6
51.	Andante in E, Minuet and Trio, No. 2, in A minor ...	B. Luard Selby	1 6
52.	Postlude in D ...	W. G. Wood	1 0
53.	Allegro in C ...	W. G. Wood	1 0
54.	Melody in B flat ...	Arthur Carnall	1 0
55.	Three Andantes ...	Hamilton Clarke	1 6

(To be continued.)

* From "The Organist's Quarterly Journal."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL

Compositions for the Organ

By HENRY SMART.

No.		s. d.
1.	Choral, with Variations ...	1 6
2.	Two Trios ...	1 6
3.	Grand Solemn March ...	2 0
4.	Andante, No. 1, in G major ...	1 6
5.	Andante, No. 2, in A major ...	1 6
6.	Andante, No. 3, in E minor ...	1 6
7.	Six short and easy pieces, Nos. 1 and 2 ...	1 6
8.	" " " 3 " 4 ...	1 6
9.	" " " 5 " 6 ...	1 6
10.	Air with Variations and Final Fugato ...	3 0
11.	Twelve Short and Easy Pieces in various styles, Nos. 1 to 4 ...	2 6
12.	" " " 5 " 8 ...	2 0
13.	" " " 9 " 12 ...	2 6
14.	Prelude, in A, and Postlude, in C ...	1 0
15.	Prelude, in E flat; Introductory Voluntary, in B flat; Andante Grazioso ...	1 6
16.	Postlude, in D ...	1 6
17.	Twelve Short Interludes ...	1 6
18.	March, in G ...	1 0
19.	Easy Preludes: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in G ...	1 0
20.	Minuet, in C ...	1 0
21.	Festive March, in D ...	1 6
22.	Postlude, in E flat ...	1 6

Nos. 14 to 22 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price One Shilling.

THE CHILD'S GARLAND

A COLLECTION OF

THREE-PART SONGS FOR CHILDREN'S VOICES

COMPOSED BY

FRANZ ABT.

The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK
and Miss G. E. TROUTBECK.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Sixpence.

THE JUVENILE SONGSTER

NEW AND REVISED EDITION

CONSISTING OF

THIRTY-THREE SONGS

In One, Two, or Three Parts

Composed and Arranged for the Use of Children and Schools

BY

LOWELL MASON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

TWENTY-TWO SONGS

IN ONE AND TWO PARTS FOR

CHILDREN OLD & YOUNG

Translated into English by Lady MACFARREN,
Miss MARIE LIEBERT, and others

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

CAROLINE WICHERN.

Octavo, Two Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
SCHOOL ROUND BOOK
A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED
ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

IN SOL-FA NOTATION, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Crown Octavo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

THE
MUSIC OF THE BIBLE
WITH AN ACCOUNT OF THE
DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS
FROM ANCIENT TYPES, BY

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

"The very excellent illustrations scattered throughout the book materially increase its value; and we sincerely hope that Dr. Stainer's labours may be rewarded as they deserve, for not only has he accumulated a large mass of reliable information upon a subject of the deepest interest, but he has thrown additional light upon much of this evidence by giving us the result of his own practical experience."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

SELECTED, EDITED, AND TRANSLATED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.	Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Thro' the pine-wood.
The Message of Flowers.	The summer waves.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Wanderer's Night-song.
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Trust in Spring.
The Greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)	The Maiden's Lament.
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")	To Mignon.
Hallow'd night, descend.	The Passing-Bell.
	Alinda.
	Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
	The Fisherman.
	On the water.

VOLUME II.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

CONTRALTO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

The Wanderer.	Sadness.
Fisher's song.	To the Lyre.
The angry Bard.	Calm at sea.
The unlucky Fisherman.	Lay of the imprisoned Huntsman.
Old Man's song.	Passing to Hades.
The flight of Time.	Comfort in tears.
Litany for All Souls' day.	Death and the Maiden.
The weary heart.	Crusaders.
Minstrel's treasure.	Dithyramb.
Soldier's drinking song.	Prometheus.

VOLUME III.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR

SOPRANO OR TENOR.

CONTENTS.

The Erl-King.	Hark, hark, the lark.
Omnipotence.	Thee would I greet.
Love's unrest.	To the beloved one.
Rose among the heather.	Sulieka's second song.
Sad heart.	Presence of the loved one.
The band of roses.	Laughing and weeping.
Thou art repose.	Margaret's prayer.
Ganymed.	By the doorways I will wander.
Mignon.	To a brooklet.
Secrets.	To Sylvia.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PRODUCED WITH GREAT SUCCESS BY THE CARL ROSA COMPANY
 AT THE
 THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.

THE TROUBADOUR

A LYRICAL DRAMA IN FOUR ACTS

BY
 FRANCIS HUEFFER

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
 A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price, in paper cover, 5s.; scarlet cloth, 7s. 6d.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

THE TIMES.

These two beautiful pieces of cantilena are interrupted, as is indeed the converse of the lovers, by a brief chorus for male voices, the almost grotesque merriment of which contrasts strangely with their sweetness long drawn out. After the love duet we meet with what is likely to be the most popular feature of the opera. The words are, with the exception of the last stanza, a literal translation of a Provencal alba, or morning song, also to be found in Mr. Hueffer's work on the "Troubadour." It has been wedded to a striking melody in F minor and major, and was sung to perfection by Miss Burton, whose Azalais can scarcely fail to increase her reputation. . . . Here (Act IV.) Mr. Mackenzie rises fully to the height of the situation; and it may without exaggeration be said that outside the pages of the very greatest composers his final scene would be difficult indeed to match.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"Beneath a hawthorn on a blooming lawn" is the most beautiful number of the work; regularly constructed, yet full of fanciful treatment, and a grand exemplification of the ease with which forms consecrated by the long usage of genius can be animated with a new spirit.

STANDARD.

The sister of Margarida, Azalais, has here a beautiful solo, and this is followed quickly by a really lovely song from Guillem, "The sunray's shine," at first lightly accompanied, but afterwards supported by a solo violin in octaves with the voice. The passion of this ditty cannot well be described—it must be heard to be understood.

DAILY NEWS.

The instrumentation is always interesting, generally masterly; and altogether the work is an advance on his "Colomba."

MORNING POST.

The introduction to the third act is a delightful piece of scoring, and so told upon the audience that an encore was inevitable. The powers which were present in "Colomba" (his first Opera), in "The Rose of Sharon" (his first Oratorio), and which attracted the attention of his fellow musicians to his labours, are even more pronounced in "The Troubadour." As in each of these works, dramatic expression is one of the great features in the new opera, and musicians will not fail to observe with what masterly skill Mr. Mackenzie deals with the resources of the orchestra. His instrumental colouring is interesting in every scene, in some places it reaches a height which has perhaps not been attained by any native musician.

ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE.

The opera, indeed, which begins well, ends not only well, but, one may also say, sublimely. In his first scene Mr. Mackenzie reaches heights which probably no other living composer could attain.

The following Songs may be had singly, price 4s. each:—

FOR WINE GLADDENS THE HEART OF MAN.—Wine Song: For Soprano or Tenor.

"Is very joyous and original."—Standard.

THE SUNRAY'S SHINE.—For Tenor.

"One of the melodic gems of the opera."—Daily Chronicle.

IN THE PLACES OF LIGHTLESS
 SORROW.—For Soprano.

TO LIËT.—For Baritone.

BENEATH A HAWTHORN.—Morning
 Song: For Mezzo-Soprano.

"Likely to be the most popular feature of the opera."—The Times.
 "The truly inspired air!"—Dispatch.

POUR FORTH NOBLE WINE.—Drinking
 Song: For Baritone.

"Is as original as anything which has been achieved by himself or by any of the rising composers of the present day."—Morning Post.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 522.—Vol. 27.

Registered for transmission abroad.

AUGUST 1, 1886.

Price 4d.; Post-free, 5d.

Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5s.

LEEDS TRIENNIAL MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

OCTOBER 13, 14, 15, and 16, 1886.

Conductor—SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

Band and Chorus of 425 Performers.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Oct. 13.—Handel's ISRAEL IN EGYPT. Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Mrs. HUTCHINSON, Madame PATEY, Mr. EDWARD LOYD, Mr. BRERETON, and Mr. SANTLEY.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.—Mackenzie's Cantata (written for the Festival), THE STORY OF SAYID; OPERATIC SELECTION, &c. Principals: Miss DAMIAN, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, and Mr. WATKIN MILLS.

THURSDAY MORNING.—Bach's MASS IN B MINOR. Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Miss HILDA WILSON, Miss DAMIAN, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, and Mr. SANTLEY.

THURSDAY EVENING.—New Work, for Chorus and Orchestra, THE REVENGE, by C. V. Stanford; SYMPHONY IN C MINOR, No. 5 (Beethoven); WALPURGIS NIGHT (Mendelssohn). Principals: Miss DAMIAN, Mr. IVER MCKAY, and Mr. BRERETON.

FRIDAY MORNING.—ST. LUDMILA. Oratorio written for the Festival by Antonin Dvorak. Principals: Madame ALBANI, Madame PATEY, Mr. EDWARD LOYD, and Mr. SANTLEY.

FRIDAY EVENING.—ADVENT HYMN (Schumann); SYMPHONY ("The Scotch" (Mendelssohn); CONCERT OVERTURE (F. K. Hattersley); BALLET SUITE, &c. Principals: Mrs. HUTCHINSON, Mr. EDWARD LOYD, and Mr. FREDERIC KING.

SATURDAY MORNING.—THE GOLDEN LEGEND, written for the Festival by Sir Arthur Sullivan; Mendelssohn's ST. PAUL (Part 1). Principals: Madame ALBANI, Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Madame PATEY, Miss HILDA WILSON, Mr. EDWARD LOYD, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, Mr. WATKIN MILLS, and Mr. FREDERIC KING.

EXTRA CONCERT, SATURDAY EVENING.—Mendelssohn's ELIJAH. Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Madame PATEY, Miss DAMIAN, Mr. EDWARD LOYD, Mr. IVER MCKAY, and Mr. SANTLEY.

SERIAL TICKETS (admitting to seven performances) £ s. d.
excluding Saturday night ... 5 5 0

SINGLE TICKET.—Morning—Front Seats and Gallery, Reserved ... 1 1 0

" " Evening—Front Seats and Gallery, Reserved ... 0 15 0

" " Morning—Second Seats, Reserved ... 0 10 6

" " Evening—Second Seats, Reserved ... 0 7 6

FIRST SEAT TICKETS and PLAN will be ready on Monday, AUGUST 9.

SECOND SEAT TICKETS and PLAN will be ready on Monday, AUGUST 16.

Prior applications for Tickets (with the amount required) will be entered in the order in which they are received. Cheques and Orders payable to E. B. FABER, Hon. Treasurer; or to the Hon. Sec. Office open from 10 to 5. All communications to be addressed, AID. FRED. R. SPARK, Hon. Sec. Festival Office, Centenary Street, Leeds, July 23, 1886.

GLoucester MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

SEPTEMBER 7, 8, 9, and 10, 1886.

Principal Vocalists:—

Madame ALBANI. Mr. EDWARD LOYD.
Miss ANNA WILLIAMS. Mr. W. WINCH.
Miss HILDA WILSON. Mr. WATKIN MILLS.
Madame PATEY. Mr. SANTLEY.

Solo Pianist ... Miss FANNY DAVIES.
Leader ... Mr. CARRODUS.
Conductor ... Mr. C. L. WILLIAMS.

Particulars of Mr. Nest, Gloucester.

MANCHESTER CONCERT AGENCY.

DIRECTOR: MR. JOHN TOWERS.

MR. TOWERS is now booking next Season's Engagements for most of the leading Artists in the North of England, as well as for the Manchester Vocal Society (forty voices), the Manchester Select Choir (4, 8, or 16 voices), the Balmoral Concert Party, the Rochdale Orpheus Male Voice Prize Choir, &c. Address, 182, Oxford Street, Manchester.

NOVELLO'S ORATORIO CONCERTS.

SEASON 1886-87.

There are a few VACANCIES in the CHOIR. Ladies and Gentlemen (good Readers) wishing to join should apply at once to the Choir Secretary, Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

J. B. CRAMER & CO.,
CONCERT AGENTS,
LIVERPOOL.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS." (Reg.) —

Conductor, JOSEF CANTOR.

Unprecedented success in Manchester.

Unprecedented success in Leeds.

Unprecedented success in Liverpool.

Unprecedented success in Preston.

Unprecedented success in Bolton.

THE "GEMS OF THE OPERAS" CONCERT COMPANY comprises a highly trained Choir of Ladies and Gentlemen, assisted by a select Orchestra:—

Principal Soprano ... Madame LAURA SMART.
Solo Flute ... Mr. V. L. NEEDHAM.

(Of Messrs. Chas. Hallé and Edw. de Jong's orchestras.)
Mr. Cantor is now negotiating for dates during the ensuing season. All particulars, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

POPULAR CHAMBER CONCERT PARTY,

under the direction of MR. J. OWEN.

Vocalist:

MISS HANNAH JOHNSON,
Of Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Pianoforte and Accompanist:

MISS JESSIE M. HILEY,
Of Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violin:

MR. F. WARD,
Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violoncello:

MR. J. OWEN,
Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

"Mr. J. Owen's Chamber Concert at the Edrington Institute last Monday evening afforded a rare treat to lovers of good music. To Mr. Owen high praise is due for his highly satisfactory management of the concert." Edrington Times.

For terms and particulars of Concert Party, please address, Mr. J. Owen, Hamilton Villa, Hampton Road, Birchfield, Birmingham.

TO COMMITTEES OF INSTITUTIONS, &c.—

"SHAKESPEARIAN ENTERTAINMENT" as arranged by Mr. J. GREENHILL, assisted by eminent artists, can, by negotiation, be reproduced in the provinces. This entertainment (exclusively Shakespeare's words), illustrating the progress of vocal music from 1597 to 1886, composers being chronologically arranged, has been given in London, under the patronage of H.R.H. the late Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, and is given annually for the New Shakespeare Society. For terms, &c., address Mr. Greenhill (Professor of Singing), 89, Upper Gloucester Place, N.W.

THE LITERARY AND ARTISTIC SOCIETY'S CONCERTS, under Mr. GREENHILL's direction, commence in November. A few VACANCIES exist for VOCAL PUPILS.

To Secretaries of Institutions, Concert-givers, &c.

MADAME DE LISLE begs to inform the above that her High-class CONCERT and OPERETTA COMPANY is at liberty to accept ENGAGEMENTS during the ensuing Season. For full particulars, address, Madame de Lisle, 5, North Street, Swindon, Wiltshire.

THE "UNIT" QUARTET.—Messrs. R. Nelson, Alto; Tom Maude, 1st Tenor; Walter Crawley, 2nd Tenor; G. Halford, Bass. Lady Vocalists and Pianist if required. For terms and dates address, Mr. Tom Maude, 195, Hayden Gardens, South Wimbledon.

MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN begs to announce that he can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming season. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, W., or 34, Elgin Road, Malda Vale, W.

WANTED, a Full Score Copy (printed) of HAYDN'S MASS (No. 16). Address, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano).
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby.)

Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MADAME EMILIE CLARK (Soprano).

(Compass G to C.)
For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, &c.
Address, 2, Wellclose Place, Leeds.

MISS ADELINA CLARKE (Soprano)

MR. J. C. CLARKE, L.R.A.M. (Baritone and Solo Organist)

Are open to accept Engagements for Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c. Terms on application. Address, 24, Bridge Street, Walsail.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano, G to D).

For Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, Recitals, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne; or Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).

Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MISS LOUIE HARPER, R.A.M. (Soprano).

(Pupil of Signor Goldberg.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 182, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

MISS BESSIE HOLT, R.A.M. (Soprano),

3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).

MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).
Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MADELEINE WHARTON (Soprano).

MDLLE. JOSÉ D'ARCONVILLE, R.A.M.
(Contralto, of St. James's Hall and London Concerts).
Oratorio, Italian Operatic, and Ballad Concerts. 27, Central Road, Withington, Manchester.

MISS EMILY CLARKE (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Fiori and the late Madame Sainton-Dolby.)
"An artist in every sense of the word, and one of the purest and most charming contraltos that we have heard for some time."
Tunbridge Wells Gazette.
For Concerts, Lessons, &c., 9, Colville Square, Bayswater, W.

MISS MARGARET LEYLAND (Contralto).

(Certificated with Honours, R.A.M., and Gold Medalist).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 51, Plymouth Grove, Manchester.

MADAME DE LISLE (Contralto)

(Pupil of T. A. Wallworth, Esq., Professor at the Royal Academy of Music).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 5, North Street, Swindon, Wilts.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE, L.A.M. (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Schira.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS KATE MILNER (Contralto).

(Of the Guildhall School of Music).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Lessons, &c., 77, Macfarlane Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MISS CONSTANCE POOCK (Contralto & Pianist).

(Of the Bristol, Norwich, Derby, Hull, Cambridge, Ipswich, &c., Concerts; R.A.M. Honours Certificate, 1882).
For Oratorios, Ballads, or "Evenings of Sacred, Classical, Operatic, and Popular Pianoforte and Vocal Selections," &c. 56, Green Hill, Derby.

MISS SANDERSON (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Casson Gate, Rochdale.
"Miss Sanderson's rich and cultivated contralto voice won for her songs warm and well deserved applause."—West London Advertiser, July 10, 1886.

"Miss Sanderson gave evidence of marked powers as a vocalist in her rendering of the songs, 'Weary,' 'Watching,' &c."—Oldham Express, February 12, 1886.

MISS EDITH THAIRLWALL (Contralto).

(Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Teaching, &c., 5, Provost Road, N.W.

MR. GEO. BUTTERWORTH (Tenor).

(Hon. Certificate, R.A.M. (1886), Hon. Certificate, T.C.L. (1885).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Moss Bridge, Darwen; or, 7, King William Street, Blackburn.

MR. LAWRENCE FREYER (Tenor).

(St. Paul's Cathedral.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 233, Friern Road, Dulwich, S.E., or the Cathedral.

MR. SYDNEY HERBERT (Tenor).

Address, 2, Wynne Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).

(Canterbury Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 12, St. Mary Street, Dane John, Canterbury.

MR. S. THORNBOROUGH (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 125, Montague St., Blackburn.

MR. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone).

(Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)
35, Knowle Road, S.W. (Also Concert Party.)

MR. ARTHUR ROUSBEY (Baritone).

Just concluded successful engagements with Mr. Sims Reeves, and other distinguished critics.

"The honours of the evening were also shared in by Mr. Rousbey, whose rendering of 'The Wolf,' and 'The Vagabond,' left nothing to be desired in point of vocal and dramatic effect."—Edinburgh Evening News.

"To Mr. Arthur Rousbey were assigned three baritone solos, which he gave with his wonted power and finish of style."—Scotsman.

"Mr. Arthur Rousbey again distinguished himself by his highly cultured method of using his really fine voice."—Dispatch.

Re-engaged (second season) for Promenade Concerts, Covent Garden. Address (permanent), 26, Old Bond Street.

MR. THEODORE FRANCE (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral, Exeter.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass).

And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MR. ALBERT REAKES (Bass-Baritone).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 30, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

MR. RICKARD (Basso).

(Of the Schubert and Steinway Hall Concerts.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Halifax.

MR. WILLIAM RILEY (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Liversedge, Yorkshire.

MR. REGINALD J. THOMPSON (Bass).

Oratorio, Miscellaneous Concerts, and Church Festivals.
For vacant dates, address, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts, be addressed, 28, Grove End Road, London, N.W.; or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

"MISS MEREDETH ELLIOTT (Contralto) filled the void occasioned by the absence of Madame Antoinette Sterling, and the most thrilling of all the vocal items of the programme was her rendering of 'The Lost Chord,' which was a performance of unparalleled beauty."—Southampton Times. Address, 24, Studley Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MR. JAMES GAWTHROP (Tenor), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James's, begs that all communications be addressed to 34, Priory Park Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass), or Popular Vocal and Instrumental Concert Party. For terms and press notices, address, Willow Grove Hall, Leeds.

CHORAL SOCIETIES and CONCERT-GIVERS supplied on the shortest notice with VOCALISTS, CHOIRS, ORCHESTRAS, &c., by the English and American Bureau, 45, Leicester Square, W.C. Manager, Mr. E. A. Williams. Office hours, 12.30 to 3 o'clock, except Saturdays.

MISS CLARA TITTERTON, Medalist, R.A.M.,

First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Godolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MUSIC SCHOOL—CHURCH OF ENGLAND

HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macrone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The Fees payable in advance. Michaelmas Term begins October 6. Pupils entering at that date to attend for Examination on Wednesday 6, and will be eligible to compete for the Scholarships to be awarded in May, 1887, by Professor Sir G. A. Macfarren. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macrone.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

GERMANY.—Miss SERCOMBE, L.L.A., late Assistant Mistress at the Norwich High School, continues to receive a limited number of Pupils. Special arrangements made for Ladies wishing to study Music at the CONSERVATORIUM. Address, Danneckerstrasse, STUTTGART.

MR. M. J. MONK, Mus.B., Oxon., informs his former Pupils and others that he has resumed teaching HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and kindred subjects, by post, and will be happy to reply to letters addressed 20, Marlborough Road, Banbury.

THE HECKMANN QUARTET.

Mr. FRANKE, having again made arrangements with the celebrated HECKMANN (STRING) QUARTET for a visit to England during the time from November 22 to December 18 next, is open to receive applications for the engagement of these excellent Artists.

For terms, &c., apply to Mr. H. Franke, 2, Vere Street, London, W.

EQUITABLE CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY, Limited, Oldham.—EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.—WANTED, TENDERS for a good LONDON CONCERT PARTY, for the month of December or January. State terms for one Concert, also for five or six in town and neighbourhood. Tenders, with names of Party, to be sent to the above address as early as possible.

VOCAL COMPETITION.—£3 will be given to the singer who performs the greatest number of times between October and March next, Hubi Newcombe's popular song, EVER FAITHFUL. For conditions send stamped directed envelope to W. Lister, 12, Crossfield Street, Warrington.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON. (1885), and T.C.D. (1884), MUS. BAC., CANTAB. (1885); MUS. BAC., T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., OXON.; Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (May, 1886), 1st Mus. Bac., OXON. (1886), L.R.A.M. (1886); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1886), N.S.P.M. (1886); Toronto (14 in 1st and 2nd Examinations), F.C.O., A.C.O., &c. More than 130 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by DR. ALLISON'S Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885 and 1886. Theory, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Successes at Coll. of Organists, 1885; 1st Mus. Bac., Cambridge, 1st Class, 1886; Mus. Bac., Toronto, 1st and 2nd Examinations, 1886, First Class (four). Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

MR. ARTHUR J. GREENISH, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., A.R.A.M., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., taught personally or by correspondence. Candidates prepared through Post for Musical Examinations. 23, Maitland Park Road, Haverstock Hill, N.W.

MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Address, Market Place, South Shields.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street, Mayfair, W.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE, and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Address, Sidmouth.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., presents CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. E. BURRITT LANE, L.Mus., T.C.L., Gold Medalist, 1880, begs to announce his readiness to give LESSONS in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., to 16, Bouverie Road, Stoke Newington, N. Tuition personally or by post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.

A LADY, Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music, gives LESSONS in PIANOFORTE. For terms, &c., address, Musicians, 15, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

A PROFESSOR OF MUSIC in the North of London having a large connection, and holding the Organ appointment at the principal Church of the district, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Good opportunity for acquiring general experience both in Orchestral and Church work. Premium required. One who could take elementary Violin or Piano lessons preferred. Address, Verax, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE NEWINGTON CHARITY ORGANISATION COMMITTEE desire to raise £16 to complete the cost of a year's TRAINING for a BLIND GIRL, who, by her merit and ability, has among a large number of competitors won a Scholarship at the Royal Normal College. Her mother is a widow with nine children, and it is most desirable that this girl shall be taught to earn her own living. Contributions will be gladly received by the Secretary of the Society, 15, Buckingham Street, Adelphi, W.C.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual new Tubular Pneumatic Organ, 18 stops, blown by Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR FOR A COURSE at Blennerhasset's Organ Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C. Inspection invited.

Manufacturer of THE PERFECT HYDRAULIC ENGINE for supplying wind to Organs of any size to the smallest Harmonium. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective. Estimates as above free.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete set of Three manuals and independent pedals. Minorities.

More, &c.

MR. F. A. W. DOCKER, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, W., on or before August 8.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, Tenbury.—There is a PROBATIONERSHIP VACANT in the above Choir, for which a Boy with a good Voice is wanted. Candidates must be under eleven years of age. For further particulars, apply to the Rev. J. Hampton, Tenbury.

SOLO CHOIR BOYS for Church Festivals, Perambulations, Concerts, At Homes, &c. Apply, Mr. Sampson, 61, Mount Street, Grosvenor Square, W.

TWO LEADING TREBLES WANTED, for Church in Southwark. Good Voices and Readers indispensable. Stipend, £5 per annum. Apply, by letter, to Secretary, 86, Southwark Park Road, S.E.

ALTO WANTED, for City Church, near Monument. Must have a good voice and be good reader of music, and able to sing the usual Cathedral Service. Salary, £13 per annum. Letters to John Tunstall, 14, Oakley Square, N.W.

ALTO.—An efficient ALTO will be DISENGAGED for a few months after the 8th inst. Terms, R. L., 5, Gaisford Street, N.W.

WANTED, BASS VOICE. Good Reader indispensable; for Theistic Church (Rev. Chas. Voysey), Swallow Street, W. No week-day services or practices; Sunday, morning and evening only. Stipend, £15 per year. Apply to Edward R. Terry, 50, New Bond Street, W.

WANTED, immediately, at St. Mary's, Bourdon Street, W., a BASS (not Baritone). Stipend, £10 per annum. Duties: two Services on Sunday and Rehearsal on Thursday evening. Apply at Church, either on Tuesday evening, at 8.30, or on Thursday evening, at 9.

BASSES.—TWO BASSES ARE REQUIRED for the American Church in Paris, to commence September 6. Deep voices. Musical knowledge and experience necessary. Apply at once to Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

BASS (good Reader). Permanency required. Or would act as Deputy. Terms moderate. C., 72, Boyson Road, Walworth, S.W.

ST. MARGARET'S, Lee.—The Rector thanks the many Gentlemen who replied to his Advertisement, and as it is impossible to write to each singly begs to say that the post is filled up.

ST. MICHAEL'S, Coventry.—WANTED, a competent ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for the above. Salary, inclusive of remuneration to Choir, £180 per annum. Applications, with references to not less than three musical authorities, to be sent in to Arthur Seymour, Vestry Clerk, Coventry, on or before August 7.

ORGANIST WANTED, for Trinity Church, Bridgwater. Address, stating age, references, musical capabilities, and salary, The Vicar.

ORGANIST WANTED, for Roman Catholic Chapel in Scotland. Good Salary. Apply, D., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST REQUIRED, for Trinity Congregational Church, Catford. One who could combine the duties of Choirmaster would be preferred. Salary, £30. Apply, by letter, enclosing testimonials, to Mr. B. Baggs, Brook Villa, Blythe Hill, Catford, S.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Ward Chapel, Dundee. Apply, stating qualifications, to 429, Advertiser Office, Dundee.

WANTED, an ORGANIST for St. Mark's Church, Augusta, Maine, U.S.A. Surplused choir. Must be good Choirmaster. Send application and testimonials to The Rector.

WANTED, ORGANIST and "MASTER OF THE SONG" for Dunfermline Abbey. Must be an efficient Choirmaster. Salary, £60 per annum. Applications with testimonials to be sent, not later than August 9, to the Rev. Robert Stevenson, the Abbey, Dunfermline. There is an exceptionally good opening for Piano and Organ Teacher.

THE MASTER

WANTED, a young man to Train Choir and Organist. Salary or Stipend. Apply to The Vicar.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, of 20 years' experience, desires an ENGAGEMENT at a Church in or near London where there is a hearty service. Salary not so much an object as a good Organ. Highest testimonials from the clergy and eminent musicians. Address, Organo, 4, Clermont Road, Preston Park, Brighton.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Is holding good position, and has fifteen years' experience. Licentiate in Music. Has passed 1st and 2nd Mus. Bac. Exams. Gregorian or Anglican Music. Is prepared to work hard with Choir. H., 2, Brueyere Place, Bexley Heath, S.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—ENGAGEMENT WANTED, at Michaelmas. Six years' experience. A. H. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

HOLIDAY ENGAGEMENT.—An experienced ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, accustomed to Full Cathedral Service, will be at liberty to accept a holiday engagement (three Sundays) during the months of August or September. Seaside preferred. Terms moderate. Apply to A. X., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ENGAGEMENT DESIRED, as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Near Reading preferred. Young man, well qualified. Address, T. B., 1, Northcote Rd., St. Margaret's, Twickenham.

ORGANIST, upwards of 20 years' experience, will take TEMPORARY or DEPUTY DUTY. J. S. Creswell, Tamworth.

WANTED, by a Gentleman, just out of his Articles, a post as ORGANIST, where there is an opportunity of establishing a fair Teaching Connection. For references and testimonials apply, by letter, to Pergolesi, Box 500, Willing's Advertising Offices, 125, Strand, London.

THE ORGANIST of Keble College, Oxon., is open to ENGAGEMENTS during Vacation. Recitals or Church work. Address, 20, Messina Avenue, West Hampstead.

A LONDON ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in London. Several years' experience. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

ASSISTANT ORGANIST.—A Young Man (21), who has previously held a similar Post, wishes to find an ORGANIST of good position (in London preferred) who would make use of him in return for Finishing Lessons and home expenses. Address, C. J. F., Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency, 12, Berners St., W.

ORGANIST of large School and Parish Church wishes to DEPUTISE in London. Free from first Sunday in August to second Sunday in September, both inclusive. M. D., Clynne Villa, Naas Road, Wood Green.

AS VOLUNTARY ORGANIST.—Professional ORGANIST desires a Church, with good Organ. Good testimonials. Address, Organist, 26, Westbourne Park Road, Bayswater, W.

ACCOMPANIST, thoroughly competent, is open for ENGAGEMENTS. Telegrams or letters to Artos, care of Messrs. Deacon, 150, Leadenhall Street, promptly responded to.

WANTED, a good TUNER, steady and reliable, who can also undertake Repairs. Near London. Permanent. S. E. J., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a good Country TUNER. Must be a thoroughly steady Man. A practical knowledge of American Organs and Harmoniums indispensable. Permanent situation. Good salary. Address, H. W. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

WANTED, first-class TUNER, REGULATOR, and REPAIRER. One who understands Harmoniums and American Organs. Good wages and permanent situation to steady respectable man. Apply, W. H. Milne, Jersey.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED. Must be experienced. Liberal salary to a competent man. Apply, Graham, 6, Shandwick Place, Edinburgh.

ASSISTANT TUNER WANTED, for Country work. State wages required, and enclose Carte with stamped addressed envelope to D. W. C., Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners St., W.

PIANOFORTE.—FINE TUNER. KIRKMAN's and Sons' showrooms; experienced Regulator highly well up at American Organ and Harmonium. Practical Mechanic. Eight years' country experience. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

First-class TUNER and REPAIRER (experienced) will be open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT in London or up in Harmonium and American Organ work. Tuning of Pipe Organs. Competent to manage Workshops, or would be glad to enter a firm with ship in two or three years' time, or otherwise. S. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

First-class TUNER and REPAIRER, also American Organs and Harmoniums, desires an ENGAGEMENT in the Channel Islands. Disengaged at end of September. Address, Winton Street, Dorset Square, N.W.

FIRST-CLASS PIANOFORTE TUNER (practical throughout) will shortly be open to RE-ENGAGEMENT. London preferred. H. W., 59, Parkholme Road, Dalston, N.

SITUATION REQUIRED, by an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER. Address, J. F. R., care of Mrs. Holliday, Albion Street, Cleckheaton, Yorks.

SITUATION REQUIRED by an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. Used to Harmoniums and American Organs. Country preferred. G. E. B., 24, Lupton Street, Brecknock Road, N.W.

WANTED, SITUATION as SECOND TUNER, REPAIRER, &c. Good knowledge of Harmoniums, American Organs, and small Gongs. Address, Practical, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER (Erard's) seeks ENGAGEMENT on or near South or West Coast. Harmoniums, American Organs, Repairs. Could manage small country business. Good references. Salary. Tuner, 118, Junction Road, N.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (first-class experienced Broadwood man) desires an ENGAGEMENT. Good references. Address, Tuner, 11, Grove Crescent Road, Stratford, E.

TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Town or Country. From Messrs. J. BROADWOOD and Son's Factory. (Blind.) Very moderate Salary required. First-class Pianist. Address, Bac, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks SITUATION, very steady, reliable, and respectable. Harmoniums, &c. Tuner, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, by a thoroughly competent and experienced PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, and AMERICAN ORGAN TUNER and REPAIRER. Eight years with one firm; three years as manager; country work. Tuner, Music Warehouse, Lowesmoor, Worcester.

TUNER.—SITUATION REQUIRED, by an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER. Address, M. Y., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

METAL PIPE MAKER WANTED. Apply to Norman Bros., Organ Works, Norwich.

WANTED, by Young Lady, RE-ENGAGEMENT in a First-class MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Three years' experience. M. J. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

SITUATION REQUIRED, in MUSIC WAREHOUSE, by a Lady Assistant, who is a good player. Apply to M. D. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, in a MUSIC SHOP; town or country. Good salesman for sheet music or pianos. Good Pianist and reader at sight. Can Tune. Good references. A. W., 4, Paragon, New Kent Road, S.E.

ASSISTANT REQUIRES a SITUATION in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Experienced. Age 24. Address, H. F., 56, Palmerston Road, Southsea.

WANTED, ENGAGEMENT for respectable Youth (16), a Pianist, in Music Trade, as APPRENTICE or ASSISTANT. H. L., Messrs. Novello & Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNERS.—MUSICSELLERS, &c., who have good Tuning Connections for DISPOSAL may hear of a Purchaser by stating full particulars to Unison, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE BUSINESS.—To be SOLD, an old-established HOUSE in the North of England, on very moderate terms, in consequence of the Proprietor retiring from business. Apply, T. Toogood, Solicitor, 16, St. Swinith's Lane, London.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Academy House, 295, Oxford Street, W., MUSIC PUBLISHERS and General MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Composers' Works Revised, Engraved, and Published in the best style and at lowest charges, and afterwards offered for sale. Estimates free. Approved MSS. purchased. Private Rooms, with use of Pianos for Professors' teaching use, or for practice. Lessons given by highly qualified Professors on Pianoforte, Violin, Flute, Banjo, Guitar, and all instruments; Singing, Harmony, &c. PIANOFORTES by all Makers for Sale (cash or three years system). VIOLINS (old and new), Strings, &c. Value not to be excelled. For terms, lists, &c., apply, 295, Oxford Street, W.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 25, Warwick St., Regent St., London, undertakes Revising and Publishing all Musical Works, in the best manner, on lowest terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogue on application. Use of Music for "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimate given on receipt of MSS. London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions. Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

ORGAN for SALE. A fine-toned Instrument. Great organ, 11 stops; swell organ, 9 stops (all of which go through to CC, except the gemshorn); pedal organ, 3 stops; six composition pedals. Full particulars on application to W. White, Music Warehouse, Grantham.

FOR SALE, Three-manual ORGAN, 21 stops; a fine-toned instrument, handsome case, richly decorated pipes, &c., &c. Apply to the London Music Publishing Company, Limited, 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

ORGAN (fined toned). Two-manual, 17 stops, pedal, open diapason. £125. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway, N.

FOR SALE.—A Two-manual ORGAN. 10 stops, pedals, 21 octaves. Rev. A. Baker, 68, Hazelwood Crescent, Kensal Road, W.

ORGAN (Pipe, about 220). Suit Church or Residence. Good Tone; perfect order. 17 Guineas. Also Oboe Trumpet, Spotted Clarinet, Dulciana Stops, cheap. 21, Walerton Road, Faddington, W.

FOR SALE (a Bargain), a fine ORGAN, by GRAY, of London, containing three Manuals and Pedals. Must be sold to make room for larger Instrument. Apply to H. Ainscough, Organ Builder, Preston.

ORGAN for SALE.—Eight stops and couplers (CC to G), two manuals, independent Bourdon pedals (CCC to F). Good tone. Nearly new. Suit residence. Small Church or Chapel. Full particulars on application to J. A. Mountford, Builder, 495, Coventry Road, Birmingham.

ORGAN for SALE.—A fine-toned and most complete instrument, with two manuals, eight stops and couplers; independent Bourdon pedals. Apply, T. R. Willis, 29, Minories, E.C.

ORGAN PEDALS, with Piano Attachment and good Stool with Music Drawer, for SALE. £5. Apply, W., 26, St. George's Road, Fimlico.

ORGAN and HARMONIUM COMBINED. Two Manuals. Pedals, CC to E; Pedal pipes, 17 notes. Price £15. Lamb, Pianoforte Dealer, Lytham.

ORGAN-HARMONIUM, in Italian walnut, two manuals, independent pedals, 71 rows reeds, 24 stops, including 3 couplers. Great variety. J. King, 270, St. Paul's Road, Highbury, London, N.

AMERICAN ORGAN for SALE. Two-Manual and Pedal. Walnut Case. Price £50. Can be seen by appointment. A. C., 80, King Street, Camden Town, N.W.

FOR SALE.—BAILEY'S No. 3 ORGAN BLOWER. Splendid condition. W. Minns, Portishead.

HARMONIUM, by DEBAN and Co., Paris.—A splendid instrument, in walnut case, up to English concert pitch (Pihlmanic). Following stops: Right hand—percussion, flute, clarinet, fire, hautbois, forte, grave, celeste, musette, viol, humaine, cornemuse, soprano, tremblant, forte, jalousie expressif. Left hand—percussion, cor Anglais, bourdon, clarion, basson, forte, dolce, molien, aigu, sordine, violoncelle, saxophone, tremblant, forte, jalousie expressif; grand jeu, 3-grand jeu, expression. Guaranteed in perfect condition. Price £65. Apply, Theo, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

BROADWOOD GRAND PIANO.—A Bargain, a full-sized CONCERT GRAND, full compass of 7 octaves, in splendid condition and grand, powerful tone, with iron bars and plates, will be SOLD for 45 guineas. R. Morley and Co., 63, High Road, Lee, S.E.

GREAT CURIOSITY.—A CONCERT FLUTE, by DROUET, made entirely of the finest ivory and eight sterling silver keys, very mellow tone, and guaranteed in perfect condition. Only 6 guineas. Apply, X.Y.Z., 21, Paternoster Row, E.C., where the Flute can be seen.

CENTRAL ORGAN WORKS, Manchester, S.W.—W. E. RICHARDSON, Builder to her Majesty.—ORGANS for Church, Practice, or School, from £35. Several New and Second-hand Organs on Sale.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists post free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.—IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and Co. (established 100 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every Instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guineas, 17 guineas, 20 guineas, &c.; Organs, 5 guineas, 11 guineas, 14 guineas, &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 18s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 18s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

VIOLIN AND BOW
MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,
GEORGE WITHERS & CO.
(Late of Coventry Street),
WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF
MUSICAL STRINGS
FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.
A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, PARIS, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,
VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,
ARTISTIC HOUSE,

PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

Catalogues and testimonials post-free on application.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Finest Italian, three firsts, post-free as before, for thirteen stamps.—Alphonse Cary, Newbury.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent post-free for 13 stamps. PRENZEL'S PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL AND SONS have been awarded a GOLD MEDAL at the INVENTIONS EXHIBITION, 1885, and the Sole GOLD MEDAL, SOCIETY OF ARTS, 1885, for VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, and BOW MAKING.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL AND SONS (the Experts to the Historic Music Loan Collection, Inventions Exhibition, 1885) give opinions as to the make and value of Violins for a moderate fee. Old Violins, Violas, and Violoncellos bought or sold on commission. Particulars on application. 72, Wardour Street, London. Established 1745.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minorities, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minorities, London.

REGENT HALL, LONDON.

[Established by Deed of Constitution (1886) for the Promotion of Artistic Excellence in the Design and Manufacture of Musical Instruments, and the Proficiency of Instrumental Tuners and skilled Musical Mechanicians.]

I. PIANOFORTE & OTHER KEYBOARD INSTRUMENTS.

The Governors of Regent Hall are now prepared to conduct examinations of the quality of tone, touch, and workmanship of Keyboard Instruments; and to affix their hall mark to approved instruments.

II. EXAMINATION OF PIANOFORTE TUNERS.

Arrangements are now completed for the Practical Examination of Pianoforte Tuners for the Hall Certificate of Qualification to practise in such capacity.

The date of the next Examination is fixed for September 29, 1886. The Examination Fee is Two Guineas.

The Regulations for either of the above Examinations, with Lists of Examiners and other information, may be had of the undersigned, CHARLES PETERS, Hon. Sec. to the Governors. 44, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, W.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
ESTABLISHED 1854.

SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

Established at Camden Town, 1864.

SNELL and CO. (E. and W. SNELL), Manufacturers of Perfected HARMONIUMS and "College" Pedal Reed ORGANS, 475, Holloway Road, N. New Designs. Reduced Prices. Special terms to Trade and Profession. Lists free.

WRITE for List of J. E. PEENE'S New Patent Brass and Steel FOLDING MUSIC STANDS. A Special light Stand for carrying in Violin Case made. Address, Kington, Herefordshire.

SURPLICES TO CHOIRMASTERS.—BOYS' SURPLICES, from 3s.; MEN'S, from 6s. Send for list to Surplice, General Agency, 111, Victoria Street, S.W.

"Invaluable aids to the voice."—Rev. Idrisyn Jones.

VOICE, VOICE.—Instant clearness, full volume of tone and power by using JAMES'S "SINGER'S FRIEND" LOZENGES. Valuable hints on voice with each box. Stamps, 7d. and 1s. 2d., of W. James, Chemist, Highgate Road, London, N.W., and through Chemists everywhere.

JAMES'S "SINGER'S FRIEND" LOZENGES.—Mr. Reginald Groom, Principal Tenor, writes:—"I find your Lozenges most effectual for the voice and throat."

CURE OF DEAFNESS.

NOISES in the EARS.—Rev. E. J. SILVERTON invites members of the musical profession who may be suffering Deafness or other Aural Troubles to send for his work on the subject. 300th Thousand, post-free for 6d., with letter of advice if case be stated. Free consultations daily, from 11 to 4; Saturday, 11 to 1. Address, Rev. E. J. Silvertown, Imperial Buildings, Ludgate Circus, E.C.

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

VOLUMES I., II., III., IV., V., CLOTH, FOUR SHILLINGS EACH.

- | VOLUME I. | | VOLUME III. | |
|--------------------------------------|------------------------------|-------------|--|
| No. 1. Compositions by Bach. | No. 7. Marches. | | |
| " 2. Compositions by Bach. | " 8. Marches. | | |
| " 3. Compositions by Bach. | " 9. Marches. | | |
| VOLUME II. | | VOLUME IV. | |
| " 4. Compositions by Handel. | " 10. Gavottes, Minuets, &c. | | |
| " 5. Compositions by Handel. | " 11. Gavottes, Minuets, &c. | | |
| " 6. Compositions by Handel. | " 12. Gavottes, Minuets, &c. | | |
| VOLUME V. | | | |
| No. 13. Compositions by Wollenhaapt. | | | |
| " 14. Compositions by Wollenhaapt. | | | |
| " 15. Compositions by Wollenhaapt. | | | |
| " 16. Scotch Airs (Duets). | | | |

List of Contents may be had gratis and post-free. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES

ARE SIMPLY INVALUABLE TO SPEAKERS AND SINGERS.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS writes :—

"I think very highly of your Lozenges after a thorough test."

MISS JESSIE JONES, R.A.M., writes :—

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the excellent effect produced by your Lozenges upon the throat and voice."

MRS. MUNDELLA writes :—

"Please send another 2s. 6d. tin of your Lozenges, which I have already found so useful."

MR. FARLEY SINKINS, Exeter Cathedral, writes :—

"They restore the voice when suffering from a cold far better than any Lozenges I know, and I have tried a large assortment."

MR. HENRY CROSS, R.A.M., writes :—

"In your Lozenges I find a valuable remedy and friend. I can safely say that they are the best aid for the voice I have ever tried."

MR. SWIFT, Peterborough Cathedral, writes :—

"I think them excellent for the voice and throat. . . . They will command a great sale."

F. NEWCOME, Esq., M.D., writes :—

"It affords me much pleasure to bear medical testimony to the efficacy of your Lozenges in cases of relaxed throat, chronic bronchitis, &c. . . . Invaluable to speakers and singers. . . . They contain no narcotic."

For coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, huskiness, tickling sensation, relaxed sore and dry throat, bronchial irritation, croup, &c., they have no equal.

Sold only in tins 1s. 1d. and 2s. 6d. each. Free by post for 14 or 33 stamps. Wholesale, W. Sutton and Co., Bow Churchyard, London, and all Patent Medicine Houses.

PREPARED ONLY BY

J. A. BASKER, F.C.S.,

PHARMACEUTICAL CHEMIST & ANALYST, BRIDGWATER, ENGLAND.

NINE SACRED DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO,

COMPOSED BY

HENRY SMART.

- | | |
|---------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| No. 1. There was joy in Heaven. | No. 6. Where the weary are at rest. |
| " 2. The Lord is my shepherd. | " 7. Vox Matutina. |
| " 3. When brighter suns, | " 8. By Babylon's waters. |
| " 4. Faint not, fear not, | " 9. Evening. |
| " 5. The Sabbath Bell. | |

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FIVE FOUR-PART SONGS

FOR MALE VOICES

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR FOUR HORNS

COMPOSED BY

R. SCHUMANN.

- | | |
|--------------------------------|-----|
| 198. The Song of the Chase | 4d. |
| 199. Have a care | 4d. |
| 200. The Hunter's Morning Song | 4d. |
| 201. At break of day | 4d. |
| 202. In full chase | 4d. |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE SONGS

WITH ENGLISH AND GERMAN WORDS

COMPOSED BY

SIR W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| Op. 23. | Op. 35. |
| No. 1. Musing on the Roaring Ocean. | No. 7. Indian Love. |
| 2. May Dew. | 8. Winter's Glee. |
| 3. Forget-me-not. | 9. Dawn, Gentle Flower. |
| 4. To Chloe (in Sickness). | 10. Castle Gordon. |
| 5. The Past. | 11. As Lonesome through the Woods. |
| 6. Gentle Zephyr. | 22. Sing, Maiden, Sing. |

PRICE ONE SHILLING;

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

Also separately, folio, price 1s. 6d. each net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S PRIMERS OF MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY

HECTOR BERLIOZ
FREDERIC CHOPIN
ROSSINI
CHERUBINI MEYERBEER

ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR PIANOFORTE.

	Arranged by	s. d.
GOUND'S REDEMPTION	... BERTHOLD TOURS	5 0
" MORS ET VITA	... "	5 0
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	... "	5 0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	... "	3 0
MOZART'S FIRST MASS	... VINCENT NOVELLO	2 6
" SECOND MASS	... "	3 0
" SEVENTH MASS	... "	3 0
" TWELFTH MASS	... "	3 0
" REQUIEM MASS	... J. PITTMAN	3 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

A FEW COPIES REMAINING OF THE

SELECTION OF MUSIC

Performed by the Choral Societies who took part in the competition at the National Music Meetings at the Crystal Palace

THEY WILL BE SUPPLIED AT

SIXPENCE EACH.

CLASS I., PRICE SIXPENCE (92 PAGES).—1874.

See from his post Euphrates flies ("Belshazzar")	... Handel.
Be not afraid (Motet)	... Haydn.
Hark the deep tremendous voice	... Handel.
The people shall hear and be afraid	... Pearsall.
Sir Patrick Spens	... Mendelssohn.
Why, my soul, art thou so vexed (Psalm xlii.)	...

CLASS II., PRICE SIXPENCE (50 PAGES).—1873.

Cherubim and Seraphim ("Jephtha")	... Handel.
O God, who in Thy heavenly hand ("Joseph")	... Handel.
Jehovah, Lord God of Hosts (Motet)	... Spohr.
Hosanna to the Son of David (Anthem)	... Gibbons.
Fire, fire my heart (Ballet)	... Morley.
Sweet honey-sucking bees (Madrigal)	... Witbye.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT: THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

SESSION 1886-87.

MICHAELMAS TERM COMMENCES SEPTEMBER 28.

Students (Professional and Amateur) are received for a complete course of musical training, or for a single study. The following is a list of the subjects taught, with names of Professors:—

HARMONY.—Prof. Gordon Saunders, Mus.D., Humphrey J. Stark, Mus.B., C. W. Pearce, Mus.D., Prof. Jas. Higgs, Mus.B. COUNTER-POINT.—H. J. Stark, Mus.B., F. G. Higgs, Mus.B., C. W. Pearce, Mus.D. FORM AND ORCHESTRATION.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. MUSICAL ACUSTICS (University Lectures).—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P. PIANOFORTE.—Prof. Bradbury Turner, Mus.B., Miss Alma Sanders, L.Mus., F. G. Cole, L.Mus., G. E. Bambridge, L.Mus. ORGAN.—W. Pinney, Mus.B., C. E. Willing, F. G. M. Ogbourne. FIGURED BASS PLAYING.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. SOLO SINGING.—A. Visetti, J. C. Beuthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel, C. E. Willing, Walter Bolton. THE ART OF PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT.—C. E. Willing, VIOLIN.—J. T. Carrods, L. Szczepanowski. VIOLONCELLO.—E. Woolhouse. DOUBLE BASS.—John Reynolds. FLUTE.—John Radcliff, W. L. Barrett. OBOE.—A. J. B. Dubrucq, W. M. Malsch. CLARINET.—H. Lazarus. HARP.—Ernest R. Lockwood. HORN.—T. E. Mann. ORCHESTRAL CLASS.—George Mount. MUSICAL HISTORY.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. SIGHT-SINGING.—W. G. W. Goodworth, L.Mus. CHORAL CLASS.—F. G. Cole, L.Mus. VOCAL AND AURAL PHYSIOLOGY (Lectures).—C. E. Armand Semple, B.A., M.B. VOICE PRODUCTION CLASS (Lectures).—A. Visetti.

. Classes have also been established in General Subjects for the benefit of Students of the College.

The fee for Three Studies (e.g., Pianoforte, Singing, and Harmony) is Five Guineas per term.

New Students are received at the commencement of each term, and there are three terms in the year.

Both Male and Female Students are received, and there is no limit as to age. There are Evening as well as Day Classes.

Students of the College are allowed to enter for any of the College Examinations at reduced fees.

Prospectuses, Forms of Application, and all particulars can be obtained, post-free, by addressing the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By Order of the Academical Board.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

ALBUMS OF GERMAN SONG

SELECTED, AND THE WORDS TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH,

BY

FRANCIS HUEFFER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

TWENTY-SEVEN SONGS

BY

JOHANNES BRAHMS.

A Troth.
Love and Spring (1).
Love and Spring (2).
Far over the field.
Amongst strangers.
West-wind blowing.
Spring.
My loved one has left me.
The reason why.
A Symbol.
Nightingales.
Faithful love.
Alone she stood by the window.
A Memory.

The swallow's flying West.
Alone.
Return.
The wounded youth.
Could I but once forget.
So secretly.
Serenade.
Longing.
The Kiss.
At Parting.
Parted.
The Smith.
To an Æolian

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TEN SONGS

SET TO POEMS OF ROBERT BURNS

BY

GEORGE J. BENNETT.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

CIRO PINSUTI.

BOOK I.

- No. 1. After the rain.
" 2. Out in the sunshine.
" 3. I love all things.

BOOK II.

- No. 7. The mermaids.
" 8. False love, and true.
" 9. Under the stars.

- No. 4. I sing because I love to sing.
" 5. Passing away.
" 6. The voice of the waterfall.

- No. 10. Bygone days, or Looking back.
" 11. Love and friendship.
" 12. The Magicians.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The "OTTO" Gas Engine

IS ADMIRABLY SUITABLE

FOR

DRIVING ORGANS.

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.	St. Thomas's (Oldham).
Westminster Abbey.	St. Andrew's (Southport).
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).	Holy Trinity
St. Mary's " "	Alnwick (Parish Church).
Lichfield " "	Congregational Church (Black-
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).	burn).
Salisbury Cathedral.	St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
St. Peter's (Ebbw Vale, London).	Parish Church (Folkestone).
St. Mark's (Bradford).	Eton College, and others.
Harrogate Baptist Church.	Coombe Down Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).	Thirsk Church.

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

A SERIES OF

COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN

BY

LEFÉBURE-WÉLY.

	s. d.
1. Choristers' March	3 0
2. Marche aux Flambeaux	2 0
3. Roman March	2 0
4. Grand Processional March	3 0
5. Funeral March in C minor	3 0
6. O Salutaris Hostia (Transcription)	2 0
7. Cantabile in A	2 0
8. Chœur de Voix Humaines (Andante in F)	2 0
9. Andante in B flat	2 0
10. Elevation in E	2 0
11. Elevation in E	2 0
12. Celebrated Capriccio in F (Transcription)	3 0

EDITED AND ARRANGED BY

ALFRED WHITTINGHAM.

LONDON: EDWIN ASHDOWN, HANOVER SQUARE.

THE PSALMS

(BIBLE VERSION)

POINTED FOR CHANTING

BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK,

Hon. Chaplain to the Queen.

CLOTH, ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED, NEW EDITION.

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER

TOGETHER WITH THE

CANTICLES AND PROPER PSALMS

SET TO APPROPRIATE CHANTS.

Demy 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW EDITION, WITH MANY ADDITIONS,

WORDS OF ANTHEMS

EDITED BY

THE REV. W. RAYSON, M.A.,

JOHN STAINER, M.A., D.Mus.,

AND

THE REV. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Cloth, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

AUGUST 1, 1886.

THE LONDON MUSICAL SEASON.

By HENRY C. LUNN.

HAD the London season of 1886 been even more than usually remarkable for important musical events, the visit of the Abbé Liszt would claim primary attention in our annual record, not only because he stands foremost as a representative man in the cause of musical progress, but because his presence amongst us after so long an absence may be accepted as a proof that he believes in our largely increasing sympathy with the object of which he has, both theoretically and practically, shown himself so earnest an advocate. Hospitality we should of course have exercised towards any eminent foreign guest; but the reception of Liszt was so enthusiastic amongst all classes as to amount to an ovation, and this not in acknowledgment of the gratification derived from listening to his wondrous performance, for he was constantly greeted with the warmest applause from vast audiences at concerts where it was thoroughly well known that he would not play. A detailed notice of his movements during his stay in this country has already appeared in our journal; but it would be impossible to chronicle all the marks of favour which were showered upon him by the many whose rank, both in art and social position, made such recognition of real value. Indeed, we may confidently say that the cordial manner in which he was welcomed induced him to linger with us beyond the time he originally intended; and we hope and believe that he will carry with him so pleasurable an impression of England that his farewell—which he evidently uttered with regret—will not prove a lasting one, especially as an artistic link has now been established with our country by the foundation of a "Liszt Scholarship" at the Royal Academy of Music, in honour of his visit.

That the despotic reign of Italian Opera in England had a crushing effect upon the progress of the art is a truth which could only be whispered whilst those who mainly supported the institution were also the patrons of the smaller musical enterprises timidly ventured during the season. Before, therefore, anything effectual could be done to lessen the power of this monopoly, it was necessary to show that reform was not to be expected from the upper, but from the middle classes, and that operas, although sung to a fashionable audience in Italian, would afford the utmost gratification when sung to a plebeian audience in English. The Carl Rosa Company gradually enforced this fact to the people, and the people have rewarded the spirited promoter of English Opera, not only by acknowledging the enjoyment of listening to well-known compositions in the vernacular, and without a single "star" singer, but by patronising new lyrical works composed by native artists, and sung by native vocalists. The ground being thus cleared, it is to be hoped that England will now willingly grant a hearing to composers and singers of all nationalities, and that our résumé of the London Musical Season may in the future contain a record of the production of the best operas of the world, and not of any especial portion of it. This year we have only to comment upon two operatic ventures, and if we give the first place to that at Covent Garden Theatre, it is because of its priority of date, and not of its artistic importance.

The Royal Italian Opera, under the direction of Signor Lago, commenced a season on May 25, which extended to the latter part of July; but the programme of worn-out operas given during that time leaves but little for the musical critic to say. Mackenzie's "Colomba" was promised, but even the quasi-novelty of this work in an Italian dress was denied to the subscribers and the public, the season dragging out to the end in the old style. The highly successful appearance of Miss Ella Russell must, however, be mentioned as one of the most interesting events, Mdlle. Giulia Valda having also been most favourably received, and Mdlle. Teodorini (although her voice has lost much of its freshness) being a really good and earnest artist. Of the baritone, Signor d'Andrade, too, we must speak in decided terms of praise. Of course, Madame Albani has been the main attraction, and Signor Gayarré, when he does not unduly force his voice, is still a satisfactory tenor, the appearance of M. Maurel, the French baritone, having given much strength to the cast of several operas. Signor Beviniani conducted with his accustomed ability, and little fault could be found with the orchestra and chorus, but the less said about the scenic arrangements the better.

During Mr. Carl Rosa's four weeks' season at Drury Lane Theatre he has not only sustained, but materially added to, the reputation already so legitimately won by careful management and steady perseverance in the good cause. His excellent company works so well together as to ensure a thoroughly satisfactory rendering of every opera given; and it is gratifying to find that those works of thin texture which for years have been presumed to represent the "English school" are no longer attractive. The energy shown by the lessee in producing a new opera especially written for the establishment by Mr. Mackenzie has been amply rewarded, and "The Troubadour" will now be added to a répertoire which is strengthened year by year. This work, which has brought some of the best houses of the season, has been fully noticed in our columns; and we have now only to award high praise for the discrimination with which the general programmes have been selected. In giving the names of the vocalists who have distinguished themselves during the season, we should in justice go through the list of those engaged; for the general effect, instead of the glorification of some special artists, is the principle which seems to animate every member of the company; and whatever may be the opera for the evening, therefore, the whole cast of the work, and not of parts of it, has evidently been carefully thought out.

The establishment of "Novello's Oratorio Concerts," under the able conductorship of Mr. A. C. Mackenzie, has proved one of the most important events of the season. The excellent rendering of some of the most exacting works by a choir trained in so brief a period has elicited universal praise, and there can be no doubt that this fine body of vocalists will now be regarded as a permanent institution of the Metropolis. The performance of Liszt's Oratorio "St. Elizabeth," in the presence of the composer, was not only in itself a brilliant success, but it has given an impetus to the desire for a more intimate knowledge of the other works of this writer, which cannot but prove beneficial to the cause of the advance of musical art. When, too, it is remembered that during the short season of these Concerts Mackenzie's "Rose of Sharon," Gounod's Oratorios "The Redemption" and "Mors et Vita," and "The Spectre's Bride" and "Stabat Mater" of Dvořák were given, not only with marvellous precision and accuracy, but with true dramatic feeling, both Mr. Mackenzie and the choir under his conductorship may be fairly said to have earned the thanks of all music-lovers. We are glad to hear that these Concerts will be resumed next season.

The growing appreciation of Gounod's Oratorios, "Mors et Vita" and "The Redemption," has been shown in a marked manner during the season, the first-named work having been performed, by command, before Her Majesty at the Royal Albert Hall, and the second selected for the May-day musical performance at the Crystal Palace, on the scale of the world-renowned Handel Festivals. Everybody will rejoice that the Queen has at length broken through her long retirement from public life; but musicians must feel additional gratification at the fact of her first appearance affording an undeniable evidence of her continued deep sympathy with the art. That "Mors et Vita" was finely rendered may be readily imagined when we say that the solo vocalists were almost the same as those who created the parts at Birmingham, and that the choruses were sung by Mr. Barnby's famous choir, under his own direction. So much has been written in commenting upon the great success of the Handel Festivals, as to the necessity of adhering to the works of this composer for these gigantic musical gatherings, that some doubt might reasonably have been felt as to the fitness of Gounod's "Redemption" for so vast a space, and for so large a choir and orchestra. The profound impression created by the performance, under the intelligent conductorship of Mr. Manns, has, however, conclusively proved that the fine choral effects in this work derive additional force from the multiplication of the executants; and there can be no doubt that, this fact being established, Handel will no longer be the only composer to whose honour a Crystal Palace Musical Festival will be dedicated.

The directors of the Philharmonic Society have every right to congratulate themselves upon the result of their exertions to sustain the prestige of the institution, for we are glad to find that the season has been sufficiently prosperous to render any call upon the guarantors unnecessary. The engagement of Sir Arthur Sullivan as Conductor of the Concerts was unquestionably a step in the right direction; but his influence upon the orchestra, although apparent from the time he assumed the bâton, has, especially during this season, raised the character of the performances to a height which defies the rivalry of any existing Society. The selection of works has, with the exception of an "Orchestral Scene" by Mr. Henry Gadsby, shown the usual absence of any recognition of the creative talent amongst our countrymen—a fact long thoroughly acknowledged at our provincial festivals, and even at other institutions in the Metropolis—but some few English works already stamped with public approval—notably, Mr. Prout's Birmingham Symphony in F—have been admitted. Apart from this, however, we have little fault to find with the programmes; for many former successes of foreign composers have been repeated, and a Suite by Moszkowski and a Symphony by Saint-Saëns given for the first time. Without stopping to discuss why these two composers should have been chosen to represent the existing Continental talent, we at least see and appreciate the desire on the part of the directors to draw forth new compositions, and sincerely hope that this policy will continue to guide their counsels in the future.

The Richter Concerts have this year brought forward three novelties, Brahms's Symphony in E minor, a selection from Dr. Villiers Stanford's incidental music to the "Eumenides," and a Symphony by Eugene d'Albert. The second act of "Tristan and Isolde" and the closing scene of "Siegfried" gave much importance to the sixth Concert, and the programmes throughout the season, although adhering perhaps somewhat too much to the old lines, were always interesting. The attendances have varied greatly; but at the sixth Concert the hall was densely packed.

The Sacred Harmonic Society, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Cummings, has given some excellent Concerts, Sir Sterndale Bennett's "Woman of Samaria" and Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Martyr of Antioch" being welcome items in the programme of the season, which was worthily concluded by a performance of Handel's "Belshazzar," the work selected last year to celebrate the bi-centenary of the composer's birth.

The Monday and Saturday Popular Concerts have derived additional interest this year from the engagement of Madame Schumann, who, despite the many pianists of mark now before the public, is always certain of a cordial reception by the whole of the English musical public. She returns to us with her powers unimpaired, and played a selection of works of the most varied character, including many almost indissolubly associated with her name. The return of Signor Piatti, too, after his severe accident, was an event of the utmost importance to the success of the Concerts, which, on the whole, have been excellent.

The Crystal Palace Concerts included, amongst the prominent performances of the season, an exceptionally fine rendering of Dvorák's Cantata, "The Spectre's Bride," with Novello's choir, and under the direction of Mr. Mackenzie, Madame Albani singing the whole of the soprano music. Gounod's "Mors et Vita" was also given with much success, the minute realisation of the composer's intention showing how carefully Mr. Manns had studied the score. The "Liszt Concert"—at which the great master's pupil, Herr Stavenhagen, produced such an effect—the performance of the Oratorio "St. Elizabeth," also in honour of our illustrious guest, with the Novello choir, and Mr. Mackenzie again at the conductor's desk, the presentation of Gounod's "Redemption" on May-day (already alluded to), and a number of the usual high-class Concerts, directed by Mr. Manns, have attracted large audiences to Sydenham, and made this in every respect a memorable season.

Mr. Henry Leslie has given three Concerts with his choir, and with such success as to warrant his continuation of these excellent performances as a portion of the regular musical attractions of the season. Some novelties were introduced; but the programmes were chiefly composed of established favourites, for which there is always an audience. Considering, however, that the solo vocalists were Madame Albani, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley, and the instrumentalists Herr Joachim, Madame Néruda, Mr. Charles Hallé, and M. de Pachmann, we may infer that Mr. Leslie has but small faith in the power of his choir to attract a paying audience. It must be mentioned that a graceful tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Joseph Maas (who made his début with this choir) was contained in the programme of the first Concert of the season—a composition, "In Memoriam," by Dr. J. F. Bridge.

The Royal Albert Hall Choral Society has thoroughly maintained its now firmly-established reputation. With the exception of Gounod's "Mors et Vita" and "Redemption," and Sullivan's Cantata "The Martyr of Antioch," the programmes have not included any modern works; but those for the rendering of which the choir has won such renown have been given with decisive success; and Mr. Barnby has a right to feel proud of the result of his unwearied exertions to maintain the character of the choir.

At the Concert of the Bach Choir Dr. Villiers Stanford made his first appearance as Conductor of the Society, in place of Mr. Otto Goldschmidt, and was warmly received. The rendering of Bach's Cantata, "Gott ist mein König," never before performed at these Concerts, fully maintained the high position of the choir, and Beethoven's rarely-heard Cantata "Elegischer Gesang" was an interesting novelty. From the success of this Concert there is every reason to believe that the stability of the Society is fully established.

We are glad to find that the enterprise of Mr. Austin in giving a series of "Patti Concerts," at the Royal Albert Hall, has been most liberally rewarded. The appearance of Madame Patti is always anxiously looked for during the London season; but such is now the state of the operatic stage that, had it not been for these excellent performances, it is extremely doubtful whether the wish would this year have been gratified. Apart from the attraction of Madame Patti, too, we may say that in every respect the programmes have reflected the utmost credit upon Mr. Austin's management, and we shall be pleased to welcome a renewal of such Concerts next season.

The Concerts given by the Russian Choir, under Mr. Slaviensky d'Agrenoff's direction, have been unquestionably one of the features of the season. The singing of this finely-trained body of vocalists has gradually grown upon the London public; and we doubt not will do much to foster a love for the national melodies of Russia. All interested in the subject should peruse an article in our present number, where the matter is treated at much length, and with minute historical details.

The interest created by the Cycle of Historical Recitals of Anton Rubinstein was unquestionably due, not only to his exceptionally fine performance, but to the extraordinary feat of playing from memory seven programmes containing the most exacting works of the representative composers of the world. Viewing such a herculean task as this simply according to its effect upon the art, we are by no means inclined to believe that it acts beneficially; for, apart from the tendency such exhibitions have to create a host of imitators, even from the ranks of our best pianists, the mere power of endurance, both on the part of the executant and audience, is too apt to be falsely held up to admiration as a convincing proof of the progress of musical culture. It is impossible to over-estimate so extraordinary a manifestation of natural gifts; but eight high-class Sonatas played at one Concert by one man are too much either for the performer or the listener to do the fullest justice to, and this truth should be fearlessly spoken by all who place the art before the artist. Mr. Rubinstein's remarkable series of performances, however, must not make us forget that Recitals by eminent, if not "sensational," artists have also been given, and with marked success. We may especially mention those by M. de Pachmann, Mr. Anton Hartvigson, Herr Bonawitz, Mr. Dannreuther, Mr. Oscar Beringer, Miss Agnes Zimmermann, Mr. Walter Bache, Herr Stavenhagen, Miss Fanny Davies, Mr. Frederic Lamond—the two last-named artists having, in one season, created a marked impression by their performance of the highest classical music—and also the excellent vocal Recitals of Mr. and Mrs. Henschel. To enumerate one half of the Concerts which have taken place during the season would be impossible, but Brinsmead's Symphony Concerts, the London Musical Society (under the conductorship of Mr. Barnby), which brought forward Dr. Villiers Stanford's Birmingham Oratorio "The Three Holy Children" for the first time in London, the Concerts of Señor Sarasate and Mr. Walter Bache, the Chamber Concerts of Herr Franke, Mdle. Wilhelmina Clauss (Madame Szarvady), Messrs. Willem Coenen, Victor Buziau, and Jules Lasserre, and of Madame Frickenhaus and Herr Ludwig, are entitled to favourable mention; excellent performances having also been given by the Borough of Hackney Choral Association (Mr. E. Prout), the Highbury Philharmonic Society (Dr. Bridge), the Tufnell Park Choral Society (Mr. W. H. Thomas), the St. George's Glee Union, Finsbury Choral Society, Bow and Bromley Institute, Crouch End Choral Society, and many others, which want of space only prevents our recording.

There is little to say respecting the music given at the opening of the Colonial Exhibition, native creative art having been represented by a short work, composed expressly for the occasion by Sir Arthur Sullivan, to some verses by Lord Tennyson, the rest of the programme consisting of the National Anthem, the "Hallelujah Chorus," "Rule, Britannia," and "Home, sweet home," the last-named composition being sung to perfection by Madame Albani. In state ceremonies, where it is now thoroughly understood that music must be introduced, we are too often reminded of some domestic ceremonies, where the poor relation must be invited. Everybody pays him just as much attention as etiquette demands; but the necessity, rather than the pleasure, of his presence seems to be tacitly admitted not only by the guests, but by the individual himself. The time may come when the claims of the art shall be duly acknowledged whenever and wherever it may form a portion of the proceedings; but there can be no doubt that at present, on such occasions as we refer to, it is only admitted on sufferance, and we must therefore be content with such recognition as surrounding circumstances will permit.

The "Handel Society"—a band of earnest amateurs, strengthened by a few professionals—deserves a passing word of praise, not so much for what it has done, as for what it promises. At the Concert, given in aid of the funds of the King's College Hospital, under the conductorship of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, the fact of Handel's Sixth Chandos Anthem being the only work by this composer in the programme sufficiently proves the absurdity of the title adopted by the Association. There is good material, however, in the Society; and if wisdom is shown in its management, a bright future may be secured.

The monument erected by subscription in St. Paul's Cathedral to the memory of Sir John Goss—designed by Mr. Belcher, and carved by Mr. Thornycroft—which was unveiled in May last before a large company of musicians, is indeed a fitting testimonial to the genius of one who worked conscientiously and earnestly during a long life in the service of the church. It should be placed on record that, owing to the generosity of Messrs. Belcher and Thornycroft, in making only a nominal charge for their valuable services, a small surplus was left, which it was decided should be devoted to the augmentation of the Goss Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, an institution which for many years received the benefit of his instruction and counsel.

The Concerts of the Musical Artists' Society continue to be highly interesting, many new works having been brought forward which, but for the existence of such an institution, might never have been heard beyond the drawing-rooms of their composers. The prize of twenty guineas for a Quartet of stringed instruments (offered by a lady member of the Society) was awarded to Mr. Algernon Ashton, who will doubtless, by the stimulus of this encouragement, be induced to continue a career in which he has already evidenced such decided talent.

Our educational Institutions—the Royal Academy of Music, Royal College of Music, Royal Normal College for the Blind, and many others—have held their usual Concerts for the exhibition of the pupils, the Royal Academy and Royal College this year, for the first time, having given dramatic performances by the students, which have successfully tested their powers, and may, we doubt not, have excellent results in the future.

The three meetings of the National Society of Professional Musicians, held in the Metropolis in the early part of the year, resulted in the carrying of a proposition that the institution "is entitled to hearty support." Although this virtually amounts to a vote of confidence in the Society, there can be little doubt that very much of its success in the future depends upon the manner in which those placed in authority discharge their onerous duties. At present the Society has made many friends and few enemies; but the tendency towards "trades' unionism" must be narrowly watched lest a bitterness of feeling engendered in many quarters by any action of this kind should at once arrest the growth of what might be a movement of the utmost importance to the progress of art. All earnest musicians must sympathise with the feelings which have prompted the organisers of this scheme, and will no doubt lend a helping hand, provided only that such aid is widely and liberally invited.

It must be mentioned, in proof of the increasing desire to deepen the effect of a religious service by the aid of the great sacred musical works, that on Ascension Day at Westminster Abbey the second and third parts of Gounod's "Mors et Vita," and Dr. Bridge's setting of Mr. Gladstone's version of the Hymn "Rock of Ages," were given, with full band and chorus, Madame Albani kindly lending her valuable services on the occasion (which was in aid of funds for the building of a chapel for the Westminster Hospital), and Dr. Bridge conducting. The Abbey was crowded, the service most impressive, and more than sufficient was realised to defray the expense of completing the chapel.

It is with much regret that we record the name of Mr. Joseph Maas, the eminent tenor, in our obituary of this year. The melancholy news came upon us so suddenly—his services having been secured for several forthcoming Concerts—that the shock became additionally painful, the widely-spread sympathy for his loss proving how highly his talents were appreciated by the musical public. Three accomplished and long established pianists—Mr. Brinley Richards, Mr. W. H. Holmes, and Mr. Harold Thomas—all professors of their instrument at the Royal Academy of Music, where they had received their education, have also passed away, leaving many records of good artistic work, both as teachers and composers. Miss Elizabeth Philp, the writer of several songs which obtained a certain popularity; Mrs. Merest, a retired vocalist, who, as Miss Maria B. Hawes, sang the contralto part in Mendelssohn's "Elijah" on its original production at Birmingham; Mr. John Templeton, a tenor singer, who appeared in operas with Madame Malibran in the zenith of her career; Mr. J. T. Willy, a violinist, some years ago holding a distinguished position in the profession; and Mr. Josiah Pittman, associated for many seasons with Italian Opera, both at Her Majesty's Theatre and Covent Garden, complete the list of prominent English artists who have died during the year. Extending our obituary to the Continent, we must name the following: At Milan, Amilcare Ponchielli, composer of the now celebrated opera "La Gioconda"; at Dresden, Gustav Adolph Merkel, a popular composer of organ and pianoforte music; at Berlin, Friedrich Kiel, the distinguished German composer; at Heidelberg, Ludwig Nohl, an able writer on musical history; at Nice, Marie Heilbron, the talented operatic singer; and at Paris, Théodore Ritter, an excellent pianist and composer.

As we have often said, the production of new works must be looked for at present out of the Metropolis, London, as a rule, only endorsing the verdict of provincial audiences. Important compositions will, no doubt, in time to come, be first heard in England's capital; but we have not yet shaken off our old-world notions, and had it not been for the enterprise of Mr. Carl Rosa, who commissioned Mr. Mackenzie to write an Opera for his brief London season, our record of any absolute novelty would indeed be meagre. Activity, however, has characterised the season throughout; and the rapidly increasing love for good music is so marked, both in the Concert-room and Opera-house, that we can have but little fear either for English art or English artists in the future.

RUSSIAN MUSIC.

By W. A. BARRETT.

AMONG other noteworthy events of the past season the visit of the Russian Choir to London should not pass unnoticed. When they gave their first Concert at St. James's Hall they were received by a very scanty audience. They were, however, encouraged by their reception, and repeated their performances there and at Drury Lane Theatre, and were classed among the lions of a season, the interest of which has been curtailed by political occurrences. Their style of singing is new to English ears, and is outside the range of all previous experiences. It opens up a long vista of enlightenment as to the manner in which vocal music is practised in the country to which the singers belong. Moreover, the airs which they perform fall "with strange cadence on the unaccustomed ear," and exercise a special fascination over the hearer, notwithstanding the peculiarities of their construction and treatment. Each of these matters has a particular interest for the musician, and may be well worthy of enquiry, more especially as so little is known on the subject in England. The advent of the Russian Choir was sudden, unannounced, and, to a certain extent, unexpected, so that those who are supposed to lead public opinion had little or no time to get up the subject, and astonish readers with a flood of hitherto concealed knowledge. The consequence was that the greater part of the ideas concerning themselves and their music was derived from their own statements, and these were far from complete, for they only quoted a few of the opinions of the press of France and Germany concerning their performances. There was, perhaps, on the one side, an advantage in the absence of information, inasmuch as the singers were judged upon their own merits, and according to the form of entertainment they presented. This was entirely strange to an English audience, and the charm of novelty was not to be overlooked. The information we possess in English concerning Russian music is of the scantiest description. There are, perhaps, not more than a dozen melodies of the country known in England, and these come to us through a German medium—"The Red Gown or Frock" (Krasny Sarafan), "Schöne Minka" (Bidu sobi kupila), and the like. These are known only as melodies. The verses with which they are associated in the place of their origin are for the most part unknown.

The Napoleonic wars at the beginning of the present century stirred a languid interest towards Muscovite affairs in certain English minds, and a "Collection of melodies, chiefly Russian, harmonised and arranged for the voice by E. S. Biggs, with words by Mrs. Opie, containing among others a ballad called 'The Cossack,' translated from the Ukrainian by Matthew Gregory Lewis," was published in London in 1800. Sixteen years later "The Russian Troubadour," a collection of Ukrainian melodies, with the words translated into English by the author of the German 'Erato,' interspersed with Russian songs, set to music by foreign masters, and translated by the same hand," was given to the world from the English metropolis. Neither of these collections attracted much attention. The desire to know anything of the National music of other countries did not exist. If it had, it is doubtful if either of these works would have been considered as satisfactory. Whether the poetry of these collections was or was not taken from genuine sources would be too troublesome to determine. The names of the originals are not always given, and even when they are they let in no light. There are very few Englishmen now who have studied Russian poetry and literature. The language is in fact so difficult that the generality of Russians think it easier to learn other tongues besides their own, in order to facilitate communication with foreign nations, and so meet the difficulty. Now while this act of courtesy is a distinct gain to the foreigner, it is a loss to the Russian, as it leaves a doubt as to whether there is any peculiar character in the literature of that people, which may be held to be worthy of study. The absence of knowledge concerning their music, for the mere acquaintance with a few tunes could hardly be dignified with the name of knowledge, while it is humiliating to the student, is also an injustice to the people of Russia. They possess a copious store of popular tunes, of a character distinctly musical and poetical, all testifying to the general love for the art among the several classes of society. The appearance of the Russian singers therefore affords an element of education, which might be profitably followed up and cultivated. It would not be an arduous task to trace the history of music in Russia, the growth of those forms of art-creations with which all the civilised world is familiar, for the simple reason that the majority of the trustworthy records of the art are of comparatively modern origin.

The cultivation of the "classical" in music has not been undertaken in obedience to a demand from the people, but rather because the Sovereigns and nobility of Russia have always affected a liking for foreign art and artists, derived in a great measure from the fashion set by the Czar Peter. The establishment of a regular theatre for lyrical performances dates from the year 1718 only, when the Countess Nathalie Alexejevna produced a tragedy, the music to which was supplied by an orchestra of Russian musicians. This was followed by the opening of a German theatre, in which instrumental music was made a feature of the entertainment. In 1737, the first Italian Opera was given in St. Petersburg. A temporary wooden structure was erected for the purpose, which lasted until 1749, when it was destroyed by fire. Two new theatres were built by the Czarina Elizabeth, one in the Isaak Street, in 1745, the other on the left bank of the Neva in 1750. Elizabeth, who was a great lover of art in general, and of music in particular, invited an Italian Opera Company to St. Petersburg, headed by the famous composer Francesco Araja, who wrote some operas to Russian words. The task of nationalising the style of music prevalent in other European countries, was further encouraged by the Empress Catherine II., and the work, so auspiciously commenced, was continued by Alexander Sumarokov, Galuppi, and Traetta. A Russian composer, Alexander Ablesimov, is credited with the adaptation of the French Vaudeville style to suit Russian views. Towards the end of the century, the cultivation of music became more general, and in 1772 the first musical club was established in St. Petersburg, where vocal and instrumental music was practised and encouraged.

On the death of Traetta, in 1776, he was succeeded by Paisiello. Giuseppe Sarti, Cimarosa, Lulli, Giornovich, and others helped to extend a love for the higher branches of music, both vocal and instrumental, as then cultivated. A number of operas were written to words in the national tongue, and many of these famous artists wrote songs in the style of the popular ditties.

It would be interesting to trace step by step this progress of music in Russia in all its branches, and to show how greatly the world has benefited by the labours of such artists as John Field, Charles Mayer, Hummel, Dussek, and others, who all received considerable encouragement in that country. The productions of Verstovsky and Glinka as national composers, the influence of Anton Rubinstein and his brother Nicolaus, the establishment of a Conservatoire of Music, are matters which deserve more extended treatment than can be given here. The course of time will show the value of the efforts of the many musicians of the modern school of Russia, Liadov, Naprovnik, Balakirev, Leschietzky, Tschai-kowsky, and others, some of whose compositions were presented by Rubinstein in the course of his recent Historical recitals. The earnestness of their labours all tend to prove the existence of an endeavour on the part of Russian musicians to become cosmopolitan in their more ambitious efforts, and to confine the expression of patriotism to an occasional scientific treatment of the existing popular songs.

The reader interested in matters only slightly referred to above will peruse with pleasure the "Histoire de la Musique en Russie," by Yusupov, a more recent work with a like title by César Cui, or the article on "Russische Musik," in the eighth volume of Hermann Mendel's "Musikalisches Conversations-Lexikon." These are the chief, if not the only, works which are available. It is not at all unlikely that there may be many books on the subject in Russian; but however great the thirst for knowledge may be, few students would have the courage to study the language to find out after all that in the higher grades of art Russia simply reflects the greater light of other European nations.

From her national and popular songs much more important and valuable lessons may be learnt. It is to be regretted, however, that all the researches which have been made with regard to the poetry and the historical records are sealed books to the majority of English scholars. The musical notes are written in the ordinary way, and can be understood and appreciated. Whether the words bear any reference to the musical characters, as a fit union of "sound with sense," is a different thing altogether, and cannot be affirmed with certainty. To know the worth of the songs would demand special knowledge of the people, their peculiar dialects, ethnological origin, and social habits. Hitherto, all that has been done in Russia towards this end is entirely closed, except to those who can read the language. The Russians are an enterprising, clever, and industrious people, and it would be a great gain to other nations if they were to adopt the plan they observe with regard to ordinary speech, and give in a more widely known language the result of their literary and musical investigations.

A better understanding would prevail, and perhaps it would be found that they are far more advanced in the arts of imagination and feeling than it is customary to give them credit for.

The quaintness and beauty of many of the pieces sung by the Russian Choir, and the numbers of others contained in various collections, all bear evidence of the value of their popular music. For the purpose of comparison with others, they deserve to be better known to English musicians. They may prove to be important links in the chain of evidence of a common origin.

Several of these national songs were sung by the Russian Choir on the occasion of their recent visit. The organiser, trainer, and leader of the Choir, Dmitri Slaviansky D'Agrenoff, is a scion of the old Russian nobility. He received his education at the University of Moscow, and in due time followed a military career in the Russian Imperial Hussar regiment. The love for music, which had been his consolation during his university and military occupations, predominated, and he abandoned all to follow the pursuit most agreeable to him. He learned singing under several Italian masters, and particularly with Pietro Romani, with the intention of pursuing the occupation of a vocalist. The study of the national music of his own country, in which he was aided and encouraged by his accomplished wife, suggested the idea of organising a choir to sing the ancient popular melodies, and so to inspire in others a similar love for them which he had acquired. The possession of a fine estate in Central Russia enabled him to carry out the design of establishing a school for choral singing based upon the foundation of the old Russian music he had collected. When his choir was sufficiently trained to perform in public he projected a tour in Europe and America, in the course of which he visited the capital of the United Kingdom. In addition to the concerts in the St. James's Hall, performances have been given at the National Theatre, Drury Lane, under distinguished patronage. During their stay in London the singers have had the honour also of appearing before the Royal Family. The programmes which they offered to the public consisted of three parts, each containing some half-a-dozen pieces. The first was selected from the historical songs which treat of Russian manners and customs, the second comprised sacred songs, and the third Russian popular songs.

All these possess peculiarities of character almost entirely confined to themselves, with certain general qualities which may be said to distinguish Russian music from among the art-creations of other European people.

The language is soft and not unpleasant to the ear, however strange it may be to the eye.

The music—sacred or secular—was sung with emphasis and expression, and with a large element of individuality. With the exception of certain operatic singers, Ivanoff, Rokitansky, De Reszke, and others who have appeared in London, and who make the proof of the rule, our ordinary British idea concerning Russian musical performances is not complimentary to the nation. When the Russian horn band made its appearance in England some forty years ago, all sorts of stories were in circulation. The mechanical accuracy with which the selection of pieces was played, the fixed earnestness of the players (each man's share in the performance being confined to the production of one note which was never missed), was said to have been obtained by the frequent use of the stick and the knout on the backs of the unhappy performers. There was therefore a strong feeling of commiseration mixed with the wonder their efforts excited, and the performances of the band, though attractive as a matter of curiosity, were never very popular because, wrongly or rightly, they were associated with a memory of cruelty. With Slaviansky's Choir nothing of the kind can be said to exist. The discipline is perfect it is true, but the exercise seems to bring a large amount of personal enjoyment to the performers. They delight in their songs, and their patriotic aspirations are indulged by the manner in which they appear before the public.

The several members of the choir are habited in the old national costumes of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, the accuracy of which must be taken, like the stated antiquity of some of their music, on trust. The effect was certainly quaint, striking, and picturesque. When singing, the choir is divided into two sections, in one of which the prevailing colour of the dresses was blue in many shades, and in the other red with a like variety. Those who were wise in such matters took much delight in the splendour of the embroidery on some of the costumes, especially on those worn by the leader and his wife and children. The stately manner in which the singers entered upon the platform at their Concerts was most effective. They approached, one by one, from the higher part of the two ends of the orchestra, and meeting in the middle marched solemnly down the steps to their appointed places. The procession was always ended by the chief and his wife. He, wearing the long robes of the ancient nobility, stood in the centre on a slightly raised dais, with his back to the choir and to the harmonium, which was occasionally used to give the chord and to accompany certain of the soli passages in the songs. These were sung in a manner as peculiar as the character of the songs themselves. Each verse was "precented," as it were, by M. Slaviansky, with a pleasant, well-trained voice, and guided by the gestures of his hand the choir took up the burden or chorus. Now in sonorous, resonant body of tone, full and loud, now diminishing to the most delicate pianissimo, the choir responding to the slightest movement of his hand or fingers. The effect was certainly most remarkable, especially when the individual character of the voices is taken into consideration. The sopranos, boys and females, did not always sing in tune; the contraltos were good, the tenors were coarse and unpleasant, especially in forte passages, but the basses astonished all hearers by the depth, extent, and power of their tones. There were one or two voices apparently employed solely for the purpose of "dropping in" deep notes at each concluding phrase. The resonance of the lower A, B flat, C, and sometimes G below, of sixteen-foot tone, like an organ "bearing a stiff bourdon, was never pipe of half so sweet a sound," as Chaucer says, suggested the employment of other means than the "human voice divine." They were, however, good and true notes given by one or two of the singers who were for the most part silent in all other portions of the songs.

The weird effect of the harmonies they sang was increased by progressions of fifths and octaves, occasionally in sequences, which made many English musicians shudder with horror. Whether these effects are national or adventitious, it boots not to enquire; they were chiefly heard in the secular pieces. They suggested a form of treatment of a rudimentary kind, less archaic than unskilful. Their sacred music was more scientific in pretension, though less attractive in effect. It must be understood that in this section of the programme there were no pieces of very high antiquity. Some of the hymns had been harmonised by Madame Olga Slaviansky, and the greater part of the others was composed by Dmitri Stepanovitch Bortniansky, a Russian composer, born in 1751, who studied music with Galuppi, in Venice, and who devoted his talents to the revision of the ancient music, and the composition of new works for the use of the Russian church. He died on the 28th September, according to the old style still in vogue in Russia, or, as we reckon, on the 9th of October, 1825, aged seventy-four. He did much towards improving the style of music employed by the church, and his name is deservedly held in high estimation by all Russian musicians.

Amongst the historical songs performed were heroic poems about the celebrated giants Sviatogor, Dobrynia Nikitich, and other personages of early times, who are as familiar to the youth of Russia as the Seven Champions of Christendom, Jack, the giant killer, Guy, Earl of Warwick, King Arthur and his knights, and other heroes of the past more or less real or traditional. There are also country songs relating to national appearances, such as "Nie biely snieg" (The white snow in the fields), "Zaria Vetchernaia" (The setting sun), and so forth. Joking songs, whose elements of humour are greatly diluted by the medium through which they are presented; songs of games, such as the Horodvodnaia, the dialogues and fortune-telling song, associated with the ancient game of hiding the ring, which Mr. Goring Thomas has introduced so effectively in his Opera "Nadeshda." The game of "Hunt the Slipper" is its British parallel, but unlike its Russian counterpart, it is not accompanied by song. Then there are other dancing songs, such as are represented by the "Kamarinskaia," and "Kak oo nashih oo vorot" (In front of our gate), also included in the list of popular songs, such as the "Krasny sarafan," already known in England. Many of these melodies seem to have been artificially compounded, and betray the influence of the music of other people in their construction. The most interesting are those which bear internal evidence of having originated with a people among whom civilisation had not made great advances. A large number of the airs have a very limited compass, probably derived from the primitive musical instruments in ordinary use, such as the goudok or Russian fiddle, the gousli, the kobza or bandura, a sort of rudimentary guitar, and the bala-laika. The instruments are still in occasional, though not in general, use. The last popular performer upon the kobza in the Ukraine was an old blind minstrel known as Ostap Veresai, who was a living repository of ancient tunes, some of which have been preserved in the biographical notices of him written by N. V. Lisenka and A. A. Rusof.

Several of the songs of the lower classes are actually composed within the limit of a fifth. Rochlitz, who had the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the songs of the serfs of the Russian merchants who visited the annual fair at Leipzig, states that the tonic and dominant were the most prevalent intervals, the intermediate notes of the song, whether in the major or minor mode, were, as it were, glided over. One of the Russian tunes best known in England, that which forms the final movement in the old Lancers quadrilles, is within the compass of a fifth, according to its original form:—

"Schöne Minka" is also limited in extent, and a large number of songs in the collections of Pratch, Kocipinski, Lisenko, and Bernard, are within the like modest range. Some are even within the compass of a fourth. The following is a specimen—

OE NAV VEAININLINH.

One of the most effective of the old sacred songs in the programme of the Russian Choir was the ancient hymn "Slava" with this subject—

In some of the printed books the second note is printed as E, but this increases the range and alters the character of the melody.

There are, of course, a number of songs, especially those of the Ukraines, which are of much greater extent, but the majority seem to be confined within the octave, the Polish and gipsy songs excepted. These are spread over a wide range like some of the Scottish melodies, and appear to owe their origin to instruments rather than to any special regard for the compass of the human voice.

These songs are chiefly in the minor mode, and one peculiarity of Russian popular melodies will not fail to strike the student as an instance of departure from the construction of songs elsewhere. It is by no means uncommon in popular songs of all countries to find minor songs ending with a major chord. Out of a hundred tunes selected at random from various collections only one minor song ends in the major, while there are at least a dozen major songs which end in the minor, a peculiarity which is only found in Asiatic airs and in a few Irish melodies. The Pentatonic scale, characteristic of tunes derived from Eastern sources, does not seem to have influenced the construction of many of the songs, though there are traces of the scale in a few. They are not sufficiently marked, however, to form a distinct category.

The limited compass of the popular melodies is extensive compared with some of the "standard songs" of the Russian Church. There are many which are restricted to a scale, if it may be so called, or more properly an ambitus, of three notes. These are sung in a kind of recitative, without accent, emphasis, rhythm, or time. The effect to Russian ears is no more monotonous than certain portions of the plain-song employed in the Latin Church for Versicles and Responses.

M. Slaviavsky's Russian singers did not present any specimens of this sort of melody in their selections of sacred music. Their extracts were taken from comparatively modern composers, as already pointed out. They were probably influenced by expediency in this matter, for it is doubtful whether the more ancient pieces could have had any interest for hearers not acquainted with the traditions and associations of the Church to which they belong.

From a musical point of view they have nothing attractive. The Russian Church has been singularly inactive in the encouragement of progress in musical art. It seems to have been content with the legacy left by the early Christian fathers. For a long time the old Greek notation of Neumes was employed for written music in many places, and their plain song is a modification of that of the Roman Church. The sacred music sung by M. Slaviavsky's Choir belongs to the Italian school of art of the last century, unimproved by any salient features which may serve to distinguish it as national.

Unlike the music of the Anglican Church, which reflects in its various periods many of the outside influences affecting the art, the greater part of Russian sacred music, preserves most of the features which distinguished the style of generations long past, and therefore the attractions it possesses are such as would commend it chiefly to antiquarians.

Secular music, as represented in the popular songs, has many charms, which awaken the attention and the admiration of others than those for whom they were written, and among whom they are popular. They originated with the Russian people, but they are not deficient in those qualities which command general attention. The eminent scholar, Mr. W. R. S. Ralston, has shown in his versions of Russian popular tales many similarities which exist between them and the traditional stories of other European countries. A more extended knowledge of Russian popular songs, words, and music might tend to display other points of resemblance hitherto unsuspected. The songs tell of a strong underlying current of humanity, even though we know that the people among whom they originated were in a state of serfdom until within the last thirty years. There is a simplicity and naturalness in the diction of many of the popular poems which is characteristic. The strong national feeling and spirit which absorbs all minor elements is conspicuous in the poetry of the people from the earliest times. Notwithstanding the trials and troubles of their condition, both social and political, hope and consolation were derived from the ballads concerning Vladimir, who lived in the twelfth century, and whom they regard as a sort of King Arthur and Charlemagne combined. These ballads, like those of Great Britain, were derived chiefly from tradition, and are not always to be traced to known authors.

In dealing with the peculiarities of Russian song it must be remembered that the country is wide and vast and composed of many races and kindreds. Each of these has its idiosyncrasies, but the efforts of the literary men of the country from time to time have had the effect of inspiring in all the tribes one general spirit of patriotism. This pervades many of the popular songs from whatever race they spring or by whom they are preserved. In the programmes of the Russian Choir there were songs from various parts of the Empire. The lines of distinction do not seem to be so strongly marked as among ourselves in the United Kingdom where all speak the same nominal tongue. Everyone knows that there are strong points of difference between the songs of England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales. Everyone knows also that the admirers of the songs of the several races claim for them individualities which do not always exist. Hence, when a tune appeals with equal force to either people, and words have been set by natives of the different kingdoms, they have been claimed as having originated among the people with whom they have become popular, because of the successful union of words and melody. The bitterness of controversy which is excited by various claimants is increased by the want of confidence in each other, and the absence of organised research. Most of the collections of British songs that have been made are due to private enterprise, and the pursuit of amiable hobbies.

One of the best collections of old English ballads has been made by an American, Professor F. J. Child, of Harvard University. It would be pleasant to see a little of the patriotic unity among ourselves which exists in Russia with regard to the collection and preservation of popular songs and melodies. The Government of every other European country has encouraged and supported the gathering together and the publication of these simple relics. They are all wiser in this matter than we are, even though many of the nations cannot boast of the treasures we are known to possess in these things. With the exception of Mr. William Chappell, whose name and efforts must be mentioned with the greatest honour, no living musician or literary man has made any serious attempt to rescue our ancient English ballads from oblivion. Those who are interested in the subject may read with profit the valuable essay on "The Literature of National Music," by the late Carl Engel (London: Novello, Ewer and Co.), 1879. Therein may be seen long lists of collections of popular songs, made, in most cases, at the instance and expense of the Government of the several European countries. The list of British publications is proportionately scant, and, to a certain extent, lacking in general nationality.

The number of books of Russian national melodies alone is large, and might be referred to as an incentive to ourselves to redeem our reproach among nations, by gathering together all that can be saved of the effusions of a people who have cultivated, encouraged, and loved the art of music and its practitioners from the earliest ages of history.

Most of the popular Russian songs were written in the old Slavic church-tongue or dialect, so called because the monasteries were the centres of their production. After a while, it is said that the Polish element prevailed in literature until Peter the Great made his native tongue the universal medium of communication in speech and writing. After the death of Peter, the first writer who exercised the strongest influence upon Russian literature was Lomonossow, "who drew the lines of distinction sharply between old Slavic and Russian, and established the literary supremacy of the dialect of Great Russia." Many writers of poems and plays followed, who rendered great service in the development of literature, including Derzavin, the first popular Russian poet. He was born at Kasan, July 3, 1743, and died July 8, 1816. He excelled in loftiness of idea, purity of sentiment, and rich vigour of language; in fact, the latter quality at times manifests itself in an Oriental extravagance of imagery which the older fancy of the west fails to appreciate. Some of his poems have been translated into English and other European tongues.

The district of the Ukraine is considered the most fertile in Russia as concerns the number and variety of national melodies. Kocipinski has collected and published more than a hundred airs sung in Podolia and the Ukraine. His work, bearing the cacophonous title of "Pisni, Dumki, i Szumki Ruskohe," was published in 1861. Unfortunately, the editor seemed anxious to invest the simple and beautiful melodies with elaborate pianoforte accompaniments, so as to exhibit his skill rather than his taste. The other Slavonic races besides the Russians, such as the Poles, Czechs, Wendes, Serbes, and so on, have a multitude of beautiful melodies, many of which have been collected and published. Out of these Dmitri Slaviansky D'Agrenoff composed his programmes of popular and historical songs. Those who were present at the performances will not forget the impression made by such ditties as "Podoshdee moia Krasotka" (Stay, my white dove), "Priliteli sokoly" (The marriage song), all about match-makers, or that beginning "Otchy, otchy goloobyia" (Beautiful blue eyes), and one or two more whose titles are curiosities of unscannable syllables, all the productions of—

Some Russian words dissonant, consonant name
Almost shatters to fragments the trumpet of fame.—
MOORE.

When Alexander I. mounted the throne, at the beginning of the present century, he gave the greatest possible encouragement to education. He increased the number of the Universities to seven, extended the list of learned Societies, and protected Karamsin, the poet and historian, who in his writings endeavoured to free literature from the trammels of the pseudo-classicism into which it had fallen by the efforts of the imitators of Lomonossow. The purely poetical element which all strove to impart to the popular traditions and sentiments was varied by the labours of the great comic poet Shachovskii, Glinka, Prince Viasemskii, one of the most fertile of the song-writers of Russia, with Krylov and others of the fabulists of the country. The tendency of all these writers was to foster the influence, and awaken the spirit of nationality among the Russian people. The brightest light among these literary stars is Pushkin (1799-1832), the Russian Byron, whose poems are said to mirror Russian life, and to reflect the joys, the sorrows, the humour, and the patriotism of the true Russian. His contemporaries and successors, Baratynskii, Baron Delvig, Benediktov, Podolinski, Lermontov, and certain of the dramatists, all contribute to the maintenance of the patriotic principles and domestic virtue. The stories of the Cossacks, written for the most part in the dialect of Little Russia, form an extensive literature and indirectly affect the character of the songs of the people. Several of these folk-songs have been collected by Novikov, Kashin, Maximovitch, Makarow, and others. These collections contain the verses only. Many of them are said to be of the remotest antiquity. This statement must be accepted until proof comes to the contrary. Proof from better knowledge of the music may be traced in the collections of Michaelow Tchulkow (St. Petersburg, 1770-88), Michailow Popow (Moscow, 1810), Baikow (St. Petersburg, 1814), Schakowsky, Pratsch, Kocipinski, Karpenko, Edlichka, Barnard, Gerstenberg, Ditmar, Dalmas, Halahan, Lisanko, and others.

The Russians have reason to be proud of the number, variety, and beauty of their popular songs. In them will be found a greater charm of rhythm and melody than can be discovered in their more scientific productions, because they reproduce as far as possible the true musical sentiments of the people. They show the patriotism of the nation in the best light at present, for with them science is in too rudimentary a condition to bear profitable or lasting fruit.

The collection by Pratsch, which is one of the most important, was first published in 1790, in one octavo volume. A second edition, in two quarto volumes, appeared in 1806, and a third augmented edition in 1815. It is called a "Repertory of national song, with pianoforte accompaniments," by Iwan Pratsch. These accompaniments are of the simplest kind, and in no way spoil the character of the melodies. There is a short essay on popular music by way of preface which was written by Lvoff, the father of the composer of the Russian National Hymn, of which more anon. Pratsch's collection was preceded by a publication issued in Moscow and St. Petersburg in 1780 without notes, a later edition with melodies only appearing in 1796. An anonymous collection in 1817, issued in Moscow, brought forward other songs of great Russia not included in previous books. Then Danilo Kasny in 1830 published at Moscow a collection with pianoforte accompaniments. This, like the publications of Gurianow (Moscow, 1835), of Sacharow (St. Petersburg, 1838-9), Studitsky (St. Petersburg, 1841), seems to be arranged to exhibit the skill of the adaptors rather than to bring out the characteristic qualities of the songs.

In this elaboration may be discerned one of the weakest phases of Russian patriotism, for the common songs of the people, whether Muscovite or other, will not bear artificiality of treatment. The Russian musicians who have done these things may be commended for their good intentions, but, at the same time, it cannot but be regretted that they should have spent time and labour in doing that which was foreign to the nature of the subject with which they chose to deal.

National songs should be treated in a manner conformable to their simplicity, for, as a rule, simplicity is the principle upon which most of the true popular songs are made. The author may or may not have been a skilled musician. His work was the concentration of a popular idea. It was accepted, adopted, and became national. The folk-songs, as sung by Slaviansky's Choir, are more truly national than the sacred music, or the so-called Russian National Anthem. This was written to order, and so little inspiration was the composer Lvoff able to command, that his work was compounded of the "Sicilian Mariner's Hymn" and Haynes Bayly's "I'd be a butterfly." The true national soul may be found reflected in the popular songs, and these should be studied by those who wish to read the character of the Russian people in a right and just spirit. This knowledge can only be initiated by the help of the Russians themselves. Let them give in attainable language some extracts and histories of their national ditties. The world, which at present only knows the people as an artificial race, nourished on artistic food derived from foreign sources, will then perhaps entertain changed opinions concerning them. At all events, let them express one phase of their enterprising character in extending a knowledge of the treasures of their people's songs. Such a "Russian encroachment" in the territory of literature would excite neither resistance nor indignation.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

NO. XVIII.—SCHUBERT (continued from page 394).

WE saw, last month, how Schubert's luck, good or ill, barred him from two appointments, either of which would have raised him above the necessity of living "from hand to mouth." Good or ill—how was it? Kreissle says:—"We cannot help thinking that, had Schubert succeeded in obtaining the post (at the Kärnthnerthor) he would not have kept it for any length of time, as he lacked nearly all the requisite qualifications for such a duty, and his restless creative spirit would rather have hindered than helped him in the fitting discharge of the duties incidental to his office. If one would think of Schubert as connected with any settled habits of official life, it can only be in the capacity of Court organist, a post for which he was perfectly fitted, and which, sooner or later, would have paved the way to a Deputy Court-Capellmeistership, which duty he might also have discharged with ease and comfort to himself. A longing for perfect independence (according to Josef Huttenbrenner) led him to reject the chance that was held out to him, and when at last the wish awoke within him to procure a certain means of livelihood by the acceptance of office, so as not exclusively to depend upon the somewhat precarious sale of his compositions, circumstances had changed to his prejudice, and he was, this time against his will, restored to his former freedom." We cannot help thinking that a "crust of bread and liberty" suited him best, especially in the exercise of his genius. So thorough-paced a Bohemian would either have resented all restraint and gone back, like an escaped bird, to his old haunts, or he would have fallen into routine and the perfunctoriness with which most men discharge uncongenial duties. He was happiest in his happy-go-lucky mode of life, and that rather increased than waned in careless ease as years went on. Apropos, Sir George Grove summarises an article by Bauernfeld—one of our master's boon companions—in the following terms:—

"A league or partnership was made between himself (Bauernfeld), Schwind, the painter, and Schubert. They had nominally their own lodgings, but often slept altogether in the room of one. The affection between them was extraordinary. Schubert used to call Schwind 'seine Geliebte!' A kind of common property was established in clothes and money; hats, coats, boots, and cravats were worn in common, and the one who was in cash paid the score of the others. As Schwind and Bauernfeld were considerably younger than Schubert, that duty naturally fell on him. When he had sold a piece of music he seemed to this happy trio to 'swim in money,' which was then spent right and left in the most reckless manner, till it was all gone, and the period of reverse came. Under these circumstances, life was a series of fluctuations, in which the party were never rich, and often very poor. On one occasion, Bauernfeld and Schubert met in a coffee house near the Kärnthner theatre, and each detected the other in ordering a melange (café au lait) and biscuits, because neither had the money to pay for a dinner. And this in Schubert's 29th year, when he had already written immortal works sufficient to make a good livelihood! Outside the circle of this trio were a number of other young people, artists and literary men, Schober, Jenger, Kupelweiser, &c., attracted by Schubert's genius, good nature, and love of fun, and all more or less profiting by the generosity of one who never knew what it was to deny a friend. The evenings of this jolly company were usually passed in the Gasthaus, and then they would wander about till daybreak drove them to their several quarters, or to the room of one of the party. It would be absurd to judge Vienna manners from an English point of view. The Gasthaus took the place of a modern club, and the drink consumed probably did not much exceed that which some distinguished Vienna artists now imbibe night after night, and does not imply the excess that it would infallibly lead to in a Northern climate; but it must be obvious that few constitutions could stand such racket, and that the exertion of thus trying his strength by night and his brain by day must have been more than any frame could stand. In fact, his health did not stand the wear and tear."

We may be sorry for it, but undoubtedly the kind of life pictured by Bauernfeld was that which Schubert loved, and apart from which he was not happy. How could such a man reconcile himself to the hum-drum round that constitutes "respectability"? It was impossible without a radical change of nature. "Better to reign in a Gasthaus," Schubert would have said, "than serve in a Court."

Reference has been made to the master's dealings with publishers about this time, and here it may be well to say that growing reputation had given him a certain position of advantage in bargaining with those gentlemen. Schott, of Mayence, and Probst, of Leipzig, were fairly liberal customers for the more popular class of his works, but they often begged him to write more easy music than was his wont. An extant letter from Probst says: "I most cheerfully offer my best services towards helping on, as best I can, the spread of your artistic reputation. Only I must candidly confess to you that your often genial, but at the same time occasionally eccentric, efforts are not as yet sufficiently and universally understood by our public. . . Some carefully selected Lieder, some pianoforte works, for two and four hands, not too difficult, and written in an understandable fashion, would, I think, answer your purpose and my wishes. When once the ice is broken, all will go well and easily; at the outset we must, to some extent, humour the public." Schubert may have chafed a little at being asked to write down to the average comprehension, but Probst's letter was assuredly more acceptable than the response of Breitkopf and Härtel—the firm now engaged in bringing out a complete edition of his works. These publishers, after professing a desire to establish cordial and mutual relations, &c., went on to say: "But not being as yet acquainted with the marketable success of your compositions, and unable, in consequence, to make any definite pecuniary offer, we must leave it to you whether, in order possibly to found a lasting connection between us, you will facilitate matters, and, for the first work or first works you purpose sending us, you will be content to receive in return a certain number of copies. We do not doubt of your consent to this arrangement, as you, like ourselves, will attach more value to the introduction of a permanent connection than the publication of any particular work." It is doubtful whether Schubert fully appreciated this business-like caution, but, indeed, his best dealings with publishers were unsatisfactory in the sense that he had to put up with miserably inadequate remuneration. At one time he was paid no more than ten francs for a song and twelve francs for a pianoforte piece, while, in the last year of his life, Franz Lachner took six of the "Winterreise" Lieder to Haslinger, and brought back just five shillings, which was all the man of commerce would give.

The close of the year 1826 brought to Schubert what must have been a very gratifying proof of esteem and admiration. The Amateur Society of Vienna presented him with a hundred gulden and an address, which has been thus translated:—

"You have given the Society of Amateurs of the Imperial city repeated proofs of your sympathy, and the interest you take in its welfare, and devoted your distinguished talents as a composer to the benefit of this institution, and you have also been a special benefactor to the Conservatorium. The Society, capable of appreciating the full value of your remarkable powers as a composer, wish to convey to you some appropriate token of its gratitude and esteem, and begs your acceptance of the enclosed present, not as a payment, but as an acknowledgment on the part of the Society of the obligations it is under to you for the zeal and interest you have taken in its welfare."

A hundred gulden! Why this was the market price of a hundred songs! Surely there were "high jinks" at Schubert's lodgings for some days.

The year 1827 passed, as far as its autumn time, without any striking event. But Schubert was busy enough with a variety of compositions, among them the "Winterreise" set of songs, Klopstock's "Battle Song," and an opera, "Graf von Gleichen," which, however, got no farther than a sketch. One or two glimpses of the man are obtained through the records of his friends, and through Ferdinand Hiller, who met Schubert and Vogl in society. Schubert, according to Hiller, had little technique as a pianist, and Vogl had little voice, "but they had both so much life and feeling, and went so thoroughly into the thing, that it would be impossible to render these wonderful compositions more clearly and more splendidly. Voice and piano became as nothing, the music seemed to want no material help, but the melodies appealed to the ear, as a vision does to the eye."

We now come to Schubert's last excursion from his native city. This took place in September, 1827, and was made to Gratz, where resided a very musical family named Pachler. The head of the house, Carl Pachler, was an advocate by profession, but also carried on business as a brewer, and "ran" an hotel. His wife, Maria, is spoken of as a woman of great beauty and accomplishments. Beethoven himself praised her performances of his Pianoforte Sonatas, and became so friendly with the household that he would have visited them in 1827 but for his last illness and death. The Pachlers were hospitable folk, and loved to receive artists under their roof. Hence it is no wonder that we find them anxious to entertain Schubert long before that privilege fell to their lot. The master, it would seem, had promised to go in 1826, and his friend Jenger wrote very confidently to Madame Pachler on the point: "I may possibly leave in the autumn, but if not our friend Schubert at all events, and the painter Teltscher will, my dear Madame, put in an appearance." But Schubert clung to Vienna, and the next time Jenger wrote he was less positive: "Friend Schubert has determined on travelling to Gratz next year, but if I don't accompany him the plan is sure to fall through, as it did this year." On another occasion he said: "Schubert, without knowing you, gracious lady, sends you every assurance of his devotion, and is delighted to make the acquaintance of so earnest a worshipper of Beethoven. God grant that our unanimous wish to come to Gratz this year may be fulfilled." Once more he wrote: "The best plan, I think, would be to set out for Gratz at the beginning of the month of September. I am sure to bring Schubert with me, and also a second friend, Teltscher, the lithographer." Presently (June 12) Schubert himself despatched a letter to Madame Pachler:—

"Most gracious Lady,—Although I am at a loss to understand my deserving at your hands the friendly invitation forwarded to me in a letter sent to Jenger, and without ever supposing it will be in my power to make any sort of return for your kindness, yet I cannot but accept an invitation which will not only enable me at last to see Gratz, the praises of which place have become so familiar to me, but also to have the honour of becoming personally acquainted with you. I remain, with every sentiment of respect, your most obedient servant,—FRANZ SCHUBERT."

From other letters we gather that the two friends looked forward eagerly to their Styrian trip. "We will once again live on music," wrote Jenger to his prospective hostess, "and Schubert shall intertwine with our musical garlands many a new and dainty Liedchen." The friends left Vienna on September 2, and arrived at their destination in the evening of the following day—so late in the evening that Master Faust Pachler, a boy of seven and the only child of the house, had been sent to bed despite his entreaties to sit up and welcome the guests. When Faust looked upon Schubert next morning he saw a fat man in a green coat and white trousers. There were many junketings in and around Gratz during the next three weeks. Pic-nics and excursions were organised, flirtations indulged in, much wine was drunk, especially by the visitors, and a good deal of music made. This exactly suited Schubert, whose cheerful mood can be gathered from the number of dance pieces he wrote during his stay. He and Jenger were back again in Vienna by the 27th, for that is the date of a letter in which the last named thanked their hostess for her kindness: "We can never forget that kindness—it is unlikely we should, for Schubert and I seldom have passed such happy days as we did in dear Gratz, and notably at Wildbach, among the dear good people there." He finds

Vienna and work very disagreeable by contrast with holiday making: "I can't say matters are very cheerful here as yet, seeing that I must pull away like a galley slave, and yet I cannot get on or make any progress. Compared with the twenty days just passed, it is scarcely bearable, and yet, I suppose, all will come right again." Schubert seems to have been much of the same mind, and we find him writing to Herr Pachler in terms suggestive of the spleen:—

"Honoured Sir,—I begin to find out already that I was far too happy and comfortable in Gratz, and that Vienna and I don't exactly suit one another. Certainly it is rather big, but on that account empty of all heart, sincerity, candour, genuine thoughts and feeling, rational talk, and utterly lacking in intellectual achievements. One cannot ascertain exactly whether people are clever or stupid, there's such a deal of petty, poor gossip—real cheerfulness one seldom, if ever, comes across. It is very possible, no doubt, that I have myself to blame, being so very slow in the art of thawing. In Gratz I soon learned to appreciate the absence of all artifice and conventional ways; had I stayed longer I should, of course, have been more profoundly penetrated with the happiness of such perfect freedom from all restraint. Coming to particulars, I shall never forget the happy time passed with your dear wife, the sturdy Pachleros, and the small Faust. These were the happiest days I have passed for a long time. In the hope of my being able some day to express my gratitude in a fitting manner, I remain, with the greatest respect, yours most obediently,—FRANZ SCHUBERT."

This letter throws a strong light upon the causes which led Schubert to pass his life in the manner before described. Constraint and conventionality he abominated, society manners he had none, and society itself was a "make-believe" from which the strong sincerity of his nature revolted. He took into manhood the frankness and freedom of a child, and was most happy where he was permitted to be least formal. Schubert made all possible return to his Gratz friends for the three weeks of enjoyment they had given him. He composed a little piece for young Faust, and dedicated to Madame Pachler the set of four songs (Op 106) in which "Sylvia" appears.

Schubert set to work with ardour after his holiday, although complaining of pains in the head, significant of the nervous exhaustion which so quickly killed him. He finished the "Winterreise" in October, and wrote the B flat Trio; in November he composed the Trio in E flat, and, before the end of the year, had produced the "German Mass," six Impromptus for the pianoforte, and some smaller things. "The year 1827," writes Kreissle, "may be reckoned among the happiest periods of Schubert's life and progress. Penetrated with a lofty consciousness of his mission as a great art-creator, he aspired to more exalted efforts, as we gather from the larger works of this date, and he experienced, for the last time, the happiness of a free, unfettered enjoyment of nature's beauties and the attraction of simple friendly companions, who met him half-way with entire abandonment of ceremony and conventional restraints." Unhappily, the charm of this was but as the charm of a beautiful sunset—the flaming splendour that precedes night.

The last ten months of Schubert's life were spent in extreme activity, at the proofs of which we are lost in wonder and admiration. Sir George Grove has made a complete list of his compositions during that period, and we cannot resist transcribing it here, that the reader may have before him evidence the most conclusive of our master's marvellous spontaneity. In January only two songs were written—

"Die Sterne" and "Der Winterabend." Nothing was done in February, but March saw the production of the great Symphony in C (if that be not an amended edition of the Gastein Symphony), "Miriam's Siegesgesang," and the song "Auf dem Stron," for voice and horn. The list for May is made up of the pianoforte Duet (Op. 144), the "Hymn to the Holy Ghost," two pianoforte pieces, and the song "Widerschein." In June the Mass in E flat, the Pianoforte Duet (Op. 152), and the four-handed Rondeau (Op. 107) were either begun or completed. July witnessed the creation of "Psalm ninety-two"; August the "Schwanengesang"; September the Pianoforte Sonatas in C minor, A major, and B flat; October brought forth the last number of the "Schwanengesang," a new "Benedictus" to the Mass in C, and a song for voice and clarinet, "Der Hirt auf den Felsen," while to one or other of these months must be assigned the string Quintet in C. Looking at the number and character of these works, it is hardly surprising that the composer broke down and died. What other result could be expected than a complete exhaustion of nervous force? But in the midst of superhuman labour he had time to concern himself about another trip to Gratz, regarding which more anon, and also to exert himself on behalf of his brother, Karl, who was candidate for a drawing-master's place in the Styrian town. To obtain influence for his relative, Schubert wrote both to Hüttenbrenner and Pachtel. The letter to the first named is now in the British Museum, and has been translated thus:—

"My dear old Hüttenbrenner,—You will wonder at my writing now. So do I. But if I write it is because I am to get something by it. Now, just listen. A drawing-master's place near you at Gratz is vacant, and competition is invited. My brother, Karl, whom you probably know, wishes to get the place. He is very clever, both as a landscape painter and a draughtsman. If you could do anything for him in the matter I should be eternally obliged to you. You are a great man in Gratz, and probably know some one in authority, or some one else who has a vote. My brother is married and has a family, and would therefore be glad to obtain a permanent appointment. I hope that things are all right with you, as with your dear family and your brothers. A Trio of mine, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, has lately been performed by Schuppanzigh, and was much liked. It was splendidly executed by Schuppanzigh, Boklet, and Link. Have you done nothing new? Appropos, why doesn't Greiner, or whatever his name is, publish the two songs? What's the reason? Sapperment! I repeat my request. Recollect what you do for my brother you do for me. Hoping for a favourable answer, I remain, your true friend till death,—FRANZ SCHUBERT, Mpi., of Vienna."

Whether Karl's candidature was successful or the reverse does not appear, but Franz certainly, about this time, began to taste the sweets of popularity. Instead of looking for a publisher, he had the satisfaction of seeing publishers come to him, cap in hand, begging for his manuscripts. Among them was cautious Herr Probst, of Leipzig, who wrote:—

"Have the goodness when you have finished anything successfully—song, romance, vocal concerted piece, I care not what it be—to let me have them; send me also some pieces for four hands in the same genre. . . With regard to the honorarium, we shall soon come to terms on that point. I only desire to be met fairly; you will find me straightforward and honest in my dealings as long as your works are such that I can take a genuine delight in them myself. . . I most solemnly assure you that you shall have no cause to repent, should you honour me with your friendly confidence, and, by a careful selection of your best compositions, give me an opportunity of working zealously for your reputation."

Schott's Söhne were also among the applicants. In writing for a catalogue of the MSS. Schubert had by him, they said: "Pianoforte works or vocal pieces, either solo or concerted, with or without pianoforte accompaniment, will always be welcomed by us. Be good enough to fix your terms of payment (not rod. per song now) and we will have you paid at Vienna." Schubert sent the catalogue asked for, whereupon the Mayence firm marked eight works, including the Pianoforte Trio in B flat, and added: "These we will publish by degrees and put out as soon as possible, and afterwards ask you for your more recently composed music." Brüggemann of Halberstadt also wrote for contributions to a musical magazine. He said: "Should you be inclined to fulfil the wish herein expressed, let me ask you to send an affirmative answer as soon as you can, and your terms as to payment, which shall always be made punctually and promptly." So did material evidence of public favour come to Schubert at last, but, O irony of Fate! only a few steps in advance of death.

As may be supposed, cash did not flow in immediately from the source just indicated, but the poor musician received one god-send. For the first time in his life he gave an evening Concert, had a crowded audience, and made 800 gulden, or £32, by the transaction. Of course he squandered it with characteristic recklessness—encouraged to do so, perhaps, by the prospect of a golden harvest from the publishers—and soon he was as poor as ever. We regret to say that the publishers' performance was not equal to their promise. The mountain brought forth the very tiniest mouse. The Schotts, who royally invited Schubert to name his own terms, demurred to paying fifty shillings for a Pianoforte Quintet, and actually had the conscience to offer five-and-twenty, while Probst, on his part, would give no more than seventeen shillings and sixpence for the splendid Trio in E flat! This seems past belief, but the proof is too positive for doubt, and we can only reflect that it was in truth time for Schubert to die. One possible result turned out to be very serious indeed. The master was prevented by poverty from enjoying the rest and change of a sojourn in Upper Austria, and had that not been the case his life might have been prolonged. One thinks of the cumulative proverb: "For want of a nail the shoe was lost," &c., and reflects upon what little things great issues hang. It is clear that Schubert looked forward to another such holiday as he spent in 1827. As early as January we find Jenger writing to Madame Pachler: "Irene Kieselwetter has recovered from her bad illness and thinks of accompanying her mother on an excursion to Gratz. Should this take place, Schwammerl (Schubert) and I shall be taken as guides on the journey, and thus we may have a chance of seeing you all in a few months." This came to nothing, but in April Jenger writes again: "The little volume of songs by friend Schubert, which he dedicates to you, is already in the Emperor's hands; when Schubert and I come to you, and this will doubtless be at the end of August, we will take care to bring with us some copies." But the friends intended first to visit Upper Austria. They had evidently talked of this, since the news reached Traweger, in Gmunden, and caused him to write to his old crony a letter which obviously reveals to us a spirit of personal independence in Schubert's character. For this reason we give a translation of the epistle:—

"Dear friend Schubert,—Zierer informed me you wished once again to visit Gmunden, and he proposed asking me my prices for lodging and board, and desired me to write on this subject to you. You put me in a difficulty, and if I did not know you, and your perfectly candid straightforward way of dealing, and had I no apprehension of your not coming to me after all, I should ask nothing. Lest, however, it should occur to you that you would be a burden, and in order that you may remain without let or hindrance as long as you please, just listen to me. For your room which you before occupied, and for your three meals a day, pay me at the rate of 50 kreutzers per day, and anything you drink let it be an extra."

As already stated, Schubert went neither to Gmunden nor to Gratz, and one of Jenger's letters to Madame Pachler tells us very plainly the reason why. He speaks of the "not very brilliant financial state" of his friend Schubert, and distinctly says that pecuniary difficulties stood in the way of a holiday. "But he is still here, working away at a new Mass, and on the look out—come whence it may—for the cash necessary to support his immediate flight to Upper Austria." This was in July. Four months later Schubert found a quieter haven than any in Austria—

Where his shattered bark
Harbours secure till the rough storm is past.
Perhaps a passage, overhung with clouds
But at its entrance, a few leagues beyond
Opening to kinder skies and milder suns,
And seas pacific as the soul that seeks them.

(To be continued.)

MUSICAL DEGREES IN THE UNIVERSITY OF LONDON.

By WILLIAM POLE, F.R.S., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

As Music has now been entered on the regular permanent list of Faculties in the University of London, it may not be uninteresting to put on record a brief account of the proceedings which have led up to this result.

The University was founded by Royal Charter in the year 1837, for the purpose of conferring degrees, after examination, in Arts, Laws, and Medicine; the Faculty of Music, together with Science and other branches of knowledge, being added by another Charter twenty years later. It was only, however, in 1865 that the propriety of granting degrees in Music was entertained. A Committee of Convocation was then appointed to consider and report upon it. This Committee placed itself in communication with several of the leading musical professors of the Metropolis, and the general tenor of their replies was decidedly in favour of the suggestion that degrees in Music should be conferred by the University. The want of some metropolitan attestation of proficiency in musical science appeared from these communications to be much felt, and it was thought that a degree given by a University on the basis of an examination that should test the thoroughness of the candidates' attainments would be accounted a higher distinction than the certificate of any purely professional body.

But a difficulty arose, as there seemed to be, at that time, a general concurrence of opinion among the professional musicians consulted against requiring from candidates for musical degrees that they should have passed the Matriculation Examination of the University. It was represented that a large proportion of those whose natural bent led them to devote themselves to music as a profession began the study and practice of music whilst other youths of the same age were still at school, and that, however advantageous it might be for them to prolong their general education sufficiently to prepare them for Matriculation, it would only be in exceptional cases that such prolongation would be possible.

The Committee of Convocation, on the other hand, did not deem it expedient that degrees in Music should be conferred on any exceptional conditions, and considered that every one receiving an academical distinction ought to give evidence of general culture as well as of special proficiency.

Under these circumstances the matter stood in abeyance again for some years. But the musicians seem to have become somewhat ashamed of the slur that had been cast upon them by calling in question their general culture, and in 1876 a memorial was presented to the Senate asking for a reconsideration of the subject. The following are the important passages:—

It is well known to us that some few years back your learned Board instituted an inquiry respecting the desirability of rendering available the Degrees in the Faculty of Music, and to that end examined certain persons of high position and eminence in the profession of music, from whom information was obtained to the effect that it would be useless to expect from candidates for musical degrees the standard of general culture which is required of candidates for all other degrees of the University in the Matriculation Examination.

Your memorialists would now respectfully submit that since the time of the inquiry referred to there has been a rapid advance in general education amongst all classes of society, and that in the event of your being induced to reconsider this subject, a number of persons would be found both willing and fit to submit themselves to a preliminary test of the kind prescribed by the University.

Your memorialists would also point to the more than tenfold increase, since the time referred to, in the number of persons who desire and offer themselves for degrees or other certificates in music, with the natural inference that if such degrees were instituted by the University of London, a further impetus would be given to this desirable movement. In conclusion, the undersigned are persuaded that the institution of Degrees in Music by the University of London would, in forming an additional recognition of the status of the musical profession, sensibly tend to the advancement of musical learning, and, therefore, to the wider culture and refinement of the community.

The Memorial, dated 22nd February, 1876, was professedly from "The Council of Trinity College, London," but it had fifty-nine signatures, among which were George Cooper, Dr. Edward Dearnley, John Ella, Edward J. Hopkins, H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Dr. C. Steggall, E. H. Turpin, Julius Benedict, Michael Costa, John Goss, George J. Elvey, Arthur Sullivan, Dr. J. F. Bridge, and the organists of the Cathedrals of Lichfield, Norwich, Ely, Carlisle, Chester, Peterborough, Salisbury, Bristol, Lincoln, Hereford, Durham, Ripon, and Canterbury.

The Senate referred this Memorial to a Committee of their own body, who reported on the matter on the 25th of May, 1876. The following extracts from their report will show the conclusions they arrived at:—

The Memorial is backed by the signatures, not only of several of the more eminent musical professors of the Metropolis, but also of many Cathedral organists in the provinces; and the Committee are disposed to attach considerable weight to it, as an expression of the opinion of musicians most distinguished by that scientific ability of which, rather than of technical proficiency, an Academic Degree would be the attestation.

Several considerations have weighed with the Committee in favour of the prayer of the Memorial. There can be no doubt that the value of that extended scheme of school education which the University has promoted from the first, has come to be more generally recognised on the part of the public generally, and on that of the musical profession. A musical degree therefore, which should carry the attestation of general culture, would be a deserved advantage to its possessor. . . . Again there has been of late years a great improvement in those Cathedral schools in which the choristers (a class that furnishes no small proportion of each rising generation of musicians) receive a general education concurrently with their musical training. This improvement is such that it is far more easy for youths thus educated to prepare themselves to pass the Matriculation Examination. . . . The Committee do not think it necessary to point to the increased and ever increasing interest taken by the intelligent portion of the public in the higher order of music, as a reason for the recognition of this subject by a University which aims to promote education in its largest sense, such increase being a matter of general notoriety.

They concur in recommending that the Senate should cause the degrees of Bachelor and Doctor in Music should be instituted on the basis of the Matriculation Examination; * and that candidates for these degrees should be required, in the first instance, to show a competent knowledge of Acoustic Science, of the construction and action of musical instruments (including the organ of voice in man), and of the Theory of Harmonics as recently developed by Helmholtz and other physicists; and at subsequent examinations, to give evidence of their proficiency in the Science of Music properly so called.

* All the Universities now require preliminary proof of a certain standard of general education.—W. P.

This recommendation was considered and discussed, and was finally agreed to, and it only remained to settle the form and conditions of the proposed examinations. The Senate did me the honour of consulting me (through their Registrar, the late respected Dr. Carpenter) on the subject, and requested me, towards the end of the year, to draw up a scheme for their consideration.

After conferring with many musical friends whose opinion I valued, I sent this scheme in in March 1877. It was printed and submitted, partly through myself, and partly through the memorialists, to many distinguished authorities, including the Professors at the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin. The opinions and suggestions elicited were then considered by the Senate and led to some slight alterations, resulting in the Regulations which were definitely adopted and circulated by the University.

It was, however, decided that the examinations should be, at first, worked provisionally, and Dr. Stainer and myself were appointed provisional Examiners in Music for the purpose. They commenced in 1878, and have been continued every year to the present time. The following tables show the results:—

FOR THE BACHELOR'S DEGREE.

INTERMEDIATE.				FINAL.
		Candidates.	Passed.			Candidates.	Passed.
1878	...	8	5	1	...
1879	...	9	3	2	...
1880	...	7	3	3	2
1881	...	2	2	3	2
1882	...	8	6	3	2
1883	...	10	6*	2	2
1884	...	8	6	2	1
1885	...	5	5	1	...
Totals	...	57	41	14	7

FOR THE DOCTOR'S DEGREE.

1881	...	1	1
1884	...	2	2
1885	2	2
Totals	...	3	3	2	2

The Doctor's Degree being now completed, and the working of the whole scheme being considered satisfactory, the Senate have this year placed the Faculty of Music on the same footing as the other Faculties in their list.

The regulations will be found in the Calendar for each year, or may be obtained on application to the University; but I may here offer a few remarks upon them.

Each degree, the Bachelor as well as the Doctor, requires two examinations, an intermediate and a final one. The Intermediate Examination for both degrees is devoted to the modern scientific principles of music. At the time of the establishment of these degrees such a requirement was new, or at least what was required at the other Universities in that way was very little.† It is no business of mine here to argue with those who think that knowledge of this kind ought not to be required for a Musical Degree—suffice it to say that the University, true to the high position they have always taken in Modern Science generally, determined that it should be so. What I had to do was to draw out some scheme which should fulfil this condition without being too exacting for students of music generally.

For the Bachelor's Intermediate Examination this knowledge is by no means difficult to acquire. It is divided into two parts, which are taken by the Examiners in Physics and Music respectively. The physical parts comprehend—

The relations between musical sounds and the vibrations of sonorous bodies, as affecting the pitch of the sounds.

The simpler properties of stretched strings, and the sounds produced by them; compound vibrations; nodes.

The nature of harmonics.

The general theory and simpler phenomena of compound sounds.

The theoretical nature of consonance and dissonance, as determined by Helmholtz.

All this may be easily learnt by moderate reading in Helmholtz, and other similar works, without any special scientific training.

The musical part of this Intermediate Examination comprises—

The theoretical nature and value of musical intervals.

The theoretical construction of the modern scales.

Temperament.

Melody, time, rhythm.

The principles of the construction of chords.

The history of music, in so far as it relates to the growth of musical forms and rules.

This corresponds to the ordinary rudimentary theory of music, without a knowledge of which no one could aspire to the character of a musician.

The Final Examination for the Bachelor's Degree is entirely in the hands of the Musical Examiners. In arranging this I felt I could not do better than follow the practice of the other Universities, which I found very positive and consistent.

I knew that efforts would be made to induce the University to relax the strictness of this examination, and that these might come from two different classes of persons: (1) from those skilled in the theory but who were deficient in practical musical acquirements; and (2) from practical musicians who had not troubled themselves about the higher branches of composition, calling them "antiquated," "useless," and so on. I however urged the authorities to deprecate any such relaxation, pointing out that the requirements insisted on were precisely those things that distinguished the sound and thorough musician from the superficial one; and I added that it would be a real misfortune for the art if such distinctions were conferred under less stringent musical qualifications than those which had been judged by the other Universities, after much practical experience, to be proper and fair. The Senate agreed in this view.

The first of the practical requirements is the Exercise. This is the chief test of competence in Practical Composition. It must be a vocal work containing real five-part counterpoint, with accompaniments for a quintet string band; and it is essential that it must be a good composition in a musical point of view.

We have had some curious experience in regard to the last condition. There have been sometimes laid before us exercises which, at first sight, appeared to fulfil the technical requirements, but which, when examined, proved to be merely assemblages of notes, put mechanically together, without any musical merit, and which, therefore, we felt could not entitle their authors to a high distinction of an essentially musical character.

If the exercise is approved, the candidate has to pass a final examination specified as follows—

Practical harmony and thorough-bass.

Counterpoint, in not more than five parts, with canon and fugue.

Form in musical composition.

Instrumentation, so far as is necessary for understanding and reading a full score.

Arranging for the pianoforte from an instrumental score.

A critical knowledge of the full scores of such standard classical compositions as shall be announced beforehand.

This cannot fail, in the first place, to show whether the exercise fairly represents the candidate's musical ability; and secondly, to test the extent of his knowledge on points that the exercise would not display. In former times the exercise was the only

* Including one lady.

† Cambridge now requires a preliminary scientific examination analogous to that of the London University. At Oxford and Dublin, subjects of this kind may be examined upon at the pleasure of the Professor, but no express conditions regarding them are laid down in the Regulations.

test, but the introduction of the additional examination has been a great improvement.

The Doctor's Degree may be taken two years after that of Bachelor. It also requires two examinations.

The Intermediate Examination for the Doctor's Degree implies, of course, higher theoretical knowledge, as this degree ought only to be the reward of much patient study; but still, in arranging the heads of it, I endeavoured to include only what could be mastered by persons of ordinary education and ability, and to make it still independent of any special mathematical or scientific learning.

The physical part includes—

The phenomena of sound in general, and the general nature of aerial sound-waves.

The special characteristics of musical sounds: the physical causes determining their pitch, loudness, and quality. Standards of pitch.

The more elaborate phenomena of compound sounds.

The theoretical nature of the sounds of musical instruments of various kinds, including the human voice. The principles of stretched strings.

The phenomena attending the combinations of two sounds. The various theories proposed for the explanation of consonance and dissonance. Beats. Resultant or combination tones.

In the musical part are included—

The theoretical nature and values of musical intervals, and the philosophical modes of defining and representing them.

Musical scales. The scales of various nations, and of the Greeks in particular. The theoretical construction of the modern scales.

The theory of temperament and its various practical applications.

The Greek and the Church modes, and their relation to modern tonality.

The history of measured music, of harmony, and of counterpoint.

The principles of melodic progression.

The theoretical nature of chords generally, and in particular of the various concords and discords in ordinary use; also of discords arising accidentally.

The theoretical principles governing progressions in harmony, especially those connected with discords.

The theoretical principles determining the rules of counterpoint. The general distinction between physical and æsthetical or artistic principles, as bearing on musical forms and rules.

It will be seen that much reference is made to matters of musical history. These are not merely dry facts and dates, but they have an important bearing on the principles of the art, for it is impossible to understand many points of musical theory without knowing how the forms have grown up in which they are embodied.

This test being passed, the Final Doctor's Examination is begun, like the Bachelor's, by writing an exercise. This must be a work of some magnitude, for voices and full orchestra, containing good eight-part fugal counterpoint, with solo movements, and an instrumental piece in sonata form.

If the exercise is approved, the candidate is examined by the musical examiners, in regard to—

Practical harmony of the more advanced character.

Counterpoint in eight real parts, with canon, fugue, &c.

Form in composition.

The treatment of voices in composition.

Instrumentation for full orchestra.

A general acquaintance with the names and epochs of the greatest musical composers, and with the character of their works.

A critical knowledge, in some detail, of the great standard classical compositions.

I may mention that the late Dr. Hullah, when I consulted him on the proposed scheme, made an earnest appeal for the introduction of some qualification depending on the performance of music; but it was considered that, however desirable it might be to test and to certify education and skill in this particular, such testing and certifying would be foreign to the province of a University, and might be far better undertaken by other bodies and institutions.

At the same time I induced the Senate to insert the following paragraphs in their Regulations, as the qualifications referred to were of a high character in a musical point of view:—

Although technical skill in performance will constitute no part of the qualification for the degrees, any candidate may offer to be examined in—

For Mus. Bac.

(a) Playing at sight from a five-part vocal score.

(b) Playing an accompaniment from a figured bass.

For Mus. Doc.

(a) Playing at sight from a full orchestral score.

(b) Extempore composition, in regular form, on a given subject. Any candidate otherwise approved shall obtain a distinguishing mark for merit in these particulars.

When the candidate has passed his final Mus. Doc. examination, his exercise has to be publicly performed. This requirement was insisted on at other Universities, but it had been objected to on the ground of the expense to the candidate. After some discussion, the condition of performance was omitted for the Bachelor's Degree, but was retained for the Doctor's, on the understanding that the mode of production should be settled by the examiners.

In the case of the Doctor's Degrees lately conferred, Dr. Stainer and myself decided that orchestral instruments might be dispensed with, the accompaniments being arranged by the composer for four hands on the pianoforte, with a harmonium. This was found successful; the performance gave a fair idea of the nature and merits of the compositions (which in this case were very excellent); the arrangement and conducting furnished further tests of the qualifications of the candidate; the expense was very trifling; and the little éclat, given by the ceremony to the Degree, was considered suitable and advantageous by the authorities of the University.

So far, therefore, the experiment of the Musical Degrees at the University of London has been fully successful; and it may be hoped that their permanent establishment will contribute to the maintenance of a high standard of musical education, and to the improvement of general culture among those who practise the art.

I may mention that this University differs from most others in publishing the whole of their examination papers, in all Faculties, every year—a practice which is very advantageous on many grounds.

THE ORIGIN OF HARMONY.

AMID the correspondence which reached us too late to admit of attention in our July issue was a letter from "A Constant Reader," asking for information as to the exact nature of the indebtedness of harmony to Christianity. "Is it true," asks our querist, "that harmony in music is the product of Christianity, or rather the Gospel dispensation, and that where Christianity does not prevail the inhabitants of that country have no idea of part-singing or harmony?" Now the adequate discussion of the issues involved in such questions might very well fill a volume, and it would, therefore, be obviously impossible to deal with them otherwise than summarily within the compass of a short paper. But in spite of these limitations, we hope to be able to make it clear that while we must admit the Church's vast influence upon, and intimate connection with, the development of Occidental Music, it is as unwarrantable to refer the origin of harmony to Christianity as it is to argue from the absence of part-singing in a people to their ignorance of the teachings of the Gospel dispensation. Now harmony, or the combination of sounds of different pitches, is of a two-fold nature, vocal and instrumental, and almost certainly of a two-fold origin, as the researches of recent musical antiquarians go a very long way towards proving. Readers who have gone with Mr. Rowbotham*—the latest writer on the origines of music—in his patient "endeavour to piece music together bit by bit," will acknowledge that by the time stringed instruments were in existence with curved frames, and having several strings of varying lengths, the combination of * Rowbotham's "History of Music," Vol. I. Tribner and Co.

sounds of different pitches became possible. Long before that, as he ingeniously points out, as soon as for greater convenience in holding the instrument, one end of it had "been made narrower, so as to be grasped by the left hand, directly the left hand went round the strings it could not help pressing them sometimes as it held them, and the difference of tone which the pressure caused would be at once noticed, and in course of time acted upon." So that there was harmony in posse directly instruments began to have necks, and harmony in esse, though of a very rudimentary character, when the frame became curved. And for the causes which led to the curving of the frame, and consequent evolution of the harp, we must refer our readers to Mr. Rowbotham's sensible remarks on pp. 215-216. But dispensing with the consideration of the successive stages of these primitive instruments, we are confronted with the fact, as attested by sculptural records, that as early as the 4th Egyptian Dynasty—the era of Tebben and of the Great Pyramids—there were harps with six strings, while by the time of the 18th and 19th Dynasties, "The Augustan Age" of Egypt, as Mr. Rowbotham calls it, the great harp had as many as eighteen. Now even the adherents of Archbishop Ussher's chronology will admit that there is strong monumental evidence for the existence of instrumental harmony, though doubtless of a nature scarcely "tunable" to our ears, at a considerably earlier period than that of the Christian Era. But vocal harmony is probably referable to a different source, and here the eminently practical remarks of Mr. Rowbotham are pointedly appropriate to the matter in hand: "That other harmony," he says, "of voices alone, was in existence before this (i.e., instrumental harmony) and owes its origin to other causes. And it owes its origin to the different pitches of the human voice. For since the world began there have always been high men's voices and low men's voices, and high women's voices and low women's voices, and whenever two of a different sort sing together they necessarily produce harmony. And so we find even savages employing harmony, for it comes easier to them than singing all at the same pitch. And they have learnt the art of regulating this easiness of singing to the requirements of pleasing effect. For our ears do not like to hear two notes clashing together, but any other combinations they accept, though some delight them more than others. And as to what are the most naturally pleasing combinations, we may learn this from savage harmony, and we shall find that thirds are pleasing, and fifths, but particularly thirds . . . and also the third joined with the fifth at the close." The text is here illustrated by specimens of such savage songs, drawn from Ambros, Bowdich's mission to Ashantee, and Engel's National Music, in which these combinations are found. And he goes on, "All these belong to one category, that is to say, they are in their essence, but many voices singing the same thing at different pitches, and the prescription of the pitches for the purpose of pleasant effect is a later addition which came as naturally as the prescription of certain pleasing turns in simple melody. But there is another sort of harmony of a totally different kind among savages, which, I take it, is more important than this sort; and that is when some voices sing, not the melody at a lower pitch, but an independent accompaniment on their own account, thus standing to the melody in the same relation which the instrument did in its accompaniment, as we have just described." And this second sort of savage vocal harmony he proceeds to illustrate by songs taken from Engel's National Music and Wilkes' United States Exploring Expedition. In some of these the accompaniment is confined to a single note, and might be explained as a sort of drone bass, but in others the accompaniment moves about at varying intervals, and Mr. Rowbotham assigns to them a higher importance than the former class, because "we shall find that in course of time these rude beginnings of independent notes blossom out into independent melodies." In fact, he would regard them as the primitive ancestors of that system of discantus, or the manipulation of two tunes simultaneously, from which sprang counterpoint. (See Dr. Parry's article on Harmony in Grove's Dictionary.)

We have seen then that, on the one hand, there are very distinct traces of the existence of some sort of harmony in the musical systems of the elder civilisations, and in particular in that of Egypt. And we have it on the testimony of travellers and explorers that savage tribes in different parts of the world have risen beyond mere chanting and unison singing to the conception of a rude vocal harmony. From this we are led to the conclusion that not only did harmony exist prior to the advent of Christianity, but that it is encountered outside its ken even in our own days. There remains the question of the attitude of the Church from earliest times towards the development of harmony in music. Now, inasmuch as the ecclesiastical scales, as their names declare, were the lineal descendants of the Greek scales, which, though adapted for melody, are notoriously inadequate for harmony, as we use the word, we are à priori led to predict that the history of the development of our modern harmonic system will prove to be largely identical with that of the secularisation of the art. As Dr. Parry remarks in the article already alluded to, it was only "the gradual growth of the perception of harmonic relations which modified these ecclesiastical scales, by very slow degrees, by the introduction of accidentals, so that the various modes were, by degrees, fused into our modern major and minor scales." The earliest recorded examples of harmony proceed, it is true, from ecclesiastical sources; but as they date from a time when the Church was the sole repository of learning, we are not obliged to credit it with the invention as we are with the preservation of these first tentative efforts, though the presumption is strongly in favour of our arguing from the one to the other. Hucbald's agonising progressions in fourths, fifths, and octaves are almost identical, in their general character, with that first class of savage vocal harmony mentioned above, which has its origin in the greater ease experienced by voices of different ranges in singing the same melody in different pitches rather than at the same pitch. Whether the discantus which succeeded the "diaphony" of Hucbald and the similar efforts of Guido of Arezzo was the invention of a monk or not is doubtful, certain it is that it was early adopted for Church purposes, and was destined to play a most important part in the development of polyphonic music. "It is unfortunate," continues Dr. Parry, "that there is a deficiency of examples of the secular music of these early times, as it must inevitably have been among the unsophisticated geniuses of the laity that the most daring experiments at innovation were made." That secular music was cultivated to a very considerable extent we gather from the work of Marchetto of Padua, a writer of the 13th century, who gives us specimens of chromatic progressions used in that class of music. Now the relation borne by the chromatic to the diatonic scale is happily compared by Mr. Rowbotham to that between an embroidered robe to a white garment, and the greater wealth and luxuriance which its employment imports into harmony was long looked upon with disfavour by church musicians. If we were asked to single out the one especial feature which distinguishes our modern music from that which was written before 1600, we should probably reply that it was the principle of modulation. Now it was not until the sense of the dominant harmony was fully realised, as a means of defining a key, and consequently of defining the transition from one key to another, that this principle could be fully carried out. And the realisation of this sense of the dominant harmony was, in its essence, a breaking away from ecclesiastical tradition. For "its very existence," to quote Dr. Parry once more, "according to the modern acceptance of the term, was precluded in most ecclesiastical scales by the absence of a leading note which would join the indispensable major third." The only two scales which gave this leading note were those of F and C, and the former was theoretically faulty and the latter regarded with disfavour as a "lascivus modus." But in spite of this fact, and of the express prohibition of Pope John XXII., musicians felt their way towards the great principle of tonality by almost invariably sharpening the note immediately below the tonic. It is also significant that the best landmark for the division of the new from the old harmony is the appearance of the first modern opera, marked by chromaticism and the use of figures to indicate harmonies. Here this sketchy survey of the origin and development of harmony may cease. The history of harmony, as Dr. Parry truly says, "is the history of ever-increasing richness of combination," and it is not therefore to be wondered at that, in the interests of severity and purity, the Church should have set its face against what it deemed the mere extravagances of innovators. Thus we find Jean de Muris in the fourteenth century inveighing against the extempore "discanters" in whose artless efforts, could we but hear them, might probably be traced crude strivings after greater freedom, which culminated in that curious anti-papal revolt which we have already alluded to. Still this curbing and restraining influence must have had at times a most salutary effect, and as we have already seen if it had not been for the monks we should have known nothing about mediæval music. But if the action of ecclesiasticism has, in matters of musical theory, been conservative or even repressive, Christianity has never failed to exert an elevating and inspiring influence upon the musician, and it is to the sacred literature of that creed that master minds of all nations still turn for the noblest subjects for illustration.

MUSIC AND POETRY.

READERS of M. Saint-Saëns's Harmonie et Mélodie will not fail to remember the vigorous protest which he enters against the misleading views of music which men of letters have formulated—views which have gained acceptance simply owing to the literary fame of their propounders. The recently published lecture by Mr. F. T. Palgrave, on "Poetry compared with the other Fine Arts" (see National Review for July), hardly comes under this condemnation, for the writer's attitude towards music is in the main generously appreciative. For the present, however, it is not our purpose to offer any criticism, but merely to present our readers with the Oxford Professor of Poetry's own words on the relation of the two arts. "Why then," he says, "is it natural to take music for our final comparison? In her appeal to us music calls forth emotion even more general and indefinite than architecture, with less representation of nature, less power to supply or to arouse thought. The forms through which music speaks to the ear not only present none of those natural appearances which sculpture and painting and poetry imitate or suggest, but have scarcely any real prototypes in the very sounds of Nature. The orchestra is as little indebted to the nightingale as the cathedral aisle to the forest avenue. The most limited of the fine arts, by her technical conditions, the most conventional in material and method, what right has Music to a place next to Poetry—of all arts the freest, the most varied in range of subject, the most intellectual—in short, the highest? I may reply in a single word, which I hope will not be considered too rhetorical: Music speaks. . . . As, however, I have tried in the case of the other fine arts, let us attempt to compare with poetry this evanescent and impalpable spirit of music, which here I shall, so far as possible, think of as separated from the words of a song or the action of an opera—absolute music according to the modern phrase. We have granted that it is nearest to poetry in its essence, and in its effect on the hearers. . . . The true reason why music has this magical and entrancing power . . . must be sought in a region where words, I fear, cannot enter without peril to the speaker. Analyse and define how we may, no one has ever caught and imprisoned in words the volatile vital element which makes poetry poetry. . . . The poet himself cannot seize this essence. . . . Intensity with tenderness is the only phrase, and in which I have tried to find an imperfect expression of it. Now it is, I think, precisely this mysterious element—the soul of soul—which music offers to the sensitive nature. . . . Its invisibility is part of the magic and the enchantment; invisibility to the senses answering to the vagueness with which music appeals to the soul. It is the triumph of a poem to offer us definite images, distinct pictures: of music to dispense with them, and pass beyond to the inmost animating spirit which renders picture and imagery poetical. If any attempt at definition be not too hazardous, might we not, hence, define music simply as poetry without words? But hence, also, this Fine Art differs essentially from the rest; they move us actively, they call forth our latent feelings, they interpret our higher nature to ourselves. Music (speaking always now of music absolute), in place of leading, follows the moods of the mind, clothes them with poetry, soothes or exalts them accordingly with the temper of the moment. The melody which brings tears to one hearer shall give another consolation, beyond the reach of philosophy or poetry. A slight change in expression, even in time, will turn into a song of despair the symphony of triumph. This adaptive, living quality, this immediateness of music, if I may use the word, seems to arise from the material conditions of the art which here, as ever, secretly confine and govern it. Seemingly the most natural music is, in fact, the most artificial of the arts, the most conventional. Our scale, our melody, our harmony are meaningless, if not discordant, to the majority of human ears. Even among the races which employ them they have proved arbitrary and fluctuating. Mathematics show that the very intervals of the scale are irreconcilable with natural law. The European ear is gradually learning new rules of harmony. Hence, perhaps, music is the most modern of the arts, not, of course, in its practice but in the forms which now speak to us musically. . . . Yet in this paradoxical art the peculiarities of music bring it nearer to the soul of poetry: they make it more fit to follow, to invest, to deepen our emotion. Dissolving it from the associations of the past, they render it more immediately and purely pleasurable, make it a more pervading atmosphere of intensity steeped in tenderness; the interpreter of that sadness which lies always at the heart of joy. An old poet has sung this aspect of melody in two lines, which have in them no little of the art they describe:

'The mellow touch of music most doth wound
The soul, when it doth rather sigh than sound.'

ALTHOUGH the full programme of the Leeds Festival has not yet appeared, enough is known, from the sketch programme and other sources, to give a generally accurate idea of the four days' work. The following distribution may be relied upon:—Wednesday morning, October 13, "Israel in Egypt"; Wednesday evening, Mackenzie's "Story of Sayid," selection from "Cosi fan tutti," Prize Song "Meistersinger," Overture "Der Fliegende Holländer." Thursday morning, Bach's Mass in B minor; Thursday evening, Dr. Stanford's "Revenge," Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, Mendelssohn's "Walpurgis Night." Friday morning, Dvorák's "Saint Ludmila"; Friday evening, Mendelssohn's "Scotch" Symphony, new Overture by F. K. Hattersley, Overture to "Euryanthe," Schumann's "Advent Hymn." Saturday morning, Sullivan's "Golden Legend"; first part of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul"; Saturday evening (extra Concert), "Elijah." The vocal artists engaged are the following:—Mesdames Albani, Hutchinson, Anna Williams, Patey, Damian, Hilda Wilson; Messrs. Lloyd, McGuckin, McKay, Santley, King, Brereton, Watkin Mills. We are glad to know that the prospects of the Festival are excellent. Already nearly a thousand five-guinea serial tickets have been sold—an increase of fifty upon the last Festival. There are 494 guarantors, who are answerable for more than £20,000; and the reserve fund amounts now to £1,100.

ONE of the few Acts of the last short-lived Parliament empowered the Queen to give effect within her dominions to the provisions of the Berne Convention on International Copyright. To that Convention eleven countries sent delegates, and it was agreed, subject to ratification at home, that the author of a literary or artistic work produced, say, in England, should in all other countries of the Union enjoy equal rights with native authors, and have his property in the work protected to a similar extent. It was further decided that the right of translation throughout the Union should be reserved to an author for ten years, and, if not exercised, then cease; this rule being also extended to the representation of dramatic and dramatico-musical works. Hence, if an opera, first produced in one country of the Union, be not performed in any other country of the Union during the ten years succeeding, it may be represented without authorisation. These were the main points agreed upon, but it is important to observe that there is a certain measure of retrospective action, the application of the agreement extending "to all works which, at the moment of its coming into force, have not yet fallen into the public domain in the country of origin." The Act of Parliament (49 and 50 Vict., ch. 33) referred to above brings the British Empire within the scope of the Convention, repeals all laws inconsistent with its provisions, and enacts others limiting and regulating the powers of the Queen in Council as regards the application of those provisions. Reciprocity, for example, is insisted on. Before making any order with regard to the works of a foreign country, the Queen in Council must be satisfied that the laws of that country properly protect the works of English authors. The law as regards translations is made to agree with the provisions of the Convention, and the Copyright Acts are applied to works produced in a British colony, subject to the domestic law of that colony. Various minor arrangements are included in the twelve sections of the Act, all tending to the fair and equitable protection of literary and artistic property, but the great point gained is that which gives to an author belonging to any country of the Union as much proprietary right in each of the other countries as is enjoyed by native authors. At last, then, the owners of literary and artistic property are, as regards Germany, France, Spain, Great Britain, Haiti, Honduras, Italy, the Netherlands, Sweden and Norway, Switzerland, and Tunis, protected from pirates. But one drawback exists. America, true to her selfish policy, holds aloof. She has recognised the principle of the Convention in words, but carefully refrained from doing so in deeds, thus reserving to her citizens the power—we will say nothing of right—which they have long so ruthlessly exercised. But America will enter the fold when it more fully appears that she has something to protect as well as appropriate.

WHEN the Albert Hall was opened there were not wanting cynical folk who said that it would eventually come down to be a circus. If we may credit present reports, those prophets will eventually prove not so far wrong. It is said that the seat-holders have met to consider a proposal for the establishment of "a well-conducted and perfectly-controlled high-class music-hall," with promenade concerts, "to a certain extent on the lines of those provided every winter at Covent Garden," the arena being cleared for that purpose, and adapted "as a promenade where smoking might be allowed." It is much more easy to believe that the seat-holders adjourned the debate on the proposition till November next than that the proposition was ever made. "To what base uses may we come at last!"—even when the "we" is represented by an edifice built as a princely memorial, and owned by the highest classes in the land. Shame and disgrace await the Albert Hall if this amazing scheme be carried out, and that which is sometimes called the "South Kensington Ring" will have performed an act certain to be remembered if not admired. The decision rests with the seat-holders, but does their function begin and end with saying "No" or "Yes" to the proposals of the executive? We trust not, and we hope they will bestir themselves at once. Granted that the Albert Hall should be a hall of music, why not organise performances of the highest class, and having an educational value, thus carrying out the original idea? "Oh," it may be said, "they do not pay." But is it the first business of the Albert Hall to return a dividend? Surely not. The proprietors are wealthy people who, by their very position as proprietors, proclaim some interest in art and science. Then let them be prepared to lose money, as the guarantors of the Philharmonic Society and of our provincial festivals are prepared. It seems that the only alternative is a music hall—a gigantic "Oxford." Will the royalty and aristocracy of England stoop as low as "Lion Comiques" and "Perfect Cures"?

EFFORTS are being made to secure the patronage of English tourists for the present series of performances at Bayreuth. That is right enough. A visit to the Wagnerian Theatre has become a part of liberal education in the sense that no man can be "up with the times" who has not made himself acquainted with what goes on there; neither can he form an adequate idea of the possibilities of the lyric stage when governed by an inflexible regard for artistic results. This, however, is not the point just now. As regards attracting visitors to Bayreuth, it is certainly important that steps should be taken to provide proper accommodation. The average touring Briton is not sufficiently enthusiastic about any artistic cause to suffer for it with equanimity. He likes to be comfortable wherever he goes, and if not made comfortable in any given place, he stays there but a little while and never returns. This accounts for Bayreuth's unpopularity with most of those who have had experience of it. They call up memories of more than indifferent hotels, where poor lodging is supplemented by worse food and charged for at high prices, and they think "once, twice, and even thrice" before returning to Bayreuth or permitting their friends to go without a protest. It would really be worth while for the persons most interested in the Wagner Theatre to take this matter in hand, and work a hotel reform, at any rate for the duration of the performances, after which no reason would exist why local taste in the matter of accommodation should not be indulged as usual.

A STATEMENT in the St. James's Gazette to the effect that "no lady, except Mlle. Louise Bertin, had ever produced an opera until . . . this noteworthy feat was accomplished by Miss Walter," has been answered by Mr. Arthur à Beckett, who states that his mother, the late Mrs. Gilbert Abbot à Beckett, composed and produced two such works—"Agnes Sorel" and "Little Red Riding Hood." The correction is interesting as regards English female composers, and now let us see how far the St. James's Gazette is right in respect of foreigners:—

Maria Thérèse Agnesis composed "Ciro in Armenia" and one other.
Villard de Beaumaisnil composed "Tibulle et Delie."
Charlotte Birsch composed "Jean Gutenberg."
Mlle. Blahetka composed "Les Brigands et le Chanteur."
Caroline Blangy composed "Le Sou de Lise."
Mlle. Collinet composed "Le Fauteuil de mon Oncle."
Hermine Déjazet composed "Le Diable Rose."
Mlle. Dezède composed "Lucette et Lucas."
Mlle. Duval composed "Les Génies."
Carlotta Ferrari composed "Sofia."
Sophie Gail composed "Angela" and four others.
Viscontesse de Grandval composed "La Comtesse Eva" and one other.
Lucille Grétry composed "Le Mariage d'Antonio" and one other.
Suzanne Lagier composed "Jupiter et Léda."
Mlle. de la Guerre composed "Cephale et Procris."
Mlle. de Kerkado composed "La Méprise Volontaire."
La Baronne de Maistre composed "Sardanapale" and two others.
Madame Marcelli composed "Le Sorcier."
Madame Paradies composed "Ariane à Naxos."
Mlle. de Larochejaig composed "La Jeunesse de Lulli."
Mlle. Thys composed "L'Heritier sans le Savoir" and four others.
Madame Uccali composed "Emma di Resburgo."
Madame Ugaldé composed "Une Halte au Moulin."
Madame Vidorot composed "L'Ogre."

The foregoing does not pretend to be an exhaustive list, but it shows that female musicians have not been quite as idle in the domain of opera as our evening contemporary supposes. But it is significant that all their works are forgotten, and that only book-worms come upon the traces of them.

AMATEURS of Bach's music will be glad to learn that Sir Arthur Sullivan, as Conductor of the Leeds Festival, has determined to produce the B minor Mass as far as possible in accordance with its great composer's intentions. Hence there will be no "additional accompaniments," unless a specially written organ part can be so considered, while, as a matter of course, no instruments foreign to Bach's score are admissible. It is proposed to strengthen the flutes, oboes, and bassoons, to employ oboi d'amore where parts are assigned to them, and to play the trumpet parts as they stand, on "German trumpets," specially obtained. The cornò da caccia, or bugle horn, to which Bach assigns a conspicuous place in "Quoniam tu solus," presents a difficulty, but probably the German trumpet will replace it. As the Mass will be performed unabridged, amateurs may look forward to a very complete and, therefore, most valuable exposition of the Leipzig Cantor's great work.

"THE whirligig of time brings about its revenges," and here is a Dean of Gloucester announced to preach the special sermon at the forthcoming Festival.

Those who recall the state of things under Dean Law will get a vivid idea of contrast out of this. Dean Law, if he did not absolutely set his face against the Festival, invariably turned his back upon it and ran away. Of course, the inferior clergy, or some of them, imitated their chief, and on one occasion even removed their surplices, lest those garments should be tainted by complicity in an unholy deed. Then, who does not remember how a canon of Worcester was imported, ostensibly to preach in sympathy with the Festival, but, Balaam-like, took the opposite course, and provoked the late Dr. Wesley to "play out" with the Dead March in "Saul." All these troubles have vanished with the people who caused them, and now the Dean of Gloucester acts as a Festival steward, consents to preach the Festival sermon, and helps on the good cause in every way. Larger views come in with larger men.

We regard the production of "Frivoli" at Drury Lane Theatre as a sign of the times. Here is a shrewd manager, who has proved that he keeps his finger on the public pulse, bringing out a musical drama in costly fashion and at the most expensive house in London. "Frivoli," it is true, possesses very little merit. It has a poor story, worse dialogue, and indifferent music. But these defects are nothing to the point. The very existence of the work on Mr. Harris's stage proves to what a large extent the public affect comic opera. Their education, brought to this pitch, is not likely to stop, but will go on and presently embrace music of a better character. The time will soon come, indeed, for a venture with the lighter masterpieces of high-class French and German composers, and for the encouragement of such works among our native musicians. Hitherto contemporary English composers have restricted themselves to efforts in "grand" opera. They might with advantage drop this for a season and remember that the man who helps to raise a harmless and hearty laugh, as did Mozart and Cherubini—to name no others—is a benefactor of his species.

MR. TORRINGTON, who conducted the recent Musical Festival at Toronto, is a man with a will of his own. At the beginning of the proceedings it was agreed that encores should not be allowed. A beautiful harmony prevailed on the question, but there came a moment when everybody abandoned the pact save the Conductor. "Faithful among the faithless only he." This was how it happened:—A lady artist sang to the immense satisfaction of her audience, who, like audiences in general, disregarded rule, and clamoured for "that strain again." The lady returned, bowed and retired, but still the applause went on and on. Under these circumstances some of the committee had a happy thought. They would violate their own rule to gratify the crowd—that is to say, stultify themselves at the first opportunity on a question which, they must have known, was sure to arise. So these inconsistent though good-natured officials went to the artist and persuaded her to sing again. But they reckoned without the Conductor. The lady mounted the platform ready to "oblige," only to encounter resolute Mr. Torrington, who sent her back. He would keep to the agreement though the public clamoured, the committee prayed, and the singer was amiable. We should say that now the Conductor on the one side and the Toronto public on the other have arrived at a mutual understanding, which will ensure respect for rule hereafter. A Mr. Torrington is wanted amongst ourselves to bring about the same consummation in the same dauntless way.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

IN one respect the opera season at Covent Garden Theatre this year afforded an illustration of the Darwinian law of the survival of the fittest. Towards the close, the worn-out works of the Verdi-Donizetti school dropped out of the bills, and during the last three weeks the operas played were "Le Nozze di Figaro," "Don Giovanni," "Il Barbiere," "Faust," and "Lohengrin," a goodly list of masterpieces, differing greatly from one another, but each and all perfect in their way. The improvement in public taste having asserted itself so distinctly, it remains for some director with the necessary skill and tact to take the matter boldly in hand and re-establish opera on a firmer and purer basis than ever. Whether Signor Lago has strength sufficient for the task remains to be proved. He has not shown it yet, for the late performances were frequently noticeable for incompleteness in those departments wherein managerial ability is specially required. The old familiar abuses were as rank as ever; artists were permitted to quit their parts and bow and smile to the audience or take encores at the most inopportune moments, while unpunctuality in commencing and absurdly long entr'actes prevented many of the audience from remaining to the end on almost every occasion. The want of artistic conscientiousness was most conspicuously shown in the performances of "Lohengrin." Signor d'Andrade, who was to have taken the part of Telramund, was ill, and although M. Maurel, who has often played the character, was in the company, yet he was not called upon, and it was wholly excised, and with it, of course, a large portion of the part of Ortrud. Such treatment of Wagner's masterwork was nothing short of scandalous, and would not be tolerated abroad. While, however, the ensemble was generally very poor, individual performances of striking merit were by no means wanting. Beside those afforded by Madame Albani, the highest praise is deserved by Miss Ella Russell as Rosina, Signor Gayarré as Lohengrin, and M. Maurel as Figaro. The orchestra, consisting mainly of young and vigorous performers, was generally excellent, and the chorus, though small, was of better quality than in former years. It is said that the season has been financially successful, and that Signor Lago will continue the enterprise next year. Public support being forthcoming, it will therefore be inexcusable if the needful reforms are not initiated, and Italian opera made an artistic thing instead of a by-word and a reproach.

RICHTER CONCERTS.

THE ninth and last of these Concerts for the season took place on June 28, in St. James's Hall, the programme being exclusively occupied by Beethoven's Mass in D. It was expected that Bruckner's promised Symphony would then be given, consequent upon its postponement at the previous Concert; but for reasons which, doubtless, were good ones Mr. Richter had again to balk the anticipations of his audience, and Bruckner to remain still unheard. His time will come, probably, during the autumn series, and, if so, nobody will be much the worse for a few months' delay. The performance of the Mass was the best ever given under Mr. Richter's guidance in this country, the fact being due in part to better acquaintance with a difficult text, but mainly, we should say, to the wise course adopted in strengthening the chorus by the addition of a number of voices drawn from the Leeds Festival Choir. The fine, sonorous tones of the Yorkshire singers, combined with their characteristic energy of attack and sustaining power, effected a marvellous improvement. Indeed, save at Leeds in 1883, we never heard Beethoven's intricate and trying choral music given with better effect. The Londoners were stimulated by the presence of the Leeds people, a healthy emulation set in, and at times the results were quite startling as regards power and dash. We need scarcely add that a deep impression was made, or that something was done to weaken a common conviction that the Mass is impossible from any point of view embracing a thoroughly satisfactory interpretation. The orchestra did its important share of the work without challenging adverse criticism, and the solo quartet—Miss Marriott, Miss Lena Little, Mr. Winch, and Mr. Henschel—got through an arduous task as well as the most sanguine could have expected, looking at the character of the music. In this manner the season was brought to a satisfactory end, and nothing remained but to cheer the Conductor, which was heartily and deservedly done. It is to be feared that the series of Concerts was less successful, in a pecuniary sense, than usual, and, doubtless, the gentlemen most concerned will give the fact due consideration with a view to discover the cause and remove it.

The autumn series, to consist of three performances, will begin on October 23, and the usual summer series on April 25 next.

MR. CUSINS' CONCERT.

THE annual morning Concert given by Mr. Cusins took place at St. James's Hall on the 5th ult. An attractive miscellaneous programme was provided, and additional significance was given to the occasion by the presence of a full orchestra. Mr. Cusins appeared in the triple capacity of conductor, composer, and pianist, a prominent item being his Pianoforte Concerto in A minor. This work was, we believe, composed some twenty years ago, and it does not therefore represent Mr. Cusins' powers in their fullest maturity. Nor, to speak candidly, is it likely that it will ever attain popularity, as it lacks the one great charm of spontaneity or freshness of idea. Still it is by no means wholly wanting in effective points. The second subject of the first movement is melodious, and the second movement, a Romance, is written with refined taste. The Finale quasi Tarantella is unfortunately very weak and commonplace, thus leaving an unfavourable impression of the whole work. The Concert-giver was also represented by his Overture "Love's labour's lost." A new violinist, Señor Diaz Albertini, displayed considerable talent in a Concertstück in A, by Saint-Saëns. The rest of the programme, in which Madame Albani, Madame Scalchi, Mrs. Kendal, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Signor Del Puente took part, needs no comment.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

JULY has been a busy month for the pupils of the Royal College, the list of performances comprising a repetition of the "Water Carrier," the annual Chamber Concert given in Prince's Hall on the 14th, and two of the familiar fortnightly Concerts at the West Theatre of the Albert Hall. Mr. Price sustained the title role in the above-named opera with the same geniality that marked his first performance, besides showing a decided improvement in the matter of intonation, while a second hearing only confirmed our opinion of the impolicy of assigning the leading female part to a voice of the operatic-contralto calibre. The Concert of the 14th ult. was noticeable not merely for the happy choice of pieces performed, but for the exceedingly meritorious manner in which they were executed. Beethoven's String Quartet in D (Op. 18, No. 3), with which the Concert opened, was given with refinement and precision, the four players, Mr. Sutcliffe, Miss Donkersley, Mr. Kreuz, and Mr. Squire performing with a balance worthy of old hands. We have had occasion before this to speak in terms of high commendation of Miss Kellett's capabilities as a pianist, and her rendering of Schumann's exacting "Etudes Symphoniques" was marked by a greater breadth and warmth of expression than she has yet manifested. Nervousness obviously hampered her at the start, but much of the earlier and most of the latter portion of the work was admirably given. Miss Anna Russell has not a large voice, but its tones are of a sympathetic quality, her intonation is excellent, and her style pure, and on these grounds she is decidedly the most satisfactory of the soprano singers that we have yet heard at the Royal College. On this occasion her rendering, in English, of Giovannini's "Willst du dein Herz mir schenken" (generally and incorrectly ascribed to Bach) was a charming performance. Another welcome number in the programme was a selection from Schumann's "Märchen-Bilder," in which Mr. Kreuz, a promising young viola player, was heard to advantage. The Andante con variazioni from Spohr's Double Quartet (Op. 89) and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor also served to exhibit the proficiency of the College instrumentalists, while Messrs. Price, Ridding, and Fischer entered with great spirit into the dramatic Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord.

Revelation xiv. 13.

A SHORT (UNACCOMPANIED) ANTHEM.*

Composed by C. VILLIERS STANFORD.

Lento. pp poco. p

Soprano. Bless - ed, bless - ed, bless - ed are the dead . . which Alto. Bless - ed, bless - ed are the dead . . which Tenor. Bless - ed, bless - ed are the dead which Bass. Bless - ed, bless - ed are the dead . . which

ORGAN (for practice only). Lento. pp poco. p

die in the Lord, the dead . . which die in the Lord, bless - ed, die in the Lord, . . which die in the Lord, bless - ed, die in the Lord, the dead . . which die in the Lord, bless - ed, die in the Lord, the dead . . which die in the Lord, bless - ed,

bless - ed are the dead which die in the Lord, . .

bless - ed are the dead which die in the Lord, . . for they bless - ed are . . the dead which die in the Lord, . . for they rest, they bless - ed are the dead which die in the Lord, . . for they rest, they

* Sung at the Funeral of Mr. HENRY BRADSHAW in King's College Chapel, Cambridge, on February 15, 1886.
The Musical Times, No. 522.

for they rest from their la - bours, they rest from their la - rest from their la bours, they rest from their la rest, rest from their la bours, they rest from their la rest, rest from their la bours, they rest, they mf - bours, they rest, . . they rest from their la bours, p and their works, .

mf - bours, they rest, . . they rest from their la bours, p and their works, .

mf - bours, they rest . . from their la bours, mp and their works, .

rest, they rest from their la bours, and their and their works fol - low them, p their their works fol - low them, . . their

their works fol - low them, . . their works, their works fol - low them, p their

Più lento.

pp

works fol - low them. . . Bless - ed, bless - ed, bless - ed

works fol - low them. . . Bless - ed, bless - ed, bless - ed

works fol - low them. . . Bless - ed, bless - ed, bless - ed works fol - low them. . . Bless - ed, bless - ed, bless - ed

Più lento.

pp

are . . the dead which die in . . the Lord,

are . . the dead which die in the Lord, which die in the Lord,

are . . the dead which die . . in . . the Lord, which die in the Lord, are the dead which die in the Lord, which die in the Lord,

Tempo lmo.

rall.

for they rest from their la - bours, they rest from their la - bours.

for they rest from their la - bours, they rest from their la - bours.

for they rest from their la - bours, they rest from their la - bours.

for they rest from their la - bours, they rest from their la - bours.

Tempo lmo.

rall.

NOTE.—Part of the melody of "Agnus ad virginem" is included in this Anthem. The tune, which dates at least from the fourteenth century, and which is mentioned in Chaucer as sung by the "Clerk of Oxenford," was given to me by Mr. Henry Bradshaw in 1882.—C. V. S.

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace.

August 1, 1883.

FULL ANTHEM FOR FOUR VOICES.

Isaiah xxvi. 3.

Composed by T. TALLIS TRIMNELL, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Andante con moto.

SOPRANO.

ALTO.

TENOR.

BASS.

Andante con moto.

ORGAN.

♩ = 96.

peace, per - fect peace,

whose mind

is stay - ed on Thee, ..

peace, per - fect peace,

whose mind

is stay - ed on Thee,

peace, per - fect peace, whose mind is stay'd,

is stay - ed on Thee,

peace, per - fect peace,

whose mind

is stay - ed on Thee,

Thou wilt keep him, wilt

Thou wilt keep him in per - fect peace, in peace, whose mind, ..

Thou wilt keep him, wilt keep him in per - fect peace, per - fect peace, in peace, whose

Thou wilt keep him, wilt keep him in per - fect peace, per - fect peace, in peace, whose keep him in per - fect peace, Thou wilt keep him in per - fect peace, in peace, whose whose mind is stay - ed on Thee: be - mind . . . is stay - ed on Thee: be - mind . . . is stay - ed on Thee: be - cause he trust - eth in Thee, be - mind is stay - ed on Thee: be - cres. p cres. cres.

- cause he trust - eth in Thee, he trust - eth in Thee, he - cause he trust - eth in

- cause he trust - eth in Thee, be - cause he trust - eth in

- cause he trust - eth in Thee, be - cause he trust - eth in

- cause he trust - eth in Thee, be - cause he trust - eth, he trust - eth in cres. cen. cres. cen. cres. cen. cres. cen.

do. Thee, he trust - eth in Thee. Thou wilt keep him in per - fect peace, do. Thee, he trust - eth in Thee. Thou wilt keep him in per - fect peace, dim.

do. Thee, he trust - eth in Thee. Thou wilt keep him in per - fect, in per - fect peace, in per - fect do. Thee, he trust - eth in Thee. Thou wilt keep him in per - fect peace, f dim.

peace, per - fect peace, whose mind is stay - ed on Thee: be - peace, per - fect peace, whose mind is stay - ed on Thee: be - peace, per - fect peace, whose mind is stay - ed on Thee: be - cause he peace, per - fect peace, whose mind is stay - ed on Thee: be -

- cause he trust - eth, he trust - eth, he trust - eth in Thee, be - cause he trust - eth in
- cause he trust - eth, he trust - eth, he trust - eth in Thee, be - cause he trust - eth in trust - eth, he trust - eth, he trust - eth in Thee, be - cause he trust - eth in
- cause he trust - eth in Thee, be - cause he trust - eth in Thee. A - - - - - men, A - - - - - men.

Thee. A - - - - - men, A - - - - - men.
Thee. A - - - - - men, A - - - - - men.
Thee. A - - - - - men, A - - - - - men.

feeling of Meyerbeer's trio, "Pensa e guarda" ("Margherita d'Anjou").

The College Concert of the 22nd, with which the summer season closed, served to bring to a public hearing two original compositions by pupils of the institution—a Piano-forte Concerto, by Mr. Charles Wood, and a setting of "O Salutaris hostia," for chorus and string orchestra, by Miss Annie Fry. The former work is of a most elaborate and ambitious order, full of cleverness, but over luxuriant in detail, while Miss Fry's composition is simple and pleasing throughout. Excellent performances of Sterndale Bennett's beautiful "Naiads" Overture and Schumann's Symphony in D minor (No. 4) opened and concluded a most enjoyable Concert.

MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

TRUE to the new, and as it would seem successful policy adopted this season, Mr. Leslie secured some artists of the highest eminence to support the programme of his last Concert on the 30th ult. Madame Albani contributed the lovely prayer from "The Spectre's Bride," and "Let the bright Seraphim"; Mr. Santley sang Purcell's fine air "Let the dreadful engines," and Mr. Lloyd the Prelied from "Die Meistersinger"; and M. de Pachmann played pianoforte solos by Raff and Chopin. Thus the scheme partook of the nature of a high-class miscellaneous Concert, and if the once famous choir is no longer a sufficient attraction in itself, no blame can attach to the conductor for seeking to win the public by other means. But it is open to question whether the fault does not lie nearer home. Now that the season is over, no hesitation need be felt in stating that the Leslie Choir requires serious reorganisation if it is to maintain a position even by the side of the other leading choral bodies of the metropolis. Voices do not last for ever and, to put it in the most delicate way, a glance at the orchestra suggested the reason why the pitch was not maintained, and why the quality of tone was not good. Besides selections from the familiar repertory, two new part-songs were included in the programme; "Rove not to the Rhine," by Mr. J. C. Ward, did not make much impression, perhaps owing to an imperfect rendering; but "All is peace," by Mr. Berthold Tours, is a charming little composition, and will assuredly be heard again.

PRINCE'S HALL.

THE Chamber Concerts given by three Italian artists, Signor Cesi, Signor Papini, and Signorina Barbi, on the 12th and 17th ult., would have received greater attention had they taken place at a more favourable period of the year. The idea seemed to be to present examples of chamber music, vocal and instrumental, in historical order. Thus at the first Concert, solos by no fewer than seventeen composers were included, commencing with Frescobaldi, 1587-1654, and including D. Scarlatti, Couperin, Rameau, Bach, Handel, Graun, Jomelli, Mozart, and Rossini, with Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata as an effective finale. At the second Concert thirteen modern composers were represented, but the only work of importance was Schumann's Sonata in A minor for piano and violin, Op. 105. Signor Cesi is the leading professor of the pianoforte at the Naples Conservatoire, and is an executant of great ability. He gave most satisfaction, however, in pieces requiring light and delicate treatment, as in others he put forward a great deal of superfluous energy, and his tone became hard and unpleasant. Very few pianists can fall into the Erckles' vein without damage to themselves as artists. Signor Papini's capacity as a violinist is too well known to need discussion, and we have had occasion more than once to speak in favourable terms of the vocal powers of Signorina Barbi. Her powerful mezzo-soprano voice has been well trained, and she sings with much expression. The audiences at these Concerts consisted mainly of foreigners, who expressed their satisfaction in a very demonstrative fashion.

MR. SAM FRANKO'S CONCERT.

By the co-operation of such artists as Madame Haas, Miss Carlotta Elliott, and Mr. Henschel, Mr. Sam Franko, a clever violinist from New York, was enabled to offer a varied and interesting programme to the somewhat sparse but not unappreciative audience congregated in the Steinway Hall on the evening of the 16th ult. Mr. Franko's own selections were, with the exception of Goldmark's graceful but unmeaning Suite, more calculated to display technical dexterity than the command of sympathetic expression. As an executant, his performance of Moszkowski's tawdry Ballade, and, better still, of Corelli's Variations Sérieuses, proved him to be entitled to serious consideration. A word of praise is due to his intonation, which, except in one or two rare cases, was exceedingly true. Mr. Henschel sang and accompanied himself in his usual masterly and intellectual fashion in Loewe's "Die verfallene Mühle," and three songs from his own cyclus, "Der Trompeter von Säkkingen"; Miss Carlotta Elliott gave Schumann's "Frühlingsnacht," an insipid French ballad entitled "Pauvre Jacques," and Goring Thomas's graceful "Nuit d'été"—the last in her best style; and Madame Haas contributed two pieces by Chopin.

MUSIC IN THE WEST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE annual Festival of the Bristol Church Choral Union took place in the Cathedral on the evening of the 1st ult., when a larger number of choirs took part than on any previous occasion, and the manner in which the musical service was rendered showed commendable progress. The choirs, numbering in the aggregate about 720 voices, were as follows:—Cantoris, Fishponds, Frenchey, Ashton Gate, St. John's (Bedminster), St. Paul's (Bedminster), St. Saviour's (Woolcott Park), Emmanuel (Clifton), St. Mary's (Tyndall's Park), St. Paul's (Clifton), and Christ Church (Clifton). Decani, Eastville Mission Church, St. Michael's (Bishopston), Horfield, St. Mark's (Lower Easton), St. Barnabas', St. Andrew's (Montpelier), St. James's, St. George's (Brandon Hill), St. Augustine's, St. Stephen's, St. Nicholas, and St. Mary Redcliffe. The Preces and Responses were Tallis's; the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were sung to J. Bamby in E and G; and the two anthems were "Rejoice in the Lord," by John Redford, which was unaccompanied and admirably rendered, and Dr. Garrett's "Praise the Lord," in which the tenor solo was taken by Mr. Morgan. Mr. John Barrett, the Conductor for the year, directed the singing, and Mr. George Riseley was the Organist. The manner in which the service was rendered throughout was deserving of high praise, and seemed thoroughly appreciated by the very large congregation.

On the evening of the 22nd ult. a number of ladies and gentlemen, members of the musical profession, assembled by invitation at the Imperial Hotel, White Ladies' Road, Bristol, to hear from Mr. J. Brotherhood, C.E., of Canada (who is a native of Bristol), an explanation of the "Technicon," an apparatus for hand development in pianoforte playing. Mr. John Barrett having introduced Mr. Brotherhood, the latter said that the apparatus might be new to them, but it had been in use elsewhere, and was explained and illustrated at the Royal College at South Kensington and at the Guildhall School of Music. What he desired to accomplish by means of his invention was to make the hand sensitively responsive to the brain, and a struggling pianoforte player, who tried to overcome the difficulties of modern compositions, must make the hand obey the mind. The "Technicon," as developing technique, was explained, and its merits in developing the hand for pianoforte playing were shown by Mr. Brotherhood, who seemed to have studied muscular action, and displayed the resources of his invention in a manner that greatly interested the auditors. He stated that the best way to use the apparatus was before practising the instrument, as the executive power should be kept in advance of the interpretive power. In reply to a question as to whether the greatest executants had not succeeded independently of mechanical aid, he said probably they had, but how many Liszts and Thalbergs could be found? It was stated, incidentally, that by means of the "Technicon," the sensitiveness of touch on the part of blind persons had been increased. At the close of Mr. Brotherhood's remarks, the thanks of the meeting were tendered to him on the motion of Mr. George Riseley, seconded by Mr.

F. Huxtable, for the clearness with which he had explained his apparatus.

On the same evening a meeting was held at the house of Canon Percival to consider the best means of assisting the Saturday Popular Concerts, which provide good music for the people at a very low price. Canon Percival having said that it was only due to recognise the efforts of Mr. George Gordon, the enterprising Conductor of these Concerts, and his colleagues, by relieving them of any financial anxiety, Mr. Gordon proceeded to explain the working of the Concerts, and contended that it was highly desirable to continue their plan of having 2,000 threepenny seats, in order to bring the entertainment within the reach of the working classes. There is at present a deficit of £200, towards the defraying of which, however, £80 has already been promised in subscriptions. The loss annually has hitherto been £125, and Mr. Gordon therefore suggested that if this amount could be guaranteed the Concerts might be placed on a firm basis. It was finally resolved to make a special effort to wipe off the debt, and then to endeavour to raise such annual subscriptions as would ensure the efficient carrying on of these Concerts; and for this purpose an Executive Committee was formed, with Canon Percival as president.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW AND THE WEST OF SCOTLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE music one hears in the neighbourhood of Glasgow during the summer months is discoursed out of doors. In Glasgow itself it is provided in the public parks, where, on certain evenings of the week, very fair performances are given of dance or fantasia pieces with the lighter overtures. As a general rule, the class of music might be higher.

A remarkable experiment in the way of Concert giving was tried on the evening of the 9th ult. The public were invited to sail to Coulpont, a quiet landing place on the Clyde, some twenty-five miles from Glasgow, to hear a performance by the West of Scotland Choral Union of "The Messiah" on a hill side, and the weather being fine, a very large number of persons, four or five steamers being required, availed themselves of the opportunity to hear Handel under such peculiar circumstances. About half of the oratorio was gone through under the bâton of Mr. H. A. Lambeth, and the accompaniments were played by Mr. W. H. Cole's band. The effect on the still evening was very fine, and the experiment is to be repeated.

Under the auspices of the Ayr Burns Club, an open-air Concert was given on the 17th ult. The programme consisted chiefly of songs by the poet, sung to the melodies commonly associated with them, in harmony of four parts, the Concert taking place on the "Braes o' Doon," in the neighbourhood of Burns' Cottage and Monument; 450 choralists, together with some members of the band of the Royal Scots Fusiliers, taking part in it. The harmonies were of a plain, broad character, as was perhaps best under the circumstances, but yet more expression might have been imparted, the delivery being too uniformly metronomic and precise. With the aid of the instruments, judiciously disposed as they were, the pitch of the voices never dropped, of course, while the enunciation was very distinct, the words being quite plainly heard at a considerable distance away. The Concert was conducted by Mr. J. Butler Cowap, Organist of Ayr Parish Church, and selections were performed by the military band under Mr. H. J. O'Neill. The day was a remarkably fine one, the beautiful surrounding scenery of sea, hill, and dale being thus seen to the best advantage. It is estimated that about 12,000 persons were present, many coming from Glasgow.

MUSIC IN OXFORD.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE summer term closed with a series of Concerts, though unfortunately, in more than one instance, two Concerts were, with singular want of foresight, arranged for the same day. This was the case with those given on Midsummer Day, by Pembroke and Keble Colleges. At the latter Schumann's "Requiem for Mignon" and C. H.

Lloyd's "Song of Balder" were the principal items in the programme, Miss Bertha Moore, as the soprano soloist, achieving a very considerable success.

On June 28 the Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Schumann's "Paradise and the Peri," in the Sheldonian Theatre, of which it is difficult for us, who hold that it is the duty of a critic to seek occasion for praise rather than for censure, to speak at all. We should, however, fail to do justice to the unfortunate audience if we did not enter a protest against Concert-giving in which the performers scarcely profess acquaintance with the music they are announced to interpret. Having said so much, we gladly remit this unfortunate performance to the oblivion in which all concerned must wish it securely buried.

On the following day Concerts were given at Christ Church and at New College. At the former Max Bruch's "Frithjof" and at the latter Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty" were performed. Both were successful. Mr. Cowen's Cantata naturally suffered very much from the want of an orchestra, and it is difficult to understand why it should have been condemned to appear under such a drawback; the manner in which it was sung, however, was admirable.

On June 30 Magdalen College gave a Concert, in which, as usual, glees and madrigals, mainly of the English school, were relied on to give interest to the programme. A performance of level excellence was given, and the quartet of Academical Clerks was as effective as usual.

In conclusion, some notice must be taken of the fresh initiative taken during the past year by Mr. John Farmer, who has become Organist of Balliol College. It is understood that his design is mainly educational, and that he proposes to make music more an integral part of college life than it has hitherto been. Time only can show what success will attend his efforts. As for the means, various classes for singing and orchestral practice have been formed, and two performances, on an average, have been given every week. Up to the present time all the best features in these performances have been imported from outside, but should Mr. Farmer succeed in his scheme, we may expect to see more Balliol names amongst the performers. The close of the first year's work was celebrated by two Concerts, one of songs and ballads, the other consisting of a portion of Mr. Farmer's "Christ and His Soldiers" and the whole of his "Requiem."

WELSH EISTEDDFODAU.

THIS year the National Eisteddfod of Wales, held last year at Aberdare, will go to North Wales again. The meetings are fixed for September 14, 15, 16, and 17 at Carnarvon. The musical adjudicators include Mr. E. Prout, Mr. John Thomas, Mr. D. Jenkins, and Mr. J. H. Roberts. The band contest will not be among the least important events, although the prize offered, £20, is not so large as in some of the leading competitions. The test piece is Verdi's "Rigoletto." There will be three choral competitions. For the best rendering by choirs of from 120 to 150 voices of—(a) "Lord, our Redeemer" (Bach's "Passion, St. John"), (b) "See what love hath the Father" (Mendelssohn's "St. Paul"), and two other test pieces, a prize of £100 and a bâton for the Conductor are offered. There is also a second prize of £20. There will be three test pieces, one to be selected by each competing choir in the second choral competition, in which event £40 is offered as first prize, as well as a silver medal, and £10 as a second prize. The third choral contest will be confined to choirs of male voices numbering from forty to sixty. Prize £25 and a silver medal. A number of vocal and instrumental solo competitions are to take place, and several important prizes have been offered for compositions.

The National Eisteddfod will be held next year, it is understood, in London. Referring to this fact, a correspondent to the Times wrote in July as follows:—"In the rites and ceremonies of the old British meeting, there will be found much of antique interest. The greatest interest, however, will be centred in the competitions, in which both the competitors and the audience will find a lively concern. Amongst recent supporters of the National Eisteddfod may be mentioned such men as Lord Aberdare, Dean Vaughan, and Archdeacon Griffith. Mr. Matthew Arnold found his way to Aberdare last year, and essayed to deliver an opposite speech to a large assemblage of his Celtic and other friends. It is desirable that a lingering supposition on the part of some of the inhabitants of Wales that English people properly only regard the institution with ridicule should be dispelled. There is a great disposition on the part of English residents in Wales to attend the old meetings, especially as a great part of the proceedings is now conducted in the English language. Public matters are open to public criticism, and Eisteddfodau cannot be exempted from the rule. The fact that they are of Celtic origin does not save the institutions of modern Wales from criticism if they deserve it. It cannot be gainsaid that Eisteddfodau, however good the fundamental principle of competitive meetings may be, have frequently resulted in disgraceful squabbles, and that room has thus been afforded for remarks not altogether congratulatory. It must be recollected that the competitions are entered into on certain specified conditions, and the adjudicators are appointed by the Welshmen themselves. It might well be asked why, therefore, should Welshmen so often rebel? Have they no faith in themselves? Are they not courageous enough to accept defeat where defeat is more likely perhaps than victory? The coming of the National Eisteddfod to London, also suggests the fact that English writers have before now spoken of the Eisteddfod in appreciative terms, and have even recommended the adoption of an annual gathering, on similar lines, but with modified arrangements, so as to make it in some way representative of the British Empire."

A musical Eisteddfod was held at Aberdare Market-place on the 12th ult. The prizes and expenses amounted to nearly £200, and about 3,000 persons were admitted to the hall. The President and Conductor was Rev. B. Evans, who alluded to the appreciatory statements in the Times, in reference to the next National Eisteddfod to be held at London, and expressed the opinion that there was no prejudice on the part of English people towards the Eisteddfod now. He hoped indeed that everything would be done to render that meeting a thorough success. The adjudicators were Dr. J. Farmer, Mr. David Jenkins, Aberystwith; Mr. J. T. Rees, Mr. T. Martin, Birmingham (brass band contest); Mr. J. Bryant, Llantwit Vardre (harp-playing). Pianist, Mr. R. Howells, Aberdare. Brass Band Contest.—Test piece, "The Heavens are telling," first prize, £10, Mountain Ash Brass Band. Second prize, £5, Ferndale. Choral Competition, "Then round about the starry throne." Capcoph Choir took the prize of £10, and the Conductor received £1. Chief Choral Competition. Prize £100. Test piece, "Thanks be to God." Three choirs competed, and the prize was divided between Aberdare Choral Union and Mountain Ash Harmonic Society. Dr. Farmer spoke in a very eulogistic manner of the natural vocal abilities of the Welsh; and, at his request, the three choirs united (under his leadership) repeated the test piece.

THE TORONTO MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

THIS great Festival, which commenced on June 15, has proved a phenomenal success, a result due in a great measure to the energy displayed by all who had the arrangement of the details of the undertaking, but more especially to the unwearied exertions of the Conductor, Mr. Torrington, whose work in training choir and orchestra cannot be over-estimated. From the voluminous notices of the local press, all of which are most enthusiastic in praise both of the works performed and their rendering, we select the following, commencing with the Toronto World:—

"Who that was present at the opening Concert of the Musical Festival last night will ever forget the scene that charmed him? The mammoth building was filled by nearly three thousand people, among whom were hundreds of Toronto's very best citizens. . . . Gounod, the composer of 'Death and Life,' or 'Mors et Vita,' as it is called in the Latin score, stands pre-eminent among our modern composers. His wonderful powers are not confined to oratorio alone, but have developed in almost every direction in musical composition. . . . The performance last night was given by the largest body of singers ever brought together at one time in the city of Toronto, and the result of the opening Concert of our first Musical Festival must have been gratifying to not only those who listened, but also to those who have taken an active part in developing the scheme. The chorus was pretty evenly divided as regards the four parts, and gave evidence of thorough practice. They sang well together, and showed an attention to the lights and shades which was truly gratifying. The difficult intervals which occur in many parts were very creditably taken, and their attention to the conductor's bâton added greatly to the success of their singing. The soloists who took part, most of whom had been heard in Toronto before, are of high reputation. The soprano solos were about evenly divided between Mrs. E. Aline Osgood and Mrs. Gertrude Luther, and these ladies joined in the various quartets which are interspersed throughout the work with Miss Agnes Huntington (alto), Mr. A. L. King (tenor), and Mr. Max Heinrich (baritone), who each had solos as well."

Of the opening Concert, and the performance of Gounod's Oratorio, the Toronto Evening Mail says:—

"With a massive chorus, large orchestra, solo singers of continental reputation, and Mr. Archer at the organ, the oratorio was produced under most favourable circumstances for bringing out whatever elements of power and interest it contained. Some remarkable effects were obtained, for instance, by the chorus in the 'Day of Anger,' and 'Which once to Abraham,' which would not have been so apparent from a small body of voices. Speaking generally, as it is only possible to do under the present circumstances, it may be said that the singing of the chorus was admirable. The volume of tone was magnificent, while in regard to firmness, accuracy, and steadiness it would be difficult to say in what city on this side of the Atlantic better choral singing has been heard on a similar occasion. The solo singers gave, on the whole, such an interpretation to their numbers as would be expected from soloists of their reputation. The chorus and quartet 'While the wicked are confounded,' in which Mrs. Osgood took the solo soprano, created the principal expression of the evening. It excited so much applause that Mr. Torrington allowed it to be repeated."

And in a glowing notice in the Globe we read:—

"The opening chords of 'Mors et Vita' at once struck the audience with their solemnity, the effect being heightened by the terribly emphatic 'A fearful thing,' which was the first idea the audience could gather of the tremendous force of the union singing of such a chorus. The chorus gained in favour with each effort, and it was gradually forced on the listeners that here was one that possessed all the elements which characterise the trained body of veterans. Few would think that it had been in training only five months. Chorus after chorus was sung with increasing effect, and when the music permitted it was received with enthusiastic applause. The public enthusiasm rose to such a height at the close of the quartet and chorus 'While the wicked are confounded' that the rule 'no encores' was perforce broken."

The Matinée on the following afternoon was numerously attended, an excellent programme being provided, in which the principal singers took part. In the evening Handel's 'Israel in Egypt' was given, of the performance of which, and the presentation to Mr. Torrington, the Toronto Evening Mail gives the following account:—

"The Festival Hall was crowded in the evening by an audience of nearly three thousand people. Handel's oratorio 'Israel in Egypt' was most successfully produced, the performance of both chorus and soloists being most excellent. The choral event, if anything, was more satisfactory than that of the previous evening. The popular choruses 'The Hailstone Chorus,' 'The horse and his rider,' 'But the waters overwhelmed their enemies' produced all their wonted effect, and the first mentioned number was repeated in response to the plaudits of the audience. The features of excellence which were noticed in the performance of the chorus in the 'Mors et Vita' Concert were equally conspicuous last night. In the solo numbers, the principal success was won by Miss Huntington. Her aria, 'Thou shalt bring them in,' was a striking example of smooth and dignified singing, the effect of which gained an added charm by the beauty of her voice. This number was repeated in response to the rapturous cries of encore from the audience. Mr. Babcock's aria, 'Wave from wave,' was finely sung and elicited much applause. Owing to indisposition, Mr. Heinrich did not sing, and his place was taken in the duet 'The Lord is a Man of War' by Mr. Warrington. This duet aroused quite an exhibition of enthusiasm, which was renewed when Mr. Babcock was seen to shake hands with our local representative. Mr. Warrington, although called upon at such short notice, rendered the music with Mr. Babcock very effectively, and fairly won the recognition his singing received. Both Mr. King and Mrs. Osgood sang their respective solos in a thoroughly satisfactory manner. During the intermission Mr. Torrington was presented by Mr. Blight, on behalf of the chorus, with a clock and pair of bronze statuettes, accompanied by an address expressing the appreciation by the members of the chorus of his great services in promoting the interests of the Festival and the cause of music generally. Mr. Torrington responded in brief but felicitous terms. The presentation evoked a series of loud cheers from the chorus."

From Truth we quote a notice of the closing performance of the Festival:—

"The Children's Jubilee, on Thursday evening, was a fitting finale to the series of successes which characterised the whole Festival. The school chorus numbered over 1,400 singers. This immense number of children, the girls arrayed in pretty white dresses and the boys in black, and arranged tier on tier to the very roof of the lofty hall, was an inspiring and never to be forgotten sight. It alone was worth the price of admission. The singing of the children was simply marvellous. The most difficult passages were perfectly rendered, the pianissimo and staccato parts being particularly fine. But the climax was reached in the rendering of Mr. Torrington's stirring and dashing national air 'Canada,' which appeared in Truth when first composed. This piece was sung with wondrous zest, and at the end of the last verse the singers suddenly produced a tiny Union Jack and with the precision of one person waved the flag aloft, at the same time giving vent to a spontaneous cheer. The effect upon the audience was electrical. Hundreds rose to their feet shouting 'Encore!' 'Encore!' The 'Action Song,' directed by Mrs. J. L. Hughes, was also rapturously received."

In an article, headed "What ought to grow out of our Festival," the Globe suggests that the Musical Committee connected with this undertaking should be formed into a permanent Musical Festival Association, that a Music Hall should be erected in Toronto, and an orchestra established. Assuredly such an idea is worthy of serious consideration.

OBITUARY.

JOHN TEMPLETON.—Readers of musical magazines which belong to ancient history are familiar with the name of John Templeton, a tenor vocalist, who, half a century ago, filled a conspicuous place before the public. They must have been greatly surprised on discovering, a few weeks since, that the artist in question had been peacefully living out his life in the village of New Hampton down to the 2nd ult., when he passed away at the age of 84. Templeton long survived his fame and even knowledge of his existence. He spent his last years in peaceful retirement, "the world forgetting, by the world forgot," and only on very rare occasions did he emerge therefrom. Once or twice the writer of this notice had the good fortune to meet him in society, and to enjoy a companionship which was not without much charm. Templeton was a fine, handsome old man, upright of carriage, having a clear, rosy complexion, bright eyes, and the bearing of a gentleman. He lived almost entirely in the past, and from the storehouse of an excellent memory drew, on occasion, a wealth of anecdote made the more acceptable by a racy Scottish accent and the gifts of a raconteur. Malibran was his heroine, as he was once "Malibran's tenor," and to hear Templeton talk about that gifted lady was to draw very near to her indeed. The link is now broken, but it may be said of the old man that he sustained to the last the dignity of an artist, and died in honour and esteem. Templeton's public career is not of much interest now, and a few words will suffice for it. Born in Riccarton, Ayrshire, in 1802, he made his London début at Drury Lane, October, 1831, and rapidly passed to a high position. Malibran selected him to appear in opera with her, and for years he was an indispensable man —so much indispensable that he played both at Drury Lane and Covent Garden on the same night. He is represented as having had a fine voice and a bright attractive manner, but, anyhow, he became a public favourite and reached the height of a singer's ambition. On leaving the stage, Templeton gave entertainments after the manner of Henry Russell, and made a very successful tour in America, the incidents of which he took pleasure in narrating. This having secured him a modest competency, he retired into private life, fixing his residence at New Hampton, and cultivating his garden with the serenity of a philosopher who can afford to let the noisy world go by.

THE Midsummer Examinations of the College of Organists were held on the 13th ult. for Fellowship, and on the 14th and 15th for Associateship. The following gentlemen acted as examiners: Dr. C. J. Frost, Dr. E. J. Hopkins, Mr. W. S. Hoyte, Dr. C. Warwick Jordan, Dr. Haydn Keeton, Dr. G. C. Martin, Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. Dyer, Dr. F. E. Gladstone, Mr. James Higgs, Mus. Bac., Mr. Walter Parratt, Mr. C. E. Stephens, and Mr. E. H. Turpin. In the unavoidable absence of Sir R. P. Stewart, Mr. C. E. Stephens distributed the diplomas at the Neumeyer Hall, on the 16th ult. The following is the list of successful candidates:—Fellowship (forty-six examined)—F. Broad, Wokingham; F. Dewberry, Mus. Bac., Cambridge; J. F. Flitcroft, Bolton; R. Y. Mander, Leamington; J. H. Pearson, Brighouse; C. J. Wood, Croydon. Associateship (eighty-four examined)—J. E. Adkins, Belgravia; A. T. Arkless, Newcastle-on-Tyne; W. G. Bayley, Romford; E. F. Barker, Kentish Town; J. G. Barker, Matlock Bath; R. P. Barclay, Stapleton, Bristol; W. Crompton, Farnworth; W. Edwards, Hanley; F. de G. English, Godalming; A. H. Essam, Kettering; J. Hurst, Tollington Park; Miss E. L. McKnight, Enfield; W. H. Maxfield, Bowden; A. Pearson, Huddersfield; F. A. Sewell, Belgravia; W. Stansfield, Dudley; R. Steggall, Notting Hill; F. H. Stokes, Kentish Town; R. H. Whall, Chelsea; W. O. West, Manchester.

We have received a circular from Mr. Augustus Charles Köhler, advocating the adoption of a national musical pitch in accordance with that established at the School of Music, Kneller Hall—viz., C 542 or A 455 vibrations. The reasons he brings forward for this are that the only recognised musical pitch at present possessing any authority in this country is the "Regulation" Army pitch, as given above, to which all military musical instruments used in the bands of Her Majesty's Guards, Artillery, Engineers, Cavalry, and Infantry have for years been tuned; and also that tens of thousands of band instruments used by Volunteer Corps, Village and Factory Bands, &c., not only in the United Kingdom, but throughout India, the West Indies, Australia, South Africa, and the Colonies are already furnished with complete sets of instruments regulated to the Kneller pitch. Of course this is a powerful argument, but we must not forget that vocalists will have something to say on the subject; and the recent meeting at St. James's Hall sufficiently proves that this is a matter which cannot be authoritatively decided even by the most carefully selected musical committees.

THE annual meeting of the corporation of the Royal College of Music took place on the 3rd ult. in the West Theatre, Albert Hall, the Duke of Westminster presiding, and the report for the year, ending April 30, revealed a very flourishing state of affairs as regards attendance, finance, and general achievement. The Montreal Scholarship has recently been filled up, and the competition for nineteen open scholarships in the Spring was marked by a higher standard of excellence than that reached at the previous examination. The election of five executants on wind instruments has greatly strengthened the orchestra, rendering it almost independent of external aid. Amongst the more personal announcements of the meeting we may mention the election of Mr. Carl Rosa to the Council, the acceptance by Mr. Henschel of a temporary engagement on the teaching staff, and the offer of Madame Lind-Goldschmidt, which the Council have accepted, to take two of her pupils, Misses Albu and Belcher, to Italy for purposes of study.

On Wednesday, 7th, and on Sundays, 11th and 18th ult., special services were held at Holy Trinity, Lincoln's-inn-Fields, in connection with the Restoration of the church, sermons being preached by Revs. F. F. Goe, Canon Nisbet, T. Webster, Dr. Wace, of Lincoln's Inn, and by the Vicar, Rev. N. Bromley. During the last three months great improvements have taken place—the west gallery has been removed, and the organ and choir assigned their proper places in the chancel. A handsome painted window has also been inserted at the expense of J. Bateman, Esq., an old friend and churchwarden. The choir was augmented on each occasion, and rendered very efficiently “The Lord is my strength” (Lowe), “As pants the hart” (Spohr), and “Hear my prayer” (Mendelssohn). The soprano solos in the works named were sung by Miss Margaret Hoare in so finished a style as to create a profound impression on the congregation. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Miss Cope, Organist of the church.

THE Annual Fête of the London Sunday School Choir took place at the Crystal Palace on June 30, and was in every respect highly successful. The muster of chorists was much greater than on any former occasion, the gigantic orchestra not being able to seat them all, so that the alleys and approaches were filled, and there was also a throng around the entrances to the rear benches. The body of tone was extremely good; and all the pieces—especially “See the Conqueror,” by J. S. Wiseman, G. Merritt's Anthem “Cry aloud and shout,” and Sir George Elvey's “Crown Him with many crowns”—were sung with careful attention to light and shade; “O Father, Whose Almighty power” (“Judas Maccabæus”) save in the balance of parts, being also an excellent example of vigorous and steady choral singing. Every praise is due to Mr. Luther Hinton, who conducted the choir to perfection. The vocal music was effectively relieved by instrumental selections, conducted by Mr. Oscar Barrett.

On Saturday evening, the 24th ult., the members of the Royal Academy of Music Operatic Class brought the summer term to a close with the performance of a new operetta in two acts, entitled “The Two Polts,” libretto by W. Herbert Scott, music by J. Edward German. The work, which occupied more than two hours in representation, was given from first to last with most commendable taste and skill, and met with the utmost favour on all sides. Mr. Musgrove Tufnail was successful in a high degree in his personation of the principal character in the piece, while Mrs. Wilson, Miss Annie Dwellley, Mr. Lawrence Kellie, Mr. Theo. Moss, and Mr. Frank Holt rendered very valuable aid in their respective parts. Several encores were demanded and complied with; the performance, no less than the composition of the entire work, being of a deservedly successful nature.

THE St. Mark's (Notting Hill) Choral Society gave its first Concert on the 22nd ult., at St. Mark's Hall, before a large audience. The first part was devoted to a selection from Costa's “Eli,” the vocalists being Miss E. Clarke, Madame West, Mr. W. A. Philpott, and Mr. F. Blake. The second part was miscellaneous, the principal features being Miss Clarke's rendering of H. Smart's “Maid of the Sea” and “The Wedding Day” (both encores), Madame West's expressive singing of a Berceuse (“Sweet and low”), and “The Man of War” admirably sung by Mr. F. W. Philpott. The choruses and part-songs were rendered with great precision and expression, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Philpott, who conducted with much care and ability. Miss E. House and Mr. Warren Tear ably presided at the pianoforte and harmonium.

MR. ERNEST BIRCH, assisted by Miss Mary Davies and Miss Hope Glenn, gave a most successful Recital, on June 28, at Steinway Hall. A special word of commendation is due to the songs “My true love hath my heart” and “Toil and rest,” composed by Mr. Birch and sung to perfection by Miss Mary Davies and Miss Hope Glenn respectively. Mr. Birch's varied selections afforded ample proof of his ability as a first rate artist, and he was repeatedly recalled by a numerous and appreciative audience. The violoncello solos of Mr. Stern, and the imitations of Mr. George Grossmith, added to the success of the Matinée.

THE Royal Normal College for the Blind has had three important gatherings in the grounds and large hall of the building during the past month. On the 10th the Duke and Duchess of Westminster attended to grace the Prize Festival, on which occasion the pupils, 175 in number, exhibited their skill in pianoforte repairing and tuning, in gymnastic games and exercises, and also in a Concert of high-class music, the remarkable musical ability and training of the pupils in both vocal and instrumental performances eliciting frequent expressions of applause from a large and distinguished audience. On the 19th the pupils gave a Concert in aid of the Holiday Fund, on which occasion they had the valuable assistance and co-operation of the professors, Messrs. W. H. Cummings, F. and A. Hartvigson, and Dr. E. J. Hopkins. On the 20th some 200 delegates from the Colonies attended the College and were entertained by a grand Concert and other examples of the studies carried on in the Institution.

On Sunday evening, the 18th ult., after the usual church service, which was extremely well rendered, the choir of Holy Trinity Church, Gray's Inn Road, with the assistance of some ladies and gentlemen of the neighbourhood, gave a performance of Dr. Stainer's sacred Cantata “Daughter of Jairus.” The solos were well taken by Miss Fannie C. Atkinson, Mr. J. N. Atkinson, and Mr. C. Hales. The choral parts were excellently sung, especially the wailing chorus for women's voices. The whole was accompanied with great skill by the Organist, Mr. R. F. Tyler; and Mr. J. H. Hutchinson conducted. The authorities of Holy Trinity deserve commendation and support in their spirited work, for we believe that it is intended to give a series of such performances, to include many compositions which the general public have seldom an opportunity of hearing.

THE 200th consecutive monthly Concert of the St. George's Glee Union was given in the Pimlico Rooms, Warwick Street, on the 2nd ult. The first part comprised a song from each artist, and three numbers by the choir—“God save the Queen,” “O who will o'er the downs so free” (Pearsall), and “The Shepherd's lament” (Smart). Mendelssohn's “Athalie” occupied the second part. The solos were excellently rendered by Miss Kate Fusselle, Miss Louise Augarde, and Madame Osborne Williams, the lyrics being recited with fine effect by Mr. Cole A. Adams. The choruses were sung with marked precision and good expression. Mr. F. R. Kinke and Mr. Herbert Schartau ably presided at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively, and Mr. J. Monday conducted.

At the opening of the Royal Holloway College by the Queen, on June 30, an Ode (“Victoria”), written by Mr. G. Martin-Holloway, and set to music by Sir George Elvey, was sung in the chapel by members of the Sacred Harmonic Society. The second verse of the Ode is an unaccompanied quartet, which was excellently rendered by Miss Esmée Woodford, Miss Chester, Messrs. Hunt and Shepley. The National Anthem was sung in the Quadrangle by the united choirs, numbering about 300 voices, under the direction of Sir George Elvey, and accompanied by the band of the Royal Artillery. As Her Majesty left, “Rule, Britannia,” by the whole choir, concluded the vocal portion of the ceremony.

A SUCCESSFUL evening Concert was given at St. Mary's School, Balham, on Tuesday, June 29, on behalf of the organ fund. The choir sang several operatic choruses and also a new cradle song by Mr. H. W. Weston, A.C.O., the Conductor. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. R. Norton, Miss R. Williams, and Messrs. Moore and Bromer. One of the principal items was Liszt's second Rhapsodie, arranged for pianoforte duet, and played by Miss Parker and Mr. H. W. Weston. The latter gentleman also accompanied the solos, and conducted the choir with much care and ability.

THE sixteenth anniversary of the dedication of St. Mark's Church, Lewisham, was marked by a special evensong held in the building on Tuesday, the 20th ult., at which Dr. Stainer's Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, and Dr. Bridge's “Rock of Ages” (accompanied by the composer) were rendered by the choir. The baritone solo in the latter was sung by the Choirmaster, Mr. R. E. Miles, and after the service Dr. Bridge gave a short Organ Recital.

The daily programme of music performed at the Exhibition of Madame Tussaud, in Marylebone Road, affords a good example of the practicability of putting forward high-class music at a popular entertainment. A recent programme contains such standard compositions as the Overtures to "William Tell" (Rossini) and "Fingal's Cave" (Mendelssohn); selections from Gounod's "Irene" and Sullivan's "Mikado"; Marche Solennelle (Gounod) and Marche Hongroise (Berlioz); besides lighter music by Strauss, Gungl, Waldeufel, &c. The band consists of two pianos, harmonium, two violins, and double bass, and is ably conducted by Mr. F. Delevanti, who has been for many years connected with the music at this establishment.

DR. BRIDGE, Organist of Westminster Abbey, adjudicated at the sixth Temperance Choir Contest held in connection with the great Temperance Fête at the Crystal Palace, on the 13th ult. Eight choirs competed, and the first, second, and third prizes were awarded to the Manchester Temperance Choir (Mr. G. W. Lane), the Cardiff Blue Ribbon Choir (Mr. J. Davies), and the Temperance Choral Society (Mr. J. A. Birch). The Leeds and Wellingborough Choirs obtained honourable mention. Three great Choral Concerts, by 5,000 voices each, were given, under the conductorship of Mr. W. H. Bonner, Mr. F. Smith, and Mr. C. Wakely.

An excellent Concert was given by Mr. Walter Fitton at St. James's Lecture Hall, Gloucester Place, on the 5th ult., when the powers of the bénéficiaire as a classical player were displayed to much advantage in the pianoforte part of Mendelssohn's Sonata in B flat, for pianoforte and violoncello, Walter Macfarren's Second Sonata for pianoforte and violin, Sir W. S. Bennett's Chamber Trio for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, and solos by Schumann and Chopin. The Concert-giver was ably supported in the instrumental department by Mr. Frank Arnold (violin) and Mr. W. E. Whitehouse (violoncello), Miss Margaret Hoare contributing vocal selections with marked success.

MR. W. DE M. SERGISON, Organist of St. Peter's, Eaton Square, gave an evening Concert on June 28, at Prince's Hall, under distinguished patronage, and with the co-operation of several well-known artists. In the course of the evening the Concert-giver was associated with Miss Winifred Robinson and Mr. Leo Stern in a very efficient rendering of Raff's Pianoforte Trio in C minor, the programme likewise including pianoforte solos played by Miss Agnes Zimmermann, solo violoncello performances by Mr. Leo Stern (a pupil of Signor Piatti), and vocal contributions by Miss Hilda Wilson, Messrs. Charles Wade and Gilbert Campbell. The hall was well filled.

At the forty-second performance of the Musical Artists' Society, held at Willis's Rooms, on the 10th ult., the following works were included in the programme—viz., Pianoforte Trio in D minor (Charles Gardner); Introduction and Pastorale, "La Sera," for string quartet (Alfred Gilbert); Theme and Variations in F sharp minor, for two pianofortes (Dora Bright); Sonata Piecevole, for flute and pianoforte (C. E. Stephens); String Quartet in B flat (Algernon Ashton); Songs (Mary Travers, George Gear, and Thomas B. Knott).

We have much pleasure in announcing that the honorary degree of Doctor of Music has, at a Convocation recently held at Durham University, been conferred upon Mr. William Rea, the Borough Organist of Newcastle-upon-Tyne. A quarter of a century bestowed upon the furtherance of the best interests of the art is deserving of so graceful a mark of recognition, and we heartily congratulate Dr. Rea upon his newly-acquired honour.

THE "Boston Musical Year-Book and Musical Year of the United States," for the season of 1885-86, by G. H. Wilson, has been recently forwarded to us, and deserves a word of praise for the extreme care with which the details of musical performances, not only in Boston, but in many other cities of the States, have been collected. Some such work would, we think, be extremely useful in this country.

MR. H. C. TONKING has been giving Organ Recitals at the National Art Treasures Exhibition, Folkestone, with so much success that he has been engaged to give Recitals twice daily throughout August.

THE 173rd Monthly Concert of the Grosvenor Choral Society was given in the Grosvenor Hall, Buckingham Palace Road, on Friday, the 16th ult., when a miscellaneous selection of part-songs by Barnby, Stevens, Cellier, Bishop, Fanning, Otto, Smart, and Caldicott was successfully rendered. The soloists were Mdlle. Anna Lisa Borgström, Mrs. Luff, Miss Louise Bond, Miss Gibbs, and Mr. Henry Sunman. Miss Sophie Raven gave two pianoforte solos, Mrs. T. P. Frame presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. David Woodhouse conducted.

THE prospectus of the Musical Association of Victoria for 1885-86 shows that the Society has fully maintained the state of prosperity which was announced last year. Three papers on musical subjects of much interest have been read; monthly meetings have been held, at which works by the standard composers have been performed, and examinations for the Society's diploma and second-class certificate have taken place, two candidates having gained diplomas, and four certificates.

THE Leeds Festival Committee have made a few changes in their programme, and removed from it the "Tristan and Isolde" duet, which, we believe, none of the solo vocalists cared to undertake. For this the Overture to "Der Fliegende Holländer" has been substituted, and it is probable that Mr. Lloyd will sing the Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger." Mr. Frederic King has been engaged, and will sing the part of Lucifer in Sir A. Sullivan's new cantata "The Golden Legend."

At an examination of pianoforte tuners, held by the Regent Hall Association at 44, Devonshire Street, the following candidates passed, and obtained the Regent Hall Certificate (R.H.C.) of qualification to practise, the names being given in order of merit—William Thomas Cope, of Limerick, Ireland, and John Hill, Irby, Lincolnshire. The next examination will be held in September, on a date to be duly announced by advertisement; and already several candidates have expressed their intention to enter.

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. John Pew Bowling, of Fallowfield Terrace, Leeds, which occurred on the 6th ult., at the early age of thirty-five. The deceased gentleman was Principal of the Yorkshire College of Music, Conductor of the Leeds Amateur Orchestral Society, and Huddersfield Orpheus Choral Society, and had a large teaching connection. He was one of the best executants in the county, and his loss will be long and deeply felt.

A FEATURE of the past musical month has been the first appearance in England of "America's greatest contralto," Miss Emily Winant. The lady appeared twice at Mr. Austin's "Patti Concerts" with success, but she is not fairly judged by her singing of an isolated song at a miscellaneous entertainment. Miss Winant should be, and we trust will be, heard in Oratorio before she returns home.

ON the occasion of his recent marriage, Mr. C. L. Williams, Organist of Gloucester Cathedral, was presented with a handsome silver-mounted inkstand, subscribed for by the members of the Festival Musical Committee as a token of esteem and high appreciation. Mr. Williams had previously received a silver teapot from the members of the Choral Society over which he presides.

ON Tuesday evening, June 29, a very successful Organ Recital was given by Mr. Frank N. Abernethy, F.C.O., Organist of St. Saviour's, Southwark, on the large chamber organ at the residence of Mrs. Spratt, Vassall Road, Brixton. The programme included compositions by Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, and other masters. The performance was highly appreciated.

At the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, on the 12th ult., Mr. Sims Reeves appeared as Henry Bertram in "Guy Mannering," charming all hearers by the beauty of his voice and style, and proving beyond doubt that his exceptional powers remain unimpaired. The house was filled in every part, and the reception of Mr. Reeves was most enthusiastic.

MADAME ADELINA PATTI will this month give a Concert for the benefit of the Swansea medical charities. On former occasions of the kind the receipts have been very large, and the personal popularity of the distinguished artist in the neighbourhood of her residence has gained much thereby.

MISS MARIE KREBS desires it to be known by English visitors to Dresden that she is prepared to give pianoforte lessons during the autumn months. Miss Krebs's concert engagements stand in the way of regular work as a teacher, but her success in that capacity has been very great, and the pupils are fortunate who secure the benefit of her counsel.

MR. J. BARNEY has resigned the appointment of Choirmaster at St. Ann's, Soho, where his labours have produced such excellent results. The musical services will, as usual, be discontinued during the months of August and September, and will be resumed in October under the direction of Mr. W. H. Cummings, who succeeds Mr. Barnby.

M. VLADIMIR DE PACHMANN will leave England in the autumn, and probably not return for a year or two. Madame de Pachmann, who has avoided public appearances of late in order to devote herself to study, is expected to make a début at Berlin at the beginning of the winter season, and then enter upon an extended tour.

THE Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of "Jephtha" in Christ Church, Watney Street, on the 7th ult. The soloists were Miss Clara Hoschke, Miss Griffiths, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ.

THE monument to be erected over the grave of the late Joseph Maas is now making rapid progress under the hands of Mr. Currie, and will probably be unveiled soon after the conclusion of the holidays. The Scholarship fund remains open for further contributions, which, no doubt, the Committee will be glad to receive.

THE REV. H. G. BONAVIA HUNT, Mus. B., Oxon., Warden of Trinity College, London, has been elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, on the recommendation of Professor J. Stuart Blackie, Dr. Hugh Macmillan, F.R.S., Edin., Professor W. Garden Blaikie, LL.D., and others.

"THE Musical Artists', Lecturers', and Entertainers' Directory," for 1886-7, appears to be a reliable book of reference; but we fail to see why some few names scattered throughout the work are printed in more prominent type than the rest.

THE Summer Concert of the St. Bartholomew's Hospital Musical Society took place on the 1st ult., under the direction of Mr. Avalon Collard, Conductor of the Society. The orchestra was above the average, and the choir sang pieces in various styles in a very creditable manner.

MR. A. C. MACKENZIE will shortly begin work upon the oratorio he is engaged to write for the Birmingham Festival of 1888. The book, compiled by Mr. Joseph Bennett, is founded upon a Biblical subject affording ample scope for the composer's power of dramatic treatment.

REPORT states that Signor Mancinelli has been engaged to write a new work for the Norwich Festival next year. We do not hear of any such contract with an English composer, but may assume that the Committee will not entirely ignore their countrymen.

A BOOK containing a Report and Account of the Proceedings of the Birmingham and Midland Musical Guild for the second Session, 1885, shows that the Institution is rapidly increasing its number of members, and we are glad also to find that its financial position is highly satisfactory.

EXPERIMENTS have been tried with a view to lighting the Festival Hall at Leeds by electricity on the arc principle, instead of the incandescent system used three years ago. They were not very successful, and probably no change will be made in the arrangements.

THE degree of Doctor of Music has been conferred upon Mr. Walter B. Gilbert, Organist of Trinity Chapel, New York, by the University of Trinity College, Toronto, Canada.

MR. T. CARLAW MARTIN and Mr. Mortimer Wheeler request us to state that they have ceased to edit the Magazine of Music.

MR. JOSEPH BENNETT is collecting material for a comprehensive "History of Music in the Nineteenth Century." The work will probably be issued in volumes as prepared.

REVIEWS.

On the Sensations of Tone, as a physiological basis for the theory of music. By H. L. F. Helmholtz, M.D., &c. Translated by Alexander J. Ellis, B.A., F.R.S., &c. [Longmans, Green and Co.]

THIS is a second English edition of the well-known work by Helmholtz. As the title page informs us, the present edition has been thoroughly revised and corrected, rendered conformable to the fourth and last German edition of 1877, with numerous additional notes, and a new additional appendix bringing down information to 1885 and especially adapted to the use of musical students. The form of Mr. Ellis's new volume is much more slightly and more convenient than that of the old English edition which was too bulky in shape. Exclusive of innumerable notes explanatory of the text, the translator's own appendix is a very important feature in the new edition of Helmholtz, and occupies more than one-fifth of the book. The value of the appendix consists partly in the account it renders of work done recently on beats and combinational tones and vowel analysis and synthesis since the appearance of the fourth German edition; and partly in its containing what Mr. Ellis calls "a considerable amount of information," which is really a vast, and to more indolent-minded persons an appalling amount of detailed information contributed by him upon points hitherto little known, such as the Determination and History of Musical Pitch, Non-harmonic scales, Enharmonic Organs, Keyboards, Tuning and Temperaments. As for Helmholtz himself, his preface to the fourth German edition is very brief and can be summed up in the significant words he uses: "In the essential conceptions of musical relations I have found nothing to alter." This is something to be able to say of a theory in its essence novel, and running counter to the prejudices of musicians, to the previously applied theories of mathematicians, and in some points to those of physicists, and which has now for twenty-two years been subject to the searching criticisms of some of the keenest intellects in Europe. Perhaps, from a critical point of view, the most that can be said is thus put by the translator himself: "The whole subject of combinational tones and beats evidently requires much more examination." It must be understood that this remark refers to experiments mentioned in the appendix and made by M. Koenig, Herr Preyer, Mr. Bosanquet, Lord Rayleigh, Mr. Ellis, and others, the aim of which was not so much to controvert as to extend the main theory of consonance established by Helmholtz; or, at most, to rectify matters of detail in which the facts do not always coincide, or do not seem to coincide with the theory. Some of the experiments require not only very delicate instruments, but a special training of the sense of hearing; a sense liable, perhaps more than any other, to subjective illusions, and for that reason alone such experiments are better out of the hands of musicians. The decision of musico-acoustical questions must be left wholly to cool-headed specialists, who possess the requisite knowledge and apparatus, and are not likely to hear certain intervals which at the moment may not be in existence, or to sacrifice the purity of science to technical mystifications and individual desires. Fortunately for musical students, quite half of the original work by Helmholtz, and much the largest portion of his translator's appendix, are devoted to general musical questions in regard to keys, scales, chords, &c., as far as these are directly influenced by the physiological basis claimed.

When science descends to the level of musical technicalities it is less at ease, and is, in fact, not on its own ground; and its devotees become less formidable as teachers of music than as observers of natural phenomena. There is no occasion to allude here to the theory of tone sensations. The details of the Helmholtzian theories were pretty well impressed upon our minds, by mere iteration, some ten or twelve years since. The appearance of Mr. Ellis's second edition is not likely to revive old discussions, or give rise to a fresh cloud of books, primers, and pamphlets. One way or another, people in general must have by this time made up their minds on the subject, and have either parted with preconceptions or settled into sullen disbelief. Still the marvel remains that our latest instruction books on harmony contain precisely the same unscientific assertions, and adhere to the same relics of exploded theories, local or general, as if primes and upper partials had never been heard of, and Helmholtz had never written. The fact is not by any means unintelligible; for years ago Mr. Ellis expressed the opinion that Helmholtz had "sounded the knell of equal temperament"; and now, in 1885, Mr. Ellis's second edition naturally suggests the questions—How is it that the knell is still sounding? How is it that the funeral procession does not move, and that our defunct friend is not yet formally consigned to the tomb? A partial answer to such queries is found in the fourth German edition of "Sensations of Tone," and appears at page 428 of the present English edition. Helmholtz says: "Musicians have contested, in a very dogmatic manner, the correctness of the propositions here advanced." (An allusion to his proposal that harmony should be taught pedagogically on the principle of just intonation.) "I do not doubt for a moment," he continues, "that many of these antagonists of mine really perform very good music, because their ear forces them to play better than they intended, better than really would be the case if they actually carried out the regulations of the school, and played exactly in Pythagorean or tempered intonation. On the other hand, it is generally possible to convince oneself, from their very writings, that these writers have never taken the trouble to make a mathematical comparison of just and tempered intonation. I can only once more invite them to hear, before uttering judgments founded upon an imperfect school theory, concerning matters which are not within their own personal experience. Those who have no time for such observations should, at any rate, glance over the literature of the period during which equal temperament was introduced. When the organ took the lead among musical instruments it was not yet tempered. And the pianoforte is, doubtless, a very useful instrument for making the acquaintance of musical literature, or for domestic amusement, or for accompanying singers. But for artistic purposes, its importance is not such as to require its mechanism to be made the basis of the whole system of music."

As a protest against German "pianism" and keyboard theories, and the brutal logic of writing voice-parts in F flat, and boldly putting the staff signature of E natural major in the organ or pianoforte accompaniment, the passage just quoted is appropriate enough; but in respect to what Helmholtz really intends, one may venture to say that the accusation he formulates is true and is not true. It is only too much the case, that few musicians or amateurs will take the trouble or go to the expense of providing themselves with instruments, such as Mr. Ellis for instance has had made for us, to test systematically the enormous difference in effect between intervals or chords in just intonation, or in approximately just intonation, and in equal temperament. But singers and violinists have ears to hear, and all musicians know more or less that such differences exist. Their own theoretical works time out of mind have explained them from the arithmetical standpoint hitherto in vogue. It is not altogether indolence, and certainly not ignorance, which may have caused some musicians to be, as Helmholtz says, the dogmatic adversaries of his proposals. The real reasons Helmholtz has supplied himself, and abundantly, throughout the musical portions of his work. There may be besides, other reasons which have not occurred to him. The musician views, and is bound to view the musical fabric from the artistic side; and in the end, the artistic side is always the practical side. Limited to some specific inquiry, accuracy of detail in science is everything. In the best music, accuracy of detail is a point, but always subordinate to design and general effect. Harmony, in the strict sense of the term, is almost impotent, and all but non-existent in questions of musical form. Hence, as Helmholtz tells us himself, "the essential basis of music is melody"; and that in the old counterpoint "harmony was a secondary consideration," and so on. He forgets his own width of views when the question, as in the rather irritable passage quoted above, is narrowed to the distinction between an interval in equal temperament, and the effect of nominally the same interval on a justly intoned harmonium. Agitated by a sort of enthusiasm for just intonation, both Helmholtz and his English translator are in another and more extended sense, nearly as "key-boardish" as the pianistic Germans. Scientific men are not always infallible when they reason outside the logic of facts. Helmholtz objects to the term "natural harmony," and, as we humbly think, with perfect justice. But in his fourth edition he still talks of a "natural scale"; whilst his translator in an intensely interesting chapter on non-harmonic scales, not only asserts that there can be no such thing as a "natural scale," but he rather leads his readers to the conclusion that there is no such thing as a scale at all. He takes great pains at least to undermine the only props of the scale we possessed—the fixed or tetrachordal sounds. When Helmholtz scolds the piano, and will not admit that its mechanism can be made the basis of the whole system of music, we feel tempted to ask are enharmonic keyboards, and the different systems of tuning any keyed instruments whatever, to be made the basis of the whole system of music? Helmholtz himself would be the last to suggest that they were; although we have a suspicion that, in the eyes of his English translator, the whole duty of man as a musician is to attend to his "duodenes." Mr. Ellis chastises his author more than once in the notes signed "translator"; and he can scarcely take kindly to the Helmholtzian doctrine, that the essential basis of music is melody. On the contrary, he warns us as we enter the appendix and approach the "Duodenarium," that "harmony is the chief consideration." If this be so, the complaints Helmholtz has directed against the musician as a teacher or pedagogue, should be transferred to the music—that is, the music of our period, from Beethoven downwards. Helmholtz has told us that equal temperament is indispensable in modern music. How, then, can a musician be asked to teach "pedagogically" just intonation, that to the student can have only a theoretic interest? How can musicians as practical men sit down and write manuals of harmony adapted to psalmody only, or to a system that is practically non-existent in instrumental music? Some amongst us have hazarded the opinion years ago, that the cacophony of the Wagnerian orchestra, so far from representing a music of the future, was a sign of the decline, the evening of the music of this age; and that the probable outcome of the Wagnerian drama would be a return in one respect to the old worship of sensation; that is, to dramatic declamation accompanied by simple harmonies rendered in the purest intonation, and by instruments of new and brilliant qualities of tone. Then, indeed, the inventions of Colonel Thompson, of Mr. Poole, of Helmholtz, of Mr. Bosanquet, of Mr. Colin Brown, Mr. Paul White, and others, would be in request; if only to enable us to make the acquaintance of the new musical literature. There may be always some difficulty in selection; for at present Mr. Ellis leaves us with two only of his own invention, and dispatches the rest in this wise: "Others, as Colin Brown, Liston, Poole, and Perronet Thompson, have invented harmoniums or organs, with novel finger-boards; and others, as Bosanquet and J. P. White, have invented means for using the division of the octave into fifty-three parts, which, as seen in Section E, page 463, is practically almost identical with just intonation. A brief account of these instruments (with the exception of Professor Helmholtz's, which is fully described in the text) will be here given. But none of them meet the wants of the student. They are all too expensive, and require so much special education to use, that with the exception of Mr. Colin Brown's, they have remained musical curiosities, some of them entirely unique."

That is to say, like Perronet Thompson's organ, they are stowed away in the "fadderies" department of some museum. We have not seen Mr. Ellis's "Harmonical," but we quite agree with him that what the student wants, merely for experimental purposes, is something cheap and portable, which appear to be the characteristics of that instrument. Mr. Ellis however tells us candidly that it will not play the Pythagorean scale. This proof of its want of universality might, after all, consign it to the museum. It is indeed a sad and difficult question, this keyed-instrument business; and it occupies much more time and space than it deserves. If Helmholtz fails, and if the admittedly perfect and ingenious instrument invented by Mr. Bosanquet is a practical failure, where are we to look for hope? We cannot help thinking that the great attention given to this subject by scientific men, is only a species of intellectual indulgence. The attraction must be less in the end proposed than in the pleasure of designing the instruments, and exercising scientific knowledge and mechanical aptitudes in their construction. The manner in which such men attack musical questions has a dash of the same intellectual delusion—the same vanity—we had almost said insanity—of specialism.

Here we have a ponderous volume, weighted—and if we did not feel as grateful as we do, and as everyone must feel, to Mr. Ellis—we might say over-weighted with notes and appendices. It is presented as “especially adapted to the use of musical students,” and what are we to make of it? Scientifically, it deals with sound as a sensation; musically, whilst as far as Helmholtz is concerned in amply recognising other elements in the art, it virtually refers all questions to that basis. The negative value of the Helmholtzian science has long been acknowledged. It has destroyed certain delusions which formerly disfigured the theories of musicians, and so complete is the destruction that, as far as we are aware, no musical and technical treatise of any recognised authority has appeared in Europe since the theories of Helmholtz became popularised. It generally takes a full generation to rid newer views of the leaven of the past. Even Mr. Ellis only reproduces, in his “Duodenarium,” an extended series of “adjacent triads,” richly and conveniently illustrated by “cents”—an abbreviated form of E.T. logs. It has always seemed to us that the direction in which we are to look for the positive and constructive value of the teaching of Helmholtz, is in his admission that “harmony and quality of tone differ only in degree.” This at once theoretically reduces harmony, as represented by the chord, to one sensation, or—to use an old and perhaps very bad metaphor—to a colour on the palette of the musician. Of course, the conditions necessary to the production of various qualities of tone are not present in the chord of the musician; neither the distribution nor the relative intensities of the required ingredients exist in the chords, as such ingredients are heard in a complex sound, or in intervals formed of complex sounds. Hence it is rather the pride of the musician to possess the faculty of analysing and decomposing the general sensation and separating the parts, even prior to the movement of the chord, and the consequent weaving of the parts of what the musician calls the “harmony.” As Helmholtz gives us to understand, in his chapter on musical aesthetics, as soon as the chord moves we are then in the true realm of music, of which melody is the essential part. But Helmholtz does not tell us, and, as far as we comprehend him, he does not seem to perceive or believe that the main principle of the musician’s work—tonality—resides only in the melody. Thus, in attacking the subject of “consecutive fifths,” he resuscitates an old rule of Huyghens, or someone, which refers the prohibition of consecutive fifths to change of key, as instanced in the fifths C—G to D—A; the A, as a question of ratio, being out of the key or scale. Were this explanation true, consecutive thirds would be equally objectionable, since in the progression C—E to D—F, we must either sacrifice the key or just intonation. The prohibition in question, like most technical rules, has evidently nothing to do with ratio and intonation. How could it be otherwise, when nine-tenths of technical music consists of counterpoint, and nine-tenths of counterpoint is melody; and as Mr. Ellis and Helmholtz take great pains to show us, the scale best adapted to melody is not adapted to harmony. We once thought that Helmholtz had assisted us in this question of consecutive fifths by calling attention to the rapid effect of fifths, or, as he says, to the “monotony” of the succession of intervals so consonant as the fifth, and not condoned by mere doubling or replication as is the case with octaves. On further reflection the explanation, we think, should refer equally to a fifth following an octave or a fourth, and no prohibition in such cases exists. In short, the question of consecutive fifths remains just where Helmholtz found it, except that he proves there is no scientific objection to them, and leads us to infer that if fifths are a little lumpy, requiring careful treatment, we can use them when and how we think fit. The orthodox Dr. Crotch gives us the same license in regard to what are called “hidden fifths and octaves.”

Musical principles, and the rules derived from them, are called empirical, because they have apparently no deeper basis than habit, which in this sense is a much stronger term than experience. After reperusing Helmholtz in the present beautiful edition, and digesting, as well as we could in a short time, the valuable work added by Mr. Ellis, we come to the old conclusion, that beyond the influence of habit, which in many and perhaps most instances is itself only the expression of some unknown law, few suggestions offered by Helmholtz will assist us in explaining the most important part—the dynamics—of music; or why it is that chords comparatively euphonious are intolerable in certain very simple progressions, whilst chords or combinations, hideous as harmony, or as isolated sensations, are quite endurable in certain difficult and unusual progressions? The real answer to these queries must be sought in the principle of tonality, which we conceive to be not yet thoroughly understood, and to be practically quite independent of the different intonations of intervals nominally the same. If, as it appears, the Helmholtzian theories, after twenty-two years of existence and of comment and manipulation by aestheticians, musicians, and physicists, have so far, from a musical point of view, been only destructive in their tendencies and of little direct service to technical theory, it must not be imagined that the assistance of science can be underrated, much less ignored. The beginnings of music are in natural laws; and if we cannot yet say that science follows us in the art to the end, we may say it rejoins us there, and constitutes the final court of appeal in such ultimate questions, for instance, as the mechanism and genera of scales. Here the music, popular or academic, already written by instinct or by empirical rule, is revised by the harmonician. A striking example of the meaning we intend to convey is afforded in the chapter on Non-harmonic Scales, in the appendix to the work we are noticing. With a wealth of detail and an amount of research beyond all praise, Mr. Ellis traces, amongst other things, the identity of the scale of the Highland bagpipe with that of the lutist Zalzal, who introduced it into Arabia more than a thousand years ago. The Eastern musicians composed instinctively, and seem, as it were, to have “felt” for their monochordal divisions, and to have “fretted” them. The frets were subsequently revised by the harmonicians. The scale of Zalzal, the scales of Ancient Greece, Arabia, Persia, and other countries are, after the lapse of centuries, again revised and, metaphorically speaking, fretted with “cents” by Mr. Ellis, and confirmed by the practised ears of Mr. Hopkins. Mr. Ellis’s divisions, expressed in cents, enable any one to compare the scales without trouble or much previous knowledge; and a violinist in attempting the scale of Zalzal, can discover for himself what to many must amount to a revelation—the peculiar effect of the bagpipes, which might be attributed to the quality of tone of the instrument, is really due to the scale of the “chaunter.” The inference here is that quality of tone and the slight variations in the intonation of a melody produce the same effect in kind, differing in degree. One or the other may modify, but cannot change tonality, that is, the tonic relation of the melody. Thus, as a last refinement, by changing the ratios, we can attribute certain qualities, as a question of intonation, to different octave modes already distinguished as separate modes, in virtue of their specific forms of scale, and independently of particular ratios.

Before laying down this thesaurus of musical knowledge Mr. Ellis has presented to his countrymen, we should like to submit a little matter to his consideration. He proposes to call inversion, conversion. This latter term seems to us a very unhappy innovation. We do not usually speak of a “converted” fraction, but of an “inverted fraction.” To call inversion, “conversion,” is to lose entirely the species of identity which exists between the inverted vibration fraction and the inverted interval. What Mr. Ellis would call “inversion,” as exemplified in his “harmonic cell,” is reversion, and true reversion; not as it is sometimes used by musicians when the scale becomes a question, and they invert C—E upwards, as C—A downwards. This has been called inversion.

Again, Mr. Ellis’s appendix contains a spirited article—we use the word “article” advisedly—in just praise of the Tonic Sol-fa method of teaching singing classes. We have too much admiration for the broad principle of that method, as well as respect for the late Mr. Curwen's successful life and work, to go out of our way to criticise the over earnestness of Mr. Ellis's advocacy of the independent and scientific origin of the dynamic method of notation used in this country; but with his wealth of learning, he might have more theoretically—shall we say, more frankly—exposed the manner of employment in that system of the lah mode. Mr. Ellis does not approve it; he could not do so without ignoring the most prominent feature in the modern tonality, which is the transposition of the octave modes to one common final—a fixed doh. The Tonic Sol-fa creed has been recently expounded for our general edification in an article in Grove's "Dictionary of Music." We cannot give Mr. Ellis chapter and verse, but somewhere in the article referred to, he will find written these stupendous words—"A minor, should be C minor." Mr. Ellis's exegesis of the text quoted would have been of more value to us than many "duodenals."

The Psalms (Bible Version) pointed for Chanting. By the Rev. John Troutbeck, D.D. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE translation of the Psalms contained in the Authorised Version (commonly called the "Bible" Version of the Psalms) has been published by Messrs. Novello and Co., pointed for chanting by the Rev. Dr. Troutbeck. The principles on which the pointing has been done are mainly those of the Cathedral Psalter, of which Dr. Troutbeck was Co-Editor, a Psalter which has now successfully endured the test of long experience, and we have not remarked any instances where we should decidedly disagree with the pointing adopted. When the history of chanting comes to be written, it will be recorded that to the late Dr. Stephen Elvey rightfully belongs the credit of having been the first to show that smooth and intelligent chanting is best secured by making the strict time of the Chant begin before the recitation-note is left, with a bar, containing a greater or less number of words according to emphasis and accent. Dr. S. Elvey's own Psalter, which is sung to perfection at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, may perhaps be regarded as chiefly suitable for highly trained choirs, and to be a little complex for Church singers in general, but his principle, which has been adopted, sometimes without acknowledgment, in many later Psalters, is beyond controversy. The Psalter we are reviewing professes to suit, in its pointing, ordinary Anglican Chants, but it is a question, which we are convinced will soon come under discussion, whether the Anglican Chant, especially the double Chant, with its uncompromising stiffness, should be retained as the normal music for the Psalms. Many are the instances in which the original grouping of the verses, and with it their expressiveness and very meaning, have to yield to the inexorable requirements of the Chant; and the more the Psalms are studied, and their structure discerned and expounded, the less adequate does their customary musical treatment appear. It is possible that single Chants might still be used; but if greater variety be desired than that which single Chants alone can give, both double and triple Chants will have to be brought into use as well. The Psalter under review is not, of course, divided into daily portions like the Prayer Book Psalter, for it is intended for the use of those Christian bodies in which the Psalms are not sung throughout in monthly course, but it can easily be so divided by those who use it; and whatever be the Chant-form of the future—single, double, or those well-known forms with a triple Chant as well—there is no obstacle to the adaptation of the Psalter just published to all three types.

The Scottish Hymnal. With Tunes for use in Churches. [T. Nelson and Sons, London and Edinburgh.]

THERE are three branches of the Scottish Presbyterian Church, one the Church of Scotland, connected with the State, the other two the United Presbyterian and the Free Church bodies, separatists from the Establishment. They vie with each other, we learn, in many things, and in nothing so conspicuously as in aids to divine praise—not to do more than allude to the strongly pronounced opposition of the two dissenting bodies to the State recognition and maintenance of the mother Church. The United Presbyterians were the first of the three to use a collection of hymns in public worship, not to speak of four, by Addison and others, which have been printed for many long years at the end of the metrical Psalms and Paraphrases to be found at the end of every Bible printed for Scotland. This book of hymns was issued some forty or fifty years ago. The Established Church followed, though tardily, with a Hymnal of somewhat limited extent; the Free Church some years later with a still smaller collection. The latter body, however, three or four years ago, issued a greatly enlarged collection, prodigal of outlay for the best music available for it; and now the Established Church, not to be outdone, has just issued a new edition of the book in use in the congregations of the denomination. This collection, upon which we now offer a few remarks, bears the original title "The Scottish Hymnal." It contains twice the number of hymns there were in the early book, set for the first time to fixed tunes. The musical editorship has been entrusted to Dr. A. L. Peace, Organist of Glasgow Cathedral.

The selection of hymns naturally comprehends a great variety of measures, nearly all being of sufficiently rhythmical and familiar character. The best music, old and new, seems to have been chosen, and in the matter of adaptation there does not seem much to object to. We must take exception, however, to the inclusion of several American hymns, with their tunes, chiefly to be found, it may be added, among the hymns to the young—on the principle, perhaps, that anything will do for children. It seems difficult, apparently, to keep this class of hymns and hymn music, bad with but few exceptions, out of Scottish collections. There does not seem much otherwise in the new book, in respect to the music, that is not familiar in English Hymnals, but a few new compositions are included. Some of these are by the Editor, and are, as a rule, musical efforts of originality and character. A few of the others which find a place are amateurish and indifferent. Dr. Peace has done his editorial supervision, generally speaking, with care, a noticeable liking for counterpoint of two notes against one (second species) in freshly arranged tunes, being an attractive feature rather than otherwise. Alterations which have been made in the rhythm of one or two familiar tunes are rather risky. The tunes are printed in short score, as usual, but the barring is carried right through the two staves in organ fashion, while, besides, the bars are almost invariably under each other, giving a marked degree of clearness to the eye, and greater quickness, no doubt, of reference of words to music. The typographical part of the book is highly creditable to the publishers.

Songs of the North. Gathered together from the Highlands and Lowlands of Scotland. Edited by A. C. Macleod and Harold Boulton. The music arranged by Malcolm Lawson. [Field and Tuer, the Leadenhall Press.]

WE are told in the preface to this work that the object the editors had in view has been "to gather together in an agreeable and singable form a collection of Scottish and Highland songs not familiar for the most part to the many enthusiastic admirers of the minstrelsy of Scotland." There have been so many volumes of well-known Scottish melodies recently published that we can now scarcely see any sufficient reason for multiplying them; but the novelty of design in this collection will ensure it a welcome with all who love Scottish music and Scottish poetry. A number of the songs, notably some of the Highland ones, are here written down, it is believed, for the first time. In some instances words in the Lowland Scottish language that either had no tunes, or tunes unworthy of them, have been set to old Highland melodies, a proceeding which, as the editors truly point out, "though it might possibly be objected to by purists, has been generally acknowledged as admissible since Burns set the example." The arrangement of the music is, on the whole, extremely good; and a feature in the work is the printing of the words of the song upon a separate page, as well as underneath the musical notation. Nothing is said upon the title-page respecting the very refined illustrations which are scattered through the volume; many of these, however, are really beautiful pictures, apart from the subject which they so graphically depict, and materially enhance the value of the book.

Twelve Vocal Duets. Composed by Ciro Pinsuti.
Book II. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE second volume of these melodious and refined duets, by one of the most charming vocal writers of the day, needs but the announcement of its publication to ensure a cordial welcome in every household where music, in its purest sense, is cultivated. It is almost unnecessary to say that Signor Pinsuti can write nothing commonplace; and therefore we forewarn amateurs that pianists as well as vocalists are essential to do full justice to every composition in the book. We really envy the delight of all those who make acquaintance for the first time with the beautiful duet for soprano and contralto, "The Mermaids," which opens the volume, and happily indicates the character of its contents. We were called upon to name our especial favourites, we should also cite No. 9, "Under the stars," for contralto and tenor; No. 11, "Love and Friendship," for baritone and soprano; and No. 12, "The Magicians," for tenor and bass; but in a casket of gems, although we may admire one more than another, either for its intrinsic beauty or its exquisite setting, all may be of equal value. It must also be said that the words of the whole of the songs, by George Weatherly, are fully worthy of the music.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. Great is the Lord.
Anthem. By E. A. Sydenham. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

MR. SYDENHAM writes fluently and with excellent musical taste. His evening service is characterised by flowing melody, united to church-like dignity. It is for the most part in simple four-part harmony, but there is an effective little piece of writing at the words "He hath scattered the proud." The anthem is full throughout, and consists of three movements, of which the last is the most effective, though they are all written with breadth and purity of style.

Te Deum Laudamus. By Frederick Tolkien.
[Spottiswoode and Co.]

THIS is not an ordinary setting of the Ambrosian Hymn for church use, but an elaborate work of sixty-three pages, composed in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee. An examination of the music unfortunately leads to the conclusion that the composer has wasted his time and labour. His ideas of tonality are of the vaguest, and his part-writing shows a lamentable ignorance of the capacity of the human voice, or else, like Beethoven, he regards it as an ordinary mechanical instrument. But although it is impossible to speak of Mr. Tolkien's Te Deum as a musician's achievement, it bears unmistakable traces of natural talent. Here and there impressive and beautiful phrases may be discovered, like oases in a desert, and encourage us to hope that with careful study the composer may produce something worthy of a hearing.

Send out Thy Light. Anthem for Whitsuntide or general use.

Fair Daffodils. Four-part song. By J. T. Field.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THOUGH by no means lengthy, Mr. Field's anthem is in four movements. A brief, solidly written chorus, leads to a melodious tenor solo and chorus, coming to a dominant close. A quartet for male voices follows, and is succeeded by the final chorus, which is effectively worked up, the music being somewhat in the manner of Goss. The part-song is a setting of the well-known lines by Herrick, but it is essentially modern in style, and is charmingly harmonised, with a piano accompaniment. Conductors of singing classes could not fail to like it.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. By W. G. Wood.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE composer of this service—which we believe is not one of Mr. Wood's most recent efforts—has managed to combine simplicity with effectiveness to a remarkable degree. Nothing could be easier than the voice parts, and even the accompaniment, though mainly independent, is such as an ordinary organist could read at sight. But the music is delightfully melodious, though free from any suspicion of triviality. Chords and congregations will alike be pleased with Mr. Wood's service.

The sun shall be no more thy light. Anthem. By George Gardner. [Weekes and Co.]

He giveth His beloved sleep. Anthem. By George Gardner. [Patey and Willis.]

THERE is sufficient in these anthems to show that the composer possesses the divine gift of melody, albeit he is not yet a master of the genuine ecclesiastical style. There is more than a suspicion of secularity in his rhythms and accompaniments, though many will readily forgive this for the sake of the flow of rich harmony and tune. Both anthems are extremely pleasing, but we prefer the second. The last section of this would be charming but for the unfortunate repetition of words, which makes it rather tiresome.

Te Deum, Benedictus, and Jubilate in chant form in the key of E; Office of the Holy Communion for four voices in E; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A. By Edward Bunnett, Mus. Doc. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

So many services in chant form have been written of late years that it is scarcely possible for a composer to take a new departure without overstepping the boundaries of this form of ecclesiastical art. Dr. Bunnett has done very well, variety being obtained by the judicious mixture of Anglican and Gregorian phrases. The Communion Service is musically and church-like without much distinctiveness of character, excepting in that portion of the Nicene Creed commencing "And was incarnate," where the harmonic progressions are very striking. The Service includes the Benedictus and Agnus Dei. The setting of the evening Canticles is chiefly in unison, but a few verses are in simple four-part harmony. It is formed chiefly on a dignified but melodious phrase, and is generally plain and unpretentious in style. The composer's conservative tendencies show themselves even in the adoption of the minim as the unit of measurement.

Blessed be Thou; If ye love Me; I will magnify Thee.
Anthems. By Edward Bunnett, Mus. Doc.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE first of these anthems is a seasonable composition, as it is specially suitable for harvest thanksgivings, which will shortly be general. It is in three choral movements, and is written in a bright yet solid and church-like manner; even the fugato episodes presenting no difficulty owing to the prevalence of smooth, diatonic progressions. The next is quiet and unassuming, in one movement, and though stated to be for Whitsuntide, is almost equally suitable for other seasons. The last is also a one movement anthem, though it is developed at considerable length. It is generally jubilant though stately in character, and if not marked by originality of idea, proves, at any rate, that the composer is familiar with the legitimate school of English church music, and is willing to abide by its leading traditions.

A Communion Service in C. By Gerard F. Cobb.
[London Music Publishing Company.]

MR. COBB'S church compositions are generally noteworthy for thoughtfulness of idea even more than for skilful workmanship, and this setting of the sacramental office deserves more serious regard than is due to the majority of Communion Services. The composer says that his aim has been to provide a service "sufficiently simple to be within reach of the musical portion of our congregations without presenting to the musician that somewhat severe and colourless aspect which simple settings are apt to wear." With this end in view the voice part is kept mainly within the compass of a sixth (E to C), but though even thus restricted it is melodious and singable, while the accompaniment is at times discursive. The work contains settings of every part of the service with which choir and congregation have to do, together with the O Salutaris, Benedictus, and Agnus Dei.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G. By J. R. Courtney Gale. [Weekes and Co.]

COMPOSED for a harvest festival this service is appropriately bright and jubilant in character. The voice parts are quite easy, and the accompaniment flowing and melodious. It is not free from blemishes however, the words being sometimes wrongly accented.

Te Deum Laudamus in B flat. By John E. West. (Parish Choir Book, No. 43.) [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THOUGH unpretentious, this setting of the Ambrosian Hymn is remarkably effective. The harmonies are bold and striking, and throughout the composer has steered clear of the commonplace on the one hand and the extravagant on the other. The Te Deum may be strongly recommended.

O Jesu! Victim Blest. By the Rev. J. Baden Powell. (Octavo Anthems, No. 301.) [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE composer of this little anthem, for solo, duet, and chorus, appears to be in sympathy with the ultra-modern school, for in the compass of five pages he indulges in a number of remarkable chromatic progressions and changes of tonality. At the same time, the musicianship is good, and if well sung the piece could not fail to prove effective.

Short Voluntaries for the Organ. By George Calkin. Book VIII. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE favourable terms in which we spoke of the earlier books of this series may be employed with emphasis respecting the present instalment. Mr. Calkin has given us six pieces, differing from one another in style, but all marked by the utmost refinement and elegance, and most of them extremely tuneful, without undue lightness of character. Organists of moderate attainments will find them equally useful and attractive.

The Office of the Holy Communion. Set to music for men's voices in D. By George Sampson. [Spottiswoode and Co.]

THOUGH presumably an English musician, Mr. Sampson writes somewhat in the modern French style. For example, in the Nicene Creed he makes the chorus sing with closed lips—a meretricious device which we trust will never become popular in the Church of England. Otherwise, however, it cannot be said that his music errs in the direction of triviality, and it is certainly effective. It is surprising however that the organist of St. Alban's, Holborn, where ecclesiastical traditions are held in such esteem, should fall into the common error of accenting the last word instead of the last but one in the sentence “Being of one substance.”

Short Evening Service in F. By H. H. Gilbert. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS is a setting of the Cantate Domino and the Deus Misereatur, and it deserves mention on that account as these canticles are not so much used as formerly. But it also merits notice as proceeding from an American musician. The service might have been written by an English church writer of a century ago, say of the time of Kent, Nares, or Clarke-Whitfield. But our transatlantic cousins move quickly in art matters and no doubt will soon establish a national school of sacred music. Meanwhile every effort in this direction will be watched with interest.

Behold the days come. Anthem. By the Rev. H. H. Woodward. [London Music Publishing Company.]

THERE is so much evidence of talent in this composition that we regret to be unable to give it unqualified praise. Mr. Woodward would appear to have studied Mozart and Spohr, so luscious are his melodies and harmonies. But his anthem consists too much of snatches for solo and chorus giving the effect of patchiness rather than logical sequences. The C in soprano at the end of page 6 should surely be E. The anthem is specially adapted for the Advent season.

Three Andantes. By Hamilton Clarke. (Original Compositions for the Organ, No. 53.) [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THESE pieces are unpretentious as regards structural outline, but the composer displays considerable boldness in matters of detail. Many of his chromatic progressions strike the ear with a sense of strangeness; while, on the other hand, there are passages distinguished by melodic charm to an uncommon degree. Mr. Hamilton Clarke's compositions will repay the attention of organists, and they will be appreciated in proportion as they are known.

O that men would praise the Lord. Anthem for Harvest Festivals. By Joseph C. Bridge, Mus. Doc. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

AT the present moment there are, doubtless, a large number of choirmasters seeking diligently for new music specially suitable for the approaching harvest celebrations, and this anthem from the accomplished pen of the organist of Chester Cathedral cannot fail to receive a cordial welcome. It consists of a broad and vigorous opening chorus in A, a second movement more distinctly melodious in D, and a final chorus containing a good deal of bold and free writing, though fugal treatment is avoided. We may cite the figure of accompaniment at the words “Corn shall make the young men cheerful” as perhaps the most striking of many unconventional passages. Dr. Bridge never forgets that he is writing for the Church, while he shows that he can think for himself. His anthem should be in great request, more especially as no solo voices are required.

Thirty-three Kyries. Hymn Tunes. Composed by Robert Brown-Borthwick. [Hamilton, Adams and Co.]

CHURCH musicians are familiar with the labours of the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick, more particularly as editor of the “Supplemental Hymn and Tune Book.” Most of the tunes in the present book are taken from that and other collections, only six out of forty-seven being new. They occasionally betray the hand of the amateur, but on the whole are good sterling compositions, and some of them are calculated to win favour with congregations. Composers of Kyries show much variety in the matter of accent, some of them placing the stress on “keep,” others on “this,” and others again on “law.” Mr. Brown-Borthwick favours the middle word, though not exclusively. The volumes are small and handy in size, and are neatly bound.

FOREIGN NOTES.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to the Berlin Allgemeine Musik Zeitung from Rome:—“Mozart's ‘Don Giovanni’ was performed here for the first time on June 20, and achieved a brilliant—fiasco. A few feeble attempts at applause were speedily drowned in the general demonstrations of disapproval, and a chorus of hissing and yells was the funeral dirge which accompanied Mozart's masterpiece to the grave, as far as this capital is concerned. By the rejection (similar to that accorded some time since to Beethoven's ‘Fidelio’) of ‘Don Giovanni,’ the Roman public would seem to lay itself open to the charge of vandalism, but for the undeniable fact that the greater part of this lamentable failure was owing to the incredibly bad performance of the work. It may well be that the chaste muse of our master scarcely appeals to the taste of the modern Italians—an accumulation of drastic effects is required now-a-days—while the lengthy secco recitatives, too, are but little appreciated here. Still, the incapacity shown on the part of both executants and conductor in the rendering of the work undoubtedly exculpates the audience to a considerable degree. Cotogni, a singer possessing a fine voice and artistic training, sang the title rôle, and to his efforts, and those of Nannetti, likewise a well-trained artist who sang Leporello, it was alone owing that the opera was listened to until the end.”

It is stated in French journals that Verdi's new opera, “Othello,” will be brought out at the Opéra Comique, and not at the Grand Opéra, as had been surmised, and that the Maestro will conduct the performance in person. We have recorded for some years past the various and conflicting rumours concerning this new work (alternately styled “Iago” and “Othello”) and take some credit to ourselves for not having as yet abandoned all hope of the ultimate performance somewhere, or, indeed, of the actual existence of so interesting a novelty.

At La Scala, of Milan, Halévy's posthumous opera “Noé,” orchestrated by the late Georges Bizet, will be brought out in the coming autumn.

Ponchielli's opera “Gioconda” has been revived at the Costanzi Theatre of Rome, under the Maestro Faccio, with every prospect of a long “run.” A most enthusiastic reception was accorded likewise to the same master's last operatic work “Marion Delorme.”

Bad news for prime donne! A vocal phenomenon, Signor Vincenzo Benedetto, the possessor of a natural mezzo-soprano voice said to be of singular beauty and power, is shortly to make his début on the Berlin stage. The singer is some twenty years of age and a pupil of the celebrated Maestro Abba Cornaglia.

At Turin an opera entitled "Il Gondoliere" is to be performed next season, the composer being a lady—viz., the Countess Ida Correr, of Padua.

The Paris Académie des Beaux-Arts has awarded this year's Grand Prix de Rome to M. Augustin Savard, pupil of M. Massenet; prizes of the second order being also obtained by MM. Kaiser and Gedalge, the former likewise a pupil of M. Massenet. It is said, however, that the competition was a less satisfactory one than usual.

An opera by M. Weckerlin, "Le Sicilien," the libretto arranged after Molière's drama by M. Stop, will shortly be produced at the Opéra Comique.

The Paris Opéra is about to be illuminated entirely by electric light, 6,126 incandescent lamps replacing the 7,570 gas jets hitherto employed for that purpose.

"Egmont" is the title of a new opera by M. Salvayre, which is shortly to be brought out at the Paris Opéra Comique. The libretto, from the pen of MM. Albert Wolf and Millaud, is founded upon Goethe's drama of the same name, which, as far as we are aware, has been thus utilised for the first time.

Under the title of "Les deux Pierres," Lortzing's most successful comic opera, "Czaar und Zimmermann," is just now making the round of French provincial theatres. The work was first produced in Germany in 1838, but the name of its composer has hitherto scarcely been known in France.

M. Talazac, the well-known tenor of the Paris Opéra Comique, will undertake an extensive Concert-tour in Germany during the coming season.

The Paris Concerts Populaires are to be resumed next autumn, under the direction of M. Pasdeloup, their original founder. These Concerts, instituted just twenty-five years ago, have done much in disseminating an acquaintance with classical music amongst French audiences, and their suspension some three years since, on account of undue competition, was a matter of general regret.

Hector Berlioz's opera, "Benvenuto Cellini," is to be performed at the Paris Grand Opéra on the occasion of the unveiling of the Berlioz statue in October next.

Victorin Joncières's opera, "Le Chevalier Jean," is to be performed during next season at Breslau, Sondershausen, Metz, Prague, and Liège. We have already recorded the highly successful performance of the work both at the Cologne Stadt-Theater and at the Berlin Opera.

The following paragraph, dated Bayreuth, July 23, has appeared in the daily papers:—The Bayreuth festival plays were resumed to-day. The town is filled with visitors of all nationalities, especially English and Americans. The performance to-day commenced at four o'clock, the work presented being "Parsifal." Every seat in the house was taken, and among the occupants of the boxes were Prince Ernst of Saxe-Meiningen, with his family and suite, Dr. Franz Liszt, the eminent pianist, Herr von Puttkamer, Prussian Minister of the Interior, the members of the family of the late Richard Wagner, as well as many of the prominent members of the German aristocracy, and musical and dramatic celebrities. The various parts, with the exception of Klingsor, were filled by the same actors as in former years. The orchestra was under the direction of Herr Levi, of Munich. The acting of Herr Winkelmann as Parsifal, and Madame Therese Malten as Kundry, elicited great applause.

A new edition has just been published by Feodor Reinhold, of Leipzig, of Hans von Wolzogen's exhaustive analysis of "Tristan und Isolde," which may be recommended to intending visitors of the Bayreuth Festspiele as an interesting guide to Wagner's elaborate music drama.

Two complete performances of Wagner's "Nibelungen" cycle are announced to take place at the Munich Hof-Theater on August 23, 25, 27, and 29; and September 13, 15, 17, and 19 respectively.

Wagner's "Tannhäuser" and "Lohengrin" are to be performed next season at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater without any of the customary "cuts," and the former with the additional scene written by the composer for the Paris performance of his work in 1861.

An Italian journal has made the discovery that the number thirteen has played a conspicuous part in the career of Richard Wagner. The Bayreuth reformer, born in 1813, died thirteen years after his second marriage, on February 13, 1883; on March 13, 1861, his "Tannhäuser" was hissed in Paris; and, finally, the number of letters constituting his christian and surnames is exactly thirteen. After this, it is not surprising that his royal friend and protector of Bavaria should have died on the thirteenth day of June last! It is astonishing to what extent the curious in these matters will carry their unprofitable researches.

Weber's early opera, "Sylvana," which has been making the round of German lyrical establishments, was recently produced at Dresden, where it met with the same enthusiastic reception as elsewhere. It is stated that during the past season the Dresden Hof-Theater has been subsidised to the extent of some £23,000, out of the private purse of the King of Saxony.

The following works were performed by the Berlin Royal Academy of Music (Hochschule) on the 9th ult., in anticipation of the forthcoming centenary of the birth of Carl Maria von Weber—viz., Overture "Oberon" (composed 1826); Hymn, for chorus, orchestra, and solo voices, "In seiner Ordnung schafft der Herr" (1812); Concertstück, for pianoforte and orchestra (1821); Krieglisdied, for male quartet, "Wir stehn vor Gott" (1812); Cantata "Kampf und Sieg," for chorus, orchestra, and solo voice, written in commemoration of the battle of Waterloo (1815). The pianoforte part of the Concertstück was played by Professor Barth.

We are glad to learn that the subscriptions towards the Weber monument, to be erected at the composer's native Eutin, have been coming forward more freely of late, though the moderate sum required (£1,000) is still far from being covered.

At the so-called Crystal Palace of Leipzig, a circus is now in course of erection, capable of holding 4,000 persons. There is also to be an organ of some fifty stops, with a view to the building being used for concert purposes.

The performance is projected at Frankfurt of a Passion Play, after the model of those periodically produced at Ober Ammergau. The work is divided into three parts, and is written by Herr Ferdinand Heitemeyer, the music, for solo, chorus, and orchestra, being from the pen of the Frankfurt musical director, Herr C. F. Bischof.

At the Berlin Walhalla Theatre, a three-act operetta, "Capricciosa," by C. A. Raida, is just now attracting crowded audiences. The work had been rejected by several operatic managers, whereupon the composer, confident of ultimate success, brought it out upon his own responsibility with the result indicated.

The new Court Theatre at Schwerin, is to be opened on the 21st of next month with appropriate festivities, including the performance of Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris," preceded by a festive prologue (dramatised) from the pen of Herr von Puttitz, to which Herr Aloys Schmitt has written the music. On the second day (September 22) Schiller's "Maria Stuart" is to be given, and on the third the magnificent concert-room attached to the building is to be inaugurated with Beethoven's Choral Symphony, and works by Bach, Handel, and others. The new theatre is constructed entirely of stone and iron, and replaces one destroyed by fire some years since, on which occasion, as will be remembered, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg (who was present at a performance when the fire broke out), with admirable sang froid, succeeded in averting a disastrous panic amongst the auditors.

Anton Rubinstein is engaged upon the composition of a Symphony, which is to be first performed at the Gewandhaus of Leipzig.

At the last Matinée of the season given by the pupils of Professor Julius Stockhausen's Academy at Frankfurt, one of the most interesting features was the performance of a Quintet, by Franz Schubert, for two tenors and three basses, a setting of Goethe's poem, "Nur wer die Sehnsucht Kennt," from "Wilhelm Meister," which is said to be of surpassing beauty. This work has been but recently discovered by the indefatigable Herr Max Friedländer.

The Prussian Government has acquired, by purchase, the valuable library of the late Professor Ludwig Erk, famous for his researches in connection with the history of the German Volkslied.

The following was the programme of a Pupils' Concert of the Royal Musikschule of Munich, held on the 5th ult.—Organ Sonata in G minor (G. Merkel); Serenade for orchestra (George J. Bennett, a pupil); Air from "Messiah" (Handel); Concerto in E flat major, for two pianofortes (Mozart); Violoncello Concerto in A minor (Götermann); Pianoforte Concerto in F sharp minor (Reinecke); Recitative and Air, from "Catharina Cornaro" (F. Lachner); Violin Concerto (H. Sitt); "Waldmorgen," for soprano solo, chorus, and orchestra (Adolf Sandberger, a pupil).

We have received the annual official report of the activity of the Raff-Conservatorium, at Frankfurt, whereof Dr. Hans von Bülow is the honorary president. The young institution appears to be making most satisfactory progress, both as regards the attendance of pupils and the artistic results already obtained.

The well-known Gürzenich Concerts at Cologne, established by the late Ferdinand Hiller, and now under the direction of Dr. Wüllner, will be resumed in October next. The following works, among others, will obtain a hearing during the season:—Mendelssohn's "Elijah," Haydn's "Seasons," Bach's Passion Music, and Symphonies by Beethoven, Schumann, and Niels Gade.

At a music festival recently held at Dordrecht (Holland) the proceedings included a highly successful performance of Albert Becker's Grand Mass in B flat minor, under the direction of Herr W. Kes, and in the presence of the composer.

Professor August Wilhemj is said to contemplate the formation of a string quartet party with himself as leader, and which, after the manner of the late famous Florentine Quartet, will undertake periodical European Concert tours. The French normal diapason has just been introduced in the orchestra of the Berlin Philharmonic Society.

A grand Liszt Concert is announced to take place on the 26th inst., at Mayence, under the direction of Herren Fritz Steinbach and Wilhem Bruch. The Abbé has promised to be present.

Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Mikado," which has found so much favour with Berlin audiences, is to be shortly produced at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, the journal founded by Robert Schumann, has become the property of Herr Oscar Schwalm, composer and musical author, who will likewise act as editor of the paper, his predecessor, Herr C. F. Kahnt, having discharged his important functions with much ability for a number of years, in conjunction with Drs. Zopff and Schucht. Our best wishes will accompany the journal under its new régime.

An International Theatre is being planned at Berlin for the performance alternately of the most remarkable dramatic and lyrical productions of all civilised nations.

Herr Xaver Scharwenka, the well-known pianist and composer residing in Berlin, will conduct a series of concerts in the German capital during the coming winter, in the course of which a number of interesting vocal and instrumental works by Beethoven, Liszt, Brahms, Berlioz, and Wagner will be produced.

At the German theatre of Prague, under the direction of Herr Angelo Neumann, a complete "cycle" of Mozart's operas is announced to take place in October next, to be followed, in November, by a similar scheme in regard to Shakespeare's historical dramas.

Brilliant success has attended the recent first performance, at the Kroll'sche Theatre of Berlin, of Heinrich Hofmann's opera "Aennchen von Tharau."

At the last Concert of the season of the Hamburg Philharmonic Society, a most successful performance was given of Max Bruch's oratorio "Achilleus," with Mesdames Joachim and Schausell, Herren Gudehus and Scheidemantel as interpreters of the leading parts.

Herr Fritz Steinbach, a composer of talent, hitherto Capellmeister at the Mayence Stadt-Theater, has accepted the conductorship of the court-orchestra of Meiningen, rendered famous under the bâton of Dr. Hans von Bülow.

The Academy of Arts of Madrid has awarded a gold medal to Señor Antonio Peña y Goni for his elaborate volume entitled "La Opera española y la musica dramática en España en el siglo XIX.," a review of which will shortly appear in this journal.

One "competitor" only has presented himself this year at the Royal Conservatorio of Madrid, for the purpose of gaining the annual prix de Rome of that institution. He has been successful.

The German Opera Company of New York has secured the first performance of Herr Goldmark's new Opera "Merlin," already referred to in these columns.

A monument to Bellini has just been unveiled at Naples, in the vicinity of the Conservatorio, the work of the sculptor Signor Balzico. On the four sides of the pedestal the figures of the principal heroines of the master are represented—viz., Amina, Norma, Giulietta, and Elvira.

Mlle. Sigrid Arnoldson, a Swedish vocalist, "discovered" some time since by M. Maurice Strakosch, the well-known impresario, is expected ere long to make her début in the French capital. Franz Liszt is said to have predicted a brilliant career for this young artist.

Count Wittgenstein's opera, "Antonius und Cleopatra," will be performed during the coming stagione at Rome.

M. Tivadar Náchéz, the eminent violinist, has sustained a fracture of the arm, caused by a fall from a tricycle.

At Hamburg, died on the 4th ult., August Ferdinand Riccius, aged sixty-seven, a musician of merit, who for a number of years occupied the post of operatic conductor, first at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater, and subsequently at Hamburg. During the last decade of his life, Riccius devoted his time chiefly to musical criticism in the columns of the Hamburger Nachrichten.

Jules Petit, the once much esteemed basso at the Opéra, died at Paris at the age of forty-seven.

Minna Meyerbeer, the widow of the celebrated composer of "Robert le Diable" and "Les Huguenots," died at Wiesbaden, on June 28, at the age of eighty-one. Her remains have been conveyed to Berlin and placed by the side of those of her illustrious husband in the Jewish Cemetery.

Sabino Falcone, composer of sacred music and of chamber works, died at Naples, at the age of forty-one.

The death is announced, at Baltimore, of Agnes Guibert, a sister of the convent at Georgetown, who, according to Rubinstein, possessed the most magnificent soprano voice he ever heard. She has never used her precious gift except in connection with the ritual of her church, and before taking the veil had refused an offer of 250,000 francs made her by M. Strakosch for her appearance at a series of concerts.

CORRESPONDENCE.

M. SAINT-SAËNS'S NORMAL METRONOME.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—About the beginning of the present month, M. Saint-Saëns addressed a note to the French Academy of Sciences on the desirability of providing musicians with a normal metronome. I append a translation of the communication, thinking it may prove of interest to many of your readers.

Nobody will deny that uniformity of pitch should be secured, and that, therefore, the introduction of a normal diapason is a distinct gain to musical art. The advantages to be derived from a normal metronome are not so easily perceived. The real object of the instrument is to indicate to the performer or performers the rate at which a given composition is to be played. To the soloist such indications, although acting as a partial guide, are not strictly adhered to, for each performer relies chiefly upon his own individual reading of the composition. For orchestral performances or concerted pieces, on the other hand, the metronome appears to greater advantage, but it seems to me that the apparatus as now constructed, M. Saint-Saëns to the contrary notwithstanding, may be made sufficiently accurate for every purpose. Let us select at random half-a-dozen metronomes, and set them to beat at say sixty per minute. Suppose the variation between them amounts to three per cent.—a discrepancy not likely to occur with even roughly constructed instruments—what impression would be conveyed to our senses if a given composition be rendered according to the indications of the best and worst of these metronomes? I apprehend that the rendering would gain or lose nothing by the slight difference of time in the two cases.

Again, if a normal metronome be prepared in Paris to give in that place absolutely correct indications, these would not be the same if the apparatus were used in any other latitude, the swing of a pendulum varying with its position on the globe. For theoretical accuracy, therefore, a correction would be necessary for varying degrees of latitude, although practically the instruments would be good enough.

Improvements might advantageously be made to secure greater regularity of beat as the spring uncoils and loses its tension, although even this is not necessary in an apparatus which only need be used intermittently for a few seconds at a time; but any advantage to be gained from the introduction of a normal metronome appears to me more imaginary than real.

I may add that the President of the Academy has asked the Mechanics and Physics Sections to investigate the question submitted by M. Saint-Saëns.

I remain, Sir, your obedient servant,

T. E. GATEHOUSE.

22, Paternoster Row, July 20, 1886.

TRANSLATION.

The Normal Metronome. Note by M. Saint-Saëns.

"Music differs from the plastic arts in that the essential element of the latter is the division of space, whereas that of the former is the division of time.

"In fact, music is the art of combining sounds either successively (as in melody) or simultaneously (as in harmony). In either case, a sound being composed of a certain number of isochronous vibrations of given duration, all music is reduced to a relation between numbers. Melody and harmony are merely rhythmical combinations.

"We may regard sounds (1) from the point of view of the greater or less rapidity of the vibrations which compose them; (2) from their duration. In either case, the relation between the different sounds constitutes in itself alone the whole musical interest. In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, no other point was considered. The pitch was arbitrary, and there were no directions as to the rate of execution, or what is termed in music the time of a piece.

"The progress of the art of singing, appealing to all the resources of the voice throughout the vocal scale, gradually made apparent the necessity of a definite starting point as to pitch, and each country adopted its own. As this art became still further developed, the want of a common standard of pitch was universally felt, and the Académie des Sciences solved the problem by introducing the normal diapason, which all nations are gradually adopting. On the other hand, the development of the combinations of rhythm showed the necessity for determining the time of pieces of music. This was done in vague terms, which every one interpreted according to his own ideas, and no other method was adopted until the appearance of the metronome. This instrument, invented at the end of the last century by Stöckel, and improved by Maelzel, is a pendulum provided with a 'movable bob' and a graduated scale, based upon the subdivisions of a minute. In the metronomes most frequently employed, the subdivisions range from $\frac{1}{10}$ to $\frac{1}{120}$ of a minute.

"These instruments are universally employed. But to be of any practical utility they must be accurate, and unfortunately this is a quality that very few of them possess. The musical world is supplied with badly constructed and badly regulated metronomes, which mislead musicians instead of guiding them.

"The Académie, which has rendered so great a service to music by the introduction of the normal diapason, would complete its work by endowing it also with a normal metronome, regulated mathematically, and by obtaining a guarantee from the Government that metronomes before being delivered to the public should be tested and stamped, as are tuning-forks, weights, and measures."

THE NATURAL MUSICAL SCALES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to point out that the scheme of the major diatonic scale, to which I called attention in your last issue, affords also a solution of the "tonic minor" question; a solution which, it seems fair to expect, will reconcile the views of many theorists otherwise hopelessly antagonistic.

Alfred Day, the inventor of the generally accepted tonic minor, states explicitly that the minor third from the tonic, 6:5, is an arbitrary, and not a natural interval.

The Tonic Sol-fa school rejects the tonic minor theory entirely, affirming that the so-called tonic minor of C is really the relative minor of E flat. Other observers have noted the facts that the equal temperament minor third, instead of being too narrow to satisfy the ear, as theory suggests, is in reality too wide; and that the E F major third, instead of being too wide, is, at least in some cases, too narrow.

The Series of Perfect Fifths.

A♭	E♭	B♭	F	C	G	D
128	32	16	4	1	3	9
81	27	9	3	1	2	8

Affords a scale completely satisfying these objections, thus—

Natural Tonic Minor Scale.

C	D	E♭	F	G	A♭	B♭	C
1	9	32	4	3	128	16	2
	8	27	3	2	81	9

This scale is entirely and indisputably natural. Its minor third, C to E flat, is narrower by a comma ($\frac{8}{81}$) than the modic minor third, A to C. Its major thirds are wider by a comma than the major thirds of the major scale. Its third, sixth, and seventh, all or either may be raised a chromatic semitone, $\frac{1}{128}$, without in any way violating the dictates of nature, as the raised and unraised notes are all derived from the same root.

On page 110 of "Musical Statics," Mr. Curwen says:—"The minor mode does not hold its own so well as the major. . . . It seems as though it could not stand alone. In every few measures it takes it needs the relative major to support its steps."

This and much more is justified and explained by the fact that the natural tonic minor scale has but one root or gauge-note, C; whilst the major scale has two roots or gauge-notes, C and E.

Annexed is a comparative view of minor scales, showing the relative dimensions of their intervals—

Natural Tonic Minor.

C T D S E♭ T F T G S A♭ T B♭ T C

Day's Minor.

C T " s " t " T " s " t " T "

Relative Minor.

C T " s " T " t " s " T " t "

Here T = $\frac{9}{8}$; t = $\frac{1}{10}$; s = $\frac{1}{16}$; S = $\frac{2}{3}$.

The raised sixths, sevenths, and thirds are identical in these scales.—Yours faithfully,

JOSEPH GOOLD.

NEGLECTED SOLO INSTRUMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—A note in your issue of this month refers to a subject in which I have for some time taken a great interest, and upon which I venture to ask you to let me add a few remarks. One point not touched upon by your correspondent is the position of amateurs. With regard to this question, I think I shall hardly be exaggerating if I say that there are thousands of amateurs of some taste and cultivation (I know of a few in my own experience, which is by no means large) who scarcely know any of the orchestral wind instruments, except the flute, by their sound or even their name. By the performance of the many neglected masterpieces written for other wind instruments, all such persons would have a new and most interesting field revealed to them, and composers would, doubtless, be thus encouraged to still further enrich the store of these pieces. It seems strange indeed that Conductors should be so blind to such an opportunity: we have actually had a Concerto for kettle-drums played within the last few years, by way of a startling novelty, as if there were not many fine instruments, with plenty of suitable music composed for them, waiting to be heard. Another branch of this subject, on which I should like to say a few words, is the revival of instruments which have been long thrown aside. The double-reed family is fairly represented—we have the oboe (soprano), cor anglais (alto), bassoon (bass), and contra-fagotto (double-bass), all in more or less common use—though the cor anglais, perhaps the most beautiful of all the family, might be brought forward more than it is at present. But of the single-reed family the only representative in ordinary use is the soprano—the clarinet—whereas the alto and bass clarinets are exceedingly fine and effective instruments, and are, unfortunately, scarcely ever heard: the basset-horn, so far as I am aware, is only used in one work which is ever performed—Mozart's Requiem—and the bass clarinet in Meyerbeer's and Wagner's operas. But all these, besides being available for orchestral use, are excellent as solo instruments; only, unfortunately, there is little written for them. The remedy for this lies in the hands of composers. I have myself used the bass clarinet as a solo instrument (having adapted a cello part to it) in a chamber Concert in a small provincial town, where it was much admired by the few musicians who were present. Mozart and Mendelssohn have both used the basset-horn in chamber music: the latter having written two magnificent Concert pieces (Op. 113 and 114) for clarinet, basset-horn, and piano. Is it too much to hope that we may hear these some day at the "Monday Pops"? I would also mention, as specimens of chamber music, two exquisite pieces for clarinet, viola, and piano; a trio by Mozart in E flat, and Schumann's "Märchen-Erzählungen." These latter, by the way, were played at a Saturday Popular Concert last season, with violin instead of clarinet, when Mr. Lazarus was, I believe, actually present, waiting to play in a Septet. If my remarks should attract the favourable attention of those in authority, and so eventually lead to a practical recognition of the claims of these neglected instruments and compositions, the object of my letter will be gained.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

ROUGHTON H. WHALL, A.C.O.

152, Oakley Street, Chelsea, July 11, 1886.

"ADELAIDE AS A MUSICAL CITY."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—By this mail I forward the S. A. Register of May 29, 1886, in which appears a letter from me contradicting a statement made by your Adelaide correspondent in his "Adelaide as a Musical City," published in THE MUSICAL TIMES of March 1, 1886. As your valuable journal is held in such high estimation even in this distant part of the world, I must request the favour of your giving publicity to my refutation of your correspondent's want of accuracy. I have waited a week for any reply to my letter to the Register, but none has appeared; the reason is obvious.—I am, Sir, &c.,

"S. A. REGISTER" MUSICAL CRITIC.

Adelaide, June 5, 1886.

"SIR,—In the March issue of THE MUSICAL TIMES (London) a correspondent favours the readers of that journal with his views upon 'Adelaide as a Musical City.' His concluding paragraph begins, 'We have only one drawback, our newspaper critics are deficient in knowledge,' and after mentioning three instances where errors have been made—one of which, by the way, is palpably a printer's error—he writes, 'If this does not suffice to show their weakness, the S. A. Register's notice of one of the Quartet Concerts may.' Then follows what purports to be a quotation from the Register notice of the performance of Schubert's 'Trout' Quintet, marked by quotation points. I am informed by the Secretary of the A.S.Q.C. and another competent authority that this work has been performed in Adelaide only on three occasions, at each of which I have been present as your representative; and I flatly deny that the quotation is correct either literally or as giving, even in the most general manner, the sense of the criticism which appeared in your columns. Even under favourable circumstances the critic's 'lot is not a happy one,' and he certainly cannot afford to be adversely misquoted.—I am, Sir, &c., YOUR MUSICAL CRITIC."

AN UNKNOWN IRISH TUNE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The late Carl Engel, sometime previous to his death, recommended in your columns that organists and others, in country districts especially, should bring forward any characteristic national air or tune which might be considered to have escaped public notice, or rather that of musicians generally. The appended melody, which I now transcribe from memory, I have never seen in any printed collection of Irish or other tunes, nor in any MS. except my own. I heard it from time to time in Limerick and Tipperary, played for such a dance as Miss McLeod's reel is used for; but since my residence in this county (Kerry) I have not heard it even once. Mr. Rockstro, in his History of Music, says: "Many of the finest English, French, Scottish, Irish, and other national melodies are written in the ancient ecclesiastical scales." It may be interesting, therefore, to those conversant with the Gregorian modes, to discuss the question as to which of them belong the quaint periods of this melodious old air, which I believe to be thus far unknown.—I am, Sir, yours very truly,

W. CHARLES HETREED, Cathedral Organist.

July 5, 1886.

THE MARSEILLAISE HYMN.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Will you please inform me through your Correspondence column, of the full particulars relative to the authorship of the melody to the "Marseillaise Hymn."

Was the melody specially composed for it, or was it in existence before the "Marseillaise"?—Yours truly,

THIRVALD LAURSEN.

45, Fairlawn Street, Moss Side, Manchester.

[On the much-debated question referred to above our correspondents may have something to say. We invite communications.—Ed. M. T.]

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

BINFIELD.—A Concert in aid of local charities was given by Miss Minna Vivian in the schoolroom, on Tuesday, the 6th ult., assisted by the following ladies and gentlemen:—Lady Charlotte and Lady Olivia Legge, Lady Simon, Mr. Cragghi, Mr. Traherne, and Mr. Ernest Cecil. Special mention should be made of Miss Vivian's singing of "In a quiet old village" (Scott Gatty), and also of that of Mr. Colnaghi in "My love and I" (Tosti), and "Mistress Prue" (Molloy). The Ladies' League played Tarantelle (N. Rubinstein), and Valse Tyrolienne (Raff), as piano duets; and Lady Charlotte Legge greatly interested the audience by performing two solos on the Gligelia. A new song, "Winds in the trees," by moving Thomas, the composer of "Esmeralda," was well sung by Mr. Charles Harris, Organist and Choirmaster of the Parish Church. At the end of the first part, Mr. Traherne and Mr. Ernest Cecil appeared in a new Drawing-room Opera, by Louisa Gray, entitled Between two Stools, which gave great satisfaction, the music being bright and melodious. The accompaniments were shared by Miss Vivian and Mr. Harris.

BURNLEY.—A Floral Fete in connection with Holy Trinity Church was opened by Lady Charles Pratt at Sandgately School on the 2nd ult. Topical songs were sung by the scholars, dressed to represent the professions and trades of Burnley. During the fete solos were rendered by Master J. Downing, of Manchester Cathedral, and instrumental selections by the Sailor Boys' band from the training ship "Indefatigable," Liverpool. Master Downing was also highly successful in solos by Handel and Haydn on the two succeeding Sundays. The Vicar of Holy Trinity presided at an entertainment on behalf of the Burnley General Help Society for the Blind, held in the Mechanics' Institute on the 14th ult., when vocal and instrumental selections were given by some of the blind, assisted by local amateurs and artists.

CHERTSEY.—On June 28, Mr. Fred Monk gave a Concert at the Infants' Schoolroom, by kind permission of the Vicar, at which he was assisted by an orchestral band, led by Mr. J. S. Liddle, Mus. Bac. of Newbury. The programme included the Overture to Saul (Handel), March from El Comte, Minuet and Trio from Symphony in E flat (Mozart), and the "Queen's Jubilee March" (Watson), all of which were fairly given by the orchestra. Mr. Liddle's solos were Raff's Cavatina, Spohr's Barcarole in G (Op. 139), David's Study and Ungarische, and a clever and effective Bolero of his own. Some amateurs of the neighbourhood assisted as vocalists. The receipts of the Concert were devoted to paying the expenses of the orchestral band during the past season.

DERBY CASTLE.—The Concerts given at this pleasure resort have been excellent, that on June 28 being highly successful, mainly owing to the effective singing of Miss Essie Holt, who, especially in the song "Sing, sweet bird," created a marked impression. She also received warm applause for her rendering of "Queen of the Sea" and "Killarney"; vocal selections being likewise contributed by Miss Jessie Breakenridge and Mr. Grimshaw.

FOLKESTONE.—On Thursday evening, the 1st ult., a Concert in aid of the funds of the Hospital was given in the Town Hall, by the pupils of Sutherland House. The programme comprised Gault's Cantata Ruth, which was admirably rendered, the choruses being especially good. The second part was miscellaneous. There was an excellent orchestra led by Mr. Cecil M. Gann. The principal vocalists were Miss Margaret Hoare and Miss Hilda Wilson, both of whom were much appreciated. Mr. Dugard, Organist of Trinity Church, conducted.

GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA.—A Concert of Scottish music was given by the members of the St. Andrew's and St. Thomas's choirs, assisted by other amateurs, in the Philharmonic Hall, on June 22. Several choruses were well sung and solos were efficiently rendered by Mrs. H. L. Wight, Miss W. Wieting, Messrs. Joseph Virtue, Baldwin, and Brown. Instrumental solos were effectively performed by Mr. Hemery (violinello) and Mr. Sannier (flute), and the pianoforte accompaniments were played by Messrs. Bourne and Barnard with much ability. Mr. W. R. Colbeck arranged and conducted the Concert.

GRAHAMSTON, N.B.—The third Annual Concert by Mr. J. Watson Lee's pupils was given on Friday evening, June 25, in the Odd Fellows' Hall, before a large audience. Mr. James Wilson in the chair. A well selected miscellaneous programme was excellently rendered. Mr. Lee accompanied the vocal music. At the conclusion of the Concert the chairman presented the certificates gained last year by Mr. Lee's pupils at the local examination in connection with Trinity College.

GRAHAMSTOWN.—On Wednesday, May 19, the Annual Festival Service was held in Trinity Church, which was crowded long before the time of commencement, many being unable to gain admittance. Farmer's Oratorio, Christ and His Soldiers, was well rendered by the choir, assisted by a few friends. Miss J. Tidmarsh presided at the organ, and Mr. W. Howse, Organist of the Church, conducted. The soloists were, Miss Howse, Miss Howse, Mr. Howse, and Messrs. Pryce, Gowie, and Sattie. Miss Tidmarsh played Best's Allegro in C and Wely's Offertoire in C. This service was the most successful ever given by the choir, both from an artistic and pecuniary point of view.

LEEDS.—On Sunday afternoon, June 27, Haydn's Creation was rendered in Salem Chapel to a crowded congregation, the object being to obtain funds towards the cleaning and repairing of the organ. The principal vocalists were Miss Wood, Mr. Charles Blagrove, and Mr. Jan Billington, all of whom were highly successful. The choruses were given with fine effect. Mr. W. N. Hudson (the Organist) displayed much ability in the instrumental portions of the Oratorio. Mr. W. Toothill conducted.

PUTNEY.—A successful Concert was given at the Assembly Rooms, on the 22nd ult., by the Students of the School of Music, 125, Upper Richmond Road, under the direction of Mr. Frank Barnard, R.A.M.,

Principal. The programme consisted of compositions by Bennett, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Liszt, &c. The Barcarole from the Fourth Concerto, by Sir Sterndale Bennett, and Capriccio Brillante (Op. 22), Mendelssohn, were performed with orchestral accompaniment.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—A Service of Sacred Music and Organ Recital were given at Holy Trinity Church on the afternoon of the 11th ult., before a crowded congregation. The organ pieces were well selected and excellently rendered by Mr. J. T. B. Turner, Organist and Choirmaster of the Church; Mr. J. Hunter and Mr. J. Pearson contributing vocal solos, which were highly appreciated.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—An interesting Service of Sacred Music took place on Wednesday evening, the 7th ult., at the Wesleyan Church, Vale Royal. The selection consisted of Mozart's Twelfth Mass, varied by solos and duets from the best known Oratorios, the general character of the service reflecting much credit on Mr. G. Starmer, the Conductor, under whose direction it had been organised. The chorus numbered sixty, and the orchestra consisted of fourteen performers, Mr. W. W. Starmer, R.A.M., contributing not a little to the success by his masterly organ accompaniments. The choruses in the Mass received careful and intelligent rendering, and the selections from the Oratorios were well interpreted by Mrs. Skillen, Miss Lambach, Messrs. Parsons and Oliver.

WOKINGHAM.—A Choral Festival was held in the Parish Church on the 1st ult., which proved highly successful. The suggestion of performing some sacred Cantata in the place of a sermon at the close of the service of strengthening the organ accompaniment with a small and carefully selected orchestra of stringed instruments, and of supplementing the singing of the choirs with ladies' voices, met with the approval of the rural deanery Chapter. The work was Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm, and although the labour involved in the learning of such a composition by the more efficient village choirs is very great, there can be no doubt that it will be productive of much good. The orchestra consisted of eight violins, a tenor, a violoncello, and a double bass. There was a special service-book prepared, and in the playing of the hymns and voluntaries, as well as in the Psalm, the orchestra joined with the organ. Mr. Gregory, Organist of Sonning, conducted. There were forty ladies in the choir, and in all upwards of 320 performers took part in the music. The general effect was of far more than ordinary excellence, Mendelssohn's Psalm, notwithstanding the difficulties it presented, being steadily and finely rendered, and the entire performance reflecting real credit on the careful training bestowed upon the various choirs in the deanery. Mr. Moss was an efficient organist.

WREXHAM.—The organ in Brynffynnon Wesleyan Chapel was re-opened on Tuesday, the 13th ult., two Recitals being given before large congregations by Mr. A. J. Phipps, R.A.M., Principal of the Liverpool Conservatoire of Music. The instrument, which has been rebuilt by Messrs. Gray and Davison, is much improved, the superior quality of tone being greatly admired. By the application of a patent pallet the touch has been made light and easy of manipulation, and this improvement was exhibited to perfection by Mr. Phipps' masterly performances. Vocal music was contributed by Mdle. Kefalas and Madame Bolani.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Alfred E. Bateman Brown, Organist and Choirmaster to Mount Zion Chapel, Graham Street, Birmingham.—Mr. W. Harry Woodward, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Asbury, Congleton.—Mr. James Parker, to St. Wilfred's Church, Northenden.—Mr. Albert A. Jelpke, to the German Church, Cleveland Street, Fitzroy Square.—Mr. Howard Leask, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church of St. Margaret, Lee.—Mr. Robert Gordon, Organist and Choirmaster to Augustine Congregational Church, Edinburgh.—Mr. J. Mortimer Dudman, to the Royal Academy, Westminster.—Mr. J. H. W. Ward, Organist and Musicmaster to Stonyhurst College, near Blackburn, Lancashire.—Mr. W. H. Ward, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's, Bethnal Green.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. W. H. Ward, Choirmaster to the Church Choirs Union for the Rural Deanery of Spitalfields.—Mr. Edwin Lister, Choirmaster to St. James's, Kidbrook.

DEATHS.

On the 12th ult., at his residence, 233, Camden Road, DANIEL HILL, J.P., formerly of the Bank of England, and from 1871 until its dissolution, in 1882, President of the late Sacred Harmonic Society, aged 81. He was interred in Highgate Cemetery, July 16, 1886.

On the 17th ult., at Wimbledon, aged 44, FRANK CHAPPELL, of 123, Harley Street, and of Great Marlborough Street (Metzler and Co.), Interred in the West Hampstead Cemetery, July 21.

MISS MONA A. JAMES (Soprano).

(Full execution E in Alto; pupil of Signor Martinengo, R.A.M., S.C.R., &c.)
Operatic Italian Gems for Concerts and English Songs, 58, New Street, Birmingham.

MR. FRANK COX (Basso).

(Pupil of Signor Martinengo, R.A.M., S.C.R., Italy.)
Oratorios, Cantatas, English Songs, and Italian Buffo Songs, 58, New Street, Birmingham.

A LADY (Pupil of Dupont, Brussels Conservatoire; A first-rate certificate) desires additional PUPILS for Pianoforte, Theory, and Sight-Singing. Good School or Private Pupils. Highest references. For terms, address, Miss B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

DANCING.—Mr. H. R. JOHNSON, M.C. and Teacher of Dancing, gives LESSONS at Schools and Private Families. For terms, 39, Baker Street, Lloyd Square, W.C. Bands and M.C. supplied.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

BACH, J. S.—The Organ Works. Book 6. Edited by J. F. BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon., and JAMES HIGGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon. Price 3s.

The sixth book includes several of Bach's greatest and most popular organ works. (1) The Toccata in D minor, with its contrasting effects of recitative-like passages and massive harmonies. (2) The well-known Prelude and Fugue in D major, which Spitta describes as "one of the most dazzlingly beautiful of all the master's organ works. . . . Skilful pedal players will find it exactly suited to them, for the theme is quite exceptionally fitted for pedal technique." (3) The Prelude and Fugue in F minor, less known perhaps than the other contents of the book, but scarcely less beautiful or less worthy of the student's attention. (4) The great Prelude in E flat major, together with the Fugue in three sections known as the "St. Ann's." The whole are laid out with especial regard to the convenience of the player. Necessary fingering and other marks to help to effective performance are inserted, and the Preface contains various notes and suggestions relative to the history, structure, and treatment of the several works.

HANDEL, G. F.—"Saul." An Oratorio (composed in the year 1738). Additional Accompaniments by E. PROUT. Full Score (manuscript). First violin, 6s.; second violin, 6s.; viola, 5s.; violoncello and bass, 5s.; flutes, 3s.; oboes, 4s. 6d.; clarinets, 4s.; bassoons, 4s. 6d.; double basses, 1s.; horns, 2s. 6d.; trumpets, 1s.; trombones (alto and tenor), 1s. 6d.; trombone (bass), 6d.; drums, 1s.; glockenspiel (bells), 6d.; organ, 6s.; soprano, 1s. 7½d.; alto, 1s. 7½d.; tenor, 1s. 6d.; bass, 1s. 6d.

A GUTTER, B., Mus. B.—(in G major). Missa de Sancto Amphibalo. A short setting of the Office of the Holy Eucharist (including the Kyrie proper, the Benedictus, and Agnus Dei), according to the use of the Church of England; with a Preface on certain Liturgical points. 1s. Kyrie (first setting), separately, 2d.

BRIDGE, DR. J. F.—Short Settings of the Office for the Holy Communion (including Benedictus and Agnus Dei). For Parochial and General use. No. 10, in D. 1s.

DENNIS, CHARLES.—(in F). Te Deum laudamus. 3d.

HALL, KING.—Short Settings of the Office for the Holy Communion (including Benedictus and Agnus Dei). For Parochial and General use. No. 9, in C. 1s.

WILSON, C. M., L.Mus., T.C.L.—(in B flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 4d.

YOUNG, JOHN M. W.—The Canticles. Pointed for Anglican Chants. With Directions for Chanting. 3d.

ARMES, PHILIP, Mus. Doc., Oxon.—"The Lord preserveth the souls of His Saints." Anthem for a Saint's day. (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 304.) 6d.

BARNBY, J.—"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works." Harvest Anthem. (With Welsh words.) 3d.

JOYCE, JOHN J.—Five Hymns, set to music for Festival or ordinary use. 3d.

Brightly gleams our banner. Sun of my soul.
O praise our great and gracious Deum noster refugium; or, The Lord. Cross.

For thee, O dear, dear country.
STAMMERS, I. HERBERT.—"Examine me, O Lord." Anthem for Baritone Solo and Chorus. For Lent or General use. 4d.

WAKEFIELD, J. H.—"Onward, Christian Soldiers." Processional Hymn. 2d.

CATHOLIC HYMNS, with Accompanying Tunes. Being a Musical Edition of "St. Dominic's Hymn Book." Edited by A. E. TOZER. 2s.; cloth, 3s.

PINSUTI, CIRO.—Twelve Vocal Duets. Book 2. 2s. 6d. [back.

No. 7. The Mermaids. No. 10. Bygone days, or Looking " 8. False love is true. " 11. Love and friendship.
" 9. Under the stars. " 12. The Magicians.

WALLER, HILDA.—"The Singers." A Cantata for Treble Voices. The Words written by H. W. LONGFELLOW. 1s.

KING, ALFRED.—"Music, when soft voices die." Madrigal for Six Voices. (No. 534, Novello's Part-song Book.) 4d.

TOURS, BERTHOLD.—"The Days of long ago." Four-part Song. (No. 535, Novello's Part-song Book.) 3d.

SCHWEIZER, OTTO.—Sonata for Pianoforte and Violoncello. Op. 28. 7s. 6d.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. McNAUGHT. 7s. O who will o'er the downs, A.T.T.B.

R. L. de PEARSALL 1d.
88. O Lord, how manifold are Thy works. Harvest Anthem, with Welsh words. J. BARNBY 1d.
455. {Hail! smiling morn. . . . R. SPOFFORTH 1d.
{Hark, the lark DR. COOKE 1d.
456. Cradle Song HENRY SMART 1d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

476. O praise God in His Holiness T. T. TRIMMELL 1½d.
477. A Canadian Boat Song (three voices) T. MOORE 1d.
488. {Awake, Æolian lyre J. DANBY 1d.
{Ye shepherds tell me. s.s.b. . . . J. MAZZINGHI 1d.
{Blessed is the people V. NOVELLO
{There is a river " "
489. {Pray for the peace " " 1d.
{Blessed is he DR. NARES
{God save the Queen arranged by V. NOVELLO
493. {Rule, Britannia art. for A.T.T.B. by J. BARNBY 1d.
{Oh! the rosetree fold England art. J. FITZMAN
497. The boar's head carol art. by DR. RIMBAULT 1d.
Winds gently whisper. s.s.b. . . . J. WHITTAKER
498. {May no rash intruder (Solomon) HANDEL 1d.
{Then round about the stary throne (Samson) " "
499. {How beautiful upon the mountains R. A. SMITH
{The Lord loveth V. NOVELLO 1d.
Enter not into judgment ATTWOOD
500. Te Deum in F WILLIAM JACKSON
501. All is peace BERTHOLD TOURS 1d.
{Now is the month of maying T. MORLEY
{Awake, sweet love J. DOWLAND
502. {Breathe soft, ye winds WEBBE 1d.
{Bluebells of Scotland art. by A. NEITHARDT
{Glorious Apollo WEBBE
503. How sweet the moonlight sleeps H. LESLIE 1d.
{Thou visitest the earth. . . . DR. GREENE
504. {Great and marvellous DR. BOYCE
{Blessed are the dead C. VILLIERS STANFORD 1½d.
505. {Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, T.T. TRIMMELL
506. The Skylark J. BARNBY 1d.
507. The grace of God that bringeth salvation Earl of MORNINGTON 1d.
508. {Here, in cool grot GASTOLDI 1d.
{Soldiers brave and gallant be PAXTON
{Breathe soft, ye winds SIR JOHN STEVENSON 1d.
509. {Mark the merry times. s.a.b. . . . DR. CALCOTT
510. Fear not, O land C. H. LLOYD 1d.
511. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem W. H. BLISS 1½d.
{Teach me, O Lord ATTWOOD
512. O God, Who in Thy heav'nly hand HANDEL 1d.
513. {Come, Holy Ghost ATTWOOD
{Hear my prayer, O God JAMES KENT 1d.
514. {Hye lo me THOMAS TALLIS
{Hear and meeting MENDELSSOHN
515. {Hark! 'tis the Indian drum BISHOP 1d.
516. {In Jewry is God known J. CLARKE-WHITEFIELD 1d.
517. {I will always give thanks KÜCKEN
518. {Soldiers' Love. T.T.B.B. . . . WERNER 1d.
519. {The Two Roses. T.T.B.B. . . . CALCOTT 1d.
520. {The Red Cross Knight. s.s.b. . . . M. ESTE 1d.
521. {How merrily we live. T.T.B. . . . HAYDN 1d.
522. Come, gentle Spring W. JACKSON 1d.
523. {Jubilate Deo and Kyrie A. R. GAUL 1d.
524. {Three Kyrie " "
525. The Better Land " "
526. The Children's Hour " "
527. The Potter " "

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSLEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., and EDWARD GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. Edition I, in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s. Edition II, in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s. Edition III, in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION OF THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.
II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.
III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.
When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION OF THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, and Modern, arranged to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

CATHOLIC HYMNS
WITH ACCOMPANYING TUNESBeing a Musical Edition of ST. DOMINIC'S HYMN BOOK
EDITED BY

A. E. TOZER.

Price Two Shillings; cloth, Three Shillings.
London and New York: BURNS and OATES, Limited.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEMS & HYMNS.

All Thy works praise Thee...	...	E. H. Thorne	3d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord...	...	H. Gadsby	14d.
Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice	...	Sir J. Goss	6d.
Fear not, O land	...	C. H. Lloyd	14d.
Give unto the Lord the glory	...	J. F. Bridge	4d.
God said, Behold, I have given you every herb...	...	G. A. Macfarren	6d.
Great is the Lord	...	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	...	E. J. Hopkins	6d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	...	J. Barnby	4d.
I will magnify Thee, O God	...	Sir J. Goss	3d.
Make melody within your hearts	...	Rev. F. A. J. Hervey	3d.
O give thanks	...	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
O how plentiful is Thy goodness	...	T. M. Pattison	3d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	...	J. Barnby	14d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	...	Sir G. A. Macfarren	14d.
O praise the Lord	...	Sir Herbert Oakeley	4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	...	Dr. W. Hayes	4d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul	...	H. Lahee	14d.
Praise ye the Lord for His goodness	...	G. Garrett	14d.
Praised be the Lord	...	C. Steggall	1/-
Sing praises to God	...	H. W. Wareing	14d.
The earth is the Lord's	...	A. Lowe	3d.
The earth is the Lord's	...	T. T. Trimmell	4d.
The fast'ning earth, the genial showers	...	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
The harvest-time, the thanksgiving	...	J. Barnby	14d.
The Lord hath done great things	...	H. Smart	4d.
The Lord is loving unto every man	...	G. Garrett	3d.
This is the day	...	Sir Herbert Oakeley	4d.
Thou visitest the earth and bleasest it	...	W. H. Callcott	2d.
Thou visitest the earth	...	Dr. Greene	14d.
Thou visitest the earth	...	J. Baptiste Calkin	4d.
While the earth remaineth	...	C. Swinerton Heap	4d.
While the earth remaineth	...	B. Tours	14d.
Ye shall dwell in the land	...	J. Stainer	14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR

HARVEST

SELECTED FROM "THE HYMNARY."

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Sing to the Lord a joyful song	...	J. Barnby.	...
O Lord, the heaven Thy power displays	...	Sir F. Osuley.	...
Father, blessing every seed-time	...	Dr. Dykes.	...
Lord, in Thy Name Thy servants plead	...	W. Meicall.	...
The wintry time hath ended	...	Dr. Gauntlett.	...
Come, ye thankful people, come	...	Sir George Elvey.	...
God, the Father, Whose creation...	...	H. Smart.	...
Lord of the harvest, Thee we hail	...	Anonymous.	...
Lo, summer comes again	...	Rev. E. B. Whyley.	...
Praise, O praise our Heavenly King	...	German.	...
Summer ended, harvest o'er	...	J. Adcock.	...
O Lord of heaven, and earth, and sea	...	Dr. Wesley.	...

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST.

THE JUBILEE CANTATA

(HARVEST CANTATA)

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY

C. M. VON WEBER

Op. 58.

Edited, and the Piano-forte Accompaniment revised, by EBENEZER PROUT. The words translated from the German version of Wendt by the Rev. J. TROUBERT, D.D.

Octavo, 1s.; Full Score, 21s.; Orchestral Parts, 15s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WINCHESTER'S

HARVEST ANTHEM

PRaise THE LORD.

Price Threepence.

Messrs. HART and Co., 22, Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

HARVEST ANTHEMS, by THOS. SMITH. 3d. each.

THOU CROWNEST THE YEAR. 24th Ed.
"O sing unto the Lord." 4th Ed. "Fear not, O Land." "My heart is fixed." 3rd Ed. "It is a good thing."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

Just published.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

GREAT IS THE LORD

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

Full, easy, and effective. Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

29th Thousand. "Can be heartily recommended."—Musical Times.

O GIVE THANKS

Full Easy Anthem for Harvest. By E. A. SYDENHAM. Price 3d.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price 14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price Fourpence.

NEW ANTHEM FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS.

O THAT MEN WOULD PRAISE THE LORD

BY

DR. JOSEPH C. BRIDGE, M.A.,

Organist of Chester Cathedral.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

Easy, melodious, and effective.

THE EYES OF ALL WAIT UPON THEE

Price 3d.

Composed by EDWYN A. CLARE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Thousand. Price 3d.

ANTHEM FOR HARVEST OR GENERAL USE.

O GOD, MY SOUL THIRSTETH

COMPOSED BY

F. R. GREENISH, Mus. Bac., OXON.

Easy and effective, with melodious and expressive solo for Treble or Tenor.

This popular Anthem reached its 2nd Edition within a few weeks of publication.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST

THANKSGIVING MARCH

FOR THE ORGAN

BY

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN

One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST FESTIVAL ANTHEMS, &c.—

"Popular, easy, melodious, and effective." Composed by CALEB SIMPER, Organist of St. Mary Magdalene, Worcester.

PRAISE THE LORD, O MY SOUL. New. 2nd Thousand 3d.

FEAR NOT, O LAND. 4th Thousand 3d.

AND GOD SAID, LET THE EARTH. 15th Edition 3d.

THEY THAT SOW IN TEARS. 5th Edition (with Duet) 3d.

O LORD, HOW MANIFOLD. 5th Thousand. For Parish

Choirs 4d.

MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE. 5th Thousand 3d.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in F. 7th Edition 4d.

TE DEUM in F. 4th Edition 3d.

Sung at numerous Choral Festivals.

COMMUNION SERVICE in F. New 6d.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

NEW HARVEST CAROL.

SOWING AND REAPING. Words by ANNA

SHIPTON; music by J. MAUDE CRAMENT, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Price Twopence. Words only, 1s. 4d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.—I WILL MAGNIFY

THEE, O GOD, MY KING, by WM. JOHNSON. Easy and effective. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A NEW TUNE for the Harvest Hymn, WE

PLOW THE FIELDS, by ARTHUR COTTMAN. Third edition. Price 2d. The usual allowance to choirs.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Thousand.

HARVEST ANTHEM.—ALL THY WORKS

PRAISE THEE, O LORD. Composed by T. MEE PATTISON.

Chorus, Tenor Solo, Chorus. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VOCAL SCORE. OLD NOTATION. TENTH THOUSAND.

RUTH

A HARVEST PASTORAL

BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

SUITABLE FOR

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

"The Biblical story of which Ruth is the central figure lends itself with remarkable suitability to an illustration of a harvest celebration. The country landscape, the ripened corn, the sturdy reapers, the standing sheaves, the active gleaners, and the busy farmer, all combine to fill the mind's eye with a pleasant scene of excitement. Set to music by a competent composer such as Mr. A. R. Gaul, the narrative of Ruth's eventful episode lends itself to a pathetic, picturesque, and pleasant performance. The bereaved and sorrowful trio of women on whom the calamity of poverty and famine has fallen, as if to give intensity to their greater grief, and the unexpected and happy influence of patriarchal benevolence displayed by the mighty Boaz, who so quickly transforms sorrow into joy, are all introduced and aptly take their allotted place in the melodious music of Gaul's interpretation of the tale."—Gloucester Citizen.

"The work, like the 'Holy City,' is full of beautiful orchestral passages, while the vocal score abounds with charming numbers."—Bucks Herald.

"Ruth" is a work of sterling power; its musical form is that of perfect tunefulness combined with simplicity and strength. . . . The composer has grasped his theme in a thoroughly sympathetic manner, and has produced a work which is worthy of the subject."—Bradford Observer.

"Bright, tuneful, fresh, and musically—this work will be a great favourite, and will add to Mr. Gaul's reputation."—Birmingham Weekly Dart.

"Ruth" has been set to music by several composers; none, however, has become so worthily popular as the Cantata under notice. . . . It contains some charming music, and is highly characteristic of the story it so vividly illustrates."—South Wilts Express.

"Full of flowing melody."—Salisbury Times.

PERFORMED IN THE TOWN HALL, BIRMINGHAM, ON SEVEN OCCASIONS.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s.; ditto, paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s.

The Choruses (only) in Vocal Score, for Musical Societies, paper cover, 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 9d. Band Parts on loan.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST SERVICES.

HARVEST CANTATA. By Dr. JACOB BRADFORD.

Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST HYMN.

NOW OUR BARNs ARE FULL OF TREASURE.

By Dr. JACOB BRADFORD. Two Tunes. Price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WAS GLAD. Festival Anthem. By Dr. JACOB BRADFORD. Second Edition. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS, Set to Music by Rev. A. W. MALIM. For Testimonials from Sir R. Stewart, Dr. Dikoo, and Dr. Martin see last month's Musical Times. One copy, 1s.; six copies, 4s.

LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING Co., 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

ANTHEMS for TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1d.
Grant, O Lord...	Mozart	1d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	1d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	1d.
I beheld, and lo!	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Ouseley	1d.
In humble faith	G. Garrett	1d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfield	1d.
In sweet consent	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord...	J. Stainer	6d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	1d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. H. Mann	1d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	1d.
O Father blest...	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	1d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1d.
O taste and see	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	1d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	6d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is Lord of God...	Sir H. Oakley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARIADNE

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

WORDS BY

JAMES SMETON, M.A.

MUSIC BY

J. MORE SMETON.

Price 2s. Band Parts on hire.

SCOTSMAN.

"The Cantata is unmistakably the work of a composer of original talent and ample musical knowledge."

SCOTTISH NEWS.

"A work ample in scientific quality, and abounding in melodic choruses, noble recitatives, and charming solo numbers."

DUNDEE ADVERTISER.

"A work of sterling merit, the product of undoubted musical genius, which, by well ordered study, has acquired the art of expressing thought and feeling."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Jubilee of Her Majesty's Reign.

MR. F. E. WEATHERLY HAS WRITTEN

AND

MR. J. L. ROECKEL IS COMPOSING

A CANTATA

Dealing with the growth of the nation in Arts, Commerce, Intellectual Life, World-wide Expansion, and Civilisation during the Fifty years of Her Majesty's Reign.

The Cantata will be ready early in the ensuing season, and should be performed by every Choral Society during the Jubilee year. The work is being scored for an orchestra.

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, WARWICK LANE, LONDON, E.C.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices.

Price 3s. String parts, 11s. Wind parts, 15s.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlvii.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW CANTATA.

THE MAID OF ASTOLAT

Libretto written by DESMOND L. RYAN, and composed by

C. SWINNERTON HEAP

For performance at the Wolverhampton Triennial Festival,

September 16, 1886.

Piano Score, in paper binding, 4s. net.

Chorus Parts, 1s. each net. To be ready August 10.

THE LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING Co., 54, Great Marlborough St., W.

POPULAR CANTATAS. Composed by T. MEE

PATTISON.

THE ANCIENT MARINER. Fourth edition. 2s. 6d.

THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL. New Cantata. 2s. 6d.

Band parts may be hired.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MASS FOR MALE VOICES

Two Tenors and Two Basses, Soli, and Chorus.

COMPOSED BY

ODOARO BARRI.

Performed at the Church of the Holy Name, Manchester; Sant' Ambrogio, Milan; and the leading Cathedrals. Price 5s. net, of the COMPOSER, 60, Margaret Street, W.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO

WELL. Fourth Edition. Price 1s.

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. Price 1s. 4th Ed.

LITTLE DIFFICULTIES IN PLAYING EXPLAINED. 1s.

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A CHOIR. Price 1s.

HOW TO TUNE YOUR OWN PIANO. Price 1s.

THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

AGGHÁZY, C.—Rondo all' ongharese. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 18, No. 1	3	0
— Marcia. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 18, No. 2	3	0
AMORY, A. H.—Variations on an original Theme for Pianoforte	2	0
ASHTON, A.—Romance. Op. 17. For Flute and Pianoforte	3	0
BEETHOVEN.—"Der Kuss." Op. 128. Song (German words)	1	0
BEETJENS, CH.—"A Beethoven" Poem (French) ... net	1	0
BEHL, A.—Three easy and melodious Sonatinas. Op. 116. For Pianoforte	3	0
BIRD, A.—Second small Suite. For Pianoforte Duet	3	0
BOHM, C.—Three Songs. Op. 326:—	11	0
No. 1. "In dewy grass"	2	0
" 2. "Ev'ry flow' ret would I find thee"	2	0
" 3. "Long, long after"	2	0
" Brightest Star." Mazurka. For Pianoforte. Op. 327.	4	0
" Kusshändchen." Mazurka. For Pianoforte. Op. 347.	4	0
" No. 4. "Nanon." Polka. For Pianoforte. Op. 327, No. 5	3	0
" Love's Greeting." Ländler. For Pianoforte. Op. 327.	3	0
" No. 6. "Scena (No. 8) from "Achilles" ("The dawn still lingers"). With Orchestral Accompaniment. Full Score.	12	0
" Scena (No. 16) from "Achilles" ("From the deep of my sorrow"). With Orchestral Accompaniment	23	0
BRUCKNER, A.—Scherzo from the D minor Symphony. Arranged for Pianoforte by J. Schalk	4	0
BRÜLL, L.—Berceuse Capriccio and Scherzo Étude. For Pianoforte	6	0
CUTLER, E.—Romance. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 23	3	0
DVOŘÁK, A.—Selection from the Opera "The Peasant at the Rogus" For Pianoforte Duet	12	0
EHRRHARDT, A.—Trio. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello	11	0
EIBENSCHEUT, A.—Staccato. Concert Study for Pianoforte	6	0
HENNESSY, SWAN.—"A Spinning Song." For Pianoforte. Op. 2	2	0
— Four Songs (German words). Op. 3.	4	0
HENRIQUES, R.—"L'Esp. Blätter." Op. 9. Three Pianoforte Pieces	4	0
HEHL, D. E.—Serenade, For Clarinet, Viola, and Cello	2	0
HENSCHEL, G.—"Youthful wish." Song. Op. 27, No. 1	2	0
— "Since I had seen my true love." Song. Op. 29, No. 4	2	0
HOFMANN, R.—Easy and Instructive Trios. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello:—	6	0
Op. 53. F	6	0
" 54. D minor	10	0
" 55. C	9	0
" 56. A minor	9	0
KAHN, R.—Socata. Op. 5. G minor. For Pianoforte and Violin	12	0
KIEL, F.—"Hymn." Arranged for the Organ by O. Wagemann	2	0
LANGE, G.—"Gavotte de la Reine." Op. 352. For Pianoforte	3	0
— "The mandoline"	3	0
— "We two"	3	0
— "At the altar"	3	0
— "The birds awaking"	3	0
— "Sancta Maria"	3	0
— "Zwergelöckchen"	3	0
— "On the blue sea"	3	0
— "In the grove"	3	0
LISZT, FR.—Three Transcriptions from Wagner's "Lohengrin." Arranged for two Pianofortes (eight hands) by F. Hermann	5	0
No. 2. Bridal March	10	0
" 3. Bridal Chorus	10	0
" 4. Elsie's Dream	6	0
LOESCHHORN, A.—Three easy Sonatinas. For Pianoforte	1	0
MOLITOR, J. B.—"O Cruz." Short and easy Mass. For one Voice, with Organ. Score	1	0
MOSZKOWSKI, M.—Bourrée, Berceuse, Mazurka, and Mélodie Italienne. For Pianoforte. Op. 38	7	0
MOZART.—Symphony (No. 31), in D. Arranged for two Pianofortes (eight hands) by C. Burdard	15	0
— New Edition of Complete Works. Série 24. Smaller Orchestral Pieces, Nos. 8–11. Full Score	11	0
NOSKOWSKI, S.—"Das Meeräuge." Concert Overture. For Orchestra:—	25	0
Full Score	25	0
Orchestral Parts	22	0
Arranged for Pianoforte Duet	8	0
— "Aquarelles." Six Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 20	9	0
Melody. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 21, No. 1	3	0
Fantasia Mazurka. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 21, No. 2	6	0
PADEREWSKI, J. J.—"Krakowiak." Op. 9. For Violin and Pianoforte	3	0
RÉE, L.—Seven Characteristic Pieces. For Pianoforte. Op. 4	4	0
Two Books	4	0
Vier Stücke in Tanz-Form. Op. 5. For the Pianoforte	2	0
RENNER, J. L.—Andante con Variazioni. For Violin and Pianoforte	3	0
SOUCEK, CH.—Second Air Hongrois. For Violin and Pianoforte	4	0
WOLFF, G. T.—Hungarian Sketches. Op. 28. For Pianoforte Duet	6	0
ZAREMBSKI, J.—Barcarole. Op. 31. For Pianoforte	5	0

Sold at half price if not marked net.
LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

London Music Publishing Co.'s Publications

EASY HARVEST MUSIC.

EIGHT HARVEST HYMNS. Words by Rev. S. CHILDS CLARKE; Music by Dr. DYKES, DEAN ALFORD, Mr. LANGRAN, and the editor, Mr. A. H. BROWN. Price 2d.; words only, 1s. per 100.

"The hymns, which include a fine Processional, are excellently written, and as suitably set; and if music is ever to win its way, will assuredly become great favourites at harvest festivals. They vary considerably in metre; but gladness and thanksgiving are the twin keystones of all."—Western Morning News.

"A very excellent set of hymns, and most suitable for country parishes."—Church Times.

"The tunes are much in the current vein of thought, pleasant, tuneful, and having a part-song flavour. Nos. 1 and 3, by the editor, are fresh and effective, and No. 5, by the same composer, is elegant in its melody, and smooth in its harmony. No. 6, by that man of many accomplishments, Dean Alford, has a not unpleasant flavour of mixed antique and modern thought. Mr. Langran's (No. 4), a plain note against note tune, will be found to sing well. Dr. Dykes's (No. 2) is elegant and melodious, and set in the quasi-ecclesiastical measure, six-four, a time borrowed by the church from an early period of modern dramatic music. The tunes will not fail to please modern choirs."—Musical Standard.

"We would specially draw attention to the unusually good common metre tune 'St. Angelus,' No. 5, which might well pass for a composition of 250 years ago."—Church Herald.

Fear not, O Land. For Harvest Thanksgiving S. C. COOKE 3d.
The rain cometh down. " ARTHUR TRICKETT 3d.
Thou visitest the earth " ARTHUR SIMMS 6d.

THE only Edition as performed.—MESSIAH. 2s.

No. 1 of New Edition of Standard Oratorios and Cantatas. The Pianoforte Accompaniment arranged, and the whole edited and revised, with historical and analytical preface, by Sir Geo. A. MACPARREN. Prospectuses of Series gratis and post-free.

TWELVE TWO-PART SONGS for Ladies' and Boys' Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Written, composed, and dedicated to Sir George A. MACPARREN by his Pupil, SINCLAIR DUNN. Price 2d. each.

No. 1. Come to the woodlands.	No. 7. Lovely Spring.
" 2. O come, let us sing.	" 8. Baby, dear!
" 3. Where bluebells grow.	" 9. Marching along.
" 4. The Lily of the Valley.	" 10. Evening's Starlight.
" 5. The Snowdrop.	" 11. Rest in Thee.
" 6. Merry Maidens.	" 12. Where the roses bloom.

Just Published. 1s.

PROGRESSIVE SIGHT-SINGING, for the use of Singing-Classes, Choirmasters, &c. By ROBERT MACHARDY. An easy systematic course of instruction for teaching to read Music at Sight in a few lessons. A large reduction for quantities.

NEW WORK.

ARRANGEMENTS for the Organ. By W. J. WESTBROOK, Mus. Doc. This work has been designed to meet the wants of those Organists who have to play organs more or less incomplete. The whole of the pieces may be played, therefore, upon organs with two keyboards; many of them, by a little management, upon organs with only one. The pedal is, of course, indispensable. It has been the aim to make the pieces thoroughly playable, and as easy as was consistent with their due effect.

Nos. 1 to 14 now ready.
Price 1s. 6d. net each Book.

SERVICES.

Te Deum in D, for the Use of Parish Choirs	W. H. DRAVCOTT	0 3
Te Deum, Jubilate and Kyrie. Chant Form	F. AUSTIN	0 4
Te Deum, in Chant Form, No. 1, in D	S. C. COOKE	0 4
Te Deum, in Chant Form, No. 2, in E flat	S. C. COOKE	0 4
Te Deum, in Chant Form, No. 3, in D	S. C. COOKE	0 4
Evening Service, Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G	S. C. RIDLEY	0 4

THE CHOIRBOYS' MANUAL, for rapidly acquiring Sight Singing. By SINCLAIR DUNN. Price 2d.

"Is a veritable bum in parvo."—Oldham Standard.

A LITTLE BU-PEEP. Humorous Part-Song for

Four Voices. By HARRY DANCEY. Price 3d. "There is much feeling for the humour of the words displayed throughout this song, the treatment of the phrase, 'When she awoke she found it a joke,' especially, being extremely effective. If well sung this little composition could not fail to be warmly received."—Musical Times.

INTRODUCTION AND GAVOTTE. By Dr. ARNE.

Arranged for Concert performance by E. H. THORNE, by whom it is played with great success. 4s.

INDISPENSABLE PEDAL EXERCISES. Dr.

WM. SPARK. 2s. net.
Three Preludes and Fugues for the Organ ... Dr. C. STEGGALL 4s.

SIX MORCEAUX DE SALON. For Violin and

Pianoforte Accompaniment. ALFRED BURNETT. 3s. each number.
No. 1. Réverie. No. 4. Nocturne.
" 2. Cavatina. " 5. Berceuse.
" 3. Barcarole. " 6. Valse.

THE LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY (LIMITED).
54, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
"	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
"	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper cover	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	6
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer-book. Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type. Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6
Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.
A Discount of 30 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.
Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No. 9.	The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.	s.	d.
10.	Limp cloth	4	0
11.	Cloth	5	0
12.	Small edition	3	0
"	Tonic Sol-fa	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use 1 s
(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN;
And all Booksellers and Musiciansellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 43d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and
G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS
For small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices.
Second Series. Female and Male Voices.
These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.
LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS
For small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices.
Second Series. Female and Male Voices.
These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.
LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes
as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270
Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian
Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C	5d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C	6d.
Cantate and Deus miseratur in G	8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100)	1d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS OF THE CHURCH,
pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants,
Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments.
Edited by the Rev. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN
GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Fifth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover;
3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart.,
&c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK.

Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO. OXFORD: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by

E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND

CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.;
with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 11d. NOVELLO,
EWER AND CO.; and PARKER and CO.

Nineteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57
RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s.,
limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation,
Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS,

and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE.
Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-
CANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-
CANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION.
Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial
use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat,

by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By

JAMES FITZGERALD, Organist, Kidderminster. Price 1s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW ANTHEM.

O PRAISE GOD IN HIS HOLINESS, by
ALFRED R. GAUL. As sung by the London Church Choirs in St. Paul's Cathedral.

"A remarkably fine example of choral writing."—Daily News.

"A perfect specimen of chorus writing."—Church Times.

Price Sixpence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

VESPER MUSIC, No. 5, now ready. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by W. HAYNES, Organist, Priory Church, Malvern. These Settings have been sung at several Choral Festivals.

No. 1, 2d.; Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 3d. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

OFFERTORY SENTENCES, complete, 4d.

Arranged in simple form for Parish Choirs, by C. CLAPHAM.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TEN KYRIES, with other Chants, 2d. Te Deum,

with five Quadruple Chants, 2d. Arranged to meet the great want of simple melody for Parish Choirs or Congregational Singing, by C. CLAPHAM. LONDON: FITMAN, Paternoster Row.

REDUCED PRICES OF HOUSELEY AND MONK'S POINTED PSALTER.

4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score	s. d. 4 0
12mo Edition. Vocal parts	Each 1 6
32mo Edition. Words only	0 9
Ditto. Ditto, with Proper Psalms	1 0

This pointing of the Psalter is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price Fourpence.

THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

Including Kyrie, Gloria Tibi, Grattias, Sursum Corda, Sanctus,
Gloria in Excelsis, and Antiphon

Set to Music in the Key of F by

GEORGE KETT.

Merbecke's Credo (Barnby's Setting in the Key of F) is to be used with this Service.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

TE DEUM AND JUBILATE DEO

SET TO MUSIC IN E MAJOR

BY

JOSEPH MOSENTHAL,

Organist and Choirmaster of Calvary Church, New York.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E flat).....	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A).....	6d.
Bridge, Dr. (in G).....	4d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A).....	4d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G).....	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in B flat).....	6d.
Fanning, Eaton (in C).....	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A)...	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C).....	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C).....	6d.
Lloyd, C. H. (in F).....	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F).....	4d.
Mann, A. H., Dr. (in E).....	1s.	Tours, Berthold (in D).....	6d.
Martin, George C. (in C).....	6d.

Cantate and Deus (in C), Dr. Steggall, 6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment, or with organ only, when necessary.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in F. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
Te Deum, in E. Octavo	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate, in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in A	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	9d.
Te Deum in E. Chant Form	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E. Chant Form	3d.
Harvest or Festival Hymn Tune. Music and Words	1d.
Harvest Anthem—"Blessed be Thou." Four voices	3d.
Anthem—"I will magnify Thee"	3d.
"If ye love me"	3d.

PART-SONGS.

The Rhine Maiden. Four Voices	3d.
Spring	3d.
Beware	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY, by G. H. SWIFT (Organist, Parish Church, Hungerford, Berks), EVENING SERVICE in E. Price 4d.

SING PRAISES UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. Price 3d.

SHOW US THY MERCY. Anthem. Price 6d.

O SING UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. 3rd edition. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready, price Threepence.

MMAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS (in F), composed by E. A. SYDENHAM, Organist of All Saints', Scarborough. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net. STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

Just published.

THE ANCIENT PLAIN-SONG

OF THE

ATHANASIAN CREED

Arranged for voices in unison, with Organ Accompaniment, by

J. STAINER.

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Reduced price, 2s. 6d. net.

ALBUM OF ITALIAN SONGS.

TWENTY-TWO SONGS SET TO ITALIAN WORDS,
WITH ACCOMPANIMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

COMPOSED BY

ANGELO MARIANI.

4to, gilt edges.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| 1. Ave Maria. | 12. Il siffo e la mammola. |
| 2. L'Angellin della Biondina. | 13. La Zingarella. |
| 3. Una Foglia. | 14. Date un pane al poverello. |
| 4. Vi Chiamo invano notte e giorno. | 15. L'abbandono. |
| 5. L'ora fatale. | 16. La prece della sera. |
| 6. Ah! tu non m'ami più. | 17. La Provera operaia e l'usignuolo. |
| 7. Lia è morta. | 18. Una Rosa in cimitero. |
| 8. Giovannetto della bella voce. | 19. Dolore e speranza. |
| 9. La povera madre. | 20. Io son poeta e re di gran corona. |
| 10. Oh! come tu soffri mio povero cor! | 21. L'invito alla libertà. |
| 11. Mia dolce speranza. | 22. Passato, presente, e futuro. |

Or, singly, folio, each 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR-PART SONGS by S. S. STRATTON.—
"Monarch Winter," words by W. S. PASSMORE, 3d.; "Summer is but fleeting," words by E. OXFORD, 3d.; "Merrily every bosom boudeth," words by THOMAS MOORE, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee.
By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

- | SONGS. | | net. |
|--|-----|-------|
| WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) | | s. d. |
| The Words written by F. E. Weatherly | ... | 2 0 |
| (Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.) | | |
| KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly | 2 0 | |
| BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner | 2 0 | |
| ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) | 2 0 | |
| (Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIN.) | | |
| THE ZINGARA | 2 0 | |
| (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.) | | |
| THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford | 2 0 | |
| THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq. | 2 0 | |
| NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq. | 2 0 | |
| THE LITTLE LASS 'O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford | 2 0 | |
| (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.) | | |

PIANOFORTE, &c.

- ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2nd Edition 2 0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook ... 2 0
MY LADY BARBARA'S GAVOTTE ... 2 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

- | | | |
|---|-----|-----|
| THE THREE STARS. 2nd Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 7th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 10th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| TO THE WOODS. 10th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| THE HOUR OF REST. 4th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 8th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 6th Edition | ... | 0 2 |
| WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) | ... | 0 3 |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.,
and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

CATECHISM ON THE RUDDIMENTS OF MUSIC
and PIANOFORTE PLAYING. By E. ELLICE JEWELL.
Fourth and Revised Edition, price 1s. Also,

ELEMENTARY EXERCISES, to be used in conjunction with the above-named work. No manuscript music-book or paper will be required, assnape is left with ruled staves for the pupil to write all the exercises in this book. Price 2s.

PIANOFORTE STUDENT'S DAILY STUDY,
comprising Scales, Chords, Arpeggi, and Finger Exercises.
Arranged by ELLICE B. JEWELL. Price 6s.
LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M. BOWLES.
Price 1s.

"The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times.

"A great deal of information as to what is generally called Thorough-Bass is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Orchestra.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

Third Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

Parts I. and II.	...	each	1 0
Complete, paper cover	...	1 6
Ditto, paper boards	...	2 0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	...	3 0
Or, in Twelve Numbers	...	each	0 2

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS GLEES, PART-SONGS, &c., by

A. J. CALDICOTT:—

Humpty Dumpty	...	6d.	Sobbing Quartet	...	3d.
The House that Jack Built	...	6d.	The Haymakers	...	4d.
Jack and Jill	...	4d.	Yule	...	4d.
Little Jack Horner	...	6d.	Out on the waters	...	4d.

New series, A FISHY CASE

Children's Operetta, in two acts, with illustrations, price 2s. 6d.
METZLER and Co., Great Marlborough Street, W.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs.
For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS BY H. T. TILTMAN.

HOMEWARD BOUND. 2s. net. Sung by Miss
Hilda Wilson.

DAPHNE. Sung by Mr. Frank Walker. 2s. net.
Both the above published by
Messrs. WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Just published.

A FAREWELL.—Song. The Words written by
Lord TENNYSON; the music composed by EDWARD R. G. W.
ANDREWS. Price 2s. net.

EDITH.—Serenade for the Pianoforte. Composed
by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 1s. 6d. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW MUSIC, by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.—LITTLE
JACK HORNER. Humorous Glee for S.A.T.B. Sung with the greatest success in London and the provinces. Price 4d. THE
ROBIN, Two-Part Song, s.c. Price 2d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

'TIS THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER. Arranged by BENJAMIN CONGREVE as Soprano Solo, accompanied by Four-Part Chorus. Price 1d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS by ROBERT MACHARDY.

WOODLAND WITCH (Operetta). 3s.
"Is melodious, vocal, and musician-like in its treatment throughout."—Musical Times.

FAIRY MOTHER (Cantata for Ladies' Voices). 2s.
Just published.—SANCTA FELICE (Pianoforte Sonata). 5s.

"Exquisite work."—Evening Telegraph.

PROGRESSIVE PIANOFORTE PLAYING. 5s. net.

"This work is beautifully got up, and ought to command a widely extended sale."—Exhibitors' Illustrated Review.

PROGRESSIVE SIGHT-SINGING. 1s.

"Exceedingly clever and valuable work."—Graphic. "Its explanations are clear as a sunbeam."—Oldham Chronicle.

A SONG OF THE TWILIGHT. 4s. Dedicated to Madame Nisid.

"Exceedingly dramatic and original."—Dundee Advertiser.

UNDER THE BONNET. Song. 4s.

"A quaint city idyll which ought to catch the popular fancy."—
Glasgow Herald.

KARLUS' WALTZES. Pianoforte, 4s. Orchestral parts, 1s. 6d.

"Elegant and irresistible. It is most pleasing dance."—Oldham Chronicle.

I SEE THY FACE. Song. 4s.

BOAT SONG, with Violin Obligato. 4s.

AVE VERUM, for Alto or Bass, with Violin or Flute Obligato. 4s.

LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, Limited,

34, Great Marlborough Street, London.

Just published.

Dedicated (by permission) to Sir GEORGE ALEXANDER MACPARREN, Mus. Doc., M.A., Professor of Music at the University of Cambridge, and Principal of the Royal Academy of Music.

SONATA IN E FLAT

FOR THE PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

WM. ARTHUR BLAKELEY.

Price Six Shillings; sold at half-price.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Also may be had direct from the COMPOSER, Marlborough Terrace, Woodhouse Road, Mansfield.

NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

FAVOURITE AIRS FOR THE ORGAN

ARRANGED BY

DR. W. J. WESTBROOK.

Book I. 4s.

Contents.

JERUSALEM (St. Paul) ... F. Mendelssohn Bartholdy.
FOR THE HOMES OF OUR FATHERS (Daniel's Prediction) ... Chas. E. Horn.

HOW CHEERFUL ALONG THE GAY MEAD (Eve's Hymn) ... Dr. T. A. Arne.
BUT THOU DIDST NOT LEAVE (Messiah) ... G. F. Handel.

HE SHALL FEED HIS FLOCK ... G. F. Handel.
HE WAS DESPISED ... G. F. Handel.

Book II. 4s.

Contents.

LARGHETTO (Ave Maria) ... L. Cherubini.

ALCINA (Verdi prati) ... G. F. Handel.

ISRAEL IN EGYPT (Thou didst bring them in) ... G. F. Handel.

LAST JUDGMENT (Holy! Holy!) ... L. Spohr.

MESSIAH—COMFORT YE MY PEOPLE ... G. F. Handel.

DO—AIR (Ev'ry valley shall be) ... G. F. Handel.

ST. PAUL (But the Lord is mindful) ... F. Mendelssohn Bartholdy.

THE LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, Limited,
54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

THE DIATONIC and CHROMATIC SCALES, complete. Price 6s. New and Enlarged Edition. An important feature of the present issue is the addition of—

1. Arpeggio forms of the Common Chord, Dominant and Diminished 7ths in all keys.

2. A Complete System of Scales in contrary movement.

3. Alternative Fingering of Diatonic Scales in 6ths and 10ths.

This work now meets all requirements of Local and other Musical Examinations. Edited and carefully revised by ARTHUR O'LEARY, Member of the Royal Academy of Music, &c., &c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MUSICAL HISTORY, briefly narrated and technically discussed, with a roll of the names of musicians, and the times and places of their births and deaths, by G. A. MACPARREN. Edinburgh: A. and C. BLACK.

SHORT SETTINGS

OF THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

(INCLUDING BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI)

FOR PAROCHIAL AND GENERAL USE

EDITED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price One Shilling each.

Church-music which is modern in form, interesting to a choir, and devotional in effect, whilst also of easy execution and of moderate compass for the voices, is certainly much needed in these days when choral societies are almost universal. This want is specially felt with regard to music for the Office of Holy Communion, and it is hoped that these services will be found well within the capabilities of an ordinary choir, yet not wanting in an effort to give due expression to the solemnity of the words.

G. C. M.

No. 1. J. BAPTISTE CALKIN IN C." 2. DR. GARRETT IN A." 3. J. STAINER IN F." 4. SIR GEORGE ELVEY IN E." 5. BERTHOLD TOURS IN C." 6. W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK IN E flat." 7. REV. H. H. WOODWARD IN D." 8. BATTISON HAYNES IN E flat." 9. KING HALL IN C." 10. J. F. BRIDGE IN D.

(To be continued.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S
ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. 1.

FOUR MARCHES

COMPOSED BY

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

No. 1. Wedding March. | No. 3. Cornelius March, Op. 108.
" 2. War March of the Priests. | " 4. Funeral March, Op. 103.

TRANSCRIBED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 2.

THIRTY MELODIES

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

These Melodies are expressly written to be used in connection with the Author's VIOLIN PRIMER.

No. 3.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 4.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

GOUNOD'S "MORS ET VITA"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

* These Albums may also be had arranged for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED FOR THE

HARMONIUM

BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Six Books, each containing Sixty Voluntaries,
One Shilling each.

In Two Volumes, Cloth, gilt, Four Shillings each.

LISTS OF CONTENTS GRATIS AND POST-FREE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ROBERT SCHUMANN'S
PIANOFORTE WORKS

EDITED AND FINGERED BY

AGNES ZIMMERMANN.ALBUM FOR THE YOUNG

55 PIECES.

Price 2s. 6d., paper cover; or, 4s. 6d., cloth, gilt.

Or, in Three Parts, One Shilling each.

ALBUM LEAVES

20 PIECES.

Price 1s. Paper cover.

SCENES OF CHILDHOOD AND FOREST SCENES

22 PIECES.

Price 1s. Paper cover.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN

BY
OTTO DIENEL

(Organist of St. Marien-Kirche, Kgl. Musik Director, Berlin).

No.		s.	d.
1.	Fugue in G, Op. 2	1	0
2.	First Grand Sonata in D minor, Op. 3	2	6
3.	Concert-Satz, Op. 10	2	0
4.	Second Grand Sonata in G minor, Op. 11	3	6
5.	Funeral March on the Choral "Jesus, my trust," Op. 12	1	0
6.	Adagio in D, Op. 13, No. 1	1	0
7.	Andante in C, Op. 13, No. 2	1	0
8.	Third Grand Sonata in F, Op. 18	5	0
9.	Echo-Andante, Op. 19	1	6
10.	Andante Espresso, Op. 20, No. 1	1	0
	Andante Espresso, Op. 20, No. 2	1	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CHURCH ORGANIST

A COLLECTION OF PIECES FOR USE DURING
DIVINE SERVICE

BY CHARLES COLLIN.

	Book I.	2s. 6d.
March.			Offertoire.
Communion.			Postlude.
Elevation.			Offertoire.
Offertoire for the Feast	Book II.	3s.	Communion.
of Pentecost.			Ditto.
Hymn.			March.
Elevation.			Postlude.
Elevation.	Book III.	2s. 6d.	Communion.
Postludium.			Elevation.
Offertoire.			March.
Offertoire.	Book IV.	2s. 6d.	Grand Chœur.
Elevation.
Communion or Offertoire.	Book V.	2s. 6d.	Offertoire for Easter-day.
Prelude on the Hymn of			Offertoire or Communion.
St. Joseph.
Allegretto.	Book VI.	2s. 6d.	Allegro-Fanfare.
Elevation.
March.	Book VII.	2s. 6d.	Andantino.
Communion.			Grand Chœur.
Andante.
Offertoire (for Xmas Day).	Book VIII.	2s. 6d.	Allegretto.
Hymn (Jesu, dulcis memo-			Prelude.
ria).			Te Deum.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARRANGEMENTS for the ORGAN

BY
GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

No.
No. 1.	Slow Movement (Quintet)	Schumann.
	Minuet (12 Minuets)	Beethoven.
2.	Andante (Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 147)	Schubert.
	Largo	Handel.
	As pants the hart	Spohr.
3.	Agnus Dei	Schubert.
	Overture, "Acis and Galatea"	Handel.
	Albumblätter, No. 1	Schumann.
4.	Adagio (Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 2, No. 1)	Beethoven.
	The Cat's Fugue	Scarlatti.
	Albumblätter, No. 5 (Op. 99)	Schumann.
5.	Romanze and Scherzo (Fourth Symphony)	Schumann.
	Air (Overture [or Suite] in D)	Bach.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S ORGAN MUSIC

EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

SIX SONATAS

AND

THREE PRELUDES AND FUGUES

In One Volume, oblong, price 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SOFT VOLUNTARIES FOR THE ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

GEORGE CALKIN.

Eight Books, price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ORGAN WORKS OF JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH

EDITED BY

J. F. BRIDGE, AND JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

BOOK I.—EIGHT SHORT PRELUDES AND FUGUES 2s. 6d.

In this edition much help is offered towards a correct and effective rendering of Bach's Organ Music. The distribution of the parts between the two hands is clearly shown. The notes most conveniently played by the right hand are printed on the upper, and those best taken by the left hand on the lower, of the two manual staves. The pedalling is indicated where necessary. Marks of expression and phrasing are added occasionally, and suggestions for the effective use of the organ are given throughout. The Preface contains many useful hints.

BOOK II.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND TRIO ... 3s. 6d.

The second book of the new edition of Bach's Organ Works is more advanced than the first, and of greater difficulty than the first, and will be found of conspicuous interest. It includes the well-known "Giant" in D minor, the shorter Prelude and Fugue in E minor (a great favourite with Mendelssohn), and an exceedingly effective Prelude and Fugue in C minor, in addition to other less-known but important works. It is a specialty of this edition that a convenient and effective mode of performance is everywhere indicated. Appended to the preface is a suggested metronomic rate for each movement.

BOOK III.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND FANTASIA ... 3s. 6d.

The third book contains compositions of greater difficulty, it is therefore more fully fingered and marked for the pedals. It is believed Organ Students will derive the greatest possible assistance by having the attention directed from the outset to a convenient method of dealing with each difficulty as it arises. The present book includes the Fugue in B minor, on a subject from Corelli, a beautiful Prelude and Fugue in A major (most useful for obtaining command of the higher part of the Pedal-board), a Prelude and Fugue in C major, a Fantasia and Fugue in C minor, and the well-known short G minor Fugue. There is, as usual, in this Edition a Preface containing interesting particulars of the several works.

BOOK IV.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL ... 3s. 6d.

The fourth book contains the first three of the six celebrated Sonatas or Trios for two-manuals and pedal. Spitta says: "These Sonatas were intended by J. S. Bach to complete the education of his eldest son, Wilhelm Friedemann, as an organist." They are invaluable as studies and very beautiful as music. In the present edition they are for the first time fingered and marked for the Pedals.

BOOK V.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL ... 3s. 6d.

The fifth book contains the last three of the six Sonatas. Those in E minor, C major, and G major. They are of exceeding value to the Student of Organ Playing. The mastery of them assuring him of that thorough independence of hands and feet so indispensable to the fully accomplished organist. As in the former book, proper fingering and pedalling is everywhere indicated. The Preface contains a detailed analysis of each movement.

BOOK VI.—PRELUDES AND FUGUES ... 3s. 6d.

The sixth book includes several of Bach's greatest and most popular Organ Works. (1) The Toccata in D minor, with its contrasting effects of recitative-like passages and massive harmonies. (2) The well-known Prelude and Fugue in D major, which Spitta describes as "one of the most dazzlingly beautiful of all the master's Organ Works." (3) Skillful pedal-players will find it exactly suited to them, for the theme is quite exceptionally fitted for pedal technique. (4) The Prelude and Fugue in F minor, less known perhaps than the other contents of the book, but scarcely less beautiful, or less worthy of the student's attention. (5) The great Prelude in E-flat major, together with the Fugue in three sections, known as the St. Ann's. The whole are laid out with especial regard to the convenience of the player. Necessary fingering and other marks to help to effective performance are inserted, and the Preface contains various notes and suggestions relative to the history, structure, and treatment of the several works.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

AIRS FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN BY

GEORGE CALKIN.

In Two Books, 2s. each net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MYRTHEN

(MYRTLES)

A CIRCLE OF SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN.

Edited and Translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

- CONTENTS.
1. Dedication—Widmung (Rückert).
 2. The free mind—Freisinn (Goethe).
 3. The walnut tree—Der Nussbaum (Mosen).
 4. Some one (Burns)—Jemand.
 5. To sit alone—Sitz' ich allein (Goethe).
 6. Bump not the flask—Setze mir nicht (Goethe).
 7. The lotos flower—Die Lotosblume (Heine).
 8. Talismans—Talismane (Goethe).
 9. Suleika's song—Lied der Suleika (Goethe).
 10. The Highland widow's lament (Burns)—Die Hochländer Wittwe.
 11. Song of the Bride, No. 1—Lied der Braut (Rückert).
 12. Song of the Bride, No. 2—Lied der Braut.
 13. My heart's in the Highlands (Burns)—Mein Herz ist im Hochland.
 14. Hey Baloo (Burns)—Hochländisches Wiegenlied.
 15. My soul is dark (Byron)—Mein Herz ist schwer.
 16. Enigma—(Authorship uncertain)—Räthsel.
 17. Row gently here, No. 1 (Moore)—Zwei Venetianische Gondellieder.
 18. When thro' the Piazzetta, No. 2 (Moore).
 19. The captain's lady (Burns)—Hauptmanns Weib.
 20. Oh, how can I be blythe and glad (Burns)—Weit, Weit.
 21. What wouldst thou, lonely treader—Was will die einsame Thärend (Heine).
 22. No one (Burns)—Niemand.
 23. Out over the Forth (Burns)—Im Westen.
 24. Thou'rt like unto a flower—Du bist wie eine Blume (Heine).
 25. A message sweet as roses—Aus den östlichen Rosen (Goethe).
 26. Conclusion—Zum Schluss (Rückert).

These Songs were composed in 1840. Those that bear the names of English poets were composed to German translations, and the original text had to be slightly modified in many places to fit it to the music.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PIANO & HARMONIUM
ACCOMPANIMENTS.

To obviate the difficulty experienced by such Country Choral Societies as are unable to procure the assistance of an Orchestra for the performance of complete works, Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co. intend publishing an arrangement of the Orchestral Accompaniments of many popular works for Pianoforte and Harmonium. The Accompaniments of the following works are now ready:—

	Arranged by	s. d.
REBEKAH— J. Barnby	KING HALL	5 0
MAY QUEEN— Bennett	J. LEMMENS	7 6
CRUSADERS— N. W. Gade	J. W. ELLIOTT	7 6
REDEMPTION— Ch. Gounod	"	10 6
MORS ET VITA— Ch. Gounod	KING HALL	10 6
GALLIA— Ch. Gounod	T. E. AYLWARD	2 6
THE MESSIAH— Handel	KING HALL	10 6
THE CREATION— Haydn	WINDEYER CLARK	10 6
MAY-DAY— G. A. Macfarren	"	5 0
ROSE OF SHARON— A. C. Mackenzie	KING HALL	10 6
ATHALIE— Mendelssohn	J. W. ELLIOTT	7 6
ELIJAH— Mendelssohn	E. PROUT	10 6
LAUDA SION— Mendelssohn	WINDEYER CLARK	5 0
HEAR MY PRAYER— Mendelssohn	MYLES B. FOSTER	2 6
HYMN OF PRAISE— Mendelssohn	J. W. ELLIOTT	7 6
FIRST MASS— Mozart	WINDEYER CLARK	5 0
TWELFTH MASS— Mozart	"	7 6
STABAT MATER— Rossini	J. LEMMENS	6 0
GOD, THOU ART GREAT— Spohr	KING HALL	2 6
LAST JUDGMENT— Spohr	"	7 6
CALVARY— Spohr	"	7 6
DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS— J. Stainer	W. HODGE	5 0
ST. MARY MAGDALEN— J. Stainer	"	7 6

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

SELECTED, EDITED, AND TRANSLATED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.	Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Thro' the pine-wood.
The Message of Flowers.	The summer waves.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Wanderer's Night-song.
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Trust in Spring.
The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)	The Maiden's Lament.
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")	To Mignon.
Hallow'd night, descend.	The Passing-Bell.
	Alinda.
	Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
	The Fisherman.
	On the water.

VOLUME II.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

CONTRALTO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

The Wanderer.	Sadness.
Fisher's song.	To the Lyre.
The angry Bard.	Calm at sea.
The unlucky Fisherman.	Lay of the imprisoned Huntsman.
Old Man's song.	Passing to Hades.
The flight of Time.	Comfort in tears.
Litany for All Souls' day.	Death and the Maiden.
The weary heart.	Crusaders.
Minstrel's treasure.	Dithyramb.
Soldier's drinking song.	Prometheus.

VOLUME III.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR

SOPRANO OR TENOR.

CONTENTS.

The Erl-King.	Hark, hark, the lark.
Omnipotence.	Thou would I greet.
Love's unrest.	To the beloved one.
Rose among the heather.	Suleika's second song.
Sad heart.	Presence of the loved one.
The band of roses.	Laughing and weeping.
Thou art repose.	Margaret's prayer.
Ganymed.	By the doorways I will wander.
Mignon.	To a brooklet.
Secrets.	To Sylvia.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price One Shilling.

THE

CHILD'S GARLAND

A COLLECTION OF
THREE-PART SONGS FOR CHILDREN'S VOICES

COMPOSED BY

FRANZ ABT.

The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK
and Miss G. E. TROUTBECK.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Sixpence.

THE

JUVENILE SONGSTER

NEW AND REVISED EDITION

CONSISTING OF

THIRTY-THREE SONGS

In One, Two, or Three Parts

Composed and Arranged for the Use of Children and Schools

BY

LOWELL MASON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price Two Shillings.

TWENTY-TWO SONGS

IN ONE AND TWO PARTS FOR

CHILDREN OLD & YOUNG

Translated into English by Lady MACFARREN,
Miss MARIE LIEBERT, and others

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

CAROLINE WICHERN.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, and CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

IN SOL-FA NOTATION, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Crown Octavo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

THE

MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

WITH AN ACCOUNT OF THE

DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS
FROM ANCIENT TYPES, BY

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

"The very excellent illustrations scattered throughout the book materially increase its value; and we sincerely hope that Dr. Stainer's labours may be rewarded as they deserve, for not only has he accumulated a large mass of reliable information upon a subject of the deepest interest, but he has thrown additional light upon much of this evidence by giving us the result of his own practical experience."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

DOUBLE SCALES

SYSTEMATICALLY FINGERED

A SUPPLEMENT

TO ALL

EXISTING PIANOFORTE SCHOOLS

BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

THREE HUNDRED AND NINETY-SIX

TWO-PART EXERCISES

FOR

CHOIRS AND SCHOOLS

BY

JAMES GREENWOOD.

May be used with any system of Sol-fa.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

In paper boards, One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION

OF

TWO-PART SOLFEGGI

In the principal major keys, designed for the practice of Choristers and Vocal Classes generally,

SELECTED FROM

DURANTE, HANDEL, LEO, SCARLATTI, STEFFANI,
NARES, WEBBE, &c.

BY

JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT

OF THE

CHORAL SERVICE

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS TO ORGANISTS AS TO THE
SELECTION AND TREATMENT OF CHURCH MUSIC

BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE,

Mus. Doc., Oxon.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

Paper Boards, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, MASSES, &c.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

THOMAS ANDERTON.
THE NORMAN BARON.
THE WRECK OF THE HESPERUS.

E. ASPA.
THE GIPSIES.

ASTORGA.
STABAT MATER.

BACH.
GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD.
GOD GOETH UP WITH SHOUTING.
GOD'S TIME IS THE BEST.
MY SPIRIT WAS IN HEAVINESS.
O LIGHT EVERLASTING.
BIDE WITH US.
A STRONGHOLD SURE.
MAGNIFICAT.
THOU GUIDE OF ISRAEL.
JESU, PRICELESS TREASURE.
WHEN WILL GOD RECALL MY SPIRIT.

J. BARNBY.
REBEKAH.

BEETHOVEN.
THE CHORAL FANTASIA.
ENGEDI.
MOUNT OF OLIVES.
MASS, IN C.
*MASS, IN C.
RUINS OF ATHENS.

SIR W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT.
EXHIBITION ODE, 1862.

J. BRAHMS.
A SONG OF DESTINY.

J. F. BRIDGE.
*ROCK OF AGES.

E. BUNNETT.
OUT OF THE DEEP (PSALM 130).

CARISSIMI.
JEPHTHAH.

CHERUBINI.
*REQUIEM MASS, IN C MINOR.
THIRD MASS, IN A (CORONATION).
FOURTH MASS, IN C.

SIR M. COSTA.
THE DREAM.

NIELS W. GADE.
ZION.
SPRING'S MESSAGE. 8d.
CHRISTMAS EVE.
THE ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER.

GLUCK.
ORPHEUS.

HERMANN GOETZ.
BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON.
NENIA.

CH. GOUNOD.
DE PROFUNDIS (130TH PSALM).
DITTO (OUT OF DARKNESS).
MESSE SOLENNELLE (LATIN WORDS).
THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR
SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS.
DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM.
*GALLIA.

J. O. GRIMM.
THE SOUL'S ASPIRATION.

HANDEL.
CHANDOS TE DEUM.
ODE ON ST. CECILIA'S DAY.
THE WAYS OF ZION.
MESSIAH (POCKET EDITION).
ISRAEL IN EGYPT (DITTO).
JUDAS MACCABÆUS (DITTO).
DETTINGEN TE DEUM.
UTRECHT JUBILATE.
O PRAISE THE LORD.
ACIS AND GALATEA.
ACIS AND GALATEA. EDITED BY
J. BARNBY.

HAYDN.
THE CREATION (POCKET EDITION).
SPRING. SUMMER. AUTUMN.
WINTER.
*FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT.
FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT.
SECOND MASS, IN C.
THIRD MASS (IMPERIAL).
*THIRD MASS (IMPERIAL).
*TE DEUM.

EDWARD HECHT.
O MAY I JOIN THE CHOIR INVISIBLE.

DR. HILLER.
A SONG OF VICTORY.

H. HOFMANN.
SONG OF THE NORNS (FEMALE VOICES).

HUMMEL.
FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT.
SECOND MASS, IN E FLAT.
THIRD MASS, IN D.

F. ILIFFE.
ST. JOHN THE DIVINE.

A. JENSEN.
THE FEAST OF ADONIS.

LEONARDO LEO.
DIXIT DOMINUS.

C. HARFORD LLOYD.
THE SONG OF BALDER.

G. A. MACFARREN.
OUTWARD BOUND.
MAY DAY.

A. C. MACKENZIE.
THE BRIDE.

MENDELSSOHN.
LORELEY.
HYMN OF PRAISE.
AS THE HART PANTS.
COME, LET US SING.
WHEN ISRAEL OUT OF EGYPT CAME.
NOT UNTO US.
LORD, HOW LONG.
HEAR MY PRAYER.
THE FIRST WALPURGIS NIGHT.
MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM.
MAN IS MORTAL.
FESTGESANG (HYMNS OF PRAISE).
FESTGESANG (MALE VOICES).
CHRISTUS.
TO THE SONS OF ART.
*AVE MARIA (SAVIOUR OF SINNERS).
*THREE MOTETTS (FEMALE VOICES).

MEYERBEER.
91ST PSALM (LATIN WORDS).
91ST PSALM (ENGLISH WORDS).

MOZART.
KING THAMOS.
*FIRST MASS.
SEVENTH MASS.
TWELFTH MASS.
*TWELFTH MASS.
REQUIEM MASS.
*REQUIEM MASS.

R. P. PAINE.
GREAT IS THE LORD.

PERGOLESI.
STABAT MATER (FEMALE VOICES).

E. PROUT.
FREEDOM.

PURCELL.
TE DEUM AND JUBILATE, IN D.

ROMBERG.
THE LAY OF THE BELL.
THE TRANSIENT AND THE ETERNAL.

ROSSINI.
*STABAT MATER.

SCHUBERT.
SONG OF MIRIAM.
MASS, IN A FLAT.
MASS, IN B FLAT.
MASS, IN C.
MASS, IN F.
MASS, IN G.

SCHUMANN.
THE PILGRIMAGE OF THE ROSE.
THE KING'S SON.
MIGNON'S REQUIEM.
ADVENT HYMN, "IN LOWLY GUISE."
MANFRED.
NEW YEAR'S SONG.

E. SILAS.
MASS, IN C.
ALICE MARY SMITH.
THE SONG OF THE LITTLE BALTUNG
(MEN'S VOICES).
ODE TO THE NORTH-EAST WIND.
THE RED KING (MEN'S VOICES).

SPOHR.
THE LAST JUDGMENT.
GOD, THOU ART GREAT.
THE CHRISTIAN'S PRAYER.
HYMN TO ST. CECILIA.

E. C. SUCH.
GOD IS OUR REFUGE (PSALM 46).
A. SULLIVAN.
EXHIBITION ODE.
FESTIVAL TE DEUM.

A. GORING THOMAS.
THE SUN WORSHIPPERS.

E. H. THORNE.
BE MERCIFUL UNTO ME.

VAN BREE.
ST. CECILIA'S DAY.

C. M. VON WEBER.
PRECIOSA.
*MASS, IN G.
*MASS, IN E FLAT.
JUBILEE CANTATA.

S. WESLEY.
DIXIT DOMINUS.

S. S. WESLEY.
O LORD, THOU ART MY GOD.

The Works marked * have Latin and English Words.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

VOICE-TRAINING EXERCISES

(For Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, Baritone, & Bass Voices)

BY

EMIL BEHNKE

AND

CHARLES W. PEARCE.

Price Eighteenpence each. In Cloth Boards, Three Shillings each.

"I am much obliged to you for sending me your Voice Exercises. They seem to me admirable, and doubtless will prove of great utility.

"FREDERICK A. G. OUSELEY."

"I like the Vocal Exercises very much; they are scientific, systematic, and ingenious.

"JOHN STAINER."

CHAPPELL & Co.'s TUTORS

ARE USED BY ALL THE PRINCIPAL PROFESSORS.

SINGING.

RIMBAULT'S NEW SINGING TUTOR, adapted from the celebrated Tutor of Lablache, for Soprano or Tenor, Contralto or Bass ... each s. d.
5 0

LABLACHE.

LABLACHE'S INSTRUCTION FOR SINGING:—

Complete work for Soprano or Tenor, Mezzo-Soprano or Contralto, and Bass ... each 21 0

LABLACHE'S PROGRESSIVE SOLFEGGI for Contralto or Mezzo-Soprano ... 5 0

This Edition can also be used for a Bass Voice.

LABLACHE'S PROGRESSIVE SOLFEGGI for Soprano or Tenor ... 5 0

LABLACHE'S PROGRESSIVE SOLFEGGI for Medium Voices ... 5 0

THE SINGER'S DAILY PRACTICE—1. For Soprano or Tenor; 2. For Contralto; 3. For Bass ... each 4 0

LABLACHE'S VOCAL EXERCISES ... 5 0

PIANOFORTE.

RIMBAULT'S COMPLETE PIANO TUTOR, containing the First Rudiments of Music, a Gradual and Progressive Series of Exercises, Scales, &c., including a Selection of Popular Music, arranged by EDWARD F. RIMBAULT; the whole revised and enlarged by JOHN HILES ... 5 0

CHAPPELL'S AMERICAN ORGAN TUTOR

Edited by DR. BRIDGE, Organist of Westminster Abbey.

Price Five Shillings.

LONDON:

CHAPPELL AND CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

CITY BRANCH—15, POULTRY, E.C.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 523.—Vol. 27.
Registered for transmission abroad.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1886.

Price 4d.; Post-free, 5d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5s.

LEEDS TRIENNIAL MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

OCTOBER 13, 14, 15, and 16, 1886.

Conductor—SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

Band and Chorus of 425 Performers.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Oct. 13.—Handel's ISRAEL IN EGYPT. Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Mrs. HUTCHINSON, Madame PATEY, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, Mr. BRERETON, and Mr. SANTLEY.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.—Mackenzie's Cantata (written for the Festival), THE STORY OF SAID; OPERATIC SELECTION, &c. Principals: Madame ALBANI, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, and Mr. WATKIN MILLS.

THURSDAY MORNING.—Bach's MASS IN B MINOR. Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Miss HILDA WILSON, Miss DAMIAN, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, and Mr. SANTLEY.

THURSDAY EVENING.—New Work, for Chorus and Orchestra, THE REVENGE, by C. V. Stanford; SYMPHONY IN C MINOR, No. 5 (Beethoven); WALPURGIS NIGHT (Mendelssohn). Principals: Miss DAMIAN, Mr. IVER MCKAY, and Mr. BRERETON.

FRIDAY MORNING.—ST. LUDMILA. Oratorio written for the Festival by Antonin Dvorak. Principals: Madame ALBANI, Madame PATEY, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, and Mr. SANTLEY.

FRIDAY EVENING.—ADVENT HYMN (Schumann); SYMPHONY ("The Scotch") (Mendelssohn); CONCERT OVERTURE (F. K. Hattersley); BALLER SUITE, &c. Principals: Mrs. HUTCHINSON, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, and Mr. FREDERIC KING.

SATURDAY MORNING.—THE GOLDEN LEGEND, written for the Festival by Sir Arthur Sullivan; Mendelssohn's ST. PAUL (Part 1). Principals: Madame ALBANI, Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Madame PATEY, Miss HILDA WILSON, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, Mr. WATKIN MILLS, and Mr. FREDERIC KING.

EXTRA CONCERT, SATURDAY EVENING.—Mendelssohn's ELIJAH. Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Madame PATEY, Miss DAMIAN, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, Mr. IVER MCKAY, and Mr. SANTLEY.

SERIAL TICKETS (admitting to seven Concerts) ...	£	s.	d.
SINGLE TICKET.—Morning—Front Seats and Gallery, Reserved ...	1	1	0

" " Evening—Front Seats and Gallery, Reserved ...	0	15	0
" " Morning—Second Seats, Reserved ...	0	10	6
" " Evening—Second Seats, Reserved ...	0	7	6

FIRST and SECOND SEAT TICKETS and PLANS are now ready.

Tickets for Saturday Night's Extra Performance of "Elijah" can now be obtained.

Detailed Programmes, &c., may be had on application. All communications to be addressed,

Ald. FRED. R. SPARK, Hon. Sec.
Festival Office, Centenary Street, Leeds, August 16, 1886.

POPULAR CHAMBER CONCERT PARTY,

under the direction of Mr. J. OWEN.

Vocalist
MISS HANNAH JOHNSON,
Of Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Pianoforte and Accompanist:

MISS JESSIE M. HILEY,
Of Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violin:

MR. F. WARD,

Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violoncello:

MR. J. OWEN,

Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

"Mr. J. Owen's Chamber Concert at the Erdington Institute last Monday evening afforded a rare treat to lovers of good music. To Mr. Owen high praise is due for his highly satisfactory management of the concert."—Erdington Times.

For terms and particulars of Concert Party, please address, Mr. J. Owen, Hamilton Villa, Hampton Road, Birchfield, Birmingham.

MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN begs to announce that he can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming season. Address: N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, W., or 270, Elgin Avenue, Maida Vale, W.

GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

SEPTEMBER 7, 8, 9, and 10, 1886.

Under the patronage of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G.

PRINCIPAL VOCALISTS.

Madame ALBANI.	Miss ANNA WILLIAMS.
Madame PATEY.	Miss HILDA WILSON.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.	Mr. W. WINCH.
Mr. SANTLEY.	Mr. WATKIN MILLS.
Solo Pianist ...	Miss FANNY DAVIES.
Leader ...	Mr. CARRODUS.
Conductor ...	Mr. C. L. WILLIAMS.

IN THE CATHEDRAL:—

TUESDAY, at 1.30, Mendelssohn's ELIJAH.

WEDNESDAY, at 11.30, Dvorak's STABAT MATER, Mendelssohn's Reformation "Symphony," Gibbons' "Almighty and Everlasting God," S. Wesley's "Exultate Deo," Hiller's "Song of Victory."

WEDNESDAY EVENING, at 7.30, Rockstro's THE GOOD SHEPHERD and Mendelssohn's HYMN OF PRAISE.

THURSDAY, at 11.30, Gounod's MORS ET VITA.

FRIDAY, at 11.30, Handel's MESSIAH.

IN THE SHIRE HALL.

CONCERTS.—TUESDAY EVENING, at 8, C. H. Lloyd's ANDROMEDA; PIANOFORTE CONCERTO, by Miss Fanny Davies; NEW OVERTURE, by Miss Ellicott; Violin Solo, by Mr. Carrodus.

THURSDAY EVENING, at 8, Cowen's SLEEPING BEAUTY; Dr. Hubert Parry's NEW ORCHESTRAL WORK; NOTTURNO and WEDDING MARCH (Mendelssohn); Solo by Madame Albani.

Prices of admission: From 1s. to 1s. Serial Tickets, 4s. each. For Regulations, Programmes, Tickets, &c., apply to Mr. E. Nest, 125, Westgate Street, Gloucester, and Austin's Office, St. James's Hall, London.

WOLVERHAMPTON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 16 and 17.

THURSDAY MORNING.—Handel's MESSIAH.

THURSDAY EVENING.—THE MAID OF ASTOLAT (a Cantata composed for this Festival by Dr. C. S. Heap); Overture, CHEVY CHASE (Macfarren); RHAPSODY IN F, No. 1 (Liszt), &c.

FRIDAY MORNING.—Dvorak's STABAT MATER; Mendelssohn's LAUDA SION; and Beethoven's SYMPHONY IN C minor (No. 5).

FRIDAY EVENING.—THE BRIDAL OF TRIERMAIN (a Cantata composed for this Festival by Mr. Frederick Corder); Overtures, ZAUBERFLÖTE (Mozart), and TANNHAUSER (Wagner); FANDANGO for Violin (Molique), &c.

PRINCIPALS:—Messdames VALLERIA, HUTCHINSON, TRE-BELLI, Miss HILDA WILSON; Messrs. EDWARD LLOYD, PIERCY, ROBERT GRICE, WATKIN MILLS, and SANTLEY. Band and Chorus of 265 performers. Principal and Solo Violin, Mr. Carrodus. Conductor, Dr. Swinerton Heap.

Admission:—	Mornings.	Evenings.
	£	s. d.
First Reserved Seats ...	0	15 0
Family Tickets for Four ...	0	12 6
Second Reserved Seats ...	0	7 6
SERIAL TICKETS (admitting one person to each of the four performances): First Reserved, 2s. 2s.; Second, 1s. 1s.

Orders for seats, accompanied by remittance, to the Hon. Financial Secretary, W. C. Sheldon, 26, Riches Street, Wolverhampton. Detailed prospectuses and all information obtainable of R. T. LAWRENCE and SAM. WELLS FAGG, Hon. Secretaries, 24, Darlington Street, Wolverhampton.

NOVELLO'S ORATORIO CONCERTS.

SEASON 1886-87.

There are a few VACANCIES in the CHOIR. Ladies and Gentlemen (good Readers) wishing to join should apply at once to the Choir Secretary, Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

THE HECKMANN QUARTET.

Mr. FRANKE, having again made arrangements with the celebrated HECKMANN (STRING) QUARTET for a visit to England during the time from November 22 to December 18, next, is open to receive applications for the engagement of these excellent Artists.

For terms, &c., apply to Mr. H. Franke, 2, Vere Street, London, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano).

(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby.)

Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 44, Sloane Square, S.W.

MISS FRASER BRUNNER (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, address, 44, Icknield Street, or Messrs. Rogers and Priestley's, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

MISS ADELINA CLARKE (Soprano)

MR. J. C. CLARKE, L.R.A.M. (Baritone and Solo Organist)

Are open to accept Engagements for Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c. Terms on application. Address, 24, Bridge Street, Walsall.

MADAME EMILIE CLARK (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, &c., address, 2, Well-close Place, Leeds.

"'SAMSON.'—Madame Emilie Clark was in excellent voice, and has rarely been heard to more advantage. Her great successes were in 'Ye Men of Gaza,' and the grand air, 'Let the bright Seraphim,' which was applauded to the echo."—Yorkshire Post, Jan. 27, 1886.

MISS CONWAY.

(Principal Soprano of the Gentlemen's Glee Club, Manchester.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c., address, 53, Robert Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano, G to D).

237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne; or Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

"Possesses a sweet-toned voice, . . . was very happy in her singing of all the parts allotted to her."—Vide Oldham Express, Feb. 12, 1886.

MADAME FARAR-HYDE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Grafton Place, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).

Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME MINNIE GWYNNE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, address, 18, St. Stephen's Avenue, Uxbridge Road, W.

MISS LOUIE HARPER, R.A.M. (Soprano).

(Pupil of Signor Goldberg.)

Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 182, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

MISS ALYS HOLLINGBERRY (Soprano)

Is now open to Engagements, Concerts, &c., Henry Street, Glossop.

MISS BESSIE HOLT, R.A.M. (Soprano),

3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MISS MONA A. JAMES (Soprano).

(Full execution E in Alt; pupil of Signor Martinengo, R.A.M., S.C.R., Italy.)

Operatic Italian Gems for Concerts and English Songs, 58, New Street, Birmingham.

MISS LILY MARSHALL-WARD (Soprano).

MISS NELLIE MARSHALL-WARD (Mezzo-Sop.)

MISS JESSIE MARSHALL-WARD (Contralto).

Address, 80, Addison Street, Nottingham.

MISS MARY MOON (Soprano).

(Medalist of the R.A.M. and Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c., 10, Chalcot Crescent, Primrose Hill, N.W.

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).

MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).

Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MADELEINE WHARTON (Soprano).

MDLLE. JOSÉ D'ARCONVILLE, R.A.M.

(Contralto, of St. James's Hall and London Concerts).

Oratorio, Italian Operatic, and Ballad Concerts. 27, Central Road, Withington, Manchester.

MISS MAY ALLEN (Contralto, Mezzo-Soprano).

(Compass E to C.C.)

MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass).

For Concerts, Oratorio, &c.

Mr. WALLIS is now arranging tours in Midlands, South Wales, and the North for his popular Vocal and Instrumental Concert Party.

For Vacant dates in November and December, address, Willow Grove Hall, Leeds.

MADAME BAYLEY-MORDAUNT (Contralto).

MR. JOHN H. BAYLEY (Bass).

For Concerts, &c., address, 17, Princess Road, Ripon, Yorks.

MISS EMILY CLARKE (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Fiori and the late Madame Sainton-Dolby.)

"An artist in every sense of the word, and one of the purest and most charming contraltos that we have heard for some time."—Two-bridge Wells Gazette.

For Concerts, Lessons, &c., 9, Colville Square, Bayswater, W.

MADAME ROSE HUDSON (Contralto).

For Entertainment and Concerts, 9, Marjery Park Road, Upton, E.

MISS HELEN LEE, R.A.M. (Contralto).

Address, Messrs. Forsyth Bros., Music Publishers, Manchester.

MISS MARGARET LEYLAND (Contralto).

(Certificated with Honours, R.A.M., and Gold Medalist.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 51, Plymouth Grove, Manchester.

MADAME DE LISLE (Contralto).

(Pupil of T. A. Wallworth, Esq., Professor at the Royal Academy of Music.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 5, North Street, Swindon, Wilts.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE, L.A.M. (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Schira.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS KATE MILNER (Contralto).

(Of the Guildhall School of Music.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, Lessons, &c., 77, Macfarlane Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MISS CONSTANCE POOCK (Contralto & Pianist).

(Of the Bristol, Norwich, Derby, Hull, Cambridge, Ipswich, &c., Concerts; R.A.M. Honours Certificate, 1882.)

For Oratorios, Ballads, or "Evenings of Sacred, Classical, Operatic, and Popular Pianoforte and Vocal Selections," &c. 56, Green Hill, Derby.

MISS SANDERSON (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Casson Gate, Rochdale.

"Miss Sanderson's rich and cultivated contralto voice won for her songs warm and well deserved applause."—West London Advertiser, July 10, 1886.

"Miss Sanderson gave evidence of marked powers as a vocalist in her rendering of the songs, 'Weary,' 'Watching,' &c."—Oldham Express, February 12, 1886.

MISS EDITH THAIRLWALL (Contralto).

(Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, Teaching, &c., 5, Provost Road, N.W.

MISS CLARA WOLLASTON (Contralto).

(Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)

127, Alderney Street, South Belgravia, S.W.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto).

Of the Manchester and Liverpool Concerts.

Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MR. GEO. BUTTERWORTH (Tenor).

(Certificated with Honours, R.A.M. and T.C.L.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Moss Bridge, Darwen.

MR. MARTIN FROST (Tenor).

(Pupil of Mr. Montem Smith and principal Tenor of St. Paul's, Knightsbridge.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 8, Tachbrook Street, Pimlico, S.W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).

(Cathembury Cathedral).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 12, St. Mary Street, Dane John, Cathembury.

MR. J. MELLOR (Tenor).

Eccleshill, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. S. THORNBOROUGH (Tenor).

Répertoire: "Redemption," "Elijah," "Creation," "Messiah," "Judas Macabbeus," "Kosha," "Sabat Mater," "Acta and Galatea," Masses, &c. Address, 125, Montague Street, Blackburn.

MR. GEORGE WADSWORTH (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 5, Wood Place, Beeston Hill, Leeds.

MR. J. G. HEWSON (Baritone).

Ballad Concert at Colston Hall, Bristol, April 3. Vocalists: Miss Philippine Siedle, Miss Roberts, Mr. Joseph Pierpoint, Mr. J. G. Hewson, and Mr. Sims Reeves. Solo flute, Mr. De Jong.

"Mr. Hewson gave evidence that he possesses a talent of a high order. He is an accomplished vocalist, his tone and pronunciation being good. He sang 'Destiny' (G. Lane), Benedict's 'Rage, thou angry storm,' and 'The soldier's good-bye' (Adams) splendidly, and was recalled after each."—Bristol Times, April 5, 1886.

Address, 312, Hyde Road, Manchester.

MR. REUBEN HOLMES (Baritone)

(Pupil of A. Visetti, Esq., 1881-5).

For Oratorios, Ballads, &c. Permanent address, 35, Queen's Road, Bayswater, W.

MR. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone).

(Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)

35, Knowle Road, S.W. (Also Concert Party.)

MR. FRANK COX (Basso).

(Pupil of Signor Martinengo, R.A.M., S.C.R., Italy.)

Oratorios, Cantatas, English Songs, and Italian Buffo Songs.

58, New Street, Birmingham.

MR. FREDERIC W. DALBY (Bass).

(Lincoln Cathedral).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 9, Monk's Road, Lincoln.

MR. E. JACKSON (Bass).

Principal Bass of New College Choir (Late of Lincoln Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Dinners, &c., address, New College, Oxford.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass).

And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."
For list of works, see other advertisement.

MR. RICKARD (Basso).

(Pupil of Signor Ciro Pinsuti.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Halifax.

MR. WILLIAM RILEY (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Liversedge, Yorkshire.

MR. J. SHARPE (Oboist and Oboe Maker).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 235, Lydgate Hill, Pudsey, near Leeds.

MISS VINNIE BEAUMONT (Soprano). For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, and Organ Recitals, or Festival Services. Address, Point House, Brigg, Lincolnshire, or Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W. Engagements already booked for ensuing season.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

MISS FANNY BRISTOWE (Soprano), late of Manchester, requests that future communications may be addressed to her residence, 24, Abercorn Place, Hamilton Terrace, N.W.

MISS MADELINE HARDY will sing in Glasgow, on October 16, and will be happy to accept Engagements en route for Oratorio, Ballad, or Classical Concerts. For terms, &c., address, 19, Stockwell Park Crescent, S.W.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano) begs that all communications respecting Oratorios, Concerts, &c., may be addressed to 4, St. Thomas's Road, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano). Engaged: Scarborough, June 21 to 26; re-engaged, July 19 to 24; Blackpool, August 16 to 22; Enniskillen, September 13 (Matinée and Concert); re-engaged Blackpool, September. Address, Crag Cottage, Knarborough.

Vide Press: "Miss Sellers possesses a powerful and mellow voice, a perfect ear, and clear enunciation."—Todmorden Advertiser.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts be addressed, 28, Grove End Road, London, N.W.; or, 59, Church Street, Liverpool.

"MISS MEREDYTH ELLIOTT (Contralto) filled the void occasioned by the absence of Madame Antoinette Sterling, and the most thrilling of all the vocal items of the programme was her rendering of 'The Lost Chord,' which was a performance of unparalleled beauty."—Southampton Times. Address, 24, Studley Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MR. LAWRENCE FREYER (Tenor), St. Paul's Cathedral. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 233, Friern Road, Dulwich, S.E.; or, the Cathedral.

MR. JAMES GAWTHROP (Tenor), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James's, begs that all communications be addressed to 34, Priory Park Road, Kiburn, N.W.

MR. HOLBERRY HAGYARD (Tenor), of the London, Crystal Palace, Glasgow Choral Union, and Birmingham Philharmonic Concerts, is now booking Engagements for the coming Season. For references, opinions of the Press, &c., address, Trinity College, Cambridge.

MR. CALDER O'BYRNE (late Principal Tenor "Falka" and "Princess Ida" Companies) is open to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts and Oratorio during the coming season. Address, 18, West Street, Battersea Park, S.W.

MR. LAWFORD HUXTABLE (Bass-Baritone), Pupil of Signor Alberto Randegger, is open to accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming season. Address, N. Veri, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, W.; or, 14, Regent Street, Clifton.

MR. THOS. KEMPTON requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., &c., also for Concert Party, may be addressed to 52, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, N.

MR. F. A. BRIDGE, Choirmaster of St. John's, Lewisham, Conductor of St. John's Choral Society, Director of the Operatic Classes, and Professor of Singing at the N.W. London School of Music, &c., can arrange to conduct choral or operatic societies on either Tuesday or Thursday evenings during the ensuing season. East Lodge, Dalston Lane, London.

THE MENDELSSOHN QUARTET.—Messrs. Henri Rivière (Alto), Frederick Bannhof (Tenor), George Curtis (Baritone), and Charles Bernard (Bass). Lady Vocalists and Pianist if required. For terms and open dates apply to the Secretary, Lawrence R. Dicksee, 6, Fitzroy Square, W.

THE ARION GLEE CLUB.—For Public and Private Concerts, Dinners, Parties, &c., part or entire Programme. Terms and vacant dates on application to F. A. Goodworth, Hon. Sec., 23, Gibson Square, N.

BOROUGH OF HACKNEY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

SEASON 1886-87.

FOUR CONCERTS will be given at the SHOREDITCH TOWN HALL, on MONDAY EVENINGS, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Conductor: EBENEZER PROUT, Esq., B.A.

First Concert, November 1, 1886: Dvořák's THE SPECTRE'S BRIDE; Mozart's CONCERTANTE QUARTET for Wind Instruments and Orchestra (first performance); Mendelssohn's FINALE to LORELEY.

Second Concert, December 13, 1886: Beethoven's MASS in C; Mendelssohn's HYMN OF PRAISE.

Third Concert, February 21, 1887: Spohr's CALVARY.

Fourth Concert, April 25, 1887 (English night): Prout's THE HUNDRETH PSALM; Prout's SYMPHONY in F; Cowen's SLEEPING BEAUTY (conducted by the Composer).

Band and Chorus of 250 Performers.

Terms of Subscription: For two numbered and reserved seats for the four Concerts, One Guinea; for one numbered and reserved seat for the four Concerts, Half-a-Guinea. Prices for single Concerts: Numbered and reserved seats, 4s.; unreserved seats, 2s.; admission, 1s. There are vacancies in the Choir, particularly in the Soprano and Tenor divisions. Those desirous of joining are requested to send to the Hon. Sec. their applications, which will be dealt with in order of priority.

Subscription for members of the Choir (including use of music): Ladies, 7s. 6d.; Gentlemen, 10s. 6d.

Rehearsals will commence on Friday, September 24, 1886, at the Grocers' Company's Schools, Hackney, N.

HENRY A. JOHNSON, Hon. Sec.
31, Fountayne Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MADAME WORRELL begs to announce that her ANNUAL EVENING CONCERT will take place at Brixton Hall, on Monday, October 4. All communications respecting engagements for Oratorios and Miscellaneous Concerts should be addressed to 52, Knowle Road, Brixton Road, S.W.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS." (Reg.)—Conductor, JOSEF CANTOR.

Unprecedented success in Manchester.

Unprecedented success in Leeds.

Unprecedented success in Liverpool.

Unprecedented success in Preston.

Unprecedented success in Bolton.

THE "GEMS OF THE OPERAS" CONCERT COMPANY comprises a highly trained Choir of Ladies and Gentlemen, assisted by a select Orchestra:—

Principal Soprano Madame LAURA SMART.

Solo Flute Mr. V. L. NEEDHAM.

(Of Messrs. Chas. Hallé's and Edw. de Jong's orchestras.)

Mr. Cantor is now negotiating for dates during the ensuing season. All particulars, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MR. FRANK MAY

(Bass).

Evill Prize Holder and Medalist, Royal Academy of Music, having been most successful in the following works, begs to announce that he is now booking engagements for the ensuing season in the same, or for other compositions of a popular character:—

THE MESSIAH Handel.

JUDAS MACCABEUS "

ACIS AND GALATEA "

WEDDING MUSIC FROM "JOSEPH" "

THE CREATION Haydn

ELIJAH Mendelssohn.

ST. PAUL "

THE WALPURGIS NIGHT "

THE REDEMPTION Gounod.

MAY QUEEN Sterndale Bennett.

CRUSADERS Gade.

ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER "

ANCIENT MARINER Barnett.

HOLY CITY Gaul.

RUTH "

ROSE MAIDEN Cowen.

SLEEPING BEAUTY "

FALTY RING Cummings.

DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS Stainer.

PLACIDA Carter.

For terms, dates, and Press notices, address, Mr. Frank May, 14, Hanover Street, W. Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE.

President: E. J. HOPKINS, Mus. Doc.
Principal: EDWIN M. LOTT, Mus. Doc.
LOCAL THEORETICAL EXAMINATION, November 30, 1886.
Practical Examinations conducted throughout the kingdom. Hedley Carus, Esq., Hon. Sec., 270, Cornwell Road, W.
Additional Clerk wanted, two hours daily. Application by letter only.

LADIES' SCHOOL AND STUDENTS' HOME.
Beethoven House, Northampton.—Principal, Mrs. BROOK SAMPSON.—Large House, Tennis Court, and Playground. Piano, Organ, Harmony, &c., by Mr. BROOK SAMPSON, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.C.O. Organ (5 manuals) in the house; Harp; 15 Pianos.
Recent successes: Senior Honours, R.A.M. (Piano and Organ); First Class Senior Honours, Trinity College, E.M. and K.; Certificated Pianist, T.C.L., &c.; also Cambridge Local, Senior and Junior, College of Preceptors, South Kensington.
Vacancy for a Resident Musical Student.

BIRMINGHAM BRANCH, LONDON CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC.—The Director attends, September 6, to award Vocal and Instrumental SCHOLARSHIPS. Forms and Prospectus, post-free, The Secretary, New Building, Porchester Square, Hyde Park.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 to allow to learn and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the School pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The fees payable in advance. Michaelmas Term begins October 6. Pupils entering at that date to attend for Examination on Wednesday 6, and will be eligible to compete for the Scholarships to be awarded in May, 1887, by Professor Sir G. A. Macfarren. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macirone. F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

MISS CLARA TITTERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Godolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

GERMANY.—Miss SERCOMBE, L.L.A., late Assistant Mistress at the Norwich High School, continues to receive a limited number of Pupils. Special arrangements made for Ladies wishing to study Music at the CONSERVATORIUM. Address, Danneckerstrasse, STUTTGART.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON., (1885), and T.C.D. (1884), MUS. BAC., CANTAB. (1885); MUS. BAC., T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., OXON., Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (May, 1886), 1st Mus. Bac., Oxon. (1886), L.R.A.M. (1886); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1886), N.S.P.M. (1886); Toronto (14 in 1st and 2nd Examinations), A.C.O., T.C.L., &c. More than 200 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by DR. ALLISON'S Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885 and 1886. Theory, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Successes at Coll. of Organists, 1885; 1st Mus. Bac., Cambridge, 1st Class, 1886; Mus. Bac., Toronto, 1st and 2nd Examinations, 1886, First Class (four). Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

MR. ARTHUR J. GREENISH, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., A.R.A.M., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., taught personally or by correspondence. Candidates prepared through post for Musical Examinations. 23, Maitland Park Road, Haverstock Hill, N.W.

MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Address, Market Place, South Shields.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street, Mayfair, W.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

J. B. CRAMER & CO.,

CONCERT AGENTS,
LIVERPOOL.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. E. BURRITT LANE, L.Mus., T.C.L. (Tallis Gold Medalist, 1880), begs to announce his REMOVAL to 16, Bouverie Road, Stoke Newington, N. Tuition personally or by post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.

MR. M. J. MONK, Mus. B., Oxon., informs his former Pupils and others that he has resumed teaching HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and kindred subjects, by post, and will be happy to reply to letters addressed 20, Marlborough Road, Banbury.

HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT taught by correspondence. Method employed is quick and solid. Berlioz, Terry, Stoneman and Co., 6, Hatton Garden, E.C.

PIANO, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT.—A lady, A.Mus., T.C.L. (certificated), gives LESSONS personally or by correspondence. Address, Miss Champion, 7, Weymouth Street, London, W.

A LADY (Pupil of Dupont, Brussels Conservatoire; first-rate certificate) desires additional PUPILS for Pianoforte, Theory, and Sight-Singing. Good School or Private Pupils. Highest references. For terms, address, Miss B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A PROFESSOR OF MUSIC in the North of London having a large connection, and holding the Organ appointment at the principal Church of the district, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Good opportunity for acquiring general experience both in Church and Church work. Premium required. One who could take elementary Violin or Piano lessons preferred. Address, Verax, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE Organist of Sevenoaks Parish Church (Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O.) has a VACANCY for a Resident ARTICLED PUPIL. Full Choral Service; three-manual Organ; and every facility for a thorough musical education. Lovely part of Kent. Address, Arthur W. Marchant, 20, Camden Villas, Sevenoaks.

DR. CROW, Ripon Cathedral, requires an ARTICLED PUPIL. Premium.

MR. and MRS. HENRY R. STARR beg to inform their Pupils and Friends that they will resume their TRIO and QUARTET CLASS for Piano and Strings, assisted by Mr. Wm. C. Hann (Violoncello), on Monday, September 27. Two Guineas per term. 139, Inverness Terrace, Bayswater, W.

PUPILS WANTED (in London), by Young Lady PIANIST, Royal Academy of Music. Terms moderate. Write L. G., The Granville, Romsgate.

DR. CHARLES JOSEPH FROST requires a Non-Resident ASSISTANT PUPIL. Preference given to a resident of the S.E. district. Only those who are going into the profession, and could give their whole time to the study, need apply. Burlington Villa, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

MUSICAL STUDENT.—An experienced Music Master can receive into his country home (with another Pupil) a young Gentleman desirous to qualify himself as a MUSICIAN. This opening, being exceptional, is fitted for the special case of one unable or unwilling to enter any Public School or Academy. It is available only for a youth of good breeding, education, and fair promise, furnished with ample means. Address, M. G. E., Mus. Doc., Oxon., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—Mr. G. ERNEST LAKE, Organist and Musical Director, All Saints', Kensington, REQUIRES a gentlemanly YOUTH to train for a high-class professional position. Daily Choral Service. Large Organ, Broadwood Concert Grand, Music Library, and home comforts. Small Premium for Youth with talent. 57, Burlington Road, North Kensington.

PUPIL ASSISTANT.—The ORGANIST at a Public School requires YOUTH as above. Must be able to take plain services at a Church. Address, A. R. C. M., Pitsford, Northampton.

ARTICLED PUPIL.—Mr. W. S. Hoyte (Organist of All Saints', Margaret Street, W.) has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL. Unusual advantages are offered. For particulars and terms, address, Mr. W. S. Hoyte, 68, Boundary Road, St. John's Wood, London.

ARTICLED PUPIL.—A Young Yorkshireman (22) wishes to find an ORGANIST of good position who would make every use of him in return for finishing LESSONS and home expenses, or on very moderate terms. Address, Charlie, 33, Tenter Street, Thornhill, Rotherham.

AS MUSICAL GOVERNANCE, or SITUATION in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Certificated. Good references. W. L., Mr. Rogers, Colne, St. Ives, Hunts.

TO MUSICAL STUDENTS.—BOARD and RESIDENCE on very moderate terms. Every facility for practice. 18, Amphil Square, N.W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The late Pianist of Evans's is open to an ENGAGEMENT to Drill or Conduct the above for the forthcoming Season, also to attend Smoking Concerts, &c. W. H. W., Holmside, St. Paul's Crescent, Camden Square, N.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c.; blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

MR. JOHN FAUX BOARDMAN'S ORGAN STUDIO, 58, Herne Hill Road, near Loughboro' Junction, S.E. Two manuals, concave pedals. Lessons with practice or practice only.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. PECK, 36, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

TO COMPOSERS.—A. TOYE and Co., 27, Clement's Lane, London, E.C., undertake REVISING, PUBLISHING, and PRINTING all MUSICAL WORKS on lowest terms. Band Parts written.

HANDEL'S MUSICAL WORKS complete.—ON SALE, at 109, Southampton Row, Russell Square, W.C., a complete set of the musical works of this eminent composer, the original editions by ARNOLD. 43 volumes, folio, uniformly half-bound, with portraits.

FOR SALE.—SEVEN VOLS. "MUSICAL TIMES," 1877 to 1883, nicely bound in Half Roan, also 1884 in Publishers' Covers, all clean and perfect. Price only 21s. the lot. G. W. Martin, Contractors' Office, Chowbent, Lancashire.

A COMPANION to BURROWES' THOROUGH BASS PRIMER WANTED. Apply, stating price, to E. Hesketh, Smedleys, Matlock Bridge.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.—CHORUS and ORCHESTRAL PARTS of the following works for HIRE:—"Messiah," "Judas Maccabaeus," "Creation," "May Queen," "Holy City," "Christ and His Soldiers," "Hear my Prayer," "Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest," and "Jackdaw of Rheims." For number of copies and terms, apply, Secretary, Choral Society, Redditch.

PLATFORM for CHORAL SOCIETY, well made, nearly new, for SALE. Inch boards. Supports, 5 by 2½ inches, fixed by bed screws. Three or four tiers rising from 1 foot by 9-inch steps. Will hold sixty. Price £8, cost double. Apply to Dr. Crow, Ripon.

LEADING SOPRANO WANTED, for Swedish Church, at King's Cross. Must be a good Reader and able to take solos. Stipend, £15 per annum. Apply, by letter only, H. N., 32, Hartham Road, Holloway.

WANTED, for Catholic Church, good Soprano and Alto SOLO BOYS. Must be able to read well. Apply, T. S., 13, St. Thomas's Place, St. Thomas's Square, Hackney.

CHOIR BOYS.—WANTED, for St. Mary-at-Hill, Eastcheap, FOUR BOYS about 11 years of age, with good voices and some knowledge of music. Commencing salaries, £6 and £5 per annum each. Letters to J. Tunstall, 24, Oakley Square, N.W.

ALTO WANTED. Two Sunday services and one weekly practice. Ten Guineas per annum. Apply, on Friday evenings, from 7 to 8, to the Organist, at St. George's, Botolph Lane, Eastcheap, City.

ALTO, TENOR, and BASS (good readers) WANTED, for All Saints', Kensington Park. Full choral services. Private lessons given in return. Address, Mr. Ernest Lake.

CHICHESTER CATHEDRAL.—There will be a VACANCY at Michaelmas for a TENOR VOICE in the Choir of the above Cathedral. Salary, £60 a year. Applications to be addressed, by September 8, to the Rev. J. Cavis-Brown, Vicars' Close, Chichester.

ETON COLLEGE CHAPEL.—There is a VACANCY for a CONDUCT (Minor Canon). Duties, to intone the Service twice a day each alternate week during about nine months of the year. Stipend, £150 per annum. Apply, by letter only, to Mr. Barnby, The Cloisters, Eton College.

ETON COLLEGE CHAPEL.—There are VACANCIES for TWO LAY CLERKS (Tenor and Bass). Candidates must possess good voices, a cultivated style of singing, a thorough knowledge of Cathedral music, and should be well under thirty years of age. Services twice a day during the school terms, with about three months' holiday out of the twelve. Salary, £110 a year. Apply, by letter only, to Mr. Barnby, The Cloisters, Eton College.

Anyone fulfilling the above requirements, and willing to take temporary duty for a few weeks from September 18, should apply as above.

TENOR and BARTONE VOICES REQUIRED, for the Choir of Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury. Must read fairly at sight. Stipend at the rate of £13 per annum. Address, the Organist, stating age and experience.

BASS VOICE REQUIRED, for a surplined Choir in a West End Church. Two Services on Sunday and Great Festivals. Weekly practice. Salary, £10 to £15, according to ability. Apply, with testimonials, to Organist, 109, Belsize Road, N.W.

BASS WANTED, for High Mass and Vespers. Catholic. Address, Organist, New Priory, Quex Road, Kilburn.

ST. PAUL'S, Southwark.—VOICES WANTED, to complete Voluntary Choir. Nice service. Weekly practice. Address, Vicar, 94, Lambeth Road, S.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Ashover Church, Derbyshire, for Sunday services and one evening practice in the week. State salary required and particulars to Rector, Ashover, Chesterfield.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Kelvinside Free Church, Glasgow, the organ being a new two-manual by WILLIS, London. Yearly salary, £70 to £80. Written applications and testimonials to be sent by September 10, 1886, to Alex. F. Morrison, 75, St. George's Place, Glasgow, N.B.

WANTED, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Anglican services. Earnest churchman and communicant. £30 per annum. Vicar, St. Paul's, Middlesbrough.

WANTED, for Holy Trinity, Tulse Hill, S.W., a thoroughly efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Surplined choir. Services, Sunday morning, semi-choral; evening, fully choral with anthem. Stipend, £80. Address, with full particulars and copy testimonials, The Vicar.

ORGANIST WANTED, a Young Man who can train Choir. Salary moderate. Apply, enclosing testimonials, to Churchwardens, St. Matthew's, Oakley Square, N.W.

ORGANIST WANTED, for the Richmond Hill Congregational Church, Bournemouth. Two manuals, twenty-seven stops. Address, stating age, qualifications, and salary required, with testimonials, F. J. Bright, Church Secretary, Arcade, Bournemouth.

THE ORGANIST of Bournemouth Congregational Church desires an ENGAGEMENT after September, where a good musical service is desired. London or Bournemouth. Address, Mansell Ramsay, College House, Bournemouth, of whom may be had, post-free, two original Harvest Hymns and Tunes, one penny. "Hosanna" March, "March of the Choristers," "Dream of Olden Time." Eightpence each.

ORGANIST desires Permanent, or Deputy DUTY, in N. or N.W. district of London. Anglican music. Address, Y., 17, Savernake Road, Gospel Oak, N.W.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (young gentleman) desires an ENGAGEMENT, in or near London. Well qualified. Holds testimonials from eminent musicians, and admirable references. Churchman and communicant. Used to full choral services and celebrations. Good choir-trainer and executant. Now attaining some eminence as composer. Address, Pyramidon, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—L.Mus., 32 years of age, with 12 years' high character. Good Executant and Trainer. Highly recommended by well-known Clergy and Cathedral Organists. Gregorian or Anglican. Could arrange with retiring Organist for Teaching Connection. Y. Z., Abbey Lodge, Belvedere, S.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—Professional man, 30, now at liberty. Skilful player, good reader and accompanist. First-class references. Address, Mr. Duncan Callow, Studley Road, Forest Gate, E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Young), late Assistant, desires ENGAGEMENT in small Church or Chapel, or as ASSISTANT. Testimonials. Small Salary. B., 10, Milner Terrace, Cadogan Square, S.W.

ORGANIST (London or Suburbs).—A Gentleman desires RE-ENGAGEMENT as above. Two years' experience. Plain service preferred. For terms, &c., address, Organist, 9, Cumberland Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.

A LONDON ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in London. Several years' experience. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

ORGANIST and to TRAIN CHOIR.—Lady of great experience seeks APPOINTMENT as above. Three-manual organ preferred. Highest references as to ability, &c. Apply, by letter, to E. W., care of Lady Isabella Stewart, 12, Palmeria Square, Brighton.

ORGANIST, upwards of 20 years' experience, will take TEMPORARY or DEPUTY DUTY. J. S. Creswell, Tamworth.

ORGANIST (twenty years' experience) desires an APPOINTMENT in or near London. Salary no object; but a well-appointed church and good Organ preferred. Address, J. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT ORGANIST.—A Young Gentleman, who has previously held a similar post, wishes to meet with an Organist of good position, in or near London preferred, who would make use of him in return for finishing lessons and home expenses. Can reside with Organist. Address, Frescobaldi, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. WALTER W. HEDGCOCK (Organist and Choirmaster of St. Agnes', Kennington, S.E.) can accept CONCERT ENGAGEMENTS as CONDUCTOR and SOLO PIANIST. 29, Kennington Park Gardens, S.E.

CHORAL SOCIETIES.—A well-known English Conductor of great experience and tact, now directing two large and successful societies, would co-operate in organising another where material exists. Terms moderate. Conductor, Willcocks and Co., 11, Berners Street, W.

TO AMATEUR INSTRUMENTALISTS.—A few more GENTLEMEN WANTED, to complete a small ORCHESTRA, formed for the practice and performance of high-class sacred music in a Catholic Church at Hackney. The rehearsals take place every Friday evening at 8 p.m., and the orchestra perform on the first Sunday of every month, and also on festivals. Gentlemen desirous of practice in classical music will find this an excellent opportunity. Apply, for particulars, to T. S., 13, St. Thomas's Place, St. Thomas's Square, Hackney.

A GENTLEMAN having a large high-class Teaching Connection in London desires, for family reasons, to Exchange, or to Purchase a good old-established country practice. L. H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER REQUIRED. Married Man, with knowledge of Organs and Harmoniums preferred. Permanent situation. Must be first-class. Address, Accord, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

GOOD PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED, for seaside town, must be up in Harmoniums, American Organs, and general Repairs. A permanency. Address, J. E. Beyer, 71, Albert Road, Southsea, Hants.

WANTED, a first-class TUNER and REPAIRER. Must be able to undertake all kinds of Repairs. Apply, Organo, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, SITUATION as SECOND TUNER, REPAIRER, &c. Address, X. Y. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, SITUATION as IMPROVER to the Tuning. Good knowledge of repairs. Address, A. C. E., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER and REPAIRER (Married) wishes RE-ENGAGEMENT. Address, Rex, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER (22) seeks ENGAGEMENT, having a thorough knowledge of Harmoniums and American Organs, and can undertake repairs. Address, A. W., Handsworth Post Office, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE (fine) TUNER, leading London Showrooms. Experienced Repairer and Regulator. Well up in American Organs and Harmoniums. Country experience. Mechanic. C. J., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PARTIAL ENGAGEMENT (or otherwise) REQUIRED, by experienced TUNER, REPAIRER, and REGULATOR. A. 144, Percy Road, Shepherd's Bush.

GOOD SECOND TUNER desires ENGAGEMENT, in London or Provincial Warehouse. Piano, contrabass, and viola. Good knowledge of Counter Trade. References and testimonials, Messrs. U'Glow and Thuell, Pianoforte Warehouse, Falmouth.

SITUATION WANTED, as TUNER and SHOP ASSISTANT. Factory and country experience (24). V. G. D., 12, High Street, Bath.

AN experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER requires an ENGAGEMENT two or three days a week, or month occasionally, as in or out-door TUNER. First-class references. Address, A. G. Meves, 39, Russell Street, Covent Garden.

WANTED, for a few weeks, an ENGAGEMENT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE (sea-side preferred) by an experienced Organ Builder and Tuner whose health requires him to leave London. Accustomed to Harmoniums and general repairs. Address, J. T. H., City News Rooms, Ludgate Circus.

AS PIANOFORTE and AMERICAN ORGAN TUNER. Well up in Sheet and General Music Trade. Two years with Messrs. Collard (abstainer). J. Thicke, Music Warehouse, Union Street, Ryde, I.W.

TUNER.—A Young Man (good TUNER) is desirous of an ENGAGEMENT, and would accept small salary. Good references. Address, S. R. D., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT in London. Five years' country experience. Formerly with Collard's. W.S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

TUNER and TONER. 20 years' experience. Can regulate, and understands American organs. Open to engagement early this month. Tuner, 176, Kilburn Lane, N.W.

TUNING CONNECTION WANTED, to PURCHASE, in or near London. Walter Brient, Stepney Green, E.

ASSISTANT REQUIRED (Lady preferred), in a First-class MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Must be well up in Catalogues, good Pianist and Saleswoman. Apply, enclosing photo, Bezan's Music Warehouse, Leamington Spa.

MUSIC SALESMAN.—WANTED, for Liverpool, a First-class ASSISTANT (age 30 to 35), well up in the Catalogues and able to play fairly well. Good salary. Preference given to one who has had experience in Piano selling. Send photo and full particulars to J. B. Cramer and Co., 26, Church Street, Liverpool.

ASSISTANT SHOPMAN WANTED, for a London firm. Must be active, civil, and obliging. Thorough knowledge of the Sheet Music Trade indispensable. Address, stating full particulars and salary required, to A. B. C., care of J. B. Cramer and Co., 201, Regent Street, W.

WANTED, a Young Man of good address, as ASSISTANT in a PROVINCIAL MUSIC WAREHOUSE, where he would be taught the Tuning and Repairing and allowed plenty of time for Piano practice. One who has a good knowledge of the sheet music preferred. Apply, stating salary required to live in house, A. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER WANTED, to take sole charge of a BRANCH BUSINESS (Pianoforte and Music Warehouse) on South Coast. Must be an excellent salesman. Only experienced men need apply. Address, Music-seller, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MUSIC TRAVELLER.—A good extra commission to one well connected. By letter, to H. J. S., 59, Endlesham Road, Balham.

PARTNERSHIP.—WANTED, a Gentleman with about £5,000 and sound practical experience, to take an active part in the Business of an old-established and First-class London PIANO MANUFACTURING CONCERN. Only principals treated with. Apply, in first instance, to W., care of A. Toovey, Esq., Solicitor, 18, Orchard Street, W.

SITUATION WANTED, as ASSISTANT, or CLERK and ASSISTANT. Thoroughly experienced. Good knowledge of catalogues, &c. Good references. B., 5, Crescent Street, Leicester.

SITUATION REQUIRED, in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE, by a Lady with several years' experience. Could manage small business. Address, P. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, SITUATION as MANAGER, in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. 25 years' experience. Would not object to travel. Highest references. Z. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by Young Lady, a SITUATION in MUSIC WAREHOUSE. 41 years' experience. F. E., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, ENGAGEMENT for respectable Youth (16), a Pianist, in Music Trade, as APPRENTICE or ASSISTANT. H. L., Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

£5 BONUS given to anyone procuring Advertiser permanent SITUATION in the SHEET MUSIC TRADE in London. 15 years' experience in publishing houses. Ergo, 7, Gerard Street, Soho.

MUSICSELLER'S SHOP FITTINGS for DISPOSAL, including large Music Rack to hold 114 papers, counter, desk, black bent wood chairs and stools, stock boxes, covers, &c. Also the whole or part of stock if desired. Any article may be purchased separately, or low price accepted for the whole. The above fittings, &c., have been removed from Fulham Branch to Walter Phillips' Pianoforte Warehouse, Putney High Street, near District or S.W. Station. At home after 6 p.m.

CHAMBER ORGAN.—For SALE, suitable for a Church, Hall, or large private House, an extremely handsome. Two-manual Chamber ORGAN, in exquisitely carved rosewood case, with brass inlaid artistic panels, the front pipes are gilt; containing eleven stops and two-and-a-half octaves of feet pedals. The following is a description of the instrument:—

GREAT ORGAN	Compass, GG to F, 59 notes.
1. Open Diapason	... CC to F, 54 pipes.
2. Stopped Diapason	... GG to F, 59 "
3. Principal	... GG, 59 "
4. Fifteenth	... GG, 59 "
5. Dulciana	... Mid. C, 30 "
7. Sesquialtra	... GG, 118 "

SWELL ORGAN. Compass, F below, Middle C to F in alt. 37 notes.

1. Trumpet	... F to F, 37 pipes.
2. Flageolet	... " 37 "
3. Stopped Diapason	... " 37 "
4. Open Diapason	... " 37 "

Four Composition Pedals.
Pedal Boards ... CC to E, 29 notes.
Swell to Great Coupler.

The Stopped Diapason Bass forms also the Bass for Dulciana. Price £120. To be seen at 27, Southampton Street, Strand. For cards to view, apply to Messrs. Farebrother, Ellis, Clark and Co., 29, Fleet Street, or to Messrs. Few and Co., 19, Surrey Street, Strand. The owner in parting with this instrument does so with regret; he is moving, and cannot find room for it in his new residence.

FOR SALE, beautiful toned CHAMBER ORGAN, in Mahogany Case, built by HILL and SONS, London. 12 stops. Two Manuals and Pedal Organ. Blown by hydraulic engine. Must be sold as the room is required for business. J. Wainwright, Ormskirke, Lancashire.

ORGAN for SALE.—A BARGAIN.—A CHAMBER or CHANCEL ORGAN. Two manuals (great), open diapason, Lieblich tube, principal (swell), dulciana, stopped diapason, pedal, bourdon (29 notes); couplers, great to pedals, swell to pedals; radiating, concave pedals, solid mahogany case. Price very reasonable. Builder, BRINDLEY, Sheffield. Apply to Y. W., The Union Society, Oxford.

ORGAN (Pipe); height 7 ft. 8 in. Ornamental mahogany case, gilt front, four through stops, composition pedals, &c. Good tone; perfect order. Suit residence or Village Church. £18, including set of pedals. 21, Watlington Road, Faddington.

ORGAN for SALE.—Two-manual, 9 stops, and couplers, full compass of bourdon pedals. Rich and powerful tone. W., 46, Allcroft Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

A SECOND-HAND CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE. Mahogany case, 6 stops; gilt front pipes. Price £10. Apply to H. Slatter, Pianoforte Warehouse, Tunbridge Wells.

ORGAN for SALE. A fine-toned Instrument. Great organ, 11 stops; swell organ, 9 stops (all of which go through to CC, except the gemshorn); pedal organ, 3 stops; six composition pedals. Full particulars on application to W. White, Music Warehouse, Grantham.

FOR SALE, Three-manual ORGAN, 21 stops; a fine-toned instrument, handsome case, richly decorated pipes, &c., &c. Apply to the London Music Publishing Company, Limited, 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

ORGAN (fine toned). Two-manual, 17 stops, pedal, open diapason. £125. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway, N.

ORGAN. 2 Manuals, 10 Stops. Bourdon, 16 ft. 30 Pedals. Case, deal, stained and varnished. Small dimensions. W. J. Haywood, 179, Drummond Street, Hampstead Rd., N.W.

ORGAN and HARMONIUM combined. Two Manuals. Pedals CC to E. Pedal Organ CC to G. Price £10. Lamb, Pianoforte Dealer, Lytham.

MR. FREDK. LUCAS,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

May be consulted, by appointment, on all matters connected with Music Businesses, the Profession, and Valuations of Musical Property. The PIANOFORTE STOCK-BOOK and TUNING REGISTER, price 5s. each; extra size, 15s. Address, 37, Warwick Street, Regent Street; late 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Academy House, 205, Oxford Street, W., MUSIC PUBLISHERS and General MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Composers' Works Revised, Engraved, and Published in the best style and at lowest charges, and afterwards offered for sale. Estimates free. Approved MSS. purchased. Private Rooms, with use of Pianos for Professors teaching use, or for practice. Lessons given by highly qualified Professors of Pianoforte, Violin, Flute, Banjo, Guitar, and all instruments; Singing, Harmony, &c. PIANOFORTES by all Makers for Sale (cash or three years system). VIOLINS (old and new), Strings, &c. Value not to be excelled. For terms, lists, &c., apply, 205, Oxford Street, W.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—I, McDOWELL, 25, Warwick St., Regent St., London, undertakes Reviewing and Publishing all Musical Works, in the best manner, on lowest terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogue on application. Parcels of Music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 79, Paternoster Row, E.C.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions. Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

CENTRAL ORGAN WORKS, Manchester, S.W.— W. E. RICHARDSON, Builder to Her Majesty.—ORGANS for Church, Practice, or School, from £35. Several New and Second-hand Organs on Sale.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists post free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

TWO-MANUAL CRAMER REED ORGAN for SALE. A great Bargain. 8 sets of reeds; 16 stops. In handsome Rosewood Case. In perfect order; nearly new. Cost 65 Guineas. Price 25 Guineas. Also a BELL PEDAL ORGAN. Cost 80 Guineas. Price £38. Mr. Stagg, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL AMERICAN ORGAN. 21 stops and swell; pedals, 30 notes; 15 sets of reeds, octave, manual, and pedal couplers; foot and side blowers. In carved and panelled walnut case, with ornamental gilt pipe top, and stool. Guaranteed in perfect order. Cost £275. For SALE, a bargain. Can be seen and tried at Mr. Stagg's, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.— IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and CO. (established 70 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guineas, 17 guineas, 20 guineas, &c.; Organs, 11 guineas, 15 guineas, 24 guineas, &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

PIANOFORTES, High-class, for the million, £10 10s. Full compass, seven octaves, warranted.—The London Music Publishing Company, Limited, Originators of the £10 10s. Pianoforte, 54, Great Marlborough Street, W. The Public are cautioned against worthless imitations of this celebrated Pianoforte.

FOR SALE (£50), a brand new PLEVEL and WOLFF Boudoir Grand PIANOFORTE. Cost £120. Owner obliged to go abroad. 170, New Bond Street, W.

SEMI-GRAND and COTTAGE PIANOFORTES (by BRINSMEAD and COLLARD and COLLARD), GOTHIC HARP and AMERICAN ORGAN, for SALE. A Bargain, for Cash, or by instalments. Can be seen in London. Write, 8, Upper North Street, Brighton.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT: THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

SESSION 1886-87.

MICHAELMAS TERM COMMENCES SEPTEMBER 28.

Students (Professional and Amateur) are received for a complete course of musical training, or for a single study. The following is a list of the subjects taught, with names of Professors:—

HARMONY.—Prof. Gordon Saunders, Mus.D., Humphrey J. Stark, Mus.B., C. W. Pearce, Mus.D., Prof. Jas. Higgs, Mus.B. COUNTER-POINT.—H. J. Stark, Mus.B., Prof. Jas. Higgs, Mus.B. C. W. Pearce, Mus.D. FORM AND ORCHESTRATION.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. MUSICAL ACOUSTICS (University Lectures).—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P. PIANOFORTE.—Prof. Bradbury Turner, Mus.B., Miss Alma Sanders, L.Mus., F. G. Cole, L.Mus., G. E. Bambridge, L.Mus., ORGAN.—W. Pinney, Mus.B., C. E. Willing, F. G. M. Ogbourne. FIGURED BASS PLAYING.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. SOLO SINGING.—A. Visetti, J. C. Beuthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel, C. E. Willing, Walter Bolton. THE ART OF PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT.—C. E. Willing, Violin.—J. T. Carrodd, L. Szczepanowski. VIOLONCELLO.—E. Woolhouse. DOUBLE BASS.—John Reynolds. FLUTE.—John Radcliff, W. L. Barrett. OBOE.—A. J. B. Dubruca, W. M. Malsch. CLARINET.—H. Lazarus. HARP.—Ernest R. Lockwood. HORN.—T. E. Mann. ORCHESTRAL CLASS.—George Mount. MUSICAL HISTORY.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. SIGHT-SINGING.—W. G. W. Goodworth, L.Mus. CHORAL CLASS.—F. G. Cole, L.Mus. VOCAL AND AURAL PHYSIOLOGY (Lectures).—C. E. Armand-Simple, B.A., M.B. VOICE PRODUCTION CLASS (Lectures).—A. Visetti.

"* Classes have also been established in General Subjects for the benefit of Students of the College.

The fee for Three Studies (e.g., Pianoforte, Singing, and Harmony) is Five Guineas per term.

New Students are received at the commencement of each term, and there are three terms in the year.

Both Male and Female Students are received, and there is no limit as to age. There are Evening as well as Day Classes.

Students of the College are allowed to enter for any of the College Examinations at reduced fees.

Prospectuses, Forms of Application, and all particulars can be obtained, post-free, by addressing the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By Order of the Academical Board.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

Published this day.

COMPOSED FOR THE GLOUCESTER FESTIVAL, 1886.

ANDROMEDA

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

The Libretto written by FREDERIC E. WEATHERLY

The Music composed and dedicated to his friend, C. LEE WILLIAMS,

BY

CHARLES HARFORD LLOYD.

Price, in paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; scarlet cloth, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Published this day.

COMPOSED FOR THE GLOUCESTER FESTIVAL, 1886.

THE GOOD SHEPHERD

AN ORATORIO

The Words selected from Holy Scripture

The Music composed by

W. S. ROCKSTRO.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Published this day.

COMPOSED FOR THE WOLVERHAMPTON FESTIVAL, 1886.

THE BRIDAL OF TRIERMAIN

A CANTATA

The words adapted from Sir WALTER SCOTT

The Music composed by

FREDERICK CORDER.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The "OTTO" Gas Engine
IS ADMIRABLY SUITABLE
FOR DRIVING ORGANS.

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.
Westminster Abbey.
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).
St. Mary's " "
Lichfield " "
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).
Salisbury Cathedral.
St. Peter's (Eaton Sq., London).
St. Mark's (Bradford).
Harrogate Baptist Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).

St. Thomas's (Oldham).
St. Andrew's (Southport).
Holy Trinity " "
Alnwick (Parish Church).
Congregational Church (Blackburn).
St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
Parish Church (Folkestone).
Eton College, and others.
Coombe Down Church.
Task Church.

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

A SERIES OF

COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN

BY

LEFÉBURE-WÉLY.

	s. d.
1. Choristers' March	3 0
2. Marche aux Flambeaux	2 0
3. Roman March	2 0
4. Grand Processional March	3 0
5. Funeral March in C minor	3 0
6. O Salutaris Hostia (Transcription)	2 0
7. Cantabile in A	2 0
8. Chœur de Voix Humaines (Andante in F)	2 0
9. Andante in B flat	2 0
10. Elevation in B flat	2 0
11. Elevation in E	2 0
12. Celebrated Capriccio in F (Transcription)	3 0

EDITED AND ARRANGED BY

ALFRED WHITTINGHAM.

LONDON: EDWIN ASHDOWN, HANOVER SQUARE.

Just published.

TWELVE SONGS

SET TO POEMS OF SHELLEY AND ROSETTI

BY

GEORGE J. BENNETT.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

I fear thy kisses ... Shelley.	When passion's trance Shelley.
To Jane	Rarely, rarely come thou ... Rosetti.
Love's Philosophy	Adieu
Music, when soft voices die	Beauty
Mutability	Sudden light
On a dead Violet	Three Shadows

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SIX DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

FREDERIC H. COWEN.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. Echoes.	No. 4. A thought of home at sea.
" 2. Cleansing Fires.	" 5. What the birds say.
" 3. Violets.	" 6. Linger, oh gentle Time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SIX DUETS

FOR

SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING,

Pianist to Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne).

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. By vale and hill	No. 4. To Daffodils
" 2. The Skylark	" 5. Twilight
" 3. Sweet content	" 6. Waiting and meeting

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1886.

FRANZ LISZT.

ON July 31 went from us the last of the eminent musicians, born within the decade 1803—1813, who by their achievements initiated and consummated a new era in music, that of neoromanticism. Of this glorious band, Mendelssohn, the link between the old and the new, was the first to shuffle off this mortal coil; Chopin, Schumann, and Berlioz followed respectively at intervals of two, seven, and thirteen years; Wagner, in 1883. None of those that preceded him to the grave left such a blank in the musical life of the world as Liszt, for none of them influenced it in so many ways and so directly—by playing, teaching, and conducting, by musical and literary composition, by personal character and social intercourse. We look about in vain for one to fill his place. Which of the prominent living musicians can flatter himself with the proud thought of being acknowledged, unanimously, or even by a small majority, the head of the musical republic? We have entered on an interregnum, a masterless and lawless time. May the coming of a heaven-appointed leader be at hand! As yet, undistracted by the heartless if comforting cry, Le roi est mort, vive le roi, we can abandon ourselves to the mournful but elevating contemplation of the life of him whom we have lost.

Franz Liszt was born at Raiding, a village in the Hungarian County of Oedenburg, in the night of October 21-22, 1811, his parents being Adam Liszt, a native of Hungary, and Anna Liszt (née Lager), a native of Austria. Had Adam Liszt been free to choose his profession, he would have become a musician. But pecuniary considerations obliged him to resist a strong natural inclination, which had been increased by opportunities of hearing at Eisenach good music and associating with clever musicians (Joseph Haydn and Nepomuk Hummel, among others), and to confine his cultivation of the art to the hours which he could spare from his labours as a clerk in one of Prince Esterhazy's offices. His promotion to the stewardship of the Prince's estates at Raiding enabled him to marry and live in material comfort. As little Franz grew up, he began to pay attention to the music he heard in the house, and at the age of six prevailed on his father by importunate entreaties to teach him the piano. There never was a pupil who learned more rapidly: his fingers showed a marvellous aptitude; his sight, hearing, and memory were extraordinary. Moreover, he pursued his musical studies with the ardour that characterised his activity almost throughout the whole of his life; so great, indeed, was this ardour that it made at this period, and it did so again at a later period, too heavy demands on his bodily frame, which was elastic rather than robust. His prima vista playing and improvisations excited much astonishment, and contributed not a little to the spreading and swelling of his reputation in the neighbourhood. A concert given at Oedenburg by a blind musician, at which Franz, now nine years of age, played Ries's E flat major Concerto and an improvisation; a second concert got up in the same town by his father; and, finally, a concert at Pressburg, decided the future of the musical prodigy. Adam Liszt was no longer in doubt about his son's vocation, and a number of Hungarian magnates, who heard the boy on the last occasion, offered to furnish the means for his education—600 florins yearly for six years.

When the exorbitant fee demanded by Hummel put his tuition out of the question, the Liszt family went to Vienna, where, after careful consideration, Charles Czerny and Antonio Salieri were chosen for Franz's teachers. The strict and methodic instruction of the former, though not at all to the taste of the young high-flier, was exactly what he needed: it laid a sound foundation of a correct technique on which afterwards anything might be reared. Salieri's teaching was, as far as it went, also good, consisting in exercises in harmonic part-writing, mostly in the form of short sacred compositions, and in reading and analysing classical scores. Of the result of his studies under these masters Franz gave proof to the public of Vienna at a concert on December 1, 1822. A correspondent of the Allgemeine musikalische Zeitung reported that the young virtuoso transported the audience with admiration; that he executed Hummel's A minor Concerto not only with incredible vigour, but also with feeling, expression, and delicate shading; and that the free fantasia (more of the nature of a capriccio) on several themes (Andante from Beethoven's A major Symphony, a Cavatina of Rossini's, &c.) was very clever. Besides taking part in concerts given by others, he gave a second one himself, at which he performed Hummel's B minor Concerto and again a free fantasia. On this occasion (April 13, 1823) took place an often-described and truly memorable incident—Beethoven, who honoured the concert with his presence, ascending the platform at the end of the improvisation and kissing the boy.

After eighteen months' tuition by the above-mentioned masters, Franz was taken by his parents to Paris, to continue his studies there, at the Conservatoire. But their hopes were dashed by the Rhadamanthine Cherubini, who, deaf to their entreaties and blind to the powerful recommendations they brought with them, immovably opposed to their wishes the regulations of the institution, which forbade the admission of foreigners. As regards the piano, Franz was now left to himself, whilst Paër became his teacher in composition. Subsequently (in 1826) Reicha undertook his instruction in counterpoint. How childlike Franz still was at the time he came to Paris may be gathered from the following anecdote. He had been playing to the Duke of Orleans and his family. The Duke, delighted with the boy's performances, asked him to say what he wished as a present. Our admired virtuoso was not slow in making his choice, but at once begged for the pulcinello with which the little Prince of Joinville was amusing himself. Already a favourite in the Parisian salons, he made his first public appearance on March 8, 1824, and had as unmistakable a success as at Vienna, Munich, Stuttgart, and Strassburg, through which he passed on his way to the French capital, and where he was greeted as a second Mozart. In the same year he visited England, giving his first Concert on June 21, 1824. In 1825 he paid a second visit to England, and in 1827 a third. Between these visits to England he made two concert tours in the French provinces; and on October 17, 1825, there was produced, at the Académie Royale de Musique, a dramatic composition from his pen, entitled "Don Sanche ou le Château d'Amour, opéra-féerie en un acte," the libretto of which was by Théaulon and De Rancé. The work, which was only three times performed, seems to have found a good reception, perhaps attributable more to the interest the public took in the artist than to the merit of the music. But nothing certain can be said on this head—the little opera perished some years ago in a fire, and the surviving criticisms are contradictory and untrustworthy.

The young musician had composed by this time a good deal for orchestra and chorus as well as for piano. Most of these compositions, however, remained in manuscript, and are now lost; and the two that were printed and are still in existence (an Impromptu on themes by Rossini and Spontini, and the "Etudes en douze Exercices," Op. 1) show that his individuality was as yet undeveloped.* The development of the man and artist began at the period of his life we have now reached. It was a misfortune for the youth that his father died (at Boulogne, on August 28, 1827) at this critical juncture. Not that the latter would have been to him an adequate guide and philosopher in all things, but he might have been to him at least a moral stay. Franz's general education had been neglected, and up to this time his reading had been almost entirely confined to religious books. Now a craving for knowledge and light made itself more and more strongly felt.

Miss Ramann* says truly that "René's words, un instinct secret me tourmente, became Liszt's motto for his own, as yet understood, inner life, but also the watchword for contradictions, world-weariness (Weltschmerz), and religious doubt." Music, too, no longer satisfied him. His mother told Lenz, in 1828, that her Franz was little at home, being always at church, and did not occupy himself at all with music. A more trustworthy informant than Lenz is Liszt himself, who, in the second letter of a Bachelor of Music, addressed to George Sand, reveals much of his aspirations and soul-struggles. "When death had robbed me of my father, and I had returned to Paris alone, and began to have a presentiment of what art might be and what artists ought to be, I was oppressed by the impossibilities which on all sides opposed themselves to the course which my thought had marked out. Moreover, meeting nowhere with a sympathetic word from congenial spirits—not among men of the world, still less among artists, who doze on in easy indifference, who knew nothing of me and the aims I had proposed to myself, nothing of the capacities with which I had been endowed—I conceived a bitter disgust for the art as I saw it before me: degraded to a more or less lucrative trade, moulded into a source of entertainment of the fashionable society. I would have been anything in the world rather than a musician in the pay of great gentlemen, patronised and paid by them like a conjuror, or like the clever dog Munito." In the same letter Liszt relates that at this time he passed through a two-years' illness, during which he sought to satisfy the violent need of his faith and devotion in the serious exercises of Catholicism. "I bowed my forehead over the humid steps of Saint Vincent-de-Paul. I made my heart bleed, my thoughts prostrate themselves. . . . Resignation of all that is earthly was the sole lever, the sole word of my life." Indeed, had it not been for the entreaties of his mother, to which he gave way now, as he had done some years before to the advice of his father, Liszt would have entered the priesthood. The "thin, pale-looking young man with indescribably attractive features" whom Lenz found in 1828 lying on a sofa, surrounded by three pianos, profoundly meditative, lost in himself, and smoking a long Turkish pipe, was delivered out of the slough of despond in which he had for years been struggling by the July revolution of 1830. C'est le canon qui l'a guéri, his mother used to say.

Liszt was a man liberally endowed both with intellectual and emotional, both with spiritual and sensual capacities. Now imagine a passionate nature of this kind let loose without a mentor in the mazes of literature and society, especially a literature and society in many respects so unhealthy as those which began to flourish in Paris in the second decade of this century. Was it a wonder that one so ill-prepared to cope with the dangers to be encountered there should jump from one extreme to another, be misled by the moral and philosophical lights of the day, and occasionally give the reins to his passions? Liszt had become an omnivorous reader. He explored the heights and depths of literature. He plodded over the stony roads and wayless wildernesses of science, history, and philosophy, and loitered on the flowery paths of poetry and romance. Chateaubriand was probably the first author (excepting devotional writers) who made a deep impression upon him. "René" (the detached episode of this author's "Le Génie du Christianisme"), which has been called the French Werther, held him for a long time enthralled. Lamartine and Victor Hugo exercised a lasting influence over him, a fact which declares itself openly in his musical works: that of the former in the "Harmonies poétiques et religieuses" and "Les Préludes," that of the latter in "Mazeppa" and "Ce qu'on entend sur la Montagne." With these two poets Liszt, who had more or less intercourse with almost all the distinguished authors and artists living at Paris, was also personally acquainted. George Sand became a most intimate friend of his. Very characteristic of the man is the interest with which he studied and the enthusiasm with which he to a great extent adopted the socialistic, religious, philosophical, socio-religious, and sociophilosophical systems of his time, as set forth, for instance, in Saint-Simon's "Nouveau Christianisme," Ballanche's "Essai sur les institutions sociales," Fourier's "Traité de l'association domestique-agricole," and Lamennais' "Paroles d'un croyant." George Sand speaks in one of her letters of Liszt as "the pupil of Ballanche, Rodrigues, and Sénancour." Olinde Rodrigues was a disciple of Saint-Simon, Sénancour the author of "Obermann," a psychological romance in letters, of which we now and then read in Liszt's literary writings. But let us see what Heine has to say of Liszt, with whom he was personally acquainted. "He is a man of a distorted (verschrobener) but noble character, unselfish and without guile. His intellectual tendencies are very remarkable. He has great talent for speculation, and, more even than by the concerns of his art, he is interested by the investigations of the different schools which occupy themselves with the solution of the great problem comprehending heaven and earth. He was long enamoured of the beautiful Saint-Simonian view of the world, subsequently the spiritualistic, or rather vaporous, thoughts of Ballanche befogged him, now he raves about the republico-catholic doctrines of Lamennais, who has planted a Jacobin cap on the cross . . . Heaven knows in what intellectual stable he will find his next hobby. This indefatigable thirsting for light and godhead remains nevertheless praiseworthy; it testifies to his sense of the holy, the religious."

* In connection with the Etudes, Op. 1, see E. Dannreuther's interesting articles ("Liszt's Pianoforte Works") in The Musical Review (1883).

* To whose "Franz Liszt" I am largely indebted for my facts and dates.

A year after the political revolution in France there occurred an event which brought about an artistic revolution in Liszt. This event was the appearance of Paganini in Paris. The wonderful performances of this virtuoso revealed to Liszt new possibilities and new ideals. He now began to form that pianoforte style which incorporated as it were the excellences of all the other instruments, individually and collectively. Liszt himself called the process "the orchestration of the pianoforte." But before this transformation could be consummated other influences had to be brought to bear on the architect. The influence of Chopin, who appeared in Paris soon after Paganini, must have been great, but was too subtle and partial to be easily gauged. It is different with Berlioz, whose influence on Liszt was palpable and general, affecting every branch of the art-practice of the latter. Heine's words, "Liszt is the nearest in elective affinity to (der nächste Wahlverwandte von) Berlioz," are significant. And Thalberg, the great rival of Liszt? Fétis stultified himself in 1837 by saying in an article, instigated (this may be said in his excuse) by an unfair criticism of some compositions of Thalberg's by Liszt, that the former was the homme transcendant of a new school, but the latter the homme transcendant of an effete school, one qui n'a plus rien à faire. Nobody needs to be told in our day that Liszt was the first of a new and vital school, and not the last of an effete one. When Thalberg came to the front Liszt's style was in the main formed. Thalberg did only one thing for Liszt, he stimulated him to exert his powers to the utmost.

Liszt, when at the zenith of his virtuosity, "exercised a charm bordering on the fabulous." I quote from a report of Heine's, dated April 4, 1841. "Beside him all pianists dwindle—with the exception of one, Chopin, the Raphael of the piano. Indeed, with the exception of this one, all other pianists whom we heard this year at innumerable concerts are just mere pianists—they shine by the dexterity with which they handle the stringed wood. With Liszt, on the other hand, one thinks no longer of difficulties overcome; the piano disappears, and music reveals itself. In this respect Liszt has, since we heard him last, made the most wonderful progress. With this superiority he combines a repose which we formerly missed in him. When, for instance, he then played a thunderstorm on the piano, we saw the lightning flash over his face, his limbs shaken by the storm, and his long locks of hair dripping, as it were, from the heavy shower represented. But when he plays now even the most violent thunderstorm he rises above it, like the traveller who stands on the top of a mountain, whilst the storm rages below; the clouds lie deep below him, the lightning winds like serpents at his feet, and, smiling, he lifts up his head into the pure ether." Mendelssohn thought Thalberg a more perfect virtuoso than Liszt, being gratified in his playing by the congenial qualities of repose, self-restraint, and exquisiteness. But he said of Liszt that he was a good, hearty fellow at bottom, and an excellent artist. "Liszt possesses a certain flexibility and diversity of the fingers and an out and out musical feeling which is not likely to have anywhere its equal. In one word, I have not seen any musician in whom musical feeling ran, as in Liszt, into the very tips of the fingers and there streamed out immediately." Schumann did not know how to express all he felt. "How extraordinarily he plays, and how daringly and madly, and again how tenderly and airily—that I have never heard before! . . . Liszt appears to me every day mightier; to-day he has again played in such a manner that we all trembled and jubilated." The impression which Liszt made in France, Germany, Italy, Russia, and wherever he played, was inexplicable to all who experienced it, incredible to all who did not come within the magician's circle. Heine, reporting in 1844 the unheard-of furor excited in Paris by the great agitator, the again-risen rat-catcher of Hamelin, the new Faust, the modern Amphion and Homer, Attila, God's scourge of Erard's pianos, wondered what the cause of this phenomenon could be. "The solution of this question belongs perhaps rather to pathology than to æsthetics. A physician, whose speciality is women's diseases, and whom I questioned on the fascination which Liszt exercises on his public, smiled very strangely, and at the same time spoke of magnetism, galvanism, and electricity, of contagion in a sultry hall, filled with innumerable wax lights and some hundred perfumed and perspiring people, of histrionic epilepsy, of the phenomenon of tickling, of musical cantharides, and other unmentionable matters, which, I think, have to do with the mysteries of the bona dea; the solution of the question, however, does not lie perhaps so strangely deep, but on a very prosaic surface. I am sometimes inclined to think that the whole witchery might be explained thus—namely, that nobody in this world knows so well how to organise his successes, or rather their mise en scène, as Franz Liszt. In this art he is a genius, a Philadelphia, a Bosco, a Houdin, yea, a Meyerbeer. The most distinguished persons serve him gratis as compères, and his hired enthusiasts are drilled in an exemplary way." Heine is not often wholly in earnest, and certainly was not when he wrote this paragraph. Whatever there may be of truth in the insinuation, mise en scène, however elaborate and ingenious, cannot explain the extraordinary enthusiasm Liszt excited. Moreover, Liszt made the same impression where such a mise en scène was impossible. I remind the reader only of the expressions of astonishment and admiration by Mendelssohn and Schumann; of the testimonies of thousands of others,* who with equal delight heard him in private without the surroundings and trickeries which no doubt often heighten the effect of public performances; and of the confirmed sceptics in this country who a few months ago were converted by the septuagenary artist into devout believers. Heine indicates the real cause of the phenomenon more correctly in the original reading of one of the above sentences, where he speaks of "the electrical effect of a dæmonic nature on a closely-packed crowd, the contagious power of ecstasy, and perhaps the magnetism of music itself, the spiritualistic malady of the time, which vibrates in almost all of us," and adds, "these phenomena have never confronted me so distinctly and alarmingly as at Liszt's concert." Yes, it was the dæmonic nature of Liszt which gave him the marvellous power over his fellow-men. The dæmonic, however, is, as Goethe remarked, not analysable by reason and judgment. The Greeks would have numbered a being thus endowed with the demi-gods. We moderns fall back upon the miserable make-shift appellation, "a man of genius," one of the most abused phrases imaginable.

Well, this unique virtuoso gave up in the fullness of his strength, at the height of his popularity, his glorious career, and retired in 1849 to the quiet town of Weimar, to devote himself to the pursuit of higher ideals. His activity there was manifold, comprehending musical and literary composition, conducting, and teaching. He gathered around him a numerous band of talented and aspiring disciples; brought to a hearing remarkable works which elsewhere found no acceptance (for instance, Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini"); sent forth into the world books and essays interpretative of men and things insufficiently or not at all understood ("Frédéric Chopin"; "Des Bohémiens et de leur Musique"; "Lohengrin et Tannhäuser de Richard Wagner"; "Berlioz and his Harold-Symphony"; "Robert Franz"; "Wagner's Rheingold," &c.); and last, but not least, created a long series of musical works of high aim and original conception.

Before his retirement to Weimar Liszt had composed much, but the great bulk of his writings consisted of transcriptions and fantasias and other virtuosic music. All his grand orchestral and vocal works—his symphonic poems, oratorios, and masses—are the outcome of the second half of his life. It is now time that I should speak of Liszt as a composer. Mendelssohn thought in 1840 that nature had, at least up to that time, denied Liszt original ideas. The more sympathetic Schumann was already in the preceding year convinced that Liszt, with his eminent musical nature, would have become a notable composer if he had given to composition and himself the time which he had devoted to the piano and other masters. Did Liszt become a truly great composer when he devoted more time to composition and himself than to the piano and other masters? His superiority as a pianist, and also as a transcriber and arranger of other men's thoughts, has almost always been universally acknowledged, certainly it is so now; his position as a composer, on the other hand, remains even to-day an open question. One of the obstacles in the way of justice being done to him is his many-sidedness. Had he been only a pianist, only a transcriber, only a song composer, only a writer of symphonic poems, only an author of sacred music, or only a littérateur, people would have known what to think of him. But the multiplicity of his claims to fame have had the effect of obscuring it. To make matters worse, he displays in each of these classes of composition as much diversity as there is between these classes themselves. And there is not only diversity, but also inequality. A Faust in curiosity as well as in aspiration, prompted by the suggestions of an ever active mind, Liszt loved to make experiments, and to abandon himself to the caprices of the moment. Hence it is not surprising that if anyone wishes to demonstrate the master's want of melody, harshness of harmony, obscurity, diffuseness, eccentricity, &c., he can find examples to prove each and all of these faults. But this does not settle the question whether Liszt is a great composer. He undoubtedly possessed creativeness, although the constitution of his creativeness differed from that of Haydn, Mozart, and Schubert by the presence of less naïveté and more reflectiveness and esprit (a word which does not express, but only suggests, my meaning. "Ingenuity" would be equally inadequate). There are, however, among his compositions not a few wherein also naïveté manifests itself in its highest potency. By many the contents of Liszt's musical works are not comprehended, perhaps not comprehensible. But this is so because his uncommon personality is not comprehensible, or not comprehended by them. Next to an intimate acquaintance with his life and character, the reading of his literary works will, in this case, be the best remedy. For they reveal unmistakably the nature of the writer—his spiritual aspirations and sensuous appreciations, his delicate feeling and fierce passion, his chivalrous disposition, gorgeous imagination, wide sympathy, power of assimilation, &c. In passing I will yet say that Liszt's literary style may be characterised as poetic prose, its qualities being rather pictorial and musical than strictly literary. The objection made to programme-music seems to me to rest on a misconception of what it aims at. The same seems to me the case with the charge of formlessness. I admit that Liszt's form is sometimes wanting in perspicuity and beauty of proportion, but what is called formlessness is only divergence from the old established forms. Lobe, by no means a disparager of the classics, remarks pertinently that "if the real nature of form consists in being a harmonious, musically logical—i.e., thematically-constructed—organism, Liszt's works are as correct in form as the last quartets of Beethoven, which, to be sure, had formerly the same fault attributed to them." A very considerable reduction has to be made—and time alone can make it—till we have reached the remainder of Liszt's piano, orchestral, and vocal works that will live. But this remainder, I firmly believe, will greatly surpass in value the legacy which Berlioz has left us, and be to the musical world things of beauty and joys for ever. Liszt, speaking to me some years ago of Walter Bache's endeavour to popularise his works in England, said it was a pity that his dear friend and pupil had undertaken so hopeless a job. I think the master was mistaken—the job is not hopeless. Indeed, the time seems to me at hand when the prejudices, originated by envy, malice, ignorance, and indolence, will disappear, and the composer receive the tribute of attention and applause due to him.

* See, for instance, George Eliot's remarks in her Diary of 1854, "Life of George Eliot," by J. W. Cross).

It is, of course, impossible to discuss in the narrow space of an article all the phases of so rich an individuality, all the incidents of so active a life. There are, however, one or two subjects on which I must say a few words. To Liszt's ten years' connection with the Countess d'Agoult, in literature known as Daniel Stern, who in 1835, at the age of twenty-nine, six years after her marriage, left husband and family (two children, a third had shortly before died), I can only allude. Out of this connection came three children—a son who died young, and two daughters, Blanche, who died as the wife of the French statesman Ollivier, and Cosima, who became first the wife of Hans von Bülow and then of Richard Wagner. Liszt is said to have offered to marry the Countess, but to have received the answer: "Madame la Comtesse d'Agoult ne sera jamais Madame Liszt." Before judging Liszt, readers would do well to read Miss Ramann's account, which, however, represents the affair in a light unfairly favourable to him. At least so it appears to me, and I am not prepossessed in favour of the Countess, to all appearance a woman as vain, capricious, and haughty as she was beautiful. The other event in Liszt's life which gave rise to a great deal of gossip and comment, indeed, made quite a sensation, was his entering the priesthood.* To the readers of this article the step will not appear in any way extraordinary. Liszt was from his earliest childhood inclined to devotion, and had always a tendency to religious mysticism. "That Liszt became a priest," writes Lenz, "lay in the innermost kernel of his nature. It was thematic. Liszt, the man of the world, is an episode of the theme. Only to the priest are open the entrances of the infinite, the natural home of the mind. Priest is the sequence of prophet, and a prophet Liszt was always, from the beginning of his career."

Liszt was one of the most interesting and noblest characters the world has ever seen. His wide culture and great experience of the world, combined with the consciousness of his natural powers, gave him a wonderful self-possession, which enabled him to feel equally at ease in the society of a prince and in that of a beggar. This self-possession has often been misunderstood, being confounded with assumption of superiority. Although capable of withering scorn, and rather addicted to irony in its different forms, Liszt was at bottom, as Mendelssohn remarked, "a good, hearty fellow." He could be as playful as a child. I remember a quartet party at his house in Weimar in 1878. He was bubbling over with fun. At last he sat down beside me, and, slapping my knee, exclaimed, "Now you see what sort of a fellow I am." George Eliot says in her diary (1854), "Liszt's conversation is charming. I never met with a person whose manner of telling a story was so piquant. . . . Liszt's replies were always felicitous and characteristic." The fundamental note of Liszt's character was love. His sympathy knew no bounds, it was a sympathy unto self-abnegation. Instead of producing works for his own glory, he wrote pamphlets and essays to help others to obtain recognition. Ask his pupils—from whom he received no fees—what they think of him? Though he had earned millions he had, in the last years of his life, just enough to live comfortably. Few monarchs have been so magnificent in their charity as he. One of his last acts and sayings deserve to be recorded. Shortly before his death a pupil of his had written to him and asked, as many others had done before him, for pecuniary assistance. This came into his mind in one of his lucid moments, and he requested Madame Wagner to send a sum of money to the applicant. She replied it should be done shortly. Liszt hereupon said: "No, not shortly, send it at once; the man is in want."

It must be a great satisfaction to the people of England that among them Liszt closed his artistic career, and that he spoke to everybody of the great pleasure which his visit had given him. Another circumstance which will interest Englishmen is that the last notes which Liszt put upon paper were a few lines (alas! only a few lines) of a fantasia on subjects from Mackenzie's "Troubadour," which the master had volunteered to write when he was in London.

Enough! Liszt has lived a noble life. It is for us to honour his memory. FR. NIECKS.

* To be more exact, Liszt, as one authority states, had received the minor orders with the title of Abbé. Another informant tells me Liszt's status was that of a deacon, which, I think, is one of the ordines majores.

DR. HANSLICK ON MUSIC IN ENGLAND.

THIS is a world of disappointments. Let the most fortunate amongst us build a cairn at every spot along life's road where an illusion has been dispelled, and the memorials will be more numerous than milestones. An experienced man at last begins to distrust everything; he turns cynical, and, assuming the hollowness of all that looks solid, regards the great globe itself as but a magnified specimen of Dead Sea fruit. Gentle reader, patience! We have not rashly opened with a jeremiad. Sooth to say, we have found out another deception, and a painful one. Another bubble has burst, another fair-seeming Apple of Sodom turned to dust, another structure, all beautiful without, is proved to contain dead men's bones and corruption. But let us drop figures and take up facts.

Very few people were aware that Dr. Edward Hanslick, the famous musical critic of the Vienna Neue Freie Presse, intended to honour England with a visit during the season of 1886. Certainly the present writer was not so informed, or, otherwise, he would have indulged in roselike anticipations based upon the accepted character of the coming man. Edward Hanslick lives a great way off, he contributes to a journal rarely met with in this benighted isle, and uses a language the niceties of which are, to say the least, not the common property of Englishmen. Yet, somehow or other, those Englishmen who, in their vanity think themselves musical, long ago became conscious of an impression that Edward Hanslick appertains to a superior order of critics. They may not have been able, perhaps, to assign any very clear reason for the faith that was in them, but there, unquestionably, the conviction was, growing and growing as time went on, till, at last, men turned their ears towards Vienna through force of habit, listening for a voice that carried the weight of an oracle. From this it is easy to imagine what sort of anticipations might have been stirred up by news that the occupant of the Vienna tripod had actually set out for England. Reduced to words, they would, probably, have taken shape somewhat as follows:—

"The coming man is a critic of serious purpose, who subordinates all considerations to the furtherance of his art in its highest forms. He has keen insight, strengthened by long experience. He is above prejudices, and possesses the courage of his opinions. He will examine our state in music, weigh our claims to take rank among musical peoples, and give a judicial deliverance, to be accepted as the highest outcome of profound observation, trained reason, and unbending impartiality. At last we shall have amongst us the really intelligent foreigner. A fig for Max O'Rell, Félix Rémo, and such farceurs, who are more careful to raise a laugh than record a fact. They are nothing, and less than nothing, now that the grave, patient truth-seeker, and truth-teller, is at hand."

Well, Edward Hanslick came, looked about him, and went away again. The oracle has spoken, and the judgment lies before us, in such black and white as the publishing resources of the Neue Freie Presse allow. What is it? Exaltation or abasement? Alas, reader, for our common patriotism! for our mutual hopes! for our honest, if mistaken, pride! Let us rend our garments, and fling dust and ashes upon our heads. In other words, it is "all up." We are musically impotent, and there is no artistic health in us. Before the cold, hard, Hanslickian light away go our fond dreams of progress and achievement. We awake to reality, and find that we have been living in a "fool's paradise." Truly, the disappointment is hard to bear! And to think that it should come just at a moment when we deemed ourselves justified in looking around with complacency, like a good village housewife who, having swept and garnished her cottage, proudly awaits the visit and criticism of Mrs. Rector. Reader, let us comfort one another in our affliction.

... What is that you say? Examine the judgment, and see if it be worth the paper on which it is written! Call in question the bond fides, the scrupulous impartiality, the carefully-formed opinions of Edward Hanslick! How truly want of faith is shaking the foundations of the world! Yet, after all, we may be mistaken in our oracle. Perhaps he is no oracle, but only a mundane voice uttering words inspired by very common-place prejudices, and made still more valueless by that dangerous thing—a little knowledge. The thought flings a ray of light upon the situation, and we will follow it up hopefully, for, mark you, how full is history of false judgments uttered by strong men in moments of weakness, or by feeble men who have raised themselves to the chair of authority under false pretences. Even Homer sometimes nods. That being the case, a Hanslick may possibly sleep and dream.

We take up the Neue Freie Presse and come upon that which, being translated, reads as follows in a notice of one of our Philharmonic Society's Concerts:—

"If Sterndale Bennett was a slack and unenergetic conductor, Sir Arthur Sullivan, his successor, is altogether a drowsy fellow. That large close-cropped head on a firm neck, that dark face with its black eyes, give one an impression of a passionate man whose anger might explode suddenly like a cannon. Instead of this we have unequalled phlegm. The G minor Symphony of Mozart is performed. Sullivan conducts it without lifting his eyes from the full score—just as though he saw it for the first time. The heavenly piece is played badly, without feeling or elegance. It ends, and the public applaud enthusiastically and continuously, but Sullivan does not think of turning round to the audience. He remains unmoved in his arm chair, and awaits the second piece—Beethoven's Violin Concerto, played by Ondricek. Sullivan conducts it with his usual phlegm, and all the time looks at the score. Then he again remains in his beloved arm chair, until Christine Nilsson appears to sing 'Ah, perfido!' The Philharmonic seemed to me to deserve no more praise to-day under his command than it did twenty-four years ago."

We read on with growing pleasure and note the following:—

"The Albert Hall orchestra is conducted by a pedantic gentleman, with grey whiskers, black coat, and white tie—Mr. Cusins. He looks exactly like an English clergyman, and conducts also very piously. That two of the most effective orchestral pieces in existence—the Overture to 'Oberon' and Liszt's first Hungarian Rhapsody—are ineffective is not the fault of the Rev. Mr. Cusins, but of the immense hall, in which the tones are lost and powerless."

Again, with even more and more positive relief, we read:—

"There are singers here who sing as long as Patti without being such a wonder of preservation. Take, for instance, the tenor, Sims Reeves. When I heard him in 1862 I was told that, although no longer having a voice, he still sang very well. One can easily imagine what this voice is like after another twenty-four years. Nevertheless, Sims Reeves still coos at fashionable Concerts, and the doing so seems to give him much pleasure as well as plenty of money."

At this point we breathe with absolute freedom. The weight of Hanslickian judgment is no longer upon us, and it was well indeed that we did not sink despairingly under it at the outset. What has come to the grave Vienna oracle? History says of Nero that he was jealous even of the gladiators who fought and conquered in his arena, and we know that our own George IV. strove much more to out-dress Beau Brummel than to direct the ship of state. Can it be that, in like manner, the great Edward Hanslick burns to distinguish himself above the O'Rells, the Rémos, and all and sundry the tittle-tattlers who dress up paragraphs to raise a laugh among flippant readers? With infinite regret we feel bound to believe that this is the case, though we no more recognise our Hanslick than we should the natural features of a clod-hopper who is successfully grinning through a horse collar for a prize. Go over the extracts again, O patient reader, and mark how, to obtain a smile from the idle and the foolish, the writer stops at no miserable and, to himself, degrading personality. But in doing this he is even less an object of grieved compassion than when, with the same exalted end in view, he misrepresents things closely connected with the nature or the practice of his art. Take his remarks upon Sir Arthur Sullivan's conducting. Dr. Hanslick knows perfectly well that the fashion in which an orchestral chief directs his forces matters no more, provided the result be satisfactory, than does the colour of his whiskers or his tie. He may sit down or stand up; he may gesticulate wildly or be content with the minimum of motion; he may fix his eyes on the score or roll them about the orchestra in the finest of phrenzies. The man is free to adopt his own methods which, whatever they are, success justifies or, taking the most extravagant case, condones. But our Viennese mentor devotes two lines to the performance and twenty to the conductor's manner, or none to the performance and all to the conductor's personal outfit. The performance under Sullivan was bad, we are told, and are left to infer that if he had got out of his arm chair, taken his eyes from the book, and shaken off his phlegm it might have been better. Was it bad? That is a matter of opinion as to which Dr. Hanslick confesses himself in a minority of one—a minority of one in an audience of 2,000 amateurs able to compare Sullivan's orchestra with that of a conductor—Hans Richter—whose standard the Viennese critic will not seek to depreciate.

Dr. Hanslick may retort that the audience was made up of English people bent upon a "patriotic demonstration," and, in these very papers, he tells his readers that "the patriotic pride of the English honours and rewards native productions the most"; intimating also that, a native and a foreigner being equal, the English press will certainly proclaim the praise of the first in higher tones. So little good music is produced by foreigners now that few opportunities of testing this point are afforded, though we may fitly refer our critic to his friend Antonin Dvořák for further information. But, assuming that we do favour our own countrymen, Dr. Hanslick is certainly not the man who should cast stones at us—as will soon more fully appear—nor ought he to complain if it be true that, while the general public are impartial, "a certain opposition against the progress of the foreign element has lately arisen in books and newspapers." "The critics," writes Dr. Hanslick, "complain of the invasion of foreign, and especially German, musicians." Here, as in other instances, he has got hold of only half the truth, for the complaint is not so much against the actual coming of the Germans—which might be expected in the absence of an import duty on the article—as against the peculiar methods by which, when here, they operate to the detriment of native artists.

We have pointed out, and now re-assert, that Dr. Hanslick's judgment upon music in England is completely vitiated by a deplorable flippancy utterly foreign to our previous conception of his character. No doubt they have a "silly season" in Vienna, but we cannot take a man gravely who panders to its taste. It is, however, possible to frame some excuse for his conduct. We have lately read a good deal concerning the indiscreet actions of "an old man in a hurry." It appears to us that an old man on a holiday may much more legitimately ask pardon for "going it," especially when he comes amongst a people whose temperament, manners, and modes of thought are entirely at variance with his own. Under such circumstances the holiday-maker, if not the philosopher, is sorely tempted to run about, notebook in hand, seeking things pour rire. But unfortunately Dr. Hanslick did not visit us armed only with the unscrupulous pen of a superficial satirist. He came wearing the impenetrable mail of German self-conceit—a quality as strong, in its way, as the Chinaman's assurance that his kingdom is "Celestial" and all others are not only mundane but barbaric. How well we know the toughness of this material! A surgical operation is proverbially necessary in order to make a Scot perceive a joke, but no imaginable process could convince a German that his countrymen, collectively and individually, are not far beyond any other people under the sun. This state of mind despises even the evidence of plain facts, and is so firmly ingrained that the most discordant German street band knocks at London doors with the confidence of men who believe that they have conferred an inestimable boon upon the neighbourhood, whereas, in point of fact, the neighbourhood looks about for a policeman. The professed critic of a cosmopolitan art should be superior to vulgar national prejudices, but Dr. Hanslick evidently is nothing of the kind, nor is he above asserting such prejudices at inopportune and offensive moments. Hence his articles on music in England are largely taken up by screeds about Teutonic supremacy. So much is this the case that, but for the seeming impossibility of such a thing, we should picture the writer as in doubt, and trying to hide it behind immoderate assertion. Richter, of course, forms our late visitor's trump card. The Viennese conductor looms large in the eyes of the Viennese critic, and enthusiasm on his behalf leads, apparently, to the mental confusion which cannot distinguish fact from fiction. Hence, when Dr. Hanslick declares that classical music has never been so perfectly heard in England as under Richter, and that Richter first made Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and Mass in D intelligible to the English, we pity him as a willing victim of misleading information, and we brand his second-hand statements as absolutely untrue. Some unscrupulous humorist, falling in with the Doctor's own mood, must have served him as Alfred Jingle, Esq., served the unsuspecting President of the Pickwick Club. "Never take 'em out of the shafts, sir!" said Mr. Jingle, in re the London cab horses, "fall down, if they did!—eat there!—sleep there!—die there!—true, 'pon honour." "Indeed!" exclaimed his guileless interlocutor, and made a note of the information. "Sir," said Dr. Hanslick's wicked informant, "Richter produced both the Symphony, No. 1, and the 'Spectre's Bride' of Dvořák for the first time in England," whereupon the poor, misguided gentleman accepted the statement as a proof of English indebtedness to Teutonic enterprise. This was altogether too bad, and, if we knew the wag's name, it should be held up to deserved opprobrium.

Here let us offer another extract from the Neue Freie Presse:—

"I have already mentioned that, besides Richter, two Germans—Halle and Manns—are considered the best conductors in London. Is it likely that they would be entrusted with important orchestral Concerts if the English conductors were more, or even equally, competent? Would the Cologne Heckmann Quartet be engaged every year if four Englishmen could show as much excellence? The same may be said of the German pianoforte teachers in London—Ernst Pauer, Wilhelm Ganz, Wilhelm Kuhe; of the German impresario, Karl Rosa; of the German musical critic of the almighty Times, Franz Hueffer."

There are points in this extract which inevitably cause a smile of amusement, but we shall leave it without remark, for the sake of estimable men who have become as English as the English, and certainly do not wish to be forced into comparison with their adopted countrymen. But how can we pass over the spirit animating Dr. Hanslick's observations? How can we fail to stigmatise as unworthy a course which made his experience in England the basis of an appeal to national prejudice, and an opportunity for offering upon the altar of national vanity? Behaviour of this kind cuts two ways. Dr. Hanslick could have employed no means more certain to heighten the unpopularity of German musicians in this country. They come here with almost as great an assurance of generous treatment as do German princes, and enjoy advantages often denied to our own people. But the upshot is that critics like Hanslick turn the good fortune of their countrymen into occasion for pouring scorn upon the community that has given them a welcome. Never was a clearer occasion for the prayer, "Save us from our friends."

Dr. Hanslick's articles pass over a good deal that it was, perhaps, convenient for him not to see, but he could not altogether ignore our composers, some of whom he graciously characterises as "amiable, distinguished, and well-educated." Indeed, their politeness is in excess of that exercised by their German brethren—which might easily be. All the same, we regard the compliment with pleasure. Mr. Cowen and Mr. Stanford have, it appears, written music showing "moderate originality, a good school, taste in tone-picturing, and great ability in orchestration"—qualities none the less easily discerned because their possessors "assisted me in a very sympathetic manner." Mr. Mackenzie is less favourably treated; partly, perhaps, because he is the most formidable, partly because of the measure in which his operative works embody the teachings of Richard Wagner. It was our purpose at the outset to cite passages from Dr. Hanslick's criticism of the "Troubadour," and discuss them. But now we are tempted to ask—cui bono? It is difficult to take this writer seriously, and we are very sure that no sensible person among his readers will think the worse of anybody he assails. Englishmen know far more of Mr. Mackenzie's powers than does Dr. Hanslick, and the same may be said of their musical position. While fully conscious of defects to be made good, they are content with the promise of both. One thing, however, they do regret, and that is the descent of Dr. Hanslick from a position of influence and authority to the level of flippant criticism, prejudiced opinion, and ill-manners.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XVIII.—SCHUBERT (concluded from page 461).

THE story of Schubert's life has now been almost told. There remains but to record the incidents of his last days.

In August, 1827, the master, who had been lodging for some time with his old friend, Schober, went to live with his brother, Ferdinand, in a new house, now known as 6, Kettenbrücken Gasse. Sir George Grove describes it as a "long house, with three rows of nine windows in front, a brown sloping tiled roof, an entry in the middle to a quadrangle behind; a quiet, clean, inoffensive place." Kreissle appears to think that the removal was injudicious, and says, "The house which the brothers occupied had, unfortunately, been recently built," but beyond this vague intimation of mischief, there is no evidence that Schubert suffered in health through the dampness of a just-finished dwelling. On the other hand, we know that the change of quarters was approved by the composer's physician, who anticipated good effects from nearness to the country, and consequent facilities for obtaining fresh air and exercise. But the change worked no benefit. Schubert's liability to cerebral congestion and attacks of giddiness rather increased than diminished; and, indeed, his condition was such as caused serious uneasiness. By October he had improved somewhat; the result, perhaps, of greater personal carefulness. There are some men who never give their constitution a chance till frightened into it, and Schubert, now that he felt his health gravely threatened, began to take the precautions which should have been put in force long before. He dieted himself, both as to eating and drinking, and actually consented to accompany his brother and a few friends on a short walking tour as far as Eisenstadt, where Haydn lived, and where he then lay buried. Thus living in some conformity to the long outraged laws of health, Schubert grew stronger. He regained his old cheerfulness, it is said, and was often very gay. But, alas! the improvement was delusive. Dieting, exercise, all came too late—the old story—and shortly after the return to Vienna a relapse took place. "One evening at the end of October," writes Kreissle, "he was dining at an hotel, and had hardly swallowed the first morsel of fish when he suddenly threw down the knife and fork on his plate, declaring that the food was absolutely odious to him, and tasted like poison." This was the beginning of nature's final revolt against the treatment to which she had been subjected, and, thenceforward, it might have been said of Schubert, in the words of a quaint old epitaph: "Pain was his portion; physic was his food." But he made a brave fight for life, if, indeed, the probability of a speedy death ever occurred to him. His mind remained full of thoughts of work, especially with ideas for the completion of his opera "Graf von Gleichen," and he lived in music as much as ever, even contemplating a course of study in counterpoint under Sechter. He had been reading some of the compositions of Handel—like Beethoven in the same crisis—and had come to the conclusion that there was yet much to be done. His words were: "I see now how much I have still to learn, but I am going to work hard with Sechter and make up for lost time." "So earnestly was he bent on this," adds one of his biographers, "that on the day after his walk to Hernal's—i.e., on November 4—notwithstanding his weakness, he went into Vienna, and, with another musician named Lanz, called on Sechter to consult him on the matter, and they actually decided on Marpurg as the text book, and on the number and dates of the lessons." But all this time his nervous system was in a terrible state. On hearing Beethoven's C sharp minor Quartet, he broke down so completely, and gave way so much to excitement, that all his friends were alarmed at his condition. He heard other music in this sad state, and there was no one to take him away from the city, into some quiet, reposeful place, where his agitation might have calmed down and given a chance to nature's recuperative forces. The mischief went on, the patient grew weaker and weaker, till, on November 11, there came from him words which had the accent of despair. He was apparently alarmed at the nature of his own forebodings, and sought to divert his thoughts; no longer with music but by means of fiction. Hence he wrote to Schober—using a pen for the last time:—

"Dear Schober,—I am ill. I have eaten and drunk nothing for eleven days, and am so tired and shaky that I can only get from the bed to the chair and back. Rinna is attending me. If I taste anything I bring it up again directly. In this distressing condition be so kind as to help me to some reading. Of Cooper's, I have read the "Last of the Mohicans," the "Pilot," and the "Pioneers." If you have anything else of his I entreat you to leave it with Frau von Bognor, at the coffee-house. My brother, who is conscientiousness itself, will bring it to me in the most conscientious way. Or anything else.—Your friend, SCHUBERT.

We will assume that Schober answered this piteous letter, but there is no proof that he did so, nor do we find evidence strong enough to remove a suspicion that many of Schubert's friends, in his great emergency, "forsook him and fled." Kreissle declares that Spaun, Randhartinger, Baumfeld, and Hüttenbrenner all visited their former boon companion and convive, but, on the other hand, Ferdinand Schubert's wife, who lived in the same house as the patient, asserts that Randhartinger was the only one who called. There was dread of infection, forsooth, and the dying composer's residence was in an out of the way quarter! "Tis pitiful, 'tis wondrous pitiful"—this desertion of our fellows when most the voice and hand of a friend are needed. We may excuse Mozart's mourners for dropping away from his funeral train as it passed through storm and tempest to St. Marx, but there can be no pardon for poor Schubert's intimates in their paltry fear and cruel neglect. They were glad enough to eat and drink at his expense, but when it was a question of soothing his last moments they had business elsewhere.

By November 14 the disease had progressed so far that the patient could no longer sit up save for a few moments, which he spent in looking over proofs of the most melancholy of all his songs. "He appears to have had no pain," says Sir George Grove in a fine passage, "only increasing weakness, want of sleep, and great depression. Poor fellow! no wonder he was depressed! Everything was against him—his weakness, his poverty, the dreary house, the long lonely hours, the cheerless future—all concentrated and embodied in the hopeless images of Müller's poems, and the sad gloomy strains in which he has clothed them for ever and ever—the Letzte Hoffnung, the Krähe, the Wegweiser, the Wirthshaus, the Nebensonnen, the Leiermann—all breathing of solitude, strange omens, poverty, death, the grave. As he went through the pages, they must have seemed like pictures of his own life, and such passages as the following, from the Wegweiser (or Signpost) can hardly have failed to strike the dying man as aimed at himself:—

Straight before me stands a signpost
Stedfast in my very gaze,
'Tis the road none e'er retraces,
'Tis the road that I must tread.

Alas! he was indeed going the road which none ever retraces." On the 16th there was a consultation of medical men, who, although they dreaded a nervous fever, still had hope of the sufferer's recovery. But the next day typhus declared itself, delirium supervened, and hope disappeared. Death then became only a matter of a few days, since the weakened frame could not possibly sustain the attack of such an exhausting disease. On the 18th Schubert's mind wandered frequently. He fancied himself in a strange room which he was anxious to leave, and often tried to get out of bed for that purpose. Evidently the poor brain pictured him to himself as amongst strangers who had some mysterious design. Hence the whispered query to Ferdinand, "What are they doing with me?" His brother answered: "Dear Franz, they are doing all they can to get you well again, and the doctor assures us you will soon be right, only you must do your best to stay in bed." Then came a period of quiet, but the disordered mind soon returned to its delusion: "I implore you to put me in my own room, and not to leave me in this corner under the earth. Do I not deserve a place above ground?" The reply was: "Be calm. Trust your brother, Ferdinand, whom you have always trusted, and who loves you so dearly. You are in the room which you always had, and lying in your own bed." "No, no," retorted the sufferer, "that's not true; Beethoven is not here." It is easy to see how the wandering thoughts of the moribund composer slipped from the hallucination that strangers had got possession of him for some mysterious purpose to the matter of his final resting place, which, no doubt, had filled his mind before. He had probably indulged a secret aspiration to lie near his great exemplar; and, though a natural modesty would have prevented any expression of it when in full control of his faculties, it found words in a moment of delirium. A few hours later the doctor called and sought to rally his patient by re-assuring talk. "But," says Kreissle, "Schubert looked earnestly at him, clutched at the wall with his poor weak hand, and said slowly, in earnest tones, 'Here, here is my end!'"

The next day (November 19), Schubert's gifted spirit passed away from "the miseries of this troublesome world"—the world he had blessed with undying strains, paid for with immortal, but, as usual, post mortem honours.

With what pious resignation the dead man's father endured his heavy bereavement may be gathered from a letter, written by him to Ferdinand Schubert on the morning of the fatal day:—

"Dear Son Ferdinand,—The days of trouble and heaviness are lowering heavily upon us. The dangerous illness of our beloved Franz weighs much upon our souls. All that we can do in this sad time is to seek comfort from our Heavenly Father, and bear every sorrow appointed us by a wise Providence with firm submission to His holy will. The result will convince us of the wisdom and goodness of God. Be of courage, then, and put your trust in Him. He will strengthen you, that you sink not under this sorrow; His blessing will keep a yet happy future in store for you. Take every possible precaution that our dear Franz have administered to him at once the holy Sacraments given to the dying, and I live in a cheerful hope that the Almighty will strengthen and preserve him. Thy father, afflicted and yet strengthened by trust in God,—FRANZ."

On the morrow after writing this letter, so full of simple piety and unquestioning faith, the bereaved parent issued a notification of his son's death in the following terms:—

"Yesterday afternoon (Wednesday), at three o'clock, my beloved son, Franz Schubert, artist and composer, died after a short illness, and having received the Holy Sacraments of the Church. He died at the age of thirty-two.* We beg to announce to our dear friends and neighbours that the body of the deceased will be taken, on the 21st of this month, at half-past two in the afternoon, from the house standing No. 694 in the new street on the Neuen-Wieden, to be buried near the Bishop's stall in the parish church of St. Josef in Margarethen, where the holy rites will be administered.

"FRANZ SCHUBERT,
"School Teacher in the Rossau.

"Vienna, Nov. 20, 1828."

The elder Schubert appears to have fixed the place of burial without consulting Ferdinand, who, at six o'clock the following morning addressed a letter to his father, urging a different disposition of the remains:—

"Dearest Father,—A great number of people are anxious that the body of our dear Franz should be buried in the churchyard at Währing. I certainly am one of that number, and am particularly anxious this should be so, as I believe Franz himself induced me to think of Währing for his resting place."

The letter narrates the death bed conversation already referred to, and proceeds:—

"Is not this an index, so to speak, of his heartfelt wish to rest by the side of Beethoven, whom he so deeply revered? I have therefore spoken to Rieder, and ascertained the cost of removing the body—it will amount to about seventy florins—a large sum, a very large sum, but very little for the honour of Franz's resting place. For my part, I can spare temporarily the sum of forty florins, for yesterday fifty were paid to me. For the rest, I believe, we may expect that all the expenses incidental to his illness and burial will be met by what has been left. If you, my dear Father, agree with me in these sentiments, I can assure you my mind will be relieved of a heavy load. But you must at once make up your mind, and let me know by the bearer of this letter, so that I can make arrangements for the arrival of the hearse. You must also take care to give notice to-day to the clergyman at Währing. Your afflicted son—FERDINAND."

"P.S.—Should not the ladies all appear in mourning? The manager of the funeral thinks he need not provide crape, as it is not usually worn at the funerals of unmarried people, and because the pall-bearers have red cloaks and flowers."

Ferdinand's suggestion met with his father's approval, and the funeral took place on November 21—in bad weather, like that of Mozart. But Schubert's friends did not run home out of the rain as did those of his illustrious predecessor. After viewing the body, which lay in its coffin dressed as a hermit and crowned with laurel, they accompanied the procession to St. Joseph's Church, where a funeral service was celebrated, the music being a Motett by Gansbacher, and the dead composer's own "Pax vobiscum," set to words specially written by Schober. From the church the procession took its way towards the village of Währing, along the road traversed by Beethoven's funeral train in 1827. On reaching the little cemetery the remains were laid to rest only three places from those of the great composer, by whose side Schubert desired to sleep. The spot was soon marked by a monument, erected by sorrowing friends, and consisting of a bust, with an inscription written by Grillparzer:—

"Music has here entombed a rich treasure, but still fairer hopes. Franz Schubert lies here. Born January 31, 1797. Died November 19, 1828, 31 years old."

An official inventory of the dead man's goods was taken in due course. It involved no great labour, and will take up small space here:—"Three dress coats, three walking coats, ten pairs of trousers, nine waistcoats—worth thirty-seven florins. One hat, five pairs of shoes, and two pairs of boots—valued at two florins. Four shirts, nine cravats and pocket handkerchiefs, thirteen pairs of socks, one towel, one sheet, two bed cases—eight florins. One mattress, one bolster, one quilt—six florins. A quantity of old music valued at ten florins—63 florins (about £2 10s.) in all.

Schubert assuredly had not laid up for himself treasures upon earth, but it is suggestive to contrast this beggarly account with the honours soon laid upon his tomb, and since heaped upon his memory. Looking at the large space now filled in the world by the man who died worth fifty shillings, and with a fame that scarcely extended beyond the walls of Vienna, we see how small and insignificant a part of the real life of genius is that which we call life.

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives
Who thinks most; feels the noblest; acts the best.

NEW WORKS AT GLOUCESTER AND WOLVERHAMPTON.

It is gratifying to lovers of music generally, to note the activity which signalises the provincial musical festivals this year. It has often been the reproach of the many that these meetings, promoted entirely with charitable objects, did little or nothing for the art on which they relied for their attraction and pecuniary success. Especially has it been said of the west country festivals—the meetings of the Three Choirs—that they were practically inert in an artistic sense, stirring the sluggish pulses of the agricultural region with hardly anything more modern than Handel's "Messiah" and Mendelssohn's "Elijah," unless some local celebrity of more than common hardihood swelled the programme with the composition of a pseudo-amateur. Mr. C. L. Williams, organist of Gloucester Cathedral, and ex officio the conductor of the Festival performances, has modestly kept in the background, contributing only a Magnificat and Nunc dimittis to be sung at the closing special service in the nave. Mr. C. Harford Lloyd, Mr. Williams' predecessor as Cathedral organist, has, however, been called upon to supply an important work, which takes the shape of a secular Cantata, "Andromeda," to be produced at the first Concert in the Shire Hall, on Tuesday evening, the 7th inst. Mr. Lloyd is associated with Mr. F. E. Weatherly, author of countless songs and some good libretti, who has here treated the legend of the doomed Andromeda and her release by Perseus in a very acceptable fashion. The work is laid out for the customary quartet of solo singers and chorus; but opportunities for concerted music are more frequently afforded than those for the chief singers. Mr. Weatherly's lines flow smoothly, and so far as may be judged from a perusal of the pianoforte score, the Cantata bids fair to be highly effective. Andromeda will be represented by Miss Anna Williams; Cassiopeia by Miss Hilda Wilson; A Priest by Mr. Watkin Mills; and Perseus by Mr. Edward Lloyd. The composer will conduct his own work.

The other novelty is "The Good Shepherd," an Oratorio composed for this Festival by Mr. W. S. Rockstro, a musician long esteemed for his many attainments, but whose name has not yet, so far as our memory serves us, been associated with the loftiest class of musical composition. The Oratorio will be given on the Wednesday evening in the Cathedral.

* The composer's exact age was 31 years, 9 months, 19 days.

"The Good Shepherd," is a work of ample dimensions, treated throughout with that dignity of spirit which should always be present in compositions of ecclesiastical significance. The text, taken almost exclusively from Holy Writ, displays two contrasting phrases in the separate divisions of the Oratorio: the first dealing with "The Sheep without the Shepherd," and the second with "The Shepherd and the Sheep." The whole is laid out upon a large scale, the score containing no fewer than twenty-three numbers, inclusive of an overture in regular form—which, however, is designated a "Prelude" in the book—and an introductory symphony to the second part. A full orchestra is used, including a bass clarinet and contra-fagotto, while the assistance of the organ is at times called in to give additional sonority to the instrumental department. Mr. Rockstro is fully alive to the popularity of the Leitmotif, and has accordingly written in the accepted modern vein, where independent melody plays second fiddle to "representative themes." Without anticipating the verdict to be passed upon the first performance of "The Good Shepherd," and speaking merely upon the authority of a brief perusal of the score, we should say that the Oratorio ought to prove a valuable addition to the library of English sacred music. The *sol*i parts will be undertaken by Miss Anna Williams, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Winch, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Mr. Rockstro will conduct his own work, which will form the first part of Wednesday evening's programme; the second part being devoted to Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise."

The Wolverhampton meeting on Thursday and Friday, the 16th and 17th inst., exhibits a considerable amount of enterprise. Only seven of these Triennial Musical Festivals have yet been held; but already the committee have felt it advisable to produce a new work on both of the two days of the celebration, and to that end commissioned two English musicians (Dr. C. Swinerton Heap and Mr. F. Corder) to write cantatas for the occasion. Curiously enough the composers have both of them hit upon subjects which deal more or less directly with the Arturian legends. Dr. Heap has set to music a libretto by Mr. Desmond L. Ryan, based upon the theme of "Lancelot and Elaine," and called "The Maid of Astolat." The author has neither confined himself strictly to the original version, as related in Sir Thomas Malory's "Morte d'Arthur," nor to the charming poem of "Elaine" in Tennyson's "Idylls of the King," but has added such matter to the old mythical story as seemed to him appropriate for musical purposes. Dr. Heap, who will be Conductor of the Festival, seems to have taken every advantage of the varied incidents brought under his notice, and his music ought to make its mark. The second Wolverhampton novelty is an adaptation of Scott's poem "The Bridal of Triermain," wherein Mr. Corder appears both as poet and composer. The theme savours in no small degree of the fable of the Sleeping Beauty, spiced with the flavour of King Arthur's Court and the Knights of the Table Round; but Mr. Corder has constructed an effective book, while his musical ability is quite upon a par with his literary capacity. "The Bridal of Triermain" will be produced on the second evening of the Festival. Mesdames Valleria, Trebelli, Hilda Wilson, and Hutchinson; Messrs. Edward Lloyd, Piercy, Robert Grice, Watkin Mills, and Santley will be the principal vocalists, Mr. Carrodus being the chef d'attaque, and Mr. J. Roper the organist.

MUSIC BY MACHINERY.

I SHOULD have picked him out as an inventor anywhere. He was a large-built, elderly man, with straight hair inclined to greyness and scantiness, a noble forehead, light far-away blue eyes, a weak mouth, and a general dreamy air of self-forgetfulness. Ill-fitted as to his clothes, ragged as to his whiskers, and with fingers and nails of delicate shape, but grimy and battered from over-use. I first saw him at the opera, where he sat through a performance of "La Sonnambula," perpetually murmuring numbers to himself, by which I guessed him to be a mathematician. Next I came across him in the street, where he had paused, wrapped in thought, while a brass band near at hand was blaring a selection from "Patience." Still he repeated numbers under his breath. Finally I was introduced to him at a certain Bohemian club, where I occasionally spend an evening. His name was James Fadderley, and he was, as I had surmised, an inventor, and a member of the Mathematical Society, a place where they read papers, and discuss matters utterly beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals. I found Mr. Fadderley, however, a very agreeable and well informed man, able to hold his own on every subject which came up. In such moments of relaxation I usually avoid musical topics, but somehow the talk after supper drifted round to the subject of composition. I believe I deplored the difficulty of producing new and interesting melodies.

"What should you say," asked my companion, "to a machine which should compose and write down every possible musical idea?"

"Why, that 'twere a consummation devoutly to be wished," I replied, "but it is, of course, Utopian."

"You think so, do you?" rejoined the inventor. "And what if I were to show you—to show you at work, as it has been for the last ten years—a machine which could not only do this, but more? A machine which constructs and combines musical phrases, harmonises them, and, before I die, will, I hope, be able to build them up into symphonic forms, and work them out better than even a Beethoven could do. What should you say then?"

"Say!" I exclaimed; "why, that either you or I were crazy!" The inventor laughed gently, his whole face and form became transfigured, reminding me of the change in a Chinese lantern when you put a light inside. He lost his faded and helpless air, and, rising with brisk decision, plucked me by the sleeve, saying quietly, "Come and see."

I went with him to a great gaunt house which had wedged itself into a street in Soho much too small for it, as if seeking to hide its dirty face. Mr. Fadderley opened the door with a very strange looking key and ushered me into a small sitting room, where there was nothing to attract attention, unless it were some bookshelves laden with portly volumes of about the size of the "Encyclopædia Britannica." Taking down one of these he laid it before me. It looked like a thematic music catalogue, every page containing musical phrases arranged in double columns and numbered, about fifty to the page. Looking closer, I observed that the principle of a dictionary had been ingeniously adapted, those phrases which began on the tonic coming first, supertonic next, and so on. All were in the key of C for simplicity's sake, and I satisfied myself that any phrase up to four bars in length that I chose to think of could be easily searched out in this dictionary. The inventor turned his questioning eyes on me in mild triumph, and for a moment I was dumbfounded.

"Do you mean to say," I at length found wits to inquire, "that in this dozen or so of volumes you possess all the treasures which the world of music has revealed in the way of melody?"

"Aye," he answered quietly, "and all those which it ever will reveal in the years to come; that is," he amended, smiling, "while our present musical system shall exist."

"But how is that possible?" I cried. "I am no great mathematician, but I know that the number of possible combinations of the twelve notes taken in various degrees of length, repeated ever so many times, and with rests and other complications to increase it, is all but infinite; certainly beyond the capacity of any library to contain." "The number of possible combinations—yes," answered he; "but that is a very different thing to the number of groups of notes which may be called musical themes. Had my machine only aimed at producing the former it would have been useless; its leading feature, the power on which I most pride myself, is its capacity for discrimination between what may be regarded as music and what may not."

"Ha, ha, ha! excuse me, but musical criticism by machinery—the idea is too rich!" And I roared with laughter. Mr. Fadderley waited gravely till I had done, and then continued, quite unmoved: "The idea of this machine was suggested by an invention of which you may have heard—Charles Babbage's Analytical Engine." I admitted having heard of this mysterious and never completed machine, but avowed my ignorance of its nature and object. He explained. "The Analytical Engine was intended to obviate the wear and tear of mathematicians' brains. In the higher mathematics every new investigation is attended with long and intricate calculations which are, in spite of their complexity, nothing but the four first rules of arithmetic over and over again. The Analytical Engine was enabled to perform all such operations, but it had a greater gift than this. It was, from the nature of its construction, able to choose the most suitable and expeditious means of working out its calculations. It is this power of discrimination—which after all is really a series of logical mechanical processes (whether in our brains or in a machine)—of which I have made principal use in my machine. Thus, while in one part of the engine every possible permutation and combination of notes is being made, another portion, acting on rigorous mechanical principles, allows itself to receive only such of these combinations as we should consider musical phrases. It then reproduces these in music type and prints them unceasingly."

"Wonderful!" I exclaimed. "I long to inspect the machine. But excuse me," for the throb of machinery at work was plainly audible, "I understood that it had already completed this task." "One task," replied the inventor impressively. "But it has far greater aims. Come first and see it." So saying he led me to the rear of the house, where in a built-out shed stood a mighty engine, of whose appearance I cannot hope to convey an idea. It was clicking and clashing in the most weird and ghostly way; things kept happening in various portions of it; suddenly it would begin to whizz and click in one place, then it would break out in another, till to merely gaze on the bewildering mass of moving rods and wheels became a very nightmare. Placing his hand on a shifting jerking tangle of ironwork, with a calm familiarity that made me shudder, James Fadderley proceeded with his exposition:—"You have only seen," he went on, "a portion of its accomplished labours. Besides the complete collection of musical phrases it has registered a complete set of accompaniment figures and every possible position of every possible chord. You would not comprehend, so I will not show you, the mighty addition to the machine upon which I am now engaged. It fills all the upper part of this house and will some day work in combination with the portion you now see, one small gas-engine driving the whole and keeping it at work for years unceasingly if necessary. The machine as it now stands can compose simple pieces, such as waltzes and ballads, but in its perfected state it will produce nothing under a symphony. Now when you consider the amount of sifting and winnowing which what I may call the criticising part of the machine exercises in the composition of a simple melody of four bars, you will easily understand that the production of a symphony will involve an amount of work which even for mechanism is nothing short of stupendous. The critic having selected the best possible subjects they will have to be worked out in accordance with the simple laws of form, but to the best possible advantage, and when there are several courses of apparently equal propriety yet higher critical functions will be required to decide on the most meritorious. The machine may take years to compose one piece, but when done this will be absolutely perfect and unapproachable."

"I can only hope that the flesh and blood critics (if I may call them so) will hold the same opinion," said I, satirically.

"Of that," returned the inventor, "I take little heed. A really great work will always be recognised as such, at any rate in the end. But pray observe the machine; it has just composed and published, as I may say, a new march." Here several sheets of music came gliding along on a tramway of gut bands and were deposited upon a pile of loose leaves near us. James Fadderley took them up and handed them to me. It was certainly very extraordinary. Here was a march, bold and broad in melody and polyphonic in character, reminding me somewhat of Wagner's Kaisermarsch, only clearer in form. I read it with the greatest interest and enquired if there were any more. The inventor smiled proudly.

"That pile and others now at the binder's nearly complete the whole stock of marches; there are"—here he consulted a small dial or register in the machine—"8,246, including the one you hold in your hand, and after composing another twenty or so the machine will stop of itself. Curious that it knows better than I do when it has written itself out, is it not?"

I could hardly believe he was in earnest, yet I held in my hand an undoubted proof (in two senses). "What about the waltzes?" I enquired. "Ah, there," answered Mr. Fadderley, "I have a singular experience to give you. On rendering the machine special for waltzes—that is, on so arranging it that it should compose nothing else—it at first refused to work at all. For a long time I was puzzled until, bethinking me that the critic might be in fault, I disconnected this portion of the apparatus, when the engine instantly began to work at furious speed and produced a fresh set of waltzes every five minutes, until the piles of music grew so alarmingly bulky that I was forced to stop it in self-defence. I then perceived that all the possible waltzes had already been composed and that my machine was only using the same materials over and over again, with slight variations. The same thing took place when I set it to compose ballads, thus affording conclusive evidence that these departments of music are played out."

"Did it write the words of the ballads also?" I asked.

"Of course not; but it would not take a very complicated machine to do that. Had I time, I would certainly construct such an one; it could not fail to be remunerative."

"For pity's sake spare us!" I implored. "Do we not suffer enough already?"

"Well, you see now the value of my critic. When my machine is completed, it will produce nothing but music of the highest artistic value and the most complete originality. Hand-made music will stand but a poor chance against music by machinery. I shall have a great and glorious monopoly."

"Don't flatter yourself," I retorted. "You had much better disconnect the critic again, and let the machine rip. Then indeed you may make a little fortune."

"I see you are a Philistine," rejoined the inventor, "so I will not waste breath in arguing the matter; but at least you must admit the greatness of my invention and the nobility of its aims."

"Hum!" I answered dubiously, taking up my hat and preparing to depart; "I allow its ingenuity, and praise your patience. But look here! Here is a machine which fills an extensive shed and three stories of a good-sized house; it has taken half a lifetime to construct, and certainly thousands of pounds to pay for; and all it has as yet done is to prove, what every musician knows, that it is impossible to write an original ballad or waltz. With half this gigantic expenditure of brain work and money you might have produced a valuable original work of art, and defrayed the cost of jamming it into the brains of the public. You hope, you say, to produce such a work by aid of your machine in the course of time; so do I by aid of the infinitely smaller and less expensive machinery contained in my head; but I don't see where you get the pull over me. If I write a symphony I do not, like your machine, proceed on the exhaustive principle of composing everything else possible first. No; I plunge boldly at it, and take my chance of its turning out good. This may not be so scientific, but it is certainly more practical. I don't care whether my subjects have been used before by some one else; if I treat better than he, they become mine; if worse, they remain his. Machine me no machines! A few ounces of live brains are worth all your tons of iron and steel work."

"Beware!" cried the inventor, now furious at my words, "or I shall be tempted to take a fearful revenge for these insults."

"Why, what would you do?"

"I shall patent my steam critic, and sell one on low terms to every London newspaper."

I fell on my knees at his feet. "Not that!" I moaned; "anything but that! Already is the musician's life hardly worth living. The critic is a fearsome being, yet he has bowels. But to be scalped by machinery—to have one's tenderest creations dissected by a steam engine—this were prospect too frightful, too appalling to contemplate. As you are great, be merciful!"

He replied not, but sternly ushered me forth, and I have never beheld him since. He has not yet, so far as I know, carried out his threat or completed his invention, and of the two achievements I really cannot decide which would be the more terrible.

F. C.

THE CALIBRATION OF METRONOMES.

IN the correspondence columns of the last issue of THE MUSICAL TIMES, the writer briefly alluded to a communication, addressed by M. Saint-Saëns to the French Academy of Sciences, in which that eminent musician advocated the adoption of a normal metronome, mathematically correct, and of which copies, officially guaranteed and stamped, might be obtained by those desirous of securing such doubtful treasures.

The full text of M. Saint-Saëns's comments was published as an appendix to the writer's letter, so it is only necessary here to state that the chief objection brought against the Maelzel Metronome, by the somewhat hypercritical Frenchman, appears in the following sweeping assertion:—

"These instruments are universally employed. But to be of any practical utility they must be accurate, and unfortunately this is a quality that very few of them possess. The musical world is supplied with badly constructed and badly regulated metronomes, which mistead musicians instead of guiding them."

With the view of determining to what extent this wholesale condemnation of a useful, but not absolutely essential instrument was justified, the writer has been enabled to make a series of simple experiments upon half-a-dozen metronomes of French manufacture, selected at random from a stock which had not previously been unpacked, and which were therefore tested for the first time in the course of these trials. The results of the tests are appended in the accompanying table.

Care was taken to place the instruments on a level surface, although still further precaution was necessary to ensure even approximate accuracy in consequence of the varying lengths of the feet supporting the case of the apparatus. The position of the pendulum "bob" upon its divided rod, or rather arm, was determined by two independent observers, the writer preferring not to adjust this himself for reasons which are obvious. For time observations, a carefully constructed stop-watch, such as the writer has often used in submarine cable testing operations, where correct timing is of great moment, and indicating quarter-seconds, was employed. The metronomes were all tested in the same room and under precisely similar conditions, and each individual test was repeated several times in the presence of a second observer, who checked the results. Observations were made upon each instrument with the pendulum "bob" in four different positions; to have attempted more would have taken up time which the writer could ill afford, and it seems reasonable enough to assume that the remaining divisions of the scale were as accurately marked as the points chosen for comparison. Before each test the metronome spring was wound up to its maximum tension and the pendulum then set in motion. In order to ensure regularity of swing, the oscillations of the pendulum were allowed to proceed uninterruptedly for nearly a minute before its beats were compared with the stop watch.

Metronome.	Position of Pendulum "bob" on Divided Scale.				Average percentage of error.
	60	120	152	184	For 60	For 120	For 152	For 184
A	60	117.5	150	183	Less than 1 per cent.	2½ per cent.	3 per cent.	About 1 per cent.
B	60	118	148	182
C	59	115	146.5	177
D	58.5	117	147	188	Less than 1 per cent.	2½ per cent.	3 per cent.	About 1 per cent.
E	59.5	117	147	178
F	60	116.5	147	183

The writer ventured to assert, when previously commenting upon M. Saint-Saëns's proposition, that metronomes as now constructed—somewhat roughly, it must be confessed—are sufficiently good for all practical purposes, and he thinks the above table amply confirms that view.

There are, however, several points connected with the manufacture of these instruments upon which a few general remarks may not be out of place. Without a shadow of doubt the case is the best part of the apparatus; and this is a reproach which the makers of the mechanical portion of the metronome will do well to no longer deserve. The cost of the complete instrument is excessive when we compare it with the cheap, handsome, and fairly well regulated American clocks, which one can purchase anywhere for a few shillings. The divisions on the pendulum rod are badly cut, and are not always precisely opposite the scale graduations; the pendulum "bob," by reason of its wretched method of adjustment, may become sufficiently loose to slide down the rod while the instrument is in operation; and it is not easy, from the distance of the pendulum rod from the scale, to be quite certain that the desired position has been correctly "sighted." With regard to this last point, perfect accuracy of alignment between pendulum "bob" and scale might be secured by the following method, which, so far as the writer is aware, has never before been suggested for this purpose, although its application to scientific instruments of precision is well known:—

If the face of the metronome, into which the scale is let, were made of looking-glass instead of wood, we should then get the reflection of the "bob" in all positions. By sighting the edge of the "bob," so that it and the line of its reflection cover the scale graduation, we obtain perfect accuracy, for by this means we avoid what, in observations with scientific apparatus, is termed the "parallax" error. This would constitute a really valuable improvement, and at no increase of cost. Again, if the pyramidal form of the apparatus were somewhat modified, the scale might be placed vertically, and the pendulum rod made to swing very closely thereto. The pendulum rod need not be divided at all; it would answer far better if only roughened like a file, and it would be a simple matter to find a more trustworthy method of securing the "bob" in any position than that now employed. The pivoting of the clockwork might be far better, especially that of the axle carrying the pendulum.

Still, in spite of the imperfections existing in the apparatus, the writer holds that they can in their present form meet all the requirements demanded of them, and that an instrument such as is desired by M. Saint-Saëns is utterly uncalled for.

T. E. GATEHOUSE.

FRANZ LISZT.

ANOTHER link is gone! Another chain
That binds us to the great ones of the Past
Is broke, since the Death-angel came again
And called thee to thy well-won rest at last.

Aye, Rest at last! Ended thy glorious life!
Vainly we call thee now, in vain we weep;
Peace is with thee; after the battle's strife
Calmly thou liest in eternal sleep.

Master and friend! How little could we tell,
When bidding thee God speed from England's shore,
That it would be our last, our long farewell—
That we should look upon thy face no more!

Farewell? Nay, 'tis not so, for thou hast left
Undying melodies within our heart,
A precious memory for us bereft:—
Of thee, thou noble one, the noblest part.

Bayreuth, August 1, 1886.

C. B.

A communication has reached us from Mrs. Cyril Flower, on behalf of the Recreative Evening Schools Association, to the objects of which we have more than once called attention in these columns. But the situation is so clearly put in the document before us that it may be well to lay the following passages before our readers. "There are 80,000 children leaving the London Elementary Schools every year, and there are three millions in England and Scotland of young people from thirteen to eighteen years of age, who have passed through the Elementary Schools. In the evening these swarm in our streets idling or playing. Thus the education which they have received at so much cost is largely wasted and the greatest evils accrue. Evening schools have been opened, but tired youth will not go to them for mere book-work. Now the Trades Council of London, representing many working men, have appealed to those more highly favoured than themselves to help the recreative and wise training of their children, and to do so by preparing them for the practical work and pure pleasures of life. Accordingly, in response to this request, our Association has been formed. We allure these young people by recreative classes for musical drill, for pleasant singing, and for illustration of the lessons taught by the bright pictures of the optical lantern, or by simple experiments. . . . All this is done by voluntary service in the evening schools of the Board (and other schools), and in conjunction with their teaching. We had some 150 voluntary teachers and 100 working men helpers last winter. Next winter we must have 1,500 voluntary teachers and 600 working men helpers. As all is done by voluntary aid we need but little money. But some is wanted to pay for musical instruments. . . . and to train our voluntary teachers, who must do their work well. . . . This is the most pressing social problem of our time, which underlies all others—for the wise care of our youth is the salvation of the people. Will you help us to solve it?" Music, as it will be seen, plays, if not the sole, at least a most important part in this system of recreative instruction; and we heartily commend the Association for their resolve, from which we hope they will never deviate, to allow none but competent helpers to teach this or any subject. The statistics as to the number of these voluntary teachers are decidedly encouraging, and we would earnestly appeal to all our leisured readers to see whether they cannot further this admirable movement, whether by the gift of money or the offer of their services. Further information as to the working of the system can be obtained at the Association's offices, at 1, Norfolk Street, Strand, W.C., while subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer, Cyril Flower, Esq., M.P., Surrey House, Hyde Park Place, W.

OLD theatre-goers in this country will well remember the conventional "melodramas," in which some popular artists always took part, the chief dramatis personæ consisting of a suffering heroine, a constant lover, and a comic character. But little scenic effect was usually expended upon these pieces, the sensational situations being considered quite sufficient to ensure success. But it must not be forgotten that music was a very important element in the performance. Melodious strains announced the appearance of the principal lady, harsh and creeping phrases that of the ruffian, and startling, unexpected incidents were accompanied by what was technically known as a "hurry." We are glad to say that this old-world custom has now almost fallen into disuse on the English stage; but that in America it still lingers was proved to us a short time since in a piece acted by Daly's excellent Comedy Company, at the Strand Theatre, music adapted to the various situations occurring throughout whenever any special "effect" was intended. A glance at the American papers will prove, too, that this false aid to dramatic action is rather growing than diminishing on the other side of the Atlantic, for we read that a feature in a coming revival of "Macbeth" will be "the abandonment of the Locke music, which is considered by the profession as a Jonah, and the introduction of new and popular airs, very 'piano,' music being rendered through the entire play, and not between acts only, as is the custom now. This, from its novelty, is expected to popularise the play, the music being so low and soft that the slightest word of the actors will be plain to the audience." Whatever may be thought of the performance of music expressly written for the scenes with the Witches, there can be little doubt that a continuous accompaniment to Shakespeare's dialogue would be simply absurd; and we can scarcely believe that even the most zealous advocates of the system would imagine that the effect of the thrilling murder scene, and the appearance of Banquo's ghost, for example, would be deepened by the introduction of "new and popular airs."

Liszt's funeral was imposing only from the number of persons who followed the remains to the grave and the sympathy shown by the residents and visitors to the town. Music had no share in the sad ceremonies, unless the Requiem on the following day could be called a musical celebration. Madame Wagner's wish that only a "Stilles"—i.e., spoken Requiem—should be performed was over-ruled by the clerical authorities, who urged that Liszt's position as a Church dignitary demanded a musical service. What this musical service might have been! The town was full of artists, vocalists, and instrumentalists, all ready to do honour to the deceased Master. But it was decreed otherwise. It almost seemed as if the music of only one master was allowed to be heard in Bayreuth. A Funeral March (Wagner's own "Siegfried" March) might at least have been played before or after one of the performances of "Tristan" or "Parsifal," but even this appears not to have been thought of.

No greater proof of the advance of music can be adduced than the circumstance of a pianoforte being considered as an essential article, not for ornament, but for actual service, in every drawing-room. Time was—and that not very many years back—when the possession of an "instrument," as it was called, conferred a mark of distinction upon the owner; and if a man were only deemed "respectable" who "kept a gig" the person who kept a pianoforte was thought almost aristocratic. For a long time, however, the beauty of the wood and the exquisite carving of the legs attracted more attention than the touch and tone of the instrument; and although it was duly dusted and polished with the rest of the furniture, it was usually made rather a vehicle for display than a means of diffusing the most intellectual enjoyment throughout the household. That it has now assumed its true position in this country is beyond a doubt; but we must turn to the report of a case decided by a judge of the Massachusetts Supreme Court to see how the law recognises its power in the United States. It appears that a married woman, by a Statute of the State of Massachusetts, is entitled to hold as her separate property, among other things, "articles necessary for her personal use, acquired by gift from her husband." The question was whether a piano given by a husband to his wife is an "article necessary for her personal use"; and, as such, her property beyond the reach of his creditors. Judge Devens at once decided that it was. As many gifts which a wife may receive from her husband, although exceedingly useful, might not be deemed absolutely "necessary," Judge Devens has earned the thanks of art-lovers for thus legally establishing the fact that a pianoforte must not be regarded as a mere expensive luxury.

THERE can be little doubt that the fashion of giving miscellaneous Concerts in the Metropolis is gradually fading away before the more enlightened custom of organising performances of important works by trained choirs, presided over by competent conductors. As many of the former kind of entertainments, however, are still constantly taking place in provincial towns, it would be well if some more defined plan of arranging the programmes were adopted. It is true that one part of the Concert is often sacred, and the other part secular; but this method is only available when a large portion of the selection consists of sacred music; and the programmes of country Concerts forwarded to us prove that this is the exception rather than the rule. Many persons abstain from going to Concerts in consequence of the incongruous mixture of vocal compositions in the programme; and several, we can positively affirm, who are constant attendants at the performance of oratorios and other sacred compositions, can scarcely sit to hear even the most beautiful extracts from these works when sung before and after the conventional passionate or sentimental songs of the day. So ill-arranged a selection may of course be merely the result of accident; but there should be no accident either in choosing or placing the materials to be performed before a public audience. We could quote from many programmes now before us in confirmation of our remarks; but need only refer to the notice of a recent Concert, where we are informed that the young lady vocalist sang "Angels, ever bright and fair," and "Daddy."

THE Welsh Musical Festivals, while not so pretentious in their character as those of England, are none the less exceedingly efficacious in promoting, through the means of co-operation and competition, that high degree of choral ensemble which is the special feature of the music of the Principality. Such a thing as bad chorus-singing is well nigh unknown in Wales. For these grounds we heartily concur in the words of praise which fell from Sir Theodore Martin in moving a vote of thanks to the President of the recent Llangollen Musical Festival. His remarks on the value of music as a means of refreshment and recreation were in particular just and sensible. One of the Presidents, we read, had expatriated on Ireland as a musical nation, and Sir Theodore spoke up for Scotland, in whose ballads he had been nursed, adding that "he thought Welshmen, Scotchmen, and Irishmen might well greet each other, for they had been nursed in music, and their ballads could not, in his opinion, be excelled." Alas, for poor England! for the inference to be drawn from these utterances is distinctly to our prejudice. And Mr. Robert Browning, who was present, did not lift up his voice in our behalf—whether from consciousness of the justice of these remarks, or from native modesty, we are not able to say.

Liszt doubtless expressed the wish that he might be buried in the place where he died. But, equally doubtless, he hoped and expected to die in Weimar, where he had lived and worked; and to Weimar his remains should certainly be taken to lie in that Walhalla which already contains the bones of Goethe and Schiller.

LIKE our "curiosities of criticism," the extraordinary advertisements to which we drew attention some time since have been multiplying on our table, through the diligence of several correspondents who take interest in the matter. The "antique-looking" violin, said to be labelled "Antónius Stradivarius, faciebat Cremona, A.D. 1721," we are glad to inform high-class amateur performers is still in the market; which is strange, considering the long time it has been advertised, and that its very low price (thirty shillings) includes "a handsome lined case, with lock and key, and splendid mounted bow." Then for those who wish to "play the Piano, Organ, or Harmonium at sight," the enclosure of fifteen stamps, with the advertisement announcing this extraordinary chance, will ensure a "Magic Pianoforte Instructor (Registered); £10 for every reader of this who fails to play by it immediately." As nobody expects to perform upon an instrument before he sees it, we hardly know what the words "at sight" can mean. In any case, however, a purchaser must be a gainer by the transaction; for if, by the aid of the "Magic" Tutor, he finds that he cannot play, he can claim £10 for his failure. We remember once reading an advertisement announcing that a "poll parrot" would be exchanged for "a volume of Beethoven's Sonatas"; but the following, extracted from a Scotch paper, shows that this "Exchange and Mart" system is carried on by professors of music: "Pianoforte and Singing Lessons in exchange for Goods (provisions, drapery, furniture, music, &c.); a first class Teacher is making winter arrangements with merchants' families."

If the Stewards of the Gloucester Musical Festival do not, as fishers of men, succeed in making a good haul, it will not be for lack of casting the net wide enough. They have broken away from the tame procedure of former years, and appointed agents for the sale of tickets in all the neighbouring cities and towns. More than this, they have, for the first time in the history of provincial festivals, recognised London as a place whence, possibly, some music-lovers may come. Mr. Ambrose Austin has been appointed their agent for the Metropolis, and at his office in St. James's Hall those who feel tempted by oratorio in a grand cathedral may secure seats. Vigorous action, we are glad to say, has broken out in yet another form, and efforts are making in Gloucester to raise a fund for the decoration of the city during the festival week. Better late than never. Hereford showed the way in this direction seven years ago, and it is the more incumbent upon Gloucester to follow now because the city has been all along painfully indifferent, in outward appearance, to the claims of the Festival. We are not very sanguine as to the result, but it is something to have started the idea of public decoration. At any rate, it makes impossible a repetition of the charge that the community amid which a great musical celebration takes place is no more interested in it than in the weekly market.

A bust of Franz Liszt, executed by the celebrated sculptor, Mr. Boehm, R.A., during the recent visit of the great Master to London, attracted much attention at the Grosvenor Gallery this season, the striking features and benevolent expression of the face, now so well known to the music-lovers of the Metropolis, having been most happily caught by the modeller. We are glad to say that copies, in plaster, of the original (life-size), and also reduced copies, will be issued immediately by Messrs. Novello, so that the numerous admirers of the eminent artist may possess a life-long remembrance of him as he appeared during his brief—and, alas, his final—sojourn amongst us.

IN THE MUSICAL TIMES for June last, note was taken of systematic efforts then being made to found a national opera in the United States, particularly by the aid of local associations acting as succursals of the central organisation in New York. We invited our readers to watch the experiment with interest, as a possible example for imitation in this country, and now have much pleasure in noticing an officially published "review of the first season of American opera." The mode of working is here made known, and we gather that the American Opera Company (Limited) has its seat in the Empire City, where two distinct enterprises are carried on—that is to say, a National Conservatory for the training of operatic artists, and a National Opera to be musically sustained by the artists thus prepared. "While the American Opera Company and the National Conservatory of Music maintain separate organisations, the Conservatory enables the Opera to rely permanently upon a supply of fresh and well-trained voices, and the Opera enables the Conservatory to depend upon a permanent outlet for the talent it develops." The plan thus stated is not yet in full working order, and the Conservatory will probably have to labour for some years before it can be of use to the stage, but theoretically the scheme is complete—indeed, it is the only possible one with regard to the end in view. Meanwhile, help is derived from the local associations to which reference has been made. These are at present seven in number, having their seats respectively at Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago, Louisville, and Cleveland, and employing a capital varying from 100,000 dollars to one-quarter of that sum. By the terms of the Association, three-fourths of the amount raised in each town must be invested in the stock of the central company, the remainder being available as a guarantee fund in connection with the periodical performances of the Company's troupe. Widespread interests are thus enlisted on behalf of the general enterprise, and the National Opera, as it moves about the country, goes, so to speak, from home to home. Permanent success, of course, depends upon whether the national musical talent prove equal to the obligations of a first-class lyric stage, but the point is worth testing, and we see no reason for coming to proof with other than confidence in a favourable issue.

THE dull season of the year is proverbially a trying time for journalists. Ordinary newspapers, however, have always a large field to glean news from, and if political events should not be sufficiently numerous, and no large specimens of fruit can be recorded, there is always the "sea-serpent" to fall back upon. Publications devoted to the arts, however, have but few stirring topics to write upon, and the story of the Musical Monkey, therefore, which comes to us from America, may have a chance of being listened to. It appears that a well-known musical savant has educated a favourite monkey to become a good pianist. "After only forty-eight lessons," we are told, "the monkey, Tabitha, who is a real ornament to her sex, could play scales with surprising dexterity. The suppleness of their fingers, their agility, their strength, all tend to show (at least according to Tabitha's master) that most monkeys are born pianists. Patience is the only thing required to bring out this hidden faculty." As a "Monkey Concert" has not yet been given, we cannot at present judge of their executive powers, but one or two features connected with such an exhibition, should it ever take place, at once strike us. In the first place, a Monkey piece, for four paws, will no doubt contain effects hitherto unknown, and, in the second place, the applause of the listeners will be given to the teacher, and not to the pupil. We can scarcely, perhaps, imagine that expression will be the strong point of the animal's performance; but if he can run up the scales as rapidly as he can run up a tree, there will most assuredly be people ready and willing to make such a show remunerative to a smart speculator.

FOLLOWING in the steps of Mrs. Fanny Raymond Ritter, another American author, Mr. C. P. Upton, has brought out a book which discusses the position of woman with regard to music. As an enthusiastic champion of the sex, Mr. Upton tries hard to make the best of facts which bear decidedly against him. There is no denying the remarkable disability of woman in the creative branch of the art. To her as a composer music owes next to nothing. Mr. Upton explains this by a purely emotional nature which, as such, cannot give expression to its ideas and feelings. But, according to our author, these ideas and feelings do find an outlet through man, to whose intellect woman brings heart and soul, thus making a complete being. Here we have a new revelation. The fact has never been questioned that woman is often the provocative of noble compositions, but now we are asked to believe that a creative masculine musician is a compound person with the feminine predominant. Mr. Upton's full claim on behalf of the sex runs thus:—"Woman, although not the creator, has inspired the creations and then interpreted them to the world." Poor man is almost out of it therefore. He does but journeyman's work in the common cause. Mr. Upton is singularly unfortunate in some of his illustrations. He talks of the influence of woman over Handel and Bach, as though there were any trace of femininity in their essentially virile compositions. Our author should rather have addressed himself to a solution of the riddle presented by woman in that, while almost powerless as a creative musician, she has attained eminence in other arts demanding emotional expression, as, for example, poetry and painting. Here lies the difficulty for those who would write in a sensible fashion about "Woman in music."

THE DEATH OF LISZT.

THE sad news from Bayreuth has long ago spread throughout the world. With the last breath of the dying July the great Master breathed his last, and with the early August morning telegrams were flashing the mournful tidings all over Europe.

His last illness, we are thankful to say, was but of short duration, but the symptoms of a fatal disease had already made their appearance some time previously. After his visit to London, from the fatigues of which, we believe, he felt no ill effects, came further and continuous excitements and musical festivities in his honour in Antwerp, Paris, and Sondershausen. Then with journeys to Weimar and Bayreuth (the latter for his granddaughter's wedding), to Luxemburg, on a visit he had promised to pay, and back to Bayreuth for the Wagner performances, what wonder that the giant frame gave way at last. Yet it was not until a short week before his death that the illness assumed a grave character, and even as late as a couple of days before the end, one of the physicians reported that, though serious, yet "hopes still outweighed apprehensions." On Friday, July 30, the Master had a very suffering day, owing to difficulty of breathing consequent upon the attack of inflammation of the lungs which proved fatal. On Saturday he suffered but little, and towards evening he lost consciousness, which he never recovered, and passed peacefully away about half-past eleven that night.

On Sunday an unceasing procession of the friends and lovers of Liszt, as well as of the general public and visitors at Bayreuth, streamed through the chamber of death, where, dressed in his Abbé's robe, lay the noble form that till so lately was still strong with life and power. Tall lighted tapers were arranged on either side, and for many hours Madame Wagner and her family kept their mournful watch at the bedside, while hundreds paid their last homage there.

To those who have been permitted to gaze upon that noble face, glorified in its last sleep, I think the remembrance can never fade away. The perfect peace, the serenity, the glory of it must remain for ever in our minds and hearts. A few forget-me-nots lie upon his breast; those wondrous magic hands, that have conjured up strains the like of which we may never hope to hear again, lie silent now for ever; at rest in the gentle clasp of death. But the echoes of those strains will linger for ever in our ears, and the day of hearing him play will mark an era in many a life. For to hear him was to listen to an inspiration; with other men we feel that we are listening to the results of arduous study, but with him we only feel that the sounds emanate direct from his soul, and as such are borne into our souls. As Heine said, "Chez Liszt on ne pense plus à la difficulté vaincue; l'instrument disparaît et la musique se révèle!"

The funeral took place on Tuesday, the 3rd ult., at ten o'clock in the morning. Much doubt was at first felt as to what would be the last resting place of the great Master, some holding the opinion that his native Hungary should receive the earthly remains of her most renowned child; others thinking that to Weimar, for so many years the home of his choice, and the resting place of Goethe and Schiller, should be accorded the honour of adding his name to the great ones already there. A difficulty was felt owing to the Master himself having on one occasion expressed the wish to lie in his native land, and having on another occasion said that he should wish to be buried wherever he died; "Nicht herumfahren" was his expression. Madame Wagner, who decided every detail in the matter herself, arranged that the funeral should take place at Bayreuth, though whether this decision will be final we cannot yet say.

It is deeply to be regretted that the funeral was fixed at such an untimely date, as it prevented many celebrated musicians and others from being present. The train service at Bayreuth, satisfactory as it is for all purposes connected with the Wagner performances, could not possibly be adequate for the occasion of this funeral; nor, had it been as extensive and efficient as that of London itself, could people have possibly arrived in time from such distant places as St. Petersburg, Moscow, and even nearer. Nevertheless, great numbers hastened thither from all parts, many arriving only at the last moment, even while the procession was wending its solemn way down the drive of Wahnfried. The coffin was carried by Bayreuth citizens from the hall of Wahnfried (Wagner's house, where it had been taken from Liszt's own dwelling hard by) to the four-horse carriage which awaited it, accompanied on each side by some of the pupils of Liszt, bearing torches; amongst whom was Bernhard Stavenhagen, the young and talented pupil who accompanied the Master on his late visit to London, and whose playing made such a favourable impression on his début there. The coffin was followed by Madame Wagner—her pale emaciated face scarcely visible through the long crêpe veil she wore—and her daughters, her son, Siegfried, her new son-in-law, and other ladies and intimate friends of the Wagner family. A carriage followed the hearse, on which were arranged the countless wreaths and palm leaves sent from far and wide; then came Liszt's faithful man-servant, bearing his master's orders and decorations on a velvet cushion; afterwards followed a great stream of people, some in carriages, but mostly on foot, amongst whom were all the principal artists of the Bayreuth performances; the conductors Herrn Livi (Munich) and Mottl (Frankfurt); the singers Frau Materna (Vienna), Fräulein Malthen and Herr Gudehus (Dresden), Herrn Vogl and Reichmann (Munich), &c.; Herrn von Joukowsky, Porges, Ritter, Glasenapp and wife, Richter from Vienna, Klindworth from Berlin, Walter Bache and Alfred Littleton from London, &c. The streets were hung with black flags, and the street lamps, which were all lighted, were veiled with black crêpe. Every window was filled with on-lookers, and all the rest of Bayreuth, strangers, &c., who were not joining in the funeral procession, lined the streets on each side nearly all the way to the cemetery.

The newly made grave is but a few paces removed from another tomb which Bayreuth may claim as her very own—that of Jean Paul Richter—which is formed of one large unpolished rock in its natural state, all overhung with ivy, and most beautiful from its perfect simplicity.

After the religious service over the coffin (which it was absolutely impossible for those to hear who stood at any distance), followed a speech by the Mayor of Bayreuth, Herr Muncker, in which he spoke with deep feeling of the loss all have sustained:—"Nun ist es Nacht im Haus," he said, quoting from "Tristan," "aber die Leuchte seines Ruhmes löscht nicht aus. Liszt, der geniale Virtuoso, der Meister der Töne, wird ewig leben." Other speeches followed, but the most touching moment was when an old and dear friend of the Master's, Herr Hofrath Gille from Jena, attempted to say a few farewell sentences by the grave of his beloved friend. The poor old man's words were almost inaudible from the sobs that choked his utterance, but not a heart was there but must have beaten in sympathy with his overpowering sorrow. After he had departed, all the remainder of the long cortège of mourners moved forward in turn to take a last look at the lowered coffin, and, according to German custom, to cast a handful of earth upon it—and the ceremony was over.

The next morning, the 4th ult., a Requiem Service took place in the Catholic Church in Bayreuth, at which a large concourse of people assembled. Of this Service perhaps the less said the better; we must add, however, that those who failed to arrive in time for the funeral have cause to rejoice that they were spared the mockery of the Requiem Service the next day.

The Bayreuth paper says that "the Requiem was given in a quiet manner, because Franz Liszt belonged to the third order of St. Francis, whose rules forbid a funeral service on a grand scale." Nevertheless we can scarcely think that St. Francis himself would have approved of a religious austerity that expressed itself by the inharmonious singing of a very inefficient choir, in turn with the nasal and discordant chanting of a couple or so of uninterested priests, varied by an aimless meandering over the organ keys by a very incompetent organist, who strung together scraps from "Parsifal," intermingled with other bits of interlude without either sense or significance—and all this to the memory of the Master of Sound! Surely some appropriate portions of his own religious works (his "Graner Messe" or the Chorus of Angels from his "St. Elizabeth") might have found a worthy place at this memorial service, and a fitting and willing interpretation from the many great artists assembled at that time in Bayreuth. But many who loved the Master could but feel that, had they known what was before them, nothing should have induced them to be present at a service that was such a poor honour—nay, even a dishonour—to his noble memory.

In a later visit to the grave we found it covered with branches of cypress, and a few wreaths were placed upon it; but the greater number were to be seen in the cemetery chapel adjoining: upon the grave were two from the Grand Duchess and the Princess Elizabeth of Saxe-Weimar: in the chapel were more than eighty, amongst which were wreaths from Queen Victoria; from the Wagner-Vereins in Bayreuth and London; the Liszt-Verein; the Bayreuth orchestra; the Bayreuth Bühnenfestspiel artists; the Bayreuth Liederkrantz; the Vienna, Leipzig, and Weimar theatres; the town of Weimar, tied with its colours, black, gold, and red; the town of Jena, consisting of a laurel wreath, with the inscription, "Die Stadt Jena ihrem hochverdienenden Ehrenbürger, 1842—1886"; the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Verein, with the inscription, "seinem unvergesslichen Ehren-Präsidenten Franz Liszt"; a Hungarian wreath, tied with its colours, red, white, and green, and the inscription, "Zeretet Sogoromnak," from Robert Franz; from Sophie Menter, a wreath of Edelweiss, with the inscription, "Heil dem Unsterblichen"; a nameless one, with the words, "Liebe und Dankbarkeit folgt über das Grab hinaus"; one from Mr. and Madame Munkacsy, with a Hungarian inscription; and many others, including the names of many celebrated musicians.

With Liszt's death is broken the last link that bound us to a long chain of great and celebrated artists in the past. We need but to recall the names of Chopin, Berlioz,

Schubert, Schumann, Cornelius, Wagner—every one of whom received appreciation and aid when he needed it, and before his fame was made, from the helping hand now stilled in death! And at the beginning of the chain stands Beethoven—and at the end of it stands Liszt! Put it away now—lock it up intact in the recesses of heart and memory—add no other to it; the circle is completed; the little Liszt received the kiss of the giant Beethoven—the two great ones meet, the ends of the chain unite and close, and between them, as sparkling gems in the circlet, appear the other names immortal as these! C. B.

THE BAYREUTH FESTSPIEL.

THE festival month is over, and the Bayreuth performances are a thing of the past. Not so, however, in the minds of those who had the happiness to be present, for the remembrance of them will long remain, as of a something unsurpassed in the annals of stage performances.

This year an additional interest has been created by the performance of "Tristan und Isolde" in change with "Parsifal." No better choice could possibly have been made. Not only does the story of "Tristan" form the best possible contrast to that of "Parsifal," but the two greatest of Wagner's creations have been thus placed side by side; for by many of the most competent judges "Tristan" is considered Wagner's noblest work, while to others "Parsifal" must still ever outshine all his earlier compositions.

It is hardly necessary to repeat the stories in detail here. That of "Parsifal" has already been fully described in these pages at the last representations two years ago, and "Tristan" is not quite a stranger to the London boards.

On the one side we have a portrayal of human love; on the other a picture of the divine love of the Saviour, exemplified in Parsifal, a being who is intended (in part) as a sort of type of Christ.

Tristan, the noble minded, the soul of honour, is compelled, by a wretched love-potion which he drinks unknowingly, to forswear himself and to act in the basest, ignoble manner to the man who has trusted him as his second self. Isolde, the proud, the pure, by the same love-potion becomes the victim of a betrayal the most foul and the most unworthy of the man who has believed in her above and beyond all women! A sad story indeed, and one that would be too repulsive were it not that the hapless lovers, Tristan and Isolde, are the unconscious victims of their own luckless deeds.

But to turn from "Tristan" to "Parsifal" is like turning from the garish glare of the sun to the peaceful stillness and purity of the silver moon. In one's whole recollection of the latter play the principal figure stands out in bold relief, pure, immovable, steadfast, and swerving neither to the right nor to the left, in spite of the temptations that beset him. In "Tristan" we see the bright star that we so looked up to in the opening scene fall from its height and sink down into the darkness of betrayal and treachery—we repeat to ourselves and assure ourselves that he is helpless in the matter and not to blame—nevertheless Tristan has fallen; the star has set in darkness and night; in "Parsifal" we see the bright and morning star that, in the first Act, is but just rising, ascend higher and higher unto the perfect day; and from the first we know that he will pass through fire and water and will come out unsullied.

Temptation assails him in the form of a beautiful woman, who attempts under various guise to lure him from the paths of innocence (of which he is the type) into the paths of sin, as typified by the garden of Klingsor, the magician. Here we must turn aside for a moment to cast a glance of pity on Kundry, the temptress—again a type. How many women are there not who turn sullen and obstinate (as Kundry, in Act 1) from the knowledge of a past sin, which they can neither forgive in themselves nor believe that anyone else will pardon! How many, again, are there who plunge into greater sin from the haunting memory of past ones, and under its evil influence (typified by Klingsor) seek to ensnare others, as Kundry tempts Parsifal in Act 2. Again, when temptation has assailed him on all points in vain, and he drives the temptress from his side in horror, how many another also would recoil from her past evil life with loathing, and seek redemption at the hand that no amount of temptation could sully!

Yes, for some of us "Parsifal" will always remain a work apart—the work that transcends all else that Wagner ever conceived—a sacred work, and one that fills one's heart with a peace and happiness nothing else can give (just as some have felt about the Ammergau "Passion" Play); and for those it remains a cause for thankfulness that it has never been attempted to bring it away from its native home. Portions, alas, have been condemned; and excerpts have already made their way to the Albert Hall, &c., but we have at least one remedy—we need not go to hear them; but we are thankful to know that, at any rate during Madame Wagner's lifetime, the wishes of her husband will be held sacred, and that she will hold to the exclusive right of performance at Bayreuth only, as hitherto.

Many of the performers we welcomed back as old friends, who not only took part in "Parsifal" two years ago, but also at its installation in 1882, under the minute personal superintendence of the Master himself; and even two or three we could greet as staunch allies of 1876, the year when the Bayreuth performances first opened. Thanks to the indefatigable labours of Madame Wagner, the traditions of 1882 have been preserved intact, and the Master's spirit has still ruled the performances under the guidance of his devoted wife. She was there day after day; unseen by the audience she sat just on one side of the drop-curtain, where she had the command of the whole stage. We have again had the guiding hand of Capellmeister Levi to conduct "Parsifal," while Herr Mottl, of Frankfort, directed "Tristan." Again the majestic form and tragic power of Frau Materna were seen to highest advantage in the triune rôle of Kundry; while Reichmann (as of old) and Gura divided that of Amfortas; and Siehr (as formerly) and Wiegand alternated in the part of the aged Gurnemanz. None, I am sure, could see the curtain rise upon the picturesque group of Gurnemanz and the youths without deeply regretting the untimely death of poor Scaria, who filled that part in a manner not to be surpassed, and whose melancholy fate and sad death quite recently cannot be passed over unnoticed here.

We have had a new Parsifal in addition to some of those of previous representations. And, without in the least detracting from the admirable performance of Gudehus and Winkelmann on former occasions, we must confess that in Vogl the highest possible conception of the rôle of Parsifal has, to our thinking, been attained. That Herr Vogl should play the part as he does shows that he has not only studied it profoundly, but that he has conceived and grasped its meaning thoroughly. From the scene in the temple, where he has to stand some thirty minutes or so, a motionless representation of unconscious innocence and ignorance, to the last Act, where he absolves the repentant Magdalene—all is lofty, calm, dignified, and noble in his demeanour. The moment when he calls in agony on Amfortas; the moment when he sinks on his knees in prayer for pardon for his seeming guilt; the moment when he kneels in an ecstasy of adoration before the recovered spear—one may almost look upon these as inspirations, so powerful an effect did they make. Herr Vogl is most truly to be congratulated on his representation of Parsifal, than which a finer has never yet been given. Herr Gudehus has been winning fresh laurels for himself in the stormy rôle of Tristan, playing with a soul-stirring fervour and passion, which works up to a climax in the tragic third Act. The scene with his faithful Kurwenal is one of the most touching in the whole work; and who is there who has ever sounded the height and depth of the tragic more terribly than Wagner, when he makes Tristan tear off the bandage in the excitement of madness at hearing his Isolde's voice, and die in her arms with only power to ejaculate her name? After all her suffering, it is the sublime issue of the tragedy when this is reached!

As Isolde, Fräulein Malthen's powerful and elastic voice was heard to the utmost advantage, as also in the seductive second Act of "Parsifal," in which play she alternated with Frau Materna. On the second occasion of seeing her as Isolde, we were thankful that she appeared without that winding-sheet arrangement on her head, when she rushes in in the last Act, as it gave the impression of her having entered a convent immediately on the loss of her lover, and was altogether a most ghastly idea. The favourable impression she made by her magnificent rendering of the second Act from "Tristan," at the Richter Concerts in London a few months ago, is still fresh in our minds.

The rôle of Isolde was on alternate occasions taken by Frau Sucher, of Hamburg, whose rendering of the part—charming, loving, tender, and womanly—may be altogether summed up in the word ideal.

We must not conclude without mentioning the refined and (we might add) religious acting of Fräulein Cramer, a young lady who is by this time well known in the London concert-rooms; her rôle in "Parsifal" is a silent one, and her powerful voice is therefore hors de combat, but the part she takes (that of the bearer of the Grail), is none the less a most important one, requiring a quiet dignity, and calm, deliberate bearing, which Fräulein Cramer knows how to give in the highest degree; and, where one hasty or awkward movement would mar the whole, we cannot sufficiently admire the beauty of the scene of which she forms a sort of second centre.

There is a rumour that next year "The Meistersinger" will be added to the Bayreuth répertoire. We most earnestly hope it may prove a certainty!

C. B.

CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL.

ON Friday, July 30, the new organ, which has been erected by Messrs. Willis and Son, was formally dedicated for use in Divine Service. The instrument is the first erected in any church according to the builders' new patent combination of pneumatic and electric appliances, for which they received the Gold Medal at the Inventions Exhibition last year. It has four manuals and eighty-seven stops, including couplers and accessory movements. After much discussion of various sites, it was finally decided that the instrument should be erected in the triforium on the south side of the choir, the same position as that which the old organ occupied. The portions of the old organ which were deemed worthy of preservation have been incorporated into the new instrument, among which may be specially mentioned Green's famous diapasons, which are said to have been used at the first Handel commemoration at Westminster Abbey, in 1784. The pedal-organ is at present incomplete; but it is hoped that before long the necessary funds will be forthcoming to supply this deficiency, and also to provide an engine (either gas or water) for the bellows. The keyboard is placed just above the choir-screen, under the second arch on the south side—a considerable distance from the instrument itself, so much so that about ninety miles of copper wire have been used to connect the manuals to the various parts of the organ. But, in spite of this distance, the performer is put to no inconvenience, the interval between the touch of the player and the speaking of the pipes being imperceptible.

July 30 was a memorable day for Canterbury, not only on account of the organ dedication, but also from the fact that a large party of our Indian and Colonial visitors were entertained by the Mayor and Corporation, and by their presence at the Cathedral in the afternoon lent a sort of national importance to a festival which might otherwise have been thought of merely local interest.

The services throughout the day were thoroughly successful and attended by large congregations. Matins and Litany were sung without accompaniment. At 11 a.m. the new organ was solemnly dedicated, and under the special Dedication Office, read by the Dean, the Holy Communion was celebrated, the choral parts being sung to Dr. Stainer's fine setting in A and D. Dr. Longhurst, the Cathedral Organist, "opened" the instrument and accompanied the service. The choir were ably assisted, at the morning and afternoon services, by singers from the Chapel Royal, St. Paul's, Rochester Cathedral, and other choirs; and at the special service in the evening by the Cathedral Voluntary Choir. At the afternoon and evening services Dr. Stainer, of St. Paul's, accompanied, and, at the conclusion of each service, gave an Organ Recital. Dr. Stainer's abilities are so well known that comment upon his performances is needless. But we cannot refrain from noticing as specially worthy of mention his accompaniment of the opening chorus of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," "All men, all things," which was sung as the anthem at the afternoon service. Those who were present will not soon forget the wonderful precision, and at the same time the beautiful delicacy, of his accompaniment. Recitals have been given on Wednesday evenings during the past month, and have been enjoyed by a large number of people in Canterbury and the neighbourhood. The performers have been Dr. Bridge and Messrs. Turpin, Jekyll, and J. B. Lott; and on the 1st inst. Dr. Longhurst will bring the series to a close. In conclusion, we may say that Canterbury has good reason to be proud of its new organ, and the citizens are beginning to wonder how they managed to be content for so long with their old instrument, which, after all has been said in its favour, was altogether inadequate to the requirements of modern music, and, looking to what has been done in other places, hardly necessary to retain its place in the Metropolitan Cathedral.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

AFTER the usual summer vacation, during which the only pretensions to musical performances have been monopolised by the Exhibition, the first evidences of the coming season are beginning to show themselves, and lead us to anticipate that the record of musical advancement and successes will be at least up to the average.

First in chronological order, the Philharmonic Society has issued its preliminary prospectus of promises, including two of the works produced at the last Birmingham Festival—viz., Villiers Stanford's "Three Holy Children" and Dvorák's "Spectre's Bride." C. Harford Lloyd's "Song of Balder" is also to be heard in Liverpool for the first time, but we have still to wait for the appearance of Gounod's "Mors et Vita," which our principal Society, notwithstanding its special advantages and orchestral resources, seems so timorous of attempting. The vocalists already engaged comprise a fine array of competent artists, including Madame Albani, Mdlle. Frohström, Madame Valleria, Madame Patey, Madame Trebelli, Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Signor del Puente, Mr. John Bridson, and Mr. Santley; and the instrumentalists consist of Madame Norman-Néruda, Dr. Joachim, and Signor Piatti. The first Concert of the Society takes place on October 5, and the season will comprise the usual twelve performances, all under the direction of Mr. Charles Hallé.

The Philharmonic Choral Society is also making arrangements for the commencement of a vigorous season, and its opening Concert, in November, will be devoted to a performance of "Elijah," the grand Oratorio which first launched the Society, at one swoop, into popular favour and esteem. It is expected that the other Concerts of the series will include the production of one of the great novelties which have attained such repute elsewhere. Mr. Alberto Randegger, who is now so identified with the career and progress of the Philharmonic Choral Society, will, of course, continue to act as Conductor.

Mr. Charles Hallé also purposes giving his customary series of eight orchestral Concerts in the Philharmonic Hall; and although not yet published, we have reason to believe that the programmes will fully maintain the usual high standard.

The Liverpool International Exhibition continues prosperous, and whilst the musical arrangements can scarcely be said to reach perfection, or even the exacting expectations of the average critic, they have been sufficiently varied and enterprising to attract and entertain many thousands who probably would not otherwise have been included amongst the visitors.

The bands which have appeared in rapid succession include the Guards, the Viennese Ladies' Band, the Blue Hungarians, and the Belgian Guides. The last mentioned came with a previous high reputation, and by special permission of the King of the Belgians. Their performances are meritorious, but there is a superfluity of brass and percussion which might be irritating if they did not play in the open air. The Blue Hungarians, on the other hand, although numbering only twelve, all strings, have won their way in popular esteem to an amazing extent, and the enthusiasm of the crowded audiences must be welcome to the performers, and may possibly extend their stay.

The great organ, which has been erected in the Concert Hall by Messrs. Michell and Thynne, was opened in July by Dr. Peace, of Glasgow, and the following organists have since given Recitals: Mr. H. A. Branscombe, Mr. Alfred Hollins (from the Royal Normal College), Mr. J. Tomlinson, Mr. I. Herbert Stammers, Dr. R. W. Crowe, and Mr. W. A. Roberts.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HERR C. AUG. FISCHER'S visit to Edinburgh last month was an event of no small musical interest. Herr Fischer (born 1829) is Royal Director of Music to the Court of Saxony, and an organist and composer of fame in his own country. His style of organ-playing is exceedingly powerful and original, and lends a new interest even to the best known and oftenest heard works; while his reminiscences of famous musicians—Schumann, Wagner, Liszt, &c., add great charm to his conversation. He gave one Recital (Friday, July 30) on the powerful organ (Bishop and Sons) in the Exhibition, and many friends were enabled to hear him again in St. Mary's Cathedral (31st), by the kindness of Mr. Collinson. The Professor of Music also put the fine class-room organ at his disposal for one hour, but no one was allowed to be present. His programme at the Exhibition began with an arrangement of Bach's Chromatic Fantasia, the massive chords and stately progressions of which lend themselves very readily to effective treatment on the organ. An improvisation in the German style followed. Herr Fischer took as a subject the old Scotch tune "Dundee," and for nearly half-an-hour displayed his cultured taste and his perfect mastery of all details of organ-playing and composition. The last item was his own "Easter" Concerto, a work which is sure to command the admiration of every organist whose technique enables him to master its difficulties. Most noteworthy is the tender beauty and thorough originality of the Adagio movement, "Christus am Kreuz." Unfortunately the trombones, trumpets, and drums, which ought to have given prominence to the Choral "Sleepers, wake," at the end of the last movement, were wanting, owing to a hitch in the arrangements. Few who heard it will forget the effect of this really magnificent Concerto. Herr Fischer, during his stay in Edinburgh, was the guest of Mr. Franklin Peterson, who is one of his pupils. The Conversazione in celebration of the jubilee of the Charlotte Square Institution, on July 21, was largely attended and highly successful. A well selected programme of vocal and instrumental music was provided, amongst the most prominent items of which were a Trio by Raff (Op. 155), performed with much effect by Mr. Lichtenstein, Madame Agnes Drescher Hamilton, and Mr. Carl D. Hamilton, and Madame Hopekirk's exquisite rendering of two of Schubert's songs, arranged by Liszt, the pianist's presence on this occasion being a worthy tribute to her master, Mr. Lichtenstein, under whom she studied for five or six years before proceeding to complete her musical education on the Continent. On the following day the prizes were distributed by Miss Flora Stevenson.

MUSICAL MEETINGS IN WALES.

THE Brass Band Contest at Merthyr took place at Pen-y-darren Park, on the 2nd ult., the attendance being very large. Three prizes of £40, £20, and £10 were offered for the best rendering, by brass bands of from sixteen to twenty-four performers, of Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" (Wright and Round's arrangement), the contest being open to all England. The adjudicator, Mr. Thomas Martin, late Bandmaster of the 4th Royal Irish Dragoon Guards, was located in a tent a little distance from the performers, whom he could not see, and whose merits and demerits he had, therefore, to record against a number indicating the order in which they played. The Bands appeared as follows:—(1) 22nd Lancashire Rifle Volunteer Band, Oldham, twenty-four members (Conductor, Mr. A. Owen); (2) Cymmer Brass Band, twenty-one (Mr. R. Martin); (3)

Jesu, gibe Thy servants.

September 1, 1895.

(AVE MARIS STELLA.)

ANTHEM FOR FOUR VOICES.

The English words by W. CHATTERTON DIX.

Composed by FRANZ LISZT.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.

Andante sostenuto più tosto Lento.

SOPRANO.

Je - - - - su, Je - su, give Thy ser - vants Con - so - la - tion
A - ve Ma - ris stel - la! A - ve Ma - ris stel - la! Ma - ter De - i

ALTO.

Je - - - - su, Je - su, give Thy ser - vants Con - so - la - tion
A - ve Ma - ris stel - la! A - ve Ma - ris stel - la! Ma - ter De - i

TENOR.

Je - su, give Thy ser - vants Con - so - la - tion
A - ve Ma - ris stel - la! Ma - ter De - i

BASS.

Je - su, give Thy ser - vants Con - so - la - tion
A - ve Ma - ris stel - la! Ma - ter De - i

Andante sostenuto più tosto Lento.

ORGAN.

sure; . . . Haste Thee to us, bring - ing Blessings that en - dure. . . Take a - way our al - ma, At - que sem - per Vir - go, Fe - lix cœ - li por - ta. Su - mens il - lud sure; . . . Haste Thee to us, bring - ing Blessings that en - dure. . . Take a - way our al - ma, At - que sem - per Vir - go, Fe - lix cœ - li por - ta. Su - mens il - lud sure; . . . Haste Thee to us, bring - ing Blessings that en - dure. . . Take a - way our al - ma, At - que sem - per Vir - go, Fe - lix cœ - li por - ta. Su - mens il - lud sure; . . . Haste Thee to us, bring - ing Blessings that en - dure. . . Take a - way our al - ma, At - que sem - per Vir - go, Fe - lix cœ - li por - ta. Su - mens il - lud sor-rows, Make us glad in heart; We are full of trou-ble, If from Thee we

A - ve Ga-bri-e-lis o - re, Fun-da nos in pa-ce, Mu-tans E - vae

sor-rows, Make us glad in heart; . . . We are full of trou-ble, If from Thee we
A - ve Ga-bri-e-lis o - re, Fun-da nos in pa-ce, Mu-tans E - vae

sor-rows, Make us glad in heart; We are full of trou-ble, If from Thee we
A - ve Ga-bri-e-lis o - re, Fun-da nos in pa-ce, Mu-tans E - vae

sor-rows, Make us glad in heart; We are full of trou-ble, If from Thee we
A - ve Ga-bri-e-lis o - re, Fun-da nos in pa-ce, Mu-tans E - part. . . we part. Go not Thou far from us In our time of need, no - - men. Sol - va vin-cla reis . . Pro-fer lu-men cæ-cis, smorz.

part. . . we part. Go not Thou far from us In our time of need, no - - men. Sol - va vin-cla reis . . Pro-fer lu-men cæ-cis, smorz.

part. . . we part. Go not Thou far from us In our time of need, no - - men. Sol - va vin-cla reis . . Pro-fer lu-men cæ-cis. smorz.

part. . . we part. Go not Thou far from us In our time of need, no - - men. Sol - va vin-cla reis . . Pro-fer lu-men cæ-cis, smorz.

mf smorzando. molto espressivo.
p
 Je - su, if Thou leave us, Mourners we in - deed. . . O pre -
 Ma - la nos - tra pel - le, Bo - na cunc - ta pos - ce. Mon - stra mf smorzando. molto espressivo.

p
 Je - su, if Thou leave us, Mourners we in - deed. . . O pre -
 Ma - la nos - tra pel - le, Bo - na cunc - ta pos - ce. Mon - stra mf smorzando. molto espressivo.

p
 Je - su, if Thou leave us, Mourners we in - deed. . . O pre -
 Ma - la nos - tra pel - le, Bo - na cunc - ta pos - ce. Mon - stra mf smorzando. espressivo.

p
 Je - su, if Thou leave us, Mourners we in - deed. . . O pre - vent, pre - Ma - la nos - tra pel - le, Bo - na cunc - ta pos - ce. Mon - stra te

p

- vent us, pre - vent us al - way, Be Thou ev - er,
 te es - se Ma - trem, Su - mat per te . . .

- vent us, pre - vent us al - way, Be Thou ev - er,
 te es - se Ma - trem, Su - mat per te . . .

- vent us, pre - vent us al - way, Be Thou ev - er, te es - se Ma - trem, sempre espress. Su - mat per te . . .

- vent us, pre - vent us al - way, Be Thou ev - er, ev - er,
 . . . es - se Ma - trem, Su - mat per te pre - p dolce.

ev - er near, Light when falls the dark-ness, Hope in time of pre - ces, Qui pro no - bis na - tus, Tu - lit es - se

p dolce.

ev - er near, Light when falls the dark-ness, Hope in time of pre - ces, Qui pro no - bis na - tus, Tu - lit es - se

p dolce.

ev - er near, Light when falls the dark - ness, Hope in time of pre - ces, Qui pro no - bis na - tus, Tu - lit es - se

p dolce.

ev - er near, Light when falls . . the dark - ness, Hope in time of
- - - ces, Qui pro no - - bis na - tus, Tu - lit es - se smorz.

fear. . .
 tu - us.

smorz.

fear. . .
 tu - us.

smorz.

fear. . .
 tu - us.

smorz.

fear. . .
 tu - us.

pp

so to Thine A - pos - tles Thou wast ev - er near, . . So with-in . . our Vir - go sin - gu - la - ris, In - ter om - nes mi - tis, Nos cul - pis so -

so to Thine A - pos - tles Thou wast ev - er near, . . So with-in . . our Vir - go sin - gu - la - ris, In - ter om - nes mi - tis, Nos cul - pis so -

so to Thine A - pos - tles Thou wast ev - er near, . . So with-in . . our Vir - go sin - gu - la - ris, In - ter om - nes mi - tis, Nos cul - pis so -

p so to Thine A - pos - tles Thou wast ev - er near, . . Sa - viour, Vir - go sin - gu - la - ris, In - ter om - nes mi - tis, cul - pis so -

spi - rits, Tar - ry, Sa - viour dear. . . Joined to Thee in meek - ness,
- lu - tos, Mi - tes fac et cas - tos, Vi - tam præ - sta pu - ram,

spi - rits, Tar - ry, Sa - viour dear. . . Joined to Thee in meek - ness,
- lu - tos, Mi - tes fac et cas - tos, Vi - tam præ - sta pu - ram,

spi - rits, Tar - ry, Sa - viour dear. . . Joined to Thee in meek - ness,
- lu - tos, Mi - tes fac et cas - tos, Vi - tam præ - sta pu - ram,

Sa - viour, Tar - ry, Sa - viour dear. . . Joined to Thee in meek - ness,
- lu - tos, Mi - tes fac et cas - tos, Vi - tam præ - sta pu - ram,

Mer-ci-ful, we pray, . . Turn our tears to glad-ness, Turn our night to
I-ter pa-ra tu-tum, Ut vi-den-tes Je-sum, Sem-per col-læ-

Mer-ci-ful, we pray, . . Turn our tears to glad-ness, Turn our night to
I-ter pa-ra tu-tum, Ut vi-den-tes Je-sum, Sem-per col-læ-

Mer-ci-ful, we pray, . . Turn our tears to glad-ness, Turn our night to
I-ter pa-ra tu-tum, Ut vi-den-tes Je-sum, Sem-per col-læ-

Mer-ci-ful, we pray, . . Turn our tears to glad-ness, Turn our night to I-ter pa-ra tu-tum, Ut vi-den-tes Je-sum, Sem-per poco rit. a tempo.

day, to day. Com-fort hearts that long so, With Thy Spi-rit's grace;
- te - - mur. Sit laus De-o Pa-tri, Sum-mo Christo de-cus,

poco rit. a tempo.
day, to day. Com-fort hearts that long so, With Thy Spi-rit's grace;
- te - - mur. Sit laus De-o Pa-tri, Sum-mo Christo de-cus,

poco rit. a tempo.
day, . . to day. Com-fort hearts that long so, With Thy Spi-rit's grace;
- te - - mur. Sit laus De-o Pa-tri, Sum-mo Christo de-cus,

poco rit. a tempo.
day, . . to day. Com-fort hearts that long so, With Thy Spi-rit's grace;
col-læ-te-mur, Sit laus De-o Pa-tri, Sum-mo Christo de-cus,

Piu lento.

Thou to wea-ry pil-grims Rock and Rest-ing place. A - - - -
Spi-ri-tu-i Sanc-to, Tri-bus ho-nor u-nus. A - - - -

Thou to wea-ry pil-grims Rock and Rest-ing place. A - - - -
Spi-ri-tu-i Sanc-to, Tri-bus ho-nor u-nus. A - - - -

Thou to wea-ry pil-grims Rock and Rest-ing place. A - - - -
Spi-ri-tu-i Sanc-to, Tri-bus ho-nor u-nus. A - - - -

Thou to wea-ry pil-grims Rock and Rest-ing place. A - - - -
Spi-ri-tu-i Sanc-to, Tri-bus ho-nor u-nus. A - - - -

Piu lento.

pp

- - - men, A - - - men.
 - - - men, A - - - men.

pp

- - - men, A - - - men.
 - - - men, A - - - men.

pp

- - - men, A - - - men, A - - - - - men. . .
 - - - men, A - - - men, A - - - - - men. . .

pp

- - - men, A - - - men, A - - - - - men. . .
 - - - men, A - - - men, A - - - - - men. . .

p molto ritenuto e perdendo.

COMPOSITIONS BY ANTONÍN DVOŘÁK.

THE SPECTRE'S BRIDE

A DRAMATIC CANTATA FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA
Op. 69.

The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D., from the Poem by K. J. ERBEN.
Composed expressly for the Birmingham Festival, 1885.

Paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth gilt, 5s.; full score, 63s.; string parts, 17s. 6d.; wind parts, £1 10s. 3d.; vocal parts, 1s. each.

THE TIMES.

"His instrumentation more especially is full of the most startling surprises, which defy description. . . . The first of these songs, dealing with the Maiden's thought of her long-lost lover, is extremely charming. In its quaint rhythms and graceful floriture, the Bohemian element, so important in Dvořák's music, will be easily recognised. The second solo, embodying the Maiden's prayer in her highest need, rises to a fine climax of religious fervour."

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"Antonin Dvořák is now more destined than ever to be the composer who combines in himself the highest qualities of his art. What his symphonies and his 'Stabat Mater' proclaimed, 'The Spectre's Bride' affirms and proves beyond possibility of cavil. . . . The music to the narrative is mighty in its picturesqueness and force. It swoops down irresistibly, so to speak, upon the hearer, and carries him helplessly away on its tide. Nor does the current ever slacken. By device after device interest is kindled anew. Now melody, now harmony, now rhythm give stimulus, and both mind and ear lend themselves gratefully to the task imposed upon them. The power of music increases as the climax is approached, the scene in the hut where the Maiden takes refuge being of enthralling power, a fact the more to be observed because nothing is due to mere sensationalism."

STANDARD.

"Enthusiasm such as was bestowed upon 'The Spectre's Bride' has seldom been heard at Birmingham; and the composer, who conducted, received a greeting at the close that will still ring in his ears when he returns home to Prague. He was twice recalled by the acclamations."

ATHENÆUM.

"Of the music it is quite impossible in words to convey any adequate idea. Whatever we may say will appear weak to those who have heard the work, and exaggerated to those who have not. . . . A well-known musician remarked during the performance, 'The man is a magician!' and we heartily endorse the statement."

A PATRIOTIC HYMN

From the Bohemian Poem, "The Heirs of the White Mountain," written by VÍTĚSLAV HÁLEK.

The music composed for Chorus and Orchestra, and dedicated with feelings of deep gratitude to the English people.
The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Price 1s. 6d.; full score, 21s.; string parts, 4s. 6d.; wind parts, 15s.

STABAT MATER

FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

Op. 58.

Paper cover, 2s. 6d.; paper boards, 3s.; cloth gilt, 4s.; full score, 45s.; orchestral parts, 30s.; vocal parts, 9d. each.

THE TIMES.

"To sum up, Dvořák's 'Stabat Mater' is undoubtedly an original effort of great power, all the more worthy of notice at a time when the clever repetition of musical platitudes is too frequently mistaken for genuine inspiration."

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"Their verdict can only be one of strengthened approval—more complete recognition of the fact that here we have music absolutely original and absolutely great! Let the reader pause to grasp the full significance of words which prudent criticism uses very rarely indeed, and then only under extreme provocation. I am ready to justify them if they be called in question. There is not a passage in the 'Stabat Mater' upon which a man can place his finger, saying, 'That is in letter or in idea a borrowed thing.' Neither is there a passage justly open to the charge of falling below the dignity or failing in expression of the pathos of the subject."

MORNING POST.

"Dvořák, with less experience, but greater musical genius, than Rossini, treats his 'Stabat Mater' as absolute music; and, probably without a thought at first of its ever being brought to a hearing, began his work out of the depth of his heart, and 'heart to heart' speaketh herein."

STANDARD.

"The whole work is a production of very great merit, and will assuredly be heard again and again."

WEEKLY DISPATCH.

"I have described it in detail on previous occasions, and therefore shall only say now that no other work since Beethoven conveys to my mind a stronger sense of sustained grandeur, pathos, and melodic richness."

LONDON AND NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

Heywood Rifle Band, Manchester, twenty-two (Mr. Gladney); (4) Swansea Resident Town Band, twenty-one (Mr. W. Lingwood); (5) Mountain Ash Volunteer Band, twenty-one (Mr. R. Shaw); (6) Ferndale Select Brass Band, twenty (Mr. R. Howe); (7) Heywood Brass Band, Manchester, twenty-three (Mr. A. Owen); (8) Irwell Bank Band, Stoneclough, twenty-three (Mr. J. Gladney); (9) Aberaman, seventeen (Mr. Priestwood). The local bands, it must be confessed, did not compare very favourably with several of the Northern bands, both in point of execution and the quality of the instruments. At the close of the contest the adjudicator requested that No. 1 and No. 8 band might play the selection over again (by-the-bye, Mr. Charles Godfrey chose the test piece, by desire), but the bandsmen referred to preferred that the prizes, if that was the question, should be divided, as their train arrangements had to be considered. Subsequently Mr. Martin said he never had any doubt as to which band the first prize ought to go, No. 7 (the Heywood band) was entitled to it; but a difficulty had arisen in regard to No. 1 and No. 8, in consequence of the intervals which had been allowed to elapse between the playing of the bands, but, in accordance with the wishes of the competitors concerned, he would divide the second and third prize between them. The adjudicator commented upon the splendid double-forte playing of the Heywood band. The solos were given too with very great expression and feeling. It may incidentally be mentioned that the Ferndale and Mountain Ash bands protested against the same conductor leading more than one band, but the objection had no effect whatever, as the rules specified that "One professional man will be allowed to each band, to lead and conduct, he may also play in that capacity, but in that case he will be accounted one of the players. . . . No performer will be allowed in any other than his own band, except the conductor."

On the same day the newly formed South Wales Choral Union gave a rendering of "St. Paul," at Caerphilly Castle. The vocalists, numbering 500, were drawn from Cardiff, Merthyr, Pontypridd, and other places in the district. Mr. C. T. Roberts led the orchestral band of string instruments, and the leading soloists were Madame Williams-Penn, Miss Maggie Matthews (Cardiff), Mr. David Davies, Mr. A. Reynolds, and Mr. Gwilym Thomas.

On July 29 a Festival of church choirs was held at Llandaff Cathedral. The united choirs numbered about 1,300 voices—viz., trebles, 587; altos, 206; tenors, 249; basses, 246. The Conductor was Mr. Richard Seaton (Organist, Margam Abbey), and the Organist Mr. H. Brooksbank.

An interesting Eisteddfod was held at the end of July at Pontypridd. Mr. Ignatius Williams presided. The Ferndale Brass Band won the prize of eight guineas for the best rendering of "The Heavens are telling" (Lacey's arrangement). The Treherbert Choir (Mr. Noel Williams, Conductor) best rendered "Yr haf" ("Summer.") £30 was offered for the best performance of "We never will bow down" (Handel), for which three choirs competed, and Treorkey won.

OBITUARY.

HENRY JARRETT.—On the 2nd ult. died, at Buenos Ayres, a man who has exerted no small influence upon the course of operatic events in England during many years. Henry Jarrett was a native of Bath, and first became connected with music as a horn player in the theatre there. At that time one company served the theatres of Bath and Bristol, performing in each on alternate days. It was Jarrett's duty to do the same, and, his pay being too small for any other mode of locomotion, he regularly walked to Bristol and back the same night, carrying his instrument under his arm. His progress as an executive musician presently entitled him to look for employment in the Metropolis. This he had no difficulty in obtaining, and soon he rose to eminence as a cornist, not only at the Opera, but in connection with the best orchestral Concerts of the time. His performance of the first horn part in Beethoven's Choral Symphony is still remembered by veteran amateurs. But Jarrett, who was one of the shrewdest of men, and knew human nature well, aspired to a position where his best qualities could have free play, and, in course of time, he entered upon a managerial career, figuring for one season as the head of a German Opera enterprise at Drury Lane Theatre. This turned out disastrously. Jarrett lost all the capital he had embarked in the scheme, and thenceforward he encountered no more such risks, but preferred to exercise his abilities in the service of others. Hence an engagement with Mr. Mapleson, when that now experienced manager passed from the employment of Mr. E. T. Smith to the control of Her Majesty's Theatre. Jarrett served Mapleson well. He was at once the head and hands of the establishment, from 1862 till, in 1870, the impresario entered into a short and inglorious alliance with Mr. F. Gye. During the intervening years much was done of an interesting and valuable character both at Her Majesty's and, when that theatre was burnt in 1867, at Drury Lane. On parting from Mr. Mapleson, in 1870, Jarrett transferred his services to Mr. George Wood for one memorable season at the National Theatre, afterwards interesting himself chiefly in the fortunes of individual artists, by whom his aid and counsel as "agent" were eagerly sought. He acted in this capacity for many famous performers, including Madame Nilsson, Madame Lucca, Miss Van Zandt, Mr. Joseph Maas, and Madame Bernhardt, all of whom benefited greatly by his knowledge of affairs, and his unsparing devotion to their interests. In these respects Jarrett was a model "agent." He took his quid pro quo to the uttermost farthing, but he also took care to earn it. His client was for the time being himself, and for his client no exertions were too severe. He died in harness, having accompanied Madame Bernhardt to South America when the hand of the Destroyer was visibly upon him. But while any life remained he held himself at the call of duty. This was the secret of his success, and his noblest as well as most distinctive quality.

AUGUST EDUARD GRELL.—On the 10th ult. there died at Steglitz, near Berlin, a musician who may be said to have only become generally appreciated and, indeed, famous, at least in his own country, after the number of his years had already exceeded by a long way the proverbial limit of threescore and ten. Little more than two years ago the name of August Eduard Grell was by no means one altogether well-known outside his immediate sphere of activity. It was then, however, that the excellent choir conducted by Professor Riedel, of Leipzig, known as the Riedelsche Gesangverein, produced both at that classical town of music and also at Dresden a Mass by Grell, written in sixteen parts, which at once directed the attention of German connoisseurs towards its composer, and ere long caused him to be justly looked upon as one of the most important writers of church-music in modern days. August Eduard Grell was born at Berlin on November 6, 1800. His earlier musical studies he passed under that strict disciplinarian Zelter, and at the age of sixteen was able to undertake the important duties of Organist at St. Nicholas' Church in Berlin. He subsequently became director of the Sing-Akademie, which post he held for over twenty years, with the highest credit to himself and lasting benefit to others, after which period he retired, upon a well-earned pension, from that Society. In 1858 Grell was nominated a professor of composition at the Berlin Royal Academy, in which capacity he has trained many excellent pupils. He has written numerous vocal compositions—choruses, songs, and duets, both sacred and secular. The most important of his works, however, and that upon which his fame will firmly rest in the future, is the above-mentioned Polyphonus Mass, written in severe a capella style, yet full of vigour and sublime grandeur, presenting to the listener an abundance of most intricate contrapuntal devices, yet the composer's soul floating above it all with an easy control, and infusing into it at the same time a surprising amount of warmth and imaginativeness; a work, in fact, of genius of a high order.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN has completed his Leeds Cantata "The Golden Legend." The part of Lucifer, to be sustained by Mr. Frederic King, is now more important than was at first contemplated.

At the National Art Treasures Exhibition, Folkestone, Chopin's Funeral March was played twice, in memory of the late Franz Liszt; in the morning by Mr. W. S. Hoyte, and in the evening by Mr. H. C. Tonking, the audience standing on both occasions.

A NEW and gratifying epoch in the story of English church music is the establishment of an efficiently rendered Choral Service at the fine and liberally supported Church of the Holy Trinity in Paris, where the rector is the Rev. J. Morgan, D.D., the church being intended primarily for the resident Americans. The musical staff has been selected and trained by Mr. John Stedman. The choir will consist of twelve boy trebles, four boy contraltos (all of whom belong to Mr. Stedman's choir boys), three tenors, and three basses. The tenors and basses going from England are Mr. Philip Newbury, Mr. H. P. Carroll, Mr. A. Fowles, and Mr. John Humphreys. Mr. Wright E. Post is the Precantor, and Mr. Stedman will continue his connection with the work of the musical staff as Associate Manager; Mr. F. Norman Adams will be the Organist. These talented artists represent the first thoroughly efficient and highly-trained English choir introduced on the Continent. The music selected will be of the highest class, and while standard cathedral composers will be represented, the modern school will be duly recognised. The church (situate in the Avenue de l'Alma, Champs Elysées) will have, in course of time, a new and fine organ by Cavaillé-Coll, of Paris. The musical services will commence with the opening on the 12th inst. Doubtless these efficiently rendered services will be much appreciated by American and English residents and visitors; and our neighbours across the Channel will not fail to note and enjoy the gems of Anglican church music as rendered by the excellent staff Mr. Stedman has got together.

The prospectus of the Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society for the season 1886-87, announces that four Concerts will be given, commencing on November 8 with Dvorák's "Spectre's Bride," under the conductorship of Dr. Hans Richter, the principal vocalists being Miss Annie Marriott, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Watkin Mills, the Richter band being engaged for the occasion. At the second Concert, on December 30, Handel's "Messiah" will be given, conducted by Mr. John Adcock, the solo vocalists being Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Kenningham, and Signor Foli. At the third Concert, on February 3, 1887 (also under the direction of Mr. John Adcock), Rossini's "Stabat Mater" and J. F. Barnett's "Ancient Mariner" will be performed, Miss Thudichum, Madame Enriquez, Mr. Welch, Mr. Arthur Oswald, and Mr. Santley sustaining the solo parts; and Berlioz's "Faust" (selected by the votes of a majority of the subscribers) will be given at the fourth Concert, on March 22, with the band of Mr. Charles Hallé, and under his direction, the principal vocalists being Miss Mary Davies, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Barrington Foote, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail.

The programme of the Borough of Hackney Choral Association for the coming season, as will be seen in our advertisement columns, is of the utmost interest. The list of works to be performed includes Dvorák's "Spectre's Bride," Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty," and Prout's Hundredth Psalm and Symphony in F, a convincing proof that, whilst recognising the claims of time-honoured compositions, modern successes are freely admitted. Four Concerts are to be given, commencing on November 1, the band and chorus numbering 250 performers, and Mr. Ebenezer Prout—to whom the Society is so largely indebted for its present high position—retains his post as Conductor. We are glad to find that the applications for membership are very numerous this year; and, as they are taken in order of priority, notification from those desirous of joining the Society should be given without delay.

H.R.H. PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR OF WALES has been pleased to honour Messrs. Challen and Son with the following autograph testimonial:—"Aldershot, August 25, 1886. The overstrung upright grand piano provided for Prince Albert Victor by Messrs. Challen and Son has given him every satisfaction, both as regards its tone and durability. It has now been in his possession for three years.—(Signed) ALBERT VICTOR."

MR. FRANK SWINFORD, the student who recently gained the Sims Reeves Exhibition, at Trinity College, London, passed with honours in counterpoint, and earned the distinction of Associate, has been appointed one of the bass deputies in St. Paul's Cathedral Choir.

THE Annual General Meeting of the Kensington Orchestral and Choral Society was held in the Concert Room of the Kensington School of Music, Cromwell Road, on Tuesday evening, July 27, when the majority of the subscribers and members were present, R. S. Fenning, Esq., occupying the chair. The Report showed that the past season had been generally successful, three public Concerts and six Musical Evenings having been given. There had also been an increase in the number of subscribers and members. During the coming season a selection will be made from the following works for practice and performance: "Loreley" (Mendelssohn), "The Dream" (Costa), "Lay of the Bell" (Romberg), 95th Psalm (Mendelssohn), and "Zion" (Gade). The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the Report, congratulated the Society upon the success of the season, a success which was in a large degree owing to the talent and zeal of the Conductor, Mr. William Buels. Cordial votes of thanks to the officials of the Society, to the professional artists for their gratuitous assistance at the rehearsals and Concerts, and to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

WE have already given full details of the Gloucester Festival, which commences on the 7th inst., and have now only to add that the "new orchestral work," composed for the occasion by Dr. Hubert Parry, and to be produced at the secular Concert on the evening of Thursday, the 9th, is termed a "Suite Moderne," and consists of four movements—Ballade, Romanze, Scherzo, and Rhapsody—to be conducted by the composer. We may also say that the second part of the programme on Wednesday morning will consist of Mendelssohn's "Reformation Symphony," Gibbons's "Almighty and Everlasting God," S. Wesley's "Exultate Deo," and Hiller's "Song of Victory." We are glad to find that the tickets are rapidly selling, and that there is every prospect of a bright and successful Festival.

THE Boston Herald gives an interesting account of the tenth annual meeting of the Music Teachers' National Association, which took place at Tremont Temple on June 30. Essays were read—after Mr. A. Stanley, of Providence, had given his annual address explaining the objects and achievements of the Association—discussions followed, the subject of church music receiving especial attention, and an excellent programme was provided for the evening Concert, amongst the most important items of which were the performance of Mr. Dudley Buck's Organ Sonata in G minor, by Mr. Bowman, and a Trio in C minor, for piano-forte, violin, and violoncello, by Mr. Arthur Foote, effectively rendered by Messrs. Loeffler, Glese, and A. Foote.

THE members of the Grosvenor Choral Society gave their 174th monthly Concert at the Grosvenor Hall, Buckingham Palace Road, on Friday, the 20th ult. The programme was miscellaneous and included a good selection of part-songs, among which may be mentioned "The Children's Hour" (Gaul), "Love wakes and weeps" (Callcott), "Gipsy Chorus" (Weber), and "Song of the Triton" (Molloy). The solo vocalists were Miss Louise Bond, Miss Melleos, Mr. S. Noble, Mr. S. G. Millar, Mr. H. W. Roach, and Mr. A. Roach. Miss Jessie Davies contributed two brilliant pianoforte solos, and a concertina solo was played by Mr. T. F. Williams, who also conducted. Mr. George Winny accompanied.

THE Diploma of Licentiate in Music, of Trinity College, London, has been gained by Robert H. Earnshaw, Preston, and Vincent Sykes, Parnostown, Ireland; the Diploma of Associate in Music by Arthur Bate Coomb, Dartford; Helen Fielden, Southport; Robert Gued, Crumlin, co. Antrim; Flora Klickmann, Trinity College, London; John Herbert Laner, Loughton; Frederick James Mitchell, London; Henry Ralph Nobbs, Guildford; Williamson John Reynolds, London. The Examiners were Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. Haydn Keeton, Mr. F. Corder, Professor Gordon Saunders, Dr. W. H. Walshe, Mr. D. J. Wood, Mus. B., and Mr. W. Pinney, Mus. B.

THE Concert Overture composed by Mr. F. K. Hattersley for the approaching Festival at Leeds is in E minor, and consists of an introductory Andante, followed by a largely developed Allegro. It is modelled on classic form, but employs the full modern orchestra, and, in the Coda, even the pedal organ.

THE annual report of the Belfast Philharmonic Society shows that, both artistically and financially, its progress is in the highest degree satisfactory. The Concerts of the past season—including that in which the third part of Schumann's "Faust" was given for the first time in Belfast—have been thoroughly successful; in a great measure owing to the unremitting zeal and labours of the Conductor, Herr Beyschlag, and the assiduity and punctual attendance of all the executants. The services of Mr. John Shillington, of the honorary Organist, are also mentioned in warm terms of praise.

THE Wolverhampton Triennial Festival, in aid of the funds of the Wolverhampton and South Staffordshire General Hospital, and the Wolverhampton Eye Infirmary, will take place on the 16th and 17th inst. We have only to supplement our former notice of the general arrangements of the meeting by announcing that the principal vocalists will be Madame Valleria, Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Piercy, Mr. Watkin Mills, Mr. Robert Grice, and Mr. Santley; leader of the band and solo violin, Mr. Carrodus; Conductor, Dr. Swinnerton Heap, F.C.O.; and Organist, Mr. J. Roper, F.C.O.

MR. SYDNEY SHAW appeals to the lovers of sacred music for support in the expenses of producing his new Oratorio "Gethsemane," at St. James's Hall, towards the end of October. The work was to have been performed in Leipzig (the composer being a certificated student of the Conservatoire in that city), under the direction of Dr. Reinecke; but circumstances prevented it, and it will now be given, under distinguished patronage, for the first time, before an English public. We sincerely wish the young composer every success.

A COMPETITION of Choral Societies for a prize of £100 took place on the 23rd ult., at the Liverpool Exhibition, in the presence of a very large audience, who manifested much interest in the contests. Four societies competed: The Liverpool Cambrian, the Burslem Tonic Sol-fa, the Manchester Philharmonic, and the Nottingham Philharmonic. The adjudicators, Mr. Henry Leslie, Dr. Joseph Parry, and Mr. Walter Burnett, awarded the prize to the Nottingham Choir, and placed the other competitors as follows:—Burslem, second; Liverpool, third; Manchester, fourth.

A CYCLE of six Historical Harpsichord and Pianoforte Recitals to be given by Herr Bonawitz on Saturday afternoons, commencing October 30, at the Portman Rooms, Baker Street, promises to be of the highest interest. The programmes include specimens of the composers of all times and nations, and are admirably arranged. It is Herr Bonawitz's intention to give the same series in America, in the Spring of next year. Each Recital will occupy about one hour and forty minutes.

MR. S. MIDGLEY forwards us programmes of Chamber Concerts given by him at Bradford from September 23, 1874, to April 20, 1886, all of which contain the best specimens of the highest classical music. Such earnest appeals to the artistic taste of the local public reflect the utmost credit upon Mr. Midgley; and we sincerely wish him success in the future, especially as we find that there is scarcely one of his programmes which does not include the name of an English composer.

AN Organ Recital was given in St. Anne's Church, Wandsworth, on the evening of the Dedication Festival, July 26, by the Organist and Choirmaster, Mr. Frederick W. Doe. The programme included Toccata and Fugue in D minor (Bach), Andante in E minor and Grand Offertoire in D major (Bach), Sonata, No. 2, and "I waited for the Lord" (Mendelssohn), March in E flat (Wely), and "Hallelujah" (Handel). The offertories were devoted to the Organ Restoration Fund.

ON the 12th ult. the choir and a member of the congregation of St. Chad's, Haggerston, presented Mr. Chas. O. M. Philips (on his resigning his post as Organist and Choirmaster) with a testimonial consisting of an ebony baton, handsomely mounted in silver, and an illuminated address on vellum.

THE orchestra engaged for Leeds is that of the London Philharmonic Society, with some additions, and consists almost exclusively of English artists.

AMONG the attractions of Malvern this season are Classical Chamber Concerts, given every Saturday afternoon in the Assembly Hall connected with the Pleasure Gardens. The performers are members of the band attached to the same place; Herr Hartung, a pupil of Spohr, holding the first violin.

MR. W. G. WOOD has been giving a series of Organ Recitals at the Congregational Church, Southwold, with much success during the past month. His programmes have comprised selections from Handel, Bach, Mendelssohn, Greene, Smart, and compositions of his own.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN has been engaged for the principal tenor and Miss Susetta Fenn for the principal mezzo-soprano parts in the new comic Opera "The Fairy Ring," by Herr J. Liebig and Mr. Oswald Brand, to be produced at the Grand Theatre on October 4.

THE announcement of the death of the Abbé Liszt was received in Edinburgh musical circles on the 2nd ult. with the most profound regret. In the afternoon, at the Organ Recital given in the International Exhibition, Mr. William Harrison played "The Dead March" from "Saul."

MR. ARTHUR O'LEARY has been appointed Professor of the Pianoforte in the Crystal Palace School of Science and Art.

WE are requested to state that Mr. Arthur Fagge has been appointed Conductor of the Chelsea Musical Society, in place of Mr. H. J. Olive, resigned.

A MONTHLY journal of Catholic Church music has been started in Baltimore by the Choirmaster of the Cathedral there.

REVIEWS.

Ole Bull. A Memoir. By Sara C. Bull.
[T. Fisher Unwin.]

THIS chatty and genial volume, written by Ole Bull's widow, though scarcely helping us to determine the exact rank in which he stood as a musician, nevertheless presents a vivid portrait of a highly gifted and attractive figure. His bonhomie, his fervid patriotism, his repeated efforts to further the cause of culture in Norway, and improve the denationalised musical taste of his fellow countrymen are illustrated again and again in these pages, and extort the admiration of the reader. The first named trait is exemplified in the following truly charming anecdote told by Ole Bull himself to a Brooklyn friend:—"I was announced to play at Hartford, Connecticut. Arriving late in the afternoon I hurried to a barber's shop. While I was getting shaved, the boot-black, a coloured boy, rattled off some lively tunes on a fiddle. When I praised him he seemed pleased, saying, 'Yes, Mister; I can beat any man in Hartford.' Noticing how he worked and stretched to gain the high notes, I asked him if there were no other means of obtaining them. He gave me a look as much as to say, 'What do you know about a fiddle, anyhow?' adding that there was no other way. I took his fiddle, and illustrated my suggestion by playing harmonics. The boy stood with open-mouthed wonder, and I, returning the instrument, left the shop. On reaching the street above, I could not refrain from looking down through the window. There he sat scratching his head, and then the violin, the very picture of perplexity, trying to solve the mystery of harmonics. I sent him a ticket to my concert. After it was over I saw that negro boy standing in the aisle, battling with himself whether to come forward or not. I beckoned him, and with plaintive voice he said: 'Mister, can't you come down to the shop to-morrow to get shaved, and show me those tricks? I feel powerful bad!' I promised him I would, and I kept my word." This was sheer goodness of heart, but the same bonhomie had its dangers in tempting him to sink artistic considerations in the desire to please. Thus we learn that at a Concert in New York, in 1877, after the tenth recall, he played "We won't go home till morning." Imagine Joachim doing such a thing! And yet Joachim had a high opinion of Ole Bull, as may be gathered from his having said to Björnsterne Björnson, "Faults in Ole Bull's playing are more noticeable as he advances in age; but no artist in our time has possessed Ole Bull's poetic power: no one has ever surpassed his playing of the Adagio. I think all his cultivated auditors will say the same" (p. 321). As might naturally be expected, not the least interesting parts of the book are those which treat of his relations with the great artists of the century. The anecdotes of Liszt have a double interest at the present time, and those of Malibran only enhance the high opinion which posterity has been led to form of her witchery and talent. Ole Bull's life was full of romantic episodes, and on more than one occasion his great personal strength alone saved him from imminent danger. Another feature brought prominently before us in this memoir was his fondness for indulging his tastes as a collector, whether it was an Arabian horse, an old Spanish master, or a rare violin that caught his fancy. His own "violin notes," including descriptions of his own violins, which forms an appendix, are exceedingly interesting reading, the gem of the whole treatise being, however, a most admirable and graphic account of Paganini's appearance at his last Parisian Concert in the year 1832. Eminently attractive though this memoir undoubtedly is, the musician will find it sadly wanting in precise technical information. We seldom find any definite mention of what Ole Bull played, and the criticisms, chiefly American, of his performances are of a rhapsodic and extravagant nature. It would seem as though his répertoire was a small one, and mainly confined to his own compositions or those of Paganini. No mention of the Beethoven or Mendelssohn violin concertos occurs throughout the whole work. We learn that he entertained an inordinately high opinion of Spanish music, but was also an enthusiastic admirer of Mozart. If the perusal of this memoir is hardly calculated to dispel the charges so often launched against Ole Bull of charlatanism and ad captandum performance, it should be borne in mind that its anecdotic and unscientific character may be largely responsible for this impression. Here and there we encounter testimony such as that of Joachim quoted above, of Edward Grieg, of Liszt, or, in a different department, of Helmholtz (see p. 260-1), which render it hard for us to accept as a just or generous estimate the exceedingly harsh criticism passed upon him in Mr. Brown's recently published "Dictionary of Musicians," and which runs as follows:—"Bull enjoyed a great notoriety in his day, and was regarded by many as a performer of extraordinary attainments. His talents were excessively lauded for a time by careless or incompetent writers, but he was regarded by well-informed musicians as little better than a charlatan. His technical skill on the violin was great, and if it had been used in a legitimate manner might have secured for him a high place amongst instrumental performers. As it is, he is only remembered by the vulgar for his astonishing tricks and daring and original methods of advertising. His works possess no value, and are rarely performed." In spite of this sweeping condemnation, we can cordially recommend this memoir as the brightest and liveliest of the light musical books published this year. We should notice, in conclusion, that the author is guilty of occasional slips. For instance, with what amount of accuracy can it be asserted, as a motive for Ole Bull's desire to visit Paris in 1830, that he wanted to hear Berlioz? Berlioz, if we mistake not, had still considerable difficulty at that date in finding a hearing for himself.

The Crown of Roses. Cantata for Female Voices. Written by Edward Oxenford. Composed by J. Allanson Benson. [Wood and Co.]

THE argument of this Cantata is thus stated: "In several parts of Switzerland a very pretty custom obtains. On a certain day in the early summer the peasant maidens assemble, and proceed to the mountains in search of the Edelweiss, and she who is so fortunate as first to come across this coveted flower is, upon again reaching her village, crowned with roses by her fellow-searchers, and proclaimed Queen of the Village for the ensuing year. In addition to the honour thus conferred, the finding of the first plant of Edelweiss is popularly supposed to carry with it a spell of good fortune." There can be no doubt that a simple subject like this requires an equally simple musical setting; but the most quiet and unpretentious composition may be treated so artistically as to engage the earnest attention of all musical auditors, and yet never to travel beyond the comprehension of ordinary drawing-room amateurs. This we do not see in Mr. Benson's Cantata. It is melodious, well adapted to the words, and in no part taxes severely the powers either of the vocalist or the pianist; but the phrases are somewhat trite, the harmonies tame, and in many places the writing is faulty. As examples of these we may cite the doubling of the dissonant note, proceeding in octaves with the bass to its resolution (page 5, bar 4); the progression of the bass in consecutive perfect fifths with the voice part (page 43, bar 12), and several other points which want of space prevents us from mentioning. Many of the choral pieces, however, are extremely effective, and the duet "Oh it is sweet o'er the heights" may be cited as a good specimen of the composer's feeling for light dramatic music.

Four Two-part Songs. With pianoforte accompaniment. Composed by Charles Vincent, Mus. Doc., Oxon. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE melodiousness and simplicity of these two-part songs will doubtless recommend them to unambitious amateurs, and especially to schools, where the necessity of singing a second should be strongly impressed upon the pupils. No. 1, "Bright Summer" (words by Leigh Hunt), has a bright, flowing theme, the voices singing together almost throughout; No. 2, "Thoughts of Home o'er the deep" (words by Mrs. Hemans), includes some occasional short solos; No. 3, "The Sailor's Lullaby" (words by S. Cobb), is a placid melody, harmonised for the two voices, with but few breaks, and in happy sympathy with the words, the song (in 6-4 rhythm) being accompanied with continuous quavers; and No. 4, "A Holiday" (words by Victor Bede), is distinguished from the rest by the constant separation of the two voices—the second singing responsive phrases to the first—and the introduction of solo parts, with a change of key. Although extremely unpretentious, all the songs may be made effective by equally unpretentious singing.

Douze Pièces pour Piano. Par G. Flaxland. [Edwin Ashdown.]

IN spite of much eccentricity, both in the construction and harmonic progressions of these pieces, there is very decided indication of talent, which we should like to see exercised on some compositions of more solid and tangible form. As in literature, those who begin with thoughtful and important works may often, in their holiday moments, throw off with success some light and unpretentious sketches; but those who commence with these, too often end there. It is a severe test of a composer's power to publish twelve small works of this character in one volume, for with such titles as stand at the head of each in this collection we are led to expect more than we get. No. 1, "Berceuse," for instance, merely suggests a "Slumber Song" from its monotony; No. 3, "Pantomime," but faintly realises the character intended by the composer; and No. 4, "Souvenance," is wearisome in its patchiness. The best movements are the dance tunes, all of which are attractive. "Flûte e Violoncelle" and "Cloches et Horloge" have, however, much merit; and in the short "Bluette" we have both smooth and effective writing. Some of the harmonies show that the composer is a little uncertain in the notation of his chords; as, for example, in the third line of the "Gavotte," which would be somewhat difficult to figure, especially where the B flat changes to A sharp on the same bass note.

The Crucifixion and the Resurrection. An Oratorio. By J. Clarke-Whitfield. [Weekes and Co.]

THE compositions of Dr. Clarke-Whitfield are now rarely heard, even in our Cathedrals, for reasons not difficult to explain. He was an able musician, but he lived during what is sometimes termed the dark age of English Church music, when the glorious line of composers, with Purcell at their head, had become extinct, and the modern revival, which is now bearing such rich fruit, had not commenced. The present work was composed for the Festival of the Three Choirs at Hereford, where Clarke-Whitfield was organist, and it was performed in 1822 and again in 1825. This, however, is the first time that it has been published in octavo form, and the hope is expressed that, now it is accessible, Choral Societies will deem it worthy of revival. As to that, there is likely to be division of opinion. It is, of course, a scholarly work, but it is destitute of inspiration. The style is a compound of Handel and Haydn, with, we cannot help adding, a large proportion of water. Still it might seem well to some choral bodies to perform a selection from it, if only as a curiosity.

Footprints of the Saviour. A Sacred Cantata. Words selected by Bertha Rogers. Music by Edmund Rogers. [J. Curwen and Sons.]

Side by side with the increased public appreciation of the highest works of musical art there has developed a taste for choral music which must be satisfied by compositions less exacting. Elementary singing classes have their needs, and no doubt the present work has been written with a view to supply them with something more interesting than a perpetual round of easy part-songs. The libretto consists of passages from Scripture, mingled with well-known hymns; and though it follows the life of Christ from His birth to His ascension, it is wholly reflective, anything approaching dramatic treatment being carefully excluded. The music is, before everything else, simple and straightforward, the choruses being hymn-like in character, without contrapuntal elaboration; while in the solos Mr. Rogers has recognised the advisability of being tuneful. We are afraid we cannot avoid saying that the work is essentially commonplace, but it has no greater defect, and to those who sing it it may prove a stepping-stone to the study and appreciation of higher things.

Thou visitest the earth, by Arthur Simms; The rain cometh down, by Arthur Trickett; Fear not, O land, by S. C. Cooke. Harvest Anthems.

[London Music Publishing Company.]

THOUGH not particularly original, the first of these harvest anthems is by far the best in musicianly qualities and general effectiveness. It is bright, yet solid and dignified, and what may be called English in character. The composer does not indulge in sensuous chromatic harmonies, and his anthem is within the means of any amateur choir. Mr. Trickett has spoiled his composition by cutting it up into small fragments. There are no fewer than five changes of tempo in the course of three pages, the divisions being quite arbitrary and not suggested by the sense of the words. There is a hideous pair of consecutive fifths between alto and bass on the top line of the third page. Mr. Cooke's anthem is perfectly simple and unassuming, and if it does not afford proof of any remarkable talent, it is at any rate free from all manner of offence.

Litany of the Incarnate Word. By the Rev. J. Baden Powell. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WITHIN the compass of three octavo pages Mr. Powell has managed to place a very pleasing and effective little composition. In structure it is something between a hymn tune and an anthem, with sumptuous harmonies and flowing passages of organ accompaniment. The composer is evidently an accomplished musician, with a distinct leaning towards the modern school.

FOREIGN NOTES.

WE specially refer in another place to the sad and irreparable loss which the entire musical world, and more particularly the party of progress amongst its constituents, have sustained in the death of Franz Liszt. As a matter of course, Continental music journals last month have devoted much of their space to the sorrowful tidings (nearly all the German ones appearing in mourning), while, with but few exceptions, the articles surveying the career of this remarkable artist and man have evinced a just appreciation both of his commanding individuality and of the significance of his work, as a composer, to the future development of the art. Among the poetic contributions to which the melancholy event has given rise may be instanced some "In Memoriam" verses, published in the Tägliche Rundschau, from the pen of the well-known German poet, Friedrich Bodenstedt, from which we quote the following sympathetic lines:—

Seines Wohltats Quell, der jedem Schmerz
Ward zum Balsam, war sein eignes Herz,
Das verschwenkisch, wie das Licht der Sonne,
Sich ergoss aus immer vollem Brunn.

The fountain of his melos, which to every sorrow
Came as a balsam, was his sterling heart,
That ever-bounteous, like the sun in heaven,
Poured itself forth from out its own abundance!

Concerning the ultimate destination of the remains of the veteran artist, the Berlin Allgemeine Musik Zeitung says: "Liszt's remains will probably be removed to Buda-Pesth. The will of the master, dated 1861 and deposited at Weimar, appoints the Princess Wittgenstein, at Rome, Liszt's faithful and congenial friend, his sole executrix, with power of disposing also of his literary remains, and of appointing, moreover, the place of his interment. It is to be expected that the Princess will decide upon Buda-Pesth for the latter, in conformity with the natural desire of Liszt's Hungarian friends, and in which case funeral ceremonies on a grand scale will doubtless be held in the Hungarian capital. The removal there appears the more likely, since no effort has as yet been made on the part of the Grand Duke of Weimar to claim the remains of his much-valued friend for his capital. On the other hand, and without special reasons to the contrary being urged, efforts will be made at Bayreuth to prevent a disturbance of Liszt's present resting place, such as the living master would scarcely himself have contemplated with equanimity. At any rate, he expressed a decidedly adverse opinion to a similar disturbance of the dead at the time when the question of the removal of the remains of our great masters, Beethoven, Schubert, and others to the central cemetery of Vienna, was first mooted." "The number of Liszt's compositions, so far as they have become known, is 647. Of these sixty-three appertain to the orchestra (amongst them thirty-three transcriptions) and 517 to the pianoforte (300 being transcriptions). For the organ Liszt has written twenty works; the number of his vocal compositions being thirty-nine, and those belonging to melodrama five. Liszt usually worked at night; like Volckmann, he first committed his ideas to paper and subsequently elaborated them at the pianoforte. He frequently altered before his compositions reached the engraver's hands. Shortly before his last journey to France and England he completed two Czárdas, which are about to be published. In the year 1825 an opera by the youthful Liszt was performed at the now extinct Hall in the Rue Lepelletier, of Paris. It was entitled 'Don Sancho ou le Château d'Amour,' the libretto having been written jointly by Théaulon and a member of the high aristocracy adopting the nom de plume of Rancé. Liszt afterwards destroyed this early work." A most successful cast of the features of the deceased master was taken by the Bayreuth sculptor, Herr Weissbrod, the original of which remains in the possession of his daughter, Frau Cosima Wagner.

The Grand Duke of Weimar, in a letter recently addressed to the Baron von Loen, of Bayreuth, warmly advocates the foundation of a Liszt Fund (Liszt-Stiftung), intended "to promote the interests of the New German School of Music, by granting stipends to talented young musicians," and calling upon the artists then assembled at the little Bavarian town to further as much as in them lies such an undertaking, whereby the memory of the departed master would be most effectually honoured.

The Committee of the Bayreuth Festspiele have decided to resume the performances next summer, the attendance this year having been all that could be desired.

The following characteristic remarks concerning the widow of Richard Wagner occur in a recent correspondence from Bayreuth: "It is only with deep emotion that one can look at this woman, who cut off her hair to lay it into the coffin before it closed over the great departed, and whose short curls are now snow-white, like those of her father. This, and the fact that grief has rendered her features somewhat rigid, contribute not a little to the likeness which her face has lately assumed to that of her father, and which is indeed striking. She conducts the rehearsals and other arrangements with astonishing verve, while her intimate acquaintance with the works of her late husband, and his intentions in connection therewith, render her a proper authority in order to infuse purity of conception and firmness into the whole as well as into every detail. Having spent the entire day amidst the feverish excitement of this occupation, she persists in spending part of the night filling sheet upon sheet of paper containing explanations and commentaries to this or that artist concerning the correct interpretation of a passage in 'Parsifal' or in 'Tristan.' To enable her to devote her whole time to this work, Frau Cosima has, in fact, left the villa 'Wahnfried,' and has taken up her residence for the time being at the Festspiel-Haus."

As at Munich (vide our last "Notes"), so also at Dresden, there are to be two complete performances of Wagner's "Nibelungen" cycle—viz., one which took place last month, and a second one announced for the first week in the present month. The second Munich performance, we may again inform intending visitors to the Bavarian capital, is to commence on the 13th, and will be completed on the 19th inst.

The musical works of Frederic the Great, consisting of sonatas, concertos, &c., for the favourite instrument, not merely of the great King himself, but of last century amateurs generally—viz., the flute—are to be published by the firm of Breitkopf and Härtel, of Leipzig. The compositions are said to be of no inconsiderable merit, betraying a distinct individuality, and showing that their elaboration had been looked upon by their author as something more than a mere pastime. The issue of this interesting edition has been promoted in connection with the present centenary of the death of the warrior King, man of letters, and artist.

At the Berlin Opera House, the following works will be produced for the first time here during the present season—viz., Wagner's "Götterdämmerung"; "Donna Diana," by Heinrich Hofmann; "Junker Heinz," by Perfall; "Merlin," by Rüfer; and "Otto der Schütz," by Nessler.

The Orchestral Pensions Fund of Leipzig, an excellent institution, having for its object the rendering material assistance to aged and decrepit musicians, celebrated the hundredth anniversary of its existence some weeks ago, it having been founded by Georg Häser in 1786. The institution at present commands a capital of a million and a half marks, to which Mendelssohn, Schumann, Thalberg, Liszt, and others have in their time contributed not a little.

Carl Reinecke's new comic opera, "Auf hohen Befehl" ("By superior orders"), has been accepted for performance at the Hamburg Stadt-Theater, as well as at four other German operatic establishments.

We extract the following paragraph from the Berliner Courier: "In the coming year a century will have elapsed since the first performance at Prague, for which town it was written, of Mozart's 'Don Giovanni.' It is the intention of Herr Angelo Neumann, the director of the Prague opera, to commemorate the event by a jubilee performance of the work in connection with a grand Mozart Festival, at which musical celebrities from all parts of the world will be invited to assist. Herr Neumann has already communicated upon the subject with the chief custodian of the Mozarteum, at Salzburg, with a view to securing for this occasion such relics and curios as may contribute to render the contemplated performance specially interesting."

We read in the Leipzig Signale: "Two gentlemen of the name of Schultze have undertaken to write an opera, the libretto whereof forms a sequel to the 'Zauberflöte.' The work has already been submitted to German operatic managers. The book is entitled 'Nitokris,' and has Dr. Martin Schultze for its author, who takes up the story where Schikaneder (wisely) left it, and describes the ulterior fate of the leading characters in 'Die Zauberflöte.' The author of the music is Herr Heinrich Anton Schultze. The thing looks highly promising!"

At the Imperial Opera of Vienna an operatic work by Herr Hager, entitled "Marfa," is to be the first novelty to be produced during the coming season. Massenet's "Le Cid" will follow, and Goldmark's new opera "Merlin" will also be brought out later in the year. Weber's "Euryanthe" has been selected as the festive performance on the occasion of the centenary of the composer's birth in December next.

The Emperor of Austria has bestowed the Gold Medal for Arts and Sciences upon the Choral Society "Hlaha," of Prague, on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of its foundation.

A series of performances of "The Mikado" is to be given during this month by Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's company at the Carl-Theater, of Vienna.

A monument is to be erected at his native village of Waltersdorf, near Zittau, to Friedrich Schneider, the famous composer of oratorios, notably of "Das Weltgericht," and eminent teacher, among his pupils being Robert Franz. Schneider died in 1853, as Capellmeister at Dessau.

M. Van Eleweyck, a musical director at Louvin, has, it is stated, invented an apparatus which may be easily adjusted to any pianoforte or organ, and which will instantaneously reproduce in print anything which may be played on the keyboard. M. Van Eleweyck, who has been engaged for over thirty years upon the working out of this problem, has, it is added, lately exhibited his invention before the Belgian royal family, by whom he was highly complimented upon his entire success. He is about to visit the French capital for the same purpose. It would be difficult to over-estimate the importance, both in a positive and a negative sense, of this invention—if it be really accomplished and applicable to practical uses.

A most successful Concert was recently given by the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra at Scheveningen (Holland). The vocalist on this occasion was Miss Agnes Larkcom, who met with a most flattering reception.

The directors of the Paris Grand Opéra are actively engaged upon the mounting of M. Paladilhe's new Opera "Patrie" (founded upon M. Sardou's drama), Madame Krauss having entered upon a fresh engagement at that establishment for the purpose of creating one of the leading parts in the work. At the Opéra Comique Verdi's "Iago" is at length announced for performance during the approaching season. The production of Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini" is also contemplated at this house. At the Eden Theatre (now styled "Théâtre Lyrique"), M. Lamoureux, the zealous partisan of Wagner's Operadramas, is preparing a series of representations of that master's works, which are anticipated with no little excitement in musical circles of the French capital, although the ultimate success of such an undertaking can now scarcely be doubtful. Meanwhile, the war of pens between the admirers of the Bayreuth reformer and their "patriotic" opponents is being carried on as briskly as ever in the French press, M. Camille Saint-Saëns, among others, coming in for a good share of abuse on the part of the former.

The heirs of Victor Hugo are denying to the director of the Opéra Comique (somewhat late in the day!) the right of performing Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia," on the ground of the composer having failed at the time to secure the sanction of the poet to his making use of the latter's drama of the same title in the libretto of his opera. It is, however, well known that Victor Hugo was generally averse to the use of his dramas for purposes of the lyrical stage, and that a deal of persuasion had to be employed before his permission to the Paris performance of "Rigoletto" (founded upon "Le Roi s'amuse") could be obtained.

A grand contest between Spanish and French choral societies, numbering in all some four thousand voices, was announced to take place on the 30th ult., at Madrid. M. Gounod was to have presided over the members of the jury.

M. Léo Delibes is engaged upon the composition of an opera for the Paris Opéra Comique. The work is entitled "Kassia," the libretto having been furnished him by MM. Meilhac and Philippe Gille, who have derived their subject from a romance by Sacher Masoch, the Slavonic author.

M. Lasalle, the leading tenor of the Paris Opéra, has entered upon a fresh engagement for two years with the directors of that institution.

A correspondent writes from Paris to the Daily Telegraph: "It appears that the bands of the various French regiments have such different modes of executing the 'Marseillaise,' that when several of them are called upon to play together they are obliged to practice it before the combined performance takes place. This fact has much exercised the mind of General Boulanger, the active Minister of War, who has accordingly asked all the military bandmasters to devote their attention to the matter. The arrangement which the authorities will select will be published and declared official, and the uniformity that is now lacking will thereby be secured."

At the Paris Opéra Comique, a new opera, by M. Saint-Saëns, entitled "Proserpine," is to be one of the novelties during the coming season.

M. Weckerlin, the librarian of the Paris Conservatoire, has just discovered a complete copy of Jean François Lesueur's last opera "Alexandre à Babylon." The work, though it had been engraved at the expense of the composer's widow, has never been either published or performed on any stage, and hitherto all trace of it appeared to be lost. Lesueur flourished during the régime of Napoleon I., whose favourite composer he was, and his works were held in high esteem even by Hector Berlioz. He died in 1837.

Pope Leo XIII. has accepted the dedication of M. Gounod's Oratorio "Mors et Vita," and has expressed the desire to hear the work performed at Rome on the occasion of the Papal Jubilee in December next. M. Gounod will then conduct his Oratorio in person.

A Cantata entitled "Il Canto del Mare" will shortly be performed by the Vincenzo Bellini Choral Society of Milan, the composer being Signor Alfredo Donizetti, a nephew of the celebrated Maestro of that name.

"Flora Mirabilis," the successful opera by the young Maestro Samara, has been accepted for performance during the coming stagione by no less than fifteen operatic managers in Italy. A new work by the same composer, entitled "Medjé," will also shortly be produced.

The statue erected to Bellini at Naples was unveiled on the 8th ult. amidst appropriate ceremonies, and amongst a large concourse of deputations from musical societies hailing from all parts of Italy. The statue faces the famous Conservatorio where, during the years 1819—1827, Bellini studied, he being more particularly a pupil of the then celebrated Maestro Zingarelli.

The libretto of Friedrich Lux's successful opera, "Der Schmied von Ruhla," is being translated into English, with a view to the performance of the work in this country.

Madame Patti will start upon an extensive Concert tour in the United States and South America, in November next. The celebrated prima donna will perform the operatic portions of her programmes in the respective costumes appertaining to the different parts. Mdlle. Minnie Hauk is likewise preparing for a similar transatlantic undertaking.

It is reported from Rio de Janeiro that more than one half of the members of the Italian Opera Company in the Brazilian capital have recently died of yellow fever.

The score of Schubert's "heroico-romantic" Opera, "Fierrabras," has just been added, as vol. vi. series 15, to the complete edition of the master's works now being issued by Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel. The opera had never been published before in any form.

An English translation is about to be published by Messrs. H. Grevel and Co., of M. Arthur Pougin's interesting volume on "Verdi: Histoire Anecdotique de sa vie et de ses Œuvres."

We have received a number of the Musikalisch-Literarischer Monatsbericht, being a catalogue of new musical publications issued in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland, and embracing every branch of the art. It is the most complete compilation of its kind we have yet seen, and its usefulness to both professors and amateurs is so obvious as to require no further recommendation. The Monatsbericht, as its title indicates, is published monthly, at an annual subscription price of one shilling, by Friedrich Hofmeister, of Leipzig.

We have also received the current number of the Musikalische Jugendpost, a music journal dedicated to the young, and published by P. J. Tonger, of Cologne. Reference has already been made in these columns to this publication, which fully merits the popular support it apparently enjoys, combining useful instruction with healthy entertainment, and being adorned, moreover, by numerous tasteful illustrations.

On the 29th of July last, thirty years have elapsed since the death, at an asylum near Bonn, of Robert Schumann. As a consequence, the copyright vested in the works of that master has now expired.

Emil Scaria, the excellent basso of the Vienna Hof-Theater, and one of the most valued interpreters of Wagnerian characters, well remembered also by London audiences, died on July 22, at Dresden, aged forty-six. The part of Gurnemanz, in "Parsifal," is considered to have been one of his finest impersonations. Among the memorial offerings in connection with the death of Richard Wagner still preserved in a room of the Bayreuth Festspiel-Haus, there is a wreath sent at the time by Emil Scaria, and bearing the inscription "To the best and noblest of teachers, the grateful pupil"—words characteristic alike of the man and of the artist.

The death is announced, at Vienna, at the age of eighty-five, of Adolf Müller, sen., a composer of extraordinary fertility, whose operettas enjoyed at one time much popularity in the Austrian capital, and the number of whose compositions is said to be over four thousand. The deceased was for many years the esteemed Capellmeister of the Theater an der Wien.

A memorial tablet is to be affixed to the house, No. 6, Pariser-Platz, occupied by Meyerbeer during his residence in Berlin.

The death is announced of Friedrich Haas, the builder of the famous organ in the Stiftskirche of Lucerne.

The death is also announced, on the 10th ult., at Berlin, of August Eduard Grell, composer of church music. We record the event at length in our obituary column.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TONIC SOL-FA MINOR SCALE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—At the end of a very favourable review of my new edition of Helmholtz, pages 481-4 of your August number, the reviewer puts some questions to me which I solicit your permission to answer.

First, the reviewer says that I "propose to call inversion conversion," and what I "would call inversion," as exemplified in his (my) harmonic cell, is reversion." I have spent some time in endeavouring to find the passages alluded to, but have failed to discover them, and hence have not been able, as requested, to take the matter into consideration. I am not at present conscious of having made the proposal, but if the reviewer will kindly furnish the quarter page in my Helmholtz in which I have done so, I will not fail to consider the "proposal."

Secondly, the reviewer objects that in my account of the Tonic Sol-fa system, which arose naturally out of the text of Helmholtz (App. xviii., p. 423, note ††), I did not criticise the late Mr. Curwen's views on "the lah mode." As I had to give my own views of the several different minor scales, page 460, it seemed entirely out of place to mix up criticism with history. But it was well known to the late Mr. Curwen, and it may be also in the recollection of the present principal exponents of the views he took or practice he pursued, that I entirely disagreed with his theory on this particular point; but for other reasons, explicitly stated at a special discussion on the subject, acquiesced in the course adopted. The reviewer however asks my "exegesis" of a statement by Mr. Litchfield in Grove's Dictionary of Music, vol. iv., p. 147, col. 2, note 2, where he says I "shall find written these stupendous words—A minor should be C minor." The reviewer has rather twisted the sense in this abridged citation, for the actual words are only: "The practice of centuries in points of technical nomenclature cannot, of course, be reversed, but it is plain that the phrase 'relative' minor is deceptive. The scale called 'A minor' would be more reasonably called (as its signature in effect calls it) C minor." The words in parenthesis, which the reviewer did not cite, are all-important. The phrase, as the signature, should mean a minor scale formed with the notes of C major. But this is also "deceptive," even in the equally tempered scale, for F \sharp and G \flat are, the first occasionally, the latter regularly, introduced into the minor scale of A, and do not form a part of C major.

Mr. Curwen took the nomenclature of his minor scale from Miss Glover, who introduced the terms bah and nee for the two notes referred to, of which nee, written ni, and, as I remember, called nigh, is to be found in the older Tonic Sol-fa books, but was some years ago replaced by se, called see. Bah however still remains written ba and called bay. Miss Glover used bah, nee, to recall fah, tee, the latter name for the major seventh of the major scale having been invented by her to get the initial t, as si, sol, have the same initial, and bah, nee were also selected for the initials b, n. It is obvious that the present system bay, see, loses all Miss Glover aimed at, and is thoroughly unsystematic, for see, an alteration of soh, would require faq, an alteration of fah, but this might have clashed with fee.

Musical arithmetic made a blunder in not allowing 80 to be the same as 81. From this lamentable blunder have arisen all the difficulties of musical temperament, but as 80 will insist on not being 81 in the construction of compound musical tones, we must make the musical theory of scales which are to be used for harmony depend upon this existing and inalterable condition, and leave the practical music of the tempered scale, which makes 80=81 by slightly manipulating the notes, to hobble after it as it best may—with all its excruciating groans.

Now Miss Glover theoretically adopted an equally tempered scale. In her Table of Tune (which lies before me) she makes her bah of the relative minor of doh major identical with the tee of sol major. That is, she makes 80=81, as the piano does. Mr. Curwen was, however, caught between his adoption of Miss Glover's system and his practical teaching in schools by Gen. Perrenet Thompson's just intonation, or, rather, the division of the octave into 53 degrees, of which 9 formed a major tone, 8 : 9 ; 8 a minor tone, 9 : 10 ; 5 a diatonic semitone, 15 : 16. After this Miss Glover's equally tempered tetrachordal system vanished to Mr. Curwen, and a system of teaching by perfect chords, without the sharp major thirds of the equally tempered scale, took its place. Miss Glover's glass harmonicon was discarded, and singing without accompaniment was adopted. It was then found that there were only two minor chords in the major scale, namely (for C), A C E, E G B, and that D F A was an extremely harsh dissonance. But with our present habits we must base the scale on harmony. Hence arose General Perrenet Thompson's double second, called ray and rah, by Mr. Curwen, and related as 81 : 80. Mr. Curwen, as well as the General, seems to have considered the introduction of rah as only a secondary form of the second, to be used alternately with the primary, and not, as it is in fact, a modulation into either the subdominant or relative minor keys. Mr. Curwen thus got three minor chords out of the extended major scale. This sufficed for an harmonic imitation of the ancient Greek Lah mode, and it allowed the adoption of the usual practice, which considers the descending minor scale to be formed from the notes of its relative major, and hence to adopt the "signature" of the relative major. As we know, the usual practice is, in A minor, to consider F# and G# as "accidentals," that is, accidentally introduced for melody, and not involved in the signature, and, properly speaking, not belonging to the harmony. Mr. Curwen always considered the F# or bah to be of this nature, though he allowed G# or see to be harmonic. Certainly when F# occurs in passages which are not unisonant, it must form part of the major chord D F# A, as G# forms part of the major chord E G# B. But as grave D in the minor chord, D F A, must be depressed by a comma, A being its true fifth, and F# its true major third, the latter must be a comma flatter than the F# used in transition from C to G major, giving the major chord D F# A, with the unaffected D, and necessarily therefore an acuter A.

These relations I have endeavoured to symbolise thus:—Let C, D, E, &c., represent the tones which would occur in a series of perfect fifths; C₂, D₂, E₂, &c., the same tones depressed by one comma; C₂, D₂, E₂, &c., the same depressed by two commas; and C₁, D₁, E₁, &c., the same raised by a comma.

Then we have the following scheme, in which the successive notes in each line from left to right are perfect (not tempered) fifths, and the note below or above each forms a perfect (not tempered) major third with it:—

A¹ B¹ E¹ B¹
D² A² E² B² F C G D A E B F# C# G#
F₁ C₁ G₁ D₁ A₁ E₁ B₁ F₁ C₁ G₁ D₁
A₂ E₂ B₂ F₂ C₂ G₂ D₂ A₂ E₂ B₂

where, observe, the C# G# are a Pythagorean comma sharper than D² A², respectively.

Now the major scale of C has the notes F C G D, A₁ E₁ B₁. The minor scale of A has the notes F C G, D₁ A₁ E₁ B₁, F₂ G₂, for C₂ occurs only in modulations, and F G alternate with F₂ G₂. This is very far indeed from being made out of the notes of the major scale.

Mr. Curwen makes another mistake about the tonic minor scale of C. This really consists of A¹ B¹ E¹ B¹, F C G D, A₁ B₁, and is quite unrelated to E² major. "Three removes down" (Miss Glover's phrase) which consists of D² A² E² B², F₁ C₁ G₁, and has, in fact, not one note in common with C minor. The relative minor of E² major has the notes A² E² B², F₁ C₁ G₁, D₁, A₂ B₂, each note a comma flatter than in C minor. This difference of a comma, 80 : 81, ignored in tempered notation, though causing great difficulties in the construction of justly intoned instruments, occasions none to the singer; he at once takes the notes which are in tune with the others. Thus if a trio has to sing—in passing to the tonic minor, the singers naturally give C E₁ G, C E² G, that is, they retain the fifths and make the thirds tune, and certainly do not sing, what Mr. Curwen's theory and Mr. Colin Brown's "Voice Harmonium" require, C E₁ G, C₁ E² G₁, dislocating the fifths by a comma.

My objections to the Tonic Sol-fa minor scale treatment are founded on acoustical, and not on musical theory. It is simply impossible to sing what is written, but the singers go right, because they cannot help it, when left to themselves; and go wrong, equally because they cannot help it, when domineered over by the tempered organ. Mr. Litchfield might perhaps have omitted the words complained of, but those words are merely the verbal interpretation of the signature. If my "duodenals" were used, a C over the staff for the duode of C (which includes both C major and C minor) and an A₁ over the staff for the duode of A₁ (not A, observe), which includes both A₁ major, to which F₂ G₂ belong, and also A₁ minor, the correct intervals would be symbolised on the ordinary staff notation. But this would require a different mode of teaching and writing the minor scale in the Tonic Sol-fa notation, which, for practical reasons, is now impossible.

I must apologise for the length of this "exegesis," which your reviewer asked for; but it has been left incomplete in many places for want of space.

Respectfully yours,

ALEXANDER J. ELLIS.

25, Argyl Road, Kensington, W., August 9, 1886.

[I am much obliged to Mr. Ellis for his answers to the questions he refers to. In regard to inversion, Mr. Ellis, in a note, page 308 of his new edition of Helmholtz, and in allusion to Von Ettingen's dual development of musical scales, translates umkehrung by the English word conversion. The dictionary meaning of the German word quoted is reversion. As Von Ettingen's theory is from beginning to end a question of inversion, and as Mr. Ellis uses the term conversion more than once, I assumed that he proposed to introduce yet another word to explain one of the many different senses in which the general term "inversion" is employed. These various significations may have no acoustical importance; but to the technical theorist they are exceedingly inconvenient. The proposals I wanted Mr. Ellis's authority to support are these:—(1.) To call, for example, A flat, 8 : 5, the inversion of E 5 : 4, because the first vibration fraction is here the inversion of the second, and the A flat in question is taken upwards as the minor sixth of C. (2.) When the A flat as the inversion of E is taken downwards, a major third below C, as in Mr. Ellis's Harmonic Cell, to call it reversion. (3.) When C E is inserted as C A natural downwards, to call it, as M. Chévé has already called that method, interversion. (4.) To thoroughly abolish the still common method of applying the term "inversion" to the different positions of chords. (5.) Not to add another name if we can help it, although "contrapuntal inversion," when we take the counterpoint above or below the subject, is a variant or mixture of 1, 2, and 3.]

In regard to my abbreviated—I think Mr. Ellis said “twisted”—version of the words used by Mr. Litchfield, it is quite obvious from Mr. Ellis’s “exegesis” that he confirms the views I suggested rather than stated. In regard to the Tonic Sol-fa notation of the minor scale, Mr. Ellis says it is now impossible to change it. With an old reverence for the leading principle of the Tonic Sol-fa method, and with the conviction that the great influence of that method is not only practical, but theoretical, inasmuch as it is teaching the fixed dohists their own theory, I would go farther even than Mr. Ellis. I do not think that if it were possible to change the Tonic Sol-fa method of the notation of the minor scale, the sol-faists could improve it consistently with their general aims, and setting aside shams about intonation. The chief fault I have ever ventured to find with the Tonic Sol-fa literature is that the expounders of the system “want to argue.” Instead of sticking to what they occasionally say or seem to mean—namely, that they call doh, lah, because they choose, or because it suits their system of notation, they fence with the subject. Mr. Ellis, in his kindly way, whilst admitting that “the words complained of might have been omitted,” still defends his friends by referring to the “words” as “merely a verbal interpretation of signature.” Yes, but it is this affair of the “signature” which is the source of the whole mischief. They seem to think that because A minor has the same signature as C, the two keys must be nearly related; and they go out of their way to count how many times Handel in “Judas” or something has employed the relative minor compared with the tonic minor. If they had only gone a little further back than the Transition Period they would have found no tonic minor at all, no systematised transposition of the octave modes, no conversion, no further means of comparison, no modern tonality. The tonality being established, to call doh, lah, is a mistake; and this objection to their method is not, as Mr. Litchfield is pleased to say, “a shadowy objection”; in point of theory it is a fatal objection. The signature alone does not determine tonic relation. Were it so, A minor would not be C minor, but C, the signatures being the same. And that is nearer the truth. All the seven octave modes of C are, in that sense, C; but the modern key is determined by the common final of the transposed modes, which are simply different forms of scale of one key. The signatures show the order of the tones and semitones in any octave, irrespective of the common final. They show also the derivation of keys by fifths and by fourths; but the derivation of keys by this system does not determine key-relationship. And as Mr. Ellis explains in his letter, the derivation of A by fifths would, as a question of intonation, be the most patent objection to the Tonic Sol-fa method of notation. The similarity of signature affects in general key relationship, as between a key and mode, or mode and mode, but it does not of itself determine tonic relation. All the history about Handel, &c., is therefore beside the question. It is not only Mr. Litchfield and the Tonic Sol-faists, who by habit, and thorough old-fashioned methods of harmony, are inclined to accept certain relics of an ancient system, of which our modern system is no doubt a development. Perhaps not one person in a hundred, accustomed to fixed doh methods, would be much shocked by being told that the scale of A minor “would be more reasonably called (as its signature in effect calls it) C minor”; but if the same people were told that C major should be A major, they would laugh outright. Their laughter would only prove their ignorance, for the two propositions, as movable dohists see at once, are identical. Taking the minor system instead of the major as normal, if in the modern major system A minor is to be called C minor, then by a parity of reasoning, the octave C to C in the double octave system of A minor “would be more reasonably called” A major, just as in point of fact C minor is called E flat, as determined by the signature only.—THE REVIEWER.]

NEGLECTED SOLO INSTRUMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF “THE MUSICAL TIMES.”

SIR,—My attention was called yesterday to a letter in your issue of the 1st inst., headed “Neglected Solo Instruments,” and I thought it a most proper time to make a few remarks on the subject, showing how this neglect is caused. I can speak with considerable authority on the matter, because I have been most intimately associated with the two instruments principally mentioned by your correspondent “R. H. W.”—viz., the “basset horn,” or corno di bassetto and bass clarinet. Balfe wrote especially for me the beautiful introduction to “The heart bow’d down,” in his opera of “The Bohemian Girl,” for corno di bassetto, and also a solo for the bass clarinet in “The Daughter of St. Mark,” both of which, however, are now rarely played on the original instruments, the ordinary clarinet being substituted, totally destroying the composer’s ideas and intentions, and losing an octave in the most effective part of the instruments. There is also a highly effective obbligato for corno di bassetto to the scena “Non più di fiori,” from Mozart’s “Clemenza di Tito,” which is usually treated in the same manner. The principal reason of this is doubtless that an impresario will not pay an artist to play these on the instrument for which they are written, but there is also the fact that there are so few performers on these beautiful but difficult instruments, and this want will, we fear, continue, for who will waste his time and breath to practise them when there is so little chance for reward to sweeten labour?

I will now remark on “R. H. W.’s” mention of Mendelssohn’s two Concertstückes for clarinet, corno di bassetto, and piano (Op. 113 and 114). Op. 113 was first played by myself and Mr. Lazarus, with full orchestra, at St. James’s Hall, June 24, 1868, at the “Ancient and Modern Concerts,” and received an encore. We performed it again about eight years ago at one of the Cambridge University Concerts, Villiers Stanford playing the pianoforte (when it was also redemanded), then, with Herr Pape, at a Crystal Palace Concert, with Mr. Egerton at Willis’s Rooms, and at a Royal Society of Musicians’ Festival with the same clarinetist. Op. 114 has only been performed once in England, at the Prince’s Hall about four years ago, when it was received with immense applause, and encored. Your correspondent will see by this that these charming works have been played in all only six times in public in eighteen years!

Just a few words to show “R. H. W.” that the répertoire for bass clarinet is not so limited as he imagines. In addition to Meyerbeer and Wagner, Verdi has written a solo in “Ernani,” Balfe in his “Daughter of St. Mark” and “Bravo’s Bride,” Wallace in “The Amber Witch,” Liszt in his Symphonic poems, Villiers Stanford in the “Eumenides,” &c.

Hoping with “R. H. W.” that more may be heard in the future of these neglected solo instruments, believe me, yours truly,

J. H. MAYCOCK,
Professor of the Clarinet, Corno di Bassetto, and Bass Clarinet.

August 24, 1886.

TO THE EDITOR OF “THE MUSICAL TIMES.”

SIR,—Doubtless Mr. Wall’s letter on the above subject in your last issue will be welcomed by all true musicians; but, seeing that his observations only refer to the woodwind department of the orchestra, I venture to trouble you with the following remarks.

There is the family of strings, of which the viola d’amour and viol da gamba are now considered obsolete, and which were much favoured by Meyerbeer and Bach, who left us obbligati specimens for these instruments in several of their scores, notably in “Les Huguenots” and “St. Matthew” Passion Music respectively. Speaking of the viola d’amour, Berlioz says: “It would really be a great pity to allow this choice instrument to become lost; and any violinist might learn to play upon it by a few weeks’ practice.” This being the case, it seems almost incredible that the instruments should have fallen into disuse, especially as the great masters have used them so successfully. In my opinion, one of the best methods of re-introducing them into the orchestra is that they should be taught, along with the other orchestral instruments, in such institutions as the Royal Academy, Trinity College, &c. With regard to the brass department, Bach’s trumpet parts have long since been considered impracticable; but that this is no longer the case is proved by the fact that special trumpets have been procured for use in the performance of his Mass in B minor at the approaching Leeds Festival, in order that the originally intended effects may be preserved. Why, then, should not the stringed and wood-wind instruments mentioned by Mr. Whall be also restored, so that all scores may be presented as the composers wrote them?—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

ARTHUR REYNOLDS.

Ayr, N.B., August 18, 1886.

COMPARISON OF THE NATURAL AND EQUAL-TEMPERAMENT SCALES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Now that your readers have had an opportunity of considering my views of the origin and construction of the natural musical scales,* I will, with your kind permission, offer a brief comparison of these with the scale of equal-temperament.

Intervals or distances—whether of sound, space, or time—can only be compared conveniently by means of fixed units. A most convenient unit for the measurement and comparison of musical intervals, or pitch-distance, is that which is found by dividing the octave (the most perfect natural interval) into 600 equal parts. This interval—the six-hundredth part of an octave—is practically identical with the skisma $\frac{3}{1000}$, or the pitch-distance of B \sharp leading note above tonic C. On this scale the values of the elementary intervals are as follows:—

2 = Octave	= 600 units.
$\frac{13}{12}$ = E. T. Semitone	= 50 "
$\frac{4}{3}$ = Diatonic Semitone	= 55.865 "
$\frac{3}{2}$ = Minor Tone	= 91.020 "
$\frac{2}{1}$ = Major Tone	= 101.955 "

It will be found sufficiently accurate for all practical inquiries if we round off the three latter numbers as follows:—

Diatonic Semitone	= 56
Minor Tone	= 91
Major Tone	= 102†

On this basis the principal notes of the natural chromatic scale will be represented by the following numbers:—

Unit intervals from C.	Corresponding ratios of vibrations.
C 600	2 : 1
B 544	15 : 8
A \sharp 499	3645 : 2048
B \flat 498	16 : 9
A 442	5 : 3
G \sharp 397	405 : 256
A \flat 396	128 : 81
G 351	3 : 2
F \sharp 295	45 : 32
G \flat 294	1024 : 729
F 249	4 : 3
E 193	5 : 4
D \sharp 148	1215 : 1024
E \flat 147	32 : 27
D 102	9 : 8
C \sharp 46	135 : 128
D \flat 45	256 : 243
C 0	1 : 1

These notes—it should be observed—are those which are most nearly related to the key-note C by progressive modulation. Sudden, extraneous modulation, or continued, progressive modulation will lead to other notes of the same name.

As the numbers representing the equal-temperament intervals are simple multiples of 50 (the equivalent of the E. T. semitone), they can easily be supplied by a slight mental effort for the purpose of comparison. Thus the pitch of E. T. G, 7 semitones above C = $7 \times 50 = 350$; E. T. A = $9 \times 50 = 450$, &c.

A careful comparison of intervals in this way will show that equal-temperament is not such a bad substitute for perfect intonation as is sometimes supposed.

* See letters in THE MUSICAL TIMES for July and August.

† The special importance of these three intervals is seen in the fact that any possible interval can be exactly represented by them—e.g.,

$(\frac{3}{2})^2 + (\frac{1}{2})^2 = (\frac{13}{12})^2 = \frac{169}{144}$ = Comma of Pythagoras.

Here is another noteworthy fact. Of the sharps and flats most nearly related to the keynote, and represented by the same note on a twelve-keyed E. T. instrument, the sharp is really the higher note, whereas most musical teachers declare the opposite to be the fact.

Without doubt it is quite possible for a singer, in perfect intonation, to measure off intervals having no correspondence with the intervals of the scale given above; but this can only be done voluntarily, as the result of a deliberate mental change of key.

The sounds naturally selected by the unfettered musical ear are those provided by the natural division of the scale in accordance with the properties of the prime numbers 1, 2, 3, 5, and their various powers in combination.

Yours faithfully,

JOSEPH GOOLD.

Stratford House, Nottingham, August, 1886.

THE "MARSEILLAISE."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—It may be of interest to some of your many readers to hear what the French poet, Lamartine, has to say on the origin of the above.

In his "Histoire des Girondins" he tells us that words and music were written by the same author, a young lieutenant, Rouget de Lisle, a native of the Jura, who served at Strasburg during the siege. Being a friend of the Mayor, Dietrich, he spent his evenings frequently at the house of the latter.

Provisions being scarce, and Dietrich poor, the suppers were very frugal. On the evening in question Dietrich sent for his last bottle of good old red.

De Lisle retired only late in the night. Arrived at home he sat down to his clavichord, sang and played, words producing music and music calling forth words, without writing down either. Working thus he fell at last asleep, overcome with fatigue. On awaking words and music stood clear before his memory. He wrote them down. Early in the morning he went to Dietrich, in whose family circle his national song was heard and listened to with the greatest enthusiasm.

Lamartine says:—"The first verse made their faces grow pale, at the second tears flowed, and at the end of the last enthusiasm became a delirium." The song spread rapidly from town to town, and received the name of "Marseillaise," because the troops levied in Marseilles sang it constantly on their marches.

Oddly enough poor Dietrich, soon after, walked to the scaffold accompanied by the strains of this very hymn.

I remain, Sir, yours truly,

CH. BEHR, R.C.M., Leipzig.

Southsea, August, 1886.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

. Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—In connection with the Dedication Festival of St. James's Church, a Service of Praise was held on Monday evening, July 26, when Stainer's Daughter of Yairus was given by the Choir of the Church, assisted by several ladies and gentlemen, both in the vocal and instrumental divisions. In attempting a work that made considerable demands upon orchestra and choir, Mr. E. Iles, the organist, and the promoters of the service were undertaking a heavy responsibility, but by vigorous efforts all difficulties were surmounted. The orchestra was excellent, and the well trained choir of St. James's, with the assistance received, did full justice to the vocal portions. A competent soprano, Master George Haynes, had been secured from the choir of St. George's, Hanover Square; the Rev. A. W. Ivatt took the tenor solos, and Mr. A. B. Bevan the bass, all the parts being most efficiently rendered. The service commenced with a processional hymn, "Rejoice, ye pure in heart," to Mr. E. A. Sydenham's well-known and capital tune. In the Cantata, the duet "Love Divine," was one of the most successful items. The ladies and juvenile portion of the choir gave the effective wailing chorus with much care, and all the other choruses were admirably sung. It should be mentioned that Mr. Iles, having secured the services of Mr. W. J. Lancaster, organist of the parish church of Kingston-on-Thames, to preside at the organ, was enabled to free himself entirely for the work of conducting, which was characterised by tact and decision. The whole service reflected most creditably upon Mr. Iles, who spared no pains to secure a worthy performance, and who well deserves the success he attained.

CHELMSFORD.—An Organ Recital was given by Mr. F. R. Frye, F.C.O., at St. Mary's Church, on the 11th ult. The programme was varied and well selected. There was a large congregation, and the Recital was much appreciated.

DOUGLAS, ISLE OF MAN.—A series of capital Concerts was given at Falcon Cliff during the month of July. A quartet of vocalists—viz., Madame Emilie Clark, Madame Joyce Maas, Mr. Charles Chilly, and Mr. Snaezelle, gave unbounded pleasure to large audiences by their charming and varied chamber programmes. The garden scene from Faust was twice given, and warmly received. The orchestra was very efficient.

DUNDALK.—Mr. J. W. Dry, Organist of St. Nicholas' Church, gave an Organ Recital in the Church on Wednesday evening, the 18th ult. There was a good attendance, including a large number of persons not members of the congregation. The Recital was preceded by a short evening service, conducted by the Rev. S. J. Carolin, closing with the singing of Charles Wesley's Hymn, "Jesus, lover of my soul." The programme of the Recital afforded Mr. Dry ample opportunity of displaying his own ability, and also the capacity of the organ. The service concluded with the singing of a Hymn.

HERNE BAY.—Mr. E. A. Crutenden, Organist and Choirmaster of the Parish Church, gave his annual Ballad Concert in the Town Hall, on Monday, July 26. The solo vocalists were Miss M. Kelly, Miss Lena Law, and Mr. R. J. Thompson; instrumentalists, Miss M. Hobday (violin) and Master A. T. Hobday (violinello). Miss E. Fleet, Miss E. Laidlaw, and Master A. G. Iggulden presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Crutenden accompanied. The programme, which was miscellaneous, was well rendered.

LEEDS.—The last but one of the Leeds Corporation free Concerts for this season was given in the Town Hall, on Saturday evening, July 31. The artists were all pupils of the Conductor and Organist, Dr. Sparrk, and their known merit attracted an exceptionally large audience. Dr. Sparrk contributed two solos—Lemmens' Grande Marche Pontificale, and Handel's Air, "Leave me, deceiver," followed by the new March in Le Carnaval de Venise, composed by Dr. Sparrk. This March is an attractive work, and its performance was warmly applauded. Songs were creditably rendered by Mr. Walter Nicholson, Miss Braithwaite, Mr. Gilbert Jackson, and Miss Hettie Peel. In providing an organ solo, Miss L. Greenwood somewhat ambiguously chose Beethoven's Larghetto in A, from the Grand Symphony in D. The performance was received with cordial approval. The monthly Organ Concerts, with vocal music, have proved to be most interesting and attractive. At the free Concert given in the Town Hall, on the 2nd ult., Dr. Sparrk came forward at the conclusion of the third item on the programme and made a touching allusion to the death of Franz Liszt. He said that musical people well knew that Liszt was one of the greatest pianists and most extraordinary composers of our age. Liszt was an enthusiast, admirer of the style adopted by his son-in-law, Richard Wagner, but lacked his genius in instrumentation. He was one of the greatest pianists the world had ever known, and had delighted thousands of persons alike by his performances of classical music and his wonderful improvisations. It had been said that Liszt was born in 1811, but he had looked up authorities on the point, and found that his birth took place in 1809, so that he was seventy-seven years of age at the time of his death. Dr. Sparrk then played, in memoriam, Beethoven's "Funeral March on the death of a Hero," and the grand march from Liszt's Oratorio, St. Elizabeth, both of which were listened to with wrapt attention.

MOLDGREEN.—An Organ Recital and Musical Service took place at the Methodist Free Church, on the 19th ult., the occasion being the opening of the organ recently removed from Londonderry Cathedral, and thoroughly renovated and repaired by Messrs. Conacher and Co., of Huddersfield. Mr. Berry, of Glasgow, was highly successful in his solos, his artistic playing exhibiting the best qualities of the instrument. There was a good choir, and the vocal solos were contributed by Mrs. Sykes, Miss Atkinson, Messrs. F. Haigh, Martin, and James Shaw. Mr. Swindells conducted.

NEWCASTLE.—The annual Musical Flower Service was held in the Wesleyan Chapel, Elswick Road, on the 19th ult., when Mr. W. Carter's Cantata Placidia, the Christian Martyr, was performed. There was an augmented choir of 100 voices, and the solos were taken by Miss Foster, Miss Corrigan, Miss Bellas, Mr. D. S. Macdonald, Mr. J. Robinson, jun., and Mr. J. A. Kent. Mr. Kent presided at the organ, Mr. B. Thompson at the pianoforte, and Mr. G. Dodds conducted. The work was well rendered and thoroughly appreciated.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—At the annual meeting of the St. John's Choral Society, on July 21, the Report announced that there are now upon the roll 202 members, and that the financial condition of the Society is extremely satisfactory. Presents were made to the pianist, Miss Rowe, and the Conductor, Mr. Rowe, a resolution being also passed expressive of the high appreciation of their services by the Committee. The two Concerts given by the Society during the season—the first of which Barnaby Rudge and Gae's Erin's Daughter, and at the second Gae's Psyche were performed—were artistically most successful; but the attendances were scarcely as numerous as might have been expected. Several important amendments were made in the bye-laws of the Society, and it was intimated that arrangements had been made with the Athenaeum Joint Stock Company for the hire of the Athenaeum Hall, by which a considerable saving will be effected.

PLYMOUTH.—The new organ, built by Messrs. Hele and Co. for Mr. R. H. D. White, M.P., one of the Commissioners for Australia, was opened on Saturday, the 7th ult., at their factory in Wyndham Street, by Mr. John Hele, Mss. Bac. The programme, which was played in a masterly manner, included Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D, a selection from Carmen (Bizet), and an Allegro by Lemmens. Mr. Hele also played an Andante in D by Silas, which displayed the soft stops of the organ to great advantage, the full power of the instrument being well brought out in the Finale from Handel's Concerto in B flat.

SHANKLIN.—On Thursday, the 19th ult., a Concert was given by Mr. Charlton Speer, A.R.A.M., on behalf of the Building Fund of the Masonic Lodge. The artists engaged were Miss Hallett, R.A.M.; Miss Stephenson, R.A.M.; Mr. T. W. Page, R.C.M.; Mr. Seymour Kelly, Chichester Cathedral. Harmonium, Mr. W. S. Hoyte, F.C.O.; violin, Master Ernest Skipsey; and accompanist, Mrs. Bishop, R.A.M. (of Shanklin).

STONEHAVEN.—An Organ Recital was given by Mr. Herbert Westerby, Organist and Choirmaster, of Peterfeross, in the Parish Church, on July 30. The programme was arranged so as to put forth the characteristics of national music, this being the first Recital of its kind ever given in Kincardineshire. The composers represented were A. Thomas, Wely, Fumagalli, Petrali, Merkel (Adagio in E), Schubert, Bach (Toccata and Fugue in D minor), and Smart (Postlude in D); Anthems by Attwood, Wesley, and Ouseley were given by a choir selected from the local choirs, Mr. R. M. Atkins, of Aberdeen, rendering assistance in the verse parts in Wesley's "Wilderness." The Recital was listened to with interest by a large and intelligent audience.

SYDNEY, N.S.W.—Miss Pedley gave her benefit Concert in the Protestant Hall, on Wednesday, June 16. The principal item in the programme was Madame Sainton-Dolby's Cantata Florind, which was well rendered, the solos being taken by Miss Eva Thompson, A.R.A.M., and Miss J. Brennan. The choruses were sung by the members of the St. Cecilia Choir; Miss Woolley presided at the pianoforte, and Miss Pedley conducted. In the miscellaneous portion of the programme Miss Pedley contributed songs with much effect, and with Miss Woolley and Herr Patek, gave a fine rendering of Haydn's C major Trio. Mackenzie's "Come, sister, come," and Pissuti's "L'Espagnole" were sung by the choir and much appreciated.

WHITBY.—An Organ Recital was given on Sunday, the 8th ult., after evening service, in St. Michael's Church, by Mr. W. S. Clarke, the Organist, assisted by Mr. Tapley and Mr. Evan Thomas, vocalists. The programme was selected from the works of Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, and Batiste.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Walter J. Pettit, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Thomas's, Elm Road, Camden New Town, N.W.—Mr. E. R. Foster, to St. Mary Magdalene, Chiswick, W.—Mr. Thomas Forward, Organist and Choirmaster to Adisham Church, Kent.—Mr. Charles O. M. Phillips, Organist and Choirmaster of the Holy Cross Church, Mr. Frederick W. Nokes, Organist and Choirmaster to Craven Hill Congregational Church, Lancaster Gate, W.—Mr. J. R. Bannister, Organist and Choirmaster to Holy Trinity Church, Brompton, Gillingham, Kent.—Mr. Lennox Amott, Organist and Choirmaster to Kingsbury Parish Church, Warwickshire.—Mr. A. E. Reinhardt, to the South Cliff Congregational Church, Scarborough.—Mr. Gerald Lamb, Organist and Choirmaster to the Church of the Holy Cross (Episcopal), New York City.—Mr. T. W. Triggs, to Leytonstone Wesleyan Chapel.—Mr. A. W. Moon, Organist and Choirmaster to Old Chelsea Church.—Mr. Lorenzo Faint, T.C.L., Organist and Choirmaster to Kingsbury Church, N.W.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Alfred Pawsey (Alto), to the Church of the Holy Trinity, Sloane Street, S.W.—Mr. W. H. Webb, Choirmaster to St. Paul's Church, Bow Common, E.—Mr. Ernest N. Cullum, Choirmaster to the Temporary Church of Holy Trinity, Charlton.

Mr. W. H. WARD writes to correct an announcement in our last number that he has been recently appointed Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's, Bethnal Green, he having held that post for twelve years.

BIRTH.

On the 18th ult., at Arundel, the wife of EDWARD BARTLETT, A.C.O., of a son.

MARRIAGE.

On the 3rd inst., at St. John's, Brownwood Park, by the Rev. E. A. Eardley Wilmet, Vicar of St. James's, Tunbridge Wells, FREDERICK CHARLES WILLIAM, eldest son of CHARLES FREDERICK HUNNIBELL, of Ipswich, to LAURA ALICE, third daughter of Mrs. ELPHEGE, of Tunbridge Wells, and the late FRANK ELPHEGE.

DEATHS.

On July 30, CHARLES F. FIVE, Organist of St. Andrew's-under-Shaft, and Assistant Organist of King's College, London, aged 41. On the 2nd ult., at 10, Rothwell Street, Regent's Park, ELEANOR, aged 83, widow of WILLIAM MICHAEL ROOKE, Composer. On the 6th ult., after a long and painful illness, WALTER COLLARD JONES, junior member of Henry Jones and Sons, organ builders, South Kensington, aged 25 years.

MISS MAUDE YATES (Contralto).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 15, New York Street, Chorlton-upon-Medlock, Manchester.

MR. WILLIAM NICHOLL (Tenor), engaged New Year's Day, "Messiah," Glasgow Orchestral Concerts. For vacant dates and terms, apply direct to 28, Belsize Road; or, N. Vert, New Bond Street.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

BUCK, DUDLEY.—"The Light of Asia," A Cantata. The Words from the Poem by EDWIN ARNOLD. Paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; scarlet cloth, 5s.CORDER, FREDERICK.—"The Bridal of Triermain," A Cantata. The Words adapted from Sir WALTER SCOTT. Written for the Wolverhampton Festival, 1885. 2s. 6d.LOYD, CHARLES HARFORD.—"Andromeda," A Dramatic Cantata. For Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra. The Libretto written by FREDERIC E. WEATHERLY. Written for the Gloucester Festival, 1886. Paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; scarlet cloth, 5s.ROCKSTRO, W. S.—"The Good Shepherd," An Oratorio. The Words selected from Holy Scripture. Written for the Gloucester Festival, 1886. 2s. 6d.HUNT, WILLIAM H., D.Mus., Lond.—"The Hymn," "Stabat Mater Dolorosa." Paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.BEETHOVEN, L. VAN.—Songs. Vol. I. (The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.) 1s. 6d. (For contents, see advertisement, page 561.)BENNETT, GEORGE J.—Twelve Songs set to Poems of SHELLEY and ROSETTI. 2s. 6d. (For contents, see advertisement, page 512.)COWEN, F. H.—Six Vocal Duets. For Soprano and Contralto. 2s. 6d. (For contents, see advertisement, page 512.)KING, OLIVER.—Six Vocal Duets. For Soprano and Contralto. 2s. 6d. (For contents, see advertisement, page 512.)SCHUMANN, ROBERT.—"Liederkreis" (Twelve Songs). Op. 39. The Poetry by J. von EICHENDORFF. With Pianoforte Accompaniment. Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN. 1s. (For contents, see advertisement, page 562.)NOVELLO, EWER and CO.'S SERVICES OF SACRED SONG. Edited by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK. The Tunes chiefly selected from "The Hymnary." Price Sixpence each—
No. 1. "Abraham." By the EDITOR.
" 2. "Moses." By the Ven. ARCHDEACON FARRAR.
" 3. "Elijah." By the Rev. R. F. DALE.DAY, DAVID.—(In E flat). Te Deum. Chant-wise. 2d.CHENIES TUNE BOOK (specially adapted to the "Book of Common Prayer"). Edited by E. G. COCKS. Cloth, 3s.SINCLAIR, GEORGE ROBERTSON.—(In G). Benedicite, Omnia Opera. 2d.WILLIAMS, CHARLES LEE, Mus. Bac.—(In F major). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. Composed for the Special Closing Service at the Gloucester Musical Festival, 1886. 4d.ARMES, PHILIP.—"The Lord preserveth the souls of His Saints." Anthem for a Saints' Day. (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 304.) 6d.BRADFORD, DR. JACOB.—Harvest Cantata. 1s. 6d.JACKSON, JOHN WILLIAM.—"I cried unto God." A Sacred Cantata. 1s. 6d.MUNDELLA, EMMA.—"Our God is Lord of the Harvest" (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 303.) 3d.STANFORD, C. VILLIERS.—"The Lord is my Shepherd." (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 305.) 6d.NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. 1s. each. Nos. 17, 18, 19, Compositions by FRITZ SPINDLER. One Volume, cloth, 4s.WEST, JOHN E.—Postlude, in B flat. (Original Compositions for the Organ, No. 54.) 1s.NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS IN THE TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. McNAUGHT.MOZART.—Twelfth Mass. 9d.BARNBY, J.—"Rebekah": A Sacred Idyll in two Scenes. Written by ARTHUR MATTHISON. 9d.MDLLE. ANNA LANG (Violiniste) begs to announce her change of address. For Concerts, At Homes, and Lessons, apply to 35, Welbeck Street, W.; or N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street.SOPRANO.—LEADING LADY WANTED, for Choir of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark. Remuneration, £6 per annum. Apply, Organist, any Wednesday evening after service.THE ACADEMY CLASS ROOMS, 162 and 163, PRIAR STREET, READING, are admirably adapted for the use of Professors of Music and the Fine Arts, being centrally situated and close to the G. W., S. W., and S. E. Railway Termini. All communications to Mr. Frank Attwells, Reading.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 2s. Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.

II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.

III. In 32mo. Words only. 14d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SOLO CHOIR BOYS for Church Festivals, Performances, Concerts, At Homes, &c. Apply, Mr. Sampson, 61, Mount Street, Grosvenor Square, W.WANTED, First-rate PIANO, HARP, VIOLIN, and CORNET PLAYERS, for Teaching, Concert and Quadrille Business, &c. Apply, stating past experience, wages required, and enclosing carte, to Country Music Saloon, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.AN ORGANIST of great ability and experience in Choir-Training, is desirous of an ENGAGEMENT (seaside preferred). Brilliant Player and fine Accompanist. Used to full church services. Salary not so much an object as a good organ and field for teaching. Still fully engaged; only present place does not suit health. R., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.ORGANIST (experienced) desires ENGAGEMENT in London, or South of England, or could act as Assistant Organist, where there is good opportunity for preparing for final Mus. Bac., Oxon. Address, J. E., Moore and Moore, Bishops-gate Within, E.C.ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires early APPOINTMENT. First-rate diplomas, testimonials, and references. Churchman, communicant. Address, F.C.O., care of Messrs. Fenwick and Co., Western Road, Brighton.AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is desirous of obtaining an ENGAGEMENT, in or near London, in a Dissenting Church, Congregational preferred. Good references as to character and ability. Member of Church. Apply to F. J. M., care of Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond Street, W.WANTED, an ORGANIST, who shall also be CHOIRMASTER. Apply, by letter only, to The Vicar, St. Mary's, Harrogate.WANTED, a thoroughly good TUNER, for a High-Class Connection in the Country. One who can regulate American Organs preferred. Good wages and constant employment. Address, Evers Scale, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.TRAVELLER for MUSIC TRADE (town and country).—REQUIRED, a respectable, steady, and persevering YOUNG MAN, with letter, with references, experience, &c., to A., care of Metcalfe and Co., 244, Oxford Street, W.CHANCEL ORGAN. 5 stops; two octaves pedals. In handsome Gothic mahogany case. Price £25. Charles J. Klitz, 26, Hanway Street, Oxford Street, W.A CAPITAL Chamber PIPE ORGAN, suitable for a small Church, Hall, or Music Room. Handsome mahogany case; will stand alone. 8 stops and two octaves of pedals. No reasonable offer refused. Owner changing residence, and has no further use for it. Apply, W. Hickie and Son, Reading, Berks.ORGANS.—Three small PIPE ORGANS for SALE. Very suitable for small Church, &c.; one and two-manuals. W. Beales and Co., Organ Builders, Limes Road, East Croydon.VIOLIN (genuine GIO. PAOLO MAGINI). Offers solicited over 10 Guineas. BOKHM Flute; silver-plated Cornet (both RUDALL); Soprano ditto, A. Bargains. 100, Elmore St., N.

Unprecedented success. First issue of 10,000 copies sold in six weeks.

MINE ALONE. WALTZ, by THEO. BONHEUR. Dedicated to, and splendidly illustrated with portrait of Miss Fortescue. This most charming Waltz is being played by all the Military Bands (including the Scots Guards) with unbounded applause, and must become the rage of London. 2s. net. LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY (Limited), 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

VIOLIN AND BOW MAKERS AND REPAIRERS, GEORGE WITHERS & CO.

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, Paris, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,
VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,
ARTISTIC HOUSE,

PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters: among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MAKSI, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYLOR, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

Catalogues and testimonials post-free on application.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS, ORGAN BUILDERS,

BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

HARMONIUM WANTED (Second-hand), by ALEXANDRE, with 2 Manuale, 22 Stops, and Pedals. State lowest cash price to James Graham, Music Warehouse, 6, Standwick Place, Edinburgh.

PIANO PEDALS AND ATTACHMENT (Rumens). New. Price, £4 4s.; also, Bach's Organ Works, Leipzig edition, three vols., half morocco, price, 21s. Organist, Ongar, Essex.

FINE OLD CELLO, in excellent condition, with case and Domb bow, 11 Guineas. W. Simkin, 18, Peel Street, Runcorn.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Finest Italian, three firsts, post-free as sample, for thirteen stamps.—Alphonse Cary, Newbury.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent post free for 13 stamps. PRENZEL'S PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

BRASS, REED, STRING, AND DRUM AND FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, AND HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. Moore's, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES

ARE SIMPLY INVALUABLE TO SPEAKERS AND SINGERS.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS writes:—

"I think very highly of your Lozenges after a thorough test."

MISS JESSIE JONES, R.A.M., writes:—

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the excellent effect produced by your Lozenges upon the throat and voice."

MRS. MUNDELLA writes:—

"Please send another 2s. 9d. tin of your Lozenges, which I have already found so useful."

MR. FARLEY SINKINS, Exeter Cathedral,

writes:—

"They restore the voice when suffering from a cold far better than any Lozenges I know, and I have tried a large assortment."

MR. HENRY CROSS, R.A.M., writes:—

"In your Lozenges I find a valuable remedy and friend. I can safely say that they are the best aid for the voice I have ever tried."

MR. SWIFT, Peterborough Cathedral, writes:—

"I think them excellent for the voice and throat. . . They will command a great sale."

F. NEWCOME, Esq., M.D., writes:—

"It affords me much pleasure to bear medical testimony to the efficacy of your Lozenges in cases of relaxed throat, chronic bronchitis, &c. . . Invaluable to speakers and singers. . . They contain no narcotic."

For coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, huskiness, tickling sensation, relaxed sore and dry throat, bronchial irritation, croup, &c., they have no equal.

Sold only in tins 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Free by post for 14 or 33 stamps. Wholesale, W. Sutton and Co., Bow Churchyard, London, and all Patent Medicine Houses.

PREPARED ONLY BY

J. A. BASKER, F.C.S.,

PHARMACEUTICAL CHEMIST & ANALYST, BRIDGWATER, ENGLAND.

REGENT HALL, LONDON.

[Established by Deed of Constitution (1886) for the Promotion of Artistic Excellence in the Design and Manufacture of Musical Instruments, and the Proficiency of Instrumental Tuners and skilled Musical Mechanicians.]

I. PIANOFORTE & OTHER KEYBOARD INSTRUMENTS.

The Governors of Regent Hall are now prepared to conduct examinations of the quality of tone, touch, and workmanship of Keyboard Instruments; and to affix their hall mark to approved instruments.

II. EXAMINATION OF PIANOFORTE TUNERS.

Arrangements are now completed for the Practical Examination of Pianoforte Tuners for the Hall Certificate of Qualification to practise in such capacity.

The date of the next Examination is fixed for September 29, 1886.

The last date for receiving names for it is September 22.

The Examination Fee is Two Guineas.

The Regulations for either of the above Examinations, with Lists of Examiners and other information, may be had of the undersigned.

CHARLES PETERS, Hon. Sec. to the Governors.
44, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, W.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

Just published.

HANDEL'S SAUL

WITH ADDITIONAL ACCOMPANIMENTS

BY

EBENEZER PROUT.

FULL SCORE (MANUSCRIPT).

	s. d.		s. d.
First Violin...	6 0	Trumpets	1 0
Second Violin	6 0	Trombones (Alto & Tenor)	1 0
Viola	5 0	Trombone (Bass)	0 6
Violoncello and Bass	5 0	Drums	1 0
Flutes	3 0	Glockenspiel (Bells)	0 6
Oboes	4 6	Organ	6 0
Clarinets	4 0	Soprano	1 7½
Bassoons	4 6	Alto	1 7½
Double Bassoon	1 0	Tenor	1 7½
Horns	2 6	Bass	1 6

EDITOR'S PREFACE.

In preparing a New Edition for Concert use of Handel's "Saul," it is needless to say that considerable omissions had to be made in order to bring the work within a reasonable length. These have been, for the most part, those that were sanctioned by usage; but, in addition, two not very interesting songs ("Birth and fortune I despise" and "Your words, O king") have been cut out, while the symphony preceding the recitative, "The time at length is come," has been restored as a probably unique specimen of Handel's treatment of the full orchestra.

Musicians will be aware that the score of "Saul" is one of the fullest and richest of all Handel's works. The Editor has attempted, as far as possible, to preserve the original colouring. With this view the composer's trombone parts, curiously written in some places, have been retained exactly. The same is the case with the trumpets, excepting that a few passages have been modified, where Handel had written them impractically high for modern players. But in no case has the Editor added one note for trumpets or trombones where the composer had not employed them.

The score of "Saul," alone among Handel's oratorios, contains full directions for the treatment of the organ, though the part is seldom written out. The Editor has endeavoured, as far as possible, to carry out these directions in filling up the part. In some cases, as in the symphony preceding the chorus, "Welcome, welcome, mighty king," the effect will be found peculiar; but for this, Handel, not the Editor, is responsible, as the indications here are most minute. In a few passages, in which there is an obligato part for the organ, e.g., in the chorus, "Mourn, Israel, mourn," an arrangement for other instruments is given in small notes, which is intended for use if the oratorio is given in places where there is no organ.

The recitatives should be accompanied by the organ or pianoforte; but, at the desire of the publishers, an arrangement of the accompaniment for strings has also been given. In one instance only has the Editor allowed himself an alteration in the colouring. The recitative sung by the Ghost of Samuel is in this edition accompanied by the low notes of clarinets and bassoons. Purists may possibly object to this; but the Editor would urge, in extenuation, though not in justification, that he has merely carried a little further Handel's own idea of individualizing the spectre by the use of wind instruments. The bassoon parts, at the commencement of this scene, as well as the wind parts in the air "Infernal spirits," are Handel's own.

In this score all the original parts are indicated by "H" and all the additions by "P." In cases where something has been added to Handel's parts, both letters are prefixed. It has not been thought needful to do this in the trumpet parts, the alterations being confined to a very few notes. Here Handel's own passages have been retained, even though difficult, whenever at all practicable.

May this edition help to restore to its proper place in public esteem one of the finest of Handel's many neglected oratorios!

EBENEZER PROUT.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CHOIRMASTERS, Organists, Professors of Music, Conductors of Church, Sunday School, Day School, Temperance, Templar, and Band of Hope Choirs, who have not received J. CURWEN and SONS' Annual Packet, with order for Specimen Copies of new works at nominal prices, are invited to apply for it. Particulars of appointment here would be given. Address, J. CURWEN and SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, London, E.C.

MUSICAL HISTORY, briefly narrated and technically discussed, with a roll of the names of musicians, and the times and places of their births and deaths, by G. A. MACFARREN. Edinburgh: A. and C. BLACK.

SURPLICES.—TO CHOIRMASTERS.—BOYS' SURPLICES, from 3s.; MEN'S, from 6s. Send for list to Surplice, General Agency, 111, Victoria Street, S.W.

CURE OF DEAFNESS.

NOISES IN THE EARS.—Rev. E. J. SILVERTON invites members of the musical profession who may be suffering Deafness or other Aural Troubles to send for his work on the subject, 300th Thousand, post-free for 6d., with letter of advice if case be stated. Free consultations daily, from 11 to 4; Saturday, 11 to 1. Address, Rev. E. J. Silvertown, Imperial Buildings, Ludgate Circus, E.C.

KETTLE DRUMS by POTTER, sizes 23 and 25 inches, with baskets and iron stands, to be SOLD, a Bargain, to cover an advance. Price ten Guineas. R. Attenborough, 13, Charlotte Street, Fitzroy Square, W.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

ALARD, D.—Twenty-four easy and melodious Studies for the Violin and Pianoforte:—

Book I.	5 0
" II.	6 0
" III.	7 0

BEETHOVEN.—Six String Quartets. Op. 18. (In Parts.) Marked and edited by E. Röntgen:—

No. 1.	net 4 0
The others	each, net 3 6

—First Symphony. Arranged for two Pianofortes by E. Nau-mann

11 0

—Triumphal March from "King Stephen." Arranged for two Pianofortes (eight hands) by A. Horn

4 0

—Funeral March from the Sonata, Op. 26. Arranged for two Pianofortes (eight hands) by A. Horn

4 0

DANGLA, CH.—Les Perles d'Italie de France et d'Alle-magne. Thirty favourite Melodies, arranged for Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 107bis. In six Books

each 6 0

—"Nouvelle École de la Mélodie." Fifty easy and progressive Pieces in the first five positions. In six Books:—

Books 2 and 6	each 7 0
The others	each 6 0

DUPONT, A.—"Pianoforte School," Part XV.

8 0

FAURE, J.—"La Voix et le Chant." Traité Pratique

net 20 0

GUILMANT, A.—March Fantasia on two Church Hymns. For Organ, Harp, and Orchestra. Op. 44. Full Score, net

5 0

—Meditation on the "Stabat Mater." For Organ and Orchestra. Op. 63:—

Full Score	net 3 0
Arranged for the Organ or Harmonium	5 0

HAYNES, BATTISON.—Romance. For Violin and Piano-forte. Op. 10

4 6

JENSEN, G.—"Sinfonietta." Op. 22. For String Orchestra. Parts

14 0

KIENZL, W.—"Children's Love and Life." A Presentation Book, magnificently bound and illustrated, containing twelve Pianoforte Pieces

20 0

KLIEBERT, CH.—"Songs of the Brook." Op. 6. Three Pianoforte Pieces

3 0

LÉONARD, H.—Sonata in D minor (by N. Porpora). For Violin and Pianoforte

7 0

LISZT, M.—March from Wagner's "Tannhäuser." Arranged for two Pianofortes (eight hands) by F. Hermann

11 0

MARKULL, F. W.—"Roland's Horn." Op. 135. For Male Chorus, Soli, and Orchestra. Orchestral Parts

35 0

PALESTRINA—New Edition of Complete Works. Vol. 18. Containing six Masses. Score

net 20 0

RUBINSTEIN, A.—Six Pianoforte Pieces:—

No. 1. Elegie	5 0
" 2. Variations	5 0
" 3. Etude	5 0
" 4. Sixth Barcarole	6 0
" 5. Impromptu	6 0
" 6. Ballade	8 0

Soirées Musicales. Eight Pianoforte Pieces:—

No. 1. Prelude	5 0
" 2. Valser	5 0
" 3. Nocturne	5 0
" 4. Scherzo	8 0
" 5. Impromptu	5 0
" 6. Réverie Caprice	6 0
" 7. Badinage	8 0
" 8. Thème varié	6 0

SCHUBERT.—First Symphony in D. Orchestral Parts net

10 0

—Second Symphony in D. Orchestral Parts

15 0

—Third Symphony in D. Orchestral Parts

8 6

—New Edition of Complete Works. Série VIII. Containing Works for Pianoforte, with Accompaniment of another instrument. Score and Parts

17 0

—First Symphony. Arranged for two Pianofortes (four hands) by A. Horn

net 5 6

—Twelve Melodies. Arranged for Violin and Pianoforte by E. W. Ritter. In six Books

each 4 6

SCHUMANN.—"Ringelreihe" (from "Kinderball"). Op. 130. Arranged for two Pianofortes (eight hands) by J. Knorr

4 0

SCHÜTZ, H.—New Edition of Complete Works. By Ph. Spitta. Second Volume. Containing thirteen Psalms, with Accompaniment of Instruments. Full Score

net 30 0

STRAUSS, R.—"Stimmungsbilder." Op. 9. For Pianoforte. Five Pieces

each 2 0

—Quartet in C minor. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello. Op. 13

25 0

VOIGT, G. B.—Four Transcriptions from Classical Masters. For Violin, Flute, and Pianoforte:—

Nos. 1, 2, and 3	each 2 0
No. 4	4 0

WAGNER.—Overture to "Lohengrin." Arranged for two Pianofortes (four hands) by G. Sandré

3 0

WEBER.—Rondo (from Op. 60). Arranged for two Pianofortes (eight hands) by J. Knorr

5 0

WEBER, CH.—First Sonata. For Pianoforte

4 0

WEBER, F.—Easy Trio. Arranged for Violin, Cello, and Pianoforte. Op. 15

9 0

WIENIAWSKI, H.—Two Mazurkas. Op. 19. Arranged for Pianoforte by Ch. Weber

each 3 0

Sold at half-price if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced price, 2s. 6d. net.

ALBUM OF ITALIAN SONGS

TWENTY-TWO SONGS SET TO ITALIAN WORDS,

WITH ACCOMPANIMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

ANGELO MARIANI.

4to, gilt edges.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| 1. Ave Maria. | 12. Il siffo e la mammola. |
| 2. L'Angelina della Biondina. | 13. La Zingarella. |
| 3. Una Foglia. | 14. Date un pane al poverello. |
| 4. Vi Chiamo invano notte e giorno. | 15. L'abbandono. |
| 5. L'ora fatale. | 16. La prece della sera. |
| 6. Ah! tu non m'ami più. | 17. La Provera operaia e l'usignuolo. |
| 7. Lis è morta. | 18. Una Rosa in cimitero. |
| 8. Giovinetto della bella voce. | 19. Io son poeta e re di gran corona. |
| 9. La povera madre. | 20. L'invito alla liberta. |
| 10. Oh! come tu soffri mio povero cor! | 21. Passato, presente, e futuro. |
| 11. Mia dolce speranza. | |

Or, singly, folio, each 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR-PART SONGS by S. S. STRATTON.—

"Monarch Winter," words by W. S. PASSMORE, 3d.; "Summer is but fleeting," words by E. OXFORD, 3d.; "Merrily every bosom boundeth," words by THOMAS MOORE, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee.

By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

- | SONGS. | | net. |
|--|--|-----------|
| WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) | (Sung by Mr. THORLEY BEALE.) | s. d. 2 0 |
| KING CARNIVAL. | The Words written by F. E. Weatherly | 2 0 |
| BY THE RIVER. | The Words written by Herbert Gardner | 2 0 |
| ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) | (Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIN.) | 2 0 |
| THE ZINGARA | (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.) | 2 0 |
| THE COMING YEAR. | The Words written by Dean ALFORD | 2 0 |
| THE OLD MEADOW GATE. | The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq. | 2 0 |
| NELLIE OF THE LEA. | The words written by R. Richardson, Esq. | 2 0 |
| THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. | The Words written by Edward Oxenford | 2 0 |
| | (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.) | |

PIANOFORTE, &c.

- ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2nd Edition 2 0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook ... 2 0
MY LADY BARBARA'S GAVOTTE ... 2 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

- | | | |
|----------------------|--|-----|
| THE THREE STARS. | 2nd Edition | 0 2 |
| THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. | 7th Edition | 0 2 |
| GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. | 19th Edition | 0 2 |
| TO THE DISTANT SEA. | 6th Edition | 0 2 |
| TO THE WOODS. | 10th Edition | 0 2 |
| HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. | 6th Edition | 0 2 |
| THE HOUR OF REST. | 5th Edition | 0 2 |
| DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. | (Humorous.) 8th Edition | 0 2 |
| DAME TROT. | (Humorous.) 6th Edition | 0 2 |
| WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? | 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) | 0 3 |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 7, Berners Street, W., and 50 and 51, Queen Street, E.C.

CATECHISM ON THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC and PIANOFORTE PLAYING. By E. ELLICE JEWELL.

Fourth and Revised Edition. Price 1s. Also,

ELEMENTARY EXERCISES, to be used in conjunction with the above-named work. No manuscript music-book or paper will be required, as space is left with ruled staves for the pupil to write all the exercises in this book. Price 2s.

PIANOFORTE STUDENT'S DAILY STUDY,

comprising Scales, Chords, Arpeggi, and Finger Exercises.

Arranged by ELLICE E. JEWELL. Price 6s.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M. BOWLES.

Price 1s.

"The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times.

"A great deal of information as to what is generally called Thorough-Bass is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Organist.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

Third Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well-written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

Parts I. and II.	each	1 0
Complete, paper cover	1	6
Ditto, paper boards	2	0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	3	0
Or, in Twelve Numbers	each	0 2

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS GLEES, PART-SONGS, &c., by

A. J. CALDICOTT:—

Humpty Dumpty	6d.	Sobbing Quartet	3d.
The House that Jack Built	6d.	The Haymakers	4d.
Jack and Jill	4d.	Yule	4d.
Little Jack Horner	6d.	Out on the Waters	4d.

Now ready, A FISHY CASE

Children's Operetta, in two acts, with illustrations, price 2s. 6d.

MEZZLER and Co., Great Marlborough Street, W.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs.

For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TONE LADDER. Price 6d.

BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent Street.

SONGS by H. T. TILTMAN.

HOMEWARD BOUND. 2s. net. Sung by Miss Hilda Wilson.

DAPHNE. Sung by Mr. Frank Walker. 2s. net.

Both the above published by Messrs. WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Just published.

A FAREWELL.—Song. The Words written by LORD TENNYSON; the music composed by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 2s. net.

EDITH.—Serenade for the Pianoforte. Composed by EDWARD R. G. W. ANDREWS. Price 1s. 6d. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW MUSIC, by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.—LITTLE

JACK HORNER. Humorous Glee for s.a.t.b. Sung with the greatest success in London and the provinces. Price 4d. THE ROBIN, Two-Part Song, s.c. Price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS by ROBERT MACHARDY.

WOODLAND WITCH (Operetta). 3s.

"Is melodious, vocal, and musician-like in its treatment throughout."—Musical Times.

FAIRY MOTHER (Cantata for Ladies' Voices). 2s.

Just published.—SANTA FELICE (Pianoforte Sonata). 5s.

"Exquisite work."—Evening Telegraph.

PROGRESSIVE PIANOFORTE PLAYING. 5s. net.

"This work is beautifully got up, and ought to command a widely extended sale."—Exhibitors' Illustrated Review.

PROGRESSIVE SIGHT-SINGING. 1s.

"Exceedingly clever and valuable work."—Graphic. "Its explanations are clear as a sunbeam."—Oldham Chronicle.

A SONG OF THE TWILIGHT. 4s. Dedicated to Madame Nilsson.

"Exceedingly dramatic and original."—Dundee Advertiser.

UNDER THE BONNET. Song. 4s.

"A quaint city idyll which ought to catch the popular fancy."—Glasgow Herald.

KARLUS' WALTZES. Pianoforte, 4s. Orchestral parts, 1s. 6d.

"Elegant and irresistible. It is a most pleasing dance."—Oldham Chronicle.

I SEE THY FACE. Song. 4s.

BOAT SONG, with Violin Obligato. 4s.

AVE VERUM, for Alto or Bass, with Violin or Flute Obligato. 4s.

LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, Limited,

54, Great Marlborough Street, London.

HARVEST ANTHEMS & HYMNS.

All Thy works praise Thee...	...	E. H. Thorne	3d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord...	...	H. Gadsby	14d.
Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice	...	Sir J. Goss	6d.
Fear not, O land	...	C. H. Lloyd	14d.
Give unto the Lord the glory	...	J. F. Bridge	4d.
God said, Behold, I have given you every herb...	...	G. A. Macfarren	6d.
Great is the Lord	...	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	...	E. J. Hopkins	6d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	...	J. Barnby	4d.
I will magnify Thee, O God	...	Sir J. Goss	3d.
Make melody within your hearts	...	Rev. F. A. J. Hervey	3d.
O give thanks	...	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
O how plentiful is Thy goodness	...	T. M. Pattison	3d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	...	J. Barnby	14d.
O praise the Lord	...	Sir G. A. Macfarren	14d.
Our God is Lord of the harvest	...	Sir Herbert Oakley	4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	...	Emma Mundella	3d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul...	...	Dr. W. Hayes	4d.
Praise ye the Lord for His goodness	...	H. Lahee	14d.
Praised be the Lord	...	G. Garrett	14d.
Sing praises to God	...	C. Steggall	1/-
The earth is the Lord's	...	H. W. Wareing	14d.
The earth is the Lord's	...	A. Lowe	3d.
The earth is the Lord's	...	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The frost'ring earth, the genial showers	...	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
The harvest-tide thanksgiving	...	J. Barnby	14d.
The Lord hath done great things...	...	H. Smart	4d.
The Lord is loving unto every man	...	G. Garrett	3d.
This is the day	...	Sir Herbert Oakley	4d.
Thou visitest the earth and blestest it	...	W. H. Callcott	2d.
Thou visitest the earth	...	Dr. Greene	14d.
Thou visitest the earth	...	J. Baptiste Calkin	4d.
While the earth remaineth...	...	C. Swinnerton Heap	4d.
While the earth remaineth...	...	B. Tours	14d.
Ye shall dwell in the land	...	J. Stainer	14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR

HARVEST

SELECTED FROM "THE HYMNARY."

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Sing to the Lord a joyful song	...	J. Barnby.
O Lord, the heaven Thy power displays	...	Sir F. Ouseley.
Father, blessing every seed-time	...	Dr. Dykes.
Lord, in Thy Name Thy servants plead...	...	W. Metcalf.
The wintry time hath ended	...	Dr. Gauntlett.
Come, ye thankful people, come	...	Sir George Elvey.
God, the Father, Whose creation...	...	H. Smart.
Lord of the harvest, Thee we hail	...	Anonymous.
Lo, summer comes again	...	Rev. E. B. Whyley.
Praise, O praise our Heavenly King	...	German.
Summer ended, harvest o'er	...	J. Adcock.
O Lord of heaven, and earth, and sea	...	Dr. Wesley.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST.

THE JUBILEE CANTATA

(HARVEST CANTATA)

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY

C. M. VON WEBER

Op. 58.

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised, by EBENEZER PROUT. The words translated from the German version of Wendt by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Octavo, 1s.; Full Score, 21s.; Orchestral Parts, 15s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEMS, by THOS. SMITH. 3d. each.

THOU CROWNST THE YEAR. 24th Ed. "O sing unto the Lord." 4th Ed. "Fear not, O land." "My heart is fixed." 3rd Ed. "It is a good thing."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

A NEW TUNE for the Harvest Hymn, WE PLOUGH THE FIELDS, by ARTHUR COITMAN. Third edition. Price 2d. The usual allowance to choirs.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HAIL TO OUR HARVEST HOME. Part-song,

by BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

GREAT IS THE LORD

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

Full, easy, and effective. Price Threepence.

The Leeds Mercury says:—"An excellent specimen of a Choral Festival Anthem, is bright and jubilant in style, very melodious and easy throughout. It well deserves the attention of Choirmasters."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

29th Thousand. "Can be heartily recommended."—Musical Times.

O GIVE THANKS

Full Easy Anthem for Harvest. By E. A. SYDENHAM. Price 3d.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price 14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price Fourpence.

NEW ANTHEM FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS.

O THAT MEN WOULD PRAISE THE LORD

BY

DR. JOSEPH C. BRIDGE, M.A.,

Organist of Chester Cathedral.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

Easy, melodious, and effective. 2nd Thousand.

THE EYES OF ALL WAIT UPON THEE

Price 3d.

Composed by EDWIN A. CLARE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Thousand. Price 3d.

ANTHEM FOR HARVEST OR GENERAL USE.

O GOD, MY SOUL THIRSTETH

COMPOSED BY

F. R. GREENISH, MUS. BAC., OXON.

Easy and effective, with melodious and expressive solo for Treble or Tenor.

This popular Anthem reached its 2nd Edition within a few weeks of publication.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST

THANKSGIVING MARCH

FOR THE ORGAN

BY

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST FESTIVAL ANTHEMS, &c.—

"Popular, easy, melodious, and effective." Composed by CALKIN SINGER, Organist of St. Mary Magdalene, Worcester.

PRAISE THE LORD, O MY SOUL. New. 3rd Thousand 3d.

FEAR NOT, O LAND. 5th Thousand 3d.

AND GOD SAID, LET THE EARTH. 19th Edition 3d.

THEY THAT SOW IN TEARS. 5th Edition (with Duet) 3d.

O LORD, HOW MANIFOLD. 5th Thousand. For Parish Choirs 4d.

MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE. 5th Thousand 3d.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in F. 7th Edition 3d.

TE DEUM in F. 4th Edition 3d.

Sung at numerous Choral Festivals.

COMMUNION SERVICE in F. New 6d.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. New 4d.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

NEW HARVEST CAROL.

SOWING AND REAPING. Words by ANNA

SHIPTON; music by J. MAUDE CRAMENT, MUS. BAC., OXON.

Price Twopence. Words only, 1s. 4d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.—I WILL MAGNIFY

THEE, O GOD, MY KING, by WM. JOHNSON. Easy and effective. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Thousand.

HARVEST ANTHEM.—ALL THY WORKS

PRAISE THEE, O LORD. Composed by T. MEE PATTISON.

Chorus, Tenor Solo, Chorus. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST SERVICES.

HARVEST CANTATA. By Dr. JACOB BRADFORD.

Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST HYMN.

NOW OUR BARNS ARE FULL OF TREASURE.

By Dr. JACOB BRADFORD. Two Tunes. Price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WAS GLAD. Festival Anthem. By Dr. JACOB BRADFORD. Second Edition. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASY HARVEST MUSIC.

EIGHT HARVEST HYMNS. Words by Rev.

S. CHILDS CLARKE; Music by Dr. DYKES, DEAN ALFORD, Mr. LANGRAN, and the Editor, Mr. A. H. BROWN. Price 2d.; words only, 1s. per 100.

"A very excellent set of hymns, and most suitable for country parishes."—Church Times."We would specially draw attention to the unusually good common metre tune 'St. Angela,' No. 5, which might well pass for a composition of 250 years ago."—Church Herald.Fear not, O land. For Harvest Thanksgiving S. C. COOKE 3d.
The rain cometh down. " ARTHUR TRICKETT 3d.
Thou visitest the earth. " ARTHUR SIMMS 6d.

THE LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING CO. (LTD.), 54, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.

Just published.

OUR GOD IS LORD OF THE HARVEST

ANTHEM FOR HARVEST

COMPOSED BY

EMMA MUNDELLA.

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBERT LOWE'S HARVEST ANTHEM.

THE EARTH IS THE LORD'S. Short, easy, full, and effective. Composed expressly for Parish Choirs. Octavo, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBERT LOWE'S HARVEST CAROL.

HOLY IS THE SEED-TIME. Composed expressly for Harvest Festivals. Octavo, 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

LONDON GREGORIAN CHORAL ASSOCIATION HARVEST THANKSGIVING SERVICE BOOK, containing Hymns and Introits for a Solemn Celebration of the Holy Eucharist, and Canticles, Hymns, and Anthem for Evensong. Price, to Choirs, 3s. per dozen. Specimen copies will be sent, post-free, to Choirmasters, on application to HERBERT M. LOW, Hon. Sec., 22, Bread Street, Cheapside, E.C.

A NEW SUCCESS.

HYMN TUNE

I WAS A WANDERING SHEEP

(To the words of 258, H. A. & M.)

By EDWARD W. CRAWLEY.

Price Twopence. 2nd Thousand.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS for TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1d.
Grant, O Lord... ..	Mozart	1d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Osseley	1d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	1d.
I beheld, and lo!	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Osseley	1d.
In humble faith	G. Garrett	1d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfield	1d.
In sweet consent	E. H. Thorne	1d.
O taste and see	J. Stainer	3d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	6d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	1d.
O Father blest... ..	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1d.
Stand up and bless	A. H. Mann	1d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	Sir J. Goss	1d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	4d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	J. Shaw	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God... ..	H. Hiles	3d.
	Sir H. Osseley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated by special permission to H.R.H. the Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck.

A FESTIVAL PSALM (145th)

I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING

For Soli, Chorus, and Full Orchestra

COMPOSED BY

J. MAUDE CRABENT,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

The above work will be published by subscription, and will be ready for delivery about the beginning of September.

Vocal Score, 8vo, paper cover, price Half-a-Crown.

Subscribers' names received by J. M. Crament, Esq., 10n, Kensington Square, W., or Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W. The work will be first performed in public, under the direction of the Composer, by the Richmond Choral Society (H.R.H. the Duchess of Teck, Patroness), at the first of their Winter Concerts.

NEW SACRED CANTATA

FOOTPRINTS OF THE SAVIOUR

BY

EDMUND ROGERS,

Composer of "The Pilgrim's Progress," &c.

PART I.—HIS CHILDHOOD.

INTRODUCTION.

CHORUS	Christians, awake!
RECIT. (Bass)	Behold, there came.
CHORALE	Earth has many a noble city.
RECIT. (Bass)	Eight days were accomplished.
SOLO (Soprano)	How sweet the Name of Jesus.
RECIT. (Bass)	The Child Jesus.
SOLO (Contralto) and CHORUS	The Heavenly Child.

PART II.—HIS MINISTRY ON EARTH.

RECIT. (Bass)	Then cometh Jesus.
SOLO (Bass)	Now Jesus lifts.
RECIT. (Bass)	And Jesus was led.
CHORUS	Forty days and forty nights.
RECIT. (Bass)	Both Jesus was called.
TRIO (S.S.C.)	How welcome was the call.
RECIT. (Bass)	Jesus arose.
CHORUS	Fierce was the wild billow.
RECIT. (Bass)	Jesus said, "I am the Good Shepherd."
SOLO (Tenor)	The Lord my pasture shall prepare.
CHORALE	Rest of the weary.

PART III.—HIS PASSION AND DEATH.

CHORUS and QUARTET	Hosanna!
RECIT. (Bass)	Now the first day of the feast.
RECIT. (Bass)	Then cometh Jesus.
CHORALE	Go to dark Gethsemane.
RECIT. (Bass)	Behold the Son of Man.
DUET (Soprano & Contralto)	His trial o'er.
RECIT. (Bass)	Now there stood by the cross.
SOLO (Soprano)	Sweet the moments.
RECIT. (Bass)	And Jesus cried with a loud voice.
QUARTET	Oh, come and mourn with us.
CHORALE	Resting from His work to-day.

PART IV.—THE RESURRECTION AND ASCENSION.

RECIT. (Tenor and Bass)	Why seek ye the living?
CHORUS	He is risen.
DUET (Tenor and Bass)	Ye Men of Galilee.
CHORUS	Hail the day that sees Him rise.
CHORUS	Crown Him with many crowns.

Staff Notation, 3s.; Choruses only, 1s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 8d.

London: J. CURWEN and SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices.

Price 3s. String parts, 11s. Wind parts, MS.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlvii.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

MRS. SPEAKER;
OR, LADY LEGISLATORS

A NEW DRAMATIC CANTATA

Libretto by JAMES WORKMAN; Music composed by A. W. BORST.

Price 3s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR CANTATAS. Composed by T. MEE

PATTISON.

THE ANCIENT MARINER. Fourth edition. 2s. 6d.

THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL. New Cantata. 2s. 6d.

Band parts may be hired.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

No.			s. d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges ...	1 0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges ...	0 6
"	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth ...	0 4
"	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper cover ...	0 3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth ...	4 0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	5 0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth ...	3 0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	4 0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	2 0
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth ...	2 6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	3 0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type. Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	10 6
Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.
Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No. 9.	The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.	s. d.
10.	Limp cloth ...	4 0
11.	Cloth boards ...	5 0
12.	Small edition ...	3 0
13.	Tonic Sol-fa ...	3 0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use ... 1 3
(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN;
And all Booksellers and Musiciansellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and
SVO. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS
for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices.
Second Series. Female and Male Voices.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metre; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tunes; the Music of the Responses; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C	...	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	...	6d.
Cantate and Deus miseratur in G	...	8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100)	...	1d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Fifth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover; 3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK.

Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc. Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO. OXFORD: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc. Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 14d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and PARKER AND CO.

Nineteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s. limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By JAMES FITZGERALD, Organist, Kidderminster. Price 1s. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW ANTHEM.

OPRAISE GOD IN HIS HOLINESS, by ALFRED R. GAUL. As sung by the London Church Choirs in St. Paul's Cathedral.

"A remarkably fine example of choral writing."—Daily News.

"A perfect specimen of chorus writing."—Church Times.

Price Sixpence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

VESPER MUSIC, No. 5, now ready. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by W. HAYNES, Organist, Priory Church, Malvern. These Settings have been sung at several Choral Festivals. No. 1, 2d.; Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 3d. each. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOW READY, by G. H. SWIFT (Organist, Parish Church, Hungerford, Berks), EVENING SERVICE in E. Price 4d.

SING PRAISES UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. Price 3d.

SHOW US THY MERCY. Anthem. Price 6d.

O SING UNTO THE LORD. Anthem. 3rd edition. Price 3d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Now ready, price Threepence.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS (in F), composed by E. A. SYDENHAM, Organist of All Saints', Scarborough. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE OFFICE for the HOLY COMMUNION. Set to music in the key of F by GEORGE KETT. Price Fourpence. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

2ND EDITION. As sung at St. George's, Edgbaston. FIVE Popular FESTIVAL and other HYMNS, with new Tunes, by J. J. JOYCE, together 3d. "I like the tunes very much."—Dr. Stainer. (Inscribed to by permission.) LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SECOND SERIES.

POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS, SINGLE AND DOUBLE
TOGETHER WITH
RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS.

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., M.A.,
AND
EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

CATHOLIC HYMNS
WITH ACCOMPANYING TUNES

CATHOLIC HYMNS CONTAINS SPECIALLY WRITTEN CONTRIBUTIONS

by J. C. Bowen, J. T. Field, Philip Francis, Egerton B. Harding, H. C. Layton, Charles H. Lloyd, Mus. Bac., Dr. E. M. Lott, Dr. A. H.
Mann, Dr. G. C. Martin, Rev. R. B. Sankey, Mus. Bac., B. Luard
Selby, Dr. Joseph Smith, A. E. Tozer, and Rev. H. A. Whitehead.
London : NOVELLO, EWER and Co. ; BURNS and OATES, Limited.

By E. BUNNETT, MUs.D.

Te Deum, in E. Octavo	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate, in E.	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in A.	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	3d.
Te Deum in E. Chant Form	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E. Chant Form	3d.
Harvest or Festival Hymn Tune. Music and Words	1d.
Harvest Anthem—"Blessed be Thou." Four voices	3d.
Anthem—"I will magnify Thee"	3d.
"If ye love me"	3d.

PART-SONGS.

The Rhine Maiden.	Four Voices	3d.
Spring	"	3d.
Beware	"	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.
 London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OF THE

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E fl.)	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A).....	6d.
Bridge, Dr. (in G).....	4d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A).....	4d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G).....	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in B flat).....	6d.
Fanning, Eaton (in C).....	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A).....	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C).....	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C).....	6d.
Lloyd, C. H. (in F).....	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F).....	4d.
Mann, A. H., Dr. (in E).....	ra.	Tours, Berthold (in D).....	6d.
Martin, George C. (in C).....	6d.	Williams, C. L. (in F major).....	6d.

Cantate and Deus (in C), Dr. Steggall, 6d.
The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment, or with organ only, when necessary.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BY

DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM, in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE "	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE and STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

SET TO MUSIC IN E MAJOR

BY
JOSEPH MOSENTHAL,
Organist and Choirmaster of Calvary Church, New York.
Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC by ALEX. S. COOPER, F.C.O.,
Editor of the "Parochial Chant Book," &c.
COMMUNION SERVICE.	Fourth edition	...	6d.
NICENE CRED.	Ely Prize Setting	...	4d.
	Monotone Setting	...	3d.
ATHANASIAN CRED.	With appropriate Chants	...	3d.
BENEDICTE.	Three different Settings, 4th edition	...	3d.
UNISON CHANTS.	With varied Accompaniments	...	3d.
COME UNTO ME.	Full Anthem, 6th edition	...	3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.: or WEEKES and Co.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; or WERKES and Co.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net.
STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

Just published.

OF THE

ATHANASIAN CREED

Arranged for voices in unison, with Organ Accompaniment, by

I. STAINER.

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN:

Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to
A. HENNING, Organist, Diez.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

ORGAN VOLUNTARIES

FOR CHURCH USE

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST,

MUS. DOC., CANTAB., FELL. COLL. ORG., PROFESSOR OF THE ORGAN AT THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC, &c., &c.

Part 1.	22	Concluding Voluntaries in March form	price 21s. net.
Part 2.	11	Andantes	10s. 6d. net.
Part 3.	36	Short and Easy Voluntaries	15s. net.

This work is now being published by subscription, and will be clearly printed (with an independent stave for the pedals throughout upon 250 full music size pages of the usual Organ oblong form.

The subscription may be for either part, or for all, as follows:—

Part 1	10s. 6d. net post-free.	Part 3	7s. 6d. net post-free.
Part 2	5s. 3d. net post-free.	Or Parts 1, 2, and 3 together	21s. net post-free.

When the subscription list is closed the work will only be obtainable at the marked net price.

The majority of the pieces will be of rather an easy nature, intricate combinations of the manual and pedal parts being carefully avoided, and, in order to facilitate playing, fingering and pedal marks will be plentifully given. This will make the 36 Short and Easy Voluntaries particularly useful to young students, and for teaching purposes, as the master will be spared considerable trouble in making guiding marks for a pupil, and the latter will be less likely to go astray when practising alone.

It is hoped that the 22 Postludes will supply an acknowledged want of a set of concluding voluntaries for divine service, that will not make unreasonable demands upon the player, and yet at the same time will be fairly solid and effective.

The whole work is mostly set for organs of two manuals; for though the third manual is not forgotten, it is borne in mind that most instruments in this country have two manuals only, and that while pieces written for two manuals can always be played upon one having three, those written for three cannot so easily be played upon two, for which indeed they require adaptation and rearrangement, thus giving an Organist something else to manage in addition to the execution of the piece.

It is generally acknowledged that close printing makes the reading of music a more difficult task than when it is more clearly spread out. By allowing the music ample space upon the plates this is to be obviated.

Subscriptions or subscribers' names (quoting church appointment if any) should be at once sent to the Composer, BURLINGTON VILLA, UNDERHILL ROAD, LORDSHIP LANE, S.E., so as to be in time for the List of Subscribers which it is hoped to publish.

To those who send in their name only, a notice will be sent when the work is ready (about the end of October), and on the receipt of their remittance it will be posted to them.

P.O.O. payable at Honor Oak Post Office, Westhall Road, S.E.

PLAIN SETTING

OF THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

INCLUDING

BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI, FOR GENERAL USE.

By E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. Doc.

Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHARLES SALAMAN'S

FOUR NEW SONGS

Two Shillings net.

(FOR TENOR AND SOPRANO)

MY STAR	Words by EDWIN ARNOLD.
LATE, SO LATE	Lord TENNYSON.
MURMURED MUSIC	MALCOLM C. SALAMAN.
LOVE'S LEGACY

London: STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, W.

SCHOOL CANTATAS AND SONGS. Composed and arranged by GEO. SHINN, Mus. Bac. Containing Solos, Duets, and Choruses for Treble and Alto, with Pianoforte Accompaniment:—

THE FOUR SEASONS.	Staff Notation, 1s. 6d.	Sol-fa, 6d.
THE BELL TOWER.	" " 1s.	" 4d.
TWELVE SELECT SONGS.	" " 8d.	" 3d.

HART and Co., 22, Paternoster Row, E.C.

THE DIATONIC & CHROMATIC SCALES

Complete. New and Enlarged Edition.

A very IMPORTANT feature of the present issue is the addition of—

1. Arpeggio forms of the Common Chord, Dominant and Diminished 7ths in all keys.
 2. A Complete System of Scales in contrary movement.
 3. Alternative Fingering of Diatonic Scales in 6ths and 10ths.
- This work now meets all requirements of LOCAL and other MUSICAL Examinations. Edited and carefully revised by

ARTHUR O'LEARY,

Member of the Royal Academy of Music, &c., &c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO

WELL. Fourth Edition. Price 1s.

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. Price 1s. 4th Ed.

LITTLE DIFFICULTIES IN PLAYING EXPLAINED. 1s.

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A CHOIR. Price 1s.

HOW TO TUNE YOUR OWN PIANO. Price 1s.

THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

NEW COMPOSITIONS

By TURLE LEE.

Nuptial March, Hymen March (Organ, 3s.; Piano, 4s.); half-price.

Published by CHUDLEIGH BROS., 140, Strand, W.C.

List of compositions sent on application.

Just published.

FRANZ SCHUBERT.

New Edition of Complete Works

Seré VIII.—Containing Works for Pianoforte, with Accompaniments of another Instrument. Score and parts net 17 0
 First Symphony in D. Orchestral parts 10 0
 Second Symphony in B. Orchestral parts 15 6
 Third Symphony in D. Orchestral parts 8 6
 Subscriptions to the above edition, of which already several volumes have been issued, are received by the Sole Agents for the United Kingdom.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

HEINRICH SCHÜTZ.

NEW EDITION OF COMPLETE WORKS

BY

PHILIPP SPITTA.

Vol. II., containing THIRTEEN PSALMS for CHORUS, with Instrumental Accompaniments. Full Score, net 30s.

PALESTRINA.

NEW EDITION OF COMPLETE WORKS

Vol. XVIII., containing SIX MASSES. Full Score, net 20s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

SONGS

COMPOSED BY

L. VAN BEETHOVEN.

The English version by The Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.

VOLUME I.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

CONTENTS.

TO HOPE!—An die Hoffnung.
ADELAIDE—Adelaide.
PRAYER—Bitten.
LOVE OF ONE'S NEIGHBOUR—Die Liebe des Nächsten.
DEATH—Vom Tode.
THE GLORY OF GOD IN NATURE—Die ehre Gottes aus der Natur.
THE POWER AND PROVIDENCE OF GOD—Gottes Macht und Vorsehung.
A SONG OF PENITENCE—Busslied.
URIAN'S JOURNEY ROUND THE WORLD—Urian's Reise um die Welt.
FLAME-COLOUR—Feuerfarb'.
THE SONG OF REST—Das Liedchen von der Ruhe.
A SONG OF MAY—Mailed.
MOLLY'S FAREWELL—Molly's Abschied.
A SONG—Lied.
MARMOT—Marmotte.
THE FLOWERET OF WONDROUS SWEETNESS—Das Blümchen wunderhold.
MIGNON'S SONG—Mignon.
NEW LOVE, NEW LIFE—Neue Liebe, neues Leben.
SONG FROM GOETHE'S "FAUST"—Aus Goethe's "Faust."
GRETTEL'S WARNING—Gretel's Warnung.
TO THE LOVED ONE AT A DISTANCE—An den fernen Geliebten.
THE CONTENTED MAN—Der Zufriedene.
HOPE—Hoffnung.
LOVE'S COMPLAINT—Liebes-Klage.
SILENT QUESTIONING—Stille Frage.
THE IMPATIENCE OF LOVE—Liebes-Ungeduld.
London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

THE LIGHT OF ASIA

A CANTATA

The Words from the Poem by EDWIN ARNOLD.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

DUDLEY BUCK.

Price, in paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Now ready.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

SERVICES OF SACRED SONG

EDITED BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

THE TUNES CHIEFLY SELECTED FROM THE "HYMNARY."

Price Sixpence each.

No. 1. ABRAHAM.—By the EDITOR.

" 2. MOSES.—By the Ven. Archdeacon FARRAR.

" 3. ELIJAH.—By the Rev. R. F. DALE, Rector of Bletchington, Oxon.

" 7. SIMON PETER.—By J. H. BRAMMALL.

To be continued.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS

IN F MAJOR

Composed for the Special Closing Service at the Gloucester Musical Festival, 1886, by CHARLES LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Fourpence.

Orchestral Parts for Strings, Flutes, Oboes, Clarinets, Bassoons, Horns, Trumpets, Trombones, and Drums.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

A. GUILMANT.

MARCHE FANTAISIE on two Church Hymns, for Organ, Harps, and Orchestra. Op. 44. Full Score, net 5s.

MEDITATION on the STABAT MATER, for Organ and Orchestra.

Op. 63. Full score, net 3s.

Arranged for the Organ or Harmonium, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S
ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. 1.

FOUR MARCHES

COMPOSED BY

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

No. 1. Wedding March. | No. 3. Cornelius March, Op. 108.
" 2. War March of the Priests. | " 4. Funeral March, Op. 103.

TRANSCRIBED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 2.

THIRTY MELODIES

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

These Melodies are expressly written to be used in connection with the Author's VIOLIN PRIMER.

No. 3.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 4.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

GOUNOD'S "MORS ET VITA"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

* These Albums may also be had arranged for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED FOR THE

HARMONIUM

BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Six Books, each containing Sixty Voluntaries,
One Shilling each.

In Two Volumes, Cloth, gilt, Four Shillings each.

LISTS OF CONTENTS GRATIS AND POST-FREE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ROBERT SCHUMANN'S
PIANOFORTE WORKS

EDITED AND FINGERED BY

AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

ALBUM FOR THE YOUNG

55 PIECES.

Price 2s. 6d., paper cover; or, 4s. 6d., cloth, gilt.

Or, in Three Parts, One Shilling each.

ALBUM LEAVES

20 PIECES.

Price 1s. Paper cover.

SCENES OF CHILDHOOD AND FOREST SCENES

22 PIECES.

Price 1s. Paper cover.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Now ready

LIEDERKREIS

(TWELVE SONGS)

Poetry by J. VON EICHENDORFF, with Pianoforte Accompaniment

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN

(OP. 39).

Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling.

No.

CONTENTS.

1. { In der Fremde—Aus der Heimath.
{ Homeless—Where the sunset lightnings.
2. { Intermezzo—Dein Bildnis wunderselig.
{ Thine image fair and tender.
3. { Waldesgespräch—Es ist schon spät.
{ The Loreley—The hour is late.
4. { Die Stille—Es weiss und rath es.
{ Maiden thoughts—Oh, no one knows.
5. { Mondnacht—Es war als hätte der Himmel.
{ Moonlight—It was as though the heaven.
6. { Schöne Fremde—Es rauschen die Wipfel.
{ The fair, far land—A tremor has pass'd.
7. { Auf einer Burg—Eingeschlafen auf der Lauer.
{ In a ruin—High within yon castled tower.
8. { In der Fremde—Ich hör die Bächlein.
{ Far from home—I hear the brooklets.
9. { Wehmuth—Ich Kann wohl manchmal singen.
{ Sadness—On happy days my singing.
10. { Zwielficht—Dämm'ung will die Flügel spreiten.
{ Twilight—Twilight gathers o'er the meadows.
11. { Im Walde—Es zog eine Hochzeit.
{ In the Wood—A bridal train thro' the woodland.
12. { Frühlingsnacht—Über'm Garten, darch die Lüfte.
{ Night in Spring—O'er the gardens, thro' the azure.

These Songs were composed in 1840.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MYRTHE

(MYRTLES)

A CIRCLE OF SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN.

Edited and Translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

No.

CONTENTS.

1. Dedication—Widmung (Rückert).
2. The free mind—Freisinn (Goethe).
3. The walnut tree—Der Nussbaum (Mosen).
4. Some one (Burns)—Jemand.
5. To sit alone—Sitz' ich allein (Goethe).
6. Bump not the flask—Setze mir nicht (Goethe).
7. The lotos flower—Die Lotosblume (Heine).
8. Talismans—Talismans (Goethe).
9. Suleika's song—Lied der Suleika (Goethe).
10. The Highland widow's lament (Burns)—Die Hochländer Wittwe.
11. Song of the Bride, No. 1—Lied der Braut (Rückert).
12. Song of the Bride, No. 2—Lied der Braut.
13. My heart's in the Highlands (Burns)—Mein Herz ist im Hochland.
14. Hey Baloo (Burns)—Hochländisches Wiegenlied.
15. My soul is dark (Byron)—Mein Herz ist schwer.
16. Enigma—(Authorship uncertain)—Räthsel.
17. Row gently here, No. 1 (Moore)—Zwei Venetianische Gondellieder.
18. When thro' the Piazzetta, No. 2 (Moore).
19. The captain's lady (Burns)—Hauptmanns Weib.
20. Oh, how can I be by thee and glad (Burns)—Weit, Weit.
21. What would'st thou, lonely teardrop—
Was will die einsame Thräne (Heine).
22. No one (Burns)—Niemand.
23. Out over the Forth (Burns)—Im Westen.
24. Thou'rt like unto a flower—Du bist wie eine Blume (Heine).
25. A message sweet as roses—Aus den östlichen Rosen (Goethe).
26. Conclusion—Zum Schluss (Rückert).

These Songs were composed in 1840. Those that bear the names of English poets were composed to German translations, and the original text had to be slightly modified in many places to fit it to the music.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

SELECTED, EDITED, AND TRANSLATED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

- | | |
|---|--|
| Praise of Tears. | Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.") |
| Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.") | Thro' the pine-wood. |
| The Message of Flowers. | The summer waves. |
| Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.") | Wanderer's Night-song. |
| Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.") | Trust in Spring. |
| The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.) | The Maiden's Lament. |
| The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.") | To Mignon. |
| Hallow'd night, descend. | The Passing-Bell. |
| | Alinda. |
| | Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.") |
| | The Fisherman. |
| | On the water. |

VOLUME II.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

CONTRALTO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

- | | |
|----------------------------|---------------------------------|
| The Wanderer. | Sadness. |
| Fisher's song. | To the Lyre. |
| The angry Bard. | Calm at sea. |
| The unlucky Fisherman. | Lay of the imprisoned Huntsman. |
| Old Man's song. | Passing to Hades. |
| The flight of Time. | Comfort in tears. |
| Litany for All Souls' day. | Death and the Maiden. |
| The weary heart. | Crossaders. |
| Minstrel's treasure. | Dithyramb. |
| Soldier's drinking song. | Prometheus. |

VOLUME III.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR

SOPRANO OR TENOR.

CONTENTS.

- | | |
|-------------------------|--------------------------------|
| The Erl-King. | Hark, hark, the lark. |
| Omnipotence. | Thou would I greet. |
| Love's unrest. | To the beloved one. |
| Rose among the heather. | Suleika's second song. |
| Sad heart. | Presence of the loved one |
| The band of roses. | Laughing and weeping. |
| Thou art repose. | Margaret's prayer. |
| Ganymed. | By the doorways I will wander. |
| Mignon. | To a brooklet. |
| Secrets. | To Sylvia. |

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ORIGINAL
COMPOSITIONS for the ORGANBY
OTTO DIENEL

(Organist of St. Marien-Kirche, Kgl. Musik Director, Berlin).

No.		s.	d.
1.	Fugue in G, Op. 2	...	1 0
2.	First Grand Sonata in D minor, Op. 3	...	2 6
3.	Concert-Satz, Op. 10	...	2 0
4.	Second Grand Sonata in G minor, Op. 11	...	3 6
5.	Funeral March on the Choral "Jesus, my trust," Op. 12	...	1 6
6.	Adagio in D, Op. 13, No. 1	...	1 0
7.	Andante in C, Op. 13, No. 2	...	1 0
8.	Third Grand Sonata in F, Op. 18	...	5 0
9.	Echo-Andante, Op. 19	...	1 6
10.	{ Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 1 } { Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 2 }	...	1 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CHURCH ORGANIST

A COLLECTION OF PIECES FOR USE DURING
DIVINE SERVICE

BY CHARLES COLLIN.

BOOK I. 2s. 6d.

March.
Communion.
Elevation.

Offertoire.
Postlude.
Offertoire.

BOOK II. 3s.

Offertoire for the Feast of Pentecost.
Hymn.
Elevation.

Communion.
Ditto.
March.
Postlude.

BOOK III. 2s. 6d.

Elevation.
Postludium.
Offertoire.

Communion.
Elevation.
March.

BOOK IV. 2s. 6d.

Offertoire.
Elevation.

Grand Chœur.

BOOK V. 2s. 6d.

Communion or Offertoire.
Prelude on the Hymn of
St. Joseph.

Offertoire for Easter-day.
Offertoire or Communion.

BOOK VI. 2s. 6d.

Allegretto.
Elevation.

Allegro-Fanfare.

BOOK VII. 2s. 6d.

March.
Communion.
Andante.

Andantino.
Grand Chœur.

BOOK VIII. 2s. 6d.

Offertoire (for Xmas Day).
Hymn (Jesu, dulcis memoria).

Allegretto.
Prelude.
Te Deum.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARRANGEMENTS for the ORGAN

BY
GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

No. 1.	Slow Movement (Quintet)	...	Schumann.
	Minuet (12 Minutes)	...	Beethoven.
2.	Andante (Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 147)	...	Schubert.
	Largo	...	Handel.
	As pants the hart	...	Spohr.
3.	Agnus Dei	...	Schubert.
	Overture, "Acis and Galatea"	...	Handel.
	Albumblätter, No. 1	...	Schumann.
4.	Adagio (Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 2, No. 1)	...	Beethoven.
	The Cat's Fugue	...	Scarlatti.
	Albumblätter, No. 5 (Op. 99)	...	Schumann.
5.	Romance and Scherzo (Fourth Symphony)	...	Schumann.
	Air (Overture for Suite) in D	...	Bach.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MEDELSSOHN'S ORGAN MUSIC

EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

SIX SONATAS

AND

THREE PRELUDES AND FUGUES

In One Volume, oblong, price 3s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SOFT VOLUNTARIES FOR THE ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

GEORGE CALKIN.

Eight Books, price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ORGAN WORKS
OF
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH

EDITED BY

J. F. BRIDGE, and JAMES HIGGS,
Mus. Doc., Oxon. Mus. Bac., Oxon.

BOOK I.—EIGHT SHORT PRELUDES AND FUGUES 2s. 6d.

In this edition much help is offered towards a correct and effective rendering of Bach's Organ Music. The distribution of the parts between the two hands is clearly shown. The notes most conveniently played by the right hand are printed on the upper, and those best taken by the left hand on the lower, of the two manual staves. The pedalling is indicated where necessary. Marks of expression and phrasing are added occasionally, and suggestions for the effective use of the organ are given throughout. The Preface contains many useful hints.

BOOK II.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND TRIO 3s. 0d.

The second book of the new edition of Bach's Organ Works is more advanced in point of difficulty than the first, and will be found of conspicuous interest. It includes the well-known "Giant" in D minor, the shorter Prelude and Fugue in E minor (a great favourite with Mendelssohn), and an exceedingly effective Prelude and Fugue in C minor, in addition to other less-known but important works. It is a specialty of this edition that a convenient and effective mode of performance is everywhere indicated. Appended to the preface is a suggested metronomic rate for each movement.

BOOK III.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND FANTASIA 3s. 0d.

The third book contains compositions of greater difficulty, it is therefore more fully fingered and marked for the pedals. It is believed Organ Students will derive the greatest possible assistance by having their attention directed from the outset to a convenient method of dealing with each difficulty as it arises. The present book includes the Fugue in B minor, on a subject from Corelli, a beautiful Prelude and Fugue in A major (most useful for obtaining command of the higher part of the Pedal-board), a Prelude and Fugue in C major, a Fantasia and Fugue in C minor, and the well-known short G minor Fugue. There is, as usual, in this Edition a Preface containing interesting particulars of the several works.

BOOK IV.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL 3s. 0d.

The fourth book contains the first three of the six celebrated Sonatas or Trios for two manuals and pedal. Spitta says: "These Sonatas were intended by J. S. Bach to complete the education of his eldest son, Wilhelm Friedemann, as an organist." They are invaluable as studies and very beautiful as music. In the present edition they are for the first time fingered and marked for the Pedals.

BOOK V.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL 3s. 0d.

The fifth book contains the last three of the six Sonatas. Those in E minor, C major and G major. They are of exceeding value to the Student of Organ Playing. The mastery of them assuring him of that thorough independence of hands and feet so indispensable to the fully accomplished organist. As in the former book, proper fingering and pedalling is everywhere indicated. The Preface contains a detailed analysis of each movement.

BOOK VI.—PRELUDES AND FUGUES 3s. 0d.

The sixth book includes several of Bach's greatest and most popular Organ Works. (1) The Toccata in D minor, with its contrasting effects of recitative-like passages and massive harmonies. (2) The well-known Prelude and Fugue in D major, which Spitta describes as "one of the most dazzlingly beautiful of all the master's Organ Works." Skillful pedal-players will find it exactly suited to them, for the theme is quite exceptionally fitted for pedal tré-molo. (3) The Prelude and Fugue in F minor, less known perhaps than the other contents of the book, but scarcely less beautiful, or less worthy of the student's attention. (4) The great Prelude in E flat major, together with the Fugue in three sections, known as the St. Ann's. The whole are laid out with special regard to the convenience of the player. Necessary fingering and other marks to help to effective performance are inserted, and the Preface contains various notes and suggestions relative to the history, structure, and treatment of the several works.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

AIRS FROM

MEDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN BY

GEORGE CALKIN.

In Two Books, 2s. each net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBUMS OF GERMAN SONG

SELECTED, AND THE WORDS TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH,
BY

FRANCIS HUEFFER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. I.
THIRTY SONGS

BY ROBERT FRANZ.

On the hidden wood-path,
Sunset.
Not a star.
Sunset.
Breathlessly the Lake reposes.
In the forest, moonbeamedbrightened.
The Swiss Soldier's complaint.
Rest on me, thou eye of darkness.
At night I see thee with dreaming eyes.
Dreams.
The rose and the lily.
On the sea.
Gently through my bosom flow.
Omnipotence.
Thou art far.

A lifetime wasted.
Lo! he has come.
Autumn sorrow.
Will she come to-day?
Love in May.
Yea, thou art blighted.
The last tear.
Love song.
When my despair is deepest.
Sweetest maid, with lips like roses.
Thinking of thee.
The rose has made sad moan to me.
In Rhine's broad rolling waters.
Forgotten.
Good Night.

No. II.
TWENTY SONGS

BY FRANZ LISZT.

Mignon's song—"Knowest thou
the land?"
The King of Thule.
Peace.
Clara's song.
Who never ate with tears his bread?
Wanderer's night song.
The fisherboy.
The Alpine hunter.
Once and now.

Prayer.
The Loreley.
A flower thou resemblest.
Love's marvel.
The violet.
Flower and scent.
I cherish thee.
The three gipsies.
Question and answer.
Once again I fain would meet thee.
How sweetly sings the lark.

No. III.
TWENTY-FIVE SONGS

BY
ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

The dewdrops shine.
Like to a lark.
The wood-witch.
Aubade.
Loss.
A message.
Spring song.
In the forest all is growing.
A flower thou resemblest.
The Asra.
Sun and love.
The rose.
Love's presence.

Bend, fairest blossom.
Ah! could it remain thus for ever.
The golden sun is shining.
Be not so coy.
In the forest.
Night.
To Spring.
From a Spanish song book.
Clara's song.
A tragedy.
Morning song.
Budding stands the queen.

No. IV.
TWENTY-SEVEN SONGS

BY JOHANNES BRAHMS.

A Troth.
Love and Spring (1).
Love and Spring (2).
Far over the field.
Amongst strangers.
West-wind blowing.
Spring.
My loved one has left me.
The reason why.
A Symbol.
Nightingales.
Faithful love.
Alone she stood by the window.
A Memory.

The swallow's flying West.
Alone.
Return.
The wounded youth.
Could I but once forget.
So secretly.
Serenade.
Longing.
The Kiss.
At Parting.
Parted.
The Smith.
To an Æolian.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY CIRO PINSUTI.

BOOK I.

- | | |
|---------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| No. 1. After the rain. | No. 4. I sing because I love to sing. |
| " 2. Out in the sunshine. | " 5. Passing away. |
| " 3. I love all things. | " 6. The voice of the waterfall. |

BOOK II.

- | | |
|----------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| No. 7. The mermaids. | No. 10. Bygone days, or Looking back. |
| " 8. False love, and true. | " 11. Love and friendship. |
| " 9. Under the stars. | " 12. The Magicians. |

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NINE SACRED DUETS FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO,

COMPOSED BY

HENRY SMART.

- | | |
|---------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| No. 1. There was joy in Heaven. | No. 6. Where the weary are at rest. |
| " 2. The Lord is my shepherd. | " 7. Vox Matutina. |
| " 3. When brighter suns. | " 8. By Babylon's waters. |
| " 4. Faint not, fear not. | " 9. Evening. |
| " 5. The Sabbath Bell. | |

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE SONGS

WITH ENGLISH AND GERMAN WORDS

COMPOSED BY

SIR W. STERNDALE BENNETT.

- | | | | |
|--|---------|---------------------------------------|---------|
| No. 1. Musing on the Roaring
Ocean. | Op. 23. | No. 7. Indian Love. | Op. 35. |
| 2. May Dew. | | 8. Winter's Gone. | |
| 3. Forget-me-not. | | 9. Dawn, Gentle Flower. | |
| 4. To Chloe (in Sickness). | | 10. Castle Gordon. | |
| 5. The Past. | | 11. As Lonesome through the Woods. | |
| 6. Gentle Zephyr. | | 12. Sing, Maiden, Sing. | |

PRICE ONE SHILLING;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

Also separately, folio, price 1s. 6d. each, net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S PRIMERS OF MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY

HECTOR BERLIOZ
FREDERIC CHOPIN
ROSSINI

CHERUBINI MEYERBEER
ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION OF OPERAS

Edited, and Corrected according to the Original Scores,

BY

NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS.

The English Translations by

NATALIA MACFARREN & the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D., &c.

	AUBER.	Paper cover.	Scarlet cloth.
FRA DIAVOLO. French and English 3 6	5 0
MASANIELLO. French and English 3 6	5 0
BEEHOVEN.
FIDELIO. German and English 3 6	5 0
BELLINI.
NORMA. Italian and English 3 6	5 0
LA SONNAMBULA. Italian and English 3 6	5 0
PURITANI. Italian and English 3 6	5 0
DONIZETTI.
LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
LUCREZIA BORGIA. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
FLOTOW.
MARTHA. German and English ...	3 6	5 0
GLUCK.
ORPHEUS (Act II.). Italian and English ...	1 0
IPHIGENIA IN AULIS. French and English ...	3 6	5 0
IPHIGENIA IN TAURIS. French and English ...	3 6	5 0
DR. H. HILES.
WAR IN THE HOUSEHOLD ...	4 0
MACFARREN.
THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY ...	6 0
MACKENZIE.
THE TROUBADOUR ...	5 0	7 6
COLOMBA ...	5 0	7 6
Ditto. German words... ..	8 0
MASSENET.
MANON. English words ...	6 0	8 0
MENDELSSOHN.
THE SON AND STRANGER ...	4 0
LORELEY ...	1 0
MEYERBEER.
L'ETOILE DU NORD. Italian and English... ..	5 0	7 6
MOZART.
DON GIOVANNI. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
LE NOZZE DI FIGARO. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
DI ZAUBERFLOETE. German and English... ..	3 6	5 0
IL SERAGLIO. German and English ...	3 6	5 0
ROSSINI.
IL BARBIERE. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
GUILLAUME TELL. French and English ...	5 0	7 6
SCHUMANN.
GENOVEVA (In the Press)... ..
VERDI.
IL TROVATORE. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
RIGOLETTA. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
LA TRAVIATA. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
ERNANI. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
WAGNER.
TRISTAN AND ISOLDE. German or English ...	10 0
TANNHAUSER. German and English ...	3 6	5 0
LOHENGRIN. German and English ...	3 6	5 0
FLYING DUTCHMAN. German and English ...	3 6	5 0
RIENZI. German, Italian, and English ...	5 0	7 6
WEBER.
OBBERON. Italian and English ...	3 6	5 0
DER FREISCHÜTZ. German and English... ..	3 6	5 0
EURYANTHE. German and English ...	3 6	5 0
PRECIOSA. German and English ...	1 6	3 0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY

DR. STAINER.

In issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

NOW READY.

1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - E. PAUER.
2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. CUMMINGS.
3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
4. THE HARMONIUM (2s.) - KING HALL.
5. SINGING (4s.; Paper boards, 5s.) A. RANDEGGER.
6. SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer) (2s.) - A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S.
7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - E. PAUER.
8. HARMONY (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - DR. BRIDGE.
10. FUGUE (2s.) - JAMES HIGGS.
11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - DR. STONE.
12. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT (2s.) DR. BRIDGE.
13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (1s.) - REV. J. TROUTBECK.
14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - REV. T. HELMORE.
15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. PROUT.
16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - E. PAUER.
17. THE VIOLIN (2s.) - BERTHOLD TOURS.
18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - JOHN CURWEN.
19. LANCASHIRE SOL-FA (1s.) JAMES GREENWOOD.
20. COMPOSITION (2s.) - DR. STAINER.
21. MUSICAL TERMS (1s.) STAINER & BARRETT.
22. THE VIOLONCELLO (2s.) JULES DE SWERT.
23. TWO-PART EXERCISES (396) (1s.) JAMES GREENWOOD.
24. DOUBLE SCALES (1s.) FRANKLIN TAYLOR.
25. MUSICAL EXPRESSION (3s.) MATHIS LUSSY.
26. SOLFEGGI (4s.; paper boards, 5s.; or in 3 parts, 1s. 6d. each) FLORENCE A. MARSHALL.
27. ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT (2s.) DR. BRIDGE.
28. THE CORNET (2s.) - H. BRETT.

(To be continued.)

ANY OF THE ABOVE MAY BE HAD, STRONGLY BOUND IN BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

FOR THE

* From "The Organist's Quarterly Journal."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Nos. 14 to 22 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Nos. 5 to 8 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Nos. 8 to 15 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price One Shilling.

THE

CHILD'S GARLAND

A COLLECTION OF

THREE-PART SONGS FOR CHILDREN'S VOICES

COMPOSED BY

FRANZ ABT.

The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK
and Miss G. E. TROUTBECK.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Sixpence.

THE

JUVENILE SONGSTER

NEW AND REVISED EDITION

CONSISTING OF

THIRTY-THREE SONGS

In One, Two, or Three Parts

Composed and Arranged for the Use of Children and Schools

BY

LOWELL MASON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price Two Shillings.

TWENTY-TWO SONGS

IN ONE AND TWO PARTS FOR

CHILDREN OLD & YOUNG

Translated into English by Lady MACFARREN,
Miss MARIE LIEBERT, and others

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

CAROLINE WICHERN.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

IN SOL-FA NOTATION, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Crown Octavo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

THE

MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

WITH AN ACCOUNT OF THE

DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS
FROM ANCIENT TYPES, BY

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

"The very excellent illustrations scattered throughout the book materially increase its value; and we sincerely hope that Dr. Stainer's labours may be rewarded as they deserve, for not only has he accumulated a large mass of reliable information upon a subject of the deepest interest, but he has thrown additional light upon much of this evidence by giving us the result of his own practical experience."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

DOUBLE SCALES

SYSTEMATICALLY FINGERED

A SUPPLEMENT

TO ALL

EXISTING PIANOFORTE SCHOOLS

BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

THREE HUNDRED AND NINETY-SIX

TWO-PART EXERCISES

FOR

CHOIRS AND SCHOOLS

BY

JAMES GREENWOOD.

May be used with any system of Sol-fa.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

In paper boards, One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION

OF

TWO-PART SOLFEGGI

In the principal major keys, designed for the practice of Choristers
and Vocal Classes generally,

SELECTED FROM

DURANTE, HANDEL, LEO, SCARLATTI, STEFFANI,
NARES, WEBBE, &c.

BY

JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT

OF THE

CHORAL SERVICE

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS TO ORGANISTS AS TO THE
SELECTION AND TREATMENT OF CHURCH MUSIC

BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE,

Mus. Doc., Oxon.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

Paper Boards, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, MASSES, &c.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

THOMAS ANDERTON.
THE NORMAN BARON.
THE WRECK OF THE HESPERUS.

E. ASPA.
THE GIPSIES.

ASTORGA.
STABAT MATER.

BACH.
GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD.
GOD GOETH UP WITH SHOUTING.
GOD'S TIME IS THE BEST.
MY SPIRIT WAS IN HEAVINESS.
O LIGHT EVERLASTING.
BIDE WITH US.
A STRONGHOLD SURE.
MAGNIFICAT.
THOU GUIDE OF ISRAEL.
JESU, PRICELESS TREASURE.
WHEN WILL GOD RECALL MY SPIRIT.

J. BARNBY.
REBEKAH.

BEETHOVEN.
THE CHORAL FANTASIA.
ENGEDI.
MOUNT OF OLIVES.
MASS, IN C.
*MASS, IN C.
RUINS OF ATHENS.

SIR W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT.
EXHIBITION ODE, 1862.

J. BRAHMS.
A SONG OF DESTINY.

J. F. BRIDGE.
*ROCK OF AGES.

E. BUNNETT.
OUT OF THE DEEP (PSALM 130).

CARISSIMI.
JEPHTHAH.

CHERUBINI.
*REQUIEM MASS, IN C MINOR.
THIRD MASS, IN A (CORONATION).
FOURTH MASS, IN C.

SIR M. COSTA.
THE DREAM.

NIELS W. GADE.
ZION.
SPRING'S MESSAGE. 8d.
CHRISTMAS EVE.
THE ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER.

GLUCK.
ORPHEUS.

HERMANN GOETZ.
BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON.
NENIA.

CH. GOUNOD.
DE PROFUNDIS (130TH PSALM).
DITTO (OUT OF DARKNESS).
MESSE SOLENNELLE (LATIN WORDS).
THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR
SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS.
DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM.
*GALLIA.

J. O. GRIMM.
THE SOUL'S ASPIRATION.

HANDEL.
CHANDOS TE DEUM.
ODE ON ST. CECILIA'S DAY.
THE WAYS OF ZION.
MESSIAH (POCKET EDITION).
ISRAEL IN EGYPT (DITTO).
JUDAS MACCABÆUS (DITTO).
DETTINGEN TE DEUM.
UTRECHT JUBILATE.
O PRAISE THE LORD.
ACIS AND GALATEA.
ACIS AND GALATEA. EDITED BY
J. BARNBY.

HAYDN.
THE CREATION (POCKET EDITION).
SPRING. SUMMER. AUTUMN.
WINTER.
*FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT.
FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT.
SECOND MASS, IN C.
THIRD MASS (IMPERIAL).
*THIRD MASS (IMPERIAL).
*TE DEUM.

EDWARD HECHT.
O MAY I JOIN THE CHOIR INVISIBLE.

DR. HILLER.
A SONG OF VICTORY.

H. HOFMANN.
SONG OF THE NORNS (FEMALE VOICES).

HUMMEL.
FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT.
SECOND MASS, IN E FLAT.
THIRD MASS, IN D.

F. ILIFFE.
ST. JOHN THE DIVINE.

A. JENSEN.
THE FEAST OF ADONIS.

LEONARDO LEO.
DIXIT DOMINUS.

C. HARFORD LLOYD.
THE SONG OF LLOYD.

G. A. MACFARREN.
OUTWARD BOUND.
MAY DAY.

A. C. MACKENZIE.
THE BRIDE.

MEYERBEER.
LORELEY.
HYMN OF PRAISE.
AS THE HART PANTS.
COME, LET US SING.
WHEN ISRAEL OUT OF EGYPT CAME.
NOT UNTO US.
LORD, HOW LONG.
HEAR MY PRAYER.
THE FIRST WALPURGIS NIGHT.
MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM.
MAN IS MORTAL.

FESTGESANG (HYMNS OF PRAISE).
FESTGESANG (MALE VOICES).
CHRISTUS.
TO THE SONS OF ART.
*AVE MARIA (SAVIOR OF SINNERS).
*THREE MOTETS (FEMALE VOICES).

MEYERBEER.
91ST PSALM (LATIN WORDS).
91ST PSALM (ENGLISH WORDS).

MOZART.

KING THAMOS.
*FIRST MASS.
SEVENTH MASS.
TWELFTH MASS.
*TWELFTH MASS.
REQUIEM MASS.
*REQUIEM MASS.

R. P. PAINE.
GREAT IS THE LORD.

PERGOLESI.
STABAT MATER (FEMALE VOICES).

E. PROUT.
FREEDOM.

PURCELL.
TE DEUM AND JUBILATE, IN D.

ROMBERG.
THE LAY OF THE BELL.
THE TRANSCIENT AND THE ETERNAL.

ROSSINI.
*STABAT MATER.

SCHUBERT.
SONG OF MIRIAM.
MASS, IN A FLAT.
MASS, IN B FLAT.
MASS, IN C.
MASS, IN F.
MASS, IN G.

SCHUMANN.
THE PILGRIMAGE OF THE ROSE.
THE KING'S SON.
MIGNON'S REQUIEM.
ADVENT HYMN, "IN LOWLY GUISE."
MANFRED.
NEW YEAR'S SONG.

E. SILAS.
MASS, IN C.

ALICE MARY SMITH.
THE SONG OF THE LITTLE BALTUNG
(MEN'S VOICES).
ODE TO THE NORTH-EAST WIND.
THE RED KING (MEN'S VOICES).

SPOHR.
THE LAST JUDGMENT.
GOD, THOU ART GREAT.
THE CHRISTIAN'S PRAYER.
HYMN TO ST. CECILIA.

E. C. SUCH.
GOD IS OUR REFUGE (PSALM 46).

A. SULLIVAN.
EXHIBITION ODE.
FESTIVAL TE DEUM.

A. GORING THOMAS.
THE SUN WORSHIPPERS.

E. H. THORNE.
BE MERCIFUL UNTO ME.
VAN BREE.
ST. CECILIA'S DAY.

C. M. VON WEBER.
PRECIOSA.

*MASS, IN G.
*MASS, IN E FLAT.
JUBILEE CANTATA.

S. WESLEY.
DIXIT DOMINUS.

S. S. WESLEY.
O LORD, THOU ART MY GOD.

The Works marked * have Latin and English Words.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 524.—Vol. 27.
Registered for transmission abroad.

OCTOBER 1, 1886.

Price 4d.; Post-free, 5d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5s.

LEEDS TRIENNIAL MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

OCTOBER 13, 14, 15, and 16, 1886.

Conductor—SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

Band and Chorus of 440 Performers.

Organists ... Dr. WM. SPARK & Mr. F. CLIFFE.
Principal First Violin... Mr. J. T. CARRODUS.
Chorus-Master... Mr. ALFRED BROUGHTON.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Oct. 13.—Handel's ISRAEL IN EGYPT.
Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Mrs. HUTCHINSON,
Madame PATEY, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, Mr. BRERETON, and Mr. SANTLEY.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.—Mackenzie's Cantata (written for the Festival)
THE STORY OF SAVID; SELECTIONS from Mozart's
IDOMENEO, &c. Principals: Madame ALBANI, Mrs. HUTCHINSON, Miss DAMIAN, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, and Mr. WATKIN MILLS.

THURSDAY MORNING.—Bach's MASS IN B MINOR. Principals:
Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Miss HILDA WILSON, Miss DAMIAN,
Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, and Mr. SANTLEY.

THURSDAY EVENING.—New Work, for Chorus and Orchestra,
THE REVENGE, by C. V. STANFORD; SYMPHONY IN C MINOR,
No. 5 (Beethoven); THE FIRST WALPURGIS NIGHT (Mendelssohn).
Principals: Miss DAMIAN, Mr. IVER MCKAY, and Mr. BRERETON.

FRIDAY MORNING.—ST. LUDMILA. Oratorio written for the Festival by Antonin Dvorak. Principals: Madame ALBANI, Madame PATEY, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, and Mr. SANTLEY.

FRIDAY EVENING.—ADVENT HYMN (Schumann); SYMPHONY
("The Scotch") (Mendelssohn); CONCERT OVERTURE (written for the Festival by F. K. HATTERLEY); BALLET SUITE, &c. Principals: Mrs. HUTCHINSON, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, and Mr. FREDERIC KING.

SATURDAY MORNING.—THE GOLDEN LEGEND, written for the Festival
by Sir Arthur Sullivan; Mendelssohn's ST. PAUL (Part 1).
Principals: Madame ALBANI, Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Madame PATEY, Miss HILDA WILSON, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN, Mr. WATKIN MILLS, and Mr. FREDERIC KING.

SATURDAY EVENING.—Mendelssohn's ELIJAH. Principals: Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, Madame PATEY, Miss DAMIAN, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, Mr. IVER MCKAY, and Mr. SANTLEY.

		£ s. d.
SERIAL TICKETS (admitting to seven performances, excluding Saturday night) ...		5 5 0
SINGLE TICKET.—Morning—Front Seats and Gallery,	Reserved ...	1 1 0
	Evening—Front Seats and Gallery,
" " " " " "	Reserved ...	0 15 0
	Morning—Second Seats, Reserved ...	0 10 6
" " " " " "	Evening—Second Seats, Reserved ...	0 7 6

Morning Performances begin at 11.30.
Evening Performances begin at 7.30 (Saturday Evening at 7).
Applications must be accompanied by a remittance for the full amount of the Tickets required.
Detailed Programmes may be had free.
Office open from 10 to 5 (Saturdays from 10 to 1).
All communications to be addressed—

Ald. FRED. R. SPARK, Hon. Sec.
Festival Office, Centenary Street, Leeds, September 30, 1886.

TUFNELL PARK CHORAL SOCIETY.

FIFTEENTH SEASON.

Conductor: Mr. W. HENRY THOMAS.

REHEARSALS every TUESDAY EVENING in St. George's Church Room, Tufnell Park, N.

First Rehearsal on TUESDAY, October 12.
Works to be performed: Mendelssohn's Unfinished Oratorio CHRISTUS and Corder's new Cantata BRIDAL OF TRIE-MAIN, to be followed by Sir Arthur Sullivan's GOLDEN LEGEND and Dvorak's SAINT LUDMILA.
Date of First Concert, December 1.

For prospectus and terms of subscription, address, the Conductor,
7, Liddington Place, N.W.

MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN begs to announce that he can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming Season. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, W., or 279, Egin Avenue, Maida Vale, W.

NOVELLO'S ORATORIO CONCERTS.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER and CO. have the honour to announce that during the ensuing Season (1886-87) they will again give, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, a Series of SIX CONCERTS under the above title.

The first Concert will take place on FRIDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 29, 1886, when

SAINT LUDMILA

An Oratorio, composed by
ANTONIN DVORAK

Will be given, under the direction of the Composer, for the first time in London.

MADAME ALBANI. MISS HOPE GLENN.
MR. LLOYD. MR. SANTLEY.

TUESDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 23

THE GOLDEN LEGEND

BY SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN

AND THE THIRD

MESSE SOLENNELLE

BY
CH. GOUNOD

The latter for the first time in London.

TUESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 14

THE STORY OF SAVID

A Dramatic Cantata, by

A. C. MACKENZIE.

THE REVENGE

Ballad for Chorus and Orchestra, by

C. V. STANFORD

(Both for the first time in London), and

LISZT'S 13TH PSALM

TUESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 1, 1887

SLEEPING BEAUTY

A Dramatic Cantata, by
F. H. COWEN

AND

BEETHOVEN'S CHORAL SYMPHONY

TUESDAY EVENING, MARCH 1

The Sacred Oratorio

CALVARY

BY
L. SPOHR.

First time in London since 1852.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, MARCH 30

MORS ET VITA

A Sacred Trilogy, composed by
CH. GOUNOD.

The Chorus will consist of nearly 300 carefully selected voices, and the Orchestra will include the best instrumentalists available.

The following Artists have already accepted engagements:—
Madame ALBANI

Madame PATEY and Miss HOPE GLENN
Mr. LLOYD and Mr. BARTON MCGUCKIN
Mr. F. KING, Mr. WATKIN MILLS, and Mr. SANTLEY.

Leader of the Orchestra, Mr. CARRODUS.
Organist, Mr. OLIVER KING.

Conductor, Mr. MACKENZIE.

Tickets and all information may be obtained of Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.; the usual Agents; and at Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME EMMA BARLOW (Soprano).

(Late Choirmistress, Platt Chapel, Fallowfield.)

For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, At Homes, &c., address, Forsyth Bros., or Urmoston, Manchester.

"Possesses a Soprano voice of surprising range and clearness."—Southport Visitor."The palm of the evening fell to Madame Emma Barlow, her singing being much admired."—Northwich Guardian.MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano).

(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby.)

Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MISS FRASER BRUNNER (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, address, 44, Icknield Street, or Messrs. Rogers and Priestley's, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

MISS ADELINA CLARKE (Soprano)MR. J. C. CLARKE, L.R.A.M. (Baritone and Solo Organist)

Are open to accept Engagements for Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c. Terms on application. Address, 24, Bridge Street, Walsall.

MADAME EMILIE CLARK (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, &c., address, 2, Well-close Place, Leeds.

"SAMSON."—Madame Emilie Clark was in excellent voice, and has rarely been heard to more advantage. Her greatest successes were in 'Ye men of Gaza,' and the grand air, 'Let the bright Seraphim,' which was applauded to the echo."—Yorkshire Post, Jan. 27, 1886.MISS KATE COLDREY (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, Lessons, &c., 21, Beaconsfield Rd., Tottenham.

MISS CONWAY.

(Principal Soprano of the Gentlemen's Glee Club, Manchester.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c., address, 53, Robert Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MISS COOPER (Soprano).

(Honours Certificate, Royal Academy.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Lendal, York.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Cantatas, Recitals, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne; or Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

MADAME FARRAR-HYDE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Grafton Place, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).

Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME MINNIE GWYNNE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, address, 18, St. Stephen's Avenue, Uxbridge Road, W.

MISS LOUIE HARPER, R.A.M. (Soprano).

(Pupil of Signor Goldberg.)

Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 182, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

MISS BESSIE HOLT, R.A.M. (Soprano),

3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MISS HONEYBONE (Soprano).

For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts. Terms and testimonials on application. Address, Bridlesmith Gate, Nottingham.

MISS CLARA JOWETT, M.N., S.P.M. (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, address, 42, Aireville Road, Frizinghall, Yorkshire.

Miss Jowett has had the honour of singing before their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, her song being Verdi's "Erani, inviolami," on December 17, 1885.

"Miss Jowett filled the void occasioned by the absence of Madame Valleria. . . . It speaks well for Miss Jowett that she should thus, at a moment's notice, take a principal part, and acquit herself of an onerous task with so much credit. Singing with much feeling and no little skill, she won, alike in the recitatives and the difficult air 'Rejoice greatly,' applause from the chorus and principals, as well as from the audience."—Leeds Mercury.MISS LILY MARSHALL-WARD (Soprano).*MISS NELLIE MARSHALL-WARD (Mezzo-Sop.)*MISS JESSIE MARSHALL-WARD (Contralto).

Address, 80, Addison Street, Nottingham.

MISS MARY MOON (Soprano).

(Medalist of the R.A.M. and Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)

For Concerts, Lessons, &c., 10, Chalcot Crescent, Primrose Hill, N.W.

MISS JENNY OSBORN (Soprano).MISS AMY OSBORN (Mezzo-Soprano).

(Both certificated from Society of Arts.)

Rutland Lodge, Hainault Road, Leytonstone.

MISS EMILY PARKINSON.

(Prima Donna, of the Crystal Palace, Covent Garden, and principal English Opera Companies.)

At liberty for Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Thorneycroft, Hurlingham Lane, Fulham, S.W.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Recitals, Ballad Concerts, &c. For terms, address, Crag Cottage, Knarsbro'

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).

Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MADELEINE WHARTON (Soprano).MDLLE. JOSE D'ARCONVILLE, R.A.M.

(Contralto, of St. James's Hall and London Concerts.)

Oratorio, Italian Operatic and Ballad Concerts. 27, Central Road, Withington, Manchester.

MADAME WILSON-OSMAN (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, &c., 15, Granville Terrace, Child's Hill, N.W.

MISS MAY ALLEN (Contralto, Mez.-Sop., E to C).MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Willow Grove Hall, Leeds.

MISS LOUISA BOWMONT.

(Principal Contralto of St. Peter's, Manchester.)

Address, 51, Mercer Street, Hulme, Manchester.

MISS CHADWICK, R.A.M. (Contralto).

58, Henshaw Street, Oldham, Lancashire.

MISS EMILIE HARRIS (Contralto).

(Honour Certificate, L.C.M., 1885.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 42, Golden Hillock Road, Birmingham.

MISS MARGARET LEYLAND (Contralto).

(Certificated with Honours, R.A.M., and Gold Medalist.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 51, Plymouth Grove, Manchester.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE, L.A.M. (Contralto).

(Pupil of Signor Schira.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS KATE MILNER (Contralto).

(Of the Guildhall School of Music.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, Lessons, &c., 77, Macfarlane Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MADAME BAYLEY MORDAUNT (Contralto).MR. J. H. BAYLEY (Principal Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Cathedral Choir, Ripon, Yorks.

MISS CONSTANCE POOCK (Contralto & Pianist).

(Of the Bristol, Norwich, Derby, Hull, Cambridge, Ipswich, &c., Concerts; R.A.M. Honours Certificate, 1882.)

For Oratorios, Ballads or "Evenings of Sacred, Classical, Operatic, and Popular Piano-forte and Vocal Selections," &c. Engaged: Ipswich, October 2; Stowmarket, 4; ditto, 5; Eye, 6; Diss, 7; Attleborough, 8; Fakenham, 11 and 12; Swaffham, 13; Wisbeach, 14 and 15; Upwell, 16. Other dates pending. At liberty to join Concert Party. 4, Valentine Street, Norwich.

MISS KATE REDFERN (Contralto).

Oratorios, Ballad, Organ Recitals, &c., address, 54, Shakespeare Street, Manchester.

MISS SANDERSON (Contralto).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., press opinions, vacant dates, address, Casson Gate, Rochdale.

MISS EDITH THAIRLWALL (Contralto).

(Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, Teaching, &c., 5, Provost Road, N.W.

MISS COYTE TURNER (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 96, Tollington Park, London, N.

MISS CLARA WOLLASTON (Contralto).MR. VICTOR ROMILLY (Baritone).

For Ballad Concerts, &c., or Concert Party. Address, 127, Alderney Street, Belgravia, S.W.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto).

(Of the Manchester and Liverpool Concerts.)

Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MISS MAUDE YATES (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 15, New York Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MR. THOMAS ALLEN (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Operetta, and Miscellaneous Concerts, address, St. John's Terrace, Failsforth, Manchester.

MR. GEO. BUTTERWORTH (Tenor).

Certificated with Honours R.A.M. (1886) and T.C.L. (1885).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Moss Bridge, Darwen.

MR. RALPH DAWES (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Gloucester Lodge, Ealing, W.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN (Scottish Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., "Scotch Quartet," 18, Berners Street, W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).
(Canterbury Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 12, St. Mary Street, Dane John, Canterbury.

MR. WILLIAM KNIGHT (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 68, Ryan Street, West Bowling, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. S. MASON (Tenor) (Exeter Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 13, Longbrook Street, Exeter.

MR. J. MELLOR (Tenor).
Eccleshill, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. S. THORNBOROUGH (Tenor).
Répertoire: "Redemption," "Elijah," "Creation," "Messiah," "Judas Maccabeus," Rossini's "Stabat Mater," "Acis and Galatea," Masses, &c. Address, 125, Montague Street, Blackburn.

MR. REUBEN HOLMES (Baritone).
(Pupil of A. Visetti, Esq., 1887-5).
For Oratorios, Ballads, &c. Permanent address, 35, Queen's Road, Bayswater, W.

MR. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone).
(Pupil of J. B. Welch, Esq.)
35, Knowle Road, S.W. (Also Concert Party.)

MR. J. F. NASH (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Cathedral, Bristol.

MR. ARTHUR ROUSSEY (Baritone).
Royal Italian and English Opera, Covent Garden; Crystal Palace, Royal Albert Hall, Mr. Sims Reeves', Mr. Stockley's, Mr. de Jong's, Promenade Concerts, &c. Pupil of Signor San Giovanni, of Milan; Tons, Tiessett, Mr. Holland, and Mr. Wallworth. Will sing during October at Liverpool, Edinburgh, Dublin, Manchester, Nottingham, Leicester, Derby, Birmingham, &c. For terms and dates, address, 5, Old Bond Street, W.

MR. MUSGROVE TUFNAIL (Baritone).
The Poplars, West Hill, Dartford.

MR. FERGUS ASQUITH (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Cathedral, Wells.

MR. N. F. BURT (Basso Cantabile).
Decani Bass, Cathedral Choir, Liverpool; Concerts, Festivals, &c., address, Cathedral, or 40, Nuttall Street, Liverpool.

MR. FRANK COX (Basso).
(Pupil of Signor Martinego, R.A.M., S.C.R., Italy.)
Oratorios, Cantatas, English Songs, and Italian Buffo Songs.
58, New Street, Birmingham.

MR. FREDERIC W. DALBY (Bass).
(Lincoln Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Dinners, &c., address, Monk's Road, Lincoln.

MR. ALLISON LISTER (Basso).
48, Garfield Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass).
And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."
For list of works, see other advertisement.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass).
51, Pentonville Road, N.

MR. WILLIAM ROWE (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Heywood, Manchester.

MR. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass-Baritone).
(Of the Birmingham, Nottingham, and Sheffield Concerts.)
(Pupil of Dr. Swinerton Heap).
For vacant dates, &c., address, The Cathedral, Southwell.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN (Bass).
(Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

MR. J. SHARPE (Oboist and Oboe Maker).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 235, Lydgate Hill, Pudsey, near Leeds.

MR. CHARLES FRY
sings the LYRICS in ATHALIE, ANTIGONE, PRECIOSA, &c.;
SHAKESPEARIAN and MISCELLANEOUS RECITALS.
Address, 4, Park Village West, Gloucester Gate, N.W.
Professor of Elocution at the Hampstead and Croydon Conservatories.

MISS VINNIE BEAUMONT (Soprano). For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, and Organ Recitals, Festival Services. Address, Point House, Brigg, Lincolnshire, or ovelo, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano) begs that all communications respecting Oratorios, Concerts, &c., may be addressed to 4, St. Thomas's Road, Finsbury Park, N.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.—Miss CLARA LEIGHTON (Soprano) requests that future communications may be addressed to 7, Woburn Place, Russell Square, W.C.

MISS NELLIE LEVEY, a charming singer (vide press), and her sister, May Lillian (winner of first prize for elocution), having returned to Town, will be pleased to accept a limited number of engagements for Soirées or Concerts, together or separately. Songs with Guitar accompaniment if desired. For particulars kindly address, 12, Red Lion Square, Holborn.

MISS EMILY LYDDON (Soprano), R.A.M. Cert., Pupil of Henry Houseley, F.C.O., is open to Engagements, Concerts, &c., Carrington, Nottingham.

MISS BERTHA MOORE (Soprano) will sing at Eastbourne, October 2; Brixton, 4; Brighton, 11; London, 13; Harborne, 19; Walsall, 20; Hull, 21; Clapton, 26; Sutton Coldfield, November 1; Wolverhampton, 2; Kingsheath, 3; Redhill, 4; Birkbeck Institute, 10; Derby, 15; Norwood, 30; Burnley, December 14; Halloway, February 10; Huddersfield, March 15; Leeds, 16. All communications should be addressed 71, Warwick Gardens, Kensington; or care of N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts be addressed, 44, Alexandra Road, London, N.W.; or, 59, Church Street, Liverpool.

MISS HELEN LEE, R.A.M. (Contralto). Engaged October 18; November 13, 15; December 9; February 8, 15; March 14. Address, Messrs. Forsyth Bros., Music Publishers, Manchester.

ORATORIO and BALLAD CONCERTS.—Miss ELIZA THOMAS (Contralto) requests that all communications be addressed to 6, Bruce Road, Willesden, N.W.

MR. E. DUNKERTON (Tenor) is booking Engagements for the coming season. Dates already booked:—Lincoln, September 22; Mansfield, October 19; Market Rasen, November 9; Kettering, "Elijah," November 29; Bedford, "Elijah," November 30; Macclesfield, "Messiah," December 21; Northampton, "Ancient Mariner," April 14, 1887; Ilkeston, "May Queen," March 7, 1887. Other engagements pending. Address, Cathedral, Lincoln.

MR. LAWRENCE FREYER (Tenor), St. Paul's Cathedral. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 233, Friern Road, Dulwich, S.E.; or, the Cathedral.

MR. JAMES GAWTHROP (Tenor), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James's, begs that all communications be addressed to 34, Priory Park Road, Kiburn, N.W.

MR. HOLBERRY HAGYARD (Tenor), of the London, Crystal Palace, Birmingham, and Glasgow Concerts, is now booking ENGAGEMENTS for the coming season. Répertoire includes Dvorák's "Stabat Mater," Lloyd's "Andromeda," Stanford's "Three Holy Children," Prout's "Hereward," Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty," &c., &c. For terms, references, &c., address, Trinity College, Cambridge.

MR. ALFRED KENNINGHAM, the Tenor of St. Paul's Cathedral, who has sang for years at the principal Concerts in London and the Provinces, begs to state that he is NOT the Mr. Kenningham who announces himself of Canterbury Cathedral, and that, in order to avoid confusion, all communications respecting Oratorio and Concert Engagements should be addressed to him (Mr. Alfred Kenningham), at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, E.C., or to his private address, Grovedale, Parson's Green, S.W. He is now booking Engagements for the coming Season.

MR. WILLIAM NICHOIL (Tenor), engaged New Year's Day, "Messiah," Glasgow Orchestral Concerts. For vacant dates and terms, apply direct to 28, Belsize Road; or, N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street, W.

MR. CALDER O'BYRNE (late Principal Tenor of the "Falks" and "Princess Ida" Companies) is open to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts during the coming season. Address, 18, West Street, Battersea Park, S.W.

MR. HENRY COATES (Baritone) begs to announce his Removal to Lansdowne Villa, Ramsden Road, Batham, where all communications should be addressed for Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.

MR. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone). For Bass and Baritone parts. Oratorio, Ballads, Operatic Selections, &c. Now booking dates for coming season. Répertoire includes all modern works. References to J. B. Welch, Esq. Permanent address, 35, Knowle Road, London, S.W., or Agents.

MR. LAWFORD HUXTABLE (Bass-Baritone), Pupil of Signor Alberto Randegger, is open to accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming season. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, W.; or, 14, Regent Street, Clifton.

MR. THOS. KEMPTON (Bass-Baritone) for Oratorio, Ballad, and Miscellaneous Concerts; also for Concert party. Engagements booked:—"Messiah," Cheltenham; "Messiah," Horsey; Ballads, Hastings; Ballads, Bishop Stortford; "Creation," Hackney; Gault's "Holy City," Hackney; four Ballad Concerts, North London; Lloyd's "Hero and Leander," "Acis and Galatea," "Samson," Great Assembly Hall, &c. Address, 52, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury, N., or St. Paul's Cathedral.

MR. FRANK MAY

(BASS),

Evill Prize Holder and Medalist, Royal Academy of Music, having been most successful in the following works, begs to announce that he is now booking engagements for the ensuing season in the same, or for other compositions of a popular character:—

THE MESSIAH	Handel.
JUDAS MACCABÆUS	"
ACIS AND GALATEA	"
WEDDING MUSIC FROM "JOSEPH"	"
THE CREATION	Haydn
ELIJAH	Mendelssohn.
ST. PAUL	"
THE WALPURGIS NIGHT	"
THE REDEMPTION	Gounod.
MAY QUEEN	Sterndale Bennett.
CRUSADERS	Gade.
ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER	"
ANCIENT MARINER	Barnett.
HOLY CITY	Gaul.
RUTH	"
ROSE MAIDEN	Cowen.
SLEEPING BEAUTY	"
FAIRY RING	Cummings.
DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS	Stainer.
PLACIDA	Carter.

For terms, vacant dates, and Press notices, address, Mr. Frank May, 14, Hanover Street, W. Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MR. HIRWEN JONES begs to announce his return to Town, and is prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorio, Orchestral and Ballad Concerts. Address, 31, Beaumont Street, Portland Place, W.

MR. R. E. MILES, Professor of Singing at the Royal Academy of Music, begs to announce his appointment as an Assistant Vicar-Choral (Bass) of St. Paul's Cathedral. For terms for Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, 5, College Park Villas, Lewisham, S.E.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT begs to announce that he has REMOVED to 3, Russell Chambers, Bury Street, W.C., where all communications should now be addressed.

MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass) has one or two dates vacant in second week of November for his Popular Concert Party on tour in Midlands, Lancashire, and Yorkshire. Address, Willow Grove Hall, Leeds.

MR. WM. L. WHITNEY begs to announce that he is prepared to accept ORATORIO and other CONCERT ENGAGEMENTS for winter 1886-87. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street.

MISS JENNIE TAYLOR (Pianist), Sterndale Bennett Prizeholder, Bronze and Silver Medalist (Royal Academy of Music), accepts Engagements for Concerts, &c. 12, Welington Terrace, Beverley Road, Hull.

MISS CLARA TITERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Godolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

CLAPHAM AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.—Twelfth Season, 1886-7.—Hon. Conductor, Ammon Winterbottom, Esq. WEEKLY PRACTICES at Clapham Hall commence FRIDAY, October 8, at 8 p.m. Four Concerts during the season. There are vacancies in the orchestra for strings and wind instruments. Prospects and all particulars to be obtained from the Hon. Secretary, A. M. NORTON, Esq., 45, The Chase, Clapham Common, S.W.

HORSFALL MUSICAL SOCIETY. SEVENTH SEASON, 1886-7. THE REHEARSALS of the Society's Choir, which are held at Warters Road School Rooms, Camden Road, Holloway, N., will commence early in October. Persons desirous of joining the Choir should apply to the Conductor, Mr. F. W. Turner, 38, Grosvenor Road, Highbury New Park, N. Further information can be obtained from the Hon. Secretary, Mr. J. Fraser, 10, Cardozo Road, Hillmarten Road, N.

HORNSEY RISE MUSICAL SOCIETY.—Conductor, Mr. W. G. Woon. The next Season will commence on Monday, October 18. Intending members will be good enough to address the hon. sec., Mr. Burgess Perry, Woodhouse Eaves, Crouch End.

FINSBURY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

EIGHTH SEASON, 1886-7.

THREE SUBSCRIPTION CONCERTS will be given in the HOLLOWAY HALL, on THURSDAY EVENINGS, commencing at Half-past Seven o'clock.

FIRST CONCERT, December 9, 1886.—Gaul's "HOLY CITY" and Cummings' "FAIRY RING" (conducted by the Composer).

SECOND CONCERT, February 10, 1887.—Haydn's "CREATION."

THIRD CONCERT, March 24, 1887.—Mendelssohn's "HYMN OF PRAISE" and Prout's "ALFRED" (conducted by the Composer).

EXTRA CONCERT, Good Friday, 1887.—Handel's "MESSIAH."

PRINCIPAL VOCALISTS.—Miss Mary Davies, Madame Clara Samuel, Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Fusselle, Miss Emily Davies, Miss Marie Middleton, Mrs. W. J. Davey, Madame Isabel Fassett, Miss Alice Heale, Mr. John Probert, Mr. Iver McKay, Mr. Charles Chilly, Mr. Arthur Thompson, Mr. Reginald Groome, Mr. W. G. Forington, Mr. Frederic King, Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, Mr. Bridson.

BAND AND CHORUS OF 250 PERFORMERS.

PIANO.—MR. J. P. HARDING. ORGAN.—MR. F. J. MARCHMENT.

LEADER.—MR. CARRODUS. CONDUCTOR.—MR. C. J. DALE.

Prospectuses, with full information and forms of application for Membership, may be obtained from the Hon. Secretary,

GILBERT HANKEY.

68, Ashley Road, Crouch Hill, N.

SOUTH LONDON CHORAL ASSOCIATION AND INSTITUTE OF MUSIC,

Camberwell New Road.

Principal, Mr. LEONARD C. VENABLES.

Nineteenth Season, 1886-87.

PRIVATE TUITION is given in all branches of Musical Education. CLASSES are held for the following subjects:

Singing (Tonic Sol-fa, 1st grades).

Singing (Ordinary Notation, two grades).

Voice production and Solo Singing.

Harmony; and Tonic Sol-fa College High Grade Certificates.

Violin (seven grades). Violoncello (three grades).

Flute, Clarinet, Cornet, and other Wind Instruments.

Orchestral Band for performance of Symphonies, Oratorios, Cantatas.

For full particulars see Prospectus, post-free on application to George I. Venable, Hon. Sec., South London Institute of Music, Camberwell New Road.

BAYSWATER ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

Conductor, Mr. T. HARKNESS LAIT.

The above Society, meeting on Saturday evenings, in the Schoolroom of the Congregational Church, Craven Terrace, Bayswater, for the practice of high-class music, have a few Vacancies for String and Wind (Brass) instrument players. Applications for membership may be made personally as above, or by letter to the Secretary,

J. G. PALMER.

29, Charlotte Street, Portland Place.

NEUMEYER HALL, HART ST., BLOOMSBURY.

Under the patronage of AUGUST MANNS, Esq.

HENRY WRIGHT

(30 Years in the Offices of the Sacred Harmonic Society and Handel

BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WILL GIVE A

VOCAL & INSTRUMENTAL CONCERT

ON MONDAY EVENING, October 4.

ARTISTS.—Miss Margaret Hoare, Miss Annie Buckland, Mr. Iver McKay, Mr. James Kiff, Mr. Sackville Evans, and Mr. Chaplin Henry. Mr. G. Horton (of Her Majesty's Private Band), Mr. G. A. Clinton, Mr. W. B. Wotton, Mr. W. Naldrett (of the Crystal Palace Orchestra), and Mr. W. Henry Thomas. Recitations by Mr. Charles Fry. Mr. Stedman's Choir Boys. Commence at Eight o'clock. Tickets, 5s., 2s. 6d., and 1s.; at Neumeyer Hall, Hart Street, Bloomsbury; H. Wright, 21, Denmark Hill, S.E.; Mr. Alfred Hays, Royal Exchange Buildings; and Messrs. Keith, Prosser and Co., 48, Cheapside.

MADAME WORRELL begs to announce that her

ANNUAL EVENING CONCERT will take place at Brixton Hall on Monday, October 4. All communications respecting engagements for Oratorios and Miscellaneous Concerts should be addressed to 52, Knowle Road, Brixton Road, S.W.

THE MUSICAL ARTISTS' SOCIETY.—The

WINTER SERIES of CONCERTS will commence in November. Particulars may be obtained of the Hon. Sec., Mr. Alfred Gilbert, The Woodlands, 85, Maida Vale, London.

NORTH OF ENGLAND CONCERT AGENCY,

182, Oxford Street, Manchester.

DIRECTOR, Mr. JOHN TOWERS.

Mr. Towers is now looking for the coming season's engagements for most of the London and Provincial Artists, as well as for the Manchester Vocal Society (40 voices), Manchester Select Choir (4, 8, or 10 voices), the Balmoral Concert Party (Highland Costume), Rochdale Orpheus Prize Male Voice Choir, &c.

Terms, &c., on application, as above.

THE ARION GLEE CLUB (Male Voice).—

For Public and Private Concerts, Dinners, Parties, &c., part or entire Programme. Terms and vacant dates on application to F. A. Goodworth, Hon. Sec., 23, Gibson Square, N.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS" CONCERTS

Conductor—Mr. JOSEF CANTOR.

1886.

September 29	Leeds.
October 16	Bon.
October 30	Preston.
November 13	Manchester.
November 20	Bradford.
December 11	Bolton (2nd visit).
December 13	Worcester.

(Subscription Concerts.)

1887.

January 8	Manchester (2nd visit).
January 29	Bradford (2nd visit).
February 7	Wrexham.
February 12	Bolton (3rd visit).
March 1	Huddersfield.

(Subscription Concerts.)

March 5	Manchester (3rd visit).
March 12	Bury.
March 15	Oldham.

&c., &c.

All communications, Mr. Cantor, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME and the MISSES PORTER'S CONCERT PARTY (the London Lady Quartet) will be in town early in November, and open to engagements. Fully booked until then. Manager, 17, Formosa Street, Maida Hill, London, W.

THE MENDELSSOHN QUARTET.—Messrs.

HENRI RIVIERE (Alto), FREDERICK BAUHOFF (Tenor), GEORGE CURTIS (Baritone), and CHARLES BERNARD (Bass). Lady Vocalists and Pianist if required. For terms and open dates, apply to the Secretary, Lawrence R. Dicksee, 6, Fitzroy Square, W.

THE GEM QUARTET.—Alto, Mr. Harry Weir; Tenor, Mr. W. Chapman; Baritone, Mr. J. L. Haddon; Bass, Mr. G. Vinson—are open to accept engagements for Concerts, Banquets, At Homes, &c. Address, for terms, &c., Mr. J. L. Haddon, 38, Duncan Terrace, Islington, N.

SCHOOL OF ORATORIO AND RECITATIVE

Burlington Hall, Burlington Street, Regent Street

Established 1886.

Under the direction of
ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; and
W. A. BARRETT, Mus. Bac., Oxon. (Lecturer).

Instituted for the special training of Vocalists in Oratorio, Cantata, Recitative, and Concerted Music. Voice Production and Phrasing.

Full particulars may be obtained on application to Mr. Alfred J. Caldicott, 57, Nevcrn Square, Earl's Court.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE.

President: E. J. HOPKINS, Mus. Doc.

Principal: EDWIN M. LOT, Mus. Doc.

LOCAL THEORETICAL EXAMINATION, November 30, 1886.

Practical Examinations conducted throughout the kingdom. Hedley Carus, Esq., Hon. Sec., 270, Cornwall Road, W.

MR. JOHN HENKEN'S MUSIC CLASSES at the Birkbeck Institution, Bream's Buildings, Chancery Lane, will commence the first week in October. Elementary on Mondays. Advanced on Tuesdays. Choral Society on Thursdays. Theory of Music on Fridays. Introductory Lecture on October 4, at 8.30. Admission free. For fees, which are very moderate, hours of meeting, &c., see Prospectus, gratis on application. Classes also meet for instruction in the Violin, Piano, Harmonium, Harp, Flute, Violoncello, &c.

TRIO AND QUARTET CLASS.

—Mr. and Mrs. HENRY R. STARR beg to announce that they hold the above at their residence every Monday, at three o'clock. Particulars may be obtained at 139, Inverness Terrace, Bayswater.

UNIVERSITY OF TRINITY COLLEGE,

Toronto.—FACULTY OF MUSIC.—The next Examinations in Music will be held in London and Toronto in Easter Week, 1887. For particulars, apply, Rev. E. K. Kendall, D.C.L., Registry for England, Southsea.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND

HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss MacIntyre, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the School pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The fees payable in advance. Michaelmas Term begins October 6. Pupils entering at that date to attend for Examination on Wednesday, 6, and will be eligible to compete for the Scholarships to be awarded in May, 1887, by Professor Sir G. A. Macfarren. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss MacIntyre.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

SOUTH LONDON MUSICAL CLUB.—The

President begs to announce that the Prize of £10, advertised in the Musical Times of May last, has, with the approval of Dr. Stainer, been awarded to Mr. Gerard F. Cobb, of Trinity College, Cambridge, whose Composition bore the motto "Cantabat vacuus."

Gresham Hall, Brixton, S.W., September 24, 1885.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

J. B. CRAMER & CO.,

CONCERT AGENTS,
LIVERPOOL.

PRIZE COMPETITION (£3, £2, and £1) for WHITSUNTIDE HYMN TUNES. Manchester Sunday School Union. For conditions, send stamp to J. E. Balmer, Crumppall, Manchester.

MUSICAL WORKS effectively ARRANGED for large or small Orchestras on moderate terms. Address, Beta, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC neatly and accurately COPIED and TRANSPosed at from fourpence per page. Address, "Breve," 12, Duke Street, London Bridge, S.E.

WANTED, a Full Score Copy (printed) of HAYDN'S MASS (No. 16). Address, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

GERMANY.—Miss SERCOMBE, L.L.A., late Assistant Mistress at the Norwich High School, continues to receive a limited number of Pupils. Special arrangements made for Ladies wishing to study Music at the CONSERVATORIUM. Address, Danneckerstrasse, STUTTGART.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON., (1885), and T.C.D. (1884). MUS. BAC., CANTAB. (1885); MUS. BAC., T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., OXON.; Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (May, 1886); 1st Mus. Bac., Oxon. (1886); L.R.A.M. (1886); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1884); N.S.P.M. (1886); Toronto (1st and 2nd Examinations), F.C.O. T.C.L. &c. More than 200 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by DR. ALLISON'S Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885 and 1886. Theory, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Successes at Coll. of Organists, 1885; 1st Mus. Bac., Cambridge, 1st Class, 1886; Mus. Bac., Toronto, 1st and 2nd Examinations, 1886, First Class (four). Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. ARTHUR J. GREENISH, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., A.R.A.M., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS, Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., taught personally or by correspondence. Candidates prepared through post for Musical Examinations. 23, Maitland Park Road, Havestock Hill, N.W.

MR. BATTISON HAYNES (First-class Diploma Leipzig Conservatorium), Organist, St. Philip's, Sydenham, is prepared to receive additional PUPILS for PIANOFORTE, Organ, Harmony, Counterpoint, Choral Fugue, Composition and Instrumentation. For terms, &c., address, 2, Diamond Terrace, Hyde Vale, Blackheath, S.E., or 1, Berners Street, W.

DR. C. W. PEARCE begs to announce that he has made arrangements for giving LESSONS in HARMONY and COMPOSITION, and for personally preparing Candidates for Musical Examinations at 54, Great Marlborough Street, Regent Street, W. (London Music Publishing Company's). For terms, &c., address, Dr. Pearce, 14, Matheson Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Address, Market Place, South Shields.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS, Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street, Mayfair, W.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. E. BURRITT LANE, L.Mus., T.C.L. (Tallis Gold Medalist, 1880), begs to announce his REMOVAL to 16, Bouverie Road, Stoke Newington, N. Tuition personally or by post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c.

MR. ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, &c., by post. 9, Avington Grove, Penge, S.E.

MR. WM. L. WHITNEY will receive two or three PUPILS. Those studying for the Profession preferred. Address, 58, South Hill Park, Hampstead.

MR. C. E. MILLER, Organist of St. Augustine and St. Faith's, Watling Street, E.C., has VACANCIES for PUPILS for ORGAN and HARMONY. Terms on application.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., carefully taught by a Gentleman holding College of Organists and Trinity College diplomas. Candidates prepared through post for Musical Examinations. Terms very moderate. Address, Allegro, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT taught by correspondence. Method employed is quick and solid. Berlioz, care of Terry, Stoneman and Co., 6, Hatton Garden, E.C.

A LADY (Pupil of Dupont, Brussels Conservatoire; first-rate certificate) desires additional PUPILS for Pianoforte, Theory, and Sight-Singing. Good School or Private Pupils. Highest references. For terms, address, Miss B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A PROFESSOR of MUSIC in the North of London having a large connection, and holding the Organ appointment at the principal Church of the district, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Good opportunity for acquiring general experience both in Orchestral and Church work. Premium required. One who could take elementary Violin or Piano lessons preferred. Address, Verax, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSICAL STUDENT.—An experienced Music Master can receive into his country home (with another Pupil) a young Gentleman desirous to qualify himself as a MUSICIAN. This opening, being exceptional, is fitted for the special case of one unable or unwilling to enter any Public School or Academy. It is available only for a youth of good breeding, education, and fair promise, furnished with ample means. Address, M. G. E., Mus. Doc., Oxon., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—MR. G. ERNEST LAKE, Organist and Musical Director, All Saints', Kensington, REQUIRES a gentlemanly YOUTH to train for a high-class professional position for a Youth Choral Service, Large Organ, Broadwood Concert Grand, Music Library, and home comforts. Small Premium for Youth with talent. 57, Burlington Road, North Kensington.

ARTICLED PUPIL REQUIRED. Good opportunity for a Youth with talent. One able to play an easy service preferred. Apply, Mus. Bac., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

THE ACADEMY CLASS ROOMS, 162 and 163, Friar Street, Reading, are admirably adapted for the use of Professors of Music and the Fine Arts, being centrally situated and close to the G.W. S.W. and S.E. Railway Termini. All communications to Mr. Frank Attwells, Reading.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c.; blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. Peck, 36, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

A THOROUGHLY qualified Musician, composer of some of the most popular music of the day, seeks ENGAGEMENT as MUSICAL ADVISER and ARRANGER. Address, Z. A. Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ST. ANDREW'S, Wells Street, W.—There are vacancies for CHOIR BOYS and PROBATIONERS in the above Choir. Application to be made to Mr. F. A. W. Docker, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, W.

HAMPSTEAD PARISH CHURCH CHOIR.—WANTED, a BOY with good TREBLE voice, capable of taking Solos. Address, Rev. M. G. Tracey, 2, Holly Place, Hampstead.

CHOIR BOY WANTED, St. Paul's, Herne Hill. Salary according to ability. Apply to Mr. White, at the Church, after service.

CHOIR BOYS WANTED, for Allhallows Barking Church, Great Tower Street, E.C. Remuneration according to ability. Apply to or to the Precentor, at the Church, on Wednesday evenings, at 8 o'clock.

ALTO WANTED, for the Choir of St. Michael's, Paddington. Salary £20. Apply to Mr. C. W. Perkins, 5, Redburn Street, Tedworth Square, S.W.

ST. MATTHIAS' CHURCH, Earl's Court.—ALTO WANTED, at once. Must have good voice and read well. Duties, Morning and Evening on Sundays, the usual festivals, and rehearsals Friday evenings. Salary, £25 per annum. Apply, by letter only, J. Mallit Jones, Esq., 2, Kemsford Gardens, Earl's Court, S.W.

ALTO WANTED, immediately, for St. Mary's, Bourdon Street, W. Two Services on Sundays, and Rehearsal on Thursday evenings. Stipend, £10. Apply at the Church on Tuesday, at 8.30 p.m., or Thursday, at 9 p.m.

ALTO WANTED. City Church. Duties light. Stipend, £12. X., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW THE GREAT, West Smithfield.—WANTED, TWO ALTOS at £12 per annum, and TWO TENORS at £10. Communicants. Duties, two Services on Sundays, and ordinarily one practice, Music, Gregorian and Anglican. Applications, with copies of testimonials from Clergymen, should be addressed to T. R. L., Mr. Owen, Advertising Agent, 35, Little Britain.

WANTED, two ALTOS, two TENORS, and two BASSES. Choir of St. Andrew's, Ashley Place, Victoria Street, S.W. Salary, £20 per annum. Apply to Organist, 274, Vauxhall Bridge Road, S.W.

LEADING ALTO and SECOND TENOR WANTED, for the Choir of St. Augustine and St. Faith, E.C. Must understand the alto and tenor clefs respectively, and be able to take verses, and read correctly at sight. Apply by letter, stating remuneration required to C. E. Miller, Esq., as above.

SOLO ALTO and CHOIRMASTER.—A Young Gentleman requires a SITUATION as above. Could commence at once. H., care of Housekeeper, 29, Queen Street, E.C.

ALTO, TENOR, and BASS (good readers) WANTED, for All Saints', Kensington Park. Full choral services. Private lessons given in return. Address, Mr. Ernest Lake.

WANTED, ALTOS (Male), TENORS, and BASSES, to complete re-organisation Voluntary Choir of Holy Trinity Church, Little Queen Street, Holborn. Apply, personally, or by letter, to Rev. N. Bromley, 60, Doughty Street, W.C.

WANTED, a TENOR Singer, for All Hallows', Lombard Street. Sunday Evenings only. Salary, £8 a year. Must be an excellent Reader and good Voice. Apply to T. Bensted, 4, Pembroke Villas, Richmond, Surrey.

ST. BARNABAS, Bell Street, Edgware Road.—There is a VACANCY for a TENOR in the Choir of this Church. Duties—Two Services on Sundays, Good Friday, and Christmas Day, and a weekly Rehearsal on Friday evenings. Salary £20. Apply by letter, to the Choirmaster, Mr. W. S. Hoyte 68, Boundary Road, N.W.

GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.—TENOR
REQUIRED. Candidates must be communicants of the Church of England. Stipend, £10 a year, and 1s. 6d. for every attendance at Church. Candidates likely to suit will be required to appear before the Dean and Chapter on some early day in November next, which will be signified to them. Applications, stating age and place of residence, with testimonials as to moral and religious character, powers of voice, and musical capacity, to be forwarded to the Rev. the Precentor, Little Cloisters, Gloucester, on or before October 25.

TENOR WANTED, for Christ Church, Kensington (near Gloucester Road and High Street Railway Station). Must be able to Chant and Read well. Matins and Evensong on Sundays, and one weekly Choir Practice. Five weeks' holiday in August and September. Salary, £15. Apply to Choirmaster, 23, Young Street, W.

TENOR.—WANTED, position as FIRST TENOR or SOLO, in London Church Choir. Trained (first sight) reader; strength, medium. Apply, Music, 255, Junction Road, N.

TENOR wishes to join QUARTET or CONCERT PARTY. Address B. 6, Warwick Court, Holborn.

WANTED, CHOIRMEN (Communicants) for a simple Choral Anglican Service. Accessible. London Church. Two Services and one Practice. Stipend, £8. Address, Rev. K. Blank, care of Mr. Walter, Newsagent, 24, Bell Yard, Temple Bar, E.C.

LADIES and GENTLEMEN, with good Voices, WANTED, for Evangelistic Services on Sunday Afternoons. Travelling expenses paid. Tea after service. A. Rastall, Ebury St., S.W.

WANTED, for First Class ANNUAL (14th) CONCERT, to be held in November or December, a party, consisting of not less than two Ladies and two Gentlemen, to provide entire (two hours) entertainment, consisting of Glees, Trios, Duets, and Solos. Terms must be reasonable. First-class accompanist provided. This is a good opportunity for companies travelling North. For further particulars, apply to T. Waite, Lawson Street, Maryport.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Croxley Green Church, Herts, near Watford and Rickmansworth. Good Churchman. Efficient trainer of boys. Surplised choir; choral services. Salary £30. Address, Vicar, Croxley Green, Rickmansworth.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER will be required at St. John's Church, Horton Lane, Bradford. There are a surplised choir and choral service. The organ has three manuals and thirty-three stops. Stipend, £60 per year. Address, with full particulars, to the Vicar, St. John's Vicarage, Horton Lane, Bradford, Yorkshire.

ORGANIST WANTED, for the Church of St. Jude, in the parish of Egham. Twenty-one miles from London. Superior musician and good choirmaster. Stipend, £40 per annum. Address (enclosing recent testimonials), The Vicar, Egham, Surrey.

WANTED, for North Berwick Parish Church, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Salary, £40 per annum. Opening for pupils. Address, Mr. W. Calder, Session Clerk, St. Andrew's Church, North Berwick, Haddingtonshire, N.B.

WANTED, as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, or ASSISTANT. London preferred. Over nine years' experience. Excellent testimonials and references. Apply, H. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, Oxford Mus. Bac., is open to Post. Great experience in Choir Training. Highest testimonials. Good salary. Good organ. Address, Oxon., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of a Hackney Church (full Choral Service) wishes to obtain a similar APPOINTMENT in the Suburbs of London. Would be willing to train the Choir. Salary moderate, but good organ desired. Excellent testimonials. Apply, Organist, 5, Albert Road, Dalston, E.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in London. Several years' experience. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

WANTED, as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, in or near London (if possible). Over nine years' experience. Excellent references and testimonials. Apply, F. R. S. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

